

Асво 1135

286.6
C4629
V.105

Digitized by the Internet Archive
in 2014

<https://archive.org/details/christiansun105gene>

HISTORICAL SOCIETY. 1956.
Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches.

The CHRISTIAN SUN

ORGAN OF THE SOUTHERN CONVENTION OF CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES

In Essentials Unity — In Non-Essentials, Liberty, — In All Things, Charity

VOLUME CV

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, JANUARY 1, 1953

NUMBER 1

HAPPY NEW YEAR

The dear Old Year has passed away;
A bright New Year has come:
It brings new joys to girls and boys;
It smiles upon our home.

God give us very grateful hearts
For this Happy New Year.
God make it bright with Peace and Light
And endless loving cheer.

O dear God, make this new-born Year
A joyous Year that bringe
Us work and fun and health and sun,
With many happy things.

O keep this growing life of mine
From sin and pain and fear.
Teach me to see your love for me
Through all this glad New Year.

—Prayers for Little Men and Women, John Martin.

News Flashes

We wish for each of our readers a New Year filled with happiness and joy.

We are glad to be able to announce that Dr. R. L. House is again able to take up his work as editor. The substitutes have done their best, but relinquish the load with pleasure.

"My sincere wish for each one of you is that the year 1953 shall be the happiest, the most joyful and the most rewarding you have ever experienced. In the New Year, your pastor longs for a still stronger bond of friendship and mutual helpfulness with you"—R. C. Helfenstein in the Richmond Church's bulletin, "The Witness."

The Christmas Season at First Church, Burlington

A series of Advent sermons centering on the topic "New Light" was delivered by the pastor, Rev. Henry E. Robinson. New Light through his followers, the Bible, music and his Son were the topics.

The sanctuary and other rooms of the church were decorated on Saturday, December 13, by any and all desiring to assist in "the hanging of the greens," a custom begun here three seasons ago.

The Senior Choir rendered a service of music on December 14, choosing selections from the "Messiah." The Kindergarten, under the direction of Mrs. Byrd Cox, rendered a Christmas program on Thursday, December 18, which was well attended by parents and friends.

The newly formed Parents' Council sponsored a Christmas Family Festival which included a supper and service at which the children decorated a tree with socks and mittens for overseas relief. Also under the Parents' Councils' sponsorship a communication was sent to every home outlining various ways the family could prepare for and celebrate Christmas, including a devotional service.

Gifts of toilet articles were received for the Christian Orphanage. Numerous persons and families were remembered by the Deacons, organizations and classes.

On Sunday afternoon, December 21, the children of the Sunday school rendered a very beautiful Christmas Pageant, assisted by the Boys' Choir, directed by Dr. Talbert King. The Junior Choir went carolling and included a number of shut-ins enroute.

Our Richmond Church Reports

The church at Richmond, Virginia, is in the midst of an important improvement project—the providing of a modern recreation and social room in the basement of the sanctuary for the young people's activities. The project, when completed, will give the church one of the best recreation centers in the city.

The room is now ready for painting and equipping. Much of the work has been done by the young people's group under the supervision of an adult committee in charge, which has rendered generous assistance. Skilled labor has been employed where advisable.

The recreation and social room, though being provided mainly for the youth group, will also be a great asset to the whole church program. The vision and cooperation of the entire church in launching and completing the project have been a most commendable expression of their interest.

The combined choirs of the church gave a beautiful candle-light carol service on the Sunday night before Christmas, under the able direction of the choir director, Mrs. L. L. Bond. Some present declared it to be the most inspiring service of its kind they had ever attended.

Both the Christmas party and the Christmas program of the Sunday school were occasions of unusual delight, reflecting great credit on the committees in charge.

On the Sunday before Christmas, Dr. Roy C. Helfenstein, the pastor, spoke on the topic, "Putting Christ into Christmas." The Sunday following Christmas, he spoke on "After Christmas—What?"

Two of the three daughters of Dr. and Mrs. Helfenstein: Mrs. Charlotte Warner, her husband, Attorney W. H. G. Warner, and their young daughter, Melissa, of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Janice Ryder and her husband, Dr. J. G. Ryder, of Shelby, Ohio, spent the holidays at the parsonage. The other daughter, Mrs. Dorothy Kingsboro, her husband, Dr. W. S. Kingsboro and their two children, were unable to do so because of the sickness of the ten-months-old son.

Eastern Virginia C. M. A. Raises Large Offering

The Christian Missionary Association of the Eastern Virginia Conference met December 9 with the Windsor Church for its sixty-first annual session.

Contributing generously to the inspiration of the day were the addresses given by Rev. Earl T. Farrell of Cypress Chapel and Dr. Stanley C. Harrell of Durham, N. C.

In the roll call of churches, thirty-three of the forty-three churches in Eastern Virginia responded with memberships totaling $3,910.00. This was the largest amount received in recent years by this organization for Home Mission work in the Conference.

Reports were given by each of the five churches aided during the past year, and it was revealed that in each of them a marked progress in their work was evident. The Plans Committee recommended assistance to four churches for the coming year, and that $1,750.00 be set aside and added to an amount already in reserve, to give help in the establishment of a new church during the ensuing year.

An unexpected but very interesting event occurring at the meeting was the "Battle of the Dollars"—Dr. Jesse H. Dollar of Liberty Spring, title holder of the largest contributing church for the past two years, and Rev. Melvin Dollar of Rosemont, contender for the crown, who lost by only a small margin. The "Dollars" reported from Liberty Spring were $540.00; while Rosemont "Dollars" reported were $510.00. A return bout is scheduled for early December, 1953, at the Shelton Memorial Church of Portsmouth. In the judgment of this writer the "Dollar" at Liberty Spring has a very able contender for his title. So until the return match next December, we must wait and see how much "cents" will come from these two "Dollars."

Officers re-elected for the coming year were as follows: Rev. H. E. Crutchfield, president; Rev. Earl T. Farrell, vice-president; Rev. Johnson L. Griffin, recording secretary; Rev. R. E. Brittle, financial secretary, and Mr. E. L. Rawles, treasurer.

J. EVETETTE NEESE,
Reporter.

Religion is exactly the thing that cannot be left out of life because it includes everything—Chesterton.

Have You Read?

HOW TO HELP AN ALCOHOLIC. By Clifford J. Earle. The Westminster Press. 96pp. $1.50.

The author gains the confidence of the reader at the very outset. Every statement and conclusion has the earmark of coming from one who knows, who cares, and who sincerely wishes to share his knowledge and experiences with his fellow seekers after truth about "How to Help and Alcoholie."

The whole problem of alcoholism is squarely faced by the author, and the scientific approach obtains throughout. But the need and place of spiritual assistance is forcefully stated without apology.

The appreciation of the author for what Alcoholics Anonymous has accomplished in helping alcoholics, and data presented for making needed contacts, together with concrete information for scientific guidance; and the practical emphasis on the part that religion can and should play in the work of reclaiming alcoholics—all this makes the book of special interest and value to religious workers wishing to be of largest service possible to victims of alcoholism.

ROY C. HELFENSTEIN.

* * * * *

RUFUS JONES SPEAKS TO OUR TIMES, An Anthology edited by Harry Emerson Fosdick. The Macmillan Company. 286 pp. $4.50.

Without question this book will be given high place among the ten greatest books published in the present decade. It is indeed a classic. It is the evaluation, appreciation and presentation of one of America's greatest preachers of all time, giving the golden nuggets of thought gleaned from the fifty-seven note-worthy books written by one of America's greatest philosophers and noblest Christian gentlemen. A digest in one volume of the writings of a life-time by a world-renowned scholar, which writings required fifty-seven volumes to convey the author's message to the reading audience in waiting!

The revealing and stimulating biographical sketch of Rufus Jones in Dr. Fosdick's illuminating "Introduction" is in itself well worth the price of the book.

To realize that the book gives the cream of the thinking of "so great and good a man" as Rufus Jones should cause every protestant minister to see that a copy is placed in his library. The titles of the chapters suggest the great treat in store for the reader: "Where Is God?" "How Does God Reveal Himself?" "What Is Man?" "How Explain Conscience?" "What Is Vital Religion?" "Is Science Enough?" "What Is True Mysticism?" "What Does Prayer Mean?" "What Is the Matter with the Church?" "What Is the Christian Way of Life?" "How Deal with Dark Days?" "Who Are the Quakers?" "Why Believe in Immortality?" ROY C. HELFENSTEIN.

The Managing Editor Takes a Short Time Off

The managing editor and Mrs. Kernodle were in Southern Pines during the Christmas holidays, and enjoyed a visit and meal with Dr. and Mrs. House while there. His many friends will be glad to know that Robert Lee is making a strong comeback. Enroute, the Kernodles stopped in Sanford for a few minutes visit with the V. C. McIvers and a phone call to Dr. W. B. O'Neill, whom we found confined to his bed by a crippled knee. The return trip was by Graham, where live relatives, and Elon College. We enjoyed seeing many old friends, hearing an excellent sermon by Rev. H. P. Bozarth, and visiting in the home of Dr. and Mrs. L. E. Smith.

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr
A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom as represented by the Congregational Christian Churches.

Our Principles

1. The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
2. Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
3. The Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
4. Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and church membership.
5. The right of private judgment and liberty of conscience is a privilege that should be accorded to and exercised by all.

Editor Robert Lee House
Managing Editor John T. Kernodle

Departmental Editors—Convention, Wm. T. Scott; Missions, F. C. Lester; Women's Work, Mrs. F. C. Lester; Young People's Work, Max Vestal; Children, Mrs. R. L. House; Sunday School Lesson, H. S. Hardcastle.

Institutional Representatives—Elon College, L. E. Smith; The Christian Orphanage, John G. Truitt.

Board of Publications—Duane Vore, Chairman, S. T. Holland, Secretary; R. C. Helfenstein, S. E. Madren, W. W. Snyder, G. D. Colclough, Treasurer, ex officio.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Year $3.00
Two Years 5.00

Published by the Board of Publications of The Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches, Inc. Printed every Thursday except the last in June and December by Central Publishing Co., Inc., Richmond, Va.

Entered as second-class matter at the Post Office at Richmond Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

General contributions should be addressed to the editor at Southern Pines, N. C., and should reach him by Wednesday of the week preceding date of publication.

Departmental material should be sent to the proper departmental editor, at the address shown on their page.

All other material and business communications except regarding subscriptions should be sent to the Office of Publication, 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond 19, Va.

The Christian Sun Subscription Blank

Subscription Price: 1 year, $3.00; 2 years, $5.00

Date 195....

Dr. Wm. T. Scott, Supt.,
Elon College, N. C.

Enclosed find $..... for which please send The Christian Sun
() 1 year, () 2 years — () New Subscription, () Renewal.

To

Address

Who is a member of Church

() Renew, () Enter my own subscription for () 1 year, () 2 years.

My Name

My Address

From the EDITOR'S Desk

A.D. or B.C.?

It has been suggested that Paul had his own calendar—on one side of which was B.C., before he met Christ; and on the other side, A.D., the year of the Lord, the year and years that followed his call to apostleship. For Paul this line of demarcation was not theoretical. It was authentic, decisive, sufficient. There had been a revolutionary inward transformation. He expressed it like this: "When any man comes to be in Christ, there is a new creation. What is old is gone—the new has come."

Sad to relate, B. C. could be written over the entrances to many homes and hearts. Through neglect as well as willful determination, Christ is excluded from many lives, many activities and areas of life.

With Christ comes the great transformation. He brings healing for the past, hope for the future. He brings the messages and medicines of eternity.

In our homes, in our businesses, and in our churches, we can labor incessantly and effectively to make this year indeed the Year of our Lord.

Publication in Fifty-Three

What is our publication forecast for the new year? The answer to that does not rest entirely with the editor. It will be determined in part by your contributions, by your news reports. Moreover, the editor would like to know your desires. Who are your favorite writers? What issues would you like to have discussed; what subjects presented; what items featured? The editor would welcome suggestions.

We are planning a series on "The Layman of the Week," and "The Church of the Week." These should prove interesting and stimulating. We believe the laymen should have a more prominent part in our publication.

There will also be the usual emphases on the Church Year and the institutions of the Church. You may expect to read and learn a great deal about the message, programs and personalities of the Church. We should have a good year. Naturally, we hope there are many subscribers in your church. Our efforts in publication depend largely on your efforts in circulation.

The Minister's Year

On New Year's Day, two years before his death, Dr. Alexander Whyte, the great Edinburgh preacher, wrote to his friend Alexander Gammie: "I spent last Sabbath on a book that I read for the first time more than fifty years ago. It is the work of an author who has never been out of my hands for all these many years. And as I read that book again the thought was again and again in my mind that I will now set down for you to pass on. Let any of your Divinity students early discover and select some great author or authors in divinity; let those great authors be to them all their days something like what Athanasius was to Newman, and Augustine to French, and Luther to Bunyan, and Leighton to Coleridge, and Butler to Gladstone, and Foster and Faber to Marcus Dods, and Hooker and Bunyan and Butler and Law and Goodwin to myself. And, sir, I do not know that I could send student readers, or indeed any class of readers, a better New Year advice along with the best benediction of an old man and ever grateful student."

Every minister should make this a great year by reading great books both new and old. This is a remarkable age of publication. Like the wise and ancient scribe, the minister will bring forth out of his treasure things both new and old. He will keep company with great minds and warm himself by the fires of the spirit. Old friendships will be rekindled, new discoveries will be made, and there will be many fresh revelations of God's will.

Throughout this year of grace, therefore, may the Lord bless you and keep you; may the Lord make his face to shine upon you and be gracious unto you; may the Lord lift up the light of his countenance upon you, and give you peace.

Southern Convention Finances . . .

By REV. STANLEY C. HARRELL, D.D.
Chairman, Convention Committee on Finance

The Chairman of the Board of Publications requested that I write an article on Convention finances during the time that the Editor of THE CHRISTIAN SUN was muted by the orders of his physician. The Editor recovered before I could get my thoughts reduced to writing. It is very gratifying that Doctor House is again able to take his editorial pen in hand. However, I hope I may be permitted to get in a word about this subject; for it is constantly upon my mind and heart.

The record in finances of the churches of the Southern Convention for the church year of 1951-52, is one concerning which we may feel justifiable pride. The figures which we are about to give, may be changed slightly by belated reports; but they are approximately correct.

The benevolence giving of the churches of the Convention, through Convention and Conference channels, amounted to $108,924.00. The total benevolence giving of the churches, for all purposes, amounted to $171,116.00. The churches spent for all local church purposes, including amounts spent for church debts and new buildings, the sum of $1,127,770. This makes a grand total of $1,298,886, raised, and spent or contributed within the Convention. On a per capita basis, this means $4.99 for benevolences, and $37.91 for all church purposes.

Interesting as it is to know the total giving of the churches within the Convention, and what is the average giving by each individual; that is not the issue which should be of the greatest concern to us. From what we know of the situation in most of our churches, half of the total membership contributes almost the entire amount raised in the church; and one-fourth of the members contribute nothing at all.

The money which is contributed by a person indicates his interest in and loyalty to the church. There is, however, the other side of the picture. It is our conviction that there is no better way to increase one's interest in and loyalty to the church, than by contributing to the financial support of the church. Giving not only strengthens the church, it strengthens the member who gives. Our task is not only to support churches. Our principal responsibility is to develop strong, well-rounded Christians. There is no better way to develop Christians than to interest them in all the activities and enterprises of the church in which they hold membership.

When a church builds a new sanctuary or adds to its educational facilities, every one can see the results. When a church secures the services of a better preacher, all the members who attend the church profit by what they hear. But church members are not always aware of the good which is being accomplished through the giving of dollars for benevolences. A way must be found to acquaint church members with the end-results of their giving for benevolences.

DR. S. C. HARRELL

It was this writer's privilege to attend the recent session of the Eastern Virginia Conference Christian Missionary Association. The spirit of the meeting was both a delight and an inspiration. There was a high enthusiasm evidenced by every thing that went on in connection with the meeting. Those who were there were having a good time, and a good time of the very best kind. Many of them had come from churches which had been aided in the early days of their history by the C. M. A. They loved their church, and were appreciative of the help their church had received, when help meant the difference between life and death of the church.

They were determined to give to others in the same measure and in the same spirit that help had come to their church.

The time has come when it must be realized that the strength of Christ's Church is but the combined strength of every local church. The only way by which a local church can increase the power of the Church, is to make the local church stronger, better, and more Christ-like in spirit. How can one believe in Christ and not believe in Christ's Church? It might be well if the term "our church" be dropped from the Christian vocabulary, and "Christ's Church" be used in its place.

It needs to be always remembered that the Church was ordained of God to fulfill the purpose for which Christ lived and died. When the Church is served Christ is served. It is through the Church that gratitude is expressed and service is rendered to Christ. In a world which is so sadly torn by suspicion, dissention, and strife, as is the world in which we are living, the gospel of Christ offers the only foundation for the building of a better world. As gifts are made and service is rendered in the name of Christ, we are helping to fulfill the petition of our Lord's Prayer, which says: Thy Kingdom come and thy will be done on earth, as it is in heaven.

Nationals at the Olympic Games Appreciate Fruit Juices

The leading athletes of the whole world stayed for several weeks at the Olympic Village near Helsinki, the Finnish capital. The representatives of the different nations who were responsible for arranging the diets of the teams took into account the customs of the different countries.

Needless to say, alcoholic drinks in most cases were not included. Exceptions were made for the Belgians and French. The former were allowed moderate quantities of Belgian beer, and for the 900 French athletes 4,000 bottles of Bordeaux wine and 4,000 bottles of mineral water were sent from the home country.

On the other hand, for the German participants, the fruit juice industry provided 8,000 bottles of apple juice, grape juice and other fruit juices. These natural juices were gratefully accepted by all classes of athletes.

It would be most welcome if at all future Olympic Games the diet of all athletes should include natural fruit juices which provide an excellent liquid food for all sportsmen.

Southern Convention Office

WM. T. SCOTT, Supt., Elon College, N. C.

Organization of Christian Church At Pleasant Cross

On Sunday, November 30, the newly erected addition to the plant of the Pleasant Cross Christian Church, located near Asheboro, N. C., in the Western North Carolina Conference, was dedicated. Dr. Wm. T. Scott, the superintendent of the Southern Convention, delivered the dedicatory sermon; and Rev. Martin L. Fogleman, pastor, assisted by Rev. J. Q. Pugh, conducted the dedicatory ritual.

Mallissa Pugh, Henry Vuncanon, Angeline Henson, Author Craven, Hannah Craven, John M. Pugh, Bettie Vuncanon, M. W. Allred, Lida A. Allred, C. M. Allred, Marion Pugh, James A. Coward, Elizabeth Pugh, Z. T. Bell, Sarah E. Coward, William West, B. E. Pugh, S. R. Pugh, Louiza Pugh, M. A. Pugh, Mary L. West, Pirena N. Morris, Helen West.

The first quarterly conference was held on December 2, 1882, with Rev. W. R. Brown, pastor, presiding. He served until 1885. Rev. W. G. Brady the third church building was erected on the original site. The first service held in the new building was Sunday school on July 26, 1931; then followed prayer meeting on Wednesday evening, July 29. A revival meeting followed, starting August 2, 1931.

Realizing the acute need of Sunday school rooms, a building fund was started in July, 1950, and in November, 1951, the erection of an educational building was started. This building of four rooms was completed on October 27 of this year, with both building and equipment paid for in full. It was then decided that the church needed a heating plant. On Sunday, November 2, the necessary money was raised, and the third week in November the installation was completed and the new church plant was ready for use.

PLEASANT CROSS CHRISTIAN CHURCH

The following statement is taken from the records of Pleasant Cross Church: "This body of believers met under a brush arbor from 1877 until 1881. On May 16, 1881, we whose names are hereunto annexed, members as we trust of the body of Christ having exercised repentance toward God and faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ, and being desirous of associating ourselves together as a church, agree to be governed by the following principles, to wit:" Here followed a statement of the five cardinal principles as laid down by the Christian Church. The charter members who signed this agreement were: W. J. Coward, Isabell Coward, E. J. V. Craven, Mary Craven, Jeremiah Wright, Elizabeth Wright, Quinsey Pugh, M. C. Allred, Thomas M. Ellison, V. F. Williams, Joas A. Henson, Elizabeth Ellison, J. P. R. Craven, served the church the following year. Rev. E. H. Jerrell served from 1886 to 1889. Other pastors in the order of their service were: Revs. W. W. Hayworth, James A. Webster, H. A. Albright, W. N. Hayes, T. J. Green, Ralph Smith, H. V. Cox, D. R. Moffitt, E. Carl Brady, J. Harold Loman, L. L. Wyrick, G. M. Talley, G. C. Crutchfield, J. U. Fogleman and E. Carl Brady. As stated above, Rev. Martin L. Fogleman is the present pastor.

The land for the first church was given by Lucinda Trogon. After the congregation outgrew this first church, a larger one was built on the same grounds. This church building served the people until the morning of February 13, 1931, when it was destroyed by fire.

Sunday school and church services were held in a school building until

Dr. Van Dusen Leaves for Asia and Africa

Dr. Henry P. Van Dusen, chairman of the World Council's Study Department Committee and president of Union Theological Seminary, left on December 11 for a two month trip to Asia and Africa, to attend World Council meetings in India, to visit Christian centers of learning in the Western Pacific and to view the Presbyterian missionary program in Africa. Dr. Van Dusen attended the Ecumenical Study Conference of the World Council's Study Department, in Lucknow, India, December 27-30, and is remaining for the Central Committee meeting, December 31 to January 9.

As chairman of the Board of Founders of Nanking Theological Seminary, and in behalf of the United Board of Christian Colleges of China, Dr. Van Dusen will visit educational institutions in Indonesia, Thailand, and the Philippines, where the population has been augmented by large numbers of Chinese. He will explore the possibilities for new avenues of theological training and college education for Chinese in Southeast Asia, since it is now impossible to continue this work on the mainland of China.

In Africa, Dr. Van Dusen will view the work of churches and educational institutions, as a member of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A. He will be the guest of Dr. Albert Schweitzer at Lambarene, French Equatorial Africa. Dr. Van Dusen will return to New York about February 7, 1953.

—Ecumenical Press Release.

News of Elon College

PRESIDENT L. E. SMITH, Elon College, N. C.

Appreciation Pastors

Sincere appreciation is hereby expressed to all pastors in the Southern Convention and to their churches for sending in their lists for mailing purposes as requested.

An urgent appeal is made to all pastors and churches that have not sent in their lists to please do so at once. Letters are ready to be mailed, but we cannot send them without the names and addresses.

At the time this is being written the following have sent in their lists:

Eastern N. C. Conference—

Beulah—Carl Wallace.
Chapel Hill—R. L. Jackson.
Mt. Auburn—W. A. Rich.
New Hope—Carl Wallace.

Eastern Virginia Conference—

Berea (Nans.)—H. S. Hardscastle.
Berea (Norfolk)—H. E. Crutchfield.
Bethlehem (Disp.)—John Gallo.
Holland—J. H. Lightbourne, Jr.
Holy Neck—Allen Hurdle.
Hopewell—E. F. Brickhouse.
Liberty Spring—J. H. Dollar.
Newport News—A. Lanson Granger.
Norfolk:

Bay View—Johnson Griffin.
Christian Temple—W. M. Stevens.
Little Creek—M. E. Taylor.
First—C. C. Thomas.
Rosemont—Melvin Dollar.
Second—J. E. Neese.

Oakland—H. S. Hardecastle.
Portsmouth:

Elm Avenue—R. E. Tally.
First—W. P. Smith.

Shelton Mem.—T. H. Britton.
Richmond—R. C. Helfenstein.
South Norfolk—O. D. Poythress.
Suffolk—Duane N. Vore.
Union (So.)—Clyde Fields.

N. C. and Va. Conference—

Asheville—F. E. Ratzell.
Bethlehem—G. C. Crutchfield.
Beverly Hills—W. W. Snyder.
Carolina—B. A. Leebrick.
Elon College—H. P. Bozarth.
Hebron—Mark Andes.
Hines Chapel—Julius Rice.
Ingram—W. T. Madren.
Kallam Grove—C. Fred Allred.
Lebanon—M. W. Andes.
Long's Chapel—E. J. Clawson.
Mt. Bethel—C. Fred Allred.
New Lebanon—C. Fred Allred.
Pfafftown—W. J. Andes.
Pleasant Grove—W. T. Madren.

Shallow Ford—R. M. Petersen.
Union (N. C.)—K. D. Register.
Union (Va.)—Mark Andes.
Winston-Salem—W. J. Andes.

Western N. C. Conference—

Albemarle—T. D. Sutton.
Asheboro—F. C. Lester.
Bailey's Grove—W. T. Madren.
Flint Hill—W. T. Madren.
High Point—G. H. Veazey.
Liberty—L. M. Presnell.
Pleasant Ridge—Max Vestal.
Sophia—W. T. Madren.
Spoon's Chapel—Max Vestal.

Virginia Valley Conference—

Antioch—E. J. Rohart.
Bethlehem—Ralph M. Galt.
Beulah—E. J. Rohart.
Concord—Ralph M. Galt.
Linville—E. J. Rohart.
Mayland—E. J. Rohart.
Palmyra—Ralph M. Galt.
Timber Ridge—H. V. Harman.
Winchester—R. A. Whitten.
Wood's Chapel—Ralph M. Galt.

* * * * *

Chapel Hour

Friday, December 19, was the last chapel service at the college for 1952. There were several special numbers by the choir. Misses Judy Ingram and Annie Laurie Albright were the soloists. The choir led the audience in singing a number of familiar Christmas carols.

The writer read the Christmas story recorded in Mattheu, offered prayer, and brought greetings to faculty, students and visitors as follows:

"Through the passing centuries, no one has sought Christ without receiving help from above. If the way seemed dark, a bright light shone upon that way scattering the darkness and driving away the mist. If the way seemed rough and crooked, the arm of the Almighty was beared, smoothing out the rough places and straightening the crooked places. If the birth of Christ and the rebirth of man seemed a shrouded mystery, divine wisdom was given dissolving the mystery and making plain the way of life and of salvation, so that even though a man be a fool or a wayfarer there is no need for him to err therein.

"As we stand in the shadow of the Christmas season again, may we, all of us, make room in our hearts for the Christ Child. Seek him; seek until we shall have found him, and having found him may we open our treasures—treasures of life, of heart and of soul—and present unto him our gifts, precious gifts such as we have—gifts of love, of devotion and of sacrifice—sacrifice that approaches in a measure to the sacrifice that he made for us.

"As you leave this service and turn from this campus homeward or elsewhere, may the star of light and hope shine upon you, guiding you and protecting you all the way to your journey's end. Having reached your destination, may you find those there in health and strength, and may the blessings of Almighty God be upon you and yours throughout the Christmas season, and through his providence may you be brought into a New Year with hope and high expectations."

* * * * *

Apportionment Giving

The days come and go, the months pass, but by and by we are at the end of the year. We are approaching the end of 1952. What we have done is done, what we have left undone will doubtless be charged against us. As the curtain falls, may there be an even balance, for you have honestly and sincerely endeavored to do well.

Elon College wishes to express its grateful appreciation to all Sunday schools and churches that have paid their conference apportionments in full. It wishes also to express appreciation to those Sunday schools and churches who have done their best, though they failed to raise their entire apportionment. We would also express appreciation and assure those Sunday schools and churches that have not contributed of the college's interest in them and appreciation of the fact that they endeavor to worship and serve the Lord.

May all of our people have rich experiences during the Christmas season and the closing days of the year, and may we all be blessed and prospered in material things as we permit ourselves to be blessed and prospered in spiritual things throughout the entire year of 1953:

Previously reported	$13,999.18
N. C. and Va. Conference:
Hines Chapel S. S.	$ 9.25
Ingram S. S.	18.36
Long's Chapel	24.75
Va. Valley Conference:
Mt. Lebanon S. S.	23.00
Mt. Olivet (G)	1.00

76.36

Total to date $14,075.54

Missions at Home and Abroad

And Now There Is No "Morning Star"

The little white sailing ship Morning Star VI which sailed out of Boston Harbor for the South Pacific in the summer recently sank in Micronesia with no loss of life, according to word just received by the American Board, our foreign missions agency, which sent her out to those "Christians from Boston," as the Micronesian people described themselves to the United States Army and Navy personnel during World War II.

Morning Star VI, under authorization of the High Commissioner of the Trust Territory, was being towed to Majuro for sale. It was a four days trip. Skipper Creston Donald Ketchum of Vancouver, B. C., and one native sailor were on board. When about 80 miles from her destination, high seas battered the Morning Star and eventually swamped her. The water came in faster than the two men could bail it out. The towing steamer sent three of its crew to help bail, but even they could not prevent the disaster.

To make things even more difficult, Captain Ketchum and his companion came down with flu and were so weakened by this, and the constant strain of steering and bailing, that it was a miracle they were able to swim the 1,000 feet from the Star to the towing ship when the Star went down. Captain Ketchum saved the ship's papers.

Strangely enough, Miss Alice E. Cary, the secretary of the American Board for Micronesian work, was in the South Seas when Morning Star VI sank, making an official visit to the mission and representing the American Board at the 100th Anniversary celebration of the founding of the Christian Church in the Marshall and Caroline Islands.

Whether there will be still another Morning Star to replace the late Morning Star VI has not been decided by the officials of the American Board and will depend a great deal on the results of a thorough survey of the commercial means of transportation now available among the islands, and on Miss Cary's reports. It is the present feeling that probably several smaller boats which would be called Morning Starlets might be of more value to the native Christian pastors, school children and missionaries, in view of improved commercial transportation between mission stations. There is still, however, the absolute necessity for water transportation within each station area, for the churches on scattered islands must be visited, school children transported and missionaries and supplies shipped from one island to another.

The Morning Star VI was the latest in a long line of valiant little missionary vessels sent to the South Pacific by the American Board. They have been known to generations of American Christians.

The first Morning Star was a brigantine launched in Chelsea, Mass., November 12, 1956. It was sold in 1866. The second Morning Star, launched in East Boston, Mass., in 1866, was wrecked at Kusaie in 1869; the third Morning Star, a brigantine, launched in East Boston in 1871, was also wrecked at Kusaie in 1883.

Morning Star IV, a barkentine, with auxiliary steam power, was launched in Bath, Maine, in 1884, and was sold in 1901. Morning Star V was a steamer which left Boston in 1904 and was taken out of commission just one year later.

This ended the careers of the Morning Stars until Morning Star VI went out in 1947, following World War II at the specific request of the island Christians because travel facilities then were practically nil among the islands except by native canoes.

Divinity Student Slated for Philippines

Lloyd Gordon Van Vactor of New Haven, Conn., and Maisie Dorland Van Vactor, whose home was originally Spearfish, S. D., have just been appointed as career missionaries by the American Board for service in the Philippine Islands. However, the young people will not be going out for some time because Mr. Van Vactor is now finishing his theological training at Yale Divinity School and will follow that with a semester at Hartford Theological Seminary on Field Orientation before sailing for the Philippines.

In the Philippines Mr. and Mrs. Van Vactor will do special church and evangelistic work in Northern Mindanao.

Lloyd Van Vactor was born in Scranton, N. D., 24 years ago. He received his B. A. degree from Yankton College, in South Dakota.

During his college courses he was a part time printer with the Queen City Press and the Pioneer Press. He also was a student pastor in the Congregational Church at St. Onge, S. D., and worked as manager of the college bookstore at Yankton. During his seminary training, he has served as psychiatric aide at the Yale Psychiatric Clinic and as student assistant at Saugatuck Congregational Church, Westport, Conn.

Maisie Dorland Van Vactor was born 23 years ago in Granite Falls, Minnesota. In her early teens her family moved to the Hawaiian Islands and she was educated at Roosevelt High School, Honolulu, the University of Hawaii and Yankton College.

Experience in civil service at Pearl Harbor, Occupational Therapy Aide at Yankton State Hospital, in North Dakota, and work in the Grace-New Haven Community Hospital make up Mrs. Van Vactor's background.

To Combat Communist Literature in India

Christian writers in India are being mobilized by mission boards and other church agencies to combat the inexpensive literature which the Communists have widely distributed in the country. This Communist literature abounds in simple symbols, imagery and story-forms, and the Christian writers are being urged to simplify their writings and to produce stories, based on facts and experience, which are more akin to fables and legends.

One effort in this direction, a series of short stories written especially for industrial workers, has already achieved considerable success in the textile and metal industries center of Bangalore. The author is Miss Vimala Rajamanickam, editor of "Treasure Chest," a monthly magazine for children, who received her training at Syracuse (N. Y.) University's School of Journalism.—E.P.S.

The Fellowship of Independent Baptist Churches of Canada recently approved merger with the regular Baptist Churches.

Church Women at Work

With Emphasis on Missions

MRS. F. C. LESTER, Editor

840 Sunset Avenue, Asheboro, N. C.

One New Year's Resolution

We always think of New Year's resolutions on this day, when we have the new year spread out before us. Usually we laugh about them, make "wisecracks" about them and do not take them very seriously. However, they can serve a very fine purpose—that is, if they are carried out.

In September, and October, and even in November, I received a deluge of reports from local women's societies concerning their past year's work. How about a New Year's resolution on the part of the president, the secretary, the reporter, or whoever is responsible for your "reporting," that they will send in short, interesting items concerning things as they occur in your society this year?

That would do several things: it would make me very happy, would make our page throughout the year much more readable, would give people ideas that they might try in their society, and would make it possible for you to check one item on the Standard of Excellence early in the year.

Some societies failed to meet the Standard of Excellence because they could not check this very item. I wonder if any societies "fudged" on it a little, and sent in their report to THE SUN after they had stated in their yearly report that it had been sent in!

* * * * *

Additional Book Reviewer

Mrs. Wm. T. Scott, president of the North Carolina Woman's Conference, is happy to announce that Miss Mary Ann Harrell, 1010 West Markham Avenue, Durham, N. C., will review "These Rights We Hold," the home mission study book for this year.

We hear that Miss Harrell is young and attractive, and a most excellent speaker. What more could any group ask. She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Stanley C. Harrell of our Durham Church. In the summer of 1951 she traveled in Europe. Last spring she graduated from Wellesley College, Wellesley Hills, Massachusetts, and she is now taking graduate work at Duke University.

We think that the groups who hear Miss Harrell will indeed be fortunate. Invite her early and avoid the rush!

* * * * *

Reports from Societies

MT. CARMEL

The Woman's Missionary Society of Mt. Carmel Christian Church has closed another year of work for our church and Master. We have had a very successful year under the leadership of our president, Mrs. Francis Rose, and our spiritual life leader, Mrs. Jimmie Carr. She has brought

PRAYER FOR THE NEW YEAR

Dear Master, for this coming year
Just one request I bring:
I do not pray for happiness,
Or any earthly thing—

I do not ask to understand
The way Thou leadest me,
But this I ask: Teach me to do
The things that pleaseth Thee.

I want to know Thy guiding voice,
To walk with Thee each day.
Dear Master, make me swift to hear
And ready to obey.

And thus the year I now begin
A happy year will be—
If I am seeking just to do
The things that pleaseth Thee.

—Author Unknown

us some wonderful messages from the book of James. We have met our requirements for the year, except getting our quota of new subscribers for THE SUN. We met jointly with the Suffolk society to hear Dr. Truman Douglass review his book Mission to America. We also met with the Franklin society to hear Mrs. Lester review We Americans—North and South. We sent two friendly service boxes, one to Ryder Memorial Hospital in Puerto Rico, and one to the migrant center in North Carolina. We have used the programs in our packets for the year. We observed the World Day of Prayer jointly with other churches of the field; had our Thank Offering; Family Night we observed with a covered dish supper. We have lost one member by death and have enrolled several new ones. We feel that we have accomplished much this past year and hope to do greater work for the Lord's service in the year ahead.

MRS. CLIFTON JOYNER,
Secretary.

* * *

WAKFIELD.

The Woman's Missionary Society has completed a very successful year's work under the leadership of our faithful president, Mrs. W. A. Bailey.

World Community Day was observed by the group. The Thank Offering program was given as our public program. Our World Day of Prayer was a union service with the other churches in town, being held in the Methodist Church, with ladies from all three churches taking part on the program. May Fellowship Day was observed as a "family night"—getting the church families together on the church lawn and enjoying fellowship together.

The packet was used to help us build our monthly programs. The study books recommended were used in our group, also. Mrs. E. B. Richardson and Mrs. W. C. Seely reviewed We Americans—North and South. The Bible study was very inspiring and enjoyed. We used it in our worship period for our monthly meetings.

For our friendly service project we sent gifts to Ryder Memorial Hospital in Puerto Rico. A nice box was prepared for this. Fruit baskets were sent to shut-ins and cards sent to the sick all during the year.

We are looking forward to another year of greater service for Him in his kingdom's work.

REPORTER.

* * *

DENDRON.

The Missionary Society of the Dendron Congregational Christian Church had a very successful year under the leadership of Mrs. Garland Spratley as president. We have had well attended meetings each month with well prepared worship services and programs from the packet.

We held one public service, at which time a film strip was shown of nativity scenes. A thanksgiving program was held and a liberal offering received. We also enjoyed having the Hopewell Society present a program in our church as a part of the program exchange. This program was very interesting and was well presented. Our society took part in World Community Day which was

(Continued on page 13.)

A Page for Our Children

MRS. R. L. HOUSE, Editor, Southern Pines, N. C.

A Happy New Year to all the boys and girls who read this page.

What awaits us in this New Year? No one really knows—last year may have been a good or bad one for you, but this bright new one holds many things in store.

January has the first new day in the new year and also General Robert E. Lee's birthday and President Roosevelt's "March of Dimes" birthday.

February brings birthdays, too, of two great presidents. Who are they? Yes, that's right; and don't forget that certain day on which you send and receive red hearts and fancy cards.

March is mixed up with lambs and lions, they say; but most of all we would remember St. Patrick's Day with its green and shamrocks here to stay!

April brings in the foolishness and has goodness, too. I should know, for it is my birth month, too. Sometimes it has Easter with its eggs and baskets, new clothes and playing tisk-tasket.

May has dances with ribbons bright on poles, and fish begin to nibble in deep cool holes.

June is for marrying, and school is out! Vacations begin and Junebugs should be about.

July Fourth brings firecrackers and speeches, while many seek to get cool at the beaches.

August is hotter with dog days they say. I don't know—just wish it was May!

September rolls 'round, and the school bell rings. Here come the scholars and each one sings! - ?

October?—Well what about Halloween?

November brings turkeys and our thanks to God who gives us good fare and loving care.

December's birthday month of the Light that men through the ages, with love and might have kept so true and loving bright!

"Grandchildren"

By LAURA GRAY.

Issued by the National Kindergarten Association.

I had been calling on my friend, Mrs. Manson, and was about to leave when her three grandchildren and their mother came bursting into the quiet house.

"May I leave the kiddies here, Grandma, while I go to the dentist?" asked the pretty young woman.

"Of course, my dear; you know I love to have them," answered Mrs. Manson, smiling, as she released five-year old Jack from a welcoming embrace.

"Thanks a lot. I'll be back as soon as I can." With that the mother was gone.

"Now, what'll we do, Grandma?" Jack caught her hand, his dark eyes sparkling with anticipation.

"I'm going to stay and help amuse these children!" I said, removing my coat and feeling resentful that my friend, who was not altogether well, should have three youngsters thrust upon her for the afternoon.

"Don't trouble unless you want to stay," she added. I know you have stay," she added. I know you have another appointment. The kiddies and I get on nicely together—don't we, Mary?"

Six-year-old Mary was holding her grandmother's other hand, leaning a golden head against her arm. Two-year-old Tommy had dragged out a box from a corner and was piling up on the rug the toys he took from it.

"I'll look in on my way back," I promised, as I replaced my coat.

Almost two hours later I returned, expecting to find my friend near exhaustion. Jack let me in. "Look!" he exclaimed, as he waved a paper windmill before my face. "I made it! And this train!" He pointed to a row of boxes tied together with string, the end one roughly fashioned to look like a locomotive. "I can tie knots now; Grandma showed me" how."

"Wonderful!" I admired.

Instead of being exhausted, my friend looked younger and brighter than I had seen her for some time.

"I'm helping Mary finish this doll's dress," she said, cutting a thread.

The girl caught up the work and ran to me. "See, I dressed this doll myself!" she told me, and her blue eyes glowed.

Someone else pushed in close, raising a scratch book covered with crayon scribble. I did not understand his jabbering, but I did interpret the earnest look on his chubby face and duly admired the "beautiful" art work. The littered room held an air of contentment. I was sure that everyone was happy.

Soon, the children's mother arrived to take them home and I started to tidy up.

But my friend interfered. "The children will do that!" she said. Then turning to the children, she ordered, "Now kiddies, time to put away. Ready—go!"

There was a scramble. Toys were put quickly into boxes and wheeled into one corner. Litter was gathered up and put into a basket—every little bit.

"I don't know how Grandma does it," said the mother admiringly. "I can't get the children to put away their toys at home so nicely, and yet they love to come here."

When they had gone, my friend sank into a chair with a sigh.

"Aren't you just about all in?" I asked.

"A little bit weary," she answered. "But it was worth it—the dear kiddies! This way I get to know them. I always have lots of things to keep them occupied, and I keep adding to the supply. Mary's doll I bought at a sale; the pieces came from my sewing bag. I collect boxes, string and spools, and I save pictures and cut-outs from magazines. I try to have surprises for them. It's fun. Of course, they have these things at home, but here they are fresh and new. Perhaps, best of all, I am able to give them my full time and attention. Their mother can't do that—there are so many interruptions. I know, for when my own children were growing up I used to long for a chance to sit down and just be one with them. Now I can do this with my grandchildren. It is good far all of us."

Dr. Francis Carr Stifter, secretary of Public Relations of the American Bible Society, is speaking over the Mutual Broadcasting system on Mondays from 12:45 to 1:00 p. m., on the program, "Faith in Our Time."

Youth at Work in the Church

MAX VESTAL, Box 792, Elon College, N. C.

Know Your Officers

The treasurer of the Southern Convention Pilgrim Fellowship is Meryle Mauldin of Winston-Salem and Elon College. I'll let her tell you about herself.

* * *

To begin with—I was born in Winston-Salem and lived here until I finished the ninth grade. Then Daddy was transferred, and we moved to Durham, where we lived for two years and four months. During my senior year at Durham High School, I was president of the French Club and parliamentarian of the O. Henry Literary Society. I was a member of both the typing staff and the photography staff of the Messenger, the annual publication. I was also a member of the House and Grounds Committee, and just before we moved back to Winston-Salem last December, I was inducted into the National Honorary Society. When I came back to Reynolds High School, I joined the College Club and the concert band. Playing trombone, I have been in both the marching band and the concert band since the eighth grade.

In church, I play the piano for Sunday school and sing alto in the choir. At present, I am president of the Pilgrim Fellowship here and also Social Action chairman of the North Carolina and Virginia Conference.

I graduated from Reynolds High School last June, and entered Elon this fall. I haven't decided whether I want to be a teacher or a director of religious education.

MERYLE MAULDIN,
Elon College, N. C.

* * * * *

Relax With Max

The doctor asked the woman patient her age.

"I never tell anyone my age," she answered coyly. "But, as a matter of fact, I've just reached twenty-one."

"Indeed," said the doctor. "What detained you?"

* * *

"Do your spectacles help your eyes, Johnny," asked the neighbor.

"Yes'm, I never have my eyes blackened now like I used to before I wore them."

* * *

The new year's here;

And so are we.

What shall we do about it?

We certainly couldn't do without it.

Maybe if we try a bit,

We can make the most of it.

And if we do not fret and fuss,

Perhaps it'll make the most of us.

Friends of World Council Honor Dr. Henry Smith Leiper

At the annual meeting of Friends of the World Council of Churches, held on November 21, at the Broadway Tabernacle, New York City, a special tribute was given to Dr. Henry Smith Leiper, in honor of his nearly twenty-five years of work on behalf of the ecumenical movement. Dr. Leiper recently left his position as associate general secretary of the World Council to return to the Congregational Christian Churches as executive secretary of the Missions Council. He will maintain his ties with the World Council, since he was elected a member of the Board of Directors of the Friends of the World Council of Churches at this meeting, and will also continue as secretary of this organization. Letters of tribute to Dr. Leiper were read at the meeting from church leaders in many countries.

Dr. Leiper, Dr. Elfan Rees, adviser on Refugee Affairs to the World Council of Churches and a secretary of the Commission of the Churches on International Affairs, and Miss Anita Fraser, a teacher in New York City and a participant in three work-camp programs of the World Council's Youth Department, spoke at the meeting, which was presided over by Dr. William J. Gallagher, executive secretary of the Canadian Council of Churches.

Speaking on "The Silver Landmark," Dr. Leiper reviewed the development of ecumenical activities in which he has been active. The World Council of Churches, Dr. Leiper said, "is the greatest laboratory for the study of the intellectual and theological factors relating to any type of unity (among the churches) and . . . a great channel for service, much of which could not be rendered in any other way." He stated that "the greatest development of these recent years has been the closer growing together of the International Missionary Council and the World Council." Dr. Leiper concluded by saying that "In two million miles of travel in more than forty countries, I have actually encountered the living fact of the world Christian community that is emerging. I know only too well how weak it is, how late it came to the Kingdom and how much it has to learn and to accomplish, but it gives me sound and indisputable evidence for my belief that we are living in the great age of the Christian Church, when the deals and attitudes characterizing the church in the first period of its expansion are again in evidence. It is for us to see that this process is accelerated, that it is embodied in our own attitudes, is understood in our churches and is supported by our people throughout this great land and the world as a whole."

Dr. Elfan Rees, speaking on "The Century of the Homeless Man," stated that old classifications of refugees fail to face the issues of refugee needs today. He proposed three basic categories in which to group refugees: that of assimilation, of emigration, and of starvation. Assimilation of refugees in countries where they now are requires money and good-will, he said, but today, in countries where there is money, as in the Near East, there is often no good-will, while in countries such as Germany, where there is good-will, there is little money. Everywhere there are plans and pilot projects, he said, but "there is no master plan, no global approach to this aspect of the problem." Emigration of refugees, essential in many overpopulated countries, he said, is most often impossible "in the face of rigid immigration laws and mounting prejudice," no matter how much money may be available for this purpose. Therefore starvation awaits many refugees. In view of "the utter inadequacies of public provision for these tragic people," Dr. Rees concluded, "the Church's task today is greater than it has ever been in the history of Christian refugee relief."

Miss Anita Fraser, in her speech on "Pick and Shovel Ambassadors," discussed the experience of young people who came from 33 countries

(Continued on page 15.)

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE, D. D.

Tracing Character to Its Source

LESSON I—JANUARY 4, 1953.

MEMORY SELECTION: "Keep thy heart with all diligence; for out of it are the issues of life."—Proverbs 4: 23.

LESSON TEXT: Matthew 15: 1-11, 18-20.

DEVOTIONAL READING: Psalm 51: 6-11, 15-17.

By Way of Introduction.

The Lessons of this Quarter are a continuation of a series of lessons taken from the Gospel of Matthew, the Gospel of the Christian Life. We will continue to study the teachings of Jesus concerning the attitudes and actions of those who profess to be his disciples and friends. We will also follow Jesus as he faces the Cross, and takes it upon himself. And beyond the tragedy of the Cross, we shall see the triumph of the Resurrection. These lessons will be "bread for the spirit" to those who study them in reverent mood and obedient spirit.

Concerning the Washing of Hands.

"Why do thy disciples transgress the tradition of the elders? for they wash not their hands when they eat bread." It is a good thing for a person to wash his hands before he eats. As a counsellor in a Boy's Camp in Vermont some years ago, it was one of the writer's duties to line up the boys before the meals, and as they held out their hands, to walk down the line to see that the boys' hands were clean. We did not allow a boy with dirty hands to go to the dining room. Indeed, in many homes it is a constantly-repeated formula, "Jimmie, wash your hands, dinner is ready". But this washing of hands is a matter of sanitation.

The washing of hands to which the Pharisees and scribes referred was a matter of tradition. And a tradition, man-made, that was cluttered up with all kinds of rules and restrictions. For instance, a definite quantity of water must be used; it must be poured twice over the hands, up to a certain point on the wrists. If it went beyond that point, something like a sin had been committed, for then the water could flow back on the hands and defile them. Or if another were washing your hands, your hands must be held with the fingers pointed upward. The whole thing was a ridiculous ritual; but the Pharisees and scribes venerated it as a tradition, and defended it with vigor and vehemence.

"Piffle," said Jesus. "There is nothing sacred or spiritual about the thing!" It was not a divine commandment in the first place; it was simply something that men had thought up. It was all right to wash one's hands before he ate, but it was not a religious act.

This matter of tradition and custom is a funny thing. A thing gets started and it becomes a fixed custom, and sanctity is attached to it. For instance, there is the matter of buttons on the cuff of a man's coat. Why are they there? Well, many, many years ago, indeed several centuries ago, an English king who liked things neat and nice, was standing at the window of the royal mansion, looking at one of the guards standing watch outside. The man was dressed neatly and presented a fine appearance, and the king was very much pleased with the man's dress. Suddenly, to the king's horror, the guard lifted his arm and wiped his nose on his coat sleeve!!! And so, to discourage and to prevent a repetition of that disgraceful spectacle again, the king ordered his taylor to sew buttons on the sleeves of all the men in uniform. And today, believe it or not, men's coat sleeves still have buttons on them!

Man-Made Tradition or God-Given Command?

"And he answered and said unto them, Why do ye also transgress the commandment of God because of your traditions?" Their question boomeranged on them. They had been talking about traditions of men. He wanted to ask them about a commandment of God. The Mosaic Law—they were sticklers for that—commanded a man to honor his father and mother. But the Pharisees and scribes had devised a system whereby a man by simply saying "Corban" could absolve himself from all responsibility to sustain his father or mother or to contribute to their support. And although the word, "Corban," meant "a gift of God," the man could use his money or his possessions for his own personal and even selfish use. It was a device that smacked of the methods used by many people to evade their taxes. Or by many people to evade their religious obligations. Again, Jesus said it was "eye wash." These scrupulous traditionalists had given a man-made tradition preference over a God-given commandment. It was sheer hypocrism.

Lips or Life?

"This people honoreth me with their lips, but their heart is far from me." It is so easy to profess, it is so difficult to perform. It is easy to confess a creed, it is difficult to conform in character. It is so easy to say, "Lord, Lord"; it is so difficult to obey our Lord. It is much easier to go through the ritual than it is to live as a Christian. Religion must come from the heart, or it is not religion in the best sense of the word. Here, as always, Jesus was insisting upon an inner righteousness.

A Cardicogram of the Human Heart.

"Out of the heart come forth evil thoughts, murders, adulteries, fornication, thefts, false witness, railings." It must have been some pessimist who spoke those words. What an indictment against the human heart! Only a cynic would speak thus about folks! But, no, it was our Lord himself who spoke these words. He knew what was in man. He looked into the human heart and he saw all these evil and vile things. And he saw the results of these things in the heart expressing themselves in conduct and action. Centuries before him, another great prophet had said, "The heart is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked." And another spiritual seer had said, "Keep thy heart with all diligence, for out of it are the issues of life."

Let us get this straight. Men need more than education and culture and morality; they need a change of heart. The unregenerate human heart is bad. Men need to be cleansed and changed from within. Jesus knew what he was talking about when he said, "Ye must be born again." Men need more than to be reformed; they need to be transformed. And only Christ can change the human heart.

Confessing and Following Christ

LESSON II—JANUARY 11, 1953.

MEMORY SELECTION: "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God."

—Matthew 16:16.

LESSON TEXT: Matthew 16:13-25.

DEVOTIONAL READINGS Philippians 2:1-11.

The Crucial Question.

"But who say ye that I am?" The Master knew that he was going to die on the Cross. He knew that he would soon have to leave the little band of disciples whom he had chosen to carry on his work after he had gone away. He knew that it would be a difficult task for them. He wanted to know if they understood his Person and his Work. So he asked them who they thought he was. It was the crucial question. Unless they could answer that question, they could not answer the other questions. Unless they thought of him as something more than a prophet or teacher or good man or great man, they were not ready to carry on his program. "What think ye of Christ?" he asked. "Who am I?"

It is the crucial question today. There is no more critical question that can be asked now than the question, "What think ye of Christ?" Who do men say that he, the Son of Man, is? Is he the Christ or shall we look for another?

The Christian Answer.

Christianity's answer to this critical question was framed by the Big Fisherman, Simon Peter, when he replied, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." By and large, that has been the answer of Christendom through the centuries, and it is still the answer of Christians. To be sure, there are those (though professing to be Christians) who deny the divinity or the deity of Jesus Christ, but they are in the minority, in a very small minority, and they have not made much impression on the life of the world. They are small in numbers, small in influence; and they have never been noted for their evangelistic or their missionary zeal.

By and large the Christian Church has grown and wielded influence and been a redeeming force in the life of the world as it has emphasized and magnified the doctrine that Jesus Christ was the Son of the living God, that he was God incarnate. The Church was founded on this faith. It has been nurtured on this fact. It has been sustained and inspired by this truth. The heart of the Christian faith is the conviction that Jesus was the Christ, the "One who should come," the Son of God.

The Conquering Church.

"On this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hades shall not prevail against it." The Church is founded on the faith that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of the living God, and it is a victorious Church. All the forces of the unseen world shall not prevail against it, shall not be able to stand against it. Dr. G. Campbell Morgan calls attention to the fact that this verse means that the Church shall do the attacking, and that all the forces of evil shall be helpless against the Church. Jesus never meant it to be a defensive Church. The Church should take the initiative. It should be on the march. It should always be attacking.

The Seeming Contradiction.

"From that time began Jesus to show unto his disciples, that he must go unto Jerusalem, and suffer many things of the elders and the scribes and the chief priests, and be killed, and the third day be raised again." He had just acknowledged the fact that he was the Messiah. And forthwith he began to talk about the shame and suffering and ignomy that the religious rulers would inflict upon him. There must be something wrong with that! Treating God's Messiah, the Christ, the Son of God that way! Simon Peter could not stand that. That was too much indeed. He began to rebuke the Master and to say that such a thing could never be. Alas, how little Peter knew of the cost of the redemption wrought by Christ. The Messiah was not to be an earthly monarch, sitting on a throne, ruling over Israel, destroying the enemies of Israel. He was to be a "Suffering Servant." He was to take upon himself the iniquities of us all. He was to bear our sorrows, and upon him would fall our chastisement. He was to give his life a ransom for many. Salvation was to be by suffering. Man's thoughts are not God's thoughts. It was because Jesus did not meet the expectations of the Jews that they were offended, and they rejected him.

The Call to Consecration.

"If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me." That does not mean simply bearing "our little crosses," about which we sometimes talk with more or less self-pity. It means complete surrender to Christ. It means turning from self to the Saviour. It means saying "No" to self and "Yes" to Christ. It is the heart of discipleship. But it is the way for a larger, richer, fuller, more abundant life. He who loses his life for the sake of Christ and the gospel will save his life. The paradox of Christianity is that one saves his life by losing it.

Based on "International Sunday School Lessons;" copyrighted 1951 by Division of Christian Education, National Council of the Churches in the U. S. A.

CHURCH WOMEN AT WORK.

(Continued from page 9.)

sponsored by the local council of church women.

In March several members attended the review by Dr. Truman Douglass of his book Mission to America. Several also enjoyed Mrs. Lester's review given in Franklin. Both our home and foreign study books were also reviewed at our regular meeting by members of the society.

Our friendly service chairman, Mrs. M. B. Joyner, has, too, been active.

Our visual aid chairman, Mrs. J. R. Bishop, arranged for films being shown which were instructive and interesting. Mrs. W. H. Savedge, our chairman on family life, sponsored an enjoyable picnic at the beach.

The book of James was taught by Rev. J. E. McCauley in his usual splendid manner. Our society enjoyed a May Fellowship supper in co-operation with the other churches in town. Also the World Day of Prayer was observed with the other churches participating. We have purchased one Life Membership. We have also sent to the conference treasurer the amount of our quota. A large number of our members attended the District Rally held at Bethlehem Church, Disputanta, Virginia, and the conference at Christian Temple, Norfolk, Virginia. Although our society is small in number each member is much interested and we hope to accomplish greater things in the new year ahead.

MRS. LUTHER WILLIAMS,

Reporter.

* * *

JOHNSON'S GROVE.

In February the Mary Kimball Circle attended the meeting in Franklin and enjoyed Mrs. Lester's review of our Study book We Americans—

(Continued on page 15.)

The Orphanage

J. G. TRUITT, Superintendent

Dear Friends:

This week we are making a partial report in order to help get THE SUN out during the holiday season. In this report we have only $983.66, but we hope the next one will be much better. We are still hoping and praying that before we close our books for this year we shall have reached our goal.

It has been very disappointing to be kept in for more than two weeks, and only partly out for a longer time. However, I am getting along fine, and I hope to be entirely well soon.

Christmas is always a big time here at the Orphanage. So many of our churches, and organizations and persons do such lovely things for the children. Gifts, monies, visits, etc., make a very full program.

I regret that at the time of this writing we do not have the Convention weekly report, but everyone will get a full final report in due time, and I believe that it will make us all glad.

We feel here that we are all servants of our church, doing the best job we can under the circumstances.

We wish for each and everyone a most pleasant holiday season, and good going throughout the New Year.

JOHN G. TRUITT,
Superintendent.

REPORT FOR DECEMBER 18, 1952

Commodities for the Week.

Mrs. E. E. Wagner, Suffolk, Va., Clothing.

Mrs. G. Butler, Norfolk, Va., Clothing.

John Michael, Gibsonville, N. C., Socks.

Mrs. W. L. Haskett, Waverly, Va., Clothing.

First Christian Church, Newton, Ill., Christmas toys.

Winchester Cong. Christian Church, 3 packages of Christmas Gifts.

* * *

Special Offerings.

Amount brought forward $26,864.08

Mrs. Ethyle H. O'Connell,

Ormond Beach, Fla. .. $10.00

W. B. Truitt, Greensboro,

N. C. 100.00

Damascus Woman's Missionary Society for Raymond Harvell 5.00

Cradle Role Dept., Suffolk Church 5.00

John Chamblin, Gibson-

ville, N. C. 2.00

W. K. Holt, Jr., Dothan,

Alabama 50.00

Special Gifts 217.86

389.86

Thanksgiving Offerings.

Mrs. L. E. Leete, Nor-

lina, N. C. $20.00

Foster Hosiery Mills, Inc.,

Burlington, N. C. 25.00

Mr. & Mrs. A. F. Richard-

Son, Suffolk, Va. 5.00

Carolina Biological Supply Co., Elon College . 100.00

150.00

Christmas Offerings.

Mrs. J. S. Burnham, Ashe-

ville, N. C. 10.00

"The Gertie Bradshaw"

Circle, Union (So) Ch. 10.00

C. M. Fields & family,

San Leandro, Calif. .. 10.00

C. B. Ellis, Burlington, N.

C. 10.00

40.00

Total $ 579.89

Grand Total $27,443.94

Total for the week $ 579.86

Total for the year $49,011.69

Faulty, But Faithful

A great minister, who was noted for his Christ-like spirit, as well as for his consecrated ability, dreamed that he died and stood at the gate of heaven knocking for admission. He gave his name, only to be told that his name did not appear upon the books.

At last, after earnest entreaty, he was bidden to enter and was told that he would have the privilege of appearing before the judge of all the earth, and if he could stand his test he might abide in heaven forever.

Standing before the throne, he gave his name, and the following questions were put to him: "Have you led a righteous life?" And he said, "No." "Have you always been kind and forgiving to those who have been around you?" "Alas, no, I have failed miserably here." "Have you always been honest and just?" And he answered, "I fear not." As question after question was put to him by the judge, his case seemed more and more hopeless. The last question was asked him, and to that, too, he was obliged to give the same negative reply.

Just when he seemed to be in despair, the brightness about the throne became brighter, and suddenly he heard a voice. The speaker said: "My Father, I know this man. It is true that he was weak in many ways, but he stood for me in the world, and I take his place before Thee."

Just as the last words of the sentence were spoken, the dream was over, and the man awoke; but he had his lesson, and it is a lesson for us all. We have in ourselves no standing before God. It must be in Christ.

—J. Wilbur Chapman.

Eastern Virginia Sunday School Superintendents to Meet

All Sunday school superintendents are urged by Mr. W. H. Baker, secretary, to reserve January 16, 1953 for the Third Sunday School Superintendents Meeting, which will be held at Oakland Christian Church, Chuckatuck, Virginia.

Mr. Baker says that an excellent program is being arranged and there will be speakers present whom you will want to hear.

Ministers will also be welcome at the meeting, though they may have to listen rather than talk.

MEMORIAL GIFTS

"Instead of Flowers"

Dr. John G. Truitt
Christian Orphanage
Elon College, N. C.

Dear Dr. Truitt:

Please acknowledge the enclosed $..... as a memorial gift sent to the Christian Orphanage in lieu of flowers in memory of:

(Name of Deceased)

(City)

(Date of Death)

(Survivor to be Written)

(Address)

Name.....

Address.....

In Memoriam

HOOVER

Mrs. Mollie Cole Hoover of Durham passed away on September 1, 1952, after having been confined to her room for years. In tribute to her memory the Durham Congregational Christian Church presents these resolutions:

That her devout Christian life, exemplified by firm and steadfast devotion to Christian principles, serve as an example for others.

That her Christian habits of studying the Bible, of reading each issue of "The Christian Sun" and of supporting missions encourage us to strive to be more Christlike.

Mrs. ROBERT S. SMITH,
Mrs. R. J. KERNODLE,
Mrs. J. M. SAUNDERS.

INGRAM.

Richard L. Ingram, one of the county's oldest and best known residents, passed away at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Sally Walton, 726 Marshall Ave., South Boston, Va., Sunday night, November 9, after an illness of a week. He suffered a stroke from which he never recovered.

Funeral rites were conducted on Tuesday, November 11, at 2 p.m., from the Ingram Congregational Christian Church, of which he was a long-time member, by the writer. Burial was held in the church cemetery.

Mr. Ingram was born in Pittsylvania County, near Birchland Park, on December 15, 1863. It was from his family that the community in Ingram took its name.

His father, Jordan L. Ingram, operated a general store at Ingram for many years, and the lately deceased was a store operator. About 30 years ago he retired as a rural mail carrier after 20 years in the postal service.

Mr. Ingram married the former Miss Nancy Dunn, who preceded him to the grave 13 years ago.

Besides his daughter, Mr. Ingram leaves a son, Billy L. Ingram of Washington, D. C., and two grandchildren.

May God comfort his bereft loved ones.

JOHN G. TRUITT.

OSCAR LEE WEST

Oscar Lee West was born in Princes Anne County, Virginia, May 15, 1879, the son of James Lemuel West and Mary McClanan West. He passed away in Norfolk, Virginia, November 24, 1952. He is survived by one son, Earl N. West, three grandchildren and several brothers and sisters.

Mr. West was a faithful and devoted member and Deacon in the Congregational Christian Temple of Norfolk and an active member of the Templemen's Bible Class. He contributed much to his class and to his church through his sincere Christian living and the visiting of the sick of the community. Mr. West had a great faith in the goodness of God, he never questioned nor doubted God's will or power, no matter how strong the temptation to do so. This faith was a great inspiration to all who knew Mr. West.

In the passing of Oscar Lee West the Templemen's Bible Class and the Congregational Christian Temple has given up a devoted member. We express herewith our deep gratitude for his life among us and extend to his family our sincere sympathy.

This memorium is to be a part of the records of the Templemen's Bible Class, and a copy to be sent to the family and a copy to be sent to "The Christian Sun" for publication.

S. RAY BARRETT,
Chairman, Committee.

Templemen's Bible Class,
Congregational Christian Temple,
Norfolk, Virginia.

CHURCH WOMEN AT WORK.

(Continued from page 13.)

North and South. Our circle was represented in Suffolk when Dr. Truman Douglass reviewed Mission to America, and also at the Spring Rally in Windsor.

During the year our pastor used the following films, "A Wonderful Life," "An Easter Story" and "Problems in Family Life."

For friendly service to people we selected Ryder Hospital and sent a package of medical supplies.

In August we had our annual picnic supper. All expressed regret that our pastor, Rev. W. A. Grissom, and family, who had been such a help to us during the past three years, were leaving for a new field. This was their last meeting with us. Our best wishes go with them to their new home.

This summer one of our group visited the Orphanage and Bettie Leigh, the orphan girl we are sponsoring.

We are looking forward to the new year and hope our circle will be able to do more for the Master's work.

MARY E. WILLIAMS.

(Editor's Note: Miss Williams, in a personal note, tells how they have fun counting the pennies from their birthday bank, which goes to each meeting—and also that they give their fifth Sunday eggs for mission work—and the old hens did fine for them!)

* * *

PLEASANT RIDGE (G).

The Women's Missionary Society of Pleasant Ridge Congregational Christian Church is glad to report another successful year's work under the leadership of our president, Mrs. J. Wright Pegram. We held our regular monthly meetings each month. Our programs were well planned. We used some printed programs, and some were planned by members of our society. For our Bible study we used the book of James, which was helpful to all. Our young women's society is doing a wonderful work. We work together and in that way we are able to do more and better work. In money we more than reached our goal. Each year our society gives a Life Membership. In November we observed World Community Day. Our Thank Offering program was held at the church on Sunday night, November 18, with a good attendance. Our pastor's wife, Mrs. W. E. Wiseman, with three other ladies from the Greensboro (First) Church came out and put on the program for us, which we appreciated very much. The World Day of Prayer was attended in Greensboro with the other churches there.

May Fellowship Day was attended by some. We sent a nice box as our friendly service gift. Throughout the year we have sent several boxes of clothes overseas. Easter, as usual, we sent a box to the Elon Orphanage. Right many coupons have been collected and sent in. To our sick or shut-in friends and neighbors we try in any way we can to bring cheer and sunshine with flowers, baskets of fruit, cards and letters. Let's not forget the old people we know. Recently our pastor said there were so many old people in the world today who feel they have been forgotten. He also reminded us that God often feels we have forgotten Him. So let's also resolve as we start on another year to make it the best year of all—not only in dollars and cents but in more deeds of kindness and more words of love. We want to thank our pastor and his wife, Dr. and Mrs. W. E. Wiseman, for their service rendered to us the past year and to Mrs. Ida Beeson, our treasurer, for her fine work. The light that shines the brightest at home shines the farthest.

MRS. S. F. HUFFINES, SR.,
Secretary.

FRIENDS OF WORLD COUNCIL HONOR DR. LEIPER.

(Continued from page 11.)

and many church affiliations to work together in 28 different work camps located in 17 countries, under the sponsorship of the World Council's Youth Department. These young Christians, she said, worked under skilled leaders to restore and to build physical structures and at the same time "to restore disillusioned minds and lost faith in humanity." They showed that peaceful life is possible in a world of differences, she said.

—Ecumenical Press Release.

Some New Year Certainties

By WILLIAM T. SCOTT

Of the New Year it has been said, "Mine are the thresholds of the unknown. I furnish you untrodden ways, take care, you have not come this way before." This is but a half-truth about the New Year, for there are obvious certainties upon which we can count in the New Year. Let us think of these certainties.

God is a certainty upon which we can count. The soldiers' questions, "Where do we go from here, where are we, what place is this?" are very real in this world of ours; and there are people who are asking these very same questions as to life—its present experiences, and the future. These soldier boys may not know where they are, or where they are going, but they do know that they are traveling under the direction of Uncle Sam. We can be sure of that much, for God does not change. "Lord, thou hast been our dwelling place in all generations."

Associations and friendships will, for the most part, be certainties upon which we can count. Very few of us will experience a complete change of associations and friendships in the New Year. "A future which has constants of associations and friendships cannot be strange."

Our habits will be familiar parts of us in the New Year. Our habits, good or bad, are not made or broken in a day. We will be accompanied by many of them in the days to come, and we shall have to struggle to grow out of the undesirable and more securely into the desirable ones.

Duties and tasks are certainties upon which we can surely count, and thank God! The days of the New Year will, as of old, bid us bend our back, exercise our brains, to our apportioned responsibilities.

Renunciations, sorrows, love and happiness, will each have their familiar places in the weaving of the fabric of our lives as we journey into the New Year. We may have to renounce some cherished goal or high aspiration. The life fabric we are weaving on the loom of God's time may be darkened for us by sorrow, or be brightened by some golden threads of high achievement. Whatever it may be like, our lives will not be so radically changed this next year.

Does all this suggest an attitude of fatalism? Might one accuse the writer of agreeing with the pessimist who said of the world, "The biggest trouble with the world is that it should have ever been made"? Not for a moment! There are attitudes which we must form that will determine our future just as our past has influenced our present. While we will experience many of these same ordinary things, we will have many new experiences. But we shall not have to face them in the dark; for Christ is the light unto the pathway of the believer. The life of the Christian is more than uncertainties, it is love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness self control.

To the astronomer, the New Year may simply mean that "January first is but the 265th day, 5th hour, and 48.8 minute period, popularly measured from the winter solstice in the northern hemisphere and scientifically determined by the sun's position in the relation to the fixed stars."

To the Christian, the New Year should be more than mere scientific calculations. It should be a time of taking honest measure of one's self as to physical, mental, social and spiritual life. The door jamb in many homes is the measuring post for the child's physical growth. It is tragic for the child not to grow physically, but it is even more tragic for a person not to grow mentally, socially and spiritually. For the Christian this should be a time of measuring one's self by that Perfect Stature; an evaluation of one's self in the light of that Perfect Light. Are we pretending to be a Christian, or are we actually trying with all our being to live the Jesus way. However far below him we may be, yet we may be like him. That is a certainty promised by a loving Father who loved us so much that he gave us the Grace by which we may become!

The New Year is psychologically a good beginning place of high resolve. You will . . . you may . . . be what you are in the coming year, not nearly so much in spite of yourselves as because of yourselves.

The CHRISTIAN SUN

ORGAN OF THE SOUTHERN CONVENTION OF CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES

In Essentials Unity — In Non-Essentials, Liberty, — In All Things, Charity

VOLUME CV

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, JANUARY 8, 1953

NUMBER 2

LIFE or DEATH!

Elon College is making a desperate struggle for survival. In its desperation it is appealing to the church that founded it, and that it has served for more than one half century. Through unselfish services it has woven itself into the very life and soul of the church that created it. It has trained by far the greater part of its ministers and a greater part of its officials and lay leaders. In free tuition and scholarships it has given literally hundreds of thousands of dollars to ministerial students and ministers' children. It has lived hard all of its life and lived its life for the church.

In its need Elon turns to the Congregational Christian Church in the South. To whom else could it turn? There is none other that has the love, the interest and the obligations necessary for its continuance. Its needs are evident to all. Those needs are heightened and made acute by the severe competition that is now thrust upon it. Sister institutions are receiving from their churches or supporting bodies large sums of money, erecting new buildings, providing new equipment, and increasing their endowment funds. These appeal to prospective students. Elon needs students. It must have students if it is to continue to live. To have students, we must provide for their needs and comforts.

The church builds new parsonages for its pastors, new churches and educational buildings for its members and prospective members. Is it too much to ask the same church to erect new buildings and to provide new equipment for its students and prospective students?

Can you imagine what the Christian Church in the South would be today had it not been for Elon College? Can you imagine what the Christian Church in the South will be tomorrow without Elon College?

Elon College, in its desperation, is appealing to the church for its life; the church to which it has given life, that it may continue to give life to that Church. Shall we deny this appeal. Can we afford to deny it?

Elon College is not asking for money to lay away and have to lend; it is asking for money that it may live, and give its life to the life of the church.

News Flashes

We are sending out two thousand sample copies of THE CHRISTIAN SUN this week. If you happen to be one of the recipients of a copy, we hope that you will enjoy reading the message which we are bringing you about our college. This is the College Period, and Elon needs both your support and ours at this time. During the next week or two the emphasis will be upon Christian higher education, but there will be other things of interest, too. As Lent approaches, that theme will be found in the pages of our church paper. And all of the other departments of our church are given our support. If you are interested in any of all of them, why not keep informed by subscribing to your church paper now.

We can do a better job for our entire church, if you will help us. The managing editor is breaking a self-made rule by putting these thoughts in print, for his job is to let the other fellow speak; but he wants you to know that he wants your help, too.

J. T. K.

Dr. Paul Reynolds to Speak at Superintendents' Meetings

Dr. Paul Reynolds, Secretary of Young Adult and Family Life work of the National Council will be the speaker and discussion leader for the Sunday School Superintendents' meetings, as follows: Western North Carolina at the Methodist Church, Seagrove, N. C., on Wednesday, January 14; Eastern Virginia, at Oakland Church, Chuckatuck, Virginia, on Friday, January 16; and North Carolina and Virginia, at Greensboro, N. C., First Church, on Saturday, January 17. He will also meet with young adults at the Mayfair Cafeteria, Greensboro, N. C., for a luncheon and afternoon session on Saturday, January 17.

Mid-Winter Laymen's Fellowship Rally

The Southern Convention Laymen's Fellowship will hold a Mid-Winter Rally at Elon College on Sunday, February 8, 1953, beginning at 2:00 o'clock in the afternoon.

Dr. Robert Cashman, Moderator of the General Council of Congregational Christian Churches, will speak at the afternoon session and also at the banquet to be held at 6:00 o'clock.

The Rev. David H. Sandstrom, Minister of Stewardship of the New York Congregational Christian Conference, has also accepted an invitation to be present and will deliver an address at the afternoon session.

All laymen and ministers throughout the convention are urged to attend this meeting.

The Contribution of Elon College to the Ministry of Our Church

By WM. T. SCOTT.

There are now in the Southern Convention 198 Congregational Christian churches, with a total membership of 34,584. Of the 198 churches, 113, with a membership of 23,022, are served by ministers who received their training at Elon College. Add to that number of churches 37 with 5,888 members served by ministers trained at our other denominational colleges, and then add to that number 4 other churches with 1,344 members served by ministers who received their undergraduate training at state colleges (but who received their seminary training at denominational schools). Add all these together and you will see that 154 of our 198 churches with a total membership of 30,254 are served by ministers trained by Elon and other denominational colleges and seminaries. Church colleges provide the vast majority of pastors. That is not the business of our state colleges! We cannot expect our state colleges, good as they may be, to do the work of the church! In the Convention we have 19 churches with a membership of 1,717 either vacant or inactive. This leaves 25 churches with a membership of 2,563 served by pastors who for one reason or another have not had some college or seminary training.

The above facts ought to show the unique contribution Elon College is making to the life of our churches through the training of our ministers. What is true today has been true throughout the history of our college. The fact that 44 of our churches are served by ministers who attended other denominational schools is but a further fact that colleges like Elon have existed to serve the Church. Had it not been that some denomination had supported those colleges, we should be much the poorer.

"By their fruits ye shall know them," is not only an eternal truth in personal living but in institutional living as well. The Church can expect a continuous stream of consecrated and trained pastors for our day and the days to come only if we support our College. Elon is our responsibility and opportunity. Let us give our sons and funds to Elon College, and we will help God provide for the leadership of our Church.

The Alumni and the Two and One Half Million Dollar Campaign

By C. CARL WOODS, JR.

When colleges and universities need additional funds for capital investments of physical improvements, they always look to their alumni for help. This old policy is also true for the Two and One Half Million Dollar Campaign that Elon College is now conducting. Quite often, the needs of a college are greater than the financial wealth of its alumni, so it must turn to its church or interested friends of the institution.

Elon College Alumni Association now has 4,500 names and correct mailing addresses. It is the desire of the association officers and governing bodies, that each alumnus donate at least $12.00 a year for 5 years. If this is done, the total will amount to $270,000.00 for Elon College in five years. That would build one of the buildings the college needs, and leave approximately $20,000.00 to be used on a second building. Also, there are some individuals, who always like to give more than a requested minimum, which would cause the total figure to increase.

The alumni of Elon College have helped support the college in the past, and it is a known fact they will have a responsibility in this present five-year campaign. It is also their desire that the church members, who own the college, will help considerably with the alumni in this present financial program.

Campaign Quotas

The Two and One Half Million Dollar Campaign Fund now being conducted for Elon College is not exclusively a church campaign. That is, the church alone is not assigned a quota, and yet it is an essential and important unit in the campaign. As goes the campaign in the church, so will go the campaign as a whole.

It is the privilege of the church to take the lead in this campaign. Quotas, however, are assigned to communities in which we have alumni and churches, or church and alumni

(Continued on page 10.)

The Southern Convention's Stake
In the Elon College Campaign

By W. MILLARD STEVENS, President, Southern Convention.

The Southern Convention has a greater stake in this campaign in behalf of Elon College than any other group or organization. It is true that this is not a purely church-centered campaign, but one which will include alumni and friends of Elon as well as the churches within the bounds of the Southern Convention. However, the people of our church must lead the way. The college is our institution, therefore, we of the convention have the primary responsibility for the success of this campaign. Elon needs to achieve the full amount of this campaign if she is to continue to grow in her service to our young people and our churches.

I would like to urge every reader of THE CHRISTIAN SUN to realize that their church has a part in this campaign and to give themselves freely to their church in meeting this responsibility. Our pastors are all willing and able leaders. They want to see their churches share to the fullest of their abilities in this campaign, but they have to have the support and encouragement of the members of the church to do this. As a member of your church, will you help and encourage your pastor in this worthy task? With every member of every church in our convention doing his best, we will more than accomplish our goal!

My Forebears Supported Elon College

By MRS. R. T. BRADFORD.

"Elon College symbolizes an Educational Constituency in the Congregational-Christian Churches throughout the bounds of the Southern Convention. Elon College stands as a bulwark for evangelical Christianity and a ministry that can be depended upon to lead the people of our church. Elon College stands ready to serve the present and the future as it has served in the past. Elon College spells opportunity." These words penned over a score of years ago by one of my forebears are just as true today as then.

My father, J. O. Atkinson, one of seven of Elon's original faculty, realized the great need of a Church College for the Christian Church in the Southern Christian Convention. Throughout the years his life, his love, interest and faith in Elon never wavered. "The Christian Church is proud of Elon" he said on numerous occasions, into her development and growth have gone some of the best thinking, finest sacrificing and great loyalty and endeavor of many of the great characters of our Christian Church. In the latter years of his life, as Mission Secretary of the Southern Christian Convention, he was keenly aware of the significant fact that all missionaries sent to the foreign field from the Southern Christian Convention since Elon College was established, were Elon graduates. I quote, "It was also significant that the movement that sent out the first missionaries within the bounds of the Convention was contemporaneous with the movement resulting in the founding and building of Elon College,—which fact seems to prove that the spirit of missions and the spirit of Christian education have gone hand in hand, heart in heart, looking to constructive and intelligent enlargement of the kingdom of our Lord and the cause of our Christ." Elon College is not a missionary enterprise, it is an educational enterprise that gives intelligent direction to our missionary work and effort. Just as the Spirit of Missions is the powerhouse where the dynamo is stationed and generates, then the Christian College is the transmission that makes that power available in individual lives both far and near. The church-related Christian college should have a paramount place in education today in this world of confusion and chaos.

Willis J. Lee was one of the fifteen charter members of the Board of Trustees of Elon College, and he remained a faithful member of the (Continued on page 13.)

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr
A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom as represented by the Congregational Christian Churches.

Our Principles

1. The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
2. Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
3. The Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
4. Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and church membership.
5. The right of private judgment and liberty of conscience is a privilege that should be accorded to and exercised by all.

EditorRobert Lee House
Managing EditorJohn T. Kernodle

Departmental Editors—Convention, Wm. T. Scott; Missions, F. C. Lester; Women's Work, Mrs. F. C. Lester; Young People's Work, Max Vestal; Children, Mrs. R. L. House; Sunday School Lesson, H. S. Hardestel.

Institutional Representatives—Elon College, L. E. Smith; The Christian Orphanage, John G. Truitt.

Board of Publications—Duane Vore, Chairman, S. T. Holland, Secretary; R. C. Helfenstein, S. E. Madren, W. W. Snyder, G. D. Colclough, Treasurer, ex officio.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Year$3.00
Two Years 5.00

Published by the Board of Publications of The Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches, Inc. Printed every Thursday except the last in June and December by Central Publishing Co., Inc., Richmond, Va.

Entered as second-class matter at the Post Office at Richmond Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

General contributions should be addressed to the editor at Southern Pines, N. C., and should reach him by Wednesday of the week preceding date of publication.

Departmental material should be sent to the proper departmental editor, at the address shown on their page.

All other material and business communications except regarding subscriptions should be sent to the Office of Publication, 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond 19, Va.

The Christian Sun Subscription Blank

Subscription Price: 1 year, $3.00; 2 years, $5.00

Date.....195...

Dr. Wm. T. Scott, Supt.,
Elon College, N. C.

Enclosed find $..... for which please send The Christian Sun
() 1 year, () 2 years — () New Subscription, () Renewal.

To

Address

Who is a member of Church

() Renew, () Enter my own subscription for () 1 year, () 2 years.

My Name

My Address

From the EDITOR'S Desk

A New Year and a New Day for Elon

The years have brought their increment of students, alumni, equipment, buildings, endowment, teachers, traditions, memories, prestige and influence to Elon College. Some have planted, others have watered, but God giveth the increase.

The base of support has widened with the years. Alumni have multiplied, and each alumnus is a contact-person for family and friends. In the new day, Elon looks to alumni and friends, members of the church, philanthropists, corporations and foundations for the support which is so urgently needed. The closer cooperation of church related colleges, denominational and interdenominational, is a good omen for Christian higher education. All these factors spell hope for the campaign now in progress. All sources should be productive and fruitful. We of the church can render an invaluable service by promoting and contributing to conference apportionments, the Sustaining Fund and the Endowment Fund. Many gifts, amalgamated and compounded, can reach commanding proportions.

THE SUN has promoted Elon from its inception, and it is appropriate that the major space be devoted to our church college in this issue. Forthcoming issues will carry additional information and features concerning the role of the denominational college. Perhaps you could extend the influence of Elon by sharing these issues with your friends.

The Timely and The Timeless

One of the interesting features of Christmas and the New Year is the expiration of one calendar and the advent of another. Many of these calendars bring art and wisdom, as well as the reckoning of time, into the home.

In many instances Christmas Greetings include calendars. Thus, a calendar may be a reminder not only of time but of a friend, a firm or a church. For instance, Rev. and Mrs. Henry E. Robinson sent their Christmas greeting from Burlington with this notation: "Enclosed are two remembrances: One, a little motto calendar, is a record of time. The other, the Sermon on the Mount, is timeless."

The very first aphorism on this calendar is by Ralph Waldo Emerson: "Write it on your heart that every day is the best day of the year." Thanks to the Robinsons and Mr. Emerson for this timely reminder. Since this editorial is being written on New Year's Day, the writer revels in anticipation of 365 "best days" in fifty-three.

We need not wait until May to be reminded by Nicholas Biddle: "Past failures are guideposts to future success." Surely the failures of fifty-two should not be repeated in fifty-three. All of us should proceed in the new year chastened by failure and steadied by hard earned wisdom.

An anonymous writer is recorded: "To put a worthwhile truth in circulation is a good day's work." Here is a good motto for religious journalism!

The poet Goethe is authority for the statement: "We always have time enough if we but use it aright." Many duties await us during this critical year. God help us to formulate our agenda wisely and follow it diligently.

To your calendars, Oh Israel! Admire their art; absorb their truths. There are many places and uses for them, on every desk and in every room. Practice the stewardship of time. Let the new year yield its maximum dividends.

Ministerial Compensation

The minister has many heartaches and disappointments. His is no easy task, for it takes more than a modicum of religion to operate a church.

The story is told of a certain minister who would never own an old or second-hand car, for he had not the extra religion necessary to operate it!

Although there are hardships and lamentations in the parish ministry, there are sweet compensations. Careful planning and hard work bring forth ultimate fruit in which one may find joy, satisfaction and peace.

It is a source of great joy to help churches grow; train additional leadership, plan better programs, systematize their financial program, make more adequate budgets, lay wider and more secure foundations in stewardship education, lift up their sights, extend their horizons, participate more joyfully and creatively in the world-wide Kingdom of God.

These are the deep and abiding sources of ministerial satisfaction. The new year should be replete with such conditions of satisfaction.

Elon Trains Numbers of Instructors for Sunday Schools and Public Education

The Place of Religion in the Under Graduate School

By LUCY M. ELDREDGE.

Religion has a place—a vital place at the center of the present day college curriculum for the sake of the student himself and his future influence in church, community and national life. Truly taught and lived on the campus, the Christian religion will determine the student's outlook on life, his sense of mission in any vocation he may follow in the future.

Thinking of the curriculum as courses taken to meet the requirements for a college degree, a growing religious experience may come through such classes as Bible, philosophy of religion, church history. The student's Christian education in his home, local church, and youth conferences may also be continued through religious interpretations of material used in such courses as English, science, and psychology. Wherever the student confronts life, religion has a contribution to make to his thinking. The more questions he has, the more important religion is in the formal curriculum of the college he attends.

Regarding curriculum in a wider, more general sense as every opportunity that the student has on the campus to expand his thinking and enrich his background and direct his purpose in life, religion has more far-reaching influence. Contacts with Christian professors who can interpret their own faith in contagious terms, acquaintance with guest leaders, exchange of religious ideas with fellow students, are among the experiences that every college student should have. Every hour he spends in church life that keeps him related to the church he left when he came to college will help to make him the kind of church-man needed in the local community where he will make his home after graduation.

The Christian College has a religious mission to every student. The college campus offers an exceptional setting for Christian teaching. Security in the only true sense of countless lives and a world at peace depends upon how this mission is carried out, how effective this teaching becomes the day by day life on the campus. Many leaders in higher Christian education agree that we must find new ways to carry on the mission of the church on the college campus today or lose ground for Christianity.

Virginia and the Elon College Campaign

By DUANE N. VORE.

For many years, those of us who know Elon well and are proud of her record have felt that new dormitories were an essential in the program of the college. The time has now come when those dormitories can be constructed if the people of our Southern Convention are willing to give their support and concern.

The name, "Virginia Hall," has a nice sound, doesn't it? Is it new to you? It should be! There is no "Virginia Hall" at present. We are hoping there will be in the near future.

"Virginia Hall" will be the name given to what is now West Dormitory after the remodeling of the present building and the addition of another wing. We of Virginia are asked to assume responsibility for the financial provision of that new dormitory.

It is my belief that the people of Virginia will gladly accept this challenge and will meet it successfully. If that is to be done it involves personal and individual responsibility during the time set for the active campaign for the fund.

Elon Prepares Girls as Home Makers as well as for Professional Responsibilities

The Future of the Church-Related College

By BRYANT DRAKE.

The primary problem of the church-related college is spiritual, not material. Therefore, it stands in need of the sympathetic and devoted care of the churches.

This is the most difficult financial year for our colleges because reserves are exhausted, enrollments are not yet increased appreciably, and deficits are well nigh inevitable. But we are talking about the future! There is an observable trend as seen in larger freshman classes throughout the nation. The day is coming when applicants will be so abundant that every college will be called upon to open every facility to accommodate enrollments.

The colleges have learned something during these hard years, and they have sloughed off wasteful practices and concentrated upon necessities. It has been gratifying that so many colleges have actually strengthened their Departments of Religion. I believe our colleges will be spiritually strengthened by their travail.

Certainly the churches are beginning to recognize the importance of the church-related college to their life and to the vigor of the Christian community.

Whereas the business community has been slow to support the church-related college, preferring to give to larger institutions and to vocational training, local Congregational Christian Churches throughout the land have given larger and larger amounts to institutions of higher education. Such contributions have a permanent place in many church budgets, and the totals raised in single conferences are impressive. I believe this trend will continue, for at long last the churches perceive the importance of the Christian college.

A larger proportion of our Congregational Christian young people may enroll in church-related institutions. Discriminating individuals seem to be convinced of the virtue of private liberal arts colleges, and particularly of the college with a vigorous and free religious life. Witness the large percent of youth from privileged communities which go to such colleges. As overcrowding becomes a problem in state controlled institutions, the smaller institution with its limited enrollment will become more and more desirable.

The support of the churches is the more necessary because of the fact that there seems to be pressure from some in the business community to influence teaching in the area of controversial issues. Support by the churches is important to the maintenance of academic independence as well as religious vitality.

Areas of Study at Elon College

By DEAN D. J. BOWDEN.

Elon is a liberal arts college, designed to give a broad general education for abundant living, and to prepare young people for various vocations. Course offerings include: English grammar and literature; French, German, Greek and Spanish; economics, accounting and advanced courses in business administration; professional education courses, including practice teaching; biology, chemistry, physics, anthropology, geography and geology among the sciences; mathematics, history, sociology, psychology, philosophy and Bible; home economics, commercial subjects, physical education, art, dramatics, and music.

A large number of Elon graduates

(Continued on page 15.)

News of Elon College

PRESIDENT L. E. SMITH, Elon College, N. C.

New Year Wishes for the College

1. May everyone—church members, alumni and friends—understand Elon College, its purposes and missions, and realize that there are differences of opinion, but that we all should work together for the attainment of the high purposes and the spiritual goals of the college.

2. Health and happiness for faculty and students and a safe return to the campus for the winter and spring work.

3. For renewed efforts on the part of all, that the scholastic standards be raised and the influence of the college may be extended effectively in the field of Christian higher education.

4. That members of the faculty may continue to be conscientious and diligent in all their work and that the work of all students may be of such high order as to merit passing grades in all subjects.

5. That Mrs. Burns, field secretary; Carl Woods, assistant, and Mrs. Matlock, office secretary, may have the active assistance of all pastors, convention and church officials, in securing new students for the college, and that Elon's enrollment for 1953-54 may exceed the 700 mark.

6. That the Alumni Association may be able to secure the active support of every alumnus of the college for the alumni office, and that everyone may send his or her alumni dues ($10 or $5) to Carl Woods, alumni secretary. In this way the secretary and office may be able to meet all obligations in full.

7. That church members, alumni and friends may cooperate with the campaign officials and church and alumni representatives, in an effort to complete the Two and One Half Million Dollar Campaign Fund for the college; and that everyone, old and young, rich and poor, interested and indifferent, may make a contribution and a pledge, not only that the full amount sought may be obtained but that everyone may have the satisfaction of having done his duty and justifiable share in the celebration of victory.

If the good Lord, good people, and good friends will see that these wishes are granted, the college shall be richer, and no one shall be the poorer; everyone shall be blessed and the happier because of these worthwhile achievements in cultural and spiritual values.

As we wish for these achievements and the realization of these values, we should know that the ultimate goal rests with us individually and collectively. If you will do your share, and I shall do mine, and do what we can to influence others to do their share, so far as we are concerned the total task is completed. Let's make sure that we do our full share.

* * * * *

Suggestions to Pastors for Use in the Campaign for the College

In preparation for the campaign for the College Fund on January 18, there are certain facts that perhaps it would be well for you to call to the attention of your people, particularly those who are to make the canvass. You would want to call attention to the purpose of the campaign (much needed buildings and endowment to undergird the college), the goal set and the urgent need of meeting this goal:

1. The goal—$2,500,000 (of which $1,200,000 has been secured).

2. Purpose—to erect dining room, Virginia Hall for girls, Carolina Hall for boys, and designated funds for endowment.

3. Contributions are to be made on a five-year basis. It would be well if the first payment could be made in cash.

4. The minimum contribution is set at the low figure of $7.50 per member annually for five years. If all members will cooperate, this will give a total of $1,300,000, plus. You will probably want to give more. Many will give more—some will give less.

5. Be sure that every member is approached and given a chance to contribute.

6. Organize your congregation for the canvass. Select a captain for your entire congregation, organize the congregation in groups of ten, appoint two lieutenants for every ten members. Assign definite names and addresses to canvassers. Have canvassers make their pledges before approaching others.

7. Try to complete the campaign in two weeks, certainly by the end of February. This is the close of the College Period.

8. When the campaign is completed, be sure to make a complete report and forward the same to the college. All pledge cards should be forwarded. All contributions will be promptly acknowledged and receipted.

* * * * *

Apportionment Giving

Throughout the year 1952 weekly reports of receipts for the college from Sunday schools and churches of the Convention on conference apportionments have been made through THE CHRISTIAN SUN. I am sure that interested persons have read these reports, sometimes with satisfaction, at other times with disappointment.

As we come to the end of the year, however, the total receipts are quite satisfactory. We had hoped that on January 1, the college would have its full apportionment to the churches through the conferences of $15,000. This is the last report for the year 1952; the receipts received on conference apportionment amount, to date, to $14,236.51, which leaves a balance of only $763.49. It may be that some of our churches yet have funds to send in on the calendar year 1952. If so, please send them in and mark them "1952," otherwise all money received from now on will be credited on 1953.

The college wishes to take this opportunity to express sincere appreciation to every church and Sunday school that has contributed to this fund; also to express the hope that during the year 1953, the college shall receive the total amount apportioned of $15,000. I know that there are scores and hundreds of friends throughout the church who will join with the college in expressing this hope.

May each church in the Convention enjoy numerical and financial growth during the year according to the extent it allows itself to be prospered in spiritual things.

Previously Reported	$14,075.54
Eastern Va. Conference:
Portsmouth, First S. S. ...	7.87
N. C. and Va. Conference:
Durham S. S.	$24.43
Union (Va).	20.00
Western N. C. Conference:
Pleasant Hill	$75.00
Virginia Valley Conference:
Mt. Olivet (G) S. S.	5.00
Newport S. S.	20.63
Winchester S. S.	8.34

160.97

Total to Dec. 31, 1952 $14,236.51

The Elon Singers Present Programs Twice a Year from Maine to Carolina

A Continuous Service to Elon College

By GRAHAM ROWLAND WISSEMAN.

A church-related college is in many ways similar to the fellowship of the church itself. Just as in the local church children and grandchildren rise up to take leadership and serve as did their parents and grandparents before them, so one generation after another seeks inspiration and learning from the same institution of higher education. As children repeat the experiences of their parents and grandparents a sense of family solidarity develops. The same loyalties, the same interest, the same devotions tend to bring the family closer together; at the same time the college itself is helped by the continuing interest and support from one generation to another.

One has only to look at the number of second and third generation students now enrolled at Elon to see how true it is that Elon has given parents something which they in turn desire for their own children. We seek the best things in life for our children! Among these best things is the opportunity for our children to live and grow and learn as a student on the campus of a church-related college such as Elon. This precious heritage we would pass on from one generation to another.

The Responsibility and Opportunity of Local Pastors in Elon's Present Campaign

By ROY C. HELFENSTEIN.

Without any question, Elon's present Campaign is the greatest, the most important, the most far-reaching in significance and, therefore, the most challenging of all the campaigns that have been launched in behalf of "Our College in the Southland" during the illustrious history of the institution.

Indeed, the destiny of this beloved college may now be hanging in the balance, and its future resting upon the response that the pastors of our churches in the Southern Convention make to the challenge of the campaign. The pastors are undeniably "the key men" in every such campaign; and this campaign very likely offers every local pastor of the Southern Convention the greatest opportunity he will ever have to render service to Elon College and to the denomination of which it is such a vital factor.

The goal set reflects the Christian vision and the master statesmanship of those responsible for directing the welfare of our college. To our pastors and our local churches in the Southern Convention, these servants of God and of society present in the challenge of this campaign a golden opportunity to insure the perpetuity of the college which has been such a blessing to the hundreds of students who down through the years have received their training for service to God and man from this fountain of learning.

As goes Elon, so indeed will go the churches of the Southern Convention. And every pledge made in this campaign will be a vote for the continuance of Elon and for the continuance of the Southern Convention. These two enterprises are "one and inseparable."

As a fitting memorial to the founders of Elon, and to the faithful promoters of Elon's interests, every pastor within the bounds of the Southern Convention is honor bound to make a worthy pledge to the campaign and to declare his hearty endorsement of the objectives sought. He can then pray with effect for the success of the campaign.

The Elon College Campaign on the Local Church Level

By JESSE H. DOLLAR.

Although the campaign now under way to secure $1,300,000 for endowment and improvements for Elon College, and thereby complete the Two and One Half Million Dollar Campaign, is not a church campaign in the sense of "apportionments" or "quotas" for local churches, it is, nevertheless, a campaign that will succeed or fail on the local church level. For that reason, we in the local church—pastor and lay-leaders—must see to it that a good organization is set up, and that the message of Elon College is carried to the entire constituency.

The pastor, in each local church, is to name a committee from the membership, of the strongest persons in the membership, in their appreciation for Elon, in a number sufficient to reduce the actual visiting to not more than ten families or individuals per committee member. This will assure a better, more thorough canvass on a high level.

Pledges are to be sought on a five year basis. This will do two things: (1) It will secure larger pledges, and thereby help secure the total amount needed; (2) It will make possible the payment of the pledge without too much strain on the individual pledgee.

Again, I say that this campaign will succeed or fail because of what we do in each local church. Here, again, "The pastor is the key man."

January 18, the date set for the campaign to get under way, is a very significant and appropriate date. It is the thirtieth anniversary of the great fire, out of which the present physical plant grew. The five administrative buildings, as we now have them, are the triumph of that tragedy! January 18 is also Christian Higher Education Day—on a national level. These facts will lend great strength to this undertaking, and they should be used to the fullest degree. They are legitimate rallying points.

Committees should be appointed immediately. They should be urged to read the information to be sent out by the college, and in turn urge its close reading by each member of the church to be visited.

"Virginia Hall" and "Carolina Hall" should be two immediate results of this campaign. We simply must provide better living quarters for students—or we won't get them!

My Three Years Relation with Elon College

By REV. HENRY E. ROBINSON.

About three years ago I became the pastor of the First Christian Church of Burlington, North Carolina. I had not been here long before I realized the great benefits this church reaped from its college. I discovered that one hundred of its members were alumni of Elon. Many of them were in positions of leadership and influence in the church. Elon was contributing to the life of this church at home and attend Elon. Through them the college is making rich deposits in the life of this area.

Personally, on many occasions, I have turned to the college for various forms of assistance. I have never been turned down or disappointed. I am sure that my experience is typical.

Consequently, as a pastor, as a citizen of the community and as an individual, I am grateful for Elon. I heartily support her endeavor to underwrite her needs in the current campaign.

Elon Student Government through its Honor Council Helps Preserve the Integrity of the Students through all of them. One can easily imagine our great loss as a church if Elon had not, through the years, done her work. I dare say no church in the Southern Convention has benefitted so directly from the influence of Elon as this church. Naturally, I am grateful for this contribution.

I cannot help but be conscious of the constant influence Elon has upon the immediate community. Lectures, concerts, sports events, library resources, a constant source of speakers, all play their part in the cultural and recreational life of the county. Elon belongs to the Southern Convention, but it also belongs in a real sense to Alamance County, to whose young people it affords a college training that would otherwise be impossible. Hundreds of students live

Elon College Students in Post-Graduate Schools

By JOHN R. LACKEY,
Senior in Duke Divinity School.

Many assume that larger institutions turn out better products by virtue of the fact that they are larger. This isn't true. In fact, we who are Elon graduates have much for which to be thankful. Our school has competent teachers and, at the same time, a student body of such size as to permit more intimate association with the faculty. Such a relationship provides opportunity for deeper discussions and thus a chance to really get at the heart of matters. This is the beginning of true education. Further, this intimate contact with

(Continued on page 11.)

A Page for Our Children

MRS. R. L. HOUSE, Editor, Southern Pines, N. C.

Dear Little Friends:

Here's hoping you have enjoyed a happy holiday time and that you may keep all your resolutions for the New Year!

Our holiday was happy and filled with surprises. One of them was a visit from Managing Editor and Mrs. Kernodle. They have been friends of ours for a long time, and friends of mine since I was your size. Can you guess what we chatted about? THE SUN, of course, and other things too.

Our paper today is devoted to Elon College. It is our church college, and part of the money that keeps it going (for light, heat, etc.) comes from you and your parents. Plan now on going to college, plan on going to your church college.

Getting an education is such an important job. It can be interesting if you want it to be. A young man from our town, Mr. Lewis Pate, liked his education so much, he decided to teach others. Then he had a better idea, he would teach in a far away place. He was appointed to teach in Thailand (Siam to you who studied yesteryear geography) under the Fulbright Exchange Plan.

Now our town is very special. It is a winter resort. We have a dry climate, sparkling piney air, beautiful trees, green the year round, and visitors come from far and wide for pleasure and for health. The young teacher told the people of Thailand about his home and the lovely country. And guess what happened? He made it so interesting that the Governor of the Province decided to see it for himself. He is Mr. Puang Suwanarath, governor of the Songkhla Province. Mr. Puang is touring our nation to get ideas to use at home. He wanted to see the town and family of Lewis Pate. And so he did. He stayed in the home of our Mayor, ate with the Pate family, visited the school, ate in the cafeteria with the school children and teachers, shopped in our stores and went to church. He had a wonderful time visiting. See what education can do.

With best wishes,

JUNE JOY HOUSE.

How to Get Help from One's Children

By MARY ELIZABETH THOMPSON.

Issued by the National Kindergarten Association.

"How do you get your children to enjoy doing the dishes?" a friend once asked me. "They seem to be having quite a nice time out there."

We adults had retired to the living room after supper, and the boys and girls were out in the kitchen with the door shut. Mary was leading in a song, and my youngest, in his high chair, was doing his best to be heard, too.

"I leave them alone," I answered. "That's the best way; they like working by themselves. When I'm there things are not the same. The tendency is to lean on Mother. When Mother isn't there the children assume responsibilities and settle down to their task. I've formed the habit of taking this little interval after supper for relaxation. Mary is a fine storyteller, and the others are all quite willing to help if she will only think up another story. When her tale comes to an end they sing together. Sometimes one of them will read aloud. I suppose many a mother would hesitate to encourage her children to be so contented without her. I think it is good for them and for me. It makes them more self-reliant and gives me a chance to learn how well they can do without being directed."

What children like is to be given a definite job and then left free to do it in their own way. Without watching them I can detect any lack of thoroughness or any weakness in their methods. I don't find fault, but we have a regular time when we talk over better ways of doing things.

On a farm like ours there are many chores to be done. Those of filling the woodbox and splitting the kindling can become equally tiresome. My husband and I found it better to keep the two tasks separate. We let one boy take a week at bringing in the wood and, at the same time, another boy was given a week of preparing the kindling. If the two work together at these jobs there is danger, at times, of one doing a little shirking, and then, naturally, of the other one resenting it. For his week of cutting kindling an ambitious boy will sometimes split enough wood on Saturday to last seven days and so, as far as that chore is concerned, he will have a week of freedom to attend to some of his own special interests. Assigning tasks fairly is the responsibility of parents. If you want peace and harmony in a family you must give some thought to the division of labor.

In the house the same system works successfully with the girls. One week Helen's duty, for instance, might be to set the supper table neatly—arrange the silver properly, put the glasses in their correct positions and see that everything else likely to be required is in its right place. When the meal is over Helen would clear the table—sorting out the silver ready to be washed, scraping and stacking the plates and putting food away.

If there is not another girl in the family old enough, then the following week Mother should do the work that Helen did the week before, and Helen might prepare some part of the meal. It could be a pan of muffins or biscuits, or perhaps she would make a scallop, or even ice a cake. These are definite jobs and she is pretty likely to take an interest and a pride in doing them, and Mother will have that much of the burden of cooking lifted off her shoulders.

Let me put in a word for the girl who has a number of younger brothers and sisters. What I want to say is that the eldest daughter usually gets more than her share of work and responsibility. It is right to require her help, but not to overdo it. After all, her little sisters and brothers are her parents' children, not hers. Let us give her own requirements their needed consideration.

CAMPAIGN QUOTAS.

(Continued from page 3.)

organizations separately. Should a church wish to know the quota of its particular community, including the church members, alumni, friends of Christian higher education, business, corporation and industry, the quota would be $7.50 for each member of the church annually for five years. For instance, if a church should have 100 members, the quota for that community and church would be $750.00 annually for five years. $7.50 per person is not a very large amount, but if 35,000 individuals contribute that much annually for five years, we will have a total of $1,312,500.

Youth at Work in the Church

MAX VESTAL, Box 792, Elon College, N. C.

Know Your Officers

The newly elected secretary of our Southern Convention Pilgrim Fellowship is Miss Louise McLeod of Albemarle, and a student at Elon. Let's let her tell about herself:

"To begin with, I was rather active in various clubs at high school, in Albemarle, that is. I was a member of the Boosters' Club, the Monogram Club, the Dramatics Club, Bible, etc. I was also a member of the girls' basketball team. I took part in all other athletic activities at school. I made good grades and made honor roll, or "A," every time.

"Now I am a sophomore at Elon College and have a position as student helper in the office of Prof. A. L. Hook, the Registrar of Elon College. My freshman year I made the Dean's List, and am still making it. I was also invited to join the Delta Upsilon Kappa Sorority my first year at Elon. I was on the staff of the year book, member of the SCA, WWA, and other organizations. I am also a cheer-leader, a member of the Spanish Club, secretary of the SCA, and a member of the student legislature."

Louise's address is 420 Fairview Street, Albemarle, N. C., or during school, Elon College, N. C.

* * * * *

Pleasant Ridge Youth Sing Carols

The young people of the Pleasant Ridge Church met at Mr. and Mrs. Sybrant Pell's on December 19, 1952. We enjoyed Christmas carolling to the sick ones in our community. Afterward we returned to the Pell's home for a party. Many nice gifts were shared and the refreshments were delicious.

HILDA RUMLEY,
Reporter.

* * * * *

Young People Lead Worship at Union

The evening worship service of the Union Church, near Franklin, Virginia, was conducted by the young people on December 28. Several of the young people took part in the service. Janet Parker and George Barron, both students in Elon College, led the call to worship and delivered the sermon, respectively.

Relax With Max

Back from his day in the office, Father asked his children whether they had been good.

"Oh, yes," said his little daughter, "I washed the tea things."

His small son added, "And I wiped them dry."

Turning to the youngest of the trio, he asked, "And what did you do, Margaret?"

In high glee she reported: "I picked up the pieces."

I Am a Third Generation Student

By BETSY JOHNSON.

All of my life I have heard about Elon College. I have grown up with the idea that I would probably go to college there.

My paternal grandmother, three uncles and one aunt were graduates of Elon. My father also graduated from Elon. So Elon has really been in our family. My paternal grandfather was a trustee here for many years. After his death, Daddy became a trustee.

Many times I remember that Daddy would go to Elon for meetings. Last year on the twenty-sixth of May he came up here for graduation and then came home to see me graduate from high school. I also remember his telling me how good the choir was. Since I have been here, I have found it to be very true.

All the members of the faculty and the students are very friendly and considerate. I am proud to be a part of the fine student body.

My Parents and Grandparents Came to Elon

By MERYLE MAULDIN.

It seems that I have heard of Elon College since I can remember. Both of my parents and both of my maternal grandparents came to Elon. Therefore, Elon has always meant a great deal to me. I suppose that I grew up thinking that maybe someday I would be coming to Elon. I have often listened to Mother and Daddy talk of the days when they were here at Elon—the sports, the teachers, the homework, and the extra-curricula activities. I had often looked through their annuals and had decided that Elon must be a wonderful place.

With this background it was only natural that I considered Elon when choosing a college to attend. It was not hard to decide, either.

Now I am a fully initiated freshman at "dear ol' Elon." We have just finished the first quarter of work, but sometimes it seems like only a few weeks that we have been here. All the teachers are friendly, helpful, and understanding; and the students are wonderful. Everyone cooperates with everyone else.

I know I made a wise choice when I decided to come to Elon. Elon is a fine school, and I know I will always be proud of her.

IN POST-GRADUATE SCHOOLS.

(Continued from page 9.)

a competent, devoted, Christian faculty inspires the student with the desire for higher climbing. Thus, I have found that an Elon graduate has received a foundation of learning that will enable him to hold his own with the graduate of any college or university you may wish to name.

The following is a testimony from Dr. A. J. Walton, who is Associate Professor of Practical Theology and Director of Field Work at Duke Divinity School:

"As a member of the Admissions Committee of Duke Divinity School and of the Scholarship Evaluation Committee, I have had occasion to study the merits of the work done by various colleges in preparing students for graduate work.

"In this study I have been impressed with the work done by Elon College. The quality of the work and the grades given students demonstrates an earnest and sincere effort on the part of the college to help the student learn to study, to master the essentials of a college education, and to realize the importance of continued application to the task in hand.

"To protect itself, the University must accept on probation students coming from any school whose grading indicates laxity and whose quality of work leaves students ill prepared to engage in graduate work.

"So far, no conditions or probation has been required of Elon College students."

Elon's Ministry to Ministerial Students

By JOHN G. TRUITT, JR.

Elon College provides the ministerial student the foundation for his theological training. It places the emphases, for a ministerial student upon those subjects which prepare him for his seminary work. Besides the study of the cultural broad basis of a regular bachelor of arts degree, it emphasizes the English Bible, philosophy, and associated subjects. A course in Greek, the language of the New Testament, is given. Several members of the faculty having full theological degrees know how to counsel the ministerial student in his preparation for the ministry.

Elon College being a church school maintains a Christian spirit on the campus and surrounds every student with the spirit of the church. This is invaluable to the ministerial student. Indeed, it gives him the opportunity to have a real share in creating and maintaining this Christian spirit. He has in the course of his four-year study opportunities to develop his talents along the line of his calling. The college counsels and advises any ministerial student who may desire to do some supply work in pulpit or pastorate during his college days. In fact, some students in this way help to defray their expenses in college and get some valuable experience besides.

For ministerial students of the Congregational Christian Churches their college days may be helped by the fact that the Southern Convention Offices are on the Elon College campus. They have the opportunity to get acquainted with their denomination in a little different way than they otherwise would. I feel that Elon is a good place for any ministerial student to get his college degree and especially good for those who expect to preach in our denomination.

Carolina Hall for Boys

By GEORGE D. COLCLOUGH.

Don't you think it a grand idea for the Elon College Alumni and members of the Christian Church in North Carolina to use funds contributed in the two and one-half million dollar campaign to erect a boy's dormitory on the Elon College Campus and name it "Carolina Hall for Boys." The Eastern Virginia Conference adopted the following resolution:

"In view of the campaign for funds authorized by the Southern Convention in behalf of Elon College, we recommend that the Eastern Virginia Conference accept the responsibility for our part of the cost of the renovation of and additions to West Dormitory of Elon College, to be known as Virginia Hall for Girls. This is a designation of a portion of the funds we are asked to raise in the two and One Half Million Dollar Fund for Elon."

Surely we Carolinians would like to accept this challenge and erect a new and modern dormitory and name being influenced by religion. But such is not the case.

In this confused society of ours, mankind is finding a greater need for religion than ever before, and this is increasingly true on our college campus.

It seems to me to be shameful that so many of our one-time great universities and colleges are becoming secular and pushing religion out the back door. The great schools of America and our nation were conceived and built on the foundation of religion. If the architecture of our world is not to crumble then these foundations must not decay.

Elon College is a denominational school, and the support from the Christian Church makes it a power-

Elon Offers Special Features in Physical Education

it for the good state of which we are so proud.

Progress is being made in the campaign for two and one-half million dollars, and while we all know it is going to take time and work, we are confident that it can and will be done. If you have not already done so, why not make your pledge now and help us in reaching our goal. If you would like to pay one-fifth of your pledge, President L. E. Smith will be glad to receive your check along with your pledge.

The Christian Impact on Elon College Students

By MATT CURIN, JR.

The Christian impact on the Elon College campus is tremendous! To the outsider it might appear that the busy rush of college life is far from ful instrument for the building of Christian character within the individual for society.

We should never forget the tremendous influence and inspiration which is radiated from the College administration and faculty. Together we work, and together we worship. On Wednesdays and Fridays at the hour of ten we pause for a few moments of religious worship in Whitley Chapel at which time members of the college faculty and distinguished ministers from far and near lead us in moments of devotion.

Of course the Student Christian Association, the Ministerial Association, and the Elon Choir all have a great influence on the lives of all of us. We are indeed grateful for our college, her leaders, and the religious influence which radiates from them to us.

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE, D. D.

"Witnesses of His Glory"

LESSON III—JANUARY 18, 1953.

MEMORY VERSE: "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased; hear ye him."—Matthew 17:5.

LESSON: Matthew 17:1-8, 14-18.

DEVOTIONAL READING: II Peter 1:3-8, 16-18.

Although there are many fanciful things about the Transfiguration, it is based on fact. It was a real experience in the life of Jesus and of the three disciples who accompanied him on the "high mountain apart." To read about a man being "transfigured," about his face shining as the sun and his garments becoming white as light, about two men long since dead appearing and talking with another man, about hearing a voice out of a cloud—all this seems strange to us modern, practical-minded men. But there is no doubt about the fact that such an event did take place. The difficulty which those who were present faced was to describe in words what was a tremendously spiritual experience.

The Mount of Vision.

The Transfiguration experience of Jesus served a dual purpose. The Master was weary from dealing with unrepentant men. Furthermore, the shadow of the Cross lay heavily across his path. He needed strength and courage, he needed to wait upon the Lord to renew his strength. He resorted to the mountain where in silence and near solitude, he could pray and restore his soul. It must have meant a great deal to him to talk to Moses and Elijah, visiting from the unseen but real world, about "the fate that awaited him." And to hear once more the Father's word of approbation and accreditation: "This is my beloved Son in whom I am well pleased; hear ye him." Here is that spiritual interlude which the sons of men, as well as the Son of Man, need and needed. Man cannot live by bread alone, or work by bread alone. He needs to feed on the Living Bread which came down from heaven, which if a man eat, he shall live. Men need that for which worship stands and supplies. We need our mountain-top experiences when we get fresh vision, new insights, renewed power and restored spirits. The man who says he is too busy to worship is too busy.

The Transfiguration experience also had a meaning for the disciples, Peter, James and John. The Master had just told them that the Son of Man must suffer many things and be crucified. That was a rude jolt to them, and a blow to their hope that he was the Christ, the Messiah. On the Mount they saw him in his true spiritual nature, in the form which death itself could not thwart. They, too, heard the voice of the Father as he confirmed again Jesus as his Son, and as he bade the disciples to listen to him and to his further sayings concerning this strange event.

They saw how thin was the veil that divided the seen from the unseen world, the world of life in the body from the life of the spirit. It gave them new and badly needed strength and courage for the days that lay immediately ahead. The Transfiguration was, for them, as it was for the Master, one of God's gracious gestures and tokens of his care and his power and his ultimate victory. At the end, they saw no man, save Jesus only standing in their midst. Above and beyond the Law and the Prophets, there he stood full of grace and truth. They saw his glory revealed to them "on the Mount," as Peter wrote later to his friends and fellow Christians.

The Valley of Service.

The thing was so good, Peter wanted to make it last longer. Indeed, he suggested that three tabernacles be built on the mountain, one for each of the distinguished men. It would be good to stay there, to dwell in that exalted state for a long time. We can sympathize with him in this. Who is there of us who has not had experiences which we wanted to prolong, say for instance a vacation, or the Christmas season! And we have had high moments which we wanted to capture and hold for a long time. Perhaps it was in some quiet time of prayer, perhaps it was in some hour of worship when it seemed as if the heavens themselves were opened and the glory of God shone through, perhaps it was in some special service when our hearts burned within us—it was good to be there and to have that experience, and we fain would have kept the hour indefinitely. But not so. It was the case with Jesus and the disciples. Even while they were on the mountain, human need awaited them at the foot of the mountain. It is always thus. Worship on Sunday is to be followed by work on Monday. We are to enter church on Sunday to worship; we are to depart to serve through the week. Every spiritual experience has its corresponding duty. Ecstatic moments are to be followed by exacting service. Like the Transfiguration experience, a spiritual interlude, so is the Lord's Day. Fatigued and confused by the events of the previous week, its services of worship are as a resting place, the shadow of a great rock in a weary land, a time of refreshing and renewal. And a preparation for new service and sacrifice during the days of the coming week. Worship and work are the two foci of the Christian life.

All this has point for those who minimize religion as an "escape mechanism," for those who say that prayer is a means of escaping responsibility. The fact is that prayer is a means of preparing to accept responsibility more fully. Men ought always to pray, not as a means of getting out of things, but as a means of getting things done. As someone has said, the Christian life is something like rowing a boat—one oar is worship, and the other oar is work; and we need to use both oars if there is to be a sense of direction, and progress in our Christian living.

Based on "International Sunday School Lessons;" copyrighted 1951 by Division of Christian Education, National Council of the Churches in the U. S. A.

MY FOREBEARS AND ELON.

(Continued from page 3.)

Board until his death. My Uncle and Aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Lee, expressed their loyalty to Elon from the day the college was founded as long as they lived, by sending students, giving money and helping the institution in all the ways they could. It is safe to say for the first twenty-five years of Elon College, they supported an average of one college student a year.

As long as Elon College has friends as these, who show their love by their work as well as their faith, the college will continue to grow and develop in new areas of service and usefulness.

The Orphanage

J. G. TRUITT, Superintendent

Dear Friends:

God bless you everyone. You have been so good and kind to us here, and by us, I mean the children first, and then those of us who feel the responsibility of all the maintenances that are needed. I am so appreciative. I must make my letter short, as the list is long. You see this is next to the last report for 1952, and it stands at $57,505.49. I do not know at this writing whether or not the goal of $60,000.00 will be reached. I do hope so, as we shall need every cent of it. But you have all made me happy, and I thank you.

JOHN G. TRUITT,
Superintendent

REPORT FOR DECEMBER 25, 1952

Commodities for the Week.

Weatherly Candy Co., Elizabeth City, N. C., 3 boxes of candy.
Young Ladies' Class, Waverly Christian Church, 2 boxes of toys.
Youth Fellowship, Fuller's Chapel, Christmas gifts.
Mrs. R. W. Hawkins, Asheville, N. C., Clothing.
Friendship Class, Union Church, Franklin, Va., Christmas gifts.
Mrs. Carl Hartman, Aberdeen, Md., Clothing.
Mrs. W. J. Cobb, Asheville, N. C., Christmas gifts and candy.
Moore Union Missionary Society, Quilts.
Bethlehem Christian Church, Barrett Circle, Christmas gifts.
John R. Bowker, Pinehurst, N. C. Candy.
C. H. Darden, Greensboro, N. C., Candy.
Sunday School Children, Burlington, First Church, Christmas gifts.
Franklin Congregational Christian Church, Christmas gifts.
Mrs. W. C. Kirkman, Burlington, N. C., Quilt.
Union Ridge Church, Christmas gifts.
Burlington Junior Chamber of Commerce, Fruit.

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

Amount brought forward $21,567.72

Eastern N. C. Conference:

*Auburn	$ 38.28
Lee's Chapel	19.00
Liberty (Vance)	25.00
Mt. Gilead	34.00
*New Hope	65.50
Oak Level	29.00
*Pleasant Union	100.00
*Wentworth	75.41
Fayetteville	2.50
*Fayetteville	31.30

419.99

Eastern Va. Conference:

*Antioch	$ 31.69
*Bethlehem (Nans), S. S.	63.75
Burton's Grove	14.00
*Cypress Chapel	5.50
Cypress Chapel	30.72

*Damascus	25.00
*Dendron	19.79
*Holland	623.00
*Liberty Spring	112.32
*New Lebanon S. S. ..	12.35
Newport News	14.25
*Christian Temple S. S.	79.46
Christian Temple	20.00
*Norfolk, First	70.00
Rosemont	80.00
*Norfolk, Second	107.56
*Spring Hill	10.00
*Suffolk	100.00
*Wakefield	50.86
*Windsor S. S.	38.77
Windsor S. S.	10.00

1,519.02

N. C. and Va. Conference:

*Bethlehem	$ 133.52
*Burlington	258.25
Burlington S. S.	354.63
Burlington	400.00
Carolina	23.50
*Elk Spur	6.62
*Gibsonville	54.18
*Graham, Prov. Mem. .	25.00
Greensboro, Palm St. .	119.00
Happy Home	55.25
*Haw River	78.05
*Hines Chapel	125.00
Hines Chapel S. S. ...	6.00
*Hopedale	90.00
*Ingram	90.00
Ingram S. S.	22.38
*Lebanon	42.00
*Monticello	21.50
New Lebanon S. S. ...	110.35
Pfafftown	19.00
*Pleasant Ridge	22.00
Pleasant Ridge	24.00
*Rocky Ford	16.30
Shallow Ford	91.02
*Zion	7.00

2,194.55

Western N. C. Conference:

*Bailey's Grove	$ 10.00
*Brown's Chapel S. S. .	11.61
Flint Hill (R)	15.00
*Grace's Chapel	95.37
Mt. Pleasant	22.50
Pleasant Union S. S. .	17.29
Providence Chapel ...	5.70
*Smithwood	24.28
*Zion	123.05

324.80

Virginia Valley Conference:
*Antioch	$ 114.23
*Bethlehem S. S.	17.24
Mt. Lebanon S. S.	23.00
Mt. Olivet (G)	2.00
*Palmyra S. S.	8.20

164.67

Total $ 4,623.03

Grand total $26,190.75

*Thanksgiving Offerings.

Special Offerings.

Amount brought forward $27,443.94

Thanksgiving Offerings.

L. S. Riley, Mebane, N. C.	$ 5.00
Mr. & Mrs. Rufus H. Rhyne, Walnut Cove, N. C.	25.00
Zimmerman Lumber Co., Burlington, N. C. ...	100.00
W. B. Fuller, Harrisburg, Va.	10.00
Burlington Rotary Club	1,290.00

1,430.00

Christmas Gifts.

Young People's Class, Reidsville Church ...	$ 50.00
S. H. Basnight, Chapel Hill, N. C.	10.00
Philathea Class, Reidsville Church	10.00
Mrs. W. H. Garrett, South Norfolk, Va. .	5.00
Mr. & Mrs. Ernest Sibley, West Hartford, Conn.	5.00
Mr. & Mrs. D. H. Howell, Suffolk, Va.	10.00
Mrs. C. P. Chamberlin, Windsor, Conn.	100.00
Philathea Class, Suffolk Church for Harvell boys	5.00
Revolution Community Club for Larry Jones	15.00
The O'Kelly Bible Class, Greensboro, First Ch.	65.00
Mr. & Mrs. C. J. Strickland, Columbus, Ohio	50.00

(Continued on page 15.)

MEMORIAL GIFTS

"Instead of Flowers"

Dr. John G. Truitt
Christian Orphanage
Elon College, N. C.

Dear Dr. Truitt:

Please acknowledge the enclosed $..... as a memorial gift sent to the Christian Orphanage in lieu of flowers in memory of:

(Name of Deceased)

(City)

(Date of Death)

(Survivor to be Written)

(Address)

Name.....

Address.....

Missions at Home and Abroad

Christmas and a New Year in Carroll County

Christmas has come and gone here in the mountains, and there is little left to remind us of the hasty preparations we made for the holidays. The symbols, the trees and the decorations have been taken down by most of our neighbors, and life has resumed its familiar pattern. There is a certain bleakness about Christmas in the hills. It is a day for the children, but otherwise the amenities of urban life are absent. It is a day of visiting and cordial friendliness, but much is lacking that might make Christmas more of a season than of a single day.

We hope that the church programs have helped to make Christ more the center of Christmas, but we have felt our ministry at this holy season is very inadequate. I believe that our churches need to share more fully in bringing Christmas to the hills, and by next Christmas, I hope to know of our needs so that you will have an opportunity to brighten the holidays for all of our children. We are disappointed that we could not have done more for our neighbors in the name of the church. Our first Christmas here is a mixture of the joy which the Christ Child brings, and the sadness which we all feel as we contemplate his simple, humble birth—we have received so much and given so little, all of us.

But now we face a new year. What it has in store, we cannot tell, but we hope that we will have a richer opportunity for ministry here as the year unfolds. Perhaps we will have a doctor in the hills before the year is out. We dream that the Rocky Ford Church will be well on the way toward completion by the end of the year. We pray that the church may be more the center of family and community life as the year passes. The fields are white unto harvest all about us with opportunities for the work here, so nothing can be done without overlooking another responsibility.

The month of January will be given over almost completely to planning the work of the churches, determining our needs and responsibilities and attacking our most pressing problems. Not only will we observe Youth Sunday this month, but we will try to organize our Pilgrim Fellowship groups. Should we have completed this month and organized our young people's groups and constructed a plan for the year, we will be thankful and optimistic for each new day with its challenges.

Your prayer for the work of the hills will strengthen our service to our neighbors for you and our God.

WILLIAM and ALIDA WOLFE.

Fancy Gap, Virginia.

THE ORPHANAGE.

(Continued from page 14.)

Henry V. Harman, High View, W. Va.	1.00
A Friend, Linville, Va.	5.00
Senior Hi Class, Pleasant Ridge Christian Church for Thurman Arnold	5.72
Reliable Bible Class of First Church, Portsmouth, for Raymond Arnold	10.00
Mrs. E. W. Jones, Baltimore, Md.	25.00
Union S. S. Wadly, Ala.	8.15
Fidelity Class, Portsmouth, First Church	10.00
Mrs. Ester E. Jinkens, St. Paris, Ohio	5.00
Mr. & Mrs. A. Paul Hartz, Waverly, Va.	50.00
Rev. J. E. McCauley, Waverly, Va.	5.00
Woman's Guild, Shelton Mem. Church, Portsmouth	10.00
W. H. Morgan, Boone, N. C.	5.00
J. B. Long, Elon College, N. C.	31.05
The Cone Foundation, Greensboro, N. C. ...	100.00
A Friend, Waverly, Va.	10.00
Hank's Chapel for Roy Black	31.00
Cypress Chapel Woman's Miss. Soc. for Betty Jane Rowland	7.00
Men's Bible Class, Providence Mem., Graham	21.00
A Friend, Suffolk, Va. .	5.00
Friends, Suffolk, Va. .	25.00
Mrs. O. P. Holsinger, Harrisonburg, Va. .	5.00
Alamance Laundry & Dry Cleaners, Burlington, N. C.	150.00
Buchanan's Record Shop Sanford, N. C.	25.00
David T. Fuller, Henderson, N. C.	10.00

Dr. Mary Frances Thelen, Lynchburg, Va. .	10.00
A. L. Owen, Smithfield, Va.	25.00
Gray Lumber Co., Inc., Waverly, Va.	150.00
Garland Gray, Waverly, Va.	150.00
D. C. McLennan, Greensboro, N. C.	10.00
A High Point Friend ..	60.00
Chapel Hill Church, Woman's Fellowship	15.00
Young Adult Class, Pleasant Ridge Sunday School for Douglas Wilson	11.75
Celanese Lancee Corp., Burlington, N. C. ...	10.00
Rev. T. J. Green, Sr., High Falls, N. C. ...	5.00
Mr. & Mrs. H. H. Waters, Newport News, Va.	5.00
Golden Rule Bible Class, Newport News Church for Jimmy Burgess ..	10.00
Mr. & Mrs. H. R. Forlines, Norfolk, Va., in Memory of Dr. C. E. Newman	5.00
	1,351.67
Special Gifts	1,089.10
Total	$ 3,870.77
Grand total	$31,314.71
Total for the week	$ 8,493.80
Total for the year	$57,505.49

AREAS OF STUDY AT ELON.

(Continued from page 6.)

enter the teaching profession, many accept positions in business; some are athletic coaches, salesmen and administrators. Many of her graduates continue their education with a view to entering the ministry, professional religious education work, engineering, medicine, teaching on the college level, and other specialized fields. The name of Elon is highly respected in the graduate schools of North Carolina and Virginia and in other areas where her graduates have continued their training.

Elon students and faculty members find their places in many parts of the world; at the present moment the influence of Elon is being felt in practically every one of the 48 states, in Canada, Peru, Colombia, Brazil, Cuba, Puerto Rico, Mexico, France, Germany, Switzerland, Holland, Norway, Sweden, the Holy Land, Iran, India, China, Japan, Korea, and many other far away places. No one can measure the effectiveness of this influence, but Elon is proud of her contribution to the world.

Habits are at first cobwebs, then cables—Spanish proverb.

Elon Provides Trained Leadership for the Church . . .

GROUP OF RELIGIOUS EDUCATION STUDENTS

Under Graduate Preparation of Ministerial Students

By FERRIS E. REYNOLDS, Chairman
Department of Religion and Philosophy at Elon College

"I want to become a minister," says a young man as he plans to enter Elon College. This is a noble and heart-warming announcement. Where is the person who does not thrill to hear it? Yet we are all aware that such a statement of purpose is only the beginning of an extended task of preparation. While it is expected that this work of preparation shall continue in terms of graduate and seminary studies, the crucial importance of preparation on the undergraduate level can scarcely be over stressed. Indeed, the ministerial candidate may not even reach the seminary or be able to do the work once he has entered, if his college preparation is not adequate.

Three major objectives have been set forth to determine the nature and content of the undergraduate program for ministerial candidates: (1) Development of personality, religious devotion and leadership capacities; (2) Nurture of those special interests in Bible study, world religions, biography and social service which are so much a part of the active minister's life and work; (3) preparation for advanced work in divinity school subjects and for the creative assignments of today's minister.

Obviously, these purposes call for the broadest and most basic kind of training in terms of the whole personality. Much of the undergraduate program designed to achieve the first objective is extra-curricular. The Ministerial Association, the choir, dramatic and debating societies, and other social group activities supply inspiration and opportunities for sound personal development. Courses in Bible, world religions, Christian education, along with the religious life program on the campus are offered in view of realizing the second objective. It is essential that those interests peculiar to the active ministry be cultivated during college days. Basic work in English, foreign languages, the social sciences, philosophy and the physical sciences provide the ministerial candidate with the skills and disciplines required for the pursuit of advanced studies and for the creative demands of his life's calling.

The records of ministerial students graduated from Elon College both in their graduate studies and in their work as ministers, bear testimony to the value of this comprehensive plan of undergraduate preparation for the Christian Ministry.

The CHRISTIAN SUN

ORGAN OF THE SOUTHERN CONVENTION OF CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES

In Essentials Unity — In Non-Essentials, Liberty, — In All Things, Charity

VOLUME CV

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, JANUARY 15, 1953

NUMBER 3

Our Congregational Christian College Presidents . . .

COLLEGE PRESIDENTS WHO ATTENDED THE GENERAL COUNCIL AT CLAREMONT, CALIFORNIA

Among those seated, left to right: Second, Clyde C. Flannery, Southern Union College; fourth, Samuel N. Stevens, Grinnell College (See article on page 5); fifth, Mary Ashby Check, Rockford, College Illinois; sixth, Leon Edgar Smith, Elon College.

The Congregational Christian College Council

The Congregational Christian College Council was organized as an instrument through which the Congregational Christian colleges might enrich their fellowship through the exchange of information, the discussion of common problems, and through the development of more effective communication with the churches throughout the country. These colleges are proud of their Congregational Christian heritage. They look with pride upon the long years of usefulness to the churches and to our American society. They seek to serve the interests of the churches in every possible way. They desire so to conduct their institutional lives that members of the Congregational Christian churches throughout the entire country will have an increasing sense of fellowship and a growing concern for their welfare. All of these colleges have made splendid records in educating young men and women for the ministry and for leadership in churches in communities throughout the nation. The long list of ministers, church administrators and missionaries who are graduates of these colleges reads like a roll of honor in Congregational Christian church history.

News Flashes

Please forward all contributions for the Christmas Fund promptly to the Convention Office.

The annual meeting of the Board of Trustees of Franklinton Center was held on Wednesday, January 7.

Dr. W. E. Wisseman reports a most successful Training School held at First Church, Greensboro, N. C., last week.

Mrs. Ralph M. Galt, who has been a patient at Rockingham Memorial Hospital, has returned home and is doing nicely.

Elm Avenue Christian Church of Portsmouth, Virginia, sponsored a "White Christmas" through which three needy families were aided.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark Foltz of our Bethlehem Church in the Virginia Valley announce the arrival of Earle Gene on January 2. He is their second son.

Remember and save a date for the annual meeting of the North Carolina Council of Churches, January 20-21, at the Pullen Memorial Baptist Church, Raleigh.

Rev. Frank E. Ratzell, pastor of the First Congregational Church of Asheville, N. C., has been named vice-president of the Ministerial Association of Asheville and Buncombe County for the coming year.

Be sure to reserve Sunday, February 8 for the Laymen's Spring Rally at Elon College. This meeting promises to be one of the best yet planned. Speakers of national importance will address the group, and the inspiration gained will be worth all of the energy expended to make the trip.

Rev. Kenneth M. Lindner, founder and first pastor of our new Eutaw Community Church, Fayetteville, N. C., resigned as pastor on December 20, having been called to active duty as Chaplain in the United States Army. He is located at Fort Bragg. David Crowle, a ministerial student at Elon College, is serving as supply pastor.

The many friends of Rev. and Mrs. Cecil Thomas of Norfolk will rejoice with them in the recovery of Mrs. Thomas. A letter from Mr. Thomas states that "She is rapidly regaining her strength and is gradually assuming her normal life. We are overjoyed at this and deeply grateful for her recovery. Moreover, we greatly appreciate the wonderful help given us by individuals, churches and the Board of Ministerial Relief during Mrs. Thomas' prolonged illness."

Plans for a new Russian Orthodox Cathedral in Washington, D. C., got underway with the formation of an interdenominational committee of Protestant church leaders to help in the $300,000.00 fund campaign. At a Washington luncheon for the fund campaign, the principal speaker was Dr. Earl F. Adams, Washington representative of the National Council of Churches. The new structure, to be built by the Russian Orthodox Church in North America, will be known as St. Nicholas Cathedral and will be a memorial to members of the Russian Orthodox Church who died in World Wars I and II, as well as in the Korean conflict.

The Christmas Afterglow at Reidsville

Christmas is over and New Year is here, and the Reidsville church is back to normalcy, but only after a very busy and a very happy Christmas season. Organizations, classes and groups had their parties, and at times there were two or three in an evening, but all ages were included and all ages enjoyed the social life of the church as well as the worship services.

One of the highlights of the Christmas season was on December 17, when the Junior Department of the Sunday school held its annual Christmas party. The Young People's Department of the church was filled to an overflow, and after carols and recitations and exercises, Santa Claus arrived in his sleigh laden with gifts of all kinds for the young people of our church.

The outstanding occasions of the Christmas season was the service of carols and lights which was held on Sunday night, December 21. The church was beautiful in candle light, and all who came were provided with individual candles; and those who came numbered seven hundred. The choir of seventy-five voices rendered special numbers and together with the congregation sang all the glorious carols of the season. Mr. Felix Fournier with his magic violin accompanied all of the music and added greatly to the beauty of the service.

The pastor, Rev. Tucker G. Humphries, read the Christmas story and presided at the service; and Supt. William T. Scott brought the Christmas message.

It was a glorious service climaxed when the pastor took his light from the Christ candle and gave that light to the twelve ushers who in turn went throughout the darkened church and lighted the individual candles which were held high as the choir and congregation sang the most beautiful of the Christmas carols, "Silent Night." The theme of the service was based upon the poem, "Everywhere, Everywhere, Christmas Tonight."

Survey Shows That People Benefit By Prohibition in India

In 1949, the State of Madras began in inquiry into the results of the prohibition policy. In general, it was a survey of the social, economic and moral effects of prohibition of intoxicating liquors on the ex-addicts and their families.

The inquiry covered 8,363 families comprising 6,814 in rural sections, 1,049 in cities, and 500 in the city of Madras. In the rural area surveyed, almost exactly 10 per cent were addicts; in the urban areas it was 11 per cent.

In the pre-prohibition days the average amount spent on drink was 17 per cent of the family income. Under prohibition, the amount spent for food has increased 20 per cent. The families are now spending nearly three times as much as before on such items as coffee, tea and amusements. Expenditure for illicit liquor seems to be very small. The survey concluded: "The introduction of prohibition has helped the ex-addict to feed and clothe himself and his family better as a result of the saving of a substantial part of his income formerly spent on drink. There has been an increase in expenditures for such items as sinking of wells, improvements to land and houses, purchase of work animals, etc. This beneficial trend took place in spite of a rapid rise in the cost of living and poor crop conditions."

When someone asked Jean Cocteau his rule of life, he replied: "Always to get up one more time than I have fallen."

Youth at Work in the Church

MAX VESTAL, Box 792, Elon College, N. C.

Elm Avenue Young People Present Christmas Cantata

On the evening of December 21, at 8 o'clock, the young people's choir of the Elm Avenue Christian Church, Portsmouth, Virginia, presented the Christmas cantata, "Tidings of Joy." A nice congregation, with several visitors, enjoyed this special music. At 5:30 p.m., preceding the program, the choir was entertained at the parsonage by Rev. and Mrs. Tally with a tea.

On Tuesday evening a children's program, pageant and special music were presented and also gifts were exchanged. Special gifts were given to the choir director, the pianist, the Sunday school superintendent, the pastor and his wife.

* * * * *

Potato Salad and Picture Projectors

Has your youth group had trouble finding some means of raising money? Our Youth Fellowship had that problem, but we found a remedy for it. We young people of Holland, Virginia, decided to buy a projector for our church, but the problem was how to raise the money. Finally we hit upon a wonderful idea—to make potato salad and sell it by the pound in our town. This sounds like a lot of work, and it was; but we also had fun.

The week before the sale, several members of our group canvassed the town getting orders for the salad. Before we could cover the whole town we had more orders than we could provide. With the help of our adult advisors, several of the girls and boys on Saturday morning peeled potatoes which had been given by one of our members. All other ingredients for the salad were also given by the members of the Youth Fellowship. In the afternoon the potatoes were cut up, the salad was mixed and fixed for delivery. This was done by the members, with the help of several of our mothers. Later, some of the boys delivered the salad, and the money was "in the bag."

We have sold salad twice—once last year and again in October of this year. Then it was last year that our minister, Rev. James H. Lightbourne, Jr., wrote a New Year's play for us.

We presented it one morning in Sunday school and then took an offering which amounted to over $20.

With the help of several memorials and individual donations, the projector has been ordered, and it came in time for us to show "The Christmas Story" at our annual Sunday School Christmas Party. So that's the story of how the Holland Pilgrim Fellowship raised money for a projector. Here's hoping that other groups will find this idea helpful.

BETTY JEAN UNDERWOOD, Reporter.

* * * * *

Relax With Max

Hotel Manager: "For this job we want a responsible man."

Applicant: "That's me. Everywhere I've worked, when something went wrong they told me I was responsible."

* * *

A boy was a witness in court, and the lawyer, in cross-examination, asked: "Did anyone tell you what to say in court?"

"Yes, sir."
"I thought so. Who?"
"My father, sir."
"And what did he tell you?"

"He said the lawyers would try to get me tangled up, but if I told the truth, I would be all right."

* * *

If we don't make the New Year better than the old one, we might as well have kept 1952.

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr
A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom as represented by the Congregational Christian Churches.
Our Principles

- 1. The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
- 2. Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
- 3. The Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- 4. Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and church membership.
- 5. The right of private judgment and liberty of conscience is a privilege that should be accorded to and exercised by all.

Editor Robert Lee House
Managing Editor John T. Kernodle

Departmental Editors—Convention, Wm. T. Scott; Missions, F. C. Lester; Women's Work, Mrs. F. C. Lester; Young People's Work, Max Vestal; Children, Mrs. R. L. House; Sunday School Lesson, H. S. Hardcastle.

Institutional Representatives—Elon College, L. E. Smith; The Christian Orphanage, John G. Truitt.

Board of Publications—Duane Vore, Chairman, S. T. Holland, Secretary; R. C. Helfenstein, S. E. Madren, W. W. Snyder, G. D. Colclough, Treasurer, ex officio.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Year $3.00
Two Years 5.00

Published by the Board of Publications of The Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches, Inc. Printed every Thursday except the last in June and December by Central Publishing Co., Inc., Richmond, Va.

Entered as second-class matter at the Post Office at Richmond Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

General contributions should be addressed to the editor at Southern Pines, N. C., and should reach him by Wednesday of the week preceding date of publication.

Departmental material should be sent to the proper departmental editor, at the address shown on their page.

All other material and business communications except regarding subscriptions should be sent to the Office of Publication, 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond 19, Va.

The Christian Sun Subscription Blank

Subscription Price: 1 year, $3.00; 2 years, $5.00

Date.....195....

Dr. Wm. T. Scott, Supt.,
Elon College, N. C.

Enclosed find $..... for which please send The Christian Sun
() 1 year, () 2 years — () New Subscription, () Renewal.

To

Address

Who is a member of Church

() Renew, () Enter my own subscription for () 1 year, () 2 years.

My Name

My Address

From the EDITOR'S Desk

"The Stubborn Ounces of My Weight"

Most of us, like the proverbial elevator boy, have our ups and downs. Sooner or later we come face to face with the fact of limited energy or diminished strength. Accident, misfortune, sickness and convalescence give pause for an evaluation of life's energies. The New Year suggests an inventory of our total resources.

These lines of Bonaro Overstreet place the whole problem in true and helpful perspective:

You say the little efforts that I make will do no good,
They never will prevail to tip the hovering scale
Where justice hangs in the balance.
I don't think I ever thought they would;
But I am prejudiced beyond debate
In favor of my right to choose which side shall feel
The stubborn ounces of my weight.

Like Bonaro Overstreet, we must learn and practice the stewardship of energy and influence. We must get around to that chapter, even though we skipped school when that lesson was being studied. Another keen observer of life puts the truth this way: "The careful, thoughtful use of limited capacity and abilities is of great value and often produces a greater sense of achievement than when one's weight is in pounds or in tons, and that weight is carelessly applied." Quite so! The dinosaur had weight to spare, but he was not efficient in the use of that weight and has now become extinct.

The Prodigal Son wasted his inherited substance in riotous living. He dissipated his strength and squandered his resources. When he finally came to himself, he returned to his father who had learned early in life to husband his resources. Having learned his bitter lesson, he was able to do more with less.

It is not always the rich family which does the most good, but the one which achieves a judicious use of its limited resources. Even the strength and resources of our great democracy are not unlimited. They can be spread out until they become thin. But a chastened and disciplined democracy is learning how to use the stubborn ounces of its weight to tip the global scales in the direction of freedom.

While the church does not have unlimited strength, it is the custodian of potent resources. It must neither over nor under estimate its ability. To be sure, the church can be wounded, suffer and inferiority complex, dissipate its strength, compete rather than cooperate. Now is the time for the church to put the solid ounces of its weight solidly behind Christian education, cooperative Christianity, and World Missions.

During this year of grace, 1953, we of the Southern Convention are offered the opportunity of throwing the mighty impact of our resources on the side of Christian education and Church building. Every member of our church will have the opportunity and will be called upon to contribute substantially to Elon College and to our National Church Building Campaign. Both items should be placed promptly and prominently on the annual agenda. Our financial weight becomes truly effective only when we pool it judiciously with that of others. We have weight, resources, influences. When carefully channeled, these may be made determinative in the building of God's Kingdom on earth.

Whatever our individual category may be, bourgeoisie or proletariat, we have a few ounces of weight. In the world, where righteousness must battle incessantly with evil, there is neither time nor resources to waste. Life must not be spent in multiplied irrelevancies. We must find and define life's priorities.

Think of Saint Paul, hounded and handicapped by the thorn in the flesh. Yet he learned to husband his resources: "This one thing I do." He used the terrible ounces of his strength to overcome paganism and extend the rule of Christ. And that brings us to the central, shining example of life's true value. Christ, buffeted by all the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune, was persistent in his Father's business, and the centuries have felt the mighty impact of his life, the terrible ounces of his strength. May strength be given to follow in his train.

A Wise Investment . . .

Yesterday . . . Today . . . Tomorrow

Our Congregational Christian Colleges

By PRESIDENT S. N. STEVENS

With a few rare exceptions, all privately endowed higher education in the United States had its origins in the Christian churches. Historically the Christian churches continued to accept the responsibility for the higher education of the American youth, even after the period was passed in which they had relinquished the responsibility for elementary and secondary education to the state. In 1900 over 85 per cent of all the young men and women benefiting from higher education in the United States were securing these advantages in privately endowed, church-related institutions of higher learning. As late as 1938 nearly 60 per cent of all students enrolled in colleges and universities in the United States were to be found in colleges which had historically been church-related or which had at that time recognized church-relatedness. During the nineteenth century development of small liberal arts colleges paralleled the westward expansion of our national economy. In some instances Christian colleges of liberal arts were in operation before territories or states were officially recognized by the federal government. During the last half of the nineteenth century and particularly in the first quarter of the twentieth the rise of the land grant tax supported institutions of higher learning took place. The urban university in the strict sense of the word is almost entirely a product of the twentieth century.

Attendance at institutions of higher learning has doubled every decade since 1900. Due to the impact of World War II it required only seven years in the period between 1940 and 1950 for the attendance to double. For a period of five years more students were enrolled in the tax supported institutions than in the private endowed colleges. In 1950-51 the distribution of enrollment was almost fifty-fifty.

In order to understand fully the nature of the challenge and the opportunity which confront the churches of America today it is necessary to draw some rather sharp distinctions between the mission of the privately endowed four-year college of liberal arts and universities and the institutional objectives of the tax supported institution.

CONTRAST I—Education vs. Training.

The undergraduate college of liberal arts is primarily a center of human learning. Its mission is the education of the whole man in a full human environment. Its method is that of intimate intellectual, social and cultural exchange between wise men and small numbers of interested competent students. Its goal is the intellectual, spiritual, moral and social maturity of each individual with the consequent winning of freedom for each student through full development of certain innate capacities, the effective operation of which in society makes for free men and a free world. The colleges of liberal arts, therefore, have as their goal for the liberally educated man his preception of the centrality of sound value judgments to free meaningful living, his understanding of himself and his fellows in his own progressive realization. A man is free because he is sensitive and aware. He is free because he is perceptive and adaptable. He is free because he is intellectually honest. He is free because he has glimpsed the face and the form of freedom and yearned for what he saw.

Key words in the philosophy of education which dominates the liberal arts colleges are organic learning, integration of subject matter, individualization of institution growth in wisdom and related phases. In sharp contrast the undergraduate college of arts and sciences in the publicly supported university or college is the handmaiden of the professional schools and frequently involves curriculum specialization in terms of immediate vocational adjustment possible for the undergraduate student to attain. The emphasis is on secular specialization and on the mastery of certain basic cultural tools which are essential conditions for professional study. Training rather than education is the mission.

The student goes to classes and laboratories rather than to college. The academic environment is a montage of relatively unrelated and unintegrated areas of investigation and study. Social maturity, moral and spiritual growth are not considered as primary objects along with intellectual maturity or proficiency. Large classes, instruction through the use of immature graduate assistance, impersonal handling of the student problems and papers, and mass administration are the general order of performance. The individual student is only relatively important. Teaching of undergraduates is frequently looked upon as a nuisance by the faculty, and professional progress in the academic world is dependent not on greatness of teaching or personal influence, but on research proficiency and scholarly productivity.

CONTRAST II—Institutional Public Relations vs. Alma Mater.

The college of liberal arts and the privately endowed university cherish the idea of the beloved academic community where there is a fellowship of scholars and where the history of the institution in terms of its great traditions broods over the life of the campus modifying the morals of each generation of students and shaping the life of trustees, faculty, administration and student body. Alma Mater is more than a sentimental phrase, it is a spiritual reality. Homecoming and Commencement are pilgrimage times for alumni, not merely a holiday with a football game and a binge at the nearest roadhouse. Here on some quiet campus the returning alumnus remembers the moment of glory of love first.

In this gray stone and moss covered ivy building he found the makings of his soul. Here in this quiet, time-stained chapel he came face to face with "the awful reality of God." The publicly supported institution by its very nature can build nothing of this type of experience into the matrix of life of the student. Fraternity and sorority are more important objects of loyalty than the university; fellow students of the class more significant conditioners of intellectual and moral values than faculty or administration; laboratories and classrooms places where they got a grade of C or better.

CONTRAST III—Character vs. Competence.

More than 80 per cent of the students who attend a liberal arts col-

(Continued on page 13.)

Church Women at Work

With Emphasis on Missions

MRS. F. C. LESTER, Editor

840 Sunset Avenue, Asheboro, N. C.

A Christmas Message from Japan

Dear Friends of mine across the waters:

Greetings at this Christmas Season!

Since I last sent Christmas greetings, I have traveled miles, by thousands. It was in March I left my brother's on the way across the country. In Chicago and in Rockford, and later in Los Angeles and in the nearby town of Claremont, I met friends of mine and of Kobe College, and we talked a mile a minute of old times and of the future.

I was hurrying back to Kobe, to be there on the campus before the new school year had started, and before the Stoves departed. And because I was in a hurry, I had to forego many pleasures, especially those of meeting old friends scattered far across the country.

To say "Good-bye" to Grace and Mary was not easy, I can tell you; and not a day passes at Kobe College that I do not miss them. I now am the senior missionary; two and twenty years I have been here! This fall I was glad to welcome Mrs. Roberts, an "old-timer" and a very lovely person. She has lifted burdens off me, for she knows quite well the language and is now our housekeeper; she also teaches in the college. Since she arrived, we are seven: Florence Freiheit, Florence Otis, Joan Littlejohn and Constance Buell, Leona Burr and Mrs. Roberts, and "Yours truly" make just seven. Margaret Dow is on the campus, living in a little cottage.

All last summer I stayed on the campus for several reasons. We had school for many students who were low in marks in English. Then I was joyfully expecting my sisier and her "spouse" from Cornell, on their way to warm Manila. In Yokohama I first met them, then brought them down to Kobe College. Heetic days of quick sight-seeing before their freighter left the harbor kept us going late and early. All too soon their trip was over, though they had not seen much of Nippon. I am planning now to join them. Spending Christmas with loved ones is a privilege seldom granted.

In my teaching in the High School I find great satisfaction. All the teachers there of English are using for their source material literature that is really Christian. I am teaching hymns and stories; and Joan is teaching English Bible as a subject in the classroom. All are teaching Christian lessons. And we find that our girls are improving too in their knowledge of English. Every Friday, in the morning, we have an English worship service, led most often by the students

Once Joan used the tape recorder in a play of "Shadow Pictures" showing Ruth, the Moabitess. Our tape recorder is most useful; recordings made of students' speeches, and songs recorded for the class room. Stories, too, can be recorded, and when a teacher must be absent, she can so record her lesson that the students may then hear her.

To our churches near Chicago, who gave us such a useful servant, all of us are very grateful.

Recently there was a meeting of the many missionaries of the United Church of Nippon. In a little inn we gathered for fellowship and inspiration. Sprawled upon the floor, we listened and took part in worship service. But our knees and legs were tortured from being bent in curious fashion. For our meals we ate queer dishes: Octopus, raw fish, et cetera.

My little church is making progress. The members now seem very eager to serve in some way for their Master. They are planning soon to build a parsonage. Recently they held a bazaar, and crowds came in to buy their foodstuff. They are also selling pictures to my friends in far "Beikoku" (which, translated, means America).

Now, let me wish you Merry Christmas. May the New Year see you prosper in all ways that really matter! Good-bye, Friends, perhaps till next year.

Lovingly,

ANGIE.

* * * * *

No rule of success will work if you won't.—A. W. Noll.

Report of Treasurer of the North Carolina Woman's Conference

Quarter ending December 15, 1952

RECEIPTS.

Woman's Societies.

Albemarle	$ 40.75
Amelia	16.00
Apple's Chapel	17.25
Asheboro	77.45
Asheville	80.00
Auburn	7.70
Belew Creek	51.08
Berea	25.00
Bethel	25.00
Beulah	11.63
Beverly Hills	26.25
Burlington	434.97
Carolina	12.00
Chapel Hill	66.25
Church of Wide Fellowship	40.00
Concord	6.25
Damascus	27.50
Durham	117.65
Elon College	249.97
Erskine Memorial	37.50
Eutaw Community Church	6.50
Flint Hill (R)	8.75
Fuller's Chapel	15.00
First Church, Greensboro	203.85
Palm Street, Greensboro	62.65
Hank's Chapel	98.16
Happy Home	40.00
Haw River	28.75
Hebron, Virginia	10.00
Henderson	76.00
High Point	31.50
Hines' Chapel	130.00
Hopedale	16.70
Ingram, Virginia	52.80
Lakeview	17.05
Liberty, N. C.	10.00
Liberty, Vance	92.00
Liberty, Virginia	22.00
Long's Chapel	18.80
Monticello	90.00
Mount Auburn	66.20
Mount Bethel	35.00
New Hope	55.47
New Lebanon	46.00
Oak Level	29.00
Pfafftown	27.00
Pleasant Grove, N. C. .	12.67
Pleasant Grove, Va. .	40.37
Pleasant Hill	21.55
Pleasant Ridge (G) ..	60.00
Pleasant Ridge (R) ...	52.34
Plymouth	18.50
Providence Memorial ..	28.00
Raleigh	78.00
Ramseur	31.60
Reidsville	355.13
Salem Chapel	67.00
Sanford	65.00
Shallow Ford	8.75
Shallow Well	77.16
Spoon's Chapel	11.25
Turner's Chapel	25.00
Union Grove	7.50
Union, N. C.	79.00
Union, Virginia	65.00
Wake Chapel	79.85
Winston-Salem	46.50
Yongsville	25.00

$ 3,914.55

Junior Societies.

Apple's Chapel	$ 5.41
Durham	13.32

(Continued on page 11.)

News of Elon College

PRESIDENT L. E. SMITH, Elon College, N. C.

The Time Has Come to Do Something Worthwhile

For years and years we have been waiting for an opportunity to do something worthwhile for our college. A time when not one person or a chosen few would have the opportunity to give support to our college. A time when not only those who could give as much as $100 to the college would be asked to contribute, but a time when everyone who could, would be given the opportunity and would be asked to give. Whatever he gave would be acceptable and appreciated.

That time has come. It is now here. The college stands in need and is urging you who will to come to its support. If you have thousands of dollars to give, that would certainly be acceptable and mean a great deal to the college. If you have hundreds to give, your gifts will be equally acceptable and appreciated. If you have only a few dollars to spare, the college stands to welcome you and to receive your contribution and pray God's blessings upon the gift and the giver.

Beginning on Sunday, January 18, it is the plan of the Convention and the hope of the college that every church will form a voluntary organization to carry information concerning the college to every member and to give each one an opportunity to make his contribution. Both the canvass and the giving are voluntary—nothing compulsory about it. The need of the college and the need of Christian education should be a sufficient compelling force for anyone to share his holdings that these needs might be met.

The needs are evident, plain and practical. We have only temporary dining facilities for our boarding students. The only dormitory accommodations that our college has to offer to your sons and daughters and the sons and daughters of others who come to our campus are antiquated and they should be replaced with modern dormitories and facilities. You know the desires and the requirements of present day high school graduates who have the opportunity to select their college. We must make our campus attractive to high school graduates and our facilities for boarding students not only acceptable but highly inviting.

The expense of operating the college today is five times what it was twenty years ago. Student tuition and fees are not twice as high as they were then. It would be unwise and unfortunate to increase student expenses in college sufficient to meet the cost of their education. Income from endowment and invested funds helps to make up the difference. These funds need to be substantially increased. The endowment should be increased that our college may be made more secure.

The time has come for church members, alumni, business, industry and friends to join hands and contributions that our college may be more adequately and acceptably equipped and be provided with the resources to improve its teaching staff, expand its curriculum and increase its services to the church, the state and society as a whole.

The opportunity is ours. May we, everyone, take advantage of it and do our share that our college may continue its high service to our church and to civilization.

* * * * *

What Is My Share?

No one likes to be forgotten or ignored. He may be a one talent man, but even so, he cherishes that talent and looks for an opportunity to develop and use it. When there is something to be done, he wants to do his part. When there is a fund to be raised, he wants to give his share. He just wants to be counted in on what is to be done.

I am a member of the church. I am an alumnus of Elon College. I am a friend of Christian higher education. I understand that these three groups are joining forces to raise a sizeable sum of money for Elon College, our college. I am not a wealthy person, but I do have some money, if only from day to day. I have an income from my labors or investments. I have my obligations to my family, my church, my community, but because of my relation to my church and my college, I have an obligation to my college. I am aware of this fact.

What I am trying to determine now is my share—the extent of my responsibility. Comparatively speaking, I can't give much, yet I must not persuade myself to give less than I should. This would be unfortunate for me, for it would annoy me rather than please me with satisfaction. If I give my full share, the blessings of the Almighty will be mine. When I shall have given my full share, I shall be blessed with a good conscience, ever increasing satisfaction, and unending joy.

I am indebted to those in charge of this campaign who have given me this opportunity to share with them in this necessary and commendable undertaking. I intend to give and do my share.

* * * * *

Apportionment Giving

Nineteen-fifty-three is here. We turn a new leaf and write at the top of the page our first receipts for the college from our Sunday schools and churches.

At the beginning, we express appreciation for these receipts and for the generous support that our church constituency will give to our college throughout this year. We know the college, we know its needs, we know our responsibility and our ability, and in faith and trust, we give our support to the institution that serves us by providing vision, information, opportunity and a trained leadership that our church may move forward in that vision with the hope of rendering a service that shall not fail or perish from our people.

Eastern N. C. Conference:
Plymouth	$ 9.75
Fayetteville	2.00
Eastern Va. Conference:
South Norfolk	$ 133.00
Windsor	25.00
N. C. and Va. Conference:
Bethel	$ 5.00
Greensboro, First	33.75
Pleasant Grove	10.46
Lakeview	11.00
Western N. C. Conference:
Shady Grove	$ 6.00
Virginia Valley Conference:
Antioch S. S.	$ 8.64
New Hope S.S.	7.00

251.60

Total Received $ 251.60

Government is not reason, it is not eloquence—it is force! Like fire, it is a dangerous servant and a fearful master; never for a moment should it be left to irresponsible action.

—George Washington.

Combining Business with Pleasure . . .

SENIOR CLASS OFFICERS

The General Council Acts

The General Council of Congregational Christian Churches, in session at Claremont, California, in June, took action concerning our church-related colleges—colleges with Congregational Christian origin, who are laboring faithfully to provide trained leadership for our churches. Our church-related colleges have been a source of trained leadership for pulpit and pew over the past years.

The following resolutions were passed unanimously. These resolutions are commended to the churches and friends of the Southern Convention. We are confident that our churches will be glad to accept these resolutions and govern themselves accordingly:

“WHEREAS the colleges associated with the Congregational Christian churches have provided a continuous supply of candidates for the Christian ministry, have produced an appreciable proportion of the lay leadership of our churches, and have in other ways established themselves as a vital factor in the American educational system, and

“WHEREAS many of our church-related colleges are experiencing serious financial difficulties due to increased costs and reduced income, and

“WHEREAS most of our colleges must depend upon interested individuals and churches for voluntary assistance in their time of financial need,

“BE IT RESOLVED that the General Council recognize the responsibility of the fellowship to give financial support to the colleges related to the Congregational Christian churches, and

“BE IT RESOLVED that the General Council recommends to the individual churches of the denomination that they include in their annual benevolence budgets a generous contribution to some chosen church-related college or colleges, and

“BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that copies of this resolution be sent to the several State Superintendents, with the recommendation that it be distributed to the scribes of associations and the clerks of churches within the several conferences.”

All this is a step forward, and will doubtless lead to others, which will make it possible for the colleges not only to survive, but also to advance in an age, when the tax-supported institutions of higher learning tend to eliminate most of the privately endowed colleges and universities.

Elon Offers Opportunities for Leadership . . .

JUNIOR CLASS OFFICERS

Elon College Will Award Eight Free Scholarships

Elon College will award eight free scholarships with a total value of $4,400 as a special feature of the college's fourth annual "High School Day," which will be observed on the Elon campus on Wednesday, February 11.

In making this announcement Dr. Smith stated that the scholarship awards will be divided equally between boys and girls, who will compete in a contest for the titles of "King" and "Queen" of the day's festivities.

Announcements of the annual "High School Day" program have gone out to more than 200 high schools in North Carolina and Virginia, with invitations to each high school to send all members of its senior class as Elon's guests for the day and to enter one boy and one girl in the contest for the eight scholarship awards.

Along with the invitations to the high schools have gone details of the scholarship contest, which will feature competition in the fields of scholarship, personality, poise and appearance. Top awards for both boys and girls will be $1,000 scholarships to apply on a four-year course at Elon College. Smaller scholarships in the amounts of $600, $400 and $200 will go to boys and girls who place second, third and fourth in their respective divisions.

The scholarship contest is a new feature of "High School Day" at Elon, an event which has attracted wide attention in previous years. Senior classes from more than sixty high schools were present on the cam-

(Continued on page 13.)

Our Church's Responsibility for the Success of the College Campaign

By I. H. VICKERY.

The church's responsibility for this worthwhile campaign is very great. It is the job of each layman as well as each minister. The church could suffer, and will suffer in the future, if it does not support and do its part now.

Where will our future ministers be trained? Where will our sons and daughters get their college education in a Christian environment? It has been stated that in the next fifty years that our Christian colleges will be a thing of the past if something isn't done. Now is the time to help save our college.

One plan which the church could use is for each member to put aside three cents a day for five years. This

(Continued on page 13.)

A Page for Our Children

MRS. R. L. HOUSE, Editor, Southern Pines, N. C.

Do you read the newspaper? Hope you do, and not just the comic strips. What's new these days?

One interesting item has been about Dr. Albert Schweitzer, the living saint of Africa, who is equally famous as missionary, physician and organist. A picture showed him with Dr. Edouard Nies-Berger, who is a great French organist. He is now in Africa helping Dr. Schweitzer write a book about Bach. It will be a music book with fingering, pedaling and such for the organ. Nies-Berger is soon coming to our country to give concerts to raise money for the project. He is an interesting person, too. Once (before the war) he lived in Richmond and was organist at the Centenary Methodist Church. The minister of the church at that time is the uncle of Mrs. Richard Jackson. My, how people and news travel around the world and home again. Dr. and Mrs. Sloan, at our own Elon College, visited Dr. Schweitzer last summer. Grown-ups have a saying: "Small world." Dr. Nies-Berger's Cherub Choir sang in the back balcony and was a joy to hear.

Next week, the big news will be the inauguration of the President. On our return trip from California we stopped in a little Kansas town to visit the Eisenhower home. He was not born there, but in Texas, but he lived there from his early childhood. The townspeople are quite proud that they had the foresight to buy and preserve the home, for he will be the only American president whose home has been preserved from the first.

A charming young lady showed us through, and what we saw gave us evidence of the Eisenhower character. The house was cluttered, but tidy, small, but not too little. The piano sat in the corner of the dining room for lack of space elsewhere, and it was there the mother of the Eisenhower boys gave them music lessons. The big bathroom must have been a busy place on Saturday nights, and a lot of suds must have squished behind ears and between toes.

A lovely collection of plates was given to Mrs. Eisenhower late in her life by her general-son, and they bespeak the love he held for her.

Although she died in 1948, her African violets still bloom on the window shelf, bespeaking the love and affection of the townfolks who preserved the home.

And then, there was the family Bible, big, worn and showing signs of real use. All these things told a great deal about America's new President.

* * * * *

"Paths to Learning"

By HELEN GREGG GREEN.

Issued by the National Kindergarten Association.

Billy looked up from play. "Mom-mie, why do we grow?" Intelligent inquisitiveness is noticeable even before little ones began talking; it causes the disposition to "get into everything." This eagerness to know is of great worth. The child's desire to handle objects is normal and though it must be limited, it should not be discouraged.

A collection of lusterware pitchers attracts my neighbor's toddler. At the first "Want to touch!" the mother takes the would-be explorer on her lap, holds one of the pitchers with noticeable care, and lets her small daughter feel it and smooth it very gently for several minutes. Then she puts it back with the others—all well out of reach of childish hands—and gives the little one something else of interest.

And in this home there is a recreation room where the children of all ages may give vent to normal curiosity without endangering anything of value. Here are worn dolls, cut-out books, games, sturdy toys, nails, hammers, blocks, a saw, paintboxes, a small juvenile library, some of Daddy's old shirts—to be worn backwards when painting. There is a small secondhand billiard table, a radio, hobby collections, and a chest of drawers made by Tom, the eldest son. On each drawer, which is separated by a partition, is the name of the owner. There are also three inexpensive desks, a low desk for the children and two roll-top desks for their parents. Thus the youngest generation learns that these roll-top desks belong exclusively to Mother and Father.

While it is true that in the growing-up process curiosity should not be stifled, let us remember that worth-while lessons are never learned by permitting papers to be taken from drawers and not returned in order, or pages to be torn from books, or by allowing meddling with another person's possessions.

Collecting appeals to most children at some period, and that is a good time to impress upon them the benefit of orderliness. My cousin's twins collect storybook dolls—a hobby that is bringing real lasting pleasure. "There are eighty-eight in the collection! We have twenty-two already," said Sandra, proudly, as she and her sister displayed their "family."

Since objects mean more than words, it is better whenever possible, to have questions answered through demonstration. Teddy had inquired, "Why doesn't the busbell ring?" His sister explained, "It rings only when someone pulls the cord." When approaching the street where they wished to get off, Mary lifted Teddy, and he, wide-eyed, pulled the cord.

Older children's questions will usually be more difficult to answer. "The book of Knowledge" should be in every home that can afford it, and L. Thorndike's "Century Junior Dictionary" will prove itself of great value.

Young people need experiences gained from getting close to nature; from carefully planned trips, fixedly limited in scope, to museums; from places of historical interest, they taking with them their own previously prepared questions to answer; from sharing good music; from opportunities for broader human relations by developing interests in school organizations, community and civic projects. There is no surer path toward emotional maturity than that traveled by taking an active part in 4-H clubs, boy and girl scout organizations, and Sunday school and church activities. One group of young folks of our acquaintance gain self-reliance by teaching swimming in a hospital for the emotionally ill, some others by entertaining and instructing in a hospital for crippled children. Sad to state, many parents have the mistaken idea that their sons and daughters are not really gaining knowledge unless the lessons are derived specifically from academic subjects. They forget that the way their boys and girls are living now are the lessons whose influence will be lifelong.

The Orphanage

J. G. TRUITT, Superintendent

Dear Friends:

Thanks for this final report for 1952. We surpassed our goal, as you can see from the report. The final total is $61,249.49. God has heard our prayers and I am most sincerely thankful. It is a tremendous responsibility to furnish everything for 80 boys and girls—and especially when we have to operate on a "hand to mouth" basis. Other orphanages will begin this year spending what they collected last year. We shall have to trust to what we collect each month. That makes it a very real proposition. So you can see why I would be so very thankful for your help. Bills had accumulated enough to make your end-of-the-year contributions absolutely necessary.

Our report is long; therefore I have made my letter short. Best wishes to everyone of you for a prosperous and peaceful new year.

JOHN G. TRUITT,
Superintendent.

Report for December 31, 1952.

Commodities for the Week.

Carolina Cong. Christian Church, Fruit and Candy.

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

Amount brought forward $26,190.75

Eastern N. C. Conference:

*Christian Light	$ 58.00
Damascus	9.00
Ebenezer	58.30
Fuller's Chapel	37.00
Hayes Chapel, S. S. .	25.00
Henderson	109.00
*Lebanon	16.00
*Moore Union	161.06
Mt. Auburn, Christmas gifts	7.30
Mt. Auburn	24.50
*Mt. Herman	10.50
New Elam	14.96
*Piney Plain	52.05
*Pleasant Hill	37.25
Pleasant Union	70.00
Southern Pines S. S. .	21.05
Wake Chapel	49.30

760.27

Eastern Va. Conference:

Antioch	$ 7.65
*Berea (Nans)	25.65
*Berea (Norfolk)	100.00
Bethlehem (Nans), S. S.	27.27
Dendron	19.75
Liberty Springs S. S. .	20.00
Mt. Carmel S. S.	15.00
Norfolk, Bay View ..	55.03
Norfolk, First	30.00
Rosemont	100.00
Portsmouth, First, S. S.	8.44
Richmond, First	25.00

Richmond, First	163.75
*Spring Hill S. S.	5.22
South Norfolk	400.00
*Union (Surry)	75.00
*Waverly	126.45

1,204.21

N. C. and Va. Conference:

Apple's Chapel	$ 87.55
Berea	30.00
Bethel	22.71
Burlington S. S.	50.00
Burlington	100.00
*Concord	32.61
Hebron S. S.	20.00
Mt. Zion	6.00
Reidsville S. S.	57.00
*Tryon, Ersk. Mem. ..	25.00

430.87

Western N. C. Conference:

Bennett	$ 10.00
Big Oak S. S.	13.77
Brown's Chapel S. S. .	5.00
Hank's Chapel	60.00
*Mt. Pleasant	33.05
Pleasant Hill	491.91

613.73

Virginia Valley Conference:

Dry Run S. S.	$ 10.00
Linville	5.00
Mt. Olivet (G), S. S. .	3.00
Newport S. S.	24.11
*Winchester	27.00
Winchester S. S.	8.34

77.45

Total $ 3,086.53

Grand total $29,277.28

Special Offerings.

Amount brought forward	$31,314.71
Webb Durham & family, Greensboro, N. C. .	50.00
Mrs. T. L. Chandler, Durham, N. C.	5.00
Gibsonville Development Co., Inc.	25.00
M. G. Newell Co., Inc., Greensboro, N. C. ...	25.00
A. V. Beck, Burlington, N. C.	10.00
Ladies' & Men's Bible Class for Barbara Jean Arnold, Winchester Church	7.00
C. A. Hall, Burlington, N. C.	10.00
Dr. W. H. Stratford, Winter Park, Florida	25.00
Charles S. Thompson, Mingo Junction, Ohio	1.00
"From Jett, Norfolk, Va."	1.00
Mr. & Mrs. C. S. Clayton, Charlotte, N. C. .	200.00
Eugene Neu, Charlotte, N. C.	5.00
Mr. & Mrs. E. H. Rawles, Suffolk, Va.	10.00
I. H. Vickery, Henderson, N. C.	100.00
Louise Seeley Bible Cl., Wakefield Church for Richard Bridges	10.00
Mr. & Mrs. Ralph Foushee, Sanford, N. C. .	10.00
Mrs. Vallie M. Byrd, Durham, N. C.	25.00
Miss Bertha Iseley, New Bern, N. C.	5.00

D. M. Davidson, Gibsonville, N. C.	25.00
J. C. Helmer, Newport News, Va.	25.00
New Hope Christian S. S., Roanoke, Ala. ...	2.58
Special Gifts	80.89

657.47

Grand total $31,972.18

Total for the week $ 3,744.00

Total for the year $61,249.49

*Thanksgiving Offerings.

REPORT OF TREASURER.

(Continued from page 6.)

Greensboro-First	12.08
Henderson	10.90
Union, N. C.	11.00

52.71

Cradle Roll.

Apple's Chapel	$ 8.75
Durham	4.86
Greensboro-First	12.08
Reidsville	20.00

45.69

Miscellaneous.

Conference Offering-Apple's Chapel	86.10
--	-------

Total Receipts $ 4,099.05

DISBURSEMENTS.

N. C. Council of Church Women	$ 35.00
United Church Women-World Community Day Offerings	18.65
Literature for New Societies	20.46
Literature for Council for Social Action ...	2.25
Mimeograph Work	14.14
Expense of Board Meeting	17.10

$ 107.60

Mrs. W. V. Leathers, Tr.

For:

Thank Offering	$2,066.47
Life Memberships ..	50.00
Memorials	40.00
Christian Orphanage .	12.00
Ellis Island	15.00
The Rachanyapuram School for Village Girls	10.90
Foreign Missions, Special Fund	105.00
Home Missions, Special Fund	20.00
Missions, General Fund	1,672.08

$ 3,991.45

Total Disbursements $ 4,099.05

Respectfully submitted,

SUSIE D. ALLEN,
Treasurer.

You can't any more talk intelligently about something you don't know about than you can come back from some place you haven't been.—
Frank Jeter.

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE, D. D.

"Jesus Teaches Humility and Forgiveness"

LESSON IV—JANUARY 25, 1953.

MEMORY VERSE: "Verily I say unto you, Except ye turn, and become as little children, ye shall in no wise enter into the kingdom of heaven."

—Matthew 18:3.

LESSONS Matthew 18:14, 15-22.

DEVOTIONAL READING: I Peter 2:19-25.

Are you keeping in mind that the lessons for this quarter are teachings on "The Christian Life" as embodied in the Gospel of Matthew? Today's lesson deals with two qualities of the Christian Life, Humility and Forgiveness. Without these qualities, one lacks the elemental qualities that make a man a true Christian. Jesus put a lot of emphasis upon them.

Humility.

The disciples still thought that Jesus was going to establish an earthly kingdom. They wondered what the chance was they had of getting a good position or appointment in it. In fact they had been discussing the matter as they walked along, and some heat had been generated, but not much light discovered. So they boldly asked him the question, "Who then is greatest in the kingdom of heaven?"

Acting on the principle that "one picture is worth a thousand words," "Jesus called to him a little child, and set him in the midst of them and said, Except ye turn and become as little children, ye shall in no wise enter into the kingdom of heaven." The disciples were going to have to do an "about face" in the matter. The spirit of jealousy, seeking pre-eminence, were far removed from the spirit of those who were members of the kingdom of heaven. Their thoughts and wishes must have a new direction. They must become as little children, they must have the spirit of humility, unworldliness, simplicity and teachableness, if they were to become members of the spiritual realm called the kingdom of heaven.

"Whosoever, therefore, shall humble himself as this little child, the same is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven" The highest rank in the kingdom belongs to the humble of heart. The more a man casts conceit, pride, obstinacy, self-seeking, ambition for first place away from him, the higher he rises in the ranks of the kingdom of God.

It should be noted that Jesus is not asking men to loathe themselves, to take a low estimate of themselves, to have a false sense of humility. It is significant that Jesus never called attention to any of his virtues or qualities of character except his humility. "I am meek and lowly in heart," he once said. Humility is a sign of strength, not of weakness. Some of the world's greatest men, and the world's strongest men have been humble men.

But even humility can become a snare if one becomes proud of it. Thus St. Jerome wrote, "Beware of the pride of humility."

Reconciliation.

"If thy brother sin against thee." What do folks so often, in deed usually do when somebody "gives them a raw deal," "plays a dirty trick on them," sins against them? Well, they get mad, sulk, spread the bad news all over the community, plan revenge, harbor resentment, "pay the fellow back in his own coin." But Jesus has another, and a better way. He suggests four steps in the process of reconciliation: First, "Go, show him his fault between thee and him alone." Take the initiative—that is hard; but as the injured party, take the initiative. Go quietly, humbly, prayerfully to the person who has done the wrong, and talk with him frankly about it. There is great wisdom in this suggestion. The very fact that you have come to the man is such a fine spirit that it may cause him to see his error and to confess his sin. "If he hear thee, thou hast gained a brother." A quarrel is a loss to both parties; a reconciliation is a gain to both. Many broken friendships and fellowships would have been preserved if folks had taken this first, simple, sound step.

Second, "If he hear thee not, take one or two more with thee, that at the mouth of two witnesses or of three every word shall be established." Suppose the fellow refuses the first overture, what then? Do not give him up. Take along two or three other folks, sincere, fair-minded, peace-loving folks, and discuss the matter with the other person in their presence. Let them hear both sides, let them serve as mediators. That might work, it often does work.

Third, "If he refuse to hear them, tell it unto the church." Do not broadcast the thing until you have exhausted every other legitimate means. And then, bring it to the attention of other Christians who are eager to effect reconciliation in the hope that enlightened public opinion and Christian sentiment may effect a change in the man. This course of procedure would be impracticable in a large and widely extended community, and could not be applied under our present conditions, but the principle still obtains.

Fourth, "And if he refuse to hear the church also, let him be unto thee as a Gentile and the publican." Suppose the fellow really is obstinate, suppose he refuses to listen either to personal appeal or public opinion, what then? Without endorsing the Jew's treatment of Gentiles and publicans, Jesus frankly says that such a man has forfeited his right as a member of the fellowship of believers. But even in this extreme case, charity will not regard the man as hopelessly lost, but will seek his salvation by prayer and entreaty.

There is an amazing and a disturbing amount of estrangement between members of the Church of Christ. And much, if not all of it could be resolved if folks would apply Christ's principles to their differences and disagreements.

Forgiveness.

"How oft shall my brother sin against me, and I forgive him, until seven times?" That was pretty liberal—to forgive a fellow seven times. But that was not enough. "Jesus saith unto him, I say unto thee, not simply seven times, but seventy times seven." He did not mean four hundred and ninety times. Jesus was saying that there are no boundary lines to forgiveness; it has no limits. It is not a matter of count but of charity. This is a hard rule, hard and humbling; but it is the law of the Christian life.

Based on "International Sunday School Lessons," copyrighted 1951 by Division of Christian Education, National Council of the Churches in the U. S. A.

CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN COLLEGES.

(Continued from page 5.)

lege during their freshman year claim that they are motivated to do so because of the hope that a college education will have economic vocational value. During four years this motivation gradually changes. By the senior year the majority of these students, while recognizing the practical value of an education in the world of economic affairs, have re-verbalized their reasons for undertaking this intellectual discipline. As seniors they say, "We crave an education for its own sake, for the power that it gives to individual living, for the enrichment of the mind, for the increased capacity which it produces for living in sympathy with fellowmen, for what it can contribute to the good life." Studies made in publicly supported institutions reveal that this change in attitude does not occur in more than a small percentage of students in time spent in the institution. In general, it appears that training tends to narrow the motivation, to give it more superficial value and meaning and to place a premium upon competence as such as a direct by-product of the training experienced.

CONTRAST IV—COMMITMENT vs. Competition.

In the liberal arts college, education becomes a civilization process in which the ethical, moral and social concern of the individual products, habits and attitudes of social and spiritual commitment are all important. It is the rare student graduating from such an institution who does not leave with a sense of commitment to a richer life for himself and his fellows, a social concern for a better society and a conscious moral responsibility proudly to bear himself as a responsible citizen for the sake of a good community. Results follow which are important. There is a greater stability in the marriages of men and women who graduate from Christian liberal arts colleges than from publicly supported undergraduate institutions. There is a larger percentage of graduates who participate actively in community affairs. There is a substantially greater number of these young people who immediately identify themselves with the churches and other social agencies in the community in which they live. There is a favorable record insofar as law violations resulting in fines and jail sentences. There is a greater frequency of public recognition for outstanding public service to the state and nation. There is greater likelihood of sufficient professional distinction as to justify placement in "Who's Who" or in other recognized directories such as Men of Science or Literature. All these outcomes and more are not accidental. They represent essentially the one result of the impact of Christian education vs. secular training on the spiritual life of men and women who are exposed to it.

There are those who attempt to belittle the importance of privately endowed higher education in this country who claim that it is a true infringement on the principle of the separation of the church and the state. There are those who believe that individual citizens no longer should have a concern about the kind of education that youth receive except as they are concerned about the quality of the governor of the state or the president of the country from which great political structure taxes for the support of education will be directed. There are those who believe that a minimum amount of "general education" is all that is required for citizenship and even this can be successfully produced in a secular frame of reference. There are those who seem to have no fear that education keeping under the dominance of the state would not become a propaganda agency used by self centered men in power for doctrinary purposes. Our forefathers knew better. They knew that the old wisdom of the Psalmist, "unless the Lord build the house they labor in vain who build it." It is significant not only for the home or the church but also for education and citizenship. Our American way of life got its power from religious and moral imperative. It produced a free society because of the central belief that people were sons and daughters of the Most High. They knew that citizenship was a sacrificial experience and that self-interest was a poor basis for the development of a beloved community. Basically they adhered unconsciously to a universal fact that education, if it is to be redemptive in one's life, must be religious education.

Through the long years, with varying degrees of faith, our churches have accepted the responsibility for the education of youth. Churches in our day that seek, for whatever reason, to rid themselves of this responsibility will be selling their birthright for a mess of pottage, or in a more colloquial expression, they will be killing the goose that lays the golden egg.

Never has the issue been so clear or so great or the time so demanding. The churches cry for leadership. The community calls for men and women of conscience. Our beloved country seeks redemption through a revival of character and integrity among its leaders. Our schools founded by our fathers cherished in a Christian tradition continue to serve as best they can knowing full well that their life will run out in sacrificial commitment and in memory of their service lost in the dust of passing time unless the churches in which they are rooted refertilize the soil of their own institutional life and supply again the rich nourishment of time toward the treasure which will make these colleges bloom again in power and beauty. The issue is clear, the challenge cannot be ignored. Today is the day for action. "To your tents, oh Israel!"

ELON TO AWARD FREE SCHOLARSHIPS.

(Continued from page 9.)

pus for the third annual event last year. An attractive program of entertainment is being planned for the high school visitors, to be climaxed when the seniors are guests that evening at the Elon-High Point varsity basketball game.

CHURCH'S RESPONSIBILITY FOR CAMPAIGN

(Continued from page 9.)

is not asking too much of anyone. There are many in our churches who could give from $25 to $500 a year for five years to help with the balance still due of $1,300.00 on the Two and One Half Million Dollar Campaign. Is the church going to fail to raise this balance?

Is this campaign the cross roads of the Christian denomination? Either we face our responsibility now, and complete this campaign or take the chance of becoming extinct as a denomination. Let's every member become earnest and sincere and put the campaign over in our Elon College period during January and February of 1953.

This means that ministers, laymen and every church members in our Southern Convention. We can make it a big success with God's help.

Ministerial Directory

Name and Address	Conference Membership	Churches Served during 1952-53, or Other Status
MINISTERS IN FULL STANDING
Allred, C. Fred, Rt. 1, Summerfield, N. C.	NCVA	Kallam Grove, Mt. Bethel, New Lebanon.
Andes, Mark W., Virgilina, Va.	NCVA	Hebron, Lebanon, Union (Va.)
Andes, William J., 627 S. Sunset Drive, Winston-Salem, N. C.	NCVA	Winston-Salem, Pfafftown.
Apple, J. Frank, 427 Rowland St., Henderson, N. C.	ENC	Henderson, Teacher.
*Bowden, Daniel J., Elon College, N. C.	NCVA	Dean, Elon College.
Bowers, Thurman F., Route 4, Box 132, Greensboro, N. C.	NCVA	Calvary (Greensboro), Happy Home.
Bozarth, Howard P., Elon College, N. C.	NCVA	Elon College Community.
Brady, E. Carl, Box 26, Robbins, N. C.	WNC	Niagara, Teacher.
Brickhouse, Ernest F., Gen. Del. Hopewell, Va.	EVA	Hopewell.
Brittle, R. E., Route 1, Suffolk, Va.	EVA	Bethlehem (N), Eure.
Britton, Thomas H., 1057 Leckie St., Portsmouth, Va.	EVA	Shelton Memorial.
*Brooks, Arthur C., Asheville Boys School, Asheville, N. C.	NCVA	Teacher and Chaplain.
Carter, Emory M., Youngsville, N. C.	ENC	Fuller's Chapel, Good Hope, Mt. Hermon, Pope's Chapel, Youngsville.
Clapp, Rosser Lee, Seagrove, N. C.	WNC	Ether, Seagrove, Shady Grove.
Clark, Ellis N., Windsor, Va.	EVA	Antioch, Isle of Wight, Mt. Carmel, Windsor.
*Coulter, Roy D., Winston-Salem, N. C.	VVA	Evangelical & Reformed Church.
Cox, H. Vance, Ramseur, N. C.	WNC	Brown's Chapel, New Center; Business.
*Crawford, Van T., Box 242, Coral Gables, Fla.	EVA
Crutchfield, Gaither C., Rout 4, Burlington, N. C.	NCVA	Bethlehem.
Crutchfield, Henry E., Route 1, Hickory, Va.	EVA	Berea (Great Bridge).
Dollar, Jesse H., Rt. 1, Suffolk, Va.	EVA	Liberty Spring.
Dollar, Melvin, 3509 Bainbridge Blvd., Norfolk 6, Va.	EVA	Rosemont.
*Eutsler, Fred B., 409 Prospect St., New Haven, Conn.	ENC	Student, Yale University.
Farrell, Earl T., Cypress Chapel, Va.	EVA	Cypress Chapel, Oak Grove
Farrell, W. Clay, Rt. 5, Sanford, N. C.	ENC	Auburn, Ebenezer, Garner (Hayes Chapel), Wentworth, Zion.
Fields, Clyde L., Hunterdale, Franklin, Va.	EVA	Union (Southampton).
*Fisher, Park W., Box 183, Sanford, N. C.	WNC	Retired.
Fogleman, James U., Route 6, Burlington, N. C.	WNC	Providence Chapel; Business.
*Forbes, Robert G., U. S. Air Force	EVA	Chaplain.
*Fuller, Walter B., 272 Franklin St., Harrisonburg, Va.	VVA	Business.
Galt, Ralph M., Rt. 1, New Market, Va.	VVA	Bethlehem, Concord, Palmyra, Wissler's Chapel, Wood's Chapel.
Granger, A. Lanson, Jr., 2308 Roanoke Ave., Newport News, Va. ..	EVA	Newport News.
Graves, John C., Burlington, N. C.	NCVA	Minister of Christian Education of First Church.
*Green, Thomas J., High Falls, N. C.	WNC	Retired.
Griffin, Johnson L., 1411 Fisherman's Rd., Norfolk, Va.	EVA	Bay View.
Grissom, Raymond T., Pittsboro, N. C.	ENC	Hank's Chapel, New Elam, Shiloh.
Grissom, William A., Rt. 1, Henderson, N. C.	ENC	Liberty (Vance).
Hardcastle, Howard S., Chuckatuck, Va.	EVA	Berea (Nanscomond), Oakland.
Harman, Henry V., High View, W. Va.	VVA	Timber Ridge, and Pastor-at-Large of Valley Conference.
Harrell, Stanley C., 1010 W. Markham Ave., Durham, N. C.	NCVA	Durham.
Helfenstein, Roy C., 3206 Grove Ave., Richmond 21, Va.	EVA	Richmond.
*Howard, Brittain J., 230 McCauley St., Chapel Hill, N. C.	ENC	Business.
House, Robert Lee, Box 62, Southern Pines, N. C.	ENC	Southern Pines, Hope Mills; Editor, The Christian Sun .
Humphries, Tucker G., 609 Montgomery St., Reidsville, N. C.	NCVA	Reidsville.
Hurdle, Allen L., Holland, Va.	NCVA	Holy Neck.
Jackson, Richard L., 232 McCauley St., Chapel Hill, N. C. ..	ENC	Chapel Hill.
Johnson, I. W., 201 Linden Ave., Suffolk, Va.	EVA	Retired, Pastor Emeritus, Berea (Nans.), Liberty Spring, Oakland, Pastor of Mt. Zion.
Johnson, J. Lee, Fuquay Springs, N. C.	ENC	Bethel.
*Jones, Elwood W., Homewood, Apartments, Baltimore 18, Md.	EVA	Retired.
*Key, Carl R., 1421 Ruffin St., Durham, N. C.	NCVA	Social Work (CROP).
Koon, Clyde O., Belew Creek, N. C.	NCVA	Belew Creek, Salem Chapel.
*Lankford, G. Otis, Elon College, N. C.	WNC	Retired.
Leebrick, Bland A., Route 3, Burlington, N. C.	NCVA	Carolina, Zion.
Lester, Flethcer C., 840 Sunset Ave., Asheboro, N. C.	WNC	Asheboro.
Lightbourne, James H., Jr., Holland, Va.	EVA	Holland.
Lindner, Kenneth M., 708 Pilot Ave., Fayetteville, N. C.	ENC	U. S. Army Chaplain.
Lowdermilk, B. H., Randleman, N. C.	WNC	Pleasant Union.
*Lucas, A. L., Route 3, Asheboro, N. C.	WNC	Business.
McCauley, Joseph E., Waverly, Va.	EVA	Centerville, New Lebanon, Spring Hill, Waverly, Teacher.
Madren, James W., Wakefield, Va.	EVA	Barrett's, Burton's Grove, Dendron, Wakefield.
Madren, Silas E., Elkton, Va.	VVA	Bethel, Mt. Olivet (R) Mt. Olivet (G).
Madren, Weldon T., Vernon Hill, Va.	NCVA	Ingram, Liberty (Va.), Pleasant Grove.
*Marr, S. Wade, Security Bank Bldg., Raleigh, N. C.	ENC	Business.
*Morgan, Wm. H., Appalachian State College, Boone, N. C.	NCVA	Teacher.
*Mueller, Robert C. H., Somers, Wisc.	NCVA	Congregational Church.
*Murchison, J. Victor, Winston-Salem, N. C.	EVA	Friends Church.
*Neese, J. L., Bradenton Trailer Park, Bradenton, Fla.	NCVA	Retired.
Neese, J. Everett, 6112, Granby St., Norfolk, Va.	EVA	Second Church.
*Newman, Nathaniel G., Windsor, Va.	EVA	Retired.
Newton, R. E., Rt. 3, Luray, Va.	VVA	Dry Run, Joppa, Leaksville, Mt. Lebanon, Newport.
O'Neill, Will B., Box 242, Sanford, N. C.	ENC	Sanford.
Parker, William L., The United Church, Raleigh, N. C.	ENC	United Church.
*Pearce, George A., Franklin, Va.	EVA	Business.
*Perkins, James C. 1922 Ward St., Durham, N. C.	NCVA	Student.
Petersen, Richard M., Rt. 2, Elon College, N. C.	NCVA	Shallow Ford.
*Phillips, Slade W., Dillon, S. C.	EVA	Business.
Pollard, Marvin A., Rt. 2r Liberty, N. C.	WNC	Pleasant Hill.
Powell, Elmore M., Box 395, Henderson, N. C.	ENC	Oak Level, Business.
Poythress, O. D., 1214 Guerriere St., South Norfolk 6, Va.	EVA	South Norfolk.
Presnell, Lacy M., Liberty, N. C.	WNC	Liberty, Business.
Pugh, John Q., Rt. 1, Asheboro, N. C.	WNC	Bennett, Business.

MINISTERIAL DIRECTORY—Continued

Ratzell, Frank E., 41 Larchmont Rd., Asheville, N. C.	NCVA	Asheville.
Register, Fred P., Box 206, Varina, N. C.	ENC	Lee's Chapel, Wake Chapel.
Register, Kenneth D., Rt. 2, Burlington, N. C.	NCVA	Union (N. C.)
Reynolds, Ferris E., Elon College, N. C.	NCVA	Graham, Elon College Faculty.
Roberts, Jesse M., Windsor, Va.	EVA	Union (Surry), Business.
*Robinson, Allyn P.	ENC	Conference of Christians and Jews.
Robinson, Henry E., 401 Church St., Burlington, N. C.	NCVA	First Church.
Rohart, Emerson J., Linville, Va.	VVA	Antioch, Beulah, Linville, Mayland, New Hope.
*Scott, William T., Elon College, N. C.	EVA	Superintendent, Southern Convention.
*Sloan, W. W., Elon College, N. C.	NCVA	Elon College Faculty.
*Smith, H. Shelton, 4 Manchester Apts., 813 2nd St., Durham, N. C.	NCVA	Duke University Faculty.
*Smith, J. Howard, Arnold College, Milford, Conn.	NCVA	Teacher.
*Smith, Leon Edgar, Elon College, N. C.	EVA	President, Elon College.
Smith, William P., 117 Greenway Dr., Portsmouth, Va.	EVA	First Church.
Snyder, Walstein W., 721 N. Church St., Burlington, N. C.	NCVA	Beverly Hills.
Sorrell, Matthew T., 162 Third Ave., Danville, Va.	NCVA	Danville.
*Steininger, Wm. R., 2122 Cooper St., Raleigh, N. C.	ENC	Chaplain.
Stevens, W. Millard, 301 W. 34th St., Norfolk, Va.	EVA	Christian Temple.
Sutton, Thomas D., Rt. 3, Burlington, N. C.	NCVA	Bethel, Concord, Mt. Zion.
Tally, George M., Rt. 3, Sanford, N. C.	ENC	Christian Chapel, Christian Light, Lebanon, Mt. Pleasant, Moore Union, Piney Plain, Pleasant Hill.
Tally, R. Eugene, 1508 Elm Ave., Portsmouth, Va.	EVA	Elm Avenue.
*Thelin, Mary Frances, Randolph-Macon College, Lynchburg, Va. ..	NCVA	Teacher, Randolph-Macon College.
Thomas, Charles Cecil, 129 Hardy Ave., Norfolk, Va.	EVA	First Church.
†Thomas, James E., Rig, W. Va.	VVA	Oak Dale Christian Church.
*Truitt, John G., Elon College, N. C.	EVA	Superintendent, Christian Orphanage.
Veazey, Guy H., 911 Tryon St., High Point, N. C.	WNC	High Point.
Vore, Duane N., Suffolk, Va.	EVA	Suffolk.
Wallace, Carl E., Rt. 1, Louisburg, N. C.	ENC	Beulah, New Hope.
*Weed, Earl D., 12 Kingwood St., Asheville, N. C.	NCVA	Retired.
*Wehrenberg, E. L., Woodsdale, N. C.	NCVA	Teacher, Indian School.
Welch, Mack V., 1612 Buffalo St., Greensboro, N. C.	NCVA	Palm Street.
White, Orville H., Tryon, N. C.	NCVA	Congregational Church of Christ.
Whitten, Robert A., Winchester, Va.	VVA	Winchester.
*Williamson, Robert Lee, 2316 Fontaine Ave., Charlottesville, Va. ..	VVA	Retired.
Wiseman, William E., 315 N. Edgeworth St., Greensboro, N. C. ..	NCVA	Greensboro First, Pleasant Ridge.
Wolfe, William R., Fancy Gap, Va.	NCVA	Carroll County Mission.
Wolfe, (Mrs.) Alida B., Fancy Gap, Va.	NCVA	Carroll County Mission.
Wood, William L., Jonesboro Heights, Sanford, N. C.	ENC	Shallow Well, Turner's Chapel.
*Woodruff, Robert T., Box 372, Jacksonville, Fla.	NCVA	Business.
Wright, T. Fred, Sunbury, N. C.	EVA	Damascus.

MINISTERS WITH LOCAL CONFERENCE ORDINATION STANDING.

Bowers, John T., Rt. 4, Box 567, Greensboro, N. C.	WNC	Smithwood.
Burgess, Lunnie W., Ramseur, N. C.	WNC	Center Grove.
Clawson, Edgar J., Rt. 5, Burlington, N. C.	NCVA	Long's Chapel; Student.
Fogleman, Martin L., Rt. 2, Liberty, N. C.	WNC	Needham's Grove, Pleasant Cross.
Gallo, John, Rt. 2, Disputanta, Va.	EVA	Bethlehem (Disputanta).
Lackey, John Robert, Elon College, N. C.	NCVA	Apple's Chapel; Student Duke Divinity School.
*Nash, Durant D., Box 791, Hopewell, Va.	EVA	Business.
Rice, G. Julius, Rt. 1, McLeansville, N. C.	NCVA	Hines Chapel, Monticello; Divinity Student.
Rich, William A., 209 Broadway, Durham, N. C.	ENC	Antioch, Bethlehem, Mt. Auburn, Mt. Carmel, Mt. Gilead; Divinity School.
Stanley, J. Lester, RFD, Elon College, N. C.	NCVA	Gibsonville, Business.
Taylor, Morris E., 3200 Shore Drive, Norfolk, Va.	EVA	Little Creek.

LICENTIATES

*Bage, Joseph S., Elon College, N. C.	EVA	Student, Elon College.
Bray, Winfred, RFD, Asheboro, N. C.	WNC	Antioch (R), Randleman, Union Grove; Student, Elon College.
*Brill, Walton E., Lehigh, W. Va.	VVA	Business.
Brown, Avery, Rt. 1, Seagrove, N. C.	WNC
*Chang, Timothy S., c/o Poultry Dept., Ohio State U., Columbus, Ohio	NCVA	Student, Ohio State University.
*Gleason, H. Allan Jr., 55 Elizabeth St., Hartford 5, Conn.	EVA	Faculty, Kennedy School of Missions.
Johnson, Herman L., Elon College, N. C.	NCVA	Berea; Student, Elon College.
*Matthews, A. Warren, 55 Elizabeth St., Hartford, Conn.	NCVA	Student, Hartford Seminary.
McLean, Robert A., Buies Creek, N. C.	ENC	Supply.
*Painter, Page, Elon College, N. C.	VVA	Student, Elon College.
*Scott, Wm. T., Jr., Cornwall, Conn.	NCVA	Congregational Church; Student Yale Divinity School.
Simmons, Lewis Bill, Rt. 1, Benson, N. C.	WNC	Grace's Chapel, Pleasant Grove.
*Tolly, Wm. P., 55 Elizabeth St., Hartford, Conn.	NCVA	Student, Hartford Seminary.
Truitt, John G., Jr., Elon College, N. C.	EVA	Lakeview; Student, Elon College.
*Twiddy, C. Baxter, Jr., Elon College, N. C.	EVA
*Underwood, I. T., Yanceville, N. C.	NCVA	Business.
*Varga, Paul, 55 Elizabeth St., Hartford 5, Conn.	EVA	Student, Hartford Seminary.
Vestal, Max, Elon College, N. C.	WNC	Pleasant Ridge, Spoon's Chapel; Student, Elon College.

MEMBERS OF THE BIBLICAL CLASS

*Ayscue, Reuben, Elon College, N. C.	EVA	Student, Elon College.
*Barron, George, Elon College, N. C.	EVA	Student, Elon College.
*Brady, Gail, Bennett, N. C.	WNC
*Cooke, Richard, Elon College, N. C.	EVA	Student, Elon College.
*Dixon, Carl J., Benson, N. C.	ENC
*Harper, Douglas, Albemarle, N. C.	WNC
Littikin, John P., Elon College, N. C.	ENC	Supply at Amelia and Plymouth; Student, Elon College.
*Madren, Thomas W., Elon College, N. C.	VVA	Student, Elon College.
Mason, Randall C., Box 4064 Duke Sta., Durham, N. C.	NJ	Mebane; Student Duke University.
*Nelson, Sammy, Elon College, N. C.	NCVA	Student, Elon College.
Thomas, Gene H., 1603 W. Davis St., Burlington, N. C.	WNC	Supply at Ramseur; Student, Elon College.
Wrenn, Fred H. RFD, Burlington, N. C.	NCVA	Supply at Zion; Student, Elon College.
*Young, Curtis, Elon College, N. C.	NCVA	Student, Elon College.

THE SOURCE of CHURCH LEADERSHIP

The Protestant church in our land today directs the affairs of some 775 two- and four-year colleges "dedicated to the interpretation of culture in terms of the general truths of the Christian religion." These schools, simply defined as a "group of Christian scholars who come together to share their knowledge with students," are allies of the Church.

What do these colleges do for the Church?

To begin with, the Christian college gives the Church the large majority of her leadership. Some twenty years ago, Dr. Edward Everett Rall, then president of North Central College in Naperville, Illinois, said: "The Church must maintain colleges and seminaries if it is itself to survive. From college and seminary come the leaders of the Church of the future. Ministers and missionaries, Christian teachers and other leaders are recruited and trained in the Christian college. Statistics show that eight out of every ten preachers come from the church schools. . . ."

The day is here, however, when we no longer speak of "full time Christian service" and mean by it a minister or a missionary. The Christian college today gives to the church people in positions of leadership in the professions, in business, in the world of labor in government and in the home, who realize that they have a "call" equally with the minister.

Next, the church college helps youth of the Church to acquire intellectual sanctions for their faith. The Church today, more than ever, needs people thus trained. This faith which the college helps to make intellectually respectable is not the narrow shibboleth of sect or group. It is a faith which gives us men and women who have a vision of that order which Jesus called the Kingdom of God, people who are solemnly committed through whatever service they render to make that order a reality.

In the third place, the church related college gives to the Church men and women of distinction in the field of liberal culture. Today men say that scientific and technical knowledge are the features of our cultural life. It is heartening, therefore, to note the very present trend away from an over-plus of utilitarian electives and a return to the full-rounded discipline and culture of the mind. . . . The college prevents the over-emphasis of the material and economic aspects of education and gives to the Church men and women who have been led to see unique opportunities for service.

Fourthly, the college gives to the Church people who are stout-hearted in social behavior and moral principal. President Edward A. Fitzpatrick, of Mount Mary College in Milwaukee, said that the church-related college in its nature "directs its activities and its influence always to the character of the student; it feels that whatever other service it may render, it should produce an elite who will serve both God and country." Our colleges do not as such add to the tangible products of the state. But they produce the leadership in social behavior which both the state and the Church desperately need. By this means the range of the service which the Church can and must render to the community is vastly increased: the preaching of the Gospel, the reconciliation of the masses; the bringing of peace into industry; the moralization of business; the extirpation of social vice; the purification of politics and the simplification of life.

Lastly, the college gives to the Church men and women who live Christ's law of service. In the spirit of this universal law, the colleges give to the Church men and women of faith, who are informed, who have learned the business of living, men and women in whom the springs of personality have been released. The college takes the best raw material the Church can furnish, increases its value many times, and returns it to the Church in a constant and life-giving stream of intelligent faith and trained and consecrated leadership.

—National Council Outlook.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY. 1956.
Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches.

The CHRISTIAN SUN

ORGAN OF THE SOUTHERN CONVENTION OF CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES

In Essentials Unity — In Non-Essentials, Liberty, — In All Things, Charity

VOLUME CV

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, JANUARY 22, 1953

NUMBER 4

Dr L E Smith

IN MEMORIAM

1906 — ROBERT LEE HOUSE — 1953

Christian Minister and Editor

The Christian Sun family has suffered an immeasurable loss in the passing of our editor. To us it seems that his life's paragraph in the long story of man's search for God was much too short; yet the impact of his thought, the love of his heart and the power of his message have been far-reaching and tremendously effective. The leadership he gave has not and will not cease. Thoughts begun and practices urged by his great spirit will bear their fruit throughout our churches in the years before us. We mourn his passing, but we give thanks to God for the rich privilege of the sharing of the life of Robert Lee House in these years he spent as pastor, as editor and as friend.

News Flashes

Dr. H. S. Hardeastle is the speaker for the Surry County Woman's Club at Claremont, Va., this evening (Thursday), at 7 o'clock.

Next week's issue of THE SUN will be devoted primarily to the Department of Evangelism of the Convention. Dr. Helfenstein is chairman of the Convention committee.

Do not forget the Laymen's Rally to be held at Elon College on Sunday, February 8, at 2 p. m. Be sure to read the matter concerning same in next week's SUN.

The Mid-Winter Meetings of the General Council of Congregational Christian Churches are scheduled to be held the last of this week at Cleveland Ohio. Attending these meetings from the Southern Convention will be: Mrs. W. E. Wisseman, Rev. H. E. Robinson, Mrs. Cecil Whitlock, Mrs. Wm. T. Scott, Miss Pattie Lee Coghill and Supt. Scott. Dr. S. C. Harrell is a member of the Executive Committee, but is not planning to attend the meetings.

A series of Evangelism Rallies will be held by the churches of the North Carolina and Virginia Conference during the week beginning February 1. The general theme will be, "Evangelism Will Build the Church." The Regional meetings will be held as follows: Sunday, at Palm Street Church, Greensboro; Monday, at Union, Virginia, Va.; Tuesday, at Reidsville; Wednesday, at Gibsonville; Thursday, at Winston-Salem; and Friday at Haw River. All meetings will be from 7:30 to 9:00 p. m. An excellent program has been arranged, and all laymen and women are urged to attend the meeting of their region. A more detailed announcement will be given next week.

The "Winchester Convocation" is an annual occasion. It is being held this year, January 25-28, the first meeting being held at 7:45 Sunday evening. The other meetings begin at 9:30 a. m., running throughout the day and evening. All meetings will be at the Congregational Christian Church, Rev. R. A. Whitten, pastor. The speakers will be Dr. Arnold Nash, head of the Department of Religion, the University of North Carolina; Dr. B. M. Kelly, professor of Old Testament at Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, and Dr. L. D. Johnson, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Danville, Virginia.

Robert Lee House

Duane Vore, the chairman of the Board of Publications, has expressed on the first page, the feeling of the entire official family of THE CHRISTIAN SUN. It is not for us to question the wisdom and goodness of our Heavenly Father in taking to himself one who has so unstintingly given of himself to the cause of God's Kingdom here on earth.

Robert Lee House gave his whole soul to any task he had to do. He asked no quarter and gave none when once he had made up his mind that the cause he espoused was right.

The writer worked with him shoulder to shoulder for twelve years, and during that time, so it seems to us, his supreme purpose was to serve to the best of his ability the will of his Master.

As our readers know, Lee had suffered a severed heart attack several months ago. He seemed, however, to be making a valliant return to the line of duty and service. We were in Southern Pines on Friday after Christmas and talked with him of his plans both for his church and his paper. We had talked together twice during the past week regarding the current issue of THE SUN. It is as he had planned it, except of course the changes that his going has caused.

His going has left a void in our better qualified, will in a later issue

* * *

Funeral services are being held today at 2 o'clock at the Church of which he was the pastor in Southern Pines, and another service will be held on Friday afternoon in the First Church of Newport News. Others, better qualified, will in a later issue give further details.

J. T. K.

Do you know that truth is life and falsehood spiritual death? that beauty is joy and ugliness sin? that justice is the condition of wellbeing and happiness, while injustice of any kind is defeat? In a universe of uncertainties these values alone are certain.—Sydney Bruce Snow.

The Responsibility and Opportunity of Local Pastors in Elon's Present Campaign

By ROY C. HELFENSTEIN.

[This article is reprinted by request.]

Without any question, Elon's present Campaign is the greatest, the most important, the most far-reaching in significance and, therefore, the most challenging of all the campaigns that have been launched in behalf of "Our College in the Southland" during the illustrious history of the institution.

Indeed, the destiny of this beloved college may now be hanging in the balance, and its future resting upon the response that the pastors of our churches in the Southern Convention make to the challenge of the campaign. The pastors are undeniably "the key men" in every such campaign; and this campaign very likely offers every local pastor of the Southern Convention the greatest opportunity he will ever have to render service to Elon College and to the denomination of which it is such a vital factor.

The goal set reflects the Christian vision and the master statesmanship of those responsible for directing the welfare of our college. To our pastors and our local churches in the Southern Convention, these servants of God and of society present in the challenge of this campaign a golden opportunity to insure the perpetuity of the college which has been such a blessing to the hundreds of students who down through the years have received their training for service to God and man from this fountain of learning.

As goes Elon, so indeed will go the churches of the Southern Convention. And every pledge made in this campaign will be a vote for the continuance of Elon and for the continuance of the Southern Convention. These two enterprises are "one and inseparable."

As a fitting memorial to the founders of Elon, and to the faithful promoters of Elon's interests, every pastor within the bounds of the Southern Convention is honor bound to make a worthy pledge to the campaign and to declare his hearty endorsement of the objectives sought. He can then pray with effect for the success of the campaign.

The photograph of Mr. House was furnished us by the Dementi Studio of Richmond. We express our appreciation for their cooperation and promptness.

Southern Convention Office

WM. T. SCOTT, Supt., Elon College, N. C.

“LOOK ON US”
A Summary of and Meditation on the 1951-52 Conference Year
Statistics

By WM. T. SCOTT, Superintendent

The 1951-52 Conference Year is history. Our successes and failures as individual Christians and as a Church in the Southern Convention are in the hands of our eternal judge. Church statistics never tell the whole story, but they may indicate a trend and a concern for the things of Jesus Christ.

In many respect the records as compiled for the Christian Annual now in the hands of the printer that during the past Conference Year we have made some commendable progress. Will the Lord of the harvest “look on us” and pronounce “Well done, thou good and faithful servants”? Let us look on ourselves and our churches in love and gratitude and then press on in a new consecration to use our efforts, great or small in a greater measure of dedication during 1953.

Our Churches

We have 199 churches in the Convention as follows: Valley Virginia Conference, 21; Eastern Virginia, 43; Eastern North Carolina, 48; Western North Carolina, 39; North Carolina & Virginia, 48. Of this number two new churches were added during the past year. Lakeview, located half-way between Burlington and Union Ridge on the Union Ridge highway. This church was organized in July, 1952, by the Mission Board and under the leadership of John G. Truitt, Jr., a senior ministerial student at Elon College. Their first building is nearing completion, and their future is most promising. Oakdale Christian Church in West Virginia was admitted to the Virginia Valley Conference. Oakdale Church is located at Rig, West Virginia, near Moorefield, and about 40 miles from Timber Ridge Church. This church is affiliated with the old West Virginia Christian Conference which consists of several Christian churches which have been more or less inactive since the merger in 1931. The Valley Conference gave associate membership to Oakdale and its pastor, Rev. James E.

Thomas, with the hope of strengthening the West Virginia Conference through fellowship.

Our Membership

The records show that 195 of our 199 churches reporting have 34,584 members, the largest number yet reported, with 25,062 Sunday school members in 190 Sunday schools.

Our Evangelism

Our evangelism record is still far from what it should be, but we did show a gain during the year! Our churches reported 982 members received on Confession of Faith out of a total of 2,123 members received. The number of members lost was 1,637 (many being lost on revisions of rolls). But 61 churches reported no members received on Confession of Faith, and 45 churches reported receiving none by Confession or by Letter of transfer. “Look on us”—world! What of our Christian witness in an area with increasing population and where thousands dwell in our midst without Jesus Christ in their hearts and lives?

Our Finances

“Look on us”—financially—and we are apt to rejoice. Just how much our good financial record bears true witness of a good Christian Stewardship we cannot tell. We had an excellent year in Apportionment “payments” to the Conferences and enterprises of the church. One hundred forty-six churches “paid in full” all

(Continued on page 15.)

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr
A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom as represented by the Congregational Christian Churches.

Our Principles

1. The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
2. Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
3. The Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
4. Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and church membership.
5. The right of private judgment and liberty of conscience is a privilege that should be accorded to and exercised by all.

EditorRobert Lee House
Managing EditorJohn T. Kernodle

Departmental Editors—Convention, Wm. T. Scott; Missions, F. C. Lester; Women's Work, Mrs. F. C. Lester; Young People's Work, Max Vestal; Children, Mrs. R. L. House; Sunday School Lesson, H. S. Hardestal.

Institutional Representatives—Elon College, L. E. Smith; The Christian Orphanage, John G. Truitt.

Board of Publications—Duane Vore, Chairman, S. T. Holland, Secretary; R. C. Helfenstein, S. E. Madren, W. W. Snyder, G. D. Coleclough, Treasurer, ex officio.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Year$3.00
Two Years5.00

Published by the Board of Publications of The Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches, Inc. Printed every Thursday except the last in June and December by Central Publishing Co., Inc., Richmond, Va.

Entered as second-class matter at the Post Office at Richmond Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

General contributions should be addressed to the editor at Southern Pines, N. C., and should reach him by Wednesday of the week preceding date of publication.

Departmental material should be sent to the proper departmental editor, at the address shown on their page.

All other material and business communications except regarding subscriptions should be sent to the Office of Publication, 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond 19, Va.

The Christian Sun Subscription Blank

Subscription Price: 1 year, $3.00; 2 years, $5.00

Date.....195...

Dr. Wm. T. Scott, Supt.,
Elon College, N. C.

Enclosed find $..... for which please send The Christian Sun
() 1 year, () 2 years — () New Subscription, () Renewal.

To

Address

Who is a member of Church

() Renew, () Enter my own subscription for () 1 year, () 2 years.

My Name

My Address

From the EDITOR'S Desk

Our Stake in Christian Education

Two articles in this issue should prove to be of more than passing interest to our readers. Dr. Harry Thomas Stock, one of the pioneers in the modern Christian Education movement, surveys the educational task of the church and appraises its present program. It is heartening to note the gains that have been made. It is reassuring to note how vastly the program has been amplified. He has a word in season for all who are concerned with the plight of Christian higher education: "The best defense of these church-related colleges is to be frankly Christian; but they need the searching mind and the strong arm and the open hand of the church." How true this statement! The unfinished task lies ahead. We have the tools for that task.

The 1952 Founder's Day message of Dr. Hardcastle recreates for us an important era in Elon's history. The institution has never strayed from its original mooring, the Church. We rejoice in the record of all who have lengthened the cords and strengthened the stakes at Elon. Sooner or later, however, unless some visible and impressive reminder is established, individual merits and demerits lose their sharpness and tend to merge their uniqueness in the vast totality of a growing institution.

William Allen Harper was a dominant figure in denominational and interdenominational circles during the past generation. Will he be known in the next generation? The inspiration of such a dynamic personality should not be left to the mercy of oblivion. Should we make more speeches and write more editorials? Should we erect an impressive monument at his grave to perpetuate his memory? Those who revere his memory and who treasure his heritage should create or erect an appropriate memorial on the scene of his labors, the Elon campus.

Said one alumnus: "I would make a real sacrifice to make possible the kind of memorial he deserves." Perhaps there are likeminded individuals. Builder's Day should be the inevitable conclusion of Founder's Day.

Economics and Religion

January 18-24 (this is it) is widely observed as Church and Economic Life Week. We are asked as Christians to consider our occupational goals and practices. This comes close home to each of us.

Fortunately, the theory or doctrine of vocation has come in for searching analysis recently. A conference on the Church and Economic Life was held at Detroit in 1950, and this pronouncement was issued: "The church must proclaim anew the Christian concept of vocation. All work must be seen in terms of its spiritual significance as helping to make possible fullness of life for all men everywhere. . . . When a man thinks of himself as a priest of God, his work becomes a sacred calling."

A similar meeting was held in Buffalo, and formulated this pertinent statement: "The answer (to a world in upheaval) forthcoming from Christians must be a vigorous faith in God related to their daily living. This means to live as Christians in our daily work. . . . (This) demands that the work which people do be examined searchingly in the light of Christian faith. It calls for a security of the motives which control people as lawyers and doctors, businessmen and teachers, employers and employees, farmers and housewives. It necessitates a new conception of the place of the Christian churches in the occupations of their lay members."

The person who does not go to his own work-day job with a sense of divine mission has forfeited his birthright. He needs either a change of occupation or a new appreciation of his taken-for-granted occupation.

Religion and life are inseparable. Economics and religion are not incompatible. Christians must be Christian materialists or not Christians at all.

For instance, what is the Christian significance of the fact that during 1952 new and expanding industry brought to North Carolina an investment of over eighty million dollars, and jobs totalling 21,500? What are the stewardship implications? How does the scale of production from arms to zippers fit into the Kingdom of God?

OUR GENERAL SECRETARY FOR CHRISTIAN EDUCATION,
DR. HARRY THOMAS STOCK, ANALYZES THE PROBLEMS AND TRACES THREE DECADES OF PROGRESS IN . . .

The Educational Task of the Church

When I began my work in religious education, the Sunday school movement had just completed a century of service in America. It, more than any other Protestant organization, had been led and maintained by laymen. During the first quarter of the twentieth century, well-trained professionals began to take hold. This was partly because the old leadership was moving along in deep ruts, and partly because a few pioneers knew that the church had something to learn from researches in psychology, and pedagogy.

The new name, "church school," was a symbol of the basic change that was taking place. Religious education was no longer to be a fringe activity of a few faithful people; rather, it was to be the church itself fulfilling one of its main functions. There was to be a real school, with a curriculum, and with definite educational goals for each stage of growth. Its activity was to deal with something more than the memorization of miscellaneous Bible verses, lecturing the young with pious patter about adult matters which they could not understand, and trying to get right answers to the question, "Who were Abigail, Ahaz and Adlai?"

The methods to be employed must be educationally sound; the purpose must be evangelistic, that of helping persons to grow steadily in Christian experience. Men and women, trained in graduate schools, began to devote their lives to a new Christian vocation, that of the director of religious education.

As many laymen as ever were needed, but they had to make difficult mental adjustments. It was necessary to understand more clearly the life-changing purposes of church school work, and to accept and develop methods which would help to produce discernable Christian growth.

A New Day in Christian Education.

Within one generation, that adjustment has been well made in a large fraction of our churches. There is still resistance in some quarters,

But the church school is no longer struggling for existence. Church rooms are crowded to capacity, new educational buildings are being erected, in many cases two or three one-hour sessions are held every Sunday to accommodate those who want to attend. As important as the numerical increase, is the fact that in many communities, what goes on Sunday morning is of as high a standard as that which the public school offers on weekdays. Adults who have not been in a Sunday school for thirty years ought to visit one of our wide-awake church schools. Many would be shocked to find so few vestiges of the old process remaining. Others would be delighted that the classes have become genuine schools of Christian fellowship and learning.

HARRY T. STOCK

Thoughtful people are pleased but not satisfied. They know that Christians cannot be grown in a one-hour-a-week session. The answer, clearly, is more time and a more Christian environment for more hours each week. As a result, the church summer now includes intensive vacation schools, junior camps, young people's conferences, work camps and laboratory schools for church school workers.

In an ever increasing number of communities, weekday religious teaching, on time released by the public schools, makes possible added knowledge of the Bible and of Christian truth and responsibility. And within the last ten years, we have begun to realize anew that the most potent teacher is still the home, that all that may be done in and by the church is less than the family may do for growing children. So, henceforth we shall have a church-and-home program.

Progress in Youth Work.

Thirty years ago, our organizations for teen-age and older youth were living at a dying rate. The fare offered them by national agencies was thin and tasteless. This was the period when young people, in great numbers began to crowd our high schools and to range in many fields of knowledge unexplored by previous generations. But the church was slow to understand what was happening. Providentially, the first summer conference experiments were made about 1920. Certainly, during the first years, the adult leaders of these conferences learned as much as the young people did.

Although the church was slow to learn, it did learn. And as a result, despite the succession of turbulent social upheavals of these decades, we now have a lively and earnest Christian youth movement. Teen-agers bring their minds to church and use them. Many of them demand that Biblical truth be interpreted in terms of specific present realities. When their questions are convincingly answered, many of them commit themselves to life's highest purposes more unreservedly than their Christian parents ever have done. They are not looking forward to the time when they will be important to the church; they are conscious of being important to the church now. Through their Christ's Work Days, for example, they labor at all kinds of hard jobs, in order to earn money to contribute to the world mission of the Christian Church.

Problems in Higher Education.

The progress in Christian education at the children's and youth levels is marked. An equally encouraging report cannot be given regarding the status of Christian higher education. Our church-related colleges are in a time of crisis. They are so absorbed by their desperate struggle for survival that they are not always able to make a crystal clear demonstration of why they must survive.

(Continued on page 9.)

A Former Student's Tribute to

WILLIAM ALLEN HARPER

Fourth President of Elon College

By HOWARD S. HARDCASTLE

Founder's Day Speaker

Elon College is largely the lengthened shadow of William Allen Harper. For two decades he was her leader. It was he who chartered her course, crystallized her ideals, formulated her policies, presented her claims, administered her affairs, bore her burdens, and by the inspiration of his life and his consecration fused the members of the Faculty into a family group which helped her to grow into a great institution of higher education, and gave reality to the slogan, "Christian character first and always at Elon."

For twenty years, in season and out of season—and there really was no out of season for Elon under Dr. Harper's leadership—this man gave himself unstintedly and unreservedly for Elon College and the cause of Christian Education. With boundless and seemingly tireless energy, far-sightedness, contagious enthusiasm, and undiscourageable good will, he served with something of the spirit of

1880 — WILLIAM ALLEN HARPER — 1942

The following paragraph was written by Dr. Harper more than thirty years ago. If it was true then, how much greater the truth today: "There would today be no universal education for the masses nor higher education for the leaders of the nation, had not the Church in America pioneered in education. But religion belongs in education not simply by inherent right and necessity. Education without religion is a curse to a free people. Education without Christian character produces Kaiser Wilhelms on thrones, skeptics in professors' chairs, enemies of humanity in private life, and world wars in international relations. The educational system that leaves religion out is poison gas, and no mask can be invented to withstand its insidious destruction. Education and religion, God has fitly joined them together, and what he hath united, let no man or set of men essay to put asunder."

the crusader. Indeed he was a crusader. Life was urgent for him. He believed that Elon stood for something that the modern world needed, and he did everything in his power to multiply her assets and to enlarge her influence. He loved her, and he gave himself freely for her.

His Philosophy of Education

When Dr. Harper became president of Elon he had several plans already in his mind for enlarging the college, both from the standpoint of physical plant and of financial strength, and for extending the influence of Elon to ever broadening circles. But before we mention these things briefly, a word ought to be said concerning the philosophy of education which Dr. Harper had, and which was the central feature and the dynamic force in his whole educational career. Reduced to simple terms, he believed that education, all true education, had 4 R's instead of three. Education in its highest and best sense was not only a matter of Reading and Riting and Rithmetic, to use an old slogan, but also of Religion. True education was of the heart as well as of the hands and the head. During his long career as an educator, Dr. Harper wrote many books and hundreds of articles on education and especially on religious education, and he treated it in many ways and from many angles, but always as the basis of his writings, and against the background of his work, was his basic philosophy and abiding conviction of the importance of religion in education. He was among the first of modern teachers and writers to advance this conception of education, and he gave himself with the zeal of a crusader to proclaiming this gospel. And he tried to give this conception concreteness by the curriculum, the personnel of the Faculty, and the atmosphere of the College itself. The first building on any American College campus devoted entirely to Christian Education was erected during his administration. But this building was but the tangible expression of many intangible factors in the religious training and religious development of the students at Elon.

Versatile Leader

As the writer of Hebrews says, "And what shall I say more?" For the time would fail me to tell of all the offices which this man held, of all the committees on which he served,

(Continued on page 10.)

News of Elon College

PRESIDENT L. E. SMITH, Elon College, N. C.

The Church Has the Answer

A concerted and persistent effort has been made to acquaint the church (the Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches) with the needs of Elon College and the campaign to secure funds to meet these needs. The date set for the campaign to begin was January 18. Pending the outcome of the campaign interested persons are posing many questions. When will the campaign begin? When will it end? Do you think it will succeed? Is it possible to raise an additional $1,300,000 for the College? How much do you think will be secured? Will our people give to Elon? Are you asking for pledges? Will our people sign a pledge for the College?

These questions and many others are being asked and will continue to be asked. They are vital questions. The answers given will determine quite largely the future of Elon College. All who are really interested in the College will be hoping and praying that the answers to these questions will be favorable and will spell success for our united effort in behalf of our College.

The church, our church in the Southern Convention, has the answer. As goes the local church, so goes the campaign. As goes the campaign, so goes the College. As goes the College, so goes the church. The pastor of the local church is the spokesman, the voice of leadership for his people. If the pastor does nothing about the campaign, it is a pretty safe conclusion that his church as a whole will do but little about it. There may be a few interested members of his church who will make some contribution to the College in this campaign but the chances of a complete success in his church are exceedingly slim.

Here are two answers from two individuals in different congregations. These answers are revealing.

First, in a conference one, who is an official in his local church and in the denomination, said, "I can't see it—it simply can't be done—you may get it, but it will have to come from some other source."

The other said, "$2,500,000 for the College from our entire membership in the Southern Convention—if everyone will do his share it can be done. That would be less than $10 each annually for five years. We should do that. We certainly could and I think we will."

The difference in these two individuals—both are members of the church and both are greatly interested in the church—is that the pastor of the first individual had done nothing about the campaign. He had made no announcement in his church about it, had not called to the attention of his people the importance and necessity of his church doing its share, and that his church would do its share if every individual member would do his. The pastor of the second individual had manifested his interest in the College and the campaign, had spoken to his people privately and publicly calling attention to the necessity of his church doing its share and of every individual member doing his share.

As a rule, this is true in the local church about every question that confronts it. I realize that a pastor cannot be responsible for his church and what his church would do, but if he has a cause on his heart and takes that cause earnestly to the hearts of his people, there may not be a universal response but there will be a response that will be revealing and satisfying.

The local church has the answer. It is the local church's opportunity to answer the question vital to this campaign by earnest and complete co-operation between pastor and people. The church will certainly do its share to the extent of its ability. It is essential that this campaign succeed. I know that every minister and every local church will do his and her best to make the united efforts in behalf of the College a complete success.

* * * * *

The Two and One Half Million Dollar Campaign

Sunday, January 18, was set as the date for the launching of the new phase of the campaign. This was the week when all churches in our Convention were supposed to launch a program to contact every individual member with information and appeal to give assistance to the campaign which is for the benefit of our College. I trust that every church and congregation is now engaging in this effort. It is inspirational to know that when one church is working on an undertaking of this character that every other church in the Convention is working on the same thing at the same time. I trust that this is true in our Convention.

If every individual member of the Southern Convention and every alumnus of the College and friend of the College could be approached during the months of February and March to give assistance to the College through this organization, there would be no question about the total results. It isn't entirely a question as to how much money we will give any more than it is how much work we will give, how much time we are willing to devote to the campaign.

If, at any time during the months of February and March, any local church desires assistance either on Sunday or the week days, if that congregation will make its wishes known someone will be sent on request to give the assistance desired. The College wishes simply to put itself at the disposal of the church in this all-out effort in behalf of our building program.

* * * * *

Appreciation

Dr. John G. Truitt, Superintendent of our Orphanage, prepares and mails each month a message to a large number of the members of our church. In his current message, he calls attention to the needs of our College and the campaign now in progress to raise funds with which to meet the needs. He urges the people to contribute to the support of our College.

I would like to take this opportunity to express through the columns of THE CHRISTIAN SUN, our church paper, the College's and my personal appreciation of this fine expression in the interest of our College which is an expression in the interest of the total program of our church. Our institution, boards, committees, commissions, and all should be united in an effort to meet the total needs of our church at home and abroad. It is a joy and a privilege to lend a helping hand to every interest of the Church.

Apportionment Giving

This column is in interest of Elon College. Its purpose is to acquaint the readers of THE CHRISTIAN SUN (Continued on page 11.)

The Head of Elon's Department of Religion Speaks on . . .

GOD'S WATCHMEN

By DR. FERRIS E. REYNOLDS

Introduction.

If you stand eight or ten miles away from Pilot Mountain, it looks like the turret on a child's tug-boat, but the nearer you get to the mountain, however, the larger it appears. That is the way with my assignment to speak to this Conference Session concerning the work of the ministry. The nearer I have come to the task, the larger it appears to be. To be sure, a great many things might be said upon this supremely important theme, but how—how can they be said with something of the force which they deserve? Considering this question, I realized the need for a figure of speech which might serve to gather together some of the most telling features of the minister's life and work. Where could such a figure be found? In imagination I hurried through a number of New Testament scenes—Antioch, Corinth, Laodocia, and Athens. Interviews with Paul and Barnabas, Timothy, and Peter were delightful. Several engaging suggestions were made, but none of them seemed quite to fill my need. Evening was drawing down her shades when at last I approached the Holy City of ancient Judah: the hill of Zion immortalized by seer and sage. I paused for a moment in full view of that majestic symbol of God's new creation standing upon a path hallowed by faithful pilgrims of myriad generations. There silhouetted against the ramparts of the compact city, I saw my figure. He had seen me long before I detected the outlines of his manly features. For he was the watchman on the wall doing sentinel duty for the people of God. But, why had I taken this excursion to ancient Jerusalem? The tip came from Hosea preaching to the people of Samaria. "The prophet is God's Watchman," he confessed. What is more, Ezekiel, under the spell of this figure of the watchman had been summoned to his work of restoration. In a voice which he recognized to be none other than the voice of God, he had heard these mighty words of ordination, "Son of Man, I appoint you a watchman to Israel; whenever you hear a word from me, you must give them warning." Both Jeremiah and Isaiah heard a similar divine word uttered in the figure of the watchman on the wall. But, it was Habakkuk, that fearless prophet of the inquiring mind, who clothed the figure of Israel's watchmen in garments that make me sure that he was the one for whom I was seeking. Listen to his ringing words, "On my watchtower I will stand at my post upon the turret to see what God will say to me."

I. Watchmen on the Walls of Zion.

Even as that described God's prophetic ministers in centuries past, it does so today.

DR. FERRIS E. REYNOLDS

The watchman occupied a special position. Sometimes he took his stand in a tower or turret. Always he kept himself where he could see what went on inside as well as outside the wall. The minister's position in the community is an elevated one. Some men resent this fact and protest against it. By trying to be what is called regular fellows, they seek to register their protest. Congregations, likewise, are sometimes hostile to the special position occupied by the minister. Let me illustrate what I mean by a simple fable. Satan had tried repeatedly to invade a congregation watched over by a certain vigilant minister. Several especially attractive prospects for his unholy enterprise were present in that group. But, God's watchman was always on the job. At last, near his wit's end, Satan fell upon a strategy which turned the trick. Dressed in the resplendent costume of an angel from heaven, the prince of demons began to operate the church mimeograph. Alas, God's watchman was caught off his guard. He was too much of a gentleman to permit the lovely creature to do that sort of work. Whereupon, he traded his place in the watchtower for a place beside the machine. As soon as he became thoroughly busied with the new assignment, Satan had a field day among the unguarded members of the congregation.

Out of the Edinburg Conference, a few years ago came a watch word which has been quoted with great profit throughout the length and breadth of Christendom, "Let the Church be the Church!" To this I would like to add a sequel. "Let the minister be a minister" — God's Watchman; not an errand boy; not a lubricator of organization machinery, or a promoter of social scenes. A lot of worthy things need to be done in a community. Where is the Church that cannot use a good Jack of all trades? I would not belittle any of these needful services. But, let God's Watchman occupy that special position among his people to which he has been called!

Now, this position is not without its peculiar dangers. Who is there to watch the watchman? The very nature of his creative work calls for ample leisure. It is not leisure to do as he wants, but to exercise the wings of his creative power. But, when he is in the study, who is to know whether he reads from Little Bo Peep or the 23rd Psalm?

Further, there is an everpresent temptation to exploit this special position held by God's Watchman. Once this bit of practical advice was whispered in my ear: "If you want the traffic officers to leave you alone, put a clergy sign on your car and wear a clerical collar."

God's watchmen on the wall may get very lonely. That fact is difficult for many persons to appreciate. Ministers are with people all the time; why should they be lonely? Because the minister's relationship to his people is an outgoing relationship. He gives encouragement. He supplies enthusiasm and spiritual warmth. But, his life is not beyond the reach of misfortune and sorrow. With the monster called discouragement he wrestles day and night. To whom may he turn as others turn to their pastor?

(Continued on page 13.)

Church Women at Work

With Emphasis on Missions

MRS. F. C. LESTER, Editor

840 Sunset Avenue, Asheboro, N. C.

Program for Presenting Life Membership or Memorial

By MRS. E. G. MIDDLETON,
Eastern Virginia Superintendent.

Hymn—"Jesus Calls Us."

Scripture—John 14:1-5, 12-13.

Meditation—I wonder if many of you once had a very vague idea about eternal life and what the term, "living forever," meant. As young people, we perhaps accepted these with other teachings which we reckoned were too deep for us to fathom. Then something happened. Someone near and dear to us, perhaps our mother, passed away, and our thoughts began to take this shape in the following form: "She can't be gone, for all the things she did for us live on. The simple nursery rhymes, Bible stories and tender admonitions she gave, still live within us. The little simple nursery rhymes, Bible stories and tender admonitions she gave, still live within us. The little church she helped to build and the mission stations she believed in and contributed to live on and grow."

Perhaps we paused to remember a beloved minister or Sunday school teacher who lives on in the lives of those who came under their guidance. No, they can't be dead, for the things they lived and taught still live on!

Again this year, we have the privilege of helping our loved ones live on by giving a Memorial or a Life Membership for them. The money will be used for Franklin Center, so that the people who have had so little opportunity may try to better the lot of their own race. Truly, they too are our brothers. I'm sure the Master would say, "Well done."

Presentation of Life Membership or Memorial.

Prayer—Dear Father, May we, thy children, live on as shining examples to those who may follow us in the way. Teach us the joy of sacrificial giving and the reward that comes from a life lived for others.

Keep us ever near to thee and bless the work of our hands, that it may ever be acceptable to thee. Amen.
Closing Hymn—"Blest Be the Tie That Binds."

* * * * *

Mission Film-Strips Available

"Ho Washte" (The Good Voice) and "African Journey" are now available in the Southern Convention office. "Ho Washte" is the story of the Indians in the Fort Berthold Mission, North Dakota, and "African Journey" is the story of our African mission work. The film-strips are ready for use by women's missionary groups, young people and other missionary groups. Please address all inquiries to Miss Ruth Dunn, Box 336, Elon College, N. C. These film-strips require a 35mm film-strip projector and record player.

THE EDUCATIONAL TASK OF THE CHURCH.

(Continued from page 5.)

Some are fighting a discouraging defensive battle. Others know that the best defense is to provide living evidence of Christian higher education which will speak more convincingly than verbal arguments.

They are in competition with large tax-supported universities, which offer free or low tuition—universities which are giant industries engaged in assembly-line mass production of educated people, sometimes superficially educated people. They have no effective way of combating the aim of the federal government to establish a nation-wide chain of community junior colleges which would drain the supply of freshmen and sophomores from the liberal arts colleges. All the comfort they received from a President's Commission which wants Washington to determine the educational policy for America, was a half-sympathetic expression of regret that many of our old colleges would disappear.

Our college presidents know that the paid leadership of strong national educational associations advocate one national system of education, including schools from the elementary through the collegiate levels, infused by its own secular theories and pampered by a beneficent and omniscient federal department of education.

We have seen great colleges, founded by church people, renounce the purposes for which these institutions were brought into being. In recent years, these institutions were almost orphaned financially by the spiritual descendants of the founders. Now, that these colleges have made their renunciation, donors have increased and the angels are not necessarily those who sit in heavenly places. Is the way out for our beleaguered colleges that of accepting the blueprint to general education prepared by a committee of the first college founded by Congregational Puritans, a blueprint which finds no important place for religion within an institution that serves a cosmopolitan student body?

The Sunday church school has survived because it has had a new vision of its function and striving to fulfill its mission. It might have died had it gone on the defensive and wept about its impending doom. This is the time for the colleges—and the churches to see clearly their distinctive function in the life of our society. The best defense of the colleges is to be frankly Christian. But they need the searching mind, the strong arm and the open hand of the churches, too. The new partnership which seems to be in the process of being fashioned, within our denomination, may be one long step toward common and mutual service. But if ecumenicity means anything, it should have meaning within America as well as outside our boundaries. If Christian higher education is to be the saving force in American life that it can be and ought to be, we shall have to face the plain facts of life. One of these facts is that few colleges are denominational in constituency, management or range of influence. Here is a problem and opportunity that we Congregational Christians must think and work through to a degree, by ourselves. But is it not for such tasks that overreach denominational ability and responsibility, that the new National Council of Churches has been brought into being?

Joseph Fort Newton once said that people were lonely "because they build walls instead of bridges." Just what are you building as you go about your daily task?

A Page for Our Children

MRS. R. L. HOUSE, Editor, Southern Pines, N. C.

MISSIONARY STORY HOUR. Compiled by Nina Millen. $2.00. Friendship Press, 257 Fourth Avenue, New York 10, N. Y.

This new book is a must for teachers, leaders of Junior Missionary groups, and a help to ministers and parents. There is a paper-back edition for $1.50 but for permanent use the cloth back is much to be preferred.

Designed for ages 6-12 there is a happy collection of missionary stories that are just right in length, material and information.

Some of the authors are Grace McGavran, Jessie Eleanor Moore, Alice Geer Kelsey and Jeanette Perkins Brown. And there are many others. From the names given you will be able to tell the caliber of the stories given.

There are stories about Africa, China, India, Japan, Korea, and Latin America. Some are seasonal, some are about a special theme and others have a wide scope of detail.

We have tested the stories (some of them) on a group of junior age (about 15 in number) and they were well received and greatly enjoyed. In fact they asked, "Can't we have another?" which is, after all, the test of any children's book.

Add this one to your library for it will be a timeless classic in its field.

* * * * *

"Every Child a Parent's Problem"

By LELIA MUNSELL.

Issued by the National Kindergarten Association.

Helen and her sister, Blanch, were quite different. Helen—overflowing with self-confidence—was always attempting something new. One evening, after she had been especially trying all day, her mother said, "Helen, you have been so troublesome I don't know what to do with you."

Helen was thoughtful for a moment, then she answered, "I believe I'd leave it with God."

Her mother repressed a smile, but she decided there might be something to the child's advice. She did leave it to God, by way of earnest prayer. An idea came, which she at first feared might be attended by risk, but she tried it. In a "secret" confidential talk with Helen she suggested that she help Blanch to do things—Blanch, who was always holding back, because she had no self-assurance.

That was a task exactly to Helen's liking. She set about it with energy. She coaxed and cajoled and pushed Blanch into doing things that Blanch had said she couldn't do. Sometimes these projects were not exactly prim and proper, but her mother seldom made any objection. Helen was finding an outlet for her bounding energy, and Blanch was definitely gaining in self-reliance; moreover, Mother was winning Helen's confidence. Helen began making occasions for "secret" talks with her mother about some of her plans, and that gave a chance to advise, approve, or reject.

Mother became sure of the benefit to Blanch one morning when a group of children were in the back yard entertaining one another with their favorite pastime of "true-story telling." Blanch never had been able to bring herself to take part in this, and that morning, as usual, she declared she had nothing to tell.

Helen called her to one side. "Yes, you have a good story," she said. "Tell them about the baby robin that fell out of his nest and how we climbed up and put it back, and how the mother bird scolded and then came back and fed it." Thus prompted, Blanch went back and told the story and received not only generous applause but a big boost to her ego.

WILLIAM ALLEN HARPER.

(Continued from page 6.)

of all the books which he published, and of all the articles which came from his facile pen. His interests were wide and varied. For many years he was in a sense "the man" of the Southern Convention. Did the Forward Movement need dynamic leadership as well as organizing ability in the Southern Convention? Dr. Harper was elected as Chairman of the Campaign. Was a Christian Church leader needed to represent it on the Federal Council? Dr. Harper was that representative. Who should serve as Chairman of the Committee to secure Chaplains for the Armed Services during World War I? Dr. Harper. Who should serve as Chairman of Organization and Publicity for the Men and Missions Campaign? Dr. Harper. To whom did Dr. Weatherford, Secretary of the College Y. M. C. A. Work in the South turn for a man to serve as Chairman of the Campaign for funds for Prisoners of War? To Dr. Harper. Who was one of the leaders in the movement to bring about union between like-minded denominations? Dr. Harper was a member of every Commission on Unity appointed by his denomination after 1917, and was one of the outstanding laymen on the Commission that eventually brought about a merger with the Congregational Church. And to every one of these offices and appointments, as well as to countless other lesser offices, Dr. Harper always brought fresh insights, clear thinking, practical methods, and inspiration, as well as the spirit of cooperation and understanding. He had faith in big and in good things and he had the rare gift of helping others to share his faith.

Apostle of Faith

A man's reach should exceed his grasp. Else, wherefore born? Like those to whom the writer of Hebrews refers, Dr. Harper obtained a good report through faith, but received not all the promises, God having provided some better things for us, that he without us should not be perfect. Let those of us who are surrounded by so great a cloud of witnesses on this Founder's Day see to it that we keep faith with those who laid the foundations on which we build, and that through our gifts we keep the torch of Christian Education burning brightly in our modern world, in which the forces of darkness are threatening to stifle and even snuff out the democratic way of life.

On this Founder's Day we do well to honor Dr. William Allen Harper, a man of unusual gifts of concentration, boundless energy, irrepressible enthusiasm, clear and advanced thinking, resolute action, convincing speech, unwearied patience, and radiant faith. He was a gifted teacher, able administrator, successful author, uncanny financier, and zealous crusader for Christian Education. Although he was a layman, he was a Christian preacher. He was a Christian gentleman, a loyal churchman, and a faithful and fruitful servant of the Kingdom of God. Although he rests from his labors, his works do follow him.

Youth at Work in the Church

MAX VESTAL, Box 792, Elon College, N. C.

Virginia Valley Young People Study
the Problem of Witnessing

How do we witness for our faith daily, or isn't there anything fundamentally Christian in daily work? This is an important question for young people today.

Sixty-five high school young people, young adults, and older adult advisors met December 28, 1952 at the Bethlehem Church through the invitation of the Valley Conference Pilgrim Fellowship to consider these questions. They were helped first by the worship service led by Donald and Carroll Litten and Nancy McWilliams, P. F. officers and the meditation given by Gail Carper, Conference P. F. Secretary.

Then Mr. Cameron P. Hall of the Department of Church and Economic Life of the National Council of Churches really put it to us about the relation of the Christian and His Daily Work. He listed four areas of concern: the creativity of our jobs as co-workers with God, the best use of our God-given talents, the feeling of a call if we can pray about our work, and finally the ethical problems of our particular job. He reminded us that the only way to bring our faith to bear on our vocations was through being perfectly specific and not trying to escape into generalities.

So we didn't try to escape as we then broke up into four discussion groups for the real meat of the meeting. Rev. Ralph Galt; Earl S. Wine, vocational teacher; C. B. Lively, Soil Conservation agent; and farmers, Clark oltz, A. N. Green, and Shirley White of our Bethlehem and Wissler's Chapel Churches helped the agriculture group. The Commercial Vocations group had Mr. Hall and Winnie Whitlock for leaders, helped by Bruce Slaven of the Harrisonburg News-Record, Nelson Liskey and Mrs. C. L. Whitlock. Leading the group on professions were Clarence Phillips, conference secretary and Mrs. Kathryn Roller, Weekday Religious Education Teacher. Meeting with those interested in church vocations were Revs. Harman, S. E. Madren and Whitten; also Paige Painter and Tom Madren from Elon College,

After the first discussion group meetings, the skits put on by the church and commercial groups and report by agriculture showed that we had been specific. Supper followed with hot and cold drinks furnished by the Bethlehem Ladies Aid. After supper came something different with Hank Harman and James Rohart discussing problems of service life with the boys and men; while Mrs. Harman and the girls went at such problems as a career vs. the home, working and supporting a family, making the home Christian — with real life touches supplied by little Peter Harman.

The final meetings of the discussion groups carried on as before with the Church and Professional groups merging to see film strips: Look at the Ministry, Look at the Missionary, and Look at Women's Church Vocations. The closing session featured a film strip on the Christian and His Life Work with scripture by Jean Good, president of the host Bethlehem youth group, and prayer by James Rohart, V. P. I. student.

HANK HARMAN.

* * * * *

Relax With Max

We have some more articles on this page today from the Eastern Virginia Pilgrim Fellowship News. This is a nice paper with a lot of information. I certainly am glad to get a copy, and I hope that the young people in Eastern Virginia are taking advantage of it by reading it and contributing to it.

* * *

One of the ranchers had not been giving very liberally. Mr. Torres had presented the Bible teachings relating to the tithe of the Hebrew people. In 1933 that entire section was struck by a hurricane followed by floods which washed away crops and animals. When the storm was over, Mr. Torres went out searching for his people whose homes had been washed away and who were left without food. When he came to this rancher, he inquired how he had fared and how much he had lost.

"No, I am perfectly well and as to goods, I didn't lose anything," the man answered. "The only thing that happened, God passed through here and took all the tithes or tenths which I had not paid him during the last ten years."—Robert A. Felton, "One Foot on the Land."

NEWS OF ELON COLLEGE.
(Continued from page 7.)

and its financial needs, and to let the church know how this program is proceeding.

It would be well at the beginning of the year for our churches and Sunday schools to have certain facts before them that these facts might be passed on to all concerned.

First, the College annual budget amounts to nearly $400,000 which means that from $30,000 to $35,000 a month is required to keep the current funds of the College in balance.

Second, the churches and Sunday schools are apportioned only $15,000 which, if paid in full, would not pay the operating cost of the College for two weeks.

Third, the Convention has authorized a Sustaining Fund for the College, the goal of which is $1 per member. If this should be raised in full that would amount to one-twelfth of the college budget.

Fourth, the College expenses are continuous. These bills are accumulated daily and are expected to be paid on the first and the fifteenth of each month. Regular sources of income are of tremendous help to the College.

We fell far short of the total goal set for these two funds last year, but we did do a very good job which is of great assistance to the College and much appreciated by all concerned. We are starting off very well this year. This is our second report which makes a total of $403.61 for the month. It would be encouraging to all if every church and Sunday school would send in its contributions regularly.

Previously reported	$ 251.60
Eastern N. C. Conference:
Chapel Hill	$ 34.00
Eastern Va. Conference:
Berea (Norfolk)	$ 42.00
Bethlehem (Disp)	15.00
Spring Hill S. S.	2.58
Western N. C. Conference:
Pleasant Grove	$ 5.00
Virginia Valley Conference:
Bethlehem S. S.	$ 23.00
Bethel	22.93
Linville S. S.	7.50
	152.01
Total	$ 403.61

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE, D. D.

Possessions and the Kingdom

LESSON V—FEBRUARY 1, 1953.

MEMORY SELECTION: Take heed, and keep yourselves from all covetousness; for a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things he possesses.—Luke 12:15.

LESSON TEXT: Matthew 19:16-26.

DEVOTIONAL READING: I Timothy 6:2c-11.

What He Had

This rich, young ruler, apparently had everything to make a man happy. Youth, money, position, power, morality were all his. He was a good man with a good name with a good income. What more could a man want? What more did he need to make him happy? There are thousands today who think that if they had what this man had, they would be happy.

What He Lacked

"What lack I yet?" They are the words of the man himself. In spite of the fact that he had all the things that folks think will make a man happy, this man felt a lack of something, a sense of incompleteness, an emptiness of heart, a spirit of unrest and dissatisfaction and unhappiness. And he came to Jesus about it. He wanted to know what he must do to inherit eternal life, what it was that he lacked—he lacked something even if he did not know what it was that he lacked.

Well, what did he lack? What did Jesus say that he lacked? "One thing thou lackest" said Jesus, according to Mark. "Go thy way, sell whatsoever thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven; and come, take up thy cross and follow me." Matthew has it "If thou wouldest be perfect, go, sell that which thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven; and come, follow me." What did Jesus mean? Did he mean that a rich man had to sell everything he has and give it away if he is to be "perfect," if he is to inherit eternal life. Not at all. Did He mean that it was wrong to be rich and meritorious to be poor? Certainly not. Let us see if we can get at what Jesus was saying, and how what He said has meaning for us today, whether we are rich or poor.

Outwardly this man was a good man. He was a good citizen as citizens go. He may even have been giving away large sums already to the poor. He was also a good man morally. He said—and we must give him credit for being honest—that from his youth up he had kept the commandments, at least the commandments which concern a man's dealing with his fellowmen. Ah, there was the rub. The man was not condemned because he was rich. But he was condemned because he was covetous, because he was selfish, because he had a list for riches, because he loved gold more than he loved God. He was trying to be good simply by obeying the law of the land without obeying the law of love. He had given heed to life's horizontal relationships, but he had not given heed to life's perpendicular relationships. He had tried to live by bread alone, and man cannot live by bread alone. Any man's heart is empty and hungry and lonely who tries to do it, no matter how much he has and how much good he is. A man's life does not consist in the abundance of things that he possesses, nor can it subsist on these things either.

It should be made clear here that Jesus was not laying down a universal law in commanding this man to sell all that he had and to give the money to the poor. He was dealing with a specific case. In this man's case the man's love for his possessions, and his all consuming desire for more and more possessions made him unfit to become a disciple, or to become perfect. That love took most of his time and effort, and kept him from giving himself completely to God. Many men are so busy earning a luxurious living that they have little time for Christian living.

But in one sense Jesus was dealing with a universal principle. He was saying that a man must give up anything and everything which keeps him from close communion with God. It may be some trifling, trivial, selfish desire or detail that stands in our way. But it must be hunted down and cast out of our lives. On one occasion, a bishop of the church was asked what religion was, how to get to heaven, and he replied, "Turn to the right, and keep going." Anything that keeps us from God, anything that comes between us and God is wrong. And even if drastic moral surgery is necessary, it must be given up and cast out of life.

What He Did

"But when the young man heard this saying, he went away sorrowful; for he was one that had great possessions." There is a tide in the affairs of men, that taken at the flood "leads to new and higher adventures in living, and carries men out into the sea of a more abundant life." But if it is missed, one spends his life floundering around in the shallows and swamps of mere existence. It was thus with this rich, young ruler. Here he stood at the crossroads of life and destiny. Here was his supreme opportunity. If he had obeyed Christ's command or invitation he could have entered into life more abundantly. But he did not have the grit and the grace to give up that which stood between him and Christ, and he turned away sorrowful. One wonders if he was not haunted to the day of his death by the look in Christ's eyes, and by the thought of how different his life would have been if only he had made the great decision. Or did he, in time, forget the pivotal experience, justify himself, turn back to his material possessions and pursuits, and round out his life in a meaningless routine of activities to which he gave himself half-heartedly, because the meaning had gone out of life? He had not been true to the vision which he had seen in his highest and best, which were his truest moments.

Alas, this young man was so much like so many people today! In some experience of life they come face to face with Jesus Christ. And He puts his finger unerringly on the thing that stands between us and Him and the richer, more abundant life and says "Give this up and follow me." And our love for these things is stronger than our love for Him. We temporize and compromise, and all too often "go away sorrowful," not so often because we are rich and have great possessions, but because we do love something more than we love Him, because we are not willing to give Him first place in our lives. This applies not only to those who have never made the great commitment, but to many, who having made the great commitment, are not willing to "grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ." Christ demands that we not only "turn to the right," but that "we keep going."

What Can We Do?

"Who then can be saved" cried the disciples in amazement. If a rich, prosperous citizen cannot be saved and enter into the kingdom, what hope is there for the rest of us poor mortals? No hope, if the man tries to save himself. With men that is impossible. But not with God, with whom "all things are possible. Salvation, through faith in Jesus Christ alone, comes as the gift and work of God, and not of man. God alone can save.

Based on "International Sunday School Lessons," copyrighted 1951 by Division of Christian Education, National Council of the Churches in the U. S. A.

GOD'S WATCHMEN

(Continued from page 8.)

II. God's Watchman is a Protector.

He is on the lookout for danger and he must be able to identify the enemies even though they may appear in sheep's clothing or in a Trojan horse. Verily, those who would exploit and destroy the souls of our people have an elaborate wardrobe. Snobbery wrapt herself in dazzling evening apparel and parades in the name of culture and refinement. Home is no longer a man's castle; it is a public thoroughfare. Brewery horses walk across the front of his living room where the family is viewing television. Voices from New York, Chicago, or Greensboro through radio urge him to every conceivable kind of thought, feeling and action. The perils of home life conditioned by the necessity that both parents work are by no means imaginary. Chronic spiritual mal-nutrition presents a constant threat to the souls of our people.

This does not mean that God's Watchmen are alarmists, necessarily. There is no need to stir up fears for the sake of keeping people frightened. If the watchman is everlastingly sounding the alarm, where a real danger threatens, how can he rally his people to effective defense? Certainly, if God's watchman sends out the alarm every time he enters the pulpit, his signals will soon go unheeded.

III. God's Watchman Listens.

He is one who has ears to hear and uses them. Listening is an art that is not easily mastered. It makes the difference in almost any field between the expert and the mediocre. Did you ever put on the doctor's stethoscope and listen to what goes on inside the chest of a living person? Rumbling, roaring, swishing—that is about all the untrained listener can make of it. To the trained ear of a physician, those sounds have a precise meaning. The psychiatrist listens to a patient rambling on and on like a babbling brook. Most persons would not be able to make heads or tails out of the steady flow of chatter. But the trained ear of the mental doctor is able to diagnose the patient's disorder by disentangling those wild utterances. He has ears to hear, and uses them.

God's watchman knows how to listen—how to listen to gossip—in one ear and out the other. He knows how to listen to stories of grief and heartache. His ears are keen to the longings and dreams of young people. If you asked him what he would say to a person who had lost his religious faith, he might tell you, "I wouldn't say anything, I'd listen, at least, for a while." The minister listens to what alert observers and writers say. This is one of the ways he gathers material for his creative work.

As the Old Testament prophets suggest, God's watchman listens for God's word "What is God's word for the people," he asks day after day, week after week. And after asking, he listens for the divine reply. As he walks in the woods or along the city streets, he listens for God's word. Jeremiah heard the word God had for him as he observed the almond tree bursting forth with new buds. The Psalmist listened to the symphony of the stars and they sang to him about God's handiwork.

How easy it is for us to make the mistake of thinking that we must talk, talk, talk. A party remarked to me the other day about a young fellow whom he thought should enter the ministry, "He is a fine talker. His voice is clear and pleasant." Now, a good voice is wonderful equipment for the prospective minister, but the question I wanted to ask was, "How are his ears." If he does not know how to listen well, to people and to God, what will he have to say with his beautiful voice? Many a man with mediocre gifts in other areas has made a wonderful pastor because he knew how to listen. On the other hand, good listening makes for fullness and overlook, abounding intellectual and spiritual life. A lake with ample inlets is not likely to grow stagnant.

IV. God's Watchman is a Herald of Good News.

"How beautiful upon the mountain are the feet of them that bring good tidings." Upon feast days and special observances, the watchman served as special inviter. It was he that published the good tidings to all within the sound of his voice. Perhaps this is the most thrilling and delightful part of the minister's work. When a large meal is spread and there are many hungry people waiting for the welcome announcement, isn't it a delicious privilege to say, "All things are ready, come to the feast." It is that wonderful invitation which God's Watchman announces. Good news that God forgives and relieves people of their burdens of guilt. Good news that his mercy is adequate and eagerly extended.

Did you ever observe a girl who is recently engaged? She flashes her ring finger around like a banner waving in the breeze. In her face is a story of joy, of hope, and adventure. So far as she is concerned, all other news is common place. She has good news. Is it not so with God's Watchman? Words become secondary as the good news is broadcast by his special features and his manner. Isn't it thrilling to be able to conclude a sermon with these positive words: "Folks, this is the gospel. I share the good news with you."

Conclusion.

Young men preparing to be watchmen, would that you might grasp something of the sweep, the grandure, the heroism of the calling. Faithful citizens of Zion, do everything you can to keep the watchman on the wall and to heed the words which the Lord utters by him. Watchmen of Zion, join with me in the vow made by the Prophet Habakkuk, "On my watchtower I will stand and see what the Lord will say to me."

One of the most difficult tasks in connection with running a paper is discontinuing subscriptions. Won't you check your expiration date and if your subscription is due, send in your renewal. We so want the paper to continue bringing Sunshine into your home. Please help us.

The Orphanage

J. G. TRUITT, Superintendent

DEAR FRIENDS:

For this year we wish to do a better job than every before. The child is first. His rearing, his mental attitudes toward life and how it has and may serve him—and how he may, in turn, serve it; these are our concern. We, all of us, want to do better. The world is in such a shape as would make every one of us resolve to do better. It is a good time for us all to be humble, to pray, and to plan our lives so as to make them happier and worthier for the big jobs which lie ahead.

It was good to have the Suffolk Church begin the year with a $150.00 check, which I am sending over to the Convention office in order that it may be accredited on apportionment and returned to us. Everybody will probably pardon me for sort of being proud of Suffolk. They helped me rear my children, gave me big opportunity to serve, and befriended me and mine for sixteen years. They loved me and I loved them, and God blessed us. And they are going right on to still greater things, bless them.

I like the way in which the South Norfolk S. S. takes care of the clothing for David and Woodrow Haith, Frances Rowland, and also Jeanie Cook and her brother, Hubert. We are privileged to purchase whatever clothing they need and send the bills to one of their organized classes. It is a really fine thing to do, and the children get an added value out of it in the sense of securing and "belonging" which they feel. In the meantime such money is accredited on their church's orphanage apportionment.

There are several other classes who do almost or quite the same thing for others. This helps a lot.

I am interested, too, in seeing the Holy Neck Church send a donation of $10.00 as a memorial to Deacon J. J. Gomer. Mr. Gomer was 87 years old and had been a member of Holy Neck Church for 75 years. The church fittingly honored him, and also did a service to a very worthy cause.

This report shows also three memorial gifts from friends in Burlington memorializing Miss Nonnie Moore, a very devout member of the First Christian Church in Burlington. She was one of those useful and faithful members whom everybody loves. It was such a good way to honor her.

So many people and churches do so many nice things. I have just read that the Kennedy Home, a Baptist Orphanage at Kinston, was given to the Baptists by a couple who had never had any children, the Kennedys. The people in our Southern Convention have given the lands—289 acres—on which our orphanage is built. I do not know all the people who helped with this but I do know the Carltons, of Ingram, Va., had much to do with it. Our people do fine things, and we can be proud of them in every section and in every church.

Mrs. James L. Foster, artist, musician, mother, neighbor; now living on lands adjoining the orphanage; was first orphanage mother, as her husband was the first superintendent. She tells me that the Rev. Jesse H. Dollar, D. D., has produced a letter written by Supt. Foster to his father, Rev. C. M. Dollar, which states that the first brick for the first building here was laid on September 1, 1905. That letter has some interesting angles doesn't it? Mrs. Foster's many friends will be glad to know she is busy and happy, and that her daughter, Mary Lee, a Burlington City Schools teacher and director of the Episcopal Church choir in Burlington, lives with her; and that her son, Jimmie, connected with the Elon post-office, has a home near her.

I forgot to do any begging in this letter—and I hear somebody saying he will be at it again next week. Perhaps. Thanks.

JOHN G. TRUITT,
Superintendent.

REPORT FOR JANUARY 8 & 15, 1953

Commodities for the two weeks.

Smithwood Missionary Society, Fruit and Clothing.

Mrs. Coy Fox, Liberty, N. C., Fruit.

Mrs. Bertha Sykes, Washington, D. C., Cards, Candy and Penciles.

Spoon's Chapel Missionary Society, Toilet articles and Clothing.

Reidsville Church, Christmas Gifts.

Mrs. R. C. Garrett, Hampton, Va., Clothing.

Currin & Hay, Burlington, N. C., 36 Belts.

Children's Class, Plymouth Congregational, Christian Church, Robinson, Ill., Quilt.

Standard Hosiery Mills, Burlington, N. C., Socks and Hose.

* * *

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

Eastern N. C. Conference:

Auburn S. S.	$ 30.41
Morrisville	9.75
Plymouth	9.75
Southern Pines	39.40
Fayetteville	25.00
	$ 114.28

Eastern Va. Conference:

Mt. Carmel	$ 9.00
Mt. Zion	15.00
Newport News S. S.	13.50
Windsor S. S.	11.59
	49.09

N. C. and Va. Conference:

Bethel	$ 12.91
Elon College, Thanksgiving	107.70
Greensboro, First	193.70
Pleasant Grove	35.82
Salem Chapel	15.00
Union (Va.) S. S.	5.00
Winston-Salem	44.35
Likeview	12.00
	426.48

Western N. C. Conference:

Pleasant Cross S. S.	$ 13.02
Pleasant Union S. S.	13.57
Shady Grove	6.00
Sophia	22.10
Spoon's Chapel	20.00
	74.69

Virginia Valley Conference:

New Hope S. S., Thanksgiving	$ 15.65
Wood's Chapel S. S.	10.00

MEMORIAL GIFTS

"Instead of Flowers"

Dr. John G. Truitt
Christian Orphanage
Elon College, N. C.

Dear Dr. Truitt:

Please acknowledge the enclosed $..... as a memorial gift sent to the Christian Orphanage in lieu of flowers in memory of:

(Name of Deceased)

(City)

(Date of Death)

(Survivor to be Written)

(Address)

Name.....

Address.....

New Hope S. S.	6.51
		32.16
Total	$	696.70

Special Offerings.

"Jett," Norfolk, Va.	$ 1.00
Misses Clarice & Ruth Helen Gunn, Reidsville, N. C. for Joe Ann Black	5.00
Betty and Melvin Bunch, Suffolk, Va., in Memory of Frankie Harrell ...	10.00
Henry V. Harman, High View, W. Va.	1.00
First Congrat'l Christian Church, Roanoke, Ala. .	6.80
Park Ave. Cong. Church, Arlington, Mass.	25.00
Friends, Greensboro, N. C.	15.00
National Bank of Bur- lington (interest)	27.00
Vanceville Sunday School, Tifton, Georgia	3.00
Pisgah Sunday School, Pis- gah, Alabama	10.00
Florida Cong. Christian Conference	17.22
Philathea Class, Reids- ville Church	10.00
Woman's Missionary Soci- ety, Salem Chapel, for C. A. Ward	6.00
A. T. Taylor, Norfolk, Va.	200.00
The Boone Community Club, for the Burgess twins	10.00
Mrs. W. A. Newman, Hen- derson, N. C.	25.00
Mr. & Mrs. M. W. Mc- Pharson, Burlington, N. C., in memory of Miss Nonie Moore	10.00
Mrs. Roger Gant, Bur- lington, N. C., in mem- ory of Miss Nonie Moore	5.00
Mrs. Minnie G. Aldridge, Burlington, N. C., in Memory of Miss Nan- nie Kernodle	10.00
Holy Neck Church, Hol- land, Va., in memory of J. J. Gomer	10.00
Mrs. W. S. Byrd, Burling- ton, N. C., in memory of Miss Nonie Moore	5.00
Special Gifts	450.73
		862.75
Total for two weeks	$1,144.92
Total for the year	$1,559.45

"LOOK ON US."

(Continued from page 3.)

apportionments—a record! The members of our churches paid a total of $109,231 to apportionments, and a total of $171,473 to all apportionments, missions and benevolences. The record shows $1,204,494 paid to all "local" expenses, including $264,545 to pastors' salaries and $692,058 for new buildings, improvement of existing buildings, and on building indebtedness. A large majority of our churches reported funds spent for new buildings, improvements on buildings, and on indebtedness. The value reported for local church property was $7,040,639, with a total indebtedness of $380,169. These figures represent perhaps the largest we ever reported.

We as a Church are better equipped materially than ever before in our history. Few of our churches are content to use inadequate, unattractive buildings. The majority of our pastors are provided with comfortable parsonages. We perhaps have the best trained ministry we have ever had.

What Is Required of Us?

Our Lord declared, "Every one to whom much is given, of him will much be required." As the Lord does surely "look on us," what does He say of our Christian stewardship in the use of material possessions entrusted to us? Is it to be feared that too many of our people "pay" to the church and its causes—maybe grudgingly at that—rather than accounting joyfully and unafraid as good stewards for the possessions entrusted to us?

What of Our Ministry?

We have a devoted, earnest, well-equipped (if underpaid) ministry. However, we still experience a shortage of pastors. The most certain way to provide for the pastoral leadership of our churches is to have a steady stream of choice young men coming from our homes and churches to our college every year. We have not been doing that. We have not offered our sons in sufficient numbers. There are hopes to be gleaned from the reports of last year. The Conferences reported 18 Licentiates, 13 of whom are definitely preparing for our ministry. Others are teaching, in business, etc. In addition, the Conferences reported 12 candidates for the ministry enrolled in the Biblical Class. There is reason for rejoicing in this number of young men dedicated to the Christian ministry, but there still remains a current need for more pastors immediately. New work could be started, and churches now sharing a pastor with other churches could enlarge their usefulness if additional pastors were available. There are now several churches without pastors. All our churches continue to call for pastors, and yet only a very few of our churches have ever had the honor of sending forth a candidate for the Christian ministry. The Lord of the harvest certainly "looks on us"—our homes and our churches, entreating us to dedicate our finest youth to His high calling. What will our answer be?

First Things First

For my humble part in the record of 1951-52, I rejoice with you in that which has been done well. Nevertheless, one cannot but feel that we as a Church are not as dedicated, committed, as we ought to be. Countless hours are required of us all to keep the "machinery" going. This is important, to be sure, but not the most important part of Christian witness required of us. We cannot but feel that if we as a people had a greater concern and willingness for humble witnessing for Jesus Christ daily, our evangelism record would be brighter, or if our time, talents, and material possessions were more devoutly and freely dedicated, our Christian stewardship would be more abundant. If that were the case, we should no more have "zero" churches in evangelism: we should no longer "pay" to the church and its causes, but we would willingly lay our all upon the altar.

The Promises of God

Surely according to the promises of God, a revival and dedication ought to come to the Southern Convention church members, pastors, officials and all, causing us to arise in strength to meet our opportunity in Him.

"If my people who are called by my name humble themselves, and pray and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways, then I will hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin and heal their land."

"Bring the full tithes into the storehouses, that there may be food in my house; and thereby put me to the test, says the Lord of hosts, if I will not open the windows of heaven for you and pour down for you an overflowing blessing."

"Look on us," said Peter, as he and John faced the man in need beside the Gate Beautiful. Those Christ filled men bade this man look not on them as men who lived in their own strength, but rather to look upon them as Christ Jesus lived in them. In his strength they gave healing. In 1953, my prayers and hopes shall be that as the world looks on us as a Church and as professing Christians in the Church, they will see not us but Christ living in us. To that end I covet your prayers that all I do shall serve to proclaim the unsearchable riches of God in Christ Jesus. "The prospects (for 1953) are as bright as the promises of God."

Teaching Facilities are Ample and Adequate at Elon College

ONE OF A GROUP OF BUILDINGS ERECTED DURING DR. HARPER'S ADMINISTRATION

The CHRISTIAN SUN

ORGAN OF THE SOUTHERN CONVENTION OF CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES

In Essentials Unity — In Non-Essentials, Liberty, — In All Things, Charity

VOLUME CV

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, JANUARY 29, 1953

NUMBER 5

The Period of Evangelistic Emphasis

Why One Should Be an Active Church Member

From a Church Calendar

1. The best men and women in every community are members of some church.
2. One would not choose to live in a community where there was no church and no church people seeking to promote moral welfare and social honor.
3. If everyone should follow the example of those who do not join some church, there would be no churches.
4. The Church is the only agency that has the definite objective of making a better world on the basis of redeemed lives.
5. The Church is the only fellowship that seeks to prepare us for "Life beyond the grave." As every person expects the service of some church at the time of death, we owe it our respect and allegiance while we live.
6. It is unfair to receive the benefits the church brings to society, and to refuse to identify oneself with some church in the community where one lives.
7. In appreciation of the privileges of living in God's world, breathing God's air, enjoying God's blessings, and having his protecting love, every person ought to be a member of some church which he can call "My Church" and in which he can worship God each week; and, by his loyalty and support, bear witness to others of his love for and faith in his Heavenly Father.

February 25, through Easter Sunday

News Flashes

Dr. Duane N. Vore was in Cleveland this week attending the Mid-Winter meetings of our church committees and boards.

We express sympathy to Mrs. J. J. Henderson, formerly of Graham, N. C., in the passing of her husband, Major Henderson. Mrs. Henderson's father, the late J. D. Kernodle, of Graham, was at one time chairman of the Board of Publications.

Rev. and Mrs. Bland Leebrick announce the birth of a daughter, Deborah Maria, born December 14, 1952. They have one other child, Gloria Anne. Mr. Leebrick is the pastor of Carolina Congregational Christian Church, in the North Carolina and Virginia Conference.

Dr. H. S. Harcastle of Chuckatuck, Va., was in Richmond this week, attending the national meeting of the Ruritans, which he served as chaplain. Whatever his other duties may be, "Hardy" never misses a chance to visit the office of publication when in the city. It is always good to see him.

Good News Concerning the 1952 Christmas Fund

The Christmas Fund, which is administered by the Ministerial Relief Division of the Board of Home Missions, closed its books for 1952 with a total of $121,054.56. This is the largest Christmas Fund ever contributed, and is the eighth successive Christmas Fund to exceed $100,000. The total number of gifts received was 6,747. Since many of these represent gifts forwarded by churches, and include contributions from many individuals, it is safe to say that more than 10,000 persons shared in providing the Fund.

The purpose of the Christmas Fund is to supplement the regular grants distributed by the Ministerial Relief Division and to help meet emergencies as they arise in the lives of our ministers. Approximately one half of the Fund is used for Christmas gifts. These go to all the persons on our Ministerial Relief roll, and also to a selected list of ministers and widows of ministers which is supplied to us through the state superintendents. A small part is incorporated into the regular grants distributed by the Division, and the rest is used throughout the year to meet special circumstances as they arise.

Seven hundred and ninety checks were mailed to reach the recipients at Christmas time. These will be followed by a supplementary Christmas gift which will be mailed late in February or early in March. Drafts upon the Emergency Fund are made continually throughout the year in response to circumstances ranging from a home destroyed by fire to a broken dental plate.

The officers of the Ministerial Relief Division, in the name of our veterans, wish to express to the membership of our Congregational Christian churches their heartfelt gratitude for making this work possible.

FRANK J. SCRIBNER,
General Secretary.

Evangelistic Services for Enlisted Men

Young men and women stationed at military bases across the country now may be sure that their home churches have not forgotten them.

Dr. Jesse M. Bader, director of the 1953 Armed Forces Preaching Mission, announced recently that 140 outstanding civilian ministers are participating in a series of 80 five-day evangelism projects being held from January 17 through February at virtually every Army and Navy camp in the United States. He estimated that the mission will reach some half-million service personnel.

Primary objectives of the interdenominational religious task force, Dr. Bader said, are strengthening of ties between men and women of the armed services and their home churches, aid to the full-time ministry of chaplains, and encouragement of personal dedications to Christian service.

"There has been an excellent response to and cooperation in the 1953 series of Armed Forces Preaching Missions on the part of all the chaplains in military installations where these missions will be held," Dr. Bader noted. "The local churches served by these speakers release them gladly for the week of the mission because of the special significance of the enterprise, and because of the desire of these home churches to keep contact with the men and women of the Armed Forces."

(Continued on page 14.)

North Carolina and Virginia Conference Evangelism Rallies

FEBRUARY 1-6, 1953.

THEME: "Evangelism Will Build the Church."

COMMISSION: "You are Witnesses."

PROGRAM.

7:30 to 9:00 P. M.

Call to Worship and Invocation by Host Pastor.

Hymn—"My Faith Looks Up"

Scripture Reading and Prayer.

Statement of Purpose—Mr. Lackey.

Address, "Visitation Evangelism"—

Mr. Dollar.

Hymn—"I Love to Tell the Story."

Address, "Personal Evangelism"—

Mr. Andes.

Special Music.

Address, "A Personal Motive for Evangelism"—Dr. Scott.

Hymn—"When I Survey the Wondrous Cross."

Brief Discussion of Methods.

Testimonials.

Benediction.

* * *

TEAM FOR RALLIES.

Dr. W. T. Scott, Superintendent, The Southern Convention.

Rev. Melvin Dollar, Chairman, Eastern Virginia Conference Committee on Evangelism.

Rev. W. J. Andes, Pastor of Winston-Salem and Pfafftown Churches.

Rev. Mack V. Welch, Pastor of Palm Street, Greensboro.

Rev. John R. Lackey, Pastor of Apple's Chapel.

Rev. Tucker G. Humphries, Pastor of Reidsville Church.

Rev. J. Lester Stanley, Pastor of Gibsonville Church.

Rev. Mark W. Andes, Pastor of Union (Va.), Lebanon and Hebron.

Mr. J. Earl Danieleley, Layman Supply at Haw River.

* * *

REGIONAL MEETINGS.

Sunday, February 1—Palm Street, Greensboro, for First, Palm Street, Calvary, Pleasant Ridge, Monticello, Hines Chapel, Apple's Chapel.

Monday, February 2—At Virgilina, for Union, Hebron, Liberty, Lebanon, Danville, Ingram, Pleasant Grove.

Tuesday, February 3—At Reidsville, for Reidsville, Happy Home, Mt. Bethel, Kallam Grove, New Lebanon, Howard's Chapel.

Wednesday, February 4—At Gibsonville, for Gibsonville, Elon College, Berea, Bethlehem, Shallow Ford, Burlington First, Beverly Hills, Lakeview, Zion.

(Continued on page 10.)

Southern Convention Laymen's Fellowship Will Hold Rally at Elon College

"A Layman's Responsibilities" has been chosen as the theme of the Mid-Winter Rally of the Southern Convention Laymen's Fellowship which will be held in the Whitley Memorial Auditorium of Elon College on Sunday, February 8. Registration will begin at 2:00 o'clock, and the meeting will be called to order by W. B. Williams, chairman, at 2:30 o'clock.

DR. ROBERT CASHMAN

Danieley, Elon College, N. C., not later than February 2.

The program is as follows:

Afternoon Session.

2:00 Registration—Whitley Memorial Auditorium.

2:30 Song Service—Mr. W. H. Baker, Newport News, Va.

Worship Service—Mr. J. Earl Danieley, Elon College, N. C.

REV. DAVID H. SANDSTROM

Musical Selections—The Elon Singers.

"Our Moonelon Project"—Rev. H. E. Robinson, Burlington, N. C.

Business Session.

Hymn and Offering.

Address, "All Belongs to God"

—Rev. D. H. Sandstrom.

Hymn.

(Continued on page 7.)

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr

A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom as represented by the Congregational Christian Churches.

Our Principles

1. The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
2. Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
3. The Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
4. Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and church membership.
5. The right of private judgment and liberty of conscience is a privilege that should be accorded to and exercised by all.

Editor Robert Lee House
Managing Editor John T. Kernodle

Departmental Editors—Convention, Wm. T. Scott; Missions, F. C. Lester; Women's Work, Mrs. F. C. Lester; Young People's Work, Max Vestal; Children, Mrs. R. L. House; Sunday School Lesson, H. S. Hardcastle.

Institutional Representatives—Elon College, L. E. Smith; The Christian Orphanage, John G. Truitt.

Board of Publications—Duane Vore, Chairman, S. T. Holland, Secretary; R. C. Heltenstein, S. E. Madren, W. W. Snyder, G. D. Colclough, Treasurer, ex officio.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Year $3.00
Two Years 5.00

Published by the Board of Publications of The Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches, Inc. Printed every Thursday except the last in June and December by Central Publishing Co., Inc., Richmond, Va.

Entered as second-class matter at the Post Office at Richmond Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

General contributions should be addressed to the editor at Southern Pines, N. C., and should reach him by Wednesday of the week preceding date of publication.

Departmental material should be sent to the proper departmental editor, at the address shown on their page.

All other material and business communications except regarding subscriptions should be sent to the Office of Publication, 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond 19, Va.

The Christian Sun Subscription Blank

Subscription Price: 1 year, $3.00; 2 years, $5.00

Date.....195....

Dr. Wm. T. Scott, Supt.,
Elon College, N. C.

Enclosed find $..... for which please send The Christian Sun
() 1 year, () 2 years — () New Subscription, () Renewal.

To

Address

Who is a member of Church

() Renew, () Enter my own subscription for () 1 year, () 2 years.

My Name

My Address

A Fellowship Banquet in the college dining hall, beginning at 6:00 o'clock, will conclude the program.

An outstanding program has been planned, and will include addresses by Dr. Robert Cashman of Chicago, Moderator of the General Council of Congregational Christian Churches, and the Rev. David H. Sandstrom of New York City, Minister of Stewardship of the New York Congregational Christian Conference. Dr. Wm. T. Scott, Superintendent of the Southern Convention, will also bring a message to the laymen.

Dr. Sandstrom is an authority in the field of Stewardship and will be the speaker at the afternoon session. His theme will be "All Belongs to God."

"Dynamic Churchmanship" will be the theme of Dr. Cashman at the afternoon session; while he will speak on the subject, "The Witness of the Church," at the banquet.

The Elon Singers will furnish the special music for the Rally.

All laymen and ministers of the Southern Convention are urged to attend this Mid-Winter Rally on February 8. Reservations for the banquet should be mailed to Mr. Earl

From the EDITOR'S Desk

What of the Evangelistic Program of the Church?

At a joint meeting of the Committee on Evangelism and Devotional Life of the Southern Convention and the chairmen of the five conference Committees on Evangelism, held in Henderson, North Carolina, last fall, the following recommendations were made:

1. That there be a special Evangelistic Period throughout the Convention, beginning February 25, 1953, and running through Easter Sunday.

2. That every church in the Convention have some special evangelistic emphasis during this period, as:

- a. A Preaching Mission;
- b. A Revival Meeting;
- c. A carefully worked out program of Visitation Evangelism;
- d. A Pastor's Class.

3. That increasing emphasis be placed upon church attendance.

4. That our people be acquainted with the Principles and Government of our church.

That there is need for this Evangelistic Period is well evidenced by the figures given by Superintendent Scott in his summary of our 1951-52 statistics; for while there were 2,123 members received into the various churches during the last conference year, only 982 of these were received on Confession of Faith; and during that period there were 1,637 dropped from our church rolls, leaving a net increase of less than 500. "What," asks Dr. Scott, "of our Christian witness in an area with increasing population and where thousands dwell in our midst without Jesus Christ in their hearts and lives?"

Charles E. Schofield has told us that "the evangelistic program of the church in America . . . has run in cycles." The first period of importance came in the lull between the French and Indian War and the beginning of the American Revolution. "It found expansion through the efforts of Jonathan Edwards in New England, and George Whitefield, who ranged up and down the entire length of the Atlantic seaboard." He continues: "The evangelism of the half-century following independence took the form of home missionary expression . . . laying spiritual foundations for the revival movement that was to be one of the most significant characteristics of eighteenth century religion in America."

The cycles to which Dr. Schofield referred came roughly around 1843, 1857, after the War Between the States, in the early 1890's, and again between the beginning of this century and 1910. It is probable that this type of evangelism reached its highest development under Billy Sunday, whose career reached its climax in the period just prior to the first World War.

Since World War II, the emphasis in the evangelistic program has increasingly been placed upon what has become known as "Visitation Evangelism"; and in this program, the layman has been called upon for an ever increasing part.

Nearly all other evangelistic programs have been variations of these two basic plans of evangelism. Among churchmen, there have been those who have strongly advocated one form and have been antagonistic toward another. Certainly the time has come when it is necessary to coordinate all of the evangelistic plans or programs and to "get down to business." Jesus used both of the basic methods. He has commanded us that we use the most effective methods at our command, both on the home front and on the world field.

The time is urgent. The church must be about its business if it is to meet its responsibility to God and its obligation to mankind.

We commend to our readers the articles on pages five and six of this issue. "Evangelism Builds the Church," by Dr. Woffard C. Timmons, the National Secretary of Evangelism of the Congregational Christian Churches; and "Getting Down to Business in the Work of Evangelism," by Dr. Roy C. Helfenstein, Chairman of the Southern Convention on Evangelism and Devotional Life.

J. T. K.

Evangelism Builds the Church

By WOFFORD C. TIMMONS, D. D.

National Secretary of Evangelism

What Is a Church?

What's the difference between a Meeting-House and a Church? About the same as between a house and a home. These are terms over which one might quibble or become very serious indeed. A lot of fine houses fall far short of being homes; and a lot of very lovely "homes" are found in very humble houses. These are all terms that have to be given content; at best they are still symbols, even though we may insist that one is material and the other spiritual.

There is, then, a spiritual side of this great task of building the Church of Christ in all our developing land, even though at times, as now, the material needs may loom so large as almost to obscure other considerations. There is no need, however, for any of us to get confused about our part of the task as "Builders of the Church". We argue a great deal about things that are secular and things that are spiritual, drawing our antitheses too sharply, just as we do when we try to separate the temporal and the eternal. What we need to do, I am sure, is to draw our focus to the sharpest line possible, so that the vision of our specific tasks be not blurred but stand out in clearest understanding.

A hundred years of production by our Church Building Society is a most significant part of our denominational history. The full scope of this saga is thrilling, reaching as it does from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from the Northern Lakes to the Southern Seas; being in most cases the very channels through which the life flow of the nation has made its way. From white spires against the greens of New England, to the great towers and gables against the dark shoulders of the cities' skies, from lofty naves of Gothic cathedrals on busy boulevards to lovely colonial porticos in hundreds of quiet suburbs, on to the little churches and chapels of town and country where corn and cotton grow, where wheat fields wave and cattle graze, where mountains are mined and oil wells flow, this blessed story of a century of Congregational Christian building is told.

Thrilling as this record is, it has also its report of limitation and retreat—the limitation being the lack of resources to meet the expanding need, and the retreat being the loss of many churches, heroically begun, for want of vision and vitality to carry them through the crisis of change. Such adventure as this does not take vision and vitality even before the material matters are assured, simply because the whole Christian enterprise is the expression of a spiritual experience.

It may be urged that the Church Building Society was principally concerned with putting up church buildings, which involved, of course, real estate plots, architectural plans, grants and loans and financial canvasses, and actual construction. But it is a misreading of history and a misinterpretation of purpose to say that was all—or even to show there was a survey of population expansion and a clearance of comity rights and responsibilities. All of these came within the calculation, and rightly so, for behind and beyond all plans and provisions were (and are) the spiritual implications and potentials, the conviction that every new church is an extension of the life and mission of the Lord himself.

DR. TIMMONS

The One Basic Purpose

While the Commission on Evangelism sees its function especially in this way, yet it is not the only department in the Board of Home Missions concerned with this spiritual side; every department—indeed, the sum of the mission of the whole Board—is concerned alike with this one basic purpose. The only difference in the work of the various departments is in the functional emphases or, perhaps, geographical administrations or group activities. The Commission on Evangelism is not charged directly with building churches as houses, but it is charged indirectly in that the motivations that come through evangelistic efforts may be the primary factor that causes men to want to share the Gospel, and thus moves them to extend the Church wherever there is human need.

If any warning at all is appropriate in connection with this tremendous building challenge it is that we shall not be content with mere extension but that we carry every church on into the fullest possible intension. In a very real sense no man can build the "Church"—only the Lord of all life can do that. What we can do, and do do, is construct a suitable house for the Church to use, and dedicate it to the glory of God and the ministry of the Gospel to all men. The Psalmist knew this and proclaimed it when he wrote, "Except the Lord build the house they labor in vain that build it."

This matter of building the needed churches faces us with the structural demand for adequate spiritual foundations, not only large enough but also enduring enough. A familiar sight in our modern cities is the boarded off area where steam shovels are opening the way for the vast foundations of great buildings. Recently I pushed my way into the circle of curious on-lookers to see the frightening shaft in which the mighty layers of steel and concrete were being placed on the shelves of the already exposed rock. As one of the engineers came up to the gate from the yawning chasm, I ventured to remark that it seemed like a terribly deep foundation. "Yes," he said, "it is; but it's to hold a terribly high building: the higher the building, you know, the deeper down you have to go." Such an observation as this is a commonplace; but the truth of it would certainly not be overlooked where the building of the Church, the world's tallest structure, is concerned. Nothing less than the bed-rock of the Gospel of Christ is sufficient unto our purposes as builders of his Church! Whatever else the work of evangelism may be, it is to bring to bear the "evangel," the basic truth of Christ, as the only foundation the eternal

(Continued on page 8.)

Getting Down to Business in the Work of Evangelism

By ROY C. HELFENSTEIN, D. D.

Chairman of the Southern Convention Committee on Evangelism

Every church should have "A Prospect List" or "Responsibility List" made up of the unchurched people in the parish for whom the church is spiritually responsible. On the "Prospect List" or "Responsibility List" should be the names of those in the following classifications:

1. Those who are members of some organization in your church, but not members of the church proper.
2. The brothers-in-law and the sisters-in-law to the church, that is the husbands of women in the church, who themselves are not members; and similarly the wives of men in the church, who themselves are not members.
3. Parents who are not members of your church, but whose children are enrolled in your Church School.
4. Names taken from the Visitor's Register who are not members of any church in the community.
5. The unchurched people of the community who, in some religious survey, have indicated your church as their preference.
6. Unchurched families related to members of your church.
7. The names of any unchurched individuals contacted by the pastor or submitted by the Board of Deacons or the Prudential Committee, or by any other members of the church as possible prospects.
8. There should naturally be, on every such Prospect List, the names of boys and girls in your Church School who are twelve years old or older and not members of the church. These the pastor should seek to enroll in the Pastor's Class for Preparation in Churchmanship, preferably held during the Lenten Season.

On the Prospect List, no names should ever be placed of those who are disgruntled or marginal members of some other church in the city, town or community. It is unethical, unchristian, and contemptuous for any pastor to make the burden of some brother-pastor harder by his trying to take into his church the inactive members of another church. A pastor's time is too precious to be worse than wasted in any such effort. An honorable pastor will admonish such people to get right with God and get in line in their own church. An honorable pastor would not even so much as turn his hand over if by doing so he could receive into his church a hundred new members taken from the other churches of his community. The fact is that such church members are not worth turning one's hand over for. And any pastor who stoops to that type of recruitment, if he would turn the light on in his room and look into the mirror would see a thief.

DR. HELFENSTEIN

The members of the Prudential Committee, or as in some churches the members of the Pastor's Council, or as in other churches the members of the Committee on Evangelism should each one faithfully cooperate with the pastor in interviewing the people whose names are on the Prospect List. The Prospect List should also be the Prayer List for the pastor and for those responsible for cooperating with him in this feature of the church program. A plan which I have found very rewarding is to have the "Selected Evangelistic Teams" hold a dinner meeting at the church each month from October to Easter; or having the first meeting of the series in the pastor's home where the group will be the guests of the pastor and his wife; and then to have the succeeding meetings in the homes of the members of the group or at the church in the latter case, each one paying a nominal amount to provide the food served by the joint-hostesses, two or three women of the group joining in preparing the meal. Following the meal, and after a half hour of intensive study on the subject of Christian Recruitment, the pastor will give four names from the Prospect List to each member of the group for them to call on during the month, with instructions to report at the meeting the following month. Where advisable, follow-up calls should be made by some other member of the group, the names being rearranged at each subsequent meeting. The Prospect List should be revised from time to time as some of the prospects become members, and as others, who are found not to be prospects, are dropped from the list.

Wise is the church that leaves its pastor free to spend the major portion of his time in definitely working in the interest of the church to enlist the unchurched people of his parish, instead of expecting him to spend the major portion of his time in going around ringing the doorbells of his membership, calling on those who do not need his call, simply to enable him to record in his records a record number of calls made during the year. It means more to any church for its pastor to take the message of the Church to the unchurched through the medium of personal contacts than for him to spend his valuable time in carrying around a theological nursing bottle to "The Seventy Year Old Babes in Christ" found in his membership. This observation in no way discounts the importance of pastors calling regularly on their members who are ill or in sorrow or trouble of any kind. It in no way discounts the importance and the need of calling on any members needing a call. But it does emphasize the needlessness of a pastor following a routine plan of calling on the constituency of his church at stated times in the old fashioned manner. Moreover this observation emphasizes the more important duty of every pastor to work for his church and the Kingdom by minister-

(Continued on page 7.)

News of Elon College

PRESIDENT L. E. SMITH, Elon College, N. C.

The Campaign

The general campaign committee to secure $2,500,000 for Elon College directed that there should be a simultaneous campaign in the churches of the Southern Convention, beginning last Sunday, January 18. The plan of organization for each local church was a general captain for the group, the pastor, or some one else appointed, a division of names of the church members into groups of ten with two individual canvassers for each group. The names were to be assigned to the canvassers and they were to approach each individual member with information regarding the campaign, the needs of the College, and the disposition of the money raised so that every individual could make a subscription of what he feels that he could and should give annually for five years. Have these cards signed, turn them over to the captain of his church or the pastor, who will forward them to the College.

It was my privilege to be present at Liberty Spring Dr. Jesse H. Dollar, pastor, on Sunday, January 18, at three o'clock. Dr. Dollar had invited twelve members of his congregation to be present for that meeting to make the canvass and requested that each member select his canvass mate. All twelve of the men were present, ten of whom had selected their teammates and had them present. All names to be canvassed were written on cards and distributed to the canvassers present. After receiving instructions the group agreed to complete the campaign in two weeks and at that time to meet for reports. No campaign could have been set up more business like. It was a real pleasure to be present and observe this piece of work.

If you have so organized your church you are to be congratulated. If you have not, I am sure you will want to and will just as soon as it is possible.

The Haw River Church is without a pastor. Earl Danieley, a member of the college faculty, is serving as supply minister. Haw River Church launched its campaign last Sunday and has made a partial report. Mr. Danieley thinks that the results will be satisfactory.

When your church has made its canvass, will you please report the results and future plans? Full cooperation on the part of churches, pastors, and church officials will insure success in this our supreme effort for our College.

* * * * *

Apportionment Giving

Elon College is growing more and more in the favor of our churches. It is good when the church begins to think about its college. It is encouraging when those thoughts are expressed in material values.

The church in the Southern Convention at this particular time is engaged in conducting a campaign to secure funds for capital improvements. This is good and most encouraging. As we secure funds for building operations the expense of operating the college goes on. Contrary to our hopes and wishes, these expenses seem to increase as the days come and go. Furthermore, expenses are daily and bills must be met on a monthly basis.

Payments on conference apportionment or Sustaining Fund will be helpful and most appreciated. We are beginning the new year fairly well. Our offerings are low for this week, but I am sure that more Sunday schools and churches will send in their offerings for next week, which will make up for shortages sustained in previous weeks.

It was by the cooperation and generosity of the church that the college was built, sustained through the past years and is being supported today. All who are interested are grateful and appreciative.

Previously reported	$ 403.61
Eastern Va. Conference:
Isle of Wight	$ 75.00
Western N. C. Conference:
Big Oak	$ 20.00
	95.00
Total received to date	$ 498.61

GETTING DOWN TO BUSINESS IN EVANGELISM.

(Continued from page 6.)

ing to the unchurched people of his parish who constitute the evangelistic responsibility of his church. This work of Christian Recruitment should be a very definite part of every church's program, for evangelism is the first responsibility of every church. The three-fold responsibility of every church is, first, to enlist the unchurched in the life and work of the church; second, to inspire and train the constituency of the church for Christian living; and, third, to commission the membership of the church from the youngest to the oldest in the different lines of Christian service. In short, the three-fold responsibility of every church is—"the work of Evangelism"; "the work of Christian Education"; and "the work of Christian Commissioning"—namely, to win people to Christ, that they may be built up in Christ, that they may be sent out for Christ.

With hearty endorsement of the original lines, and with sincere apology to the author for adapting them to our present consideration of the pastor's responsibility to the unchurched—

"We must win them one by one
As the Master did of old,
When He said to His disciples,
'Follow me';
From the streets broad and wide,
To the avenues turn aside
In the footsteps of the Man of Galilee.

"Is it nothing—'Homes out of touch with Christ!'
And lives being lived as if there is no God?
Let us gladly in recruitment lend a hand.
Words of concern and love impart
To every 'unchurched heart'
Help them in 'The Glory Light' to stand."

LAYMEN'S RALLY AT ELON.

(Continued from page 3.)

Address, "A Personal Motive for Evangelism"—Dr. Wm.
T. Scott.

Hymn.

Address, "Dynamic Church-manship"—Dr. Robert Cashman.

5:00 Adjournment and Benediction.

Evening Session.

6:00 Fellowship Banquet.

Songs—Led by Mr. Baker.

Address, "The Witness of the Church"—Dr. Cashman.

Benediction.

Sign in mess hall: "Don't kick about our coffee. You may be old and weak yourself some day."

Missions at Home and Abroad

The Mission Boards Meet in Cleveland

Some of the most important meetings of the Congregational Christian Church began on Monday evening of this week, in the Hotel Cleveland, Cleveland, Ohio, when the Missions Council of Congregational Christian Churches and affiliated denominational organizations met in a working conference to formulate the program for promoting the Christian World Mission of these churches for the present year.

Around 350 key laymen, lay women and clergy from all parts of the country are conferring for four days under the new Minister and Executive Secretary of the Missions Council, Dr. Henry Smith Leiper, internationally known churchman and a pioneer in the ecumenical movement.

Primarily a working conference, the Mission Council meetings bring together the Prudential Committee of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions; the directors of the Board of Home Missions; the directors of the Council for Social Action; the State Superintendents from coast to coast; the Women's Fellowship State Presidents; the directors of the National Laymen's Fellowship; the National Committee of the Pilgrim Fellowship, and the Executive Committee of the General Council.

The chaplain of the entire conference is Dr. William A. Keith of Kalamazoo, Michigan, minister of the First Congregational Church of that city. The key speakers include: Dr. Ruth Isabel Seabury of Boston, Educational Secretary of the American Board, who flew back January 1 from an intensive three months visit in Africa and one month in India; Dr. James A. Robinson, of New York City, minister of the Church of the Master, author, specialist in race relations and world traveler; Dr. Mary Ely, professor of English and dean of Women of Union Theological Seminary, New York; State Senator Harry E. Drobish of Marysville, California, who has just returned from Jordan after a period of service under the Point IV Program; and J. S. Russell, the Farm Editor of the Des Moines Register and Tribune.

The two mission boards, the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Mission and the Board of Home Missions opened the sessions with a line-up of vital up-to-the-minute reports from missionaries and staff.

Some of those speaking for the American Board are: Miss Alice Margaret Huggins, one of three American Board missionaries detained by the Communist Government in North China for 16 months; Rev. Lee Delroy Bergsman of Johannesburg, So. Africa; Rev. Emmons E. White of Aruppukottai, India; Miss Divina del Carmen of the Philippines; Rev. Philotheos Zikas of Alexandropolis, Greece, who worked with Allied authorities against the Communist guerrillas and converted to Christianity many Communist leaders.

Speakers of the Board of Home Missions include: Dr. Truman B. Douglass, Dr. Phillip M. Widenhouse, Dr. Harry Thomas Stock, and Rev. Robert Spike of the Judson Memorial Church, New York City.

At the American Board sessions, Dr. Ronald Bridges presided; at the sessions of the Board of Home Missions the presiding officer was Dr. Howard Stone Anderson of Searsdale, New York. The Council for Social Action was under Dean Liston Pope of Yale University.

EVANGELISM BUILDS THE CHURCH.

(Continued from page 5.)

God has laid upon which any enduring structure can be built. This is to say that all our churches—new ones and old ones, little ones and big ones—are to be truly conceived as evangelical in their very structural spirit and purpose and evangelistic in their witness and service, if they are to be a "spiritual house" unto the Lord.

Making More and Better Christians

There are specific ways in which a program of evangelism is set up and carried on, some of these ways appropriate to the denomination as a whole, some suitable to Conference areas, some to local communities, but all coming to expression and through a local church. Perhaps the simplest and best definition of evangelism is "the making of more and better Christians", so that these specific ways, whether of large, corporate planning or the more intimate, personal appeal, should all be directed to the same arrival, the making of more and better Christians.

Right now as we face the task of the Church Building Loan Fund (and four and a half million is no small sum!) we are even more aware of the need for truer Christian commitment and stronger fellowship loyalty because the necessity of Christian expansion is commensurately greater than a hundred years ago. Without any over-statement it can be said that this period we are now in is fraught with graver issues and also greater possibilities than a century ago when the Church Building Society began. The very dimensions of the task are staggering; so much so that our spiritual resources shall have to be not only replenished but redoubled; that, as a spiritual household, which holds in trust a glorious inheritance, we may have the faith and devotion to fulfill our part of the appointed task.

Evangelistic Missions of many kinds are very much the order of the day in all Protestantism, especially the inter-church type where religious surveys are undertaken to know the field and allocate responsibility for every person in the community. In the wake of the survey the whole church is mobilized for friendly visitation and fellowship cultivation, both a testimony and an invitation moving in the direction of Christian commitment and church membership. Churches which engage in these missions make a very searching self-study, each group evaluating its life and program to see what its evangelistic "index" may be, whether it is living to itself or reaching out to win, and share with, others. Something unusually gracious and strengthening comes to the people who take their Christian call this seriously, for not only the unchurched reached and won, but the Church itself is renewed and strengthened, the worship and service becoming gloriously real.

Whatever the method of evangelistic effort may be, whether less dramatic in the daily ministries of the church at work, the seasonal observances, or the leavening influence in the community life, or even the quiet ritual of daily devotions in the family circle, all lead to the one Christian purpose of allegiance to Him who calls us into the fellowship of His Church and assigns to each a share in His redemptive plan.

Church Women at Work

With Emphasis on Missions

Mrs. F. C. LESTER, Editor

840 Sunset Avenue, Asheboro, N. C.

News from Our President

These days we are thinking much about the new president of our country. Our women's president, Mrs. W. B. Williams, has been in Cleveland, Ohio, during the past week attending the Mid-Winter Meetings of our denomination. There she met with other "state" presidents, heard plans discussed for the future work of the women of our denomination, and "sat in" on planning meetings for the other agencies and boards.

In a Christmas letter sent to local society presidents, Mrs. Williams reminded us of certain dates which are important. Here they are:

- Spring Rallies*
- North Carolina—March 23-27.
 - Valley of Virginia—March 29.
 - Eastern Virginia—March 31-April 2.

(Dates and places of each Rally will be given on this page at a later date.)

Women's Convention

Burlington—April 28-29.

This is a biennial session of women from our churches in North Carolina and Virginia. It will consist of business, inspiration, and fellowship.

School of Missions

Elon College—June 16-19.

Plan now to attend these important women's meetings. They are valuable only when women from each local society share in them.

* * * * *

The Richmond Women's Fellowship

All monthly meetings during the year have been held. All books required to be reviewed have been wonderfully done by several members of our group.

We had Dr. Miner of the Leprosy Mission to visit us and address us on this work at our February meeting. The Fellowship made a donation to that work.

A wheel chair has been purchased to be kept at the church when not in use. It is to be loaned to members or friends of the church who may need it. It is now being used by Mrs. Rowell, president of the Confederate Home.

The Fellowship raised $150 toward the missionary apportionment for the church this year.

Several boxes of clothing, household articles and toys were sent to India and a large carton of household linens to Franklinton Institute. A 48-cup perculator has been purchased for use at the smaller dinners at the church.

A Life Membership was presented to Mrs. Helfenstein. Several gifts of flowers have been given for funerals, and others sent to sick members and friends. A bazaar is held in December of each year and this year was held jointly with a turkey dinner, sponsored by the youth group and women's fellowship.

The Fellowship has sponsored a "pot luck" supper for each quarterly meeting. Family Night was observed in May. Several workers have served at the Medical College Hospital along with volunteers from other churches. The fellowship is interested in the inter-faith groups and attended their meeting held at Ginter Park Methodist Church.

Our apportionment has been paid together with an additional gift. Our Fellowship, assisted by the Sunday School orchestra, conducts the worship service in the adult department once each month.

ANNIE P. PARSONS,
Secretary.

* * * * *

Report of Woman's Convention Treasurer

The following is the quarterly report of the treasurer of the Women's Missionary Convention of the Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches, for the fourth quarter, second year, biennium 1951-1952:

Receipts.
N. C. Conference:
Women	$3,923.65
Juniors	52.71
Cradle Roll	45.69
	$4,022.05
Virginia Valley Central Conference:
Women	$ 271.06
Young People	42.00
Juniors	2.50
Cradle Roll	.85
	316.41

Eastern Va. Conference:
Women	$2,566.03
Young People	186.73
Juniors	71.75
Cradle Roll	34.42
	2,858.93
Total Receipts	$7,197.39

Disbursements.
Home Missions, General
Fund	$1,012.00
Young People's Home
Mission Fund	95.76
Thank Offering, Carroll
County Virginia ...	3,888.96
Ellis Island	15.00
Christian Orphanage ..	12.00
Home Missions, Special
Fund	20.00
	$5,043.72
Foreign Missions, General
Fund	$1,012.00
Young People's Foreign
Fund	95.77
Rochanyapuram School
for Village Girls ...	10.90
Dr. Riggs	10.00
Foreign Missions, Special
Fund	105.00
	$1,233.67
George D. Colclough Treasurer
S. C. C.	$6,277.39
Mrs. Leathers Treasurer, W. W.
Stanley Memorial Fund	500.00
Mrs. Leathers Treasurer, Life
Mbs. & Memls. 7 Life, 5 Memls.	120.00
Total Disbursements	$6,897.39
Balance in Bank	300.00
	$7,197.39

Mrs. W. V. LEATHERS,
Treasurer.

* * * * *

Report of Treasurer of the Eastern Virginia Woman's Conference

Quarter Ending December 30, 1952.
Balance brought forward	$ 97.22
Offering, Women's Meeting, Oct. 6, 1952	105.62

Women's Societies.
(On Apportionment)
Antioch	$ 7.50
Berea (Nansemond) ..	25.00
Begonia	5.00
Bethlehem	50.00
Cypress Chapel	25.00
Cypress Chapel (Angeles
Brittle Circle)	15.00
Dendron	18.00
Eure	13.75
Franklin	75.00
Great Bridge	20.00
Hopewell	5.00
Holland	40.00
Holy Neck	37.50
Isle of Wight	25.00
Liberty Spring	55.00
Mt. Carmel	20.15
Mt. Zion	7.50
Newport News	35.00
Norfolk:
Bay View	22.50
Christian Temple ...	93.75
Little Creek	8.75
Second	20.00
Oak Grove	9.60

(Continued on page 11.)

A Page for Our Children

MRS. R. L. HOUSE, Editor, Southern Pines, N. C.

Newport News, Va.

Dear Children:

It is hard for me to write this for so many things have happened to me since last week. More about that at another time, but this week I feel the need of telling you of the great blessings of going to church.

This is being written on Sunday afternoon—and when I got up this morning it seemed very hard to go to church but I went for it is the place where God's spirit dwells, and it is the place where men, women and children feel the refreshing strength of God coming to them.

What a pity it would have been if I had missed going! The Junior Choir sang Beethoven's "Joyful, Joyful, We Adore Thee," which is a lovely song of praise to God. The boys and girls looked so fresh and sweet and sang with such zeal that it was an inspiration to hear them. If you belong to a Junior Choir please continue to sing and work for it will mean much to you and others.

But the greatest joy of all came at the end of the service when the minister and his wife were presented with a new automobile by the congregation. Having experienced that delightful surprise myself I knew how excited they were! As I left the church I caught a glimpse of little Donald Granger bouncing on the seat trying it for newness and spring! It looked as if it bounced easily. Go to church, one can never tell what may happen.

Next week I shall be in Southern Pines and write from there.

J. J. H.

* * * * *

"In Fear and Trembling"

By IDA M. HALIBURTON.

Issued by the National Kindergarten Association.

"Mummy, I won't! I just won't go up to bed alone!" declared the little daughter of the home in which I was a guest. "I'm afraid." The voice was husky with her fear.

"For shame!" The mother spoke impatiently and with some degree of anger. "I don't know what to do with you, Patty, you are afraid of everything. Jane is younger than you, and she isn't afraid of anything."

"Please come with me, Mummy, please come," pleaded the little girl.

"I'll do nothing of the sort," declared her mother. "You must be broken of this nonsense. The mother was plainly harassed.

"I don't know, Mummy, I don't know!" answered Patty tearfully.

"But you must know," insisted her mother. "Now tell me. We are going to have this straightened out right now. Tell me what frightens you."

"Oh, just—just things," sobbed Patty.

I could endure it no longer. Hastily allying myself with the Fools-Rush-In Club, I volunteered, "I would love to go up with Patty, because I have a new story I am just aching to tell her."

Mrs. Irwin's expression said, "This is merely postponing settling the matter," but she made no audible objection as I took the trembling little hand in mine to accompany Patty upstairs.

"Will you be going downstairs when you have told me the story?" asked Patty fearfully.

"Not until you can spare me," I replied.

We chatted happily while the preliminaries were being attended to. "Now your prayer," I suggested. Obediently she knelt and repeated her little, "Now I lay me."

"Lovely little prayer, Patty," I commended. "It's the same one I used to say a very long time ago."

"I don't like the part, 'If I should die,'" she said slowly.

"Well, Patty," I replied, "you have been kept safe hundreds and hundreds of nights, and you haven't died even once, have you? But maybe you would like another prayer better. I'll tell you one, and if Mummy agrees, I'll teach it to you to morrow. This prayer tells about a kind shepherd."

Then I talked to her of shepherds and their sheep, and, compared the kind shepherd to the loving Heavenly Father, keeping watchful care over His children. Quite relaxed, she listened to the little prayer I had taught my own children:

"Jesus, tender shepherd, hear us,
Bless Thy little lamb tonight;
In the darkness, be Thou near me,
Watch my sleep till morning light.

"All this day Thy hand hath led me,
And I thank Thee for Thy care;
Thou hast warmed me, clothed, and fed me,
Listen to my evening prayer.

"Let my sins be all forgiven, Bless the friends I love so well;"

Here, without having time to apologize to the writer of the hymn, I improvised:

"Take me, when I'm old to heaven, Happy there, with Thee, to dwell."

"Before I tuck you in, Patty, let's turn on the light and take a good look around your beautiful room," I said. "How nice it is that you have moved into this big house, where you and Jane have a room to yourselves. Oh, see your lovely closet, divided into two parts, one for each of you. This is your side, painted pink—I see your coat hanging here; and I suppose the blue side is Jane's."

"Yes, we like it that way. Nanty, I don't think Jane is old enough yet to be afraid, do you?" Patty asked hopefully.

"Maybe not," I replied. "Oh, here's a flashlight. Mummy had to keep boxes under the beds in the small house. I don't suppose she does that in this house. Let's look, though. Not a thing! Now, we'll turn out the light and see which of us has the best memory." Taking turns we reviewed the furnishings of the room.

At last, with a sigh, Patty settled down in her pillows, declaring happily, "I can spare you now, Nanty."

Next evening I did not wait to make an issue of the going-to-bed question. "Ready for bed, Patty?" I asked. "We had such fun last night But I can't stay long tonight; I am going to see Jane."

We didn't explore hidden corners this time, but I managed to push Patty's shoe under the bed from where she had to retrieve it, and I had placed her pajamas on the most obscure hook in the closet. There was nothing in the room now around which Patty could build fears, and soon she said, smiling, "I can spare you, Nanty."

EVANGELISM RALLIES.

(Continued from page 2.)

Thursday, February 5—At Winston-Salem, for Winston-Salem, Salem Chapel, Belew Creek, Pfafftown, Elk Spur, Rocky Ford, Asheville, Tryon.

Friday, February 6—At Haw River, for Haw River, Mebane, Long's Chapel, Durham, Union (N.C.), Bethel, Concord, Carolina, Hope-dale, Mt. Zion,

Youth at Work in the Church

MAX VESTAL, Box 792, Elon College, N. C.

A Letter from the President of the N. C.-Va. Pilgrim Fellowship

Hello Everyone:

What's going on in your Pilgrim Fellowship Group? Have you done anything worth mentioning? I know you have, but how about letting all the Southern Convention young people know it by writing a letter to Max Vestal. His address is: Box 792, Elon College, N. C.

Come to think of it, you haven't heard anything from your officers either, have you? Well, we have been doing a little something. Here it is:

On November 16, 1952, as you may know, a presidents' meeting was held in the new First Church of Greensboro. At that meeting, we discussed how we might better the over-all program in our conference. There were seventeen groups represented. During the year, two new groups were organized. Rev. John G. Truitt, Jr., and Rev. Herman Johnson, each organized a group in his church.

On November 18, 1952, your officers held their first meeting. At that time, it was decided that we would have rallies during this year on the following dates: February 1, Youth Week Rally; August 29-30, Week-end Planning Conference; and October 18, the Annual Fall Rally. Preceding the Week-end Conference, your officers will meet again.

On March 29, we will have the State-wide Rally, at which Nick Piediscalzi, the National Pilgrim Fellowship president, will be present. This rally, of course, will be held at Elon College.

Now back to the February 1 meeting: It is going to be held at the Reidsville Church at 2:30 p.m., on Sunday. Bring all the young people in your church between the ages of 12 and 24. Try to make your church tops in attendance.

In fellowship,
CURTIS YOUNG,
President.

* * * * *

Budget of the N. C. & Va. Youth Fellowship

Below is given in detail the budget of the North Carolina and Virginia Youth Fellowship, as voted by the officers and representatives at the presidents' meeting. Each church is urged to raise in full the amount as apportioned.

Moonelon Project	$1,000.00
Foreign Missions Project	100.00
Miscellaneous expenses for Conf.	205.00
Total	$1,305.00

APPORTIONMENTS.

Apple's Chapel	$ 35.00
Asheville	25.00
Belew Creek	15.00
Berea	30.00
Bethel	20.00
Bethlehem	25.00
Beverly Hills	15.00
Burlington, First	75.00
Carolina	25.00
Danville	35.00
Durham	55.00
Elk Spur	15.00
Elon College	50.00
Gibsonville	10.00
Graham	25.00
Greensboro, First	100.00
Greensboro, Palm St	35.00
Greensboro, Calvary	20.00
Happy Home	40.00
Haw River	20.00
Hebron	10.00
Hines Chapel	60.00
Hopedale	15.00
Ingram	15.00
Kallam's Grove	15.00
Lakeview	10.00
Lebanon	20.00
Liberty	35.00
Long's Chapel	20.00
Mebane	15.00
Monticello	40.00
Mt. Bethel	25.00
Mt. Zion	25.00
New Lebanon	40.00
Pfafftown	10.00
Pleasant Grove	20.00
Pleasant Ridge	20.00
Reidsville	55.00
Rocky Ford	10.00
Salem Chapel	10.00
Shallow Ford	10.00
Tryon	30.00
Union (N. C.)	25.00
Union (Va.)	40.00
Winston-Salem	50.00
Zion, B'ton.	10.00

$1,305.00

* * * * *

Relax With Max

Mrs. Brown: "Has the new florist any children?"

Florist's Neighbor: "Yes, a girl who is a budding genius, and a boy who is a blooming nuisance."

* * *

"Children," said the teacher, "you must bear in mind that the affix 'stan' indicates 'the place of'. Thus: 'Afghanistan'—'the place of Afghans';

'Hindustan'—'the place of Hindus'. Now, can anyone tell me another example?"

"Yes, teacher," replied little Clarence. "'Umbrellastan'—'the place of umbrellas'."

* * *

Schoolteacher: "This makes the fifth time I have punished you this week. What have you to say?"

Youth: "I'm glad it's Friday."

* * *

Clerk: "Now that you've seen all the blankets in the store, which one do you wish?"

Lady: "Oh, I was only looking for a friend. I didn't expect to buy."

Clerk: "Well, ma'am, if you think that there's a chance she's in that one remaining blanket up there, I'll take it down for you."

TREASURER'S REPORT.

(Continued from page 9.

Oakland	22.50
Portsmouth:
Elm Avenue	15.00
First	30.00
Shelton Memorial ...	40.00
Richmond, First	20.00
Spring Hill	3.00
Suffolk	217.50
Sunbury (Damascus) ..	25.00
Union (Southampton) ..	26.25
Wakefield	15.15
Waverly	15.00
Windsor	17.00
South Norfolk	35.00
	1,115.40

Young People.

Berca (Nansemond) .. $	6.25
Bethlehem	26.00
Burton's Grove	8.75
Eure	7.25
Franklin	9.00
Holland	6.25
Holy Neck	10.00
Liberty Spring	25.00
Mt. Carmel	5.00
New Lebanon	6.00
Newport News	41.05
Norfolk:
Bay View	1.75
Christian Temple ...	35.00
Little Creek	2.50
Rosemont	20.00
Union Southampton ..	12.00
Oak Grove	2.50
	224.30

Juniors.

Antioch	$ 7.50
Bethlehem	3.00
Cypress Chapel	5.00
Eure	1.25
Franklin	7.50
Holland	5.00
Holy Neck	5.00
Liberty Spring	6.85
Mt. Carmel	3.00
Newport News	3.00
Norfolk:
Bay View	1.50
Christian Temple ...	6.90
Little Creek	2.00
Oakland	1.25

(Continued on page 15.)

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE, D. D.

Jesus Teaches God's Grace

LESSON VI—FEBRUARY 8, 1953.

MEMORY SELECTION: "By grace have ye been saved through faith, and that not of yourselves, it is the gift of God."—Ephesians 2: 8.

LESSON: Matthew 20: 1-16.

DEVOTIONAL READING: Ephesians 2: 1-10.

Jesus Tells a Story.

As was so often the case when Jesus wanted to illustrate some truth, or make clear some spiritual principle, he told a story. He took some familiar object or action and used it to teach the truth he wanted to make clear. Today's lesson is an instance in point. "The kingdom of heaven is like a man that was a householder, who went out early in the morning to hire laborers for his vineyard." His hearers were very familiar with that type of thing. They knew what he was talking about. They sat up and listened. They cocked their ears to hear what this Man had to say. How important it is that as ministers and teachers, we talk in language that our people can understand, that we talk about things which our people do not know about in terms of things that they do know about. Here as elsewhere the Master is our Example.

The Setting of the Story.

The background of the story gives meaning to the story. "The Rich Young Ruler" had just turned away from Jesus because he was not willing to pay the price of discipleship. Then Peter, reminding the Master that the disciples had forsaken all and had followed him, asked what reward they were to have. In reply, Jesus assured Peter that they would receive a reward, a reward both in this life and in the life that is to come. But Peter's question revealed the fact that Peter still had too much of the bargaining spirit in him, that he thought of life too much in terms of merited rewards instead of unmerited grace. So Jesus told a story to illustrate the point.

The Strange Story.

It was a strange story which Jesus told. So strange that scholars and commentators have often been baffled by it, and have concocted many very strange interpretations to account for it. It is the story of a man, a successful and evidently somewhat eccentric farmer or vineyard owner, who got up early in the morning and went out to hire some men to work in his vineyard. He agreed to pay them a denarius a day, about twenty cents a day in our money. About nine o'clock he went back to the market-place and hired some more men. In this case, however, he did not agree to pay any stated sum for the day's work, but simply told the men that he would pay "whatever is right" or "proportionate." They had faith in the man and went immediately to work. At noon, and again at three o'clock in the afternoon, the man went back and hired some more men, and on the same basis. Finally, at five o'clock in the afternoon, with only an hour of working time left, the vineyard owner walked again to the market-place and, seeing some men standing idle there, he hired them, promising to pay them "whatsoever is right."

Thus far, of course, there is nothing strange or unusual in the story; but attention please, here comes the very strange thing. Are you listening?

At the close of the day, the farmer orders his steward, or paymaster, to "pay off" the workers, beginning, not with the men who started to work first, early in the morning, but with those who began to work last, late in the afternoon. And stranger still, he told the man to give them a denarius, a full day's wage! In fact, he gave every man the same wages, the men who had worked three, six and nine hours, the same, as he gave those who had been working twelve hours. There was no eight-hour law then. There still is no eight-hour law for the farmer or the housewife or the doctor or the minister and many other folks.) Needless to say, there was a lot of griping on the part of the men who had worked twelve hours when they saw the fellows who had worked much shorter hours, and even the men who had worked only one hour, received as much money as they received. They "murmured against the goodman of the house," and "murmuring" was perhaps a mild word.

In reply, the master of the household told the men that he had given them exactly what they had agreed upon. "Friend, I do thee no wrong; didst thou not agree with me for a denarius? take that is thine and go thy way." (He certainly showed a fine spirit in dealing with these men, calling them friends.) And he added, "I will give unto this last, even as unto thee."

The Meaning of the Story.

What does this story mean? It is sound, or even fair, business practice? The story is not an economic tract. Jesus is not laying down laws for industry or setting up a Fair Employment Act. To be sure Jesus, if He were here in the flesh, might have something to say to the corporation which dismisses men without direct necessity, or to the labor union which strikes on the merest pretext, or to the business brains too absorbed with profits to be concerned with the poor man's problem of insecurity of occupation." But He is concerned with something deeper and more universal than that. He is concerned with motives. He is concerned with the commercial spirit which is always asking "what is there in it for me?" He is condemning the mistaken conception that men can earn God's favor by their works, that His dealings with men are based on nothing but exact justice with no regard for grace. He is striking at the theory "so many good works, so much reward." God is not a big Bookkeeper, entering a debit or a credit account according as a man observes or fails to observe certain holy regulations, according as he registers or fails to register a certain quantity and duration of labor. He is saying that God's thoughts are not our thoughts. He is saying that the motive of a man's life proclaims his worth.

To be sure every one will receive what he deserves. But there will be some surprises, some startling surprises. Many who were first shall be last, and many who are last will be first. And much of the surprise will be due to the fact, not that so many receive so little, but that so many receive so much.

In short, Jesus was talking about what the lesson title correctly calls "God's Grace." Grace is the unmerited, the undeserved love of God. The plain fact is that God gives more

(Continued on page 15.)

"Earth Is Not Enough"

A Sermon

By HOWARD P. BOZARTH

Pastor of Elon Community Church

[On Sunday, December 28, Mr. John T. Kernodle was a welcome visitor at our morning service, in Elon College Community Church, when I spoke on the theme, "Earth Is Not Enough." He was good enough to ask for a digest of the sermon for "The Christian Sun." What I said was not in manuscript form, but what follows is essentially the gist of it.]

When our birthdays come around, or we stand on the threshold of a new year we are apt to be more than ordinarily conscious of the passage and significance of time. Most of us have reached the age where we wish we could be sure of a larger allotment of days than the actuary statistics promise to. Only the very young are insensitive to the fleetness and brevity of time.

I suppose, therefore, it was a very young creature who wrote a song that I heard on the radio some time ago the title of which, as I surmised, was, "Earth Is Enough." The singer questioned the fact, and the desirability of a future world, particularly one "with gates of pearl and golden streets." He assured his listeners melodiously that when one has properly appreciated and imbibed of the fountains of earth which delight the soul and body there is little more to be desired for one's contentment. So, away with outmoded fancies of "heaven"; and let us get on with the business of exploiting earth's treasures, which are enough to suffice in any case.

The song itself may have merit, for all I know. But its philosophy leaves something to be desired. It is essentially pagan in spirit. That does not signify that many of our contemporaries disapprove of it. For there are countless pagans who, no doubt, would applaud the sentiments verbalized in this composition. In fact most of us live our lives as if earth is all we shall ever know as a habitation, whether or not we regard it as "enough." Not many of us are living and planning our lives as if we expected to live forever. The people we most admire are those who, we say, "get things done," finish their jobs. Rarely does it occur to us that those who have lived supremely well have been great in what they attempted but could not finish, simply because earth does not supply the time or resources to complete the projects which are of highest merit. The more significant a life, the greater will be its failure to achieve the major ends toward which it is directed.

Jesus, himself, was essentially a failure, judged by worldly standards. His supreme mission was the redemption of the world, and the world still waits redemption. He didn't trouble himself in the least about projects that he could complete in his lifetime. He didn't set his heart on getting a bigger farm, or laying up a fortune for someone else to spend. In fact he seemed to count least important those ends to which the rank and file devote their energies all the days of their lives. So he was regarded, in his time, as well as ours, as a visionary, and a somewhat pathetic dreamer of dreams.

But this is not to say that he deprecated the good things of earth. He loved life. He cherished his home and family, and friends, though they all turned against him before he died. He loved life so much that he wanted everyone to enjoy it to the utmost. He came to give it "abundantly." He loved the hills and lakes of his boyhood home. He found particular solace in mountain heights, often going there for prayer. Jesus loved the world, loved this earth, but never once did he imply that "earth is enough." It was a place to learn the way of life eternal. Life eternal was his obsession.

So, we, as Christians are not obliged to disparage the real values of earth. It is not just "a vale of tears." There are splendid projects to engage us, some of which can be seen through in time, and ought to be. But the greater the projects in which we engage, the more sensitive we must become to the fact that earth and time are not enough to see them through. This means that, to the extent that we are true to our highest endowment, as persons, as human beings, we will leave the greater undertakings unfinished. They will be too great to be completed, for earth is not enough.

Now what do we rightly mean when we speak of ourselves as "human beings." We are human to the extent that we devote ourselves to undertakings which we alone are capable of pursuing. We express our humanity when we invest ourselves in pursuits which no other lesser creatures knows about, nor can pursue. There are a few major domains which human beings alone can enter. These are the domains of beauty, goodness and truth. The Greeks, long ago, grasped this fact and their great philosophers symbolized "the good life" by a triangle, the base of which was truth, and the two sides of which were beauty and goodness. But they never intimated that the good life was something totally to be consummated upon earth.

Take the quest for beauty, as an instance. Man alone is sensitive and responsive to beauty. He alone strives to create it. So we have the various forms of the fine arts. But no artist has ever lived who was not haunted by a dream, a vision, of beauty far beyond his capacity to express, whatever the form. The perfect poem has not been written; the perfect picture has not been painted; the perfect symphony has not been composed. Ghiberti, who worked more than twenty years in creating the wrought iron gates to a famous baptistry in a world renowned cathedral in Florence was so distraught with the imperfections of his creation, at the end, that only his best friends could dissuade him from breaking his masterpiece, as we call it, into bits. Michaelangelo declared Ghiberti's creation fit for "the gates of paradise," but the creator himself was heartsick with awareness of his failure. The dream of beauty, man's reach for it, far exceeds his grasp. When man enters this domain he is haunted by the sense of the unachievable, for the goal he seeks is a receding goal, and time is too short, earth's resources too limited. But the realm of beauty is man's alone to enter. No other creature is troubled as was Ghiberti. The rank and file of human beings, themselves, are not troubled—to be sure. But to the extent that anyone lives up to his potentialities as a human being he will make beauty his quest. But he will do it, knowing, that "earth is not enough."

The same is equally true when we turn to the quest for goodness. Man alone is troubled by conscience, by a moral sensitivity. Most of us have enjoyed household pets of one kind or other, which we have tried to train

(Continued on page 15.)

The Orphanage

J. G. TRUITT, Superintendent

DEAR FRIENDS:

Thanks for your gifts and donations. I cannot think of a more unselfish thing than remembering orphan children, and helping them in a time of great tragedy and need. It is so bad to have to be homeless, or fatherless, or motherless—especially as a little child. I see it every day. I am impressed with it every few weeks when I am called upon to consider admitting little orphan children into your Orphanage. It is really a privilege to give something toward helping such children. It is a real privilege. When we think of it in that light we can easily see why and how "it is more blessed to give than to receive."

Last week I went into the Rev. Carl Wallace's pastorate and visited with him four needy children—little ones—bereft of their father and with their young mother completely frustrated, and poor. I found the need great and we will have to "move over and make room" for them here. It is sad to see the children and mother separated. Life has its tragedies, but kind hearts and generous deeds can remove clouds and make glad the sad hearts of children. I do not see how anyone can take lightly a little child's sorrow—or anybody's sorrow as to that.

Many of us will be thinking of the loss to the whole church in the going home of the Rev. Robert Lee House, D. D. I realize that that loss is tremendous, but the loss to Mrs. House and those three dear children is much greater. I pray that God will open up avenues of help and blessing to them. They have such a rich heritage in the noble life lived out so vigorously and nobly for them and for his Lord and Savior. The benediction of that life will follow them every step of the way.

It is a good time for us all to think deeply about the contribution we may make to our day and generation "while it is day" and while God graciously gives unto us the opportunities to serve Him.

JOHN G. TRUITT,
Superintendent.

REPORT FOR JANUARY 22, 1953.
Commodities for the week.

Miss Nellie White, Greensboro, N. C., Clothing.

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.
Amount brought forward	$ 696.70
Eastern N. C. Conference:
Chapel Hill	$ 34.00
Henderson	10.00
	44.00
Eastern Va. Conference:
Bethlehem (Disp)	$ 15.00
Spring Hill S. S.	9.20
	24.20
N. C. and Va. Conference:
Burlington S. S.	$ 78.39
Durham	123.10
Durham S. S.	27.78
	229.27
Western N. C. Conference:
Patterson's Grove	$ 5.00
Zion	30.00
	35.00
Virginia Valley Conference:
Bethel	$ 4.00
Bethlehem S. S.	16.75
Dry Run, Thanksgiving	20.00
Linville S. S.	1.33
Mt. Olivet (G), Thanksgiving	16.00
Timber Ridge	17.00
	75.08
Total	$ 407.55
Grand Total	$ 1,104.25

Special Offerings.
Amount brought forward	$ 862.75
Willing Workers class,
Shallow Well Church,
for Ann Kinch	$ 5.00
A Friend, Greensboro, N.
C.	30.00
Lawrence S. Holt Fund	150.00
Woman's Bible Class, Burlington, First Church, in memory of Miss
Nonie Moore	5.00
Mrs. Margaret B. Joerg,
Burlington, N. C. in memory of Miss Nonie
Moore	5.00
Mrs. J. H. McEwen, Burlington, N. C. in memory of Miss Nonie Moore	10.00
Mr. & Mrs. S. J. Hinsdale
Burlington N. C. in memory of Miss Nonie
Moore	10.00

Mr. & Mrs. Byrd Shepherd, Burlington, N. C., in memory of Ann Carol
Burke	5.00
Special Gifts	188.05
	408.05
Grand Total	$ 1,270.80
Total for the week	$ 815.60
Total for the year	$ 2,375.05

SERVICES FOR ENLISTED MEN.

(Continued from page 2.)

Many well-known ministers have temporarily left civilian for military life to participate in the project. As guests of the military base chaplains, the "hometown" clergymen are conducting the Sunday services with which each mission opens, and holding brief noonday devotions from Monday through Friday of the following week. Many of the evangelists are leading meetings in guardhouses and hospitals, and are available through the mission period for personal counselling.

The Armed Forces Preaching Mission originated during World War II and has continued as an annual co-operative project at the request of the chiefs of chaplains of the Army and Navy. It is co-sponsored by the General Commission on Chaplains and the Joint Department of Evangelism of the National Council of Churches.

This year the program was planned and coordinated by a 14-member national committee headed by the Rev. Fred Buschmeyer, of New York City, who is a member of our denomination and is well-known to many in our Southern Convention.

MEMORIAL GIFTS

"Instead of Flowers"

Dr. John G. Truitt
Christian Orphanage
Elon College, N. C.

Dear Dr. Truitt:

Please acknowledge the enclosed $..... as a memorial gift sent to the Christian Orphanage in lieu of flowers in memory of:

(Name of Deceased)

(City)

(Date of Death)

(Survivor to be Written)

(Address)

Name.....

Address.....

TREASURER'S REPORT.
(Continued from page 11.)
Portsmouth:
First	3.00
Cradle Roll.
Antioch	$ 10.04
Cypress Chapel	1.00
Eure	1.25
Franklin	2.00
Liberty Spring	5.00
Mt. Carmel	1.00
Mt. Zion	2.00
Oakland	5.13
Portsmouth:
First	2.00
Thank Offering.
Antioch	$ 23.25
Berea (Nansemond) ..	100.00
Bengonia	30.55
Bethlehem	48.78
Bethlehem (Young Peo- ple)	16.00
Bethlehem (Juniors) ..	5.00
Burton's Grove (Young People)	14.10
Cypress Chapel	15.75
Dendron	20.50
Eure	5.00
Franklin	75.00
Holland	93.41
Holy Neck	75.00
Holy Neck (Young Peo- ple)	7.10
Hopewell	14.00
Isle of Wight	15.00
Johnson's Grove	15.00
Liberty Spring:
Women	100.00
Young People	10.00
Juniors	5.00
Cradle Role	5.00
Mt. Carmel (Women) ..	9.34
Mt. Carmel (Young Peo- ple)	9.34
Mt. Zion	50.00
Newport News	125.00
Norfolk:
Bay View	15.00
Christian Temple ...	127.00
Little Creek	33.50
Second	29.15
Oak Grove	15.00
Oakland	52.60
Portsmouth:
First	35.05
Shelton Mem. (Wom- en)	14.56
Shelton Mem. (Young Women)	14.56
Richmond, First	16.64
Spring Hill	8.25
Suffolk	200.00
Sunbury (Damascus) ..	10.15
Union Southampton ..	45.25
Union Southampton (Young People)	5.00
Wakefield	20.00
Windsor	24.00
South Norfolk	30.00
Specials.
Dr. and Mrs. Riggs	10.00
Memorials.
Richmond, First	10.00
Grand Total for Quarter ..
$ 3,236.54
DISBURSEMENTS.
Mrs. W. V. Leathers, Tr. Woman's Board, So. Conv.	$2,858.93

Barbara B. Nelms, Tr. Eastern Va. Youth F.	74.77
Dr. W. W. Sloan, Conf. Speaker	50.00
Suffolk Christian Ch., Blue Books	32.65
Gift	5.00
Gurley Press, Conf. Pro- grams	13.00
Mr. George D. Colclough, Stencils	1.23
Miss Pattie L. Coghill, Stencils	2.17
Bank Service, Check Book	1.00
Stamps & envelopes, Tr.	3.48
3,042.23
Total Disbursements	$ 3,042.23
Balance in Treasury	$ 194.31
Respectfully submitted, MRS. GEORGE M. CORNELL, Treasurer.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

(Continued from page 12.)

than we deserve, more than any of us deserve. He is the absolute sovereign in bestowing His rewards. He takes into account the varying degrees of opportunity and ability. If men trust Him and obey Him, they will be surprised at His liberality and His love. He will give rewards to those who serve Him, but we are not to serve Him for rewards. We should follow Him and serve Him because this is, in itself, the highest and truest life, and because of what He has done for us. His love can be trusted for a surprising and unmerited reward. Paul summed it all up in today's Memory Selection: "By grace are we saved through faith, and that not of ourselves; it is the gift of God. Not of works lest any man should boast."

Based on "International Sunday School Lessons;" copyrighted 1951 by Division of Christian Education, National Council of the Churches in the U. S. A.

"EARTH IS NOT ENOUGH."

(Continued from page 13.)

and regulate in behavior. We have been partially successful, no doubt. Dogs, cats, can be trained to restrain themselves in certain measures — let us say, in the parlor. But not from any sense of moral compunction. Painful coercion first had to be applied to prevent the puppy from tearing the sofa pillows to shreds. Later, the adult canine contented himself with lying on the rug rather than the couch, save perhaps when left entirely unguarded by absent members of the family. The sense of obligation never troubles other creatures than man; and too few men are deeply concerned therewith, yet the fact remains that to the extent that we are truly human we all have yearnings and compunctions concerning what is good—good in itself. But no one ever achieved the ultimate in goodness. Not even Jesus, by his own admission. "Why callest thou me good?" he once inquired. The best people we know are the most humble and self-deprecating in regard to their moral proficiencies. We all know it is best to keep close watch on the fellow who avows, "I am good enough," or, "I'm better than a lot of other people I know." These low standards by which some of us achieve complacency with ourselves do not in any case distinguish us as human beings, or as Christians. The more Christlike people become, the more sensitive they are to the good that has not been attained, and can never be attained in the strength or time-allotment of this world. The quest for goodness is an eternal quest. Earth is not enough.

But what is true of the quest for beauty and goodness—these domains uniquely open to human beings, is notably true of the quest for truth. It is a commonplace that the more we know the more we become sensitive of the unknown. Though libraries cannot contain all the truth man has thus far discovered, the totality of truth is infinitely beyond his grasp. He gathers a few grains here and there, but what remains is as the sands of the seashore. Man alone is concerned to know the truth; to press out the horizons of mind; but the more he learns the vaster looms the yet - to - be-known. The deeper his hunger for truth the less adequate proves his endowment of time and resources to satisfy this distinctively human hunger. Earth is not enough.

Earth is good. It is a place of beginnings, and none needs to disparage its true wealth of realizable values. Here we are allotted a little time and small space to launch our growth toward humanity. In Christ we see what God wills us to become. As we walk with Him through the days of this coming year, may we count each one as truly precious, and strive to realize something more of beauty, of goodness and truth. In so doing we will find, to be sure, that "earth is not enough." But thanks be to God for this discovery. And for the assurance that "eye hath not seen, nor the ear heard . . . the things which God hath prepared for them that love him." Thank God, earth is not all.

THE LAYMAN'S RESPONSIBILITY

In Taking the Church to the People

Every layman whose church is a vital interest to him should find sufficient satisfaction from his religion and from the fellowship of his church to feel constrained to recommend both to his business associates, his friends, and neighbors in lodge or service club.

Men who are successful in the business or professional life, owe it to their church to use their talents in the Recruitment Work of the church.

1. The man who can sell life insurance to his friends and neighbors, and even to strangers, ought to be able to interest them in the still more important consideration of religion and church fellowship. And more than that, he can do it.

2. The man who can get other people to support his candidate at an election ought to be able to persuade them to pledge their allegiance to his Christ, and to cast their lot with his choice. And more than that, he can do it.

3. The man who can get other men to want to join his lodge ought to be able to get them to join his church. And more than that, he can do it.

4. The man who is able to get his friends to want to buy a cottage at the same resort where he has his cottage, ought to be able to get his friends, if not already members of some other church, to want to attend his church and to want to make his church their church home. And more than that, he can do it.

5. The man who is a promoter in any realm of social interest who is able to enlist other people in the support of that interest ought to be able to enlist them in religion and in his church. And more than that, he can do it.

What is true of men, is equally true of women. Church women should be able, and are able, to interest other women in the ideals and program of their church.

One of the mysteries that is seemingly past finding out is why so many church men and church women who are able to converse with their associates with perfect freedom on all the so-called secular interests of life, are absolutely tongue-tied when it comes to the proposition of religion and the church—able freely to recommend other interests, but unwilling personally to recommend their Christ and their church.

No person in the church needs to apologize or hesitate in recommending the church to anyone, because no other interest in life is more worthy of recommendation. (a) It stands for the highest interest in life; (b) its contribution to society is absolutely unparalleled; (c) the church has always faced an indifferent world, it has always had to fight its way.

In seeking to influence the unchurched for Christ and the church, it is necessary always to keep in mind two important facts in order to succeed in the work of Christian Recruitment, namely—First, one must be absolutely sincere; and, Second, argument must be absolutely tabooed. People can be lured into the Kingdom, but they never are argued into the Kingdom.

The greatest social as well as religious satisfaction any man or woman can experience is the satisfaction found in sincerely trying to influence some other life for God and for the church.

"Everybody Win a Body" during our 1953 Evangelistic Emphasis.

ROY C. HELFENSTEIN.

The CHRISTIAN SUN

ORGAN OF THE SOUTHERN CONVENTION OF CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES

In Essentials Unity — In Non-Essentials, Liberty, — In All Things, Charity

VOLUME CV

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 5, 1953

NUMBER 6

Featuring Excerpts from Addresses delivered at the Mid-Winter Meetings at Cleveland

THE VIRILE CHRIST

Give us a virile Christ for these rough days!
You painters, sculptors, show the warrior bold;
And you who turn mere words to gleaming gold,
Too long your lips have sounded in the praise
Of patience and humility. Our ways
Have parted from the quietude of old;
We need a Man of strength with us to hold
The very breach of Death without amaze!

Did he not scourge from temple courts the thieves
And make the arch-fiend's self again to fall?
And blast the fig tree that was only leaves?
And still the raging tumult of the seas?
Did he not bear the greatest pain of all,
Silent, upon the Cross on Calvary?

—Rex Boundy

News Flashes

It is now intended to devote the greater part of the next issue of THE CHRISTIAN SUN as a memorial to our late editor, Dr. Robert Lee House.

Our church in Asheville, N. C., holds the distinction of having the first and oldest Boy Scout troop in the city. Recently the troop participated in that traditional ceremony historically designated as the "Burn ing of the Greens."

There will be a meeting of the Board of Publications of the Southern Convention in Suffolk, Virginia, on Tuesday afternoon, February 10. Anyone who has ideas or suggestions for the improvement of their church paper, should communicate with the chairman of the board, Dr. D. N. Vore, before that date.

Recently several articles of merit about Women's Missionary activities have been sent direct to the office of publication in Richmond. We appreciate these articles, but if would ease our task if they could be sent, instead, to the editor of the Woman's Page, Mrs. F. C. Lester, in Asheboro, North Carolina. It would also help her in arranging material for that page.

Under the leadership of Mr. Dewey Simmons, Jr., a Young Men's Bible Class has been organized recently at the First Christian Church of Norfolk, Virginia. Mr. V. E. Hollomon is serving as teacher of the new class. Temporary officers have been elected as follows: Dewey Simmons, president, and Paul K. Sieloff, secretary and treasurer. The Cradle Roll of the Sunday school has been revived after some years of dormancy, and Mrs. William Winfield is the new superintendent. So far, fifteen children have been enrolled, and there are more to be registered.

Church Building Fund Campaign Committee to Meet in Suffolk

A letter has been sent out by Mr. Martin T. Garren of Greensboro, N. C., chairman of the Southern Convention Committee for the Church Building Fund Campaign, urging all members of this committee to be present at a special meeting in Suffolk, Va., on Wednesday, February 11, 1953, at 2:00 p. m.

Mr. Garren states: "This meeting is of the utmost importance. There are many pressing problems to be discussed and many decisions of imperative necessity to be made. We need to have the advice, counsel and judgment of each member of the Convention committee. Each of us has a definite responsibility and, at the same time, a great opportunity for the giving of our best talents in this most necessary and important effort. . . . All people of devotion who have a sense of responsibility are always busy. We do feel, however, that the meeting of February 11 is of sufficient importance to take a place of precedence over other activities."

Dr. William Kincaid Newman, the Area Director of the Church Building Fund Campaign, will be in Suffolk for the meeting, and this is the only time that Mr. Newman can meet with the members of the committee before the opening of the campaign on March 1, 1953.

News from Liberty, Vance

The real Christmas spirit was greatly emphasized by the pastor, Rev. W. A. Grissom, in services preceding the holiday season, using such topic, "The Ragged Edges," with the scripture reference taken from 44th Chapter of Isaiah. When we think seriously, we realize that often The Ragged Edges are our gifts to the Lord's work. Many times we give that which we have no need of. Go to church and attend other church meetings when we have no other place to go. Buy fine cars, all electrical appliances we need; invest in other investments, and give that which is left (The Ragged Edges) to the Church. What about our time? he asked. Six days a week for us to work, and yet many want to take seven. What about Stewardship? The impression we make on our children concerning the idea we have on stewardship of our time, our talents, our possessions? Should we be ashamed of the talents we fail to use, the time we fail to give, the possessions we fail to return back to His cause? Most of us meet all other obligations and give the Lord what is left (The Ragged Edges). Are we treating Him as we would treat the Rag Man?

The next topic discussed was: Babel or Bethlehem? Scripture—Genesis 11:1-9 and Luke 2:21-35, 40, 52. Christmas cast a light on the most important thing in life, what and where is God? The Christmas story gives the answer. To come a little closer, he asked, What do you believe? In the God of Bethlehem or the God of Babel? Our faith lies between Babel and Bethlehem. Babel thought God was afar off; they said, let us build a tower so that we may reach God. They put forth much effort and strength to reach God. But in vain. How many still believe in a far-off God? How many refuse to accept the God of Bethlehem who lives in life, who reaches out to find man, and who says, "Behold, I stand at the door and knock" and "Be still and know that I am God." Too often they look to the God of Babel who says "Let us look to the men of Power," and trust in material things. No room for the Christchild. Many mistakes are made and repeated each day concerning Bethlehem or Babel. The God of Bethlehem lived and dwelt among men, doing kind deeds, giving cups of cold water. Many have not accepted the God of Bethlehem, the God of Abraham and the God of Isaac. Wisdom, honesty and integrity are from Bethlehem. If we leave these unnoticed, we will find we are unprepared to celebrate the Birth of our Lord.

Then, for the beginning of the New Year, Mr. Grissom used as his topic: "Hope for a New Day." Scripture—Joshua 3:1-5, Romans 12. We have not passed this way before, he said; we possess unlimited possibilities. New Year resolutions (which are good to make) make us realize we need improvement. What changes would we like to make? Would we wish for better health, more income, or would we choose to improve our life in a Christian way? Think seriously, he said: what changes should we resolve to make for the coming years Jesus said, "Find a new people for a new day." People is what Jesus was wanting and searching for and what He was most deeply concerned about. We find a new day every 24 hours; are we looking for new people? People who need to know of His great love and saving power? What will our New Year resolutions be this year? he asked. A comparison was given of the great difference in the lives of people, he said; you find someone living in sin, when they almost reach the end of their way often say, "This is a wretched world to live in," and not very far from them you find a fine group of young people carrying on their worship service, singing "This is my Father's World," "The birds their carols raise," "The morning light, the lily white, declare their Maker's Praise."

The coming of New Year is a time set in the minds of people and is an avenue for new and serious thoughts. Are our thoughts going to be based on the worth of the individual, and our work as a part of God's plan and is important? We should strive to develop character and make a special effort to help others; we should resolve to seek a new understanding of God and a new appreciation of His goodness. We should give serious thought to the church and take advantage of the opportunities the church gives us. We find the greatest privilege we have is to go to church, and the greatest calamity if to lose faith in God. The minister said, "We think a bad wind storm is awful, but the world is going through something worse than a wind storm and must seek Christ for refuge." We must accept and understand the vital need of oneself as being a part of God's plan, and that God is omnipotent and all wise and ready to lead us in the right. We must realize that we have not passed this way before, and with resolution (the pastor said) stop criticizing; step out and help make things as they should be. Being a Christian is a great thing, and a Christian hand placed in the hand of God can make and carry out terrific resolutions.

Resolutions Honoring Rev. Kenneth M. Lindner

It has been said that institutions are the lengthened shadows of great men.

The institution of Eutaw Community Church will certainly reflect quite prominently the influence of Kenneth M. Lindner.

It is never easy to build a church. It has not been easy building this one, and there is yet much to do. But it may certainly be said that without the efforts of a devoted few, among whom was this man, this church could not be.

Serving as its first pastor, he has worked without ceasing, and inspired others to work, to build a congregation, to build a spirit, to build an altar.

He has been aided in this, and we have been strengthened, by the faithful and effective service of his wife, Edith.

On the occasion of Mr. Lindner's recall to active duty with the Chaplain Corps, U. S. Army, and his consequent relinquishment of this pastorate, we, his congregation, take this means to express to him and to his wife our profound gratitude for their ministry to us.

You richly deserve the blessing of God; and, with appreciation and humility, we earnestly bespeak it in your behalf.

MRS. FLORENCE ROGERS,
ROBERT L. BRUNNER,
WILBURN E. SCRUGGS,
For the Church.

Report of Laymen's Fellowship Treasurer

Following is the report of the treasurer of the Laymen's Fellowship of the Southern Convention, from August 25, 1952, and ending January 24, 1953:

Receipts.
Pleasant Ridge Laymen's Fellowship	$ 12.50
W. N. C. Conference	28.80
Asheboro	4.50
Henderson	5.00
Berea	15.00
Beverly Hill	11.50
Hope Mills	4.00
Elon Community Church	13.00
Total Receipts	$ 94.30
Disbursements.
The National Council of Churches	$ 5.26
Board of Home Missions	4.24
Church Peace Union	2.25
	$ 11.75
Balance in bank	$ 82.55
S. H. PELL, Treasurer.

The most thoroughly wasted of all days is that on which one has not laughed—Chamfort.

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr

A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom as represented by the Congregational Christian Churches.

Our Principles

1. The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

2. Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

3. The Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

4. Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and church membership.

5. The right of private judgment and liberty of conscience is a privilege that should be accorded to and exercised by all.

EditorRobert Lee House
Managing EditorJohn T. Kernodle
Departmental Editors—Convention, Wm. T. Scott; Missions, F. C. Lester; Women's Work, Mrs. F. C. Lester; Young People's Work, Max Vestal; Children, Mrs. R. L. House; Sunday School Lesson, H. S. Hardcastel.
Institutional Representatives—Elon College, L. E. Smith; The Christian Orphanage, John G. Truitt.
Board of Publications—Duane Vore, Chairman, S. T. Holland, Secretary; R. C. Helfenstein, S. E. Madren, W. W. Snyder, G. D. Colclough, Treasurer, ex officio.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES
One Year	$3.00
Two Years	5.00

Published by the Board of Publications of The Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches, Inc. Printed every Thursday except the last in June and December by Central Publishing Co., Inc., Richmond, Va.

Entered as second-class matter at the Post Office at Richmond Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

General contributions should be addressed to the editor at Southern Pines, N. C., and should reach him by Wednesday of the week preceding date of publication.

Departmental material should be sent to the proper departmental editor, at the address shown on their page.

All other material and business communications except regarding subscriptions should be sent to the Office of Publication, 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond 19, Va.

The Christian Sun Subscription Blank

Subscription Price: 1 year, $3.00; 2 years, $5.00

Date.....195...

Dr. Wm. T. Scott, Supt.,
Elon College, N. C.

Enclosed find $..... for which please send The Christian Sun
() 1 year, () 2 years — () New Subscription, () Renewal.

To

Address

Who is a member of Church
() Renew, () Enter my own subscription for () 1 year, () 2 years.

My Name

My Address

From the EDITOR'S Desk

THE MID-WINTER MEETINGS

By DUANE N. VORE

Chairman, The Board of Publications

How does one catch and put on paper a spirit? It is not too difficult to condense and report facts and figures—but to put into words the thrust of the concern of men for the outreach of the Kingdom of God is a different matter. That concern was the most impressive thing at the Mid-Winter Meetings.

As a new member of the Board of Home Missions, I was amazed at the sums of money budgeted; discouraged by the fact that what was needed so far exceeded what you and I have made available for the building of new churches and the undergirding of established churches; encouraged by the reports of the growing number of churches that are reaching beyond what is expected or requested in the field of missions—home and foreign.

We listened to field reports from those who, in our name, work in India, Africa, Micronesia, the Philippines, Japan, the Near East; in Missouri, New York, Texas, and every state in these United States. We heard the reports and plans of the Women's Fellowship, of the Laymen's Fellowship, of the Pilgrim Fellowship. What struck me most forcibly was the fact that we are ONE—not separate groups, but one family seeking to minister in a variety of ways in the name and by the spirit of the Kingdom of God. Each of us is an important subordinate in the tremendous task of our Christian World Mission. Unless each plays his part to the fullest degree the total effort is hampered. The need for personal interest and action is easy to see for "my" concern in "my" church determines how effectively the whole church works.

May I share some impressions of the meeting with you?

1. Time and again from those who came to us from abroad, there came the idea that the Kingdom of God and the Christian witness are the most effective opponents against Communism. Certainly we recognize the truth of that belief. However, it seems to me there is danger inherent in such thought. This danger is, I am sure, not present in the thinking of our leaders, but it does reflect in the thinking of our lay people. The danger is this: that beating Communism becomes the end, and the propagation of the Gospel a tool in attaining that end. The Gospel should never be a means to a political end—it is too important to be subordinated. We bear our witness that men may be brought to the rule of God and the brotherhood of the Kingdom of God—that we may become one family of one Father. The redeeming power of God in the ways of men is our hope, and our faith speaks that man may submit to that power. The Kingdom of God is the end—that the ideology of Communism is overcome is but a by-product. There is a real and vital difference between using the Kingdom of God to combat a political philosophy and bearing witness to that Kingdom as man's only hope of salvation for the whole of life—spiritual, economic or political.

2. There is the feeling in the minds of some of our lay people that foreign mission work is a risky and unprofitable business. They point to China as a sort of proof. Sure, we lost money in China—but money investment was not our first concern—the witness to faith in Jesus Christ was our concern. We fulfilled, at least in part, that witness. That we lost our money investment because of political conflict is immaterial.

People in India, in the Philippines, in Japan, in America—people the world over, who are seeking truth for life look to us for the witness and instruction that we can give as the Christian people of America. Shall we withhold that witness just because there is danger of losing money? I think not—and if we think we should, we had better think more carefully. Jesus dared to lose his life out of love for man! In His name and by His spirit we need to go into every corner of the world open to us, without fear of cost.

3. The enthusiasm for the Church Building Fund Campaign was contagious. The opportunities for the establishment of churches in communities across our nation are almost unlimited. People want the church! Established churches need aid in expanding to meet the challenge of growing communities. Sure 4½ million dollars sounds big—but our chance to bear witness to our faith in Christ is bigger. Money is necessary to provide the tools, the equipment, the voice for that witness. We need to think more about our task, our commitment—and less about cost, important as that latter consideration is. We in the Southern Convention have a real responsibility in this campaign.

4. One thing was very apparent—no matter how wisely and carefully our leaders plan the work of our whole church the responsibility for the effectiveness of the program rests directly upon you and me in our local church. Our concern as it is evidenced in prayerful consideration, in effective work, in consecrated giving determines the success or failure of our Congregational Christian witness to the Kingdom of God. You are the deciding factor.

The spirit of the Mid-Winter meetings was one of faith, hope and intelligent concern for a more effective witness. God grant that you and I may take hold of our tasks and fulfill them that both faith and hope may be realized.

and the total strategy of a war-time economy. Too often in our churches we seem to be like those who would, when asked what the connection is between the local armory and the world-wide campaign, say "what do you mean world-wide campaign? We have a local armory here and that is our concern." Communists ought to help to teach us not only the need for a sense of mission and the spirit of unity in carrying it out, but that every church is a part of the mission.

Even now, the emergence of a consciousness of world community among Christians is plain to those who have ears to hear and eyes to see. Now just as truly as ten years ago when he first said it William Temple would be right in saying that "this is the great fact of our time." It is as mediators of that consciousness that we do our work if we are to be faithful stewards of the gospel. It is uniquely relevant to the needs of our time.

Apportionment giving in the Congregational Christian Churches has increased since 1940 by 179.9 per cent. Total benevolence giving in the same period has gone from $2,023,350.00 to $6,225,415.00, or an increase of 207.7 per cent. Yet it must be recalled that the increase, while substantial, is not even equal to the increase in the national income let alone the cost of operation of missionary or other church activities.

As of 1951 home expenses in the churches shows an increase since 1940 of 125.7 per cent as against 110.68 per cent in 1950. New building 346.8 per cent as against 322.0 per cent. Total home expense 163.8 per cent as against 149.0 per cent. Total benevolence 207.7 per cent as against 172.9 per cent. Our grand total of home expense, new building, total home expense and total benevolences has shown for 1951 an increase of 168.2 per cent since 1940 and as against 151.0 per cent for 1950, the prior year for which figures were available.

In 1945-46 the Congregational Christian Churches gave $1,605,041.59 for the ministries of relief and reconstruction which in 1951 received $544,428.95 for the same ministries. These figures represent a tragic miscalculation widespread among most Christians at the close of World War II. We felt that peace and stability were only a year or two away and the problem of relief was purely temporary. The truth is it will continue to need the support from our churches, along with and in addition to that for home and foreign missions.

Dr. Leiper Reports to the Missions Council

[Extracts from the report of the Minister and Executive Secretary of the Missions Council of Congregational Christian Churches, Dr. Henry Smith Leiper of New York City made before the Missions Council Meeting in Cleveland, Ohio, Tuesday morning, January 27.]

The thing which most distresses us who have been in contact with the growing edges of Communism and have seen its developments from the early days in Russia, as I personally have, is the calm assumption on the part of some pastors and many lay people in our churches that Our Christian World Mission is a sort of optional extra, that there is nothing very urgent about it, and that when we have spare change and spare time we can get around to doing something that may, perhaps, advance it.

There is another world mission now pushing into ever widening areas in fundamental and implacable opposition to the Christian World Mission. And it is worth observing that the number of its "missionaries" has increased by leaps and bounds in recent years. Indeed, Mr. Gallup figures that there are five million at work today throughout the world.

There are only about twenty-seven thousand Protestant and other non-Roman missionaries actually at work. Even if you add to that the forty-five thousand the Roman Catholic Church claims to have sent to foreign missionary service, you have a total of about seventy-two thousand.

Moscow dictators do not have to talk about the mission or the unity of the Communist world crusade. They seem to be able to take for granted the sense of mission on the part of anybody who enrolls in their fellowship, and the unity is enforced although it must be admitted that it seems to be pretty generally accepted by those who are under its tutelage.

The thing which does not seem to be fully grasped, even by most intelligent, well-informed people, is that the only ultimate way to world order is through the development of a sense of world community. Communists with singular unity of attack and a sense of mission, are creating a concept of world community. It is a bad concept and it contains within it the seeds of its own dissolution, but nevertheless for the moment it is tremendously powerful. Anyone who thinks of the Christian World Mission apart from this concept of world community is living in a dream or a fog of unreality. Believers in the Communist view of world community do not doubt that it is for all men everywhere. They do not say "the faith of the people in the free world is good enough for them."

Communists don't ask, "Why should we try to communicate to people living in Christian lands our Communist faith in a different kind of world?" Communists do not seem to think that the task of being a missionary is for the professionals only. No one in a Communist cell can say we are only interested in the home work and do not care about the foreign impact of our propaganda."

In all of life it pays to learn from our enemies. Jesus reminds us that "The children of darkness are wiser than the children of light." We note that the policy of the leaders of this other world mission is to deal with ideas, and ideas keyed to certain simple massive central concepts. They play on the theme that Communism will produce a good life and peace. Come with us, they say, and we will guarantee you a good living and a peaceful world. Although to their most devoted workers they say, come with us. It may cost you your life, but put everything you have into it and you will help to bring the new world to birth.

I cannot discover that Communists are ever like people who might develop great local armories in time of peace, and then in times of war fail to see any connection between them

Some Things Christians Can Learn From the Communists

[Extracts from an address at the Mid-Winter Meeting by Miss Alice M. Huggins, just back from Tunghsien, North China, where she served her last 3 years under the Communist regime and was held by them 15 months before her exit visa was given her. She was one of the last three Congregational Christian Missionaries to leave China.]

There are things we can learn even from the Communists, Miss Huggins pointed out. Some she listed were:

We should be doing more for the countries high on the Communist list to be "liberated" next.

We should train more and better Christian workers in the countries where Communism plans to take over.

"China has often been called 'changing China.' This time it has really changed: thrown away its ancient culture, and its friendship for the United States, to create a 'new democracy' — socialism, a welfare state where the state owns everything and everybody. They are working for self-sufficiency, for increased production, for industrialization, for development along every line. They are having great success in what they are striving for. The People's Government has control and is tightening it. That many people live in fear and join in every activity only because they must, is true, and may prove an important element in the situation.

"What is left of our years of missionary work? The Christian institutions are 'borrowed.' In most places, the church building itself is still under the control of the Christians. The great thing we have left there is the bodies of Christian men and women. The numbers are less because weak ones have fallen away, but I think all real believers continue to believe, and will go on doing so. I don't believe anything real and true is lost, having been built into the life of the people, but it may not show for a while. The worst loss is that no young people can be taught Christianity.

"There are lessons for us to learn from the Communists and their successes. The first is their emphasis on youth. This is perhaps the most startling contrast which strikes one coming from China into America. We pamper our young. They give the young responsibility, with power. So in China the government work is done by people in their late teens or early twenties, and the Pioneers—the children's communist organization for children under fourteen — are assigned many duties which they carry out with enthusiasm and success.

"We think we know so much about child care. Is it possible we are wrong about any of it? I should like to see someone experiment with letting children attend church. A ten-year-old is perfectly capable of participating in the worship of the church I attend. They are twice as smart as they look! And not just the worship services! American children could add a great deal to the church if they were given the chance.

"Another lesson we should learn is in regard to the continuous study of their belief. Communists require everybody to study every day, and the amount of time runs up to four hours a day for school teachers.

"A third thing they use successfully is psychology: they adapt their techniques to what the people can use. In China, propaganda is spread by radio, plays, catchy songs that everybody learns, literature on every level, including hundreds of comics, a new medium they learned from the West, but which they use, and the western church fails to use.

"It is the normal situation for communists to work hard for little pay. Their devotion to their cause is so great, most workers are satisfied to get only their food and uniforms. We have devoted workers, but we also have many for whom their salary is a large factor in deciding where to work and what to do. We should study every report of communist life for lessons for ourselves, in methods they use successfully, and ways of counteracting their plans.

"As for China itself, the one thing we can do for the people there is to pray for them. We must not underestimate the power of prayer.

"The third suggestion that comes as the result of events in China, and from the announced plans of the communists, is that we should be doing something special for several other countries which are high on the list of those to be 'liberated.' Of course, the whole world is on the list, but among the first are—the rest of Asia: Malay, India, Korea and Japan; and then come the Philippines, South Africa, the Middle East, and so on.

"When we think of China, we must accept the fact that the church there has only the leadership of those who had the opportunity to study and work in the church in the years past. There are too few of them! If we had foreseen what has happened, would we not have given many more young Chinese Christians the training they need for church leadership? I was surprised on my return to the United States not to hear any suggestions of how we should enlarge the number and enrich the training of future church workers in the countries where communism plans to take over.

"I suggest that we should immediately find enough scholarships to at least double the student body in every seminary and Bible school for both men and women in every land where we have work. It would not require a large expenditure, but the result would be immediate. . . . Now we are faced with what communism did in China and what it plans to do elsewhere. What is to be our answer? 'Too little, too late'?"

The Africans Want an Answer

[Extracts from an address by Rev. Lee D. Bergsman of Johannesburg, South Africa, serving under the American Board of Foreign Missions, speaking Wednesday noon, January 28, in Cleveland, before the American Board Luncheon as part of the Mid-Winter Meeting of the Congregational Christian Missions Council.]

"... The most embarrassing question we are asked by Africans is one that is related to the problem of Christian living, and which has always bothered us all. Why is there such a difference between what Christianity says and the way Christians live? We can talk about the lofty idealism of Christianity and the foibles of human effort; we can point out that we preach Christ and not ourselves; we can excuse others, and say that they are struggling against the forces of this world, and it is a long hard struggle. It is still very hard for the Africans to see why the followers of Christ so often seem to pick out and choose what they will follow, and do not take the whole package.

"Nothing is so convincing to a bewildered person, reaching out for certainty and for wholeness, as to see all the words and deeds of those who

(Continued on page 11.)

News of Elon College

PRESIDENT L. E. SMITH, Elon College, N. C.

Misplaced Emphasis

Elon College has faced critical situations during its comparatively short existence. From the start it was a question as to whether or not the church was sufficiently strong, numerically and financially, to found and build a creditable four year institution of higher learning. After four years of existence it seemed that the undertaking must fail. Through the wise counsel and guiding hand of the late Dr. W. W. Staley, the College weathered the storm and came out clear of its financial obligations. The disastrous fire in 1923 placed the College in an even more critical situation. The fire came in mid-winter which destroyed practically all facilities for instruction. Assembly hall, class rooms, library—all were swept away by the flames.

Through the alertness, efficiency, and genius of Dr. William Allen Harper, then president, the program continued and five fireproof buildings were erected to replace the one destroyed by fire. Heavy financial obligations were necessary in the rebuilding program. The severe depression which followed the financial crash in 1929, precipitated another serious financial crisis for the College. By cooperation and the generosity of the church and friends, the College has been successful in clearing itself of all financial obligations.

With the debts cleared away, the College faces another serious financial crisis. This time the crisis is not occasioned by debts but by the lack of adequate and acceptable equipment. If this crisis is not met, we may face a reduced enrollment which, in time, will bring us face to face with another financial crisis in operating funds.

In an effort to secure full and complete cooperation on the part of the church and church people, the announcement has been made and emphasized that this is not a church campaign. The campaign is conducted on a voluntary basis that everyone should be given the opportunity to contribute but the decision is with the individual. Some good church people and supporters of Elon College have taken these statements to mean that the church need not be included in this campaign and that if so, all that it is obligated to do is to give the people a chance. All of this is true, but the success of this undertaking depends upon the emphasis put on the campaign. Elon College is our church institution. As such, it is definitely a part of the church and comes within the pattern receiving financial support by the church. Every church is under obligation to conduct the campaign and give every member a chance to contribute, but it is also under obligation to inform every prospective contributor of the relation of the churches to the College, of the churches' obligation to support the College, of the Individual's opportunity to contribute and his responsibility to contribute to the extent of his ability; that unless sufficient funds are raised to make the necessary improvements at Elon College, our College shall suffer reverses in every particular, that there are no current debts but that we have a good College, a good student body, but we do not have sufficient or acceptable equipment for the convenience and comfort of our students. We need dormitories and a dining room. These facilities cannot be erected without money. The College rightly turns to the church to take the lead in this campaign.

The College shall strive to its utmost not to disappoint the church. Will the church strive to its utmost not to disappoint the College?

* * * * *

The Sustaining Fund

A large number of our churches put the Sustaining Fund—$1.00 per member—in their church budget for the year. This means, of course, that it is the purpose of that church and congregation to pay the Sustaining Fund during the conference year 1952-53.

This is encouraging for the College. As a rule the student enrollment is considerably larger in the fall than in the spring. The College enrollment always reflects itself in the current budget. When enrollment drops for the winter and spring quarters, that means a curtailment in funds with which to meet monthly obligations. It is very encouraging to have some of our churches begin to make payments on their Sustaining Fund obligations. It would be most helpful indeed if others of our churches would follow the example of those who have paid.

Send your Sustaining Fund payments to the Convention Office. The following churches have paid either in part or in full:

Eastern N. C. Conference:
Morrisville	$ 2.00
Eastern Va. Conference:
Richmond, First	$ 65.00
N. C. and Va. Conference:
Hines Chapel	$ 105.00
Union (Va.)	100.00
Western N. C. Conference:
Hank's Chapel	$ 239.00
Virginia Valley Conference:
Joppa	$ 7.00
Mt. Lebanon	5.00
Timber Ridge	10.00
	$ 533.00

* * * * *

Apportionment Giving

On Wednesday of this week it suddenly dawned upon me that I had neglected my correspondence and the disposition of second and third class mail until my desk looked like a 'junk heap.' In one afternoon and evening we gathered up the contents, cleared it away, and everybody seems to be happy.

When you neglect any duty or obligation, the neglect demonstrates itself by the accumulation of the results of neglect. Unpaid bills have a way of piling up.

Every Church and Sunday School in the Convention has been assigned a part in the support of the College. The Churches and Sunday Schools that lay plans to meet these obligations either before they are due or as they come due, are happy in the giving of that support. Every organization finds pleasure in meeting its responsibilities promptly, not only in meeting its responsibilities but in helping the College to meet its responsibilities promptly. The Sunday schools and churches that delay in the meeting of these obligations, expecting to meet them in the future, and they will, one day realize that these unpaid obligations pile up before them and sometimes they reach proportions that they become embarrassing and at the same time their College is a bit embarrassed in meeting its obligations.

How wonderful it would be for both the church and the College if we could all meet our obligations as they come due and promptly. It is much easier for all parties concerned if we

(Continued on page 14.)

Church Women at Work

With Emphasis on Missions

MRS. F. C. LESTER, Editor

840 Sunset Avenue, Asheboro, N. C.

Norfolk Church Forms New Circle for Young Women

A Young Women's Circle has been organized recently at First Church, Norfolk, Virginia, under the leadership of Mrs. C. C. Thomas. The objectives of the organization are to promote the interest of the church, afford an opportunity for Christian fellowship among women who were not active in the other Women's groups of the church, and to study the larger work of the women of our denomination. Officers are: Mrs. Hazel Jordan, president; Mrs. Beverly Gwin, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Violet Ivy, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Mildred Nixon, publicity secretary.

* * * * *

"And They Grew"

December 4, 1952, marked a stage of growth in both activity and organization at the Rosemont Christian Church, South Norfolk, Virginia. On that date the Missionary Society of our church branched into two groups. For the convenience of the women of our church who work or for other reasons cannot attend the day sessions of the society, a night circle has been organized, as Circle No. 2.

The organizational meeting was held at the pastor's home, with a good attendance. The president of the society presided, and a nominating committee was appointed to select a slate of officers for Circle No. 2.

The first meeting of the newly organized circle was held on the night of January 15, at the church. The new officers' slate as presented by the nominating committee was accepted, and the following officers elected: Mrs. Pauline B. Dennis, Circle leader; Mrs. Grace DeLong, assistant leader; Mrs. Mary Jo Fentress, secretary; Mrs. Ethel Cantrell, treasurer; Mrs. Norma Morrison, Spiritual Life chairman, and Mrs. Sallie Fisher, reporter.

Already a membership committee, coupon committee, personal service chairman and a social service chairman have been appointed. A definite meeting date was voted, and the new circle will meet regularly once a month.

Each member of this circle intends to make it what a night circle should be in a growing church.

MRS. SALLIE FISHER,
Reporter.

* * * * *

The Annual Report Blank for Women's Societies

The North Carolina Woman's Board voted to ask that the yearly report blank for local societies be printed on this page. So many societies find it difficult to fill in the blank at the end of the year, when they have not known during the year just what was going to be expected of them. We suggest that the president or secretary of the society clip out this page and use it for reference during the year. Plan now so that you can fill out the entire blank when fall comes.

* * *

SOCIETY PRESIDENT'S ANNUAL REPORT

Please answer all questions carefully and return to your District Superintendent by September 10th.

Name of Society?

Name of Church?

Name of Pastor?

Name and address of Society President for the coming year?

No. of women in your Society?

No. attended Fall Conference?

No. attended Spring Rally?

No. attended School of Missions?

Do you have Circles? How many?

List names of members lost by death during past year?

Do you have planned devotional services at each meeting?

Did you use the Mission Study Books?

Did you have your Bible Study this year?

Did you have a Thank Offering Program?

Did you present Missions in a public program?

PUBLICATIONS

How many subscriptions does your Society have to the following church publications: THE CHRISTIAN SUN? Advance? Guide Posts? Church Woman?

Have you sent a news item to the Editor of the Woman's Page of THE CHRISTIAN SUN? Did you use the Packet?

DEPARTMENTS

Young People

Name and address of a key young person in your church?

Home and address of Young People's Counselor?

Do you use the Packet? Study Books?

Through what sources did the young people contribute to Missions? Amount?

Where were Friendly Service Gifts sent?

How many attended Young People's Summer Conferences and Camps?

Children

Home and address of children's leader?

Were the mission study books used with the children's groups? How?

Did you use materials sent by the Convention or Conference Supt.?

Did they send any Friendly Service gifts? Where?

Did the children's group contribute to missions? Amount?

No. subscriptions to Children's Religion?

Cradle Roll

Name and address of Cradle Roll leader?

Do you have an active Cradle Roll? No on roll?

Do you have a Cradle Roll party?

Do you hold a Cradle Roll Program? What materials do you use for your Cradle Roll?

Amount contributed to Missions through Conference Treasurer?

COMMITTEES

Spiritual Life

Name and address of Spiritual Life Chairman?

Note: Information for this department asked for at beginning of this report.

Friendly Service

Name and address of Friendly Service Chairman?

To what Friendly Service Projects have you contributed this year that were suggested by the Woman's Convention?

What has your group done this year for Community Service?

Christian Family Life

Name and address of Christian Family Life Chairman?

Did you observe National Family Life Week in May? How?

List other Family Life activities?

Visual Aids

Name and address of Visual Aids Chairman?

Does your Society or Church own Audio-Visual Aid equipment or (Continued on page 9.)

The Need Urgent, the Opportunity Great In India Today

[Extracts from an address by the Rev. Emmons E. White of Aruppukottai, Madura and Ramnad, India, speaking at the American Board of Foreign Missions Luncheon Wednesday noon, January 28 in Cleveland, Ohio, as part of the Missions Council of Congregational Christian Churches Midwinter Meeting.]

"There probably never was a more favorable opportunity, or a more vitally urgent need, for presenting the Christian gospel in convincing fashion in India than there is today," said Mr. White

"By its written constitution the Republic of India is neutral or secularistic in matters of religion. But the adherents of each religion, by law, are free to preach, practice and propagate their faith. Before 1947 the foreign missionary was frequently greeted on the street with the cry 'White man, get out!' Now there is nearly everywhere respectful attention, and often eagerness, to hear the Gospel message. . . .

"Although the Communists are in a minority they are far more alert and aggressive in the work of propaganda than the Church. The Church does have evangelistic-minded missionaries, Indian pastors and lay workers, but it needs more of them.

"India is grappling bravely with her gigantic problems in order to take her place among the free nations of the world. She much prefers constitutional methods to those of Communism," said Mr. White, who declares it a "fascinating experience to live and work in 'free India' today. Indians say 'America secured her freedom from Britain in 1776; we got ours in 1947, so we ought to understand each other!'"

Mr. White recalled the public elections in India in January, 1952, when 100 million out of India's 170 millions registered voters went to the polls for the first time in her history.

"... It is not the obligation of the church to feed all the starving, or heal all the sick or educate all the illiterates in India. These are problems for the nation. As far as possible the church should continue to cooperate with Government and other agencies in these nation-building activities. If she follows her Lord she can do no other. But the first obligation of all Christians, whether in India or America, is to concentrate by prayer and effort upon evangelism."

The challenge of India as a field for the Christian enterprise is "to aid the church in India in achieving her fundamental purpose," he believes. Commending the Christian hospitals and schools built up during the past century Mr. White nevertheless warned against the danger that "in the interest of keeping the wheels of these useful institutions turning, the bulk of the energy of the increasing force of national workers and of the greatly reduced ranks of missionaries should be completely absorbed to the neglect of the supreme purpose of winning men and women to Christ."

Underlining the fact that the era of Christian missions in the Far East has departed and that of the church arrived with nationals coming into full control, Mr. White reminded his listeners of the Church of South India as "perhaps the greatest existing example of organic union between episcopal and non-episcopal churches since the Reformation. . . . It is very inspiring to note that the Church of India maintains two of its national workers as foreign missionaries to Papua."

Mr. White spoke of the severe famine conditions now obtaining in parts of South India because of the lack of seasonal rainfall. Although timely food supplies from America and the Government of India have brought a certain measure of relief the conditions are still grave.

ANNUAL REPORT BLANK.

(Continued from page 8.)

supplies? List your equipment and supplies.

Have you used the Convention equipment in any programs?

What slides or film strips did you use?

What particular slides or aid would you like added to the Convention equipment?

Interdenominational Cooperation
Name and address of Interdenominational Cooperation Chairman?

Did you observe the following: World Community Day? World Day of Prayer? May Fellowship Day?

Name above days observed with other denominations?

Is your Society active in a local Council of Church Women?

Life Memberships and Memorials
Name and address of Life Memberships and Memorials Chairman:

No. Life Memberships sent in this year? List the names?

No. Memorials sent in this year? List the names?

Financial

Did you make quarterly reports to Conference Treasurer?

Amount paid on Conference Apportionment last year?

Would you like to increase your Apportionment next year? If so, state new goal?

Amount sent Conference Treasurer for Thank Offering?

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY CONVENTION ACHIEVEMENT GOALS

Check points which your Society has attained this year:

1. Use the packet prepared by the Convention Literature Committee.
2. Use designated books for Mission Study and Bible Study.
3. Promote good reading in the church by securing subscriptions to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and other periodicals such as Advance, Guide Posts, and The Church Woman.
4. Promote missions through the Sunday School and/or sponsor societies for the various age groups (Cradle Roll, Children, Young People).
5. Present missions in a public program.
6. Assist the church in developing Christian Family Life.
7. Use visual aids as a means of presenting missionary ideals to the church.
8. Observe the World Day of Prayer, World Community Day, and May Fellowship Day—if possible, in cooperation with other denominations.
9. Present a Thank Offering Program, and receive an offering for the suggested project for the year.
10. Present at least one Life Membership or Memorial.
11. Send gifts or a contribution to at least one Friendly Service Project suggested by the Convention.
12. Have representatives at Conference and Rally.
13. Make quarterly reports to the Woman's Missionary Conference Treasurer.
14. Make annual report to the Woman's Missionary Conference through the District Superintendent.
15. Meet annual Conference apportionment.

A Page for Our Children

MRS. R. L. HOUSE, Editor, Southern Pines, N. C.

Dear Children:

A copy of the Washington Star pictorial magazine has come to my desk. on its cover is the lovely deep-tone colored photograph of the George Washington Bible on which the present President of the United States swore the oath of his office.

Now old and faded, the Bible is 206 years old. It belongs to the St. John's Masonic Lodge in New York City, and they sent a selected group of men to guard it on its journey to our nation's capitol.

It is a King James Version that was printed in England in 1747. St. John's Lodge received the Bible on November 28, 1770, when Jonathan Hampton became the Master. He presented it at the time he took office.

Printed in large type, it has a full-page steel engraving of King George II. There are also engravings of biblical scenes and an added page (inserted years ago) which tells about George Washington using this copy.

Only twice before has it been used for inaugurations—Washington's and Harding's. It was taken to Washington for the dedication of the Washington Monument.

Once a rich red, it is now faded, but still rich looking. There are deep metal clasps on each side. What a blessing that the Holy Writ of God has been preserved even unto this day. It has stood through chance of time and man and remains ever the same.

After the Inauguration, this Bible was carried back to New York and placed in the safe of the Lodge. It is a priceless American relic.

* * * * *

"Teaching Self Reliance"

By ANNIE L. GAETZ.

Issued by the National Kindergarten Association.

"I have brought you a picture puzzle that I know you will enjoy," Mrs. Snell informed her small son as he ran to meet us on our return from town.

"Boy! An elephant, and a beauty; but Mother, you'll have to put it together for me. You will, won't you, Mother?"

"No," his mother replied. "It's no fun having someone else do your puzzle for you. You must do it for yourself."

"But, Mother, I don't know how. I never even saw this puzzle before, and I'm sure I can't put it together unless someone helps me."

Instead of offering help, the mother continued, "The interesting part of doing things is to work them out for yourself. It may not be easy, but you'll find this puzzle is twice as much fun if you do it yourself. You put down one piece, then you try one piece after another till you find the pieces that fit around it, and before long, you'll have it all done. Won't that be great?"

Without further ado, Mrs. Snell left Bruce with his puzzle, while we concentrated on the fancywork patterns we had brought from town.

There were a few further inquiries and many complaints, but after considerable time had elapsed, Bruce announced with great excitement that he had finished the puzzle. Of course, we both admired it and proffered suitable praise.

"And now," his mother suggested, "wouldn't you like to put on your coat and cap and run out to play?"

The lad, no doubt, felt the need for action, for he had been sitting quietly for some time. In a very few minutes he stood before his mother, holding out his cap and coat.

"Oh, but you must put on your coat yourself. You're a big boy now," she reminded him.

Thus encouraged, he tackled the job of donning his coat and then came forward to have it buttoned.

"You've done that nicely," his mother told him. "Now just show Mrs. Robertson how well you have learned to button up your coat."

After some hesitation, Bruce buttoned up his coat, put on his cap, and was on his way.

After the door closed on her small son, Mrs. Snell turned to me. "You know," she said, "I found I was making a big mistake in the way I was bringing up my son. I was doing everything for him instead of teaching him to do things for himself. I might have kept right on like that and ruined his chances for success in life, if my sister Mary's boy had not come to visit us last winter. Mary has several children, and with a small baby in the house, she has no time to pamper Peter. He and Bruce are the same age, but, compared to him, I was shocked to realize that Bruce was still a baby. I found that Peter looked after himself, while I waited on Bruce as if he really were still a baby.

"Do you see that small hill out on the terrace? The boys coasted there, and whenever Bruce fell off, he would lie in the snow and howl until I rushed out, picked him up, dried his tears, brushed him off and placed him safely on his sled again.

"When Peter fell off, he jumped up and laughed, then brushed himself off and threw himself on the sled and was off again. He treated the fall as a joke, while to Bruce it was a tragedy.

"After I realized my mistake, I started to teach Bruce to look out for himself; and it has not been easy for either one of us. It will take time to rectify my mistake, but gradually we are both learning. I had not appreciated that my son was no longer a baby, and that he must learn to do things for himself."

"Yes," I responded, "I understand your problem, for I nearly made the same mistake with my first boy, Bob. Fortunately, a daughter was added to our home when Bob was quite small, and that was a lifesaver for Bob and for me, for then I didn't have time to pamper him any more."

"I believe," said Mrs. Snell, "we are too anxious to save our children all the bumps. After all, a child must learn to think and to do things for himself; otherwise, he will never learn self-reliance and initiative. It is a good thing for your Bob and my Bruce that we found out in time. I am trying to teach Bruce to stand on his own feet and to take the initiative as far, of course, as a child of his age can be expected to do. I realize now that these lessons must be taught in early childhood, if he is to reap the benefit in years to come. In the journey of life, all must travel the hilly pathways as well as the smooth ones, and I am trying to help my son to develop those qualities of self-reliance that will enable him to travel the rough pathways with courage."

... for strength to bear is found in duty alone, And he is blest indeed who learns to make The joy of others cure his own headache.—Drake.

Youth at Work in the Church

MAX VESTAL, Box 792, Elon College, N. C.

A Letter from Jose Dabuet

Care Judge Gabriel de Guia
Allen Samar
Philippines
December 8, 1952

Miss Pattie Lee Coghill
Box 336

Elon College, N. C.

DEAR PATTIE LEE:

As the Christmas season approaches my thoughts go out to you. This happy time of the year brings to my mind wonderful memories of my association with you and the young people and with many other friends in your country for which I am deeply thankful. I thank God for the fine opportunity He has given me in letting me share the beauty and bounty of your land during my stay in the States.

Whenever I recall my first Christmas in the States which I spent in the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia, a feeling of joy overwhelms me. It was there that I saw for the first time the beauty of a snow blanketed countryside on a Christmas morning—a typical Christmas scene in America. It was a glorious sight to behold. After having seen it I now could realize the vivid imagery and wealth of beauty in the song, "White Christmas." Here in the Philippines where we have no snow but only plenty of rain during this time of the year I will be dreaming, like many of the soldiers overseas, of a white Christmas.

The place where I am assigned at present faces the Pacific and this time of the year being the height of the northeast monsoon it is very rainy. It rains almost every day and this kind of weather lasts until the middle of January. Christmas falls on a wet season and therefore we sometimes have to dispense with our carolling. We plan to go carolling, in spite of the rain, however, two days before Christmas for it is the usual custom of the place.

I am working with small churches spread out over a wide area. I have my temporary station in Allen, a small town in northern Samar where there is a small congregation. The nature of my job takes me to several places outside of my station and it includes visits to two islands a few miles away from the bigger island of Samar. I visit the smaller islands by banca (small boat with outriggers) which is the only means of transportation available here. I enjoy the work, and I'm sure you would if you were in the place, too.

Yesterday I met with the young people of the church here. It was the second time I saw them but my first opportunity to have a real heart to heart talk with them. They finally decided to reorganize their fellowship after some encouragement and especially after hearing me recount my experiences with the young people of the Southern Convention last summer. On December 26-31, we will have a youth conference in Catbalogan, my former parish. I have been asked to attend this youth meeting and teach some courses there also. It will be a nice opportunity again to tell the young people of our churches here about my contacts with the youth of the Southern Convention and my joy to tell them of my rich experiences in Virginia and North Carolina.

Probably you must have heard or read in the papers there about the typhoons that visited us in October and November. The typhoons were so strong that many places have been laid waste by the winds and the floods that followed the storms. Our people have not yet fully recovered from the calamity and it is feared that it will take a long time for our crops to return to their normal course. People in our churches are suffering much and as a result the support of the church has been affected tremendously. I am voluntarily offering my services to the churches in the area where I am working without any thought of receiving a promised salary. In other words I am really living in grace.

Thank you for your offer of a subscription to THE CHRISTIAN SUN. You may address the paper to Cataman as I am not sure of my permanent address yet. I hope to be getting the hymnals soon.

Best wishes to you and the young people.

Cordially,
JOSE.

Pilgrim Fellowship Has Covered Dish Supper

The Pilgrim Fellowship of First Church, Norfolk, Virginia, held a Covered Dish Supper at the church on January 26, as part of its observance of Youth Week. Lewis Gwin, president of the group, was in charge of the program. Joyce Lee Fulcher was in charge of the "dish-washing crew."

* * * * *

Relax With Max

Zoole: "So that's your new overcoat! It's rather loud, isn't it?"

Pupler: "Yes, but I intend to wear a muffler with it."

* * *

Henry: "Did you hear what they do with ferry boats when they're late?"

Bill: "No. What?"

Henry: "Dock them."

AFRICANS WANT AN ANSWER. (Continued from page 6.)

would claim him as a brother, merging into one inseparable declaration. Christian Africa must make such a declaration to non-Christian Africa. . . . But America must make this declaration, too. The Gospel which it sends must be one not only of words, but an exemplary life, which is the greatest sermon. The African is impertinent enough to apply Christian teachings to older Christian cultures and when these older cultures are found not wanting, it strengthens our hand as missionaries, and the whole cause of Christ. . . .

"Our investment in Africa has paid big dividends. The returns are not to be measured only in the number of churches, church members, Christian young people, schools, hospitals, clinics, etc. These are all parts and manifestations of something better: a stage in the transformation of human existence in Africa from a life of fear, ignorance, disease, and bondage, to life as God intended it to be for all people—a life abounding in faith, growing in knowledge, healthy and free.

" . . . We must bring about in Africa the substitution of faith for fear. . . . Few things said about Africa today are more important or more pertinent. . . . Faith instead of fear is the only way for the African. His old tribal Gods are being shattered and he doesn't fear them as he did. But new fears have crowded in to haunt him; fear of the white man, fear of the future, fear of losing what

(Continued on page 15.)

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE, D. D.

"Whose Is The Kingdom?"

LESSON VII—FEBRUARY 15, 1953.

MEMORY SELECTION: Fear not, little flock; for it is the Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom.— —Luke 12:32.

LESSON TEXT: Matthew 21:33-43.

DEVOTIONAL READING: Psalm 118:19-29.

One picture is worth a thousand words. A story is often remembered long after the sermon is forgotten. Jesus knew this, and he governed himself accordingly. He told many stories to illustrate the truth He wanted to make known. Consider today's lesson.

The Background of the Story

Jesus was approaching the close of His ministry. Opposition to Him, mild at first, and unorganized, had gradually hardened and intensified, and had been more closely knit and organized. Scribes, Sadducees, Pharisees, Herodians, all had "ganged up" on Jesus, and had determined to put Him to death and to get Him out of the way. They were awaiting only a favorable chance—they were afraid that the people would not yet stand for open action, so they had to bide their time. They were not fooling Him. Nor would He forsake them. To the very last He sought to win them to His cause and to save them from their doom. Beyond them, He yearned to save His beloved nation, which was also doomed unless it repented. So he told a story calculated to show them to themselves, and to save them from themselves.

The Story

As usual, He used familiar experiences and familiar language. Palestine had some absentee landlords' some "share-croppers." So Jesus told a story about a man who planted a vineyard, put hedge around it to protect it, dug a wine-press in it to take care of the crop, built a watch-tower so that a watchman could detect any thief who might break in to steal the fruits of the vineyard and give the alarm, and then let it out to "share-croppers" to take care of it and harvest the crop of grapes and wine.

Then he went away to spend his summer at his summer home in the mountains or at the seashore, or in some foreign city or country.

When fall came and the harvest season of grapes was on, he sent some of his servants for his share of the profits of the vineyard. The husbandmen beat up one, stoned another, and even killed another. They thought they had pulled a fast one—the man was far away and he would not bother to come all the way back to claim his share of the profits. When the servants failed to return, however, the man sent other servants, who were treated like unto the first servants. Finally, the man sent his son. Surely, thought he, these men will have respect for my son, the son of the man who owns the vineyard. Surely they will respect him and pay him for me.

But he was sadly mistaken. These husbandmen were cruel and callous characters. The fact is they thought they saw a chance to get the vineyard for themselves. They would kill the son, the heir to the property, and take the inheritance for themselves. That would be all that there was to it. One wonders how they thought they could get away with it. People can be so smart, and so dumb! So they killed the son, and threw his body out of the vineyard. And that was that! They were sitting pretty — they thought they were.

But not so! The owner came back to Palestine, had the criminals brought to justice, they were executed, and he made a contract with other men who were more dependable, and who could be counted on to "render him the fruits in their seasons." Here ends the story. What is the moral?

The Meaning and Moral of the Story

The story is a clever and fearful indictment against the Jewish leaders and the Jewish nation. God had given to them great privileges and possessions. Especially adapted to spiritual things, He had made known to them above all other people His Nature and His Law. He had brought them into the Promised Land and given them possession of it. He had nurtured and nourished them in the hope that they would bring forth the fruits of the spirit. He had sent prophets to them to instruct them in the ways of righteousness and to warn them against the error of their ways. Again and again they had refused to listen to the prophets and had shamefully treated them and turned them away, and even killed them. Finally, in patience and long-suffering He had sent His Son, His Only Begotten Son. But the leaders and the nation were going to reject Him and to kill Him. To them, much had been given, of them much would be expected. But the nation did not bring forth fruit. They denied their obligations, they defaulted on their stewardship. "What would happen? What will God the Owner do with the nation?" asked Jesus. His answer was that the nation would be destroyed as a nation. And that prediction found literal and terrible fulfillment. God cast Israel out, He set them adrift in the world, dispersed among the nations. They had lost their chance; they had stoned the prophets, and they would kill His Son, and now they were to be miserably destroyed. And their chance in the vineyard, the chance to act with national power in God's purpose—was given to other men and to other nations. This story was literally fulfilled. It is sobering to read history on this point.

But there is something more to the story, something more universal. It was given to other peoples and other nations to fulfil God's purpose. So long as these nations and peoples "render unto God the fruits of the seasons, they will find favor with God." But let them stone the prophets, and crucify the Son, and they too shall suffer and perish. There is a universal law at work here. "Unto whomsoever much is given, of him will much be required."

The law applies also to individuals. Ah, there's the rub! Eventually every man must face this judgment of God. Sooner or later every one of us must give an account of himself to God. Each one of us must render an account of his stewardship. God has given to every one of us some gift, some talent, some capacity, some opportunity. Let every man take heed unto himself. Let every man learn how to be a good steward of all that he is and has. And let no man reject Christ, the Son of God and thus crucify Him afresh.

Based on "International Sunday School Lessons," copyrighted 1951 by Division of Christian Education, National Council of the Churches in the U. S. A.

"Our Vision and Our Obligation"

A Sermon

By REV. J. EVERETTE NEESE.

[This sermon was delivered to the congregation of the Second Congregational Christian Church, Norfolk, Va., Sunday, January 18th.]

TEXT: Where there is no vision the people perish.—Prov. 29:18.

Three books in the Old Testament are ascribed to Solomon. The Song of Solomon or Canticles of Solomon, as it is sometimes called, which was written when he was very young and filled with the Holy Spirit, before his accession to the throne; Proverbs, written in the days of his glory and power (for he writes of himself as "the son of David, King of Israel"); and Ecclesiastes, written in his later years (for he writes of himself as "the Son of David, King of Jerusalem"—perhaps, at that time his influence had grown less upon the distant tribes and he confined himself very much to Jerusalem).

My message to you this morning deals particularly with one verse from the Book written during Solomon's days of glory, power and wisdom: Proverbs 29:18 where he says without equivocation or apologies, "Where there is no vision, the people perish."

Truer words were never spoken by the wise of any generation. For it is by our visions we live, and he who is without vision is without hope, and he who is without hope is without life. Further, he whose thoughts and aspirations are bounded by the narrow horizons of today, who has no vision and plan for what lies beyond it, is living out his days concealed within a circle without purpose or end.

On the other hand, however, where there is vision there is life. For it is the vision that quickens our pulses and arouses our spirits and sends us forth to victory. A concrete example of that is evident on the grounds and in the sanctuary where we now worship. This vision, nevertheless, is not the priceless possession of ourselves alone. Each age and generation has been its possessor.

In the closing years of the nineteenth century, the Southern Christian Convention grasped a vision of Christian Education which became crystalized in the form of a resolution and later solidified in form of a building—and Elon College opened its doors in 1890 to receive students who were interested in higher Christian education. The doors of that institution were not opened because someone laid on the line the necessary dollars and said, "I command this institution to be born," but because our church leaders saw the need of an educated ministry and laity, and to them the vision came, for no longer must the people perish in their darkness and ignorance.

So year after year there marched the graduating class—young men and women—having completed their undergraduate work in their preparation for teaching, nursing, law, engineering, the ministry, the medical profession, and so forth.

But wait a moment. What virtue was to be found in holding a degree from this church-supported educational institution? This, among other things, that those who have gone out from Elon College have gone out, having received, for four years, an education permeated with Christian ethics. Having learned, not only how to make a living but how to live each passing day in the light and knowledge of God. This has not been exemplified in the life of all graduates of the College, but all have been exposed to these Christian ethics. Not all people will hear the birds sing on a beautiful day, but those who do will find their life a little happier and a little more profitable.

One day back in the early thirties a young man then approaching twenty, having previously been out in the laboring world, laid the tools of his trade aside, took up a pencil and some paper and sat down in a classroom with young men and women younger than he. Money was not one of his possessions. He had only a vision—a vision of what he might be able to become and of what service he might be able to render to humanity.

Day after day this classroom experience repeated itself. Days stretched into weeks and weeks into months and months into four long, laborious years of study by day and outside labor for income, by night. And then on one beautiful day in May, Dr. L. E.

Smith, president of that institution, handed this young man his graduation diploma. It was a happy day because what he possessed had been earned by the sweat of his brow, the help of his companion and the opportunity and generosity shown him by that College.

The young man who graduated that day in May from Elon College, which has been supported by our Southern Convention Churches since its inception, stands before you today a bit older and I hope a bit wiser, pleading the cause of higher Christian education. Bringing to your attention the fact that were it not for the vision of our forebears, many, like myself, would not have had the opportunity of permitting the light of Christian knowledge to dispell the darkness of ignorance.

Our college has trained four-fifths of the Christian ministers now serving the 197 churches of the Southern Convention. Many Sunday School superintendents, teachers, church officers, laymen and lay women of our churches received their education at Elon College. In the Tidewater area in the professions of law, medicine, engineering, nursing, aeronautics, teaching, business administration, chemistry — are capable men and women who first began their educational pursuit at Elon College. And Elon College is in existence because church men and church women of the past contributed generously to its support.

Today the demand in the field of education necessitates an expansion of the facilities of our church college. And I say ours because each of the 35,000 church members of the Southern Convention own an $80.00 share in the material worth of our college. This institution stands today as one of the great independent church colleges of our country. Its services to ambitious young people are efficient, thorough and without prejudice to any denomination. All are admitted equally with our own church young people. This I know well, for I was in the Methodist Church when I went to Elon College.

At the opening of our college last fall there was a total enrollment of 657 college students and 15 special students. All of these, as others have done in days past, will receive with their education, the inspiration to be found on the immense acreage of the campus with its large oaks and blooming flowers and shrubs.

(Continued on page 15.)

The Orphanage

J. G. TRUITT, Superintendent

Dear Friends:

Sixteen of our churches and Sunday schools have remembered us this week. Thanks to each of them. I know personally several people in every church on the list. I have also preached in each church listed below. When I was a student at Elon, I was for a year pastor of Mt. Herman in the Eastern North Carolina Conference.

I hope every Sunday school will experience the joy of receiving a monthly offering for the orphanage, for during the next nine months we will be largely dependent upon these offerings. If you have a budget and pay your apportionments on a budgeted basis, I shall understand that and understand your constructive and business-like methods of doing your church work. But remember that God's mercy and grace are on a beyond-the-budget basis. There is joy in the first mile; there is greater joy in the second mile. Please take that monthly offering if you can.

Also, in the attached report, I notice several memorial gifts. For each of them a beautiful card in an envelope was mailed to the proper persons, showing who the donors were. We believe this is a good way to memorialize a person; and it blesses needy orphan children. These memorials amounted to $47.50 in this report.

Mrs. Bessie Stadler, house mother at the Baby Home, has been in the hospital about a week with influenza. She is improving. Several children have had the flu, but they are all getting over it. Jo Ann Rowland fell at school yesterday and broke her left leg between the knee and ankle. It is in a cast, and she will be slowed down for several months. Some of you will know Jo Ann, who is one of the thirteen-year-old Rowland twins.

Well, here we are at that time of the year when so many children have to have another pair of shoes. With all the mending we can do, they just will not hold out until spring. Most of the children take a pride in seeing how well they can keep their shoes and clothing. We greatly appreciate those persons and organizations who help us clothe several of our children. That is a big help. It would help us a great deal if that practice could be enlarged so as to take in every child here.

JOHN G. TRUITT,
Superintendent.

Report for January 29, 1953.

Commodities for the week.

Pleasant Hill Missionary Society, towels, wash cloths & clothing.

Mrs. J. A. Tierman, Asheville, N. C. Clothing.

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

Amount brought forward $1,104.25
Eastern N. C. Conference:

Auburn	$ 18.00
Catawaba Springs	32.10
Mt. Auburn S. S.	4.73
Mt. Herman	10.00
Wake chapel	50.10

Eastern Va. Conference:

Isle of Wight	$ 5.00
Liberty Spring S. S.	20.00
Rosemont	460.26
Oakland, Thanksgiving ..	17.10
South Norfolk	5.00
Suffolk S. S.	150.00

N. C. and Va. Conference:

Belew Creek S. S.	$ 7.00
Mt. Zion S. S.	6.00
Pfafftown	7.50
Reidsville S. S.	54.00

Virginia Valley Conference:

Newport S. S.	$ 25.48
--------------------	----------

Total	$ 872.27
-------------	-----------

Grand Total	$1,976.52
-------------------	------------

Special Offerings.

Amount brought forward $1,270.80

Lehigh Valley Railway Co., (interest)	$ 30.00
V. R. Holt, Burlington, N. C., in memory of Robert Lee House	10.00
Mrs. J. H. McEwen, Burlington, N. C., in memory of Ann Carol Burke	7.50
Colgate-Palmolive-Pete Co. (for coupons)	147.50

Mr. & Mrs. R. C. Jarrett, Hampton, Va., in memory of Robert Lee House	10.00
Shelton Memorial Church, Portsmouth, Va., in memory of John Falk ..	5.00
Mr. & Mrs. R. Wayne Morton, Burlington, N. C., in memory of James Cowan	10.00
Mary Sue Brittle Sunday School Class, for Woddie Byrd	13.27
Mrs. J. A. Ingram, Winston-Salem, N. C., in memory of John A. Ingram	5.00
City of Durham, N. C. ...	5.85
Friendship Bible Class, Liberty Spring Church, for Dewey Morningstar ..	12.50
New Hope Christian S. S., Roanoke, Alabama	5.00
Special Gifts	61.00

$ 322.62

Grand Total $1,593.42

Total for the week $1,194.89

Total for the year $3,569.94

APPORTIONMENT GIVING.

(Continued from page 7.)

keep these obligations behind us. Of course, payments are always in order, helpful, and appreciated when they come.

Previously reported	$ 498.61
---------------------------	-----------

Eastern Va. Conference: Wakefield	$ 15.66
--	----------

N. C. and Va. Conference: Mebane	$ 21.00
Shallow Ford	20.00

Virginia Valley Conference: Winchester S. S.	$ 8.34
--	---------

Eastern N. C. Conference: Amelia	$ 11.00
---	----------

$ 76.00

Total to date $ 574.61

MEMORIAL GIFTS

"Instead of Flowers"

Dr. John G. Truitt
Christian Orphanage
Elon College, N. C.

Dear Dr. Truitt:

Please acknowledge the enclosed $..... as a memorial gift sent to the Christian Orphanage in lieu of flowers in memory of:

.....
(Name of Deceased)

.....
(City)

.....
(Date of Death)

.....
(Survivor to be Written)

.....
(Address)

Name.....

Address.....

AFRICANS WANT AN ANSWER.

(Continued from page 11.)

little he has. In the bewildering and stunning experience of having his life uprooted by a cultural and industrial revolution, he feels so often like only part of a person. Wholeness is his great need, and only Christianity can answer that need, for only Christianity can supply him with the dynamic faith that leads in the direction of, and prepares him for, the wholeness he is seeking.

"White people in Africa must also substitute faith for fear. They fear Africans because of their numbers, and because they do not know them. But once faith is substituted for fear, good will for scorn, understanding for prejudice, the numbers become an asset rather than a threat. This is not a pipe dream—but a dream that can come true. It could come true faster if there were more of the heaven of faith in the African loaf. And wholeness is required in the white loaf as well as in the black.

"South Africa has more whites than all the rest of the Continent put together. Their two and one-half million make up about 20 per cent of the population of the Union. They rule the country, own and occupy 85 per cent of the land, hold all responsible positions, and can see no future policy other than perpetuating the present caste system, building up higher the walls of segregation. They talk about making, for the various color groups, states within the state, economies within the economy, and governments within government, but no moves of any substance have been made in this direction.

"Clearer, perhaps, than any other people, the non-white residents see this miserable declaration for what it is—a feverish and frightening attempt to put a new dress on the seedy, sad scarecrow of race discrimination. No informed person has any doubts as to why there are the riots, the assaults, the plunderings; as to why patience has run out and hope seems almost gone.

"... The spirit of the Africans is determined and we cannot altogether disassociate ourselves from that spirit for it is the same spirit that has moved honorable and courageous people in many times and places. . . .

"... The Africans may yet bring the white people to Christ in ways we cannot now see, but in the meantime we would do well to reconsider new approaches to old problems.

"... We no longer live in an age that allows plenty of time for planning and the kind of cautious calculation we would prefer—when we can say 'Let's move slowly here, and what we don't do now we can do tomorrow.' One of the harsh lessons of the last decade has been that tomorrow is usually too late. We don't like it that way, but that's the way it is; and the relevance of that jarring fact is greater to Africa than most people can see.

"Time is not on our side. But that handicap is more than balanced off by the other forces that are with us, if we will see them, consecrate them, and use them NOW: talents, dedicated lives, and shared gifts from the home base; Christian Africans, devoted to many branches of Christian service; and finally, the love of God for His children and the grace of our Lord which can accomplish anything.

"It may well be that in the next generation or two we shall see an African Christian church emerging, that will, in certain respects, not much resemble some of the forms and practices with which we here are most familiar. This could be a good and wholesome thing. It must not be expected that the African church will always following the traditional western patterns. It is quite possible that the freshness and simplicity of the Christian faith in newer Christian areas may find entrances both to the human heart and to the Kingdom of God, that have, in the older Christian cultures, become overgrown by the subtle camouflage of pride, prejudice, sophistication or neglect.

"... The great awakening that is yet to come to many of our churches here is that the mission of the church is more than a one way 'sending' operation, bound by a mentality that asks 'Are they learning what we know? Are they doing it as we do? Is their growth commensurate with our investment?' "

VISION AND OBLIGATION.

(Continued from page 13.)

It is my wish and I'm sure it is the wish of everyone to whom Elon has been an educational blessing, that this institution shall, through years yet unborn, serve our church, humanity and the cause of the Kingdom of God. This wish or vision can become a reality for the future if those of us in this generation do what we can for our college.

In 1935 the net assets of our college were $663,000.00. Today, those net assets total $2,767,000.00. And A Chance of a Lifetime is at hand for you and me. In its two million, five hundred thousand dollar campaign Elon College still needs one million, three hundred thousand dollars. A million, two hundred thousand dollars of the total amount has already been subscribed before the official launching of the campaign today.

With this additional one million, three hundred thousand dollars, Elon College will build the Virginia Hall for girls—$250,000; the Carolina Hall for boys—$250,000; the McEwen Memorial Dining Room—$250,000; two other dormitories to be erected at a later date—$250,000 each, and $50,000 to be added to the almost half a million dollar endowment.

This vision for the future compels us to break out from the circle of our self-centered thinking and in the name of Almighty God solidify our vision for the enjoyment and educational enrichment of the generations yet to come.

Our college only asks of you and me to give as we are able. Surely the minimum of $7.50 per year for five years is within the ability of the poorest of us. And many there are who will want to give infinitely more. For they will want their gift to express the measure of their faith and love and loyalty to their college and to their God.

Many a father and mother have died and left their children not a dollar nor an acre, but they have been rich, because they have inherited a vision which has made their lives a transfiguration mount. And so it is with us today. We are rich because of the vision which has been passed on, and it is our task to give this vision to the next generation in our investment now and our belief in the future.

None of our material possessions can we take with us; but what we leave behind invested in some worthy cause or institution as our College, will live on for the betterment of humanity in the years yet to come and will give rise to a vision for the next generation.

Therefore, on you, my friends, I rest the cause of Higher Christian Education at Elon College—our College—with the words of Solomon, "Where there is no vision, the people perish," morally, intellectually and spiritually. Make this vision of our church a reality through your contributions to Elon College each year for the next five years; and give as God has given to you.

From the Inaugural Address of President Dwight David Eisenhower

" . . . In the swift rush of great events, we find ourselves groping to know the full sense and meaning of the times in which we live. In our quest of understanding, we beseech God's guidance. We summon all our knowledge of the past and we scan all signs of the future. We bring all our wit and will to meet the question: How far have we come in man's long pilgrimage from darkness toward light? Are we nearing the light—a day of freedom and of peace for all mankind? Or are the shadows of another night closing in upon us? . . .

"At such a time in history, we who are free must proclaim anew our faith.

"This faith is the abiding creed of our fathers. It is our faith in the deathless dignity of man, governed by eternal moral and natural laws.

"This faith defines our full view of life. It establishes, beyond debate, those gifts of the Creator that are man's inalienable rights, and that make all men equal in His sight.

"In the light of this equality, we know that the virtues most cherished by free people—love of truth, pride of work, devotion to country—all are treasures equally precious in the lives of the most humble and the most exalted. . . .

"The faith we hold belongs not to us alone, but to the free of all the world. This common bond binds the grower of rice in Burma and the planter of wheat in Iowa, the shepherd in southern Italy and the mountaineer in the Andes. . . .

"So are we persuaded by necessity and by belief that the strength of all free peoples lies in unity, their danger in discord. . . .

"We are summoned to act in wisdom and in conscience; to work with industry, to teach with persuasion, to preach with conviction, to weigh our every deed with care and with compassion. For this truth must be clear before us: Whatever America hopes to bring to pass in the world must first come to pass in the heart of America.

"The peace we seek, then, is nothing less than the practice and the fulfillment of our whole faith, among ourselves and in our dealings with others. It signifies more than stilling the guns, easing the sorrow of war.

"More than an escape from death, it is a way of life.

"More than a haven for the weary, it is a hope for the brave.

"This is the hope that beckons us onward in this century of trial. This is the work that awaits us all, to be done with bravery, with charity—and with prayer to Almighty God."

The CHRISTIAN SUN

ORGAN OF THE SOUTHERN CONVENTION OF CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES

In Essentials Unity — In Non-Essentials, Liberty, — In All Things, Charity

VOLUME CV

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 12, 1953

NUMBER 7

This Issue of
The Christian Sun
Is Dedicated to the Memory of Our Beloved Editor
ROBERT LEE HOUSE

Fight the Good Fight

Fight the good fight with all thy might!
Christ is thy strength, and Christ thy right;
Lay hold on life, and it shall be
Thy joy and crown eternally.

Run the straight race through God's good grace,
Lift up thine eyes and see his face;
Life with its way before us lies
Christ is the path, and Christ the prize.

Cast care aside, upon thy Guide
Lean, and his mercy will provide;
Lean, and the trusting soul shall prove
Christ is its life, and Christ its love.

Faint not nor fear, his arms are near,
He changeth not, and thou art dear;
Only believe, and thou shalt see
That Christ is all in all to thee.

—John S. B. Monsell

News Flashes

Four new members were received into the membership of Second Church, Norfolk, during January.

Congratulations to Rev. and Mrs. Richard M. Petersen on the birth of a daughter, Elsie Jeanneine, on January 28. Mr. Petersen is pastor of our Shallow Ford Church.

Our sympathy is extended to Rev. John R. Lackey because of the death of his mother, Mrs. Fred B. Lackey, of Greensboro. Funeral services were conducted on Monday, February 2.

Dr. John G. Truitt and Superintendent Scott visited the Southern Pines Church on Sunday, February 1. Dr. Truitt also assisted the laymen of the church in setting up their financial campaign for the church budget and the building fund.

Dr. Edwin D. Miner, Regional Secretary, of the American Leprosy Missions, Inc., was the guest speaker on Sunday evening, January 5, at Second Church, Norfolk. His message was well received by the congregation and a contribution was made to the work of the Mission.

Word has been received that Rev. Silas E. Madren, Elkton, Virginia, pastor of Bethel, Mt. Olivet (G) and Mt. Olivet (R) of the Valley Conference, has accepted a call to become pastor of the First Congregational Christian Church of Albemarle, North Carolina. Mr. Madren will begin his work in Albemarle on April 1.

Work has begun on the Scott Memorial addition to the Hunterdale Church (Union, Southampton) where the Rev. Clyde L. Fields is the pastor. This addition will have a kitchen, dining room and several class rooms. The church has just closed a very successful Every - Member Canvass. Special evangelistic services are to be held during the Easter season.

The following is taken from the Newsletter of our First Church, Asheville, North Carolina, where the Rev. Frank E. Ratzell is the pastor: "Since we began this adventure of reviving the church with the assistance of the Board of Homes Missions and the Southern Convention, and the calling of the Rev. Frank E. Ratzell to the pastorate, more than forty new members have joined the family. Many of these have already accepted responsibilities in the work and have made themselves precious to us. The goal originally set was ten new families a year for three years. We have passed the first year's goal by a comfortable margin. It is our hope that there will be another fine group coming into the church on Thursday before Easter. The Membership Enlistment Committee will welcome the cooperation of the members in discovering persons who are inactive, or who may have no church at all."

In Appreciation of Robert Lee House

We, the members of the Board of Publications of the Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches, desire personally and collectively to express our sincere appreciation of the commendatory services rendered the Convention and the local churches in the Convention by the late Robert Lee House as the editor of THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

For over twelve years, Dr. House proved himself to be a worthy, faithful and efficient editor of our church paper. With sincere interest, consecration and dignity he labored in giving our constituency a paper of which it could be proud.

His relations with the Board of Publications were at all times on a high plain of friendliness, cooperativeness and Christian fraternity.

We greatly lament his untimely death, but are deeply grateful to God for the privilege of having had him as our editor of THE CHRISTIAN SUN during those years that he so commendably kept "The Light of THE SUN" shining for us and for God.

DUANE N. VORE, Chairman,
ROY C. HELFENSTEIN,
SILAS E. MADREN,
W. W. SNYDER,
WALSTEIN W. SNYDER,
CLYDE L. FIELDS,
SHIRLEY T. HOLLAND.

Bless the Lord, O my soul; and all that is within me bless his holy name.
... For as the heaven is high above the earth, so great is his mercy toward them that fear him.

—From Psalm 103.

Southeast Regional Meeting To Be Held at Avon Park, Florida February 24-26, 1953

The Southeast Regional Meeting of Congregational Christian Churches will meet at the Florida Conference Center, Lake Byrd Lodge, in Avon Park, Florida, February 24-26. The sessions will open on the afternoon of the 24th at 2.00 o'clock and will conclude on the 26th at noon.

The Southeast Regional Meeting is composed of representatives of the Congregational Christian Churches of the Southeast, including the Southern Convention, the Southeast Convention, Convention of the South, and the Florida Conference. Representatives of educational institutions in the region are corresponding members and are invited to attend the meeting.

The purpose of the Southeast Regional Meeting, as stated in the constitution, is for "fellowship, inspiration, and study of the common problems of the region in relation to its own responsibilities and opportunities, and to the entire world Christian enterprise. Its purposes shall be implemented by recommendations to the constituent areas and to the national boards and agencies."

An excellent program has been arranged. The general theme will be "The Living Church," with principle addresses by Dr. Douglas Horton on "The Church Itself," by Dr. Aurelius Pinckney on "The Church for these Times," by Dr. Henry Smith Leiper on "The Church and Its Christian World Mission." Dr. Truman B. Douglass will deliver an address on the "Sanderson Report on the Southeast." Other addresses will be given by Dr. Victor Obenhaus on "Education as Related to the Church", Dr. Wofford Timmons on "Evangelism," Dr. Nelson Dreier on "Christian Stewardship." Dr. W. Millard Stevens will serve as chaplain on the first evening. Dr. Jesse H. Dollar will be the leader on the Seminar on Christian Stewardship. Other seminars will be on Evangelism, under the direction of Dr. Ernest Collins of Daytona Beach, Florida, and Education, under the direction of Dr. David W. Shepherd.

The Southern Convention is officially represented by 20 delegates, appointed by the conferences and by President Stevens, as follows:

Eastern Virginia Conference—Dr. W. M. Stevens, President of Southern Convention, and on program; Dr.

(Continued on page 11.)

Laymen and the Church . . .

The Southern Convention Laymen's Meeting

Approximately 300 Southern Convention laymen attended the Winter Rally held at Elon College on Sunday, February 8. The Valley Conference was the only one not represented.

Preceding the meeting, W. B. Williams of Newport News, Virginia, the chairmen of the Convention Laymen; Prof. J. Earl Danieley, vice-chairman of Elon College, and S. H. Pell, secretary-treasurer, of Ramseur, North Carolina, had done a good job of Written Just After the Funeral Services for Robert Lee House At Southern Pines, N. C.

We have just returned from Southern Pines, where we held funeral services for our beloved brother—Robert Lee House. It was a beautiful day—as it should have been for such a wonderful character. The church at Southern Pines, served so faithfully by Robert House, was beautiful and large numbers filed the church for the service honoring the memory of this beloved pastor. The church choir and organist rendered fitting and favorite music numbers of their pastor. Brother John G. Truitt prayed a lovely prayer of thanksgiving to our Heavenly Father for the gift of this good life lived among us, of comfort to a sorrowing wife and their little children, courage and hope and promise to this pastorless congregation. Our good brother L. E. Smith gave high and fitting tribute to the life and work of Robert Lee House as Christian, churchman, editor, and friend. Our hearts were heavy in our sudden and tragic sorrow, and yet we rejoiced that it had been our privilege to work with this beloved Christian brother.

Robert Lee House was truly a great man. Young in years, he was mature in judgment, deep in consecration. There was not a single interest of his church and the Kingdom of our Lord where he did not give his best interest, concern and service. He spent tireless hours in the service of his local church, conference and convention. He made a magnificent contribution. He made a magnificent contribution. (Continued on page 11.)

preparing for the session. Hearty thanks are also due W. H. Baker of Newport News for the splendid work he did in publicity.

The meeting opened at 2:00 p. m., in Whitley Auditorium with registration. At 2:30, W. H. Baker directed a song service, and Mr. Danieley conducted an impressive worship service. The official welcome was extended by President L. E. Smith. Rev. Henry E. Robinson, chairman of the Committee on Moonelon, presented a brochure on the plans for the development of Moonelon as a Convention Assembly Grounds for Young People's Summer Conferences, Laymen's meetings, Women's meetings, and a recreational center for the orphanage children and students at Elon College. The Laymen's Fellowship of the Convention has accepted Moonelon as a project and will endeavor, through local groups, to raise funds for needed buildings.

Feature addresses were given by Rev. David H. Sandstrom, New York City, director of Stewardship of the New York Congregational Christian Conference; and Dr. Robert Cashman of Chicago, the Moderator of the General Council of Congregational Christian Churches. Superintendent Wm. T. Scott spoke briefly on Evangelism.

The meeting was concluded with a banquet in the Elon College Dining Hall, where Dr. Cashman and Mr. Sandstrom made addresses.

W. T. S.

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr
A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom as represented by the Congregational Christian Churches.

Our Principles

1. The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
2. Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
3. The Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
4. Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and church membership.
5. The right of private judgment and liberty of conscience is a privilege that should be accorded to and exercised by all.

EditorRobert Lee House
Managing EditorJohn T. Kernodle

Departmental Editors—Convention, Wm. T. Scott; Missions, F. C. Lester; Women's Work, Mrs. F. C. Lester; Young People's Work, Max Vestal; Children, Mrs. R. L. House; Sunday School Lesson, H. S. Hardcastle.

Institutional Representatives—Elon College, L. E. Smith; The Christian Orphanage, John G. Truitt.

Board of Publications—Duane Vore, Chairman, S. T. Holland, Secretary; R. C. Helfenstein, S. E. Madren, W. W. Snyder, G. D. Colclough, Treasurer, ex officio.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Year$3.00
Two Years 5.00

Published by the Board of Publications of The Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches, Inc. Printed every Thursday except the last in June and December by Central Publishing Co., Inc., Richmond, Va.

Entered as second-class matter at the Post Office at Richmond Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

General contributions should be addressed to the editor at Southern Pines, N. C., and should reach him by Wednesday of the week preceding date of publication.

Departmental material should be sent to the proper departmental editor, at the address shown on their page.

All other material and business communications except regarding subscriptions should be sent to the Office of Publication, 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond 19, Va.

The Christian Sun Subscription Blank

Subscription Price: 1 year, $3.00; 2 years, $5.00

Date.....195...

Dr. Wm. T. Scott, Supt.,
Elon College, N. C.

Enclosed find $..... for which please send The Christian Sun
() 1 year, () 2 years — () New Subscription, () Renewal.

To

Address

Who is a member of Church

() Renew, () Enter my own subscription for () 1 year, () 2 years.

My Name

My Address

From the EDITOR'S Desk

ROBERT LEE HOUSE

It is fitting that this, the editorial page of this memorial issue of The Christian Sun, should be especially dedicated to the memory of Robert Lee House. Though the message of his pen is stilled, the message of his life will continue through the years to infuse and inspire the Church he loved so devotedly and served so well.

Robert Lee House--A Brief Obituary

Robert Lee House was born on June 9, 1906, on a farm in Franklin County, North Carolina, four miles west of Franklinton, the son of Alexander Macon and Annie Lee Jones House. His mother was a school teacher, and he received his early schooling in his home. However, at the age of ten, he entered Mt. Olivet School, entering the 5th grade. He later drove the first school bus in Franklin County.

Robert Lee entered Duke University in the fall of 1925. He had previously registered at Elon College, but was offered a home in Durham, and so went to Duke. He graduated with honors in 1928, having earned his A. B. degree in three years. He spent 1930 at Duke, doing graduate work. He also did graduate work at Union Theological Seminary in New York, spending part of 1933 there. In recognition of his service to his church, Elon College bestowed upon him the degree of Doctor of Divinity two years ago.

During the time he was at Duke University, he served as pastor of Hank's Chapel, Martha's Chapel and Beulah Church, all in the Eastern North Carolina Conference. His first pastorate after leaving Duke was in Newport News, Virginia, in the Eastern Virginia Conference. It was while at Newport News that he obtained leave of absence to study at Union Theological Seminary.

His pastorate at Newport News began in November, 1931, and continued until November, 1936. The ground work that he did for this church played an important part in the wonderful harvest that has been reaped there in these later years.

He was called from Newport News to serve the First Christian Church in Portsmouth, Virginia, serving there from November, 1936, to January, 1940, when the Mission Board of the Southern Convention drafted him for the work in Richmond, Virginia.

When Robert Lee House came to Richmond, he found a church that had recently gone through with the liquidating of the larger part of a $40,000 debt. The Southern Convention and the National Church Building Society had helped with grants, and the Building Society extended it a final loan of $10,000. A good job had been done, but the church was weary and exhausted. His was a hard fight during the years he was in Richmond. But when he left, the church was free of debt, and for the size of its membership, its stands high in its contributions both for current expenses and for benevolences.

It was a hard decision to make when accepted the call to Southern Pines, but he decided that there was a new challenge there for his strength, and that it was his duty to answer that call. He left Richmond in November, 1949, to serve the Church of Wide Fellowship at Southern Pines, North Carolina. Later, he also served Hope Mills.

He had just returned from the meeting of the General Council at Claremont, California, when, on September 2, 1952, he suffered a severe attack of coronary thrombosis. He was in the hospital for about three weeks and made an almost spectacular recovery. We saw him just after Christmas and he seemed much improved, and his physician was encouraged. Certainly his exuberant spirit had not failed him. In his last letter he wrote: "I have to follow a modified schedule for a while, but I am getting stronger." Then came the phone call on January 20, notifying the office of his death.

Just a few days prior to this the Southern Pines Church had extended him a call for three years, but he had declined, asking that instead he be allowed to serve on a yearly basis. His last sermon was preached at Hope Mills.

Soon after coming to Richmond, Lee House became editor of The Christian Sun, which position he held until his death. This work he did in addition to his other multitudinous tasks. He was also much interested in music, and at the time of his last illness had begun a book on music in the church. He played the piano by ear, he also had played trumpet and saxophone, and he was an accomplished clarinetist. His favorite music was Bach's "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring." Among his favorite hymns was the one on our first page, "Fight the Good Fight," by John S. B. Monsell.

Robert Lee House was married to June Joy Hyatte, the daughter of T. G. and Bessye Baker Hyatte, on June 9, 1936, this being her birthday as well as his. Officiating at the wedding were Drs. L. E. Smith and N. G. Newman.

There are three children: Jonathan, who was born on December 13, 1944; Andrea Lee, born on September 25, 1946 (the wedding anniversary of her great grandparents Baker); and Joyanna, who was born on May 28, 1948.

Robert Lee House was "a big man" in many ways. Physically, he was six feet tall, and normally he weighed 206 pounds of stubborn energy. He dreaded inactivity, and often expressed himself as wanting "To go in the heat of the fray, in full armour." God granted him his wish. J.T.K.

Robert Lee House--A Big Man

[An address delivered by Reverend H. S. Harcastle at the Funeral Services of Dr. Robert Lee House in the First Congregational Christian Church, Newport News, Virginia, January 23, 1953.]

I have been given the high privilege, and the hard task of speaking a few words on this occasion. It is a high privilege because I counted Robert Lee House as one of most highly regarded and warmly esteemed fellow-ministers. It is a hard task, not because it has been hard to think of good things to say about him, but because my heart is so full that it is hard to say them.

Instead of taking a text as the basis of what I shall say, I want to tell you a story, a simple story that seems to me most appropriate for the occasion. A gentleman who had a country estate was expecting a dear friend to visit him over the week-end when they were to do some hunting. He was struck down with a severe cold and was not able to drive into the large town nearby to meet his friend. Instead he summoned his servant and told him to meet his friend. The servant asked his master how he was to know his friend among all the people that might get off the train. The man replied, "When the train stops and the people get off, you look around until you see a big man, helping somebody. That will be my friend." A BIG MAN, HELPING SOMEBODY. Does that remind you folks of anybody? Come to think of it, are not those words most appropriate as a description of the man in whose honor we are met today. It seems to me that Robert Lee House was a big man who was always helping somebody.

I. Robert Lee House Was Big in Body.

He was a big man. He had a large frame on which God had built a large body. That body was crowned by a massive head. He was a big man, easily seen in any crowd. I do not know how much he weighed, how much he could lift, how strong he was in muscle pounds and power. But that large body was apparently a strong body. It had to be to carry the heavy load of work which he did. He seemingly had boundless strength and inexhaustible energy. He could work long hours at hard work both day and night. He could do an amazing amount of work, and do it well. And it seemed that that body with all its strength was dedicated to God and to the service of his fellowmen. Robert Lee House was a man big in body who helped somebody.

II. Robert Lee House Was Big in Mind.

I had the privilege of becoming more or less intimately associated with Robert Lee House. I made two long trips with him to the meetings of the General Council. I made innumerable trips with him to meetings of the various Boards of the Conferences and the Convention. I spent a week with him in his home and in an Institute at Franklinton. I had many informal contacts with him, and I came to know him quite well. And again and again, I was impressed, and even amazed at the bigness of the man's mind. There was nothing little about it. It was characterized by a breadth of interest, an eager search for truth, a hunger for knowledge, a freshness, a spontaneity, a versatility, a resourcefulness, a profundity, and a creativity that was far above the average. I think he was one of the deepest and best thinkers in our larger fellowship. He had a big mind.

He was an omnivorous reader—everything was grist for his mental mill. He was a master-writer. There was nothing dull or prosaic or stale about what he wrote. He had a large and varied vocabulary and he knew how to use it with telling effect. He was a successful editor. The editorials in THE CHRISTIAN SUN would compare favorably with the editorials in any church paper in the country. He was a stimulating preacher. At times he preached with prophetic fervor, and always with power and conviction. Out of study and meditation and prayer and hard work, he fashioned sermons that had a note of authority and a strong appeal. These are only a few of the many facets of the man's mind that stamped him not only as a man who had a big body, but a big mind.

III. Robert Lee House Was Big in Heart.

I do not know, of course, how big his heart was physically. It must have been a big heart in that sense to function efficiently in such a large body. But I know he had a big heart in a figurative sense. He had to have a big heart to hold all the things that it held. He loved life. Life for him was good, greatly to be desired, wisely to be used, lavishly to be spent for others. He enjoyed life. He loved humor. Who is there of us who shared his company who does not recall his clever witticisms, his goods jokes, his unique chuckle, his hearty and at times uproarious laugh? His merry heart was good medicine for the spirit of man.

He loved his family. He was a family man. The marriage vow had a sacramental significance for him, and home life was sweet and sacred. He looked upon home as one of God's best gifts to men, and he brought dignity and honor to the home. His varied activities did not prevent him from devoting time and thought to his home and to the members of the family circle. And what the years that he had with his family lacked in length, they more than made up in quality and spirit.

He loved his fellowmen. His heart was big enough to take them all in. He knew the follies and the foibles of men, but he loved them and had a passion to serve them. And this was true not only of the people of his own country and of his own color. He was a special friend of the Negro race. Among all our ministers in the Southern Convention it is doubtful whether there was one who had a more genuine interest in negroes, or one who tried to do more for them. He gave much of his time and thought to Franklinton Center and to the welfare of the negro churches in this area. And the cause of missions was dear to his heart.

He loved his church. He spoke again and again of what the Christian Church had done for him and of the deep sense of gratitude which he had to the church for what she had done. And that gratitude showed itself in action. There was an intensity about it. His heart was big enough to hold the people of other views and faiths. Robert Lee House loved the church, and like the Master he gave himself for the church.

He loved his Lord and Master. Back and beneath all that he was and said and did was a sincere and abiding love for God made known in Jesus Christ. For him, Christ was the power of God and wisdom of God, and the ideal of character. Religion was real and vital. There were no reservations in his inner creed and no compromise in his witness.

(Continued on page 15.)

Robert Lee House--Man of God

Doctor Robert Lee House was blessed with a keen intellect and unusual personal qualifications. In his church he rose rapidly to positions of trust, influence, and power. He was graduated from Duke University and Duke School of Religion. Elon College, the college of his church, recognized his abilities and achievements and conferred upon him the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity.

Dr. House was an ordained minister of the gospel, a faithful pastor, and a good gospel preacher. In the pastorate, he served churches in Virginia and North Carolina—in Virginia, Newport News, Portsmouth, and Richmond; in North Carolina, small rural churches during his student days in Duke University, Hope Mills and Southern Pines where he was serving when stricken.

Wherever he served his people loved him, his churches increased in membership, multiplied their services and widened their influence. Fortunate indeed was the community in which the House family lived and served.

His life and labors have come to an abrupt end. God rest his weary spirit. May Heaven's rich blessing be upon his heart-broken wife and children, his sorrowing mother, his relatives, the members of this church, and friends everywhere.

If I could speak for him I would say, "I have fought a good fight, have finished my course, kept the faith. Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness which the Lord, the righteous Judge, shall give me at that day."

If I could speak for the spirit I would say, "Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord. Yea, henceforth, saith the spirit, they shall rest from their labors and their works do follow them."

His works shall follow him. The many who have made their confessions unto him and received forgiveness at the hands of Christ will be telling of his services and unerring leadership. Those young people who have met him in the altar and spoken to him the vows that made them one will be telling of his love and benediction to them. Those parents who have brought their children in infancy to be consecrated to the church and dedicated to God will be telling of his tenderness and of his affection.

Those whose dead he has buried will be telling of his availing prayers and his words of comfort and consolation.

Truly he served and truly his works do follow him.

L. E. SMITH

A Tribute to Robert Lee House

Truly "a prince in the house of Israel has fallen." Robert Lee House was every inch "a man." He was true blue, pure gold, a real Christian, a true friend, a genuine brother in Christ. His untimely death is a great loss to our denomination and to the Kingdom of God at large.

To Robert Lee House life was a divine mystery, and the Christian ministry the fellowship of those called of God to make that mystery known through personal dedication as a servant of God.

Few men have so high regard for the office of the minister as he had. He believed that every occupation which seeks to honor God and serve mankind is a sacred ministry. To him there was no division of occupations into "secular and sacred," but every occupation having God's will and love and man's honor and well-being in mind was sacred. To him, life was a sacred trust, and the Christian ministry a special opportunity to bear witness of one's love for God as a partner with God in service to humanity; and he entered the ministry not because he wanted to do so but, as with every worthy minister, because of the divine urge which made him feel that he must.

It was his high conception of the work of the Christian ministry that inspired him to seek the best training available in preparation for his life work as a minister. He was a good student, an insatiate reader, a thoughtful observer, a clarifying writer, a forceful preacher, a devoted pastor, "a good minister of Jesus Christ." His judgment, observations and comments in ministerial councils always carried distinctive weight. Few men enjoy the confidence, the regard, the respect, the love, and the rich friendship of brother ministers as did he. In state and national councils of denominational and of interdenominational concern, he was universally recognized as a leader who spoke with the authority of sincerity and understanding. If his lot had been cast with denomination characterized by bishopries, without question his brethren, despite Robert's impressive humility, would have early marked him as a coming "bishop."

Though Robert Lee House "passed from labor to reward" in the very prime of life, he had rendered a greater service to the Kingdom than do many ministers who are privileged to remain at their task through their full assignment of "three score years and ten."

ROY C. HELFENSTEIN.

Robert Lee House and Franklinton Center

Robert Lee House worked hard and faithfully for Franklinton Center. In his boyhood he knew of the work of the school. During his student days it was closed and it became his dream to see it opened again in some capacity to serve the Negro churches of North Carolina and Virginia. He shared his dream with Dr. J. O. Atkinson who helped him find the way to render the best service to the school. In July of 1936 a summer conference was held and Lee House was there to open the door, sweep away the trash and welcome his bride across its threshold. Then began a 17 year period of unceasing service to the Negro race. He was made treasurer shortly before the death of Dr. Atkinson, who said to him, "My son, I pass to you a mantle that is not easily or lightly worn." Among his cherished papers was a letter from Dr. George Washington Carver concerning the work at Franklinton. Dr. House served as dean of the Summer School, and was founder of the Winter Institute for training Negro pastors. At the time of his death he was secretary of the Board of Trustees.

Five Protestant denominations will contribute to the construction of the new inter-denominational Church of the Open Door, to be built at the Far-ragut Housing Project in Brooklyn, New York. The new church and parish house, to be built at a cost of $250,000, is sponsored by the Baptist, Congregational Christian, Presbyterian, Methodist and the Reformed churches, in cooperation with the Brooklyn Division of the Protestant Council and the New York City Mission Society.

News of Elon College

PRESIDENT L. E. SMITH, Elon College, N. C.

Did You Recommend a College?

High School Seniors today are restless. They are uncertain what their lot shall be on the morrow or whether or not they shall be permitted to enroll in a college to complete their undergraduate education. The majority of them would like to go to college. The two big things that stand in the way are the armed forces of our country and money with which to pay for college expenses. Many of them fear that when they come to graduation from high school they will be facing their local draft board to answer the question as to whether or not they will enlist in the armed forces of our country. Also, a limited number of them fear that they shall not be able to meet the financial requirements of a college education.

The next question they face is to what college shall they go. Have you been asked these questions by your son or daughter or by the young people in your parish? If so, what answer did you give? Did you say that is a personal matter—you should select your own school, or did you say that you should be careful in choosing your college to make sure that it is the kind of institution that you want to enter; that aside from the curriculum and academic standing of the college you should consider the ideals of the college, the atmosphere of the college, the type and character of professor from whom you are to seek information instruction?

It does matter as to which college you attend. A college deals with the total personality of the student. Every student is a spiritual being as well as an intellectual person. No curriculum is complete that does not provide for the nurture and development of the spiritual self of the individual. To develop the intellectual self without interest or concern for his spiritual development is to deny to him that which he deserves in his preparation for life. Man is so constituted that he needs a broad curriculum that will answer the questions of his own mind and assist him in the intentions of his soul.

It is not too early for High School Seniors to select their college and apply for entrance, and certainly when they are considering this move, it is opportune for parents, Sunday school teachers, high school teachers, and ministers to counsel with high school students and give them proper guidance that they make no mistake in this important step in their lives.

Elon College is anxious for her own church people to come to her campus for their college training. If you have recommendations, will you please submit them, or if you know of young people who are seniors in high school and should enter Elon College, won't you please forward their names and addresses together with personal data? Send such information to Mrs. Warren Burns, Field Secretary, Elon College, North Carolina, or simply address to Elon College, Elon College, North Carolina.

* * * * *

The Two and One Half Million Dollar Campaign

One day last week, a young fellow came into my office and announced that there was one thing about the campaign that he wanted cleared up. I asked him what he meant. He replied that there were some things about the campaign that were misleading. I asked him to please explain. He stated that he was an alumnus of the college and a member of the church and he thought he had a right to ask a question. He wanted to know where the $1,200,000 is that has been raised. He had one of the posters in his hand. I told him I was glad he asked the question.

I gave him a pencil and a piece of paper. I called off different items. He added them up. They totaled more than $1,200,000. He said that answered his question and started to leave. I asked him if he had made his pledge. He said that he had not but that he is going to.

There are a lot of questions in the minds of a lot of people about the campaign. I have a few myself. I would like to know what our church as a whole intends to do about the college and about the campaign that is now in progress for the benefit of the college. Personally, I am hoping and I believe that the majority of our churches will come to the rescue of the college and do their share in this campaign. If not now, they will in the near future. Our people are interested in the college. They want to see it strengthened and are willing to do their share.

Reports are coming in a little slowly now, which is to be expected, but I am confident that as the weeks pass our larger churches will be sending in their reports and these reports will be encouraging and most helpful. We are certainly grateful for the churches that have reported.

	Pledged	Paid
Sunbury	$ 470.00	$ 110.00
Ingram		11.15
Spoon's Chapel		10.15
Beulah (Valley Conference)		22.50
Oak Level		32.00
Haw River	128.50	41.50
* * * * *

News Notes

The College Basketball Team is making a very good record. The team has six wins and two losses and is standing second in the North State Conference.

* * *

It is observed that laymen in different sections of our church watch our reports on conference apportionment. They express concern when the amounts reported do not worthily represent our people.

* * *

The Board of Trustees of Elon College will meet in Mid-Winter Session Tuesday, February 17, at 10:00 a.m. Reports concerning the state of the college and the operation of the same will be submitted for their consideration.

* * *

Elon College did not escape the flu. It did not reach epidemic stage on our campus, but a number of our students and some of our faculty members have been confined to their rooms or homes. Conditions in this connection are improving.

* * *

Everybody is interested in the Two and One Half Million Dollar Campaign Fund. Questions are coming from all sections wanting to know how the campaign is going. Your church has the answer. Make sure that it succeeds, that you may be proud of it.

* * *

The Laymen's Fellowship of the Southern Convention held its annual meeting at Elon College on Sunday, February 8. There was a very interesting program in the afternoon, a banquet at the evening hour, with a

(Continued on page 9.)

Church Women at Work

With Emphasis on Missions

MRS. F. C. LESTER, Editor

840 Sunset Avenue, Asheboro, N. C.

Women of the Convention Extend Sympathy to Mrs. House

The women of the Southern Convention will want to extend their sincere sympathy to June Joy House in the loss of her fine companion. Mrs. House is well-known to our women. She has served as an officer of the Eastern Virginia Conference, the North Carolina Conference, and the Women's Convention. Only rarely has one of our women served in all three capacities, and June Joy House is still a young woman. She has participated in our Schools of Missions. In other words, she is one of our fine women's leaders.

Many of us know her, and those who do, admire and love her. Therefore we want her to know that at this time we are thinking of her.

Her husband, "Lee," was always cooperative. He would "baby sit" while she went to a meeting. Or he would be her "chauffeur" to Elon, or wherever the meeting happened to be. This, as we see it, is one of the many things she has to be thankful for as she looks back over the years of companionship.

Theirs has been a Christian family, in the truest sense of the word. This can be gathered from June Joy's pages in THE SUN, which are good reading not only for children but for parents and teachers. Three qualities in family life which produce well-adjusted children, according to Dr. Paul Reynolds who has been speaking in our area, are: family activities, religion, and love. These have been the basis for the House home. And may we add that Dr. Reynolds says these well-adjusted children sometimes come from homes with only one parent living, if that parent supplies these three bases for happy living. And that, we are confident, June Joy House can and will do. Our prayers will be with her as she moves along this new pathway, serene and unafraid.

EMILY LESTER.

* * * * *

Memorials for Mr. House

There are many ways to memorialize a person—in stone, through books and flowers, and through the memories they leave with us,

It seems to the editor of this page that one very fitting memorial for our editor and friend, Robert Lee House, would be to help an institution into which much of his life, and thought, and prayers has gone. That institution is Franklinton. Many are the institutes which Mr. House has planned and led there. Many are the hours he has struggled to keep the institution on its feet.

Near his home community, working for people of another race, he has made a great contribution.

It so happens that this year the money from the Memorial Certificates granted by our Women's Convention goes to Franklinton Institute. How fine it would be if many local societies and individuals gave to Franklinton in the name of Robert Lee House, thus memorializing him by improving the facilities at an institution he served so well. Let us remember this now as we meet in our churches, and remember his services to our church.

* * * * *

World Day of Prayer Film Strip

By now most of you have already planned your World Day of Prayer programs, but it is not too late to plan to use the New World Day of Prayer film strip, entitled "World Day of Prayer Around the World." It presents a picture of World Day of Prayer observances and projects appropriate for young people's groups as for adults. Showing time is fifteen minutes and price is $2.00. It would be a wonderful introduction to World Day of Prayer program. Order from Department of Publication, National Council of Churches, 126 East 23rd Street, New York 10, New York.

MRS. KENNETH REGISTER.

If I had the opportunity to say a final word to all the young people of America, it would be this: Don't think too much about yourself. Try to cultivate the habit of thinking of others. Selfishness always brings its own revenge. It cannot be escaped. Be unselfish. That is the first and final commandment for those who would be useful and happy in their usefulness—Dr. Charles Elliott.

ELON COLLEGE NEWS NOTES.

(Continued from page 8.)

session of the conference following the banquet. We were happy to have the laymen of our church hold their meeting on our campus.

* * *

High School Day will be observed at Elon College on Wednesday, February 11. At the writing of this article, Thursday, February 5, approximately 50 high schools have accepted the invitation and more than 1200 seniors have expressed their intentions of attending. This will probably be extended to 65 to 70 high schools, with at least 1500 seniors. This will be a very inspiring occasion.

* * *

People on and off the campus who are greatly interested in Elon's present and future are asking when we are going to start to build some dormitories and a dining room. Just as soon as the church and alumni want us to and are willing to express their wants in dollars now and dollars that they will give annually for the next four years. You have the answer.

* * *

Mrs. Oma U. Johnson, Librarian of the College for many years, is this week discharging her patriotic duty as a loyal citizen of her country. She is serving on the jury for the county court now in session. She is now serving on a murder case which means that she is confined to the jury room during the day and locked up in the hotel at night. This is a serious case and a grave responsibility.

* * *

The Elon Singers are working hard on their program for the Spring Tour. This year they will visit churches in Virginia, New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Massachusetts and New Hampshire. They will give a program on the evening they leave the college and will sing every night while they are gone. They keep busy, do a good job, and represent the college in a fine way.

* * *

An evangelistic team, composed of ministers from Virginia and North Carolina and representing the Department of Evangelism of the Southern Convention, is visiting churches in the North Carolina and Virginia Conference this week. The purpose of this team is to instruct and inspire the pastors and representatives of local churches to inaugurate an effective campaign of evangelism in their own churches.

Missions at Home and Abroad

"A Page from the Carroll County Mountain Note Book"

Today marks the end of three months in Carroll County, and it is our first Communion Sunday. To all outward appearances it has been a slow three months—but now we have two Churches with constitutions, elected officers, and one cabinet meeting past and another to look forward to. It was no small blessing to see two deacons assist in the Communion Service today.

Rather than try to produce for you a blow by blow description of what goes on here for the next few weeks, I want to write a few words about "the idea of a mission." More than anything else, I feel that there needs to be clear mutual understanding on the part of the churches of the Convention, and you, and your missionary representatives as to what we are trying to do here. I hope to use several of these columns to suggest some of the areas of my own concern, with the hope that you will respond in one way or another. No philosophy of missions, if one can call it that, can be confined to a single paragraph or a five minute speech, so I trust you will labor through this with me.

I will take no text, but refer you to history for the place of the beginning of our thought. Some twenty-five years ago or more, you and your fathers felt a spiritual concern for the people of Carroll County. The concern arose from the depths of a Christian conscience. Doubtless, there was little examining of why there should be a mission here. In response to the longing for missionary expression close at home, you did a great and exciting thing. You sent a missionary here—to preach? No. Our first mission was the remarkable mission of teaching—both religious and secular subjects, if the ABC's can be considered that. That was the remarkable thing, that by enriching peoples lives through learning we accomplished the great goal of organized churches.

Today, as twenty-five years ago, I trust you are still concerned with the people of Carroll County. Today, as twenty-five years ago, the people of Carroll County are in the dark. We have done a good job with our schools, but other problems are as great as education was twenty-five years ago. Lack of sanitary facilities, general lack of concern for cleanliness and resulting disease is our major problem today. We again face an opportunity to do a great and exciting and remarkable thing. By the time these words appear in THE SUN, the Hills-ville Maternity Hospital will be closed for lack of doctors and nurses to staff it. We have no doctor who will make a house call in the mountains.

I have been impressed with the number of ministers our college has trained, but surely it must have trained somewhere in our Convention a doctor or nurse whose conscience is keen enough to want to work in our mission. We do not hesitate to hope for a doctor or nurse who could give full time to this work, but even a day or two a month, a tithe perhaps from a profitable practice could help in the remaking of lives here in these hills.

And a final word to the practical souls who might be concerned about financing a health mission here. The Lord will provide.

WILLIAM AND ALIDA WOLFE

The New Version of The Bible

By ROY C. HELFENSTEIN, *Pastor
First Congregational Christian Church, Richmond, Virginia*

Every believer in Jesus Christ as Lord and Savior, and every lover of the Holy Bible has reason to be devoutly thankful for the New Revised Standard Version of the Bible, because it is written more nearly in the language of our day and generation than was any of the numerous previous translations, and therefore makes more understandable many of the passages that were formerly obscure. For instance the word "conversation" was used in the King James Version for the word "conduct" as given in the New Version; the word "charger" for the word "tray"; the word "comprehend" for the word "overcome"; the word "ghost" for the word "spirit"; the word "wealth" for the word "well-being"; the word "allege" for the word "prove"; the word "demand" for the word "ask"; etc., etc. The King James translators lived in a day when many English words had an entirely different meaning than the same words have today. And besides the scholarship of the King James' period was not to be compared with the scholarship of today. The men of our own day who had charge of producing the New Standard Version had the light of the intervening centuries "at their service."

There have been numerous other Versions of the Bible besides the King James Version and the New Standard Version. And no Version has ever presumed to be final. There will be many more Versions produced down through the future years. And each New Version will be welcomed by all intelligent students and lovers of the Bible and of truth, for only those who are vitally interested in knowing the truth about "the Word and Will of God" will ever set themselves to the arduous task of giving the world another translation of the Bible.

As could be expected, people who have the least knowledge of the Bible—of its true nature, of its background and of its purpose and meaning—and people motivated by fanaticism and bigotry, condemn and seek to besmirch the divinely inspired work of the noble men of God who gave us the New Standard Version. But the number of such deluded reactionaries is pitifully negligible in comparison with the mighty host of intelligent men and women of every denomination throughout the land who devoutly thank God for the new light thrown upon the sacred pages of "The Book of Books" by the outstanding Christian scholars of our day who gave us the New Standard Version.

History tells us how in former centuries the contemporary reactionaries fiendishly burned at the stake the bodies of Bible translators. The newspapers tell us how today's reactionaries contemptuously and blasphemously burn copies of the New Version, calling down the wrath of God upon the men who prayerfully and studiously labored months and years for the honor of God and the enlightenment of all searchers after truth in producing it. How the angels of heaven must weep because of such attitude or conduct on the part of men who profess to be disciples of the Christ of Galilee!

No one is seeking to make anyone accept and use the New Version. It is simply available, thank God, for those who find it more helpful to them than are the other Versions and for those who, though preferring some former Version, also appreciates the

(Continued on page 15.)

Youth at Work in the Church

MAX VESTAL, Box 792, Elon College, N. C.

Goals of the Eastern Virginia Youth Fellowship

1. A well-planned worship service at each meeting.
2. Bible study of at least one book of the Bible.
3. Use Lenten Devotions.
4. Use Mission Study Books.
5. Make quarterly reports to Conference Treasurer.
6. Pay apportionment in full.
7. Be represented at Eastern Virginia Youth Fellowship meetings and summer camps.
8. Observe Youth Week.
9. Observe World Day of Prayer.
10. Send news articles to THE CHRISTIAN SUN and Eastern Virginia Pilgrim Fellowship News.

* * * * *

Suggested Plans for the Year

At the Presidents' Conference our four Action Program was discussed. It was decided that we should do more definite things concerning the Actions. These suggestions were made and the young people are to decide the different projects they would like to do.

Social Action.

1. Observe Work Day of Christ.
2. Study and put to practice ways to be better citizens.
3. Study and try to improve the relationships between Negroes and the white.

Personal Action.

1. Observe Lent by the use of Lenten Devotions. Lenten season begins on Ash Wednesday, February 18.
2. There are two books which will prove quite helpful in the study of a person's personal beliefs about God.

Interdenominational Action.

1. Make a survey of Negro Congregational Christian Churches in your particular community.

Missionary Action.

1. Purchase a heifer to send overseas to a needy area. This would be a conference project.
2. Local fellowships send money or articles to Christian Rural Overseas Produce.

REGIONAL MEETING. (Continued from page 2.)

Jesse H. Dollar, Chairman of Stewardship Commission, and leader of seminar; Mr. W. B. Williams, Chairman Southern Convention Laymen's Fellowship; Mrs. W. B. Williams, President, Woman's Convention; Dr. R. C. Helfenstein, Chairman Evangelism Committee of Southern Convention; Mrs. Garland Spratley, President Eastern Virginia Woman's Conference.

Virginia Valley Conference—Mrs. Cecil Whitlock, President, Valley Woman's Conference; Rev. R. A. Whitten, Rev. H. V. Harman.

Eastern North Carolina Conference—Rev. F. P. Register, President Eastern North Carolina Conference; Dr. Will B. O'Neill; Mr. I. H. Vickery, Chairman Laymen's Fellowship of the Conference.

Western North Carolina Conference—Mr. S. H. Pell, Chairman Conference Laymen's Fellowship; Dr. F. C. Lester.

North Carolina and Virginia Conference—Rev. W. W. Snyder, Conference President; Rev. W. J. Andes, Chairman Board of Christian Education of Southern Convention; Mrs. Wm. T. Scott, President, North Carolina Woman's Conference; Mr. Geo. D. Colclough, Laymen's Representative on National Laymen's Fellowship; Rev. Henry E. Robinson.

Staff Personnel—Dr. Wm. T. Scott, and Miss Pattie Lee Coghill.

AT SOUTHERN PINES.

(Continued from page 3.)

tribution to the on-going of Franklin Center for our Negro churches, where he was a trustee, secretary of the board, and for many years served as dean on a voluntary basis.

I pay this simple tribute to a brother whom I loved, and whose wise counsels I will sorely miss. But in his going I take more seriously my part of the work of our Lord's Kingdom. Thank God for this good life lived in our midst. May God bless and comfort his bereaved love ones, and may his church at Southern Pines press on in christian courage and serve.

WM. T. SCOTT.

Dr. Robert Lee House

News of the death of the Rev. Dr. Robert Lee House at Southern Pines, N. C., delivers a shock to many of us here in Newport News who knew him while he was in his earlier ministry. For several years Dr. House—his doctor of divinity degree was conferred not quite three years ago—was pastor of what is now the First Congregational-Christian Church in the East End. He made many friends both by his friendly disposition and by his interest in community affairs.

Shortly before his departure 13 or 14 years ago Dr. House stirred a rather heated controversy in evangelical circles through one of his sermons. Though not, as we recall the incident, attacking any of the essential Christian doctrines of general acceptance, he did question the inspiration of some portions of the generally accepted Bible. One of his remarks made the proposition that there is more inspiration in a great work of music, such as one of Ludwig Van Beethoven's dynamically expressive symphonies, than there is in some portions of the Bible as generally accepted today.

Well, the same Bible quotes the Saviour of men in one place as saying, "Judge not that ye be not judged, for with what judgment ye judge ye shall be judged." Dr. House at that time still was rather young. In some ways his sermon sounded as if he himself were questing for clearer perception of the whole Divine Truth. Whether these ideas accurately represented his fundamental thinking; whether, if they did, he continued so to think until his premature death at only forty-six, we don't know. Often a man's views clarify and crystallize as he becomes older.

Dr. House's reference to great music in this discourse was, perhaps, not entirely accidental. He was among those who both appreciate and seek to promote great music, being a member, for one thing, of the Peninsula Choral Society. It is not insignificant that the only music worth the name has grown up since the Christian era—and has stemmed from the church. Whether he was right in that day's comparison of great music with the Scriptures, at least Dr. House drew attention to the reality that great music comes of inspiration—and is in very truth a gift of God to men.

—Newport News Daily Press.

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE, D. D.

"How Jesus Answered Questions"

LESSON VIII—FEBRUARY 22, 1953

MEMORY SELECTION: "Never man so spake."—John 7:46.

LESSONS Matthew 15:15-22, 34-40.

DEVOTIONAL READING: II Corinthians 2:14-3:6.

The enemies of Jesus were trying to trap him. They wanted some evidence that they could use against him if he was brought to trial. They sent a delegation "to ensnare him in his talk." Before they asked their question, they used a little "soft soap," a bit of blarney. Listen to these unctious, unscrupulous hypocrites as they say, "Teacher, we know that thou art true, and teachest the way of God in truth, and carest not for any one; for thou regardest not the person of men." It was, of course, the truth—Jesus was like that. But on their lips it was hypocrisy and blasphemy. They thought they were smart, but they were really dumb. Where did they get the idea that they could flatter the Master and appeal to his pride and vanity? He was too smart to be fooled by their trickery. He knew they were not seeking the truth; they were simply trying to spring a trap. It put him on his guard.

The Question.

"What thinkest thou? Is it lawful to give tribute (to pay taxes) unto Caesar, or not?" That seems like a simple question, but it is packed with dynamite. Fact is the men thought they had Jesus just where they wanted him. Suppose he said, "No, it is unlawful to pay tribute to Caesar." This would have branded him as a "subversive" and would surely have brought down both the resentment and the punishment of Rome upon him. It would have been to deny, and to defy the power of Rome, and would have made him a traitor to Rome. And Rome would have none of that. The folks who asked the question knew that; they knew he could not dare to say "No" to their question.

But suppose he should say "Yes, it is lawful to pay tribute to Rome"; then he would invoke the ire and the wrath of the Jewish people upon his head. The Jews hated Rome, were restive under Roman rule, and most grudgingly paid taxes to Rome. If Jesus allied himself with the Roman power, he would thereby make himself a traitor to the Jews. To use a common expression, he would "be damned if he did, and damned if he didn't." It looked as if his enemies really had him. For if he kept silent, they would use his silence as incriminating evidence against him.

The Answer—a Question.

Jesus, as he so often did, answered their question, with a question. Perceiving their wickedness, he asked for a denarius, a Roman coin which was used in paying the tax in question. And when the coin was produced, Jesus held it up and asked, "Whose is this image and superscription?" That was easy, of course, for the coin had the image of the emperor stamped upon it. They answered, "Caesar's." "Very well," said Jesus, "render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and unto God the things that are God's." It was all as simple as that. But when they heard it, "they marvelled." And wise men still marvel at the simple way in which Jesus stated the relation between the church and the state, and the responsibility of a citizen to each.

Jesus simply said that when men live under a government and receive blessings and benefits from that government, they should pay their share of the costs of government. The citizens of a community or a country, who ride over the roads, enjoy police and fire protection, share the blessings of community or county or country administration, are under obligation to support the government. A citizen is under obligation to pay taxes, he should vote, he should be willing to serve in public office, he should be willing to bear arms, he should pay his share of the freight. This is not simply a matter of patriotism; it is a matter of religion.

"Render unto God the things that are God's." Yes, man has another, and indeed a higher allegiance. Even as, and while, he renders unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's, he must also render unto God the things that are God's. God is the over-all Sovereign. Indeed, men must obey God rather than men. But only in rare cases does one have to make the choice, especially under good government. The best patriot is a Christian, and the best Christian is a patriot. A man has not discharged all his obligations when he performs his duties as a citizen. The best citizen of the State is the citizen of the Kingdom.

Another Question and Answer.

"Teacher, which is the greatest commandment in the law?" That was the "sixty-four dollar question." There were 613 commandments in the Jewish law! Who on earth could tell which was the first, or greatest one of them! Well, Jesus could, and did.

"This is the first and great commandment—Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind." The word "all" is the key word. There is to be no divided allegiance. We cannot keep half our hearts and give him the other half. He wants all or nothing. Another phrase that is important is that we are to love God "with all our mind." Some folks think that a man must leave his mind outside when he comes into a church. Many people think that intelligence has little or no part in religion. The fact is that a man is to love God with all his mind. There is no conflict in truth. If there are any new facts in God's universe the church ought not to be afraid of them. If they are true, they are God's truth. Reason and intelligence have a place in religion as well as emotion. The man who refuses to think in religion, who worships without reason, is trying to deceive God. God wants no ignorant faith; he wants all of a man in his service.

A second commandment, like unto it, is, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." Love to God and love to fellowman—these are the first and greatest commandments. And on these two commandments "hang all the laws and the prophets." Every one of the 613 commandments of the Jews is based on the relationship between a man and God and a man and his fellowmen. Indeed Augustine once said that the matter could be pretty well summed up in the words, "Love God and do as you please." And there is a lot of truth in those words. If a man really loves God, he will treat his fellowmen right.

Based on "International Sunday School Lessons," Copyrighted 1951 by Division of Christian Education, National Council of the Churches in the U. S. A.

A Page for Our Children

MRS. R. L. HOUSE, Editor, Southern Pines, N. C.

Dear Boys and Girls:

God has given us two great mysteries: birth and death. We may witness each and still stand by without understanding in our hearts and minds. The mystery of death happened to the father in our family. We miss him in many ways for he was a kind and loving father, cheerful, a good singer and a real playmate. He read aloud to us, taught us songs, Scripture, poetry and non-sense.

Although he was busy with the cares of other people he had time for us too. He had great patience with big and little folk.

For a long time he edited this paper. He learned to read it when he was a little boy and never missed an issue. On his desk today is a notebook marked "THE SUN," and written down were phrases, sentences and paragraphs for future use in his editing.

But the greatest contribution he made to childhood was his love for music and his ability to help boys and girls love it. He sang all his life and couldn't understand why people went to church and barely opened their lips and some not even crack the hymnal! He directed a number of Junior Choirs and had studied how to do this work. He had just finished writing a book about church music.

And when we think of him with sorrow we can recall his voice singing a well-loved hymn that says: "He liveth long who liveth well."

J. J. H.

* * * * *

"Watch Those Fences"

By JANICE A. McDONALD

Issued by the National Kindergarten Association.

"Doll?" sixteen-months-old Donald begs, reaching for the one his sister holds.

"Dolls are for girls," his mother tells him, "and you are a boy!"

"Doll!" Donald demands.

Then she allows her little daughter to give it to him but says, "This will have to be stopped!"

Poor Donald is having a "fence" built around him while he is more baby than boy. His mother reasons that dolls, and dishes, are for girls. She and her husband are agreed that they want Donald to be a real boy, but, of course, they also want him to be a happy child. Now he wants to play with a doll. Will such play make him effeminate? Is this desire a phase through which he is passing? Is his mother right or wrong?

Now think of Donald as an older child and that he hears regarding dolls, "But you are a boy! You should be playing with cars and trans and tractors!" No doubt Donald would like to be doing so. Perhaps, however, he is the youngest boy in the neighborhood and his playmates are girls.

Children love to play house. One child is "father," another "mother." The dolls are the "children." The child's idea of proper married life is displayed here. Donald's mother thinks it is all right for boys and girls to play house. Yet, if Donald has heard "Only girls play with dolls," he may spoil the game for the others, because the role of "father" includes helping with the care of the doll children. Also, a small boy who hears "These toys are only for girls" may, after a while, develop a dislike for playing with girls.

If Donald is allowed to play with dolls and other generally considered girls' toys freely, he will be better off emotionally. Without a "fence" around him he will gradually find boys' toys more fitting to his needs and desires. He will be a real boy, and a nicer one because of his broader experiences.

There is a "tomboy" down the street who is in danger of having a "fence" built around her. Frances' mother worries because her little girl doesn't play with dolls.

"But she's a happy child," friends say. "Why change her?"

"Your Sue plays with dolls!"

Sue is a different type."

"But Frances is a girl! I don't think it's wholesome for her to play that she is a cowboy so much of the time."

"She certainly looks like a little lady on Sundays, and when she stopped at our house on her way to Mary's birthday party she was feminine enough. She fussed with her belt, retied her ribbon, and pulled up her socks."

Frances plays with both girls and boys. She is less likely to be "boy crazy" in her teens than some of her ladylike neighbors. Forcing her to play only girls' games, and requiring her to be careful of her clothes to an excessive degree, might easily bring about the development of resentment because she was not born a boy. Such a "fence" would perhaps cause her to dislike her own sex so heartily that she would later be happy only with men. A too-mannish woman, who presents a problem in any group, is not the outcome of tomboyish desires and actions in childhood, but, very often, is the result of unwise character-changing efforts on the part of her parents.

Consider the many "fences" built around children. Some of the most harmful are those that keep them from certain types of physical activity or games because of their parents' fear that they will be hurt, those that restrict their free time unnecessarily, and those that refuse to allow them sufficient time with their playmates. All of those "fences" seem good to these parents. Some "fences" are good: restrictions on movies and television, regular and sufficient hours for sleep, supervision when on the streets after dark, and a knowledge of children's companions on the part of parents. The ones first mentioned, however, should be watched, because any of them may hurt the child's morale and retard his emotional, social, and physical growth. Those are the ones we should keep down. Watch those "fences"!

The northernmost and southernmost churches in the world are within the jurisdiction of the Lutheran Church of Norway. The northernmost church, in the Norwegian islands of Svalbard, was destroyed during the war, but regular services continue to be held there by a pastor of the Norwegian Church. The Southernmost church, which stands on the British island of South Georgia in the South Atlantic Ocean, was erected by Norwegian whale fishermen. They have a local harbor there and gather for worship at the church

The right use of leisure is no doubt a harder problem than the right use of our working hours. The soul is dyed the color of its leisure thoughts. As a man thinketh in his heart so is he.—Dean Inge.

The Orphanage
J. G. TRUITT, Superintendent

Dear Friends:

So many people do such nice things. Several weeks ago H. L. Bondurant, of our Rosemont Church, Norfolk, sent one hundred ($100.00) dollars as a memorial to his sainted wife, Mrs. Gertrude B. Bondurant. To share the goodness of his heart and the benediction of her life with these homeless children of his Southern Convention here at the orphanage was a noble deed.

And a County Commissioner, J. B. Long of Alamance County, N. C. has directed that whatever mileage of expense money comes to him for his services to the County be sent directly to the orphanage. People do do so many nice things!

A little girl here who needed, along with eight other girls, shoes this week had no one helping her to that extent. When Paul D. Rudd, M. D., of Reidsville heard of it he sent check to cover the cost of the shoes.

The other night at Rotary Club meeting Oscar Chandler, of Burlington, told me that he was going to give us a nice heifer for our beef herd, and added he was feeding her through the winter since our feed may be short. By the way, that beef herd has twelve cows and calves in it now. His will make thirteen. Maybe someone else will break that "thirteen" by bringing us another. People do such nice things.

This week L. W. Wagoner was buying 1,200 cabbage plants at a very good price, from our point of view, and when they had all been counted the gentleman said, "Old Lady, these plants are for the Orphanage, lets add a couple of hundred free". Umph! why people should call their wives "old lady" I do not know. Anyhow the cabbage plants were very nice.

We've had two matrons down with "flu", and while they were down another had a call home to a very sick brother, so you see some times we really are up against. Yesterday to make bad matters worse my secretary came down with the "flu" too, so I am peeking away. I didn't realize the telephone rang so often.

The Rev. Tucker G. Humphries and one of his good laymen, Mr. Joe Saunders, have just left my office. They were over to invite our children's program for March 15. They will have us come over in time for supper—about twenty will be in the program—and following the supper we will present their program. Other churches desiring this program should be making their desires known to us here.

JOHN G. TRUITT,
Superintendent.

REPORT FOR FEBRUARY 5, 1953
Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

Amount brought forward	$1,976.52
Eastern N. C. Conference:
Amelia	$22.00
Morrisville	7.12
	29.12
Eastern Va. Conference:
Bethlehem (Nans), S. S. .	$26.60
Oakland S. S.	35.00
	61.60
N. C. and Va. Conference:
Durham S. S.	$26.01
Liberty S. S.	38.00
Mebane	5.00
Shallow Foord	18.00
	87.01
Western N. C. Conference:
Liberty	$ 5.00
	5.00
Virginia Valley Conference:
Winchester S. S.	$ 8.34
	8.34
Total	$ 191.07
Grand total	$2,167.59

Special Offerings.

Amount Brought forward	$1,593.42
Dr. & Mrs. W. C. Goley, Graham, N. C., in mem- ory of Major J. J. Hen- derson	$ 7.50
Mrs. G. A. Albright, San- foord, N. C., in memory of Mrs. C. E. Pritchett	5.00
Friends	60.00
J. B. Long, Elon College, N. C.	20.70
Willing Workers Class, Shallow Well Church for Ann Kinch	5.00

Robert Lee House as I Knew Him

For several years I was connected with the Board of Publications while Robert Lee House was editor of THE CHRISTIAN SUN. We saw each other frequently. I found him to be eager, interested, and quick to catch on and size up a situation. And he was always in the forefront of the thinking which would lead to larger usefulness of THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

In the meantime I was also connected with the Board of Control of Franklinton College, now Franklinton Center. House was outstanding in his devotion to, and vision of Franklinton. He had time and energy—or rather he had the energy and took the time—to do a great deal of work for Franklinton. It was an inspiration and a joy to work with him in the little service which I was able to render that institution. Robert Lee House's enthusiasm was always high for whatever he went into, and he was willing to back up his enthusiasm with work.

Also I had the privilege of working with him in his conference, and in his convention. My testimony to his devotion and consecration to whatever assignments he was given cannot enhance the noble record which he made, and it could be perhaps better spoken by many others of his fellows,
(Continued on page 15.)

Philathea Class, Reidsville Church	10.00
Special Gifts	237.10
	$ 345.30
Grand Total	$1,938.72
Total for the week	$ 536.37
Total for the year	$4,106.31

MEMORIAL GIFTS

"Instead of Flowers"

Dr. John G. Truitt
Christian Orphanage
Elon College, N. C.

Dear Dr. Truitt:

Please acknowledge the enclosed $..... as a memorial gift sent to the Christian Orphanage in lieu of flowers in memory of:

.....
(Name of Deceased) (City) (Date of Death)

.....
(Survivor to be Written) (Address)

Name.....

Address.....

In Memoriam

HOUSE.

News of the passing of Dr. Robert Lee House has saddened and shocked the hearts of the many who knew him and has called forth from tongue and pen well-deserved praise and commendation. It seems most fitting that to these should be added this tribute of respect from this vicinity in Franklin County where he first saw the light of day and from his boyhood church, Popes Chapel, where he first saw "the true Light that lightens every man that cometh into the world."

Recognizing this fitness we, the undersigned committee, in behalf of the members of his church, submit the following:

Whereas it has pleased our all-wise and loving Heavenly Father to remove from our midst our beloved friend and brother in Christ, be it resolved:

First, that we bow in humble submission to the will of Him whom Lee served so faithfully.

Second, that we extend our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved families and express our sincere regrets at the passing of one who will be sorely missed not only in his home life but in the life of the church.

Third, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to both families, to THE CHRISTIAN SUN for publication, and a copy be placed on the minutes of the church register.

ETHEL M. HOLMES
MRS. B. G. PERRY
MRS. H. B. CONYERS

LOHR.

Jacob M. Lohr, age 75 years died in Rockingham Memorial Hospital, Harrisonburg, Virginia, December tenth 1952, following an illness of about three weeks duration.

Mr. Lohr was a prominent laymen of the Virginia Valley Central Conference. Besides he was a life long member of Mayland Church. He was born on the Lohr home place, "long Meadows," two miles east of Mayland and lived his whole life there. He was a prosperous farmer, one of the large turkey growers in that area, one of the largest livestock and cattle raisers in his district of Rockingham County and for twenty years he served as a director of the First National Bank of Broadway. He was a liberal contributor to the enterprises of his church, a consistent Christian, a respected and beloved citizen, loyal husband and father and a faithful friend.

His wife, the former Miss Mary Virginia Kerlin, whom he married in 1902 died in 19-

44. There were ten children, one son having died several years ago. Three daughters and six sons survive; thirty-three grand children, one brother and other relatives.

Funeral services were conducted in the Brethren Church of Mayland, Thursday afternoon, December, the eleventh by Rev. Ralph Galt and the writer. His body was interred in the beautiful Church cemetery where his wife, son and other relatives were buried. "Jake," as he was known to his friends, lived an upright Christian life and proved faithful in all human relationships. Truly, the influence of his godly life will live in the hearts of those who knew him. His spirit has returned to God who gave it.

ROBERT ARMSTER WHITTEN.

BRANCH.

Mrs. A. D. (Miss Mollie) Branch went home to be with the Lord on Nov. 17, 1952, at the age of 69 and following an illness of several months. Miss Mollie, as she was mostly known, was a life-long resident of Portsmouth, Va. and for more than 30 years had been a most faithful and devoted member of Elm Avenue Christian Church. Mrs. Branch was a loving and faithful wife and mother and a gracious friend to all who knew her. Funeral services were conducted Nov. 19 at Elm Avenue by R. E. Tally, pastor, assisted by Rev. F. T. Loughon, nephew of the deceased. The large number of relatives and friends and the beautiful floral designs testified to the abundant life which Mrs. Branch lived. She is survived by her husband of the home, two sons, Roy of Virginia Beach and Rev. James A., Portsmouth, and one daughter, Mrs. Bruce P. Deans of Portsmouth. In addition she leaves seven grandchildren, two brothers, two sisters, several nieces, and nephews, and a host of friends. Burial was in Olive Branch Cemetery, Portsmouth.

Mrs. R. E. TALLY.

R. L. HOUSE, AS I KNEW HIM.

(Continued from page 14.)

but at least I wish to record it here in THE CHRISTIAN SUN, so dear to his heart. Furthermore, it was my pleasure to see his manner of laying out the program of his pastorate and his pulpit. I observed it was always done in an humble yet masterly manner, and churches which he served came to look forward to progressive growth, and to the performance of their duty toward their conference and their convention with all its enterprises.

In his home which was his joy and much of his inspiration, in his church as pastor and preacher, in his conference and his convention, as editor of his church paper, as a friend among his fellows he made the grade with something to spare.

JOHN G. TRUIT.

R. L. HOUSE—A BIG MAN.

(Continued from page 6.)

Robert Lee House's heart was a big heart for it was full of faith and sympathy, and understanding and courage and loyalty and love. He was a man with a big heart.

IV. Robert Lee House Was A Big Man, Helping Somebody.

He used his strength of body, his wealth of mind, his riches of the spirit in the service of others. His desire was not to be ministered unto, but to minister and to give his life and love in the service of others. Like the Master, he went about doing good. He was a good man, full of faith and good works.

A man's life does not consist in the abundance of the things he possesses. Nor is it to be measured in terms of how long he lives, but how he lives. As the poet wrote:

We live in deeds, not years, in thoughts,
not breaths,
In feelings, not in figures on a dial.
We should count time by heart throbs.
He most lives
Who thinks most, feels the noblest, acts the best.
And he whose heart beats quickest lives
the longest;
Lives in one hour more than in years do some
Whose fat blood sleeps as it slips along their veins.
Life's but a means unto an end, that end,
Beginning, mean, and end to all things—
God.

—P. J. Bailey.

I do not know what the spirit of Robert Lee House looks like. Nor do I know where in God's great universe, he now is. But I do know this: I know that this thing we call Death could not snuff out or stop his great spirit. And whatever he looks like, wherever he is, in the world of spirit, he is a big man, helping somebody.

And so,

I cannot say, I will not say,
That he is dead—he is just away.
With a cheery smile and a wave of the hand,
He has wandered into an unknown land.
And left us dreaming how very fair
It needs must be, since he carries there.
And you, O you, who the wildest yearn
For the old time step, and the glad return—
Think of him faring on as dear
In the love of there, as the love of here;
Think of him still as the same, I say—
He is not dead—he is just away.

—Riley.

NEW VERSION OF THE BIBLE.

(Continued from page 10.)

merit and value of the New Version. Most Bible students will prize each Version and at times in their Bible reading and Bible study will use each Version; for each Version has its distinctive contribution to make to a larger, fuller and better understanding of God's Holy Word.

In Appreciation of ROBERT LEE HOUSE

who has served as editor of The Christian Sun for twelve years (from 1940 to 1952). His brilliant mind and unique expressions have caused readers of The Christian Sun to look forward to each issue and the privilege of reading his scholarly editorials. During his twelve years as editor, Robert Lee House has been fair and impartial and has presented both sides of every question that concerned our church. He has been a mighty force in bringing our people to understand and appreciate the church, its opportunities and its problems. This citation is presented in sincere appreciation of a faithful servant who has gone beyond his line of duty in service to his denomination. The Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches is honored to have Robert Lee House as a minister and editor of The Christian Sun. We are happy to use this means of expressing to him our grateful appreciation for his invaluable services during the past twelve years.

[The Board of Publications, in its report to the Southern Convention, last May, recommended that Robert Lee House be given a citation for the outstanding work he had done in connection with THE CHRISTIAN SUN. This citation was prepared by a special committee of the Executive Board, headed by Geo. D. Colelough.]

The CHRISTIAN SUN

ORGAN OF THE SOUTHERN CONVENTION OF CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES

In Essentials Unity — In Non-Essentials, Liberty, — In All Things, Charity

VOLUME CV

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 19, 1953

NUMBER 8

World Day of Prayer

First Friday in Lent

February 20, 1953

FATHER of all mankind, throughout this day, and every day, help me to remember that a very real portion of Thy Kingdom has been placed in my keeping. Therefore, teach me to love Thee:

WITH ALL MY MIND—that I may think Thy thoughts after Thee, from dawn to dark; making beautiful and significant each decision of my daily living. Help me to remove all prejudice and small-mindedness, O Lord;

WITH ALL MY HEART—that I may love those whom Thou lovest, feeling for even the most unlovable and difficult of Thy children Thine own everlasting mercy;

WITH ALL MY SOUL—that I may seek fresh ways in which we can all be one in Jesus Christ our Lord, praying for Thy divine power to surge through my commonplace routine from morning till night;

WITH ALL MY STRENGTH—that I may work the works of him who sent me while it is day, seeking to channel through every act Thy devotion to the needs of both my neighbor and myself.

Remind me from moment to moment that this is not optional, but the last command of Jesus Christ, our Lord. Quicken me and use me this day, for Thy name's sake. Amen.

News Flashes

Rev. Carl R. Key of North Carolina's CROP, supplied at the Church of Wide Fellowship, Southern Pines, last Sunday.

Mrs. Robert Lee House has been elected a trustee of Franklinton Center. She was appointed secretary of the Board to finish her husband's term.

We wish to thank Rev. Carl R. Key of Durham, North Carolina, for securing the radio address by his brother-in-law, Rev. Loring Chase, which appears in this issue.

A large delegation of both ministers and laymen will represent the Southern Convention at the Southeast Regional meeting in Avon Park, the coming week.

Several have expressed their desire for more details in the passing of Dr. Robert Lee House. We are giving in this issue a statement made by Mrs. House, which we think will be appreciated.

The Associated Church Press will hold its annual meeting in Washington this year on April 8-10. THE CHRISTIAN SUN will be represented at this meeting by Mrs. Robert Lee House and, possibly, your managing editor.

Rev. Dwight Jackson of Benson, Minnesota will become the pastor of the Congregational Christian Church of Haw River, North Carolina, on March 28. Mr. Jackson is a graduate of Vanderbilt School of Religion. The church is looking forward toward having Mr. Jackson with them. We are running his picture on this page.

Dr. N. G. Newman's 85th birthday was celebrated on February 14, in the home of his son-in-law, Dr. Carlisle Campbell, Raleigh, North Carolina. THE SUN offers its felicitations. Dr. Newman has booked passage on the Queen Elizabeth sailing for England on June 3. He will attend the International Council of Congregationalists meeting in St. Andrews, Scotland, and will visit northern Scotland, the home of his grandfather, and other points of interest.

Evidence of God's Blessings

The Amelia Christian Church of Clayton, N. C., has been wonderfully blessed this past year. Having added our educational plant, which consists of ten rooms—all of which haven't yet been completed, we undertook to refloor our church, install new pews, new pulpit furniture, and paint the auditorium.

Every church has a goal to reach, I believe, and we have found that if you strive to accomplish it only for the glorification of God, you will succeed.

We young people hope to purchase the carpet for the floor because we, too, want to have a definite part in helping make our church a more comfortable place to worship. Recently our church had new gas heaters installed, which add a great deal of warmth for us.

REV. DWIGHT JACKSON

Many people may wonder how we plan to meet our expenses. Amelia Church would like to offer one good suggestion, for country churches particularly. We have found that "The Lord's Acre Plan" yields great dividends. A good deal of our money this year was appropriated from this project. The church, as a whole, tended several acres of cotton and harvested it; individual members also took a small amount of land and planted it directly for the church.

We know God works in mysterious ways, for many members have said that the land on which they planted the church crops seemed to have yielded better than some of their own.

We regret that our former pastor, Rev. Fred P. Register, who had been

(Continued on page 10.)

Hunterdale Church Begins New Memorial Building

Construction has begun on a new educational and recreational addition to the Hunterdale Christian Church. The new building to be called the Scott Memorial Wing, is a gift to the church by W. Hunter Scott and is dedicated to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Scott. The father died in January, 1951; and Mrs. Scott, who resides in Hunterdale, is a devoted and loyal member of the church.

W. Hunter Scott, donor of the new wing, is a prominent road construction contractor and civic leader, and is chairman of the board of trustees of the church. It was through his foresight and community interest that the village of Hunterdale has been developed during the past few years. The new addition to the Hunterdale Christian Church is only one of the many ways in which he has aided in the development of the immediate community.

The addition will contain a large dining room, a kitchen and several classrooms. The building measures 32 by 74 feet in the main wing, with two wings forming a "T" off the main wing and measuring 20 by 26 feet. The kitchen will measure 20 by 10 feet; and the dining room when opened completely will seat about 200 people. Of brick and cinder block construction, the annex will harmonize in appearance with the present church building. The concrete floor will be covered with asphalt tile, the roof will be covered with asbestos shingles, and the entire building will be of fireproof construction.

Under leadership of Rev. Melvin Dollar, a former pastor, the Hunterdale Christian Church completed in the early part of 1951 an extensive remodeling and building program, costing some $35,000. The building was consecrated on April 1 of that year.

The present pastor, Rev. Clyde L. Fields, announced recently that the indebtedness had been reduced to $8,000. The yearly payment of $3,000 on the debt has been added to the budget and was covered in the every-member canvass conducted recently of the church.

The Scott Memorial Wing will enable the church to carry on a full program of worship, education, recreation and fellowship. Under the direction of E. F. ("Doc") Spivey the construction work is moving along well; and the building should be ready for occupancy in a few months.

Evangelistic Rallies in North Carolina and Virginia Conference

During the week of February 1, 1953, six rallies on Evangelism were held in six different areas of the North Carolina and Virginia Conference: Greensboro, Virgilina, Reidsville, Gibsonville, Winston-Salem and Haw River. Some 500 people were in attendance. The largest group was in the Palm Street Church in Greensboro on Sunday, February 1, when about 225 people attended.

The host pastor in each case opened each service. Members of the team visiting each area were: Julius Rice, reading the scripture and leading the prayers; Melvin Dollar, speaking on "Visitation Evangelism"; Mack Welch, declaring that the day of Mass Evangelism is just beginning; W. J. Andes, telling the story of Personal Evangelism; and W. T. Scott, giving the "Personal Motive" for Evangelism. If no others were enriched, the members of this team found enthusiasm and courage in the ongoing program of Evangelism for the Church.

The theme for the week was: "Evangelism will build the Church." Dr. Scott, our genial Superintendent, brought a challenge that we will not soon forget. What a service he rendered to the Conference!

The emphasis on Evangelism is to be continued during Lent. Each church is urged to bring people to Christ and to His Church. The Committee on Evangelism hopes to give renewed emphasis to this from now through Easter. Each pastor is challenged to see that something is done in his church or churches.

There are many impressions to be gained from these rallies. It was good to get the churches of the North Carolina and Virginia Conference together in small groups, in local areas, centered about a central church. This we must do more often. Would that these small area groups would work together in this common purpose of Evangelism.

As secretary of the North Carolina and Virginia Conference, one gets a sense of laziness about our churches. We are too much satisfied with the members we have and are not concerned too much about those people outside of the church or outside of Christ's influence. In these rallies, there was the feeling that methods proposed to be used in evangelism were good but hardly concerned us just now. There was no "do or die" feeling, no inner compulsion to win souls to Christ and His Church, unless it was expressed by the visiting speakers. Have we lost the zeal for "lost souls?"

It was good to get this team together. Many thanks to Dr. W. T. Scott who gave so generously of his time that one week to one conference. Yet he spoke in all areas of the conference and laid bare his heart in the interest of God's Kingdom. The chairman of the team, M. V. Welch, spent much time in getting the rallies set up. There was a certain urgency in the minds and hearts of those leaders that we hope will not be lost in the ongoing of the churches.

W. J. ANDES.

Intimate Items in the Death of Mr. House

On Inauguration Day the school children of Southern Pines were given the day off, beginning at 11:00 A. M. The House family had gone to the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Earl Parker to see the inaugural events on TV. Mr. Parker is chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Church of Wide Fellowship and brother of Rev. W. L. Parker of the United Church, Raleigh.

As the families sat watching there was the usual comment and laughter. Dr. House told his son, Jonathan, he would remember the day to "Tell your grandchildren about seeing". He spoke to Mrs. House about the prayer of Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver whom they both knew and admired. When President Eisenhower began to pray, Dr. House clasped his hands together and said a fervent, "Amen". It was his last word. A few seconds (Continued on page 15.)

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr
A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom as represented by the Congregational Christian Churches.

Our Principles

- 1. The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
- 2. Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
- 3. The Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- 4. Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and church membership.
- 5. The right of private judgment and liberty of conscience is a privilege that should be accorded to and exercised by all.

Managing Editor John T. Kernodle

Departmental Editors—Convention, Wm. T. Scott; Missions, F. C. Lester; Women's Work, Mrs. F. C. Lester; Young People's Work, Max Vestal; Children, Mrs. R. L. House; Sunday School Lesson, H. S. Hardcastle.

Institutional Representatives—Elon College, L. E. Smith; The Christian Orphanage, John G. Truitt.

Board of Publications—Duane Vore, Chairman, S. T. Holland, Secretary; R. C. Helfenstein, S. E. Madren, W. W. Snyder, G. D. Colclough, Treasurer, ex officio.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Year	$3.00
Two Years	5.00

Published by the Board of Publications of The Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches, Inc. Printed every Thursday except the last in June and December by Central Publishing Co., Inc., Richmond, Va.

Entered as second-class matter at the Post Office at Richmond Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

General contributions should be addressed to the editor at Southern Pines, N. C., and should reach him by Wednesday of the week preceding date of publication.

Departmental material should be sent to the proper departmental editor, at the address shown on their page.

All other material and business communications except regarding subscriptions should be sent to the Office of Publication, 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond 19, Va.

The Christian Sun Subscription Blank

Subscription Price: 1 year, $3.00; 2 years, $5.00

Date.....195...

Dr. Wm. T. Scott, Supt.,
Elon College, N. C.

Enclosed find $..... for which please send The Christian Sun
() 1 year, () 2 years — () New Subscription, () Renewal.

To

Address

Who is a member of Church

() Renew, () Enter my own subscription for () 1 year, () 2 years.

My Name

My Address

From the EDITOR'S Desk

Lent and Opportunity

The late Dr. S. Parks Cadman, when asked what he considered the greatest obstacle to the progress of the Church in his day, replied, "The lack of a deep religious experience among professing Christians." The answer he gave is probably still the answer today. Indeed, the money-spending, pleasure-loving, comfort-seeking, of today fits well into the time that Paul wrote of to Timothy: "For men shall be . . . lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God; having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof." The Lenten Season gives each of us an opportunity—more than that, it demands of every Christian that he examine himself and his manner of living, that he may make of himself an example of Christian living that shall lead his brother toward God.

Have you given serious consideration of what this Lenten Season means to you? In the words of our late editor, "Have you seized it as an opportunity to understand him who 'descended into hell' and 'was made perfect through the things which he suffered'? Have you succeeded in making the Lenten Season a Lenten Experience? Let the sanctifying influence of this blessed season be to the rest of the year what the Lord's Day is to the rest of the week." During this season, take time from the accumulating of material things that endure only for a season, and give more thought to the building up of riches in the Kingdom of God.

"Everyone comes between men's souls and God, either as a wall or as a bridge; either leading men to God or driving them away." J. T. K.

We Build for Eternity

One of the primary topics of interest in America over the last decade has been that of building. We have been interested in finding houses for our growing number of families, school houses for our increasing school population, and more and better church buildings. In fact, we have been a part of one of the greatest building booms in the history of the world. This is a marvelous thing to watch and contemplate. However, it is at the same time a tragic thing, because this building boom is all directed toward that which is at best only temporary and material. We have so consumed ourselves in these material buildings that we have neglected the building of our souls, our faith, our character, and our influence for good. When all our material buildings have fallen into decay, the building of our faith, character and influence will stand, either for good or for evil.

Jesus talked a lot about building and he appreciated the skills which build both a house and a life. This was the basis of much of Jesus' teachings. For example, in "The Sermon on the Mount" Jesus is talking about building and abiding, significant and far-reaching life out of love and brotherhood—life which will abide as a beacon light on the horizon of eternity. Jesus concludes this profound and far-reaching message by pointing out that a person who builds life out of these things shall be "like a wise man which built his house upon a rock; and the rains descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew and beat upon that house, and it fell not; for it was founded upon a rock." Then he adds to that observation that those who do not build life out of love and brotherhood are "like a foolish man who built his house upon the sand; and the rains descended and the floods came, and the winds blew and beat upon that house, and it fell; and great was the fall of it."

In writing to the people at Corinth, Paul extended this theme and insisted that we are all builders with God. If we would build securely and effectively, we must build our house of life out of the things which can stand the fire of trial and tribulation. We must build out of stone and not out of straw. We must build on the sure foundation of Christ, because "Every man's work shall be made manifest: for the day shall declare it, because it shall be revealed by fire; and fire shall try every man's work of what sort it is."

We are all building! We are building every day for eternity! We are building either wisely or foolishly! How we build will be tried in the fire—the fire of day by day living, which is a refiner's fire indeed. It will be tried in the fire of our own influence on the lives of our children, our friends and our neighbors. It will be tried in the fire of God's Judgment. Day by day, the judgment of God's will rests upon us either in condemnation or approval. We cannot escape it.

Indeed, the life we are building today and everyday, we build for eternity!

W. MILLARD STEVENS.

Leadership and Progress

By ROY C. HELFENSTEIN, D. D.

Pastor of First Church, Richmond, Virginia

The people who are living now, are custodians of the progress made to date. Progress in literature, in art, in science, in industry, in agriculture, in religious thought and action—all this progress of the centuries was placed in the lap of the present generation with its challenge to "Carry on"; and it all can be lost to future generations if the present generation fails to "carry on," and to build upon its heritage.

We are living in the most perilous period of the world's history. No other generation has ever had opportunities like unto those we enjoy. The generations past have been our benefactors. We are the recipients of their service and it is our heaven-imposed responsibility to hand down to the succeeding generations a better world than was given to us.

The world today finds itself in a life-and-death struggle to determine whether the progress already attained shall be destroyed by war or shall be preserved as a contribution to the future progress of the race.

The progress that has been made in the realm of agriculture, industry, commerce and transportation, etc., is a challenge to the Church of Jesus Christ to move forward—to make greater progress in the realm of moral and religious interests which alone can make secure the progress that has been made to date in the material realm. Man is the only being that is capable of making progress—but man also has it within his power to destroy the progress already attained. Man was created for progress. Man at his best is always on the quest for something better. Human progress of every kind depends upon human goodness and idealism for its inspiration and for its security.

Progress is never realized apart from progressive leadership. Leadership per se does not always insure progress, though the word itself implies advancement. A leader either stands in the way of progress—to make progress impossible, or else he leads the way to progress. Every epoch in the world's history reveals the effect of these two types of leadership—reactionary and progressive.

Progress is not inevitable in any line of human interest. Neither the Church nor the State will go forward by their own momentum. Neither can any interest of life remain at a standstill—it must be either forward or backward. Browning's philosophy of complacency is not the philosophy of progress:

*God's in His heaven
All's right with the world.*

God has called mankind to cooperate with Him in the task of effecting progress in every realm of human interest that the kingdoms of this world shall become the Kingdom of our Lord.

The business of the churches and Sunday schools today is to train and enlist the youth for Christian leadership tomorrow. If the Kingdom of God is to move forward, the Christian leaders of today must train a more efficient leadership for tomorrow. A larger knowledge of things and their forces—a larger knowledge of men and their ways—a larger knowledge of God and his love are needed. But knowledge alone is not enough. Christian judgment is needed to save what knowledge produces. The Christian leaders of today in Sunday school and church, cannot make their full contribution to the progress of the Kingdom unless they seek not only to train the youth to be servants of Christ but also to enlist some of the choice young lives as servants of Christ in some line of "Christian-life-work." From our Sunday schools and churches some of the boys and young men should be declaring their life purpose in making decisions for Christian-life-work as ministers of the gospel, directors of religious education, missionaries at home or abroad—social workers—religious promoters of various types.

This responsibility of enlisting as well as training Christian leaders for tomorrow rests upon every pastor, every Sunday school official and every Sunday school teacher of childhood or youth. No pastor can hope to enlist young men for the Christian ministry unless he himself is in love with his work—unless he believes in it. Ministers need no sympathy for having entered the ministry—other doors of opportunity were open to them. If the Church is not worthy of the best leadership, then who feels that the Church is not worthy of the very best young people, the most promising students entering into its leadership thereby casts reflection on the Church and upon his personal estimate of Christianity. No pastor can hope to enlist young men for the Christian ministry unless he is willing and anxious to have his own children give their lives in Christian life service. Sunday school teachers of youth have a magnificent privilege in enlisting Christian leaders of tomorrow. Hundreds of the outstanding Christian leaders today made their decision for their life-work back there in a Sunday school room where some consecrated Sunday school teacher exalted Christ and the privilege of being a co-worker with him. Every Christian's parent has a tremendous responsibility in the work of enlisting lives for definite Christian service. Parents used to cherish the hope and ambition that at least one of their children should enter the ministry. Any Christian parent should be happy to have his son make this decision. Woe to the parent that tries to side-track a son or daughter who wishes to give their life in Christian service.

No person should assume the responsibility of Christian leadership as a life-work unless one feels the call of God to that task. The biggest business of life is that of engaging in the work of the Kingdom.

The need of consecrated leadership is great, but the need of consecrated "followership" is equally as great. There is a place for each in the march of Kingdom progress. All cannot lead, but all can follow. Leaders should recognize that it takes more grace to follow than to lead. Leaders are helpless unless those they seek to lead are willing and prepared to follow.

Cooperation is the key word that opens the way to progress. A narrow minded, prejudiced "followership" can defeat the purpose of the best trained, most consecrated leadership. If some people can't have their way, they "take their dolls and go home." Some people think they were ordained of God to stand in the way of progress. The attitude of every true Christian leader and every true Christian follower is expressed in the experience of an humble sailor who

(Continued on page 8.)

The Hands of Christ

An Address Delivered Over CBS Radio's "Church of the Air"
From the Studios of Station WCBS, New York City
Sunday, January 18, 1953

By THE REV. LORING D. CHASE
Minister of First Congregational Church
New Canaan, Connecticut

More than once during the past few months, I've had occasion to visit the fine exhibition of Rembrandt's paintings and etchings at the Metropolitan Museum of Fine Arts in New York. I found the etchings especially interesting because with the explanatory notes provided by the museum they show how Rembrandt grew both as a person and as an artist. One of his early etchings I found of particular interest. It is a picture of Christ, whip in hand, driving the money-changers out of the temple, and the museum's caption suggests an interpretation of one most intriguing detail: that Protestant Rembrandt was so little accustomed to haloes that he put one around the hands of Christ instead of around his head. But it has seemed to me as I looked at that etching that Rembrandt knew very well what he was doing. His placing of that halo about the hands of Christ as the symbol of the Divine activity showed a keen understanding of the New Testament, for anyone who reads the gospels soon becomes aware of the way that the hands of Christ made it known that God was present.

Think of how the hands of Christ expressed his Heavenly Father's will. As we turn the pages of the gospels, we see those hands, already made hard by the work of the carpenter's shop, touching the hand of Simon Peter's mother-in-law so that her fever leaves her; we see his hands laid upon the ears of the deaf to make them hear, upon the tongues of the dumb to make them speak, upon the eyes of the blind to make them see. We see them raising an epileptic boy from his seizure. We see those hands lifted up in prayer. We can imagine how they gestured as he told about the unworthiness of the man who put his hand to the plow and then looked back. We see those hands laid on the heads of the children whom he blessed when his disciples sought to drive them away. As Rembrandt did, we see those hands cracking a whip across the money-changers' backs.

We see those same hands breaking bread as the continuing symbol of his sacrifice, and then we see them pierced and torn in the agony of the Cross. And even in the recorded visions of the Risen Christ, the gospel writers make note of his hands. Surely the hands of Christ deserve the halo that Rembrandt gave them.

St. Paul said, "Have this mind in you which was also in Christ Jesus" and, of course, it is of first importance that we have in us the mind of Christ to direct our hands. But too often — all too often, — what takes place in our mind does not reach our hands. We have generous impulses, but our hands do not give anything. We have compassionate feelings, but our hand does not make the gesture of understanding. We think of things that ought to be done, and we leave them undone. We are outraged at the deliberate wrongdoing that we witness in many places, but we hold back restraining hands, out of fear or out of laziness.

Indeed, if anything about us deserves a halo, it is more likely to be our head than our hands. I suppose that the connection most often fails to be made between our heads and our hands because for one reason or another we are afraid. We are afraid to do a generous and noble act which would defy the behavior pattern of our social set—a pattern which is likely to be both timorous and uncertain. This is a fear that particularly besets people in a community that is growing and fluid in its patterns, as indeed most American communities are today. Too many people spend too much of their time and energy trying to find what pattern they should conform to to be considered "in." How is one to dress? How is one to entertain? Whose acquaintance is to be cultivated, and who is to be avoided like Typhoid Mary? And people spend years trying to piece out the pattern and to fit themselves into it, perhaps never succeeding, or else discovering that the whole business is silly anyway, and that by squeezing themselves into the place they have chosen that they've had to stop thinking and stop growing. One sees a great deal of uncertainty and unhappiness among those who are looking for the correct "party line."

Now, in a totalitarian society where a single pattern is enforced, such behavior may be necessary for survival. Indeed, I think a rather good case could be made for saying that dictatorships come into being when too great a number of people have lost their bearings and look about them to see whose lead they should follow and what pattern they should conform to.

Fortunately, there are still those in this free country who are not afraid to consider questions on their merits and to act accordingly; who will dare to do what the timid call "sticking their neck out" and "going out on a limb" for which, incidentally, the traditional Christian phrase is "bearing witness." And this means not only taking a stand publically; it means upholding that stand with the work of our hands at committee meetings, in writing reports, in typing out letters, in dialing telephones, perhaps in sawing and hammering and painting.

Now, we said the block that comes between our dreams and our doings, between our minds and our hands was often caused by fear. That, of course, poses a further question: what are we afraid of?

There might be several answers to that. We are afraid of being left alone. We are afraid of being laughed at. We are afraid of being criticized. We are afraid of being punished. Deeper than that, we are afraid that if we admit that there is any judgment beyond the social approval of a friendly human group, we just couldn't measure up to it. And deeper than everything, we are afraid of not being loved: of not being loved by our fellow men, of not being loved by God.

So, it is significant that many of the cures which Jesus was able to effect were the cures of people whose normal functions were blocked by hysteria; people whose difficulties would now be called "psychosomatic." For Jesus to say to a paralytic, "thy sins are forgiven thee" was not the bit of showmanship that the Scribes thought it was. Instead, it was the necessary preliminary step to saying "take up thy bed and walk."

(Continued on page 15.)

News of Elon College

PRESIDENT L. E. SMITH, Elon College, N. C.

Elon College High School Day

For the past four years Elon College has invited a number of the high schools in Carolina and Virginia to send the members of their senior classes to Elon College as the college's guests for the day. The seniors arrive at 1:00 P. M., are shown around the campus, and through all of the buildings on the campus. Faculty members are in their classrooms and when time will permit they have a word with these visitors. We usually serve a barbeque dinner. They begin eating at 4:30, then go to Whitley Auditorium at 6:00 for a program which consists of selections by the Choir, Dramatic Department, addresses of welcome by the chairman of the High School Committee, the president of the Student Body, and the writer.

February 11th was the day for 1953. Unfortunately the weather was very unfavorable, with rain nearly all day. However, there were 69 schools represented, a total of nearly 1,500 students and sponsors.

At the close of the program in the auditorium, everyone went to the gymnasium for the varsity basketball game—Elon versus High Point. Even High Point had beaten Elon on two different occasions by a very high score, the score for this game was Elon 69, High Point 45. It was a thrilling occasion.

In an effort to make the day more interesting, more appealing, and more profitable for all concerned, Elon College offered eight scholarships ranging from $200 to $1,000 to be credited to college expenses over a period of four years. The student must remain in college and pay all other bills to secure the scholarship credit. Students were judged in English, psychology, personality, poise, appearance, and expression. There were 59 contestants and 29 high schools represented.

These contestants came to the college Monday before High School Day on Wednesday and took the test. The judges were Mrs. J. H. Rountree, Greensboro; Mrs. J. B. Newman, Burlington; Mrs. Harold Eaton, Burlington; Mrs. Charles Jeffress, Greensboro; Mr. Frank Spencer, Winston-Salem, and Mr. Howard White, Burlington. The winners were as follows: Miss Jo Gwynn of Reidsville High School and Mr. Bill Cobb of Bessemer High School, first place; Miss Carolyn Abernathy of Alexander Wilson High School and Mr. Noel Cox, Burlington High School, second place; Miss Joan Blanchard of Altamahaw-Ossipee High School and Mr. Bruce Crumpton of Roxboro High School, third place; and Miss Ann Puckett of Burlington High School and Mr. Charles Mason of Henderson High School, fourth place.

The high school days have proven a good means of introducing Elon College to a large number of high school seniors. As a result of these programs, we have been able to enroll an increasing number of students in Elon College. It costs money to put on a program of this kind, but the cost has proven to be a good investment. We are anticipating a good number of applications as a result of High School Day at the College this year.

Apportionment Giving

Due to illness in the Convention Office we received no report for last week's CHRISTIAN SUN until too late to forward the report for publication. Consequently last and this week's reports are included.

Those who take time to read these notes and reports will observe that the total amount received for the half a month is rather small. For the most part, the weather has been rather favorable on Sundays this year. Yet, our offerings seem to be tremendously small. If our churches and Sunday schools could realize fully what a number of even small offerings would mean to the College, I am confident that they would make special efforts to see that payments on their apportionment are made week after week. We necessarily depend on this source of support to help meet our current needs.

The College is most appreciative of cooperation on the part of the church.

Previously Reported $ 574.61

Eastern N. C. Conference:

Clayton $ 33.00

Martha's Chapel 4.00

Fayetteville 2.00

Eastern Va. Conference:

New Lebanon $ 10.00

N. C. and Va. Conference:

Long's Chapel $ 4.00

Monticello 30.00

Tryon, Erskine Memorial 107.00

Western N. C. Conference:

Zion $ 5.00

Virginia Valley Conference:

Linville S. S. $ 7.50

Palmyra S. S. $ 2.00

204.50

Total to date $ 779.11

International Christian University and Christian Leadership

"One of the world's most strategic projects, the new International Christian University in Japan, has a God-given 'mandate' to pioneer in the field of Christian leadership," declared Dr. E. Pearce Hayes in a key address at the recent annual meeting of the Foundation organized to aid in the founding and development of the graduate school near Tokyo. Dr. Hayes, staff associate of the Foundation, who served as a Methodist missionary in China for thirty-one years, recently returned from a trip to Japan, where he inspected the ICU campus at Mitaka.

"Many Japanese institutions are hampered by heritage, history and custom. International Christian University is not. It attempts to build a new democratic way of life. ICU intends to put on the campus all of its faculty and students—to live together in a creative act of Christian sharing and the building of Christian character. It is free to pioneer. In fact, it has a mandate to pioneer in the field of Christian leadership for the new Japan," he said.

International Christian University is sponsored and partially supported by fourteen major Protestant denominations in the United States and Canada, and is endorsed by the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the United States. Granted a charter by the Japanese Government last month, the unique interdenominational and international university will officially open its doors, April 13, 1953, to students of all lands, both men and women, irrespective of race, color or religious belief.

Re-elected at the annual meeting as president of the Japan International Christian University Foundation, 44 East 23rd Street, New York, was Dr. Kenneth Scott Latourette, an eminent church historian and the

(Continued on page 11.)

Missions at Home and Abroad

Death Takes Two Veteran Soldiers of the Cross

By DOROTHY P. CUSHING.

Rev Charles T. Riggs, for 46 years a distinguished Congregational Christian missionary linguist, educator and preacher, in Turkey under the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, died on February 12 in Istanbul, Turkey, at the age of 81, according to a cable just received by the American Board at international headquarters.

Mr. Riggs, who was born in Sivas, Turkey, was the son and grandson of missionary parentage and came from a family of widely known Christian linguists, educators and translators. His grandfather was the outstanding Near East linguist and translator, Dr. Elias Riggs. Actually, 1953 marked 60 years of Near East service for Mr. Riggs, who was a tutor in Turkey prior to going out in 1900 as a fully appointed missionary.

Beginning his career under the American Board in Turkey, in 1900, Mr. Riggs was retired in 1946, and took up his residence in Middlebury, Vermont. In 1947 he was made honorary pastor of the Congregational Church at Middlebury. Two years later, his wife, the former Mary Steele of Middlebury, died, and in 1950, Mr. Riggs returned to Turkey, making his home with his daughter and son-in-law, Prof. and Mrs. C. S. MacNeal of Roberts College, Istanbul, Turkey.

Mr. Riggs was fluent in the use of Greek, Turkish and Armenian. He wrote and preached easily in all three of these languages and at the time of his death was teaching Bible classes to Greeks and Americans in his community. For several years he has been proof-reading the revision of the new Redhouse Turkish-English dictionary.

Among the other literary productions of Mr. Riggs was a translation from Greek into English of the history of Arnaout-Keuy; a history of the Aintab station of the American Board and a translation from the Greek of the History of Mehmed II, The Conqueror (a Turk) by the Greek author Kritovoulos, which is now in the hands of the Princeton University Press.

Mr. Riggs was a counsellor to protestant pastors and served for many years as Missions secretary in addition to his translation and publication work, which was his major contribution during recent years. He also often lectured on the history of Istanbul.

Educated at Pingry School, Elizabeth, New Jersey; the Lawrenceville School; Princeton University, Class of 1893, and Auburn Theological Seminary, Class of 1900, Mr. Riggs was ordained to the Congregational Christian ministry in 1900 at Auburn, New York.

Funeral services for Mr. Riggs were held on Saturday, February 14, in Istanbul, Turkey.

* * *

Right from the beginning of her Christian ministry in India, Miss Catherine S. Quickden, English-born missionary, first under the Woman's Board of Missions of the Interior, and then the American Board of Foreign Missions, believed that the best way to help the women of India was to reach them in their homes, and she carried on her thirty years of educational and evangelistic work in the Madura Mission upon that basis.

On February 5, 1953, Miss Quickenden died in "Dunoran," 53 Park Farm Road, Bickley, Kent, England, at the age of 84. She retired from active service in 1932.

Stationed at Aruppukottai for the greater part of her India career, Miss Quickenden was in charge of the work of the Bible women in 40 villages. She also directed three schools for Hindu girls by means of which she came in contact with over 500 children from the higher castes, both rich and poor.

Catherine Quickden was born in Henfield, England, January 16, 1869, and was educated in the Henfield Girls' School, Sussex, England. She also taught there for several years.

Brought up in the Church of England, she later became a member of a Baptist chapel. She worked among slum children and became deeply interested in both home and foreign missions. Her call to the foreign field came through a missionary to China whom she heard speak at a Y. W. C. A. service. A few months later she sailed for India to join a lady of means who had founded rest homes in the hills for tired missionaries. Here Miss Quickenden helped and here she studied the Tamil language and worked among the Indian people.

In 1902 she met Mrs. Hervey C. Hazen (Hattie Cooke) of the American Board, then under the Woman's Board of Missions of the Interior and substituted for her for two years while Mrs. Hazen was on furlough. In 1906 she was appointed a full missionary under the Woman's Board of the Interior, and later came under the American Board when the woman's work was merged with that of the American Board.

LEADERSHIP AND PROGRESS.

(Continued from page 5.)

said, "O Man of Galilee, if there's anything that I can do for you, count on me."

Kingdom progress does not depend alone upon the leadership within the church. The world needs Christian leaders in its schools, in its various professions, in the business world, in its legislative halls, in every vocation—men and women whose love for God, for truth and right "abound more and more in knowledge and in all judgment."

There are ten characteristics in the Christian leadership that will meet the need of our day and generation. No other qualification will meet the need. Personal Christian experience comes first. No second-hand religion will suffice. The person who has personally experienced God never considers breaking fellowship with God. Such an experience makes one sure. Other essentials in leadership are "open mindedness," "natural ability," "adequate training," "creative thinking," "consecration," "vision," and "courage."

Whether we are among those who are seeking to help lead the way up the winding path of progress, or whether we are among those who follow them that lead, unless the sign of the cross is upon our hearts, and the spirit of sacrifice shown in our service, either to lead or to follow will be in vain.

When enthusiasm is inspired by reason; controlled by caution; sound in theory; practical in application; reflects confidence; raises morale; inspires associates; arouses loyalty; spreads good cheer, and laughs at adversity it is beyond price—C. Cox.

Church Women at Work

With Emphasis on Missions

MRS. F. C. LESTER, Editor

840 Sunset Avenue, Asheboro, N. C.

In Memoriam—Mrs. E. P. Boroughs

The editor of this page has lost a good friend, the Asheboro Church a loyal member, and the missionary cause an ardent supporter in the death, on January 27, of Mrs. E. P. Boroughs of Asheboro, North Carolina.

Last spring Mrs. Boroughs was elected superintendent of the Asheboro District of our women's work, an office she had filled several times previously. By fall, however, when the officers were installed, she realized that she was too sick to do the necessary work, so she asked that Mrs. Bill Simmons, the assistant superintendent, be selected in her place.

If one person could be singled out who had the interest of the Asheboro District uppermost in her thinking, it would have been Mrs. Boroughs. Largely due to her efforts, a separate meeting of the district was held last spring, and a similar meeting is being planned for this year. She had great faith in the possibilities of the women's societies in this area, and worked hard to make her dream of a society in every church come true.

President of the Asheboro society last year and again this year, she made an excellent leader in her local church, where she has served in many capacities.

One of Mrs. Boroughs' fine qualities was that she believed in going to meetings—local church, School of Missions, conference, and Southern Convention. It would be good if more of our women could have this same loyalty.

* * * * *

The Women of Franklin Church Observe World Day of Prayer

Mrs. James I. Beale, Jr., will lead the churchwomen of Franklin in the World Day of Prayer service at the Franklin Congregational Christian Church on Friday afternoon, February 20th. The service will begin at 3:45 o'clock, with everyone invited to attend. A nursery will be provided for small children.

Taking part in the service with Mrs. Beale will be Mrs. John C. Bunch, Jr., organist, and the choir of the Franklin Baptist Church; Mrs.

G. G. McCann, Sr., president of the Woman's Auxiliary of Emmanuel Episcopal Church; Mrs. J. C. Williams, Jr., president of the Woman's Society of Christian Service of High Street Methodist Church; Mrs. J. H. Reid, president of the Women of the Presbyterian Church; and Mrs. Julian Overby, president of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Hunterdale Christian Church.

Ushers will be Mrs. Nancy White Melvin, representing the Bethel Friends Meeting, Mrs. Floyd Beale, Mrs. Kurt Hirsch of the Agudath Achim congregation, and Mrs. Melvin Sifen. Mrs. Robert E. Sandlin, Mrs. John Pantan and Mrs. J. F. Sandlin will supervise the nursery. Music for the program has been arranged under the direction of Mrs. George Watkins, president of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Franklin Baptist Church.

* * * * *

Special Programs at Fuller's

The women's society of Fuller's Chapel has sponsored two special programs in their church so far this year.

The Thank Offering program was presented before the entire Sunday school. It was used in place of the regular worship service before the classes met on one Sunday morning. The offering for Carroll County Mission work amounted to $15.

Our society also used the material in connection with the Ellis Island project for a special program for the entire Sunday school. This was presented on the Sunday evening before Christmas. We had our tree decorated with the little flags from every country. Each person brought gifts for Ellis Island and put them under the tree. Then each class gave a playlet or song. The program closed with a social hour in our new basement, with punch, cookies and sandwiches being served. The package for Ellis Island weighed thirty-three pounds.

We enjoyed presenting both of these special programs before our Sunday school group, and think it is a good way to interest them in the missionary enterprise.

MRS. CONRAD COGHILL.

Mount Zion Reporting

Our society at Mt. Zion Christian Church, Eclipse, Virginia, started the new year with our wonderful theme, "Building with Love and Gratitude." In our hearts, minds and souls we are planning to show our progress in Christian living.

Five members had the pleasure of visiting Christian Temple for the Eastern Virginia Woman's Conference.

At our first local society meeting of the year, Mrs. George Dixon, program leader, presented an interesting program entitled "Together with God." Mrs. I. W. Johnson, our Bible teacher, is giving us interesting facts in the study of Colossians. We are also using the work book.

In November we had our district superintendent, Mrs. Ray F. Gordon, visit us and she gave us wonderful ideas on mission work.

We combined our Thank Offering program and World Community Day program. Dr. and Mrs. I. W. Johnson gave us interesting talks about the Carroll County Mission. Our offering was $50.00. The prayer of dedication was by Mrs. Johnson. The World Community Day program, "Christian Foundations for Lasting Peace," was also used. Mrs. Gray gave a reading, "What is Peace?" She also recited a poem, "Nobody's Child." Mrs. Lewis Dixon and Mrs. Walter Richardson gave readings about the suffering in the world. Six layettes made by the society were carried to the altar and dedicated by Mrs. Ruth Dixon and Mrs. J. L. Gray.

We enjoyed a covered dish luncheon at the home of Mrs. Gray, honoring Dr. and Mrs. I. W. Johnson's fifty-first wedding anniversary. They were presented with a two-tiered home made fruit cake decorated in gold, and also were "pounded" with many nice things.

November 9-16 was revival week, with Rev. O. D. Poythress as our guest speaker. He also gave us wonderful sermons in song. We received eight members in our church, six children and two adults. Mills Matthews received a white Bible in the children's contest given by Rev. Poythress.

In December, Mrs. Ruth Dixon and Mrs. I. W. Johnson gave us a wonderful Christmas program about Ellis Island, dedicating six bags filled with gifts which were sent to them in time for Christmas. We also used the

(Continued on page 13.)

Discovering Our Ministry

By DR. RICHARD K. MORTON, Ed. D.

Jacksonville, Florida

Our church fellowships and their leaders have the task of discovering and promoting their proper ministry, in order to secure the greatest results.

I have recently come from a teeming residential area, full of new housing plats and young families and a homogeneous parish, to a downtown city church, with few young people but with possibilities of many other kinds. Obviously, the same program and methods cannot be used in both of these churches.

During my ministry I have sought to discover what the proper ministry for each area of my concern should be.

In my former field the needs were for more recreational facilities, more youth programs and facilities, more community projects, and the like.

In my present one there are shaping up an entire collection of different procedures.

For one matter, we shall need constant and active public relations, to acquaint a teeming city, filled with churches of other denominations and with secular activities, with the fact that we exist. We shall need to use visitation and radio and letters and contacts with secular organizations of all types. We must bring our product to market, as it were—and we must let our prospective “customers” know that we are in business.

In addition, we shall need to minister to people with definite suburban centers of interest. We shall want to have cottage meetings in various areas. We shall want to facilitate as far as possible their getting to meetings downtown. And then we shall want to outline ministries to the workers while they are down town during the week. A noontide luncheon club or brief counselling period will be useful. We may want to have a day or two when they can drop in and have a sandwich and a cup of coffee and get a chance to talk with the minister and with others for a few minutes.

We can also serve them by serving as a clearing house and meeting center for them while they are down town.

We shall also supply literature and other aids to interested motels and overnight places of other types and to transients who may come in and we shall announce times on Sunday and on other days when they can find counsel and fellowship. We shall have periods at off times of the day and night when they can get hold of people.

In addition, we shall use brief leaflets to acquaint people with our faith and our program, and give them something to take away with them. We shall also serve as an information center about our city and its area, to help newcomers and visitors, particularly to introduce them personally to people in our city.

We shall also seek out the handicapped in our city and those with special problems brought on by shifting city life. We shall use radio to make brief one-minute inspirational messages for the benefit of all starting out a new day of effort. We shall keep up to date a file of interested friends who have passed through our office or attended our services.

We shall attempt to analyze and meet distinctively city and downtown problems and be able to acquaint people with the fact that we have bothered to look into these matters.

So it will go—and I think this approach will give our message an appeal it would otherwise lack, and I believe our church will become of significance to many people and that thereby they will be drawn to the service of Christ. For this we shall strive mightily.

By Prayer

It is said that John Wesley spent two hours each day in prayer, and on many days more than this. He began to pray at four o'clock in the morning. One of his associates said of him, “He thought prayer to be more his business than anything else, and I have seen him come from his place of prayer with his face shining.”

Martin Luther, the monk who stirred the world, said: “If I fail to spend two hours in prayer in the morning, the devil gets the victory through the day.”

Francis Asbury was in the habit of rising at four a. m. and spending two hours in praying and meditating in the Word.

The godly Robert M. McChesney spent two hours in the early morning and one hour after tea in prayer.

Adoniram Judson could pray for hours at a time, and who can doubt that much of the success that the gospel has had in Burma has been due to the earnest petitions that he sent up to heaven.

David Livingstone knew how to pray and literally died upon his knees.

These men prayed, God answered, and things were brought to pass. Is not prayer, mighty prayer, our hope in these distressful and barren times on which we are fallen? Will not Jehovah still answer by fire? We can see no other help for church or nation in these perilous days than the strong arm of Jehovah, and that arm is moved by prayer. Therefore, “to your tents, O Israel.”—Selected.

A Sobering Truth

One of the most sobering truths that each of us must face—and one of the truths that is most fearsome to him whose faith is weak—is the truth contained in that noble saying of Pascal's, “I shall be alone in death.” Man is a social being. He lives with others; he works with others; he prays with others; he sins with others. But in death he is solitary. Friends and relatives may be about his bedside, doing all that love and grief and sympathy make possible to alleviate pain, and to comfort and console. They may go with him to the very gate of death; but at last he must part from them. When the pageant of this world fades away and the unknown magnificence and splendor of the next breaks upon his sight, no one can share that experience with him.—E. H. Eckel.

EVIDENCE OF BLESSINGS.

(Continued from page 2.)

with us for six years, had to leave us, but he was replaced by another very promising pastor, Rev. John Littiken, who is still at Elon College. Rev. Mr. Littiken has been with us only for two months, yet we have already grown quite fond of him as our pastor, and we know that he will help us in our accomplishments.

We are thankful for the many blessings we have received the past year, and we write this to share with others the evidence of God's blessings.

MARY JOHNSON,
Reporter.

Youth at Work in the Church

MAX VESTAL, Box 792, Elon College, N. C.

Hayes Chapel Young People Have Active Sunday School Class

The young people's Sunday school class at Hayes Chapel, Garner, is a very active and well organized class. Mrs. Leonard Stone, R. F. D. No. 2, Raleigh, is the teacher, and the following young people are officers: Benny Goss, president; Miss Norene Benfield, vice-president; and Miss Janet Goss, secretary and treasurer. They meet every Sunday morning and from time to time have programs and social meetings in the homes.

* * * * *

Hunterdale Youth Lead Worship Service

The young people of Hunterdale Christian Church had charge of the evening service on February 8th. J. T. Dansey, Anna Howell, Faye Edwards, Charlotte Vaughan, Norris Blythe, Mrs. Edgar Blythe and Jean Overby, each had parts in the service. The Young People's Choir sang, and Ted Fields was the speaker for the service.

The Young People attended the Community Sing at Holy Neck recently. This was sponsored by Holy Neck Young People.

* * * * *

Young People of Eure's Church Report on Their Work

The young people of Eure's Christian P. Y. F. collect ten cent dues at each meeting as our method of raising money for our work. In addition to this we collect birthday dues.

We observed the World Day of Christ. At our November meeting we sent in a small amount of money as our contribution for the cause.

For our December meeting we drew names, planned our program, games, and refreshments. We hope to have a grand Christmas party.

On the first day of January our youth group celebrated New Year's Eve by having a New Year's party. Each member took part in this celebration.

Our P. Y. F. plans to continue our humble work and I hope that it will mean a great deal to each and everyone in the future.

YVONNE ASKEW,
Reporter.

* * * * *

News from Waverly

Under the able guidance and assistance of our minister, the Rev. J. E. McCauley, the young people of the Waverly Christian Church, Waverly, Va., have re-organized our young people's organization. We have come to realize the great value of such an organization and to realize the loss both to the young people and to our church by not having an organized youth group.

The officers of our new organization are as follows: Shirley Little, president; Adele Gay, vice-president; Joan Grammar, secretary; Patty Livesay, treasurer; Theresa Maifeld, reporter.

We could not have reorganized our organization without the assistance of some of the adults who are very much interested not only in our work and in seeing our new organization progress but also in the youth of today everywhere and the goals which they are striving to attain.

THERESA MAIFELD,
Reporter.

* * * * *

Relax With Max

First farmer: Bad storm we had last night.

Second farmer: Yep.

First: Did it damage your barn any?

Second: Don't know. Haven't found it yet.

* * *

A speaker was lecturing on preserving our woodlands and said, "I don't suppose there is a person in the house who has done a single thing to conserve our timber resources."

All was quiet for a moment, and then a young voice piped up timidly: "I shot a woodpecker once."

* * *

During a class discussion about the North American Indians, John's teacher asked what leaders of tribes were called.

"Chiefs," answer one bright little girl.

"Correct. Now can any of you tell me what the women were called?"

Silence reigned for some time, then John frantically waved his hand and was given a go-ahead nod.

"Mischiefs," he announced proudly.

INTERNATIONAL CHRISTIAN UNIVERSITY.

(Continued from page 7.)

Sterling Professor at Yale University. Dr. John Coventry Smith, associate general secretary, The Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A., was re-elected vice-president and chairman of the Executive Committee of the Foundation. Re-elected as vice-presidents were: Mrs. Harper Sibley of Rochester, New York, a very outstanding church woman, and Dr. Hugh Barton, acting director, East Asian Institute, Columbia University.

Acting on the recommendation of the Executive Committee, it was voted to change the title of Dr. Stanley I. Stuber, executive secretary, to that of general secretary and make him an officer of the Foundation.

The co-opted members elected to the Foundation Board of Directors were: Miss Ruth Woodsmall, former general secretary of the World's Y. W. C. A., who has long been identified with women's work in the social welfare field; Dr. Henry Smith Leiper, executive secretary, Missions Council, Congregational Christian Church; Douglas Overton, executive director, Japan Society, Inc., who was recently with the office of Northwest Asian Affairs, Department of State, and a Foreign Service Officer in Yokohama and Tokyo; Bert Stolpe, director of promotion, Des Monies Register and Tribune; Mrs. Charles P. Taft, well-known church and civic leader in Cincinnati; and Dr. Herrick Young, head of the International House in New York.

In a report by Dr. Hachiro Yuasa, International Christian University president, he wrote that "1952 must be recorded as a year when dreams of the ICU began to crystalize into some concrete milestones of progress." However, he warned, funds for scholarship aid, the construction of faculty residences, student dormitories, dining hall, church, etc., are urgently and immediately needed if the University is to succeed.

It is not titles that reflect honor on men, but men on titles.—Machiavelli.

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE, D. D.

"Jesus Condemns False Leadership"

LESSON IX—MARCH 1, 1953.

MEMORY SELECTION: "Whosoever shall exalt himself, shall be humbled; and whosoever shall humble himself shall be exalted."—Matthew 23:12.

LESSON: Matthew 23:1-12, 27-39.

DEVOTIONAL READING: Jeremiah 22:3-5, 13-16.

Condemnation.

Never in Jesus' ministry, did he ever speak such words of condemnation and denunciation as in today's lesson. In fact, some scholars are so startled by the words as reported by Matthew, that they think that his words were misunderstood, or misrepresented. Even as we read them across the centuries, they sting and startle, especially coming as they do from "the gentle Jesus, meek and mild." We must remember two things, however, as we read them: There was no anger or unrighteous wrath in the words; and they were designed to awaken the Pharisees to their lost condition and to bring them to repentance. They were prompted by love, rather than hate. They were the wounds of a friend. Jesus knew it was better to be hurt than to continue in error. Frankness, not flat-tery is the mark of a true friend.

"They say, and do not"—that was the first charge against the Pharisees. There was authority in the teaching of the Pharisees insofar as their teaching was based upon the law of Moses, and the people were "to do whatsoever they bid you, these do and observe." But people were not to do after their works, "for they say, and do not." They did not practice what they preached. They tried to substitute profession for performance.

"They bind heavy burdens and grievous to be borne, and lay them on men's shoulders, but they themselves will not move them with their fingers." In addition to the law of Moses, the scribes and Pharisees had developed a large body or accumulation of traditions and petty rules. They covered just about everything that a Jew did or said, and the Pharisees demanded strict obedience to every one of them. It was a heavy and grievous burden which the average Jew could not possibly carry or comply with. Yet there was an utter lack of sympathy on the part of the Pharisees for the common people. That lack of sincerity and sympathy brought forth Jesus' condemnation and denunciation.

"All their works they do to be seen of men." They paraded their religion. They did things to be seen of men. They called attention to their righteousness. They were pretentious in spiritual things. It was acting, playing at religion, hypocrisy. For instance it was the custom for many Jews to wear a phylactery, a leather case fastened to the arm or across the forehead, in which there were certain verses of Scripture. The Pharisees made their phylacteries unusually large so that people could see them. Furthermore it was the custom to wear tassels or borders of another color on the garments they wore, signs of righteousness. The Pharisees made these tassels or borders unusually large and conspicuous to make sure that folks would take notice of them. It was childish and contemptible, and Jesus denounced the spirit which prompted it.

"They love the chief seats at feasts and in the synagogues, the salutations in the market-places, and to be called of men, Rabbi." They were proud, selfrighteous, ambitious, jealous, eager for attention, supercilious, selfish. They wanted to be ministered unto, rather than to minister. They were faced in the wrong direction, they had their eyes and their hearts on the wrong things. The Master rebuked them and condemned this spirit among them.

"Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites, for ye . . ."—then the Master arraigned them on seven counts, two or three of which are included in today's lesson. They were like graves or sepulchers, outwardly neat and even beautiful, but full of dead men's bones and corruption within. They were not the first, and of course they were not the last men, to be guilty of this sin, appearing good without, being bad within.

Or again, they revered the graves of the prophets, and garnished the tombs of the righteous, and piously said that if they had been living at that time, they would have treated these men differently. It was a case of "brain-washing" a bit of buncombe or bologna! What were they doing to Jesus, the greatest of the prophets! Like many people today, they honored the prophets of yesterday, and killed the prophets of today. We honor Jefferson, and then refuse to apply his principles and spirit to government and society. We pay tribute to Lincoln, and never try to live in the spirit of Lincoln. We glorify the prophets who proclaimed new ways and new days in the years that are gone, and condemn and vilify the prophets who propose new methods and new spirit in dealing with the tangled relationships of modern life in all its aspects.

But make no mistake about it—there would be a sure, if not swift penalty. Indeed it would be swift and sure, for "all these things shall come upon this generation." Not many years after the Master uttered these words, disaster fell upon the Jewish nation, and destruction was visited on the Holy City in which these words were spoken.

All of us need to give heed unto these words of the Master. Hypocrisy has a way of creeping into speech, conduct, attitudes, the little things of life, as well as into worship. Religious smugness is one of our most prevalent modern sins. We are afraid of what people will say, of what the public will think. So we assume the pose of goodness and piety, when there is no correspondence within our hearts. And all the time God is saying that to be genuine, real and honest is far more important than being popular and gaining approval.

Compassion.

"O Jerusalem, Jerusalem . . . how often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not." Even as he spoke his words of condemnation, his heart was filled to breaking with compassion. How he yearned for the salvation of the city he loved, and which was going headlong to its doom! Like a good surgeon, Jesus was applying the knife to heal the abscess. Even with all their hardness of heart, he loved them with a great love. He had to condemn the sin; He loved the sinner. He has to condemn, but he has compassion, on those he condemns. And as he looks at the great city and weeps over it, we get a picture of how God feels when he looks

(Continued on page 15.)

A Page for Our Children

MRS. R. L. HOUSE, Editor, Southern Pines, N. C.

Four Great, Heroic Men

This is mostly for the boys, but girls may read it, too! We all like heroes. It gives us a warm feeling to hear about men (and women) who have faced dangers and troubles and have stood unafraid. In all probability they were afraid but they had an inner feeling of God, or strength from their beliefs, that helped them overcome their fear. We all know about Daniel in the Lion's Den and David meeting the Giant and we know that Jesus met those who were against him with quiet confidence.

In our day there have been four men who were great, heroic men. A postage stamp was issued with their faces engraved on it, the radio carried their story and now a Roman Catholic priest, Francis B. Thornton, has written their lives. They were four chaplains: George L. Fox, a Methodist; Alexander D. Goode, a Jewish rabbi; Clark V. Poling, Dutch Reformed Church; and John P. Washington, a Roman Catholic priest. These men died in February of 1943 when their ship, the Dorchester, was sunk in the cold North Atlantic.

Each of these men had a life preserver but they each gave one to a man who did not. They linked arms, these men of three faiths, and went to their watery deaths, in order that others might live. Didn't that take real courage? The Rev. Mr. Poling was the son of the famous Dr. Daniel Poling. He had a little son, Corky, at home, and he surely wanted to live. But his religion had taught him to put others before himself, and so had the experiences of the other men.

Priest Thornton has written their story and called it Sea of Glory. It was written for grown-ups but the story is one of real heroism which even boys and girls may understand.

J. J. H.

* * * * *

Daddy's Birthday Present

Connie and Beth were going to the show. Mother said they could not go if it rained, but they wanted to go anyway.

"Let's hurry, Beth," whispered Connie, "let's go before it rains. I know it is going to rain. Then mother won't let us go!"

"I think it has already begun to rain, Connie. Maybe we had better not go today," replied Beth.

"Oh, Beth, there is nothing to do here, let's slip out. I'm all ready. Get your coat on!"

Beth did not much want to go. She knew it was raining. She knew her mother had said they could not go if it rained. But Connie kept right after her. They were both ready to go now.

"Connie, where are you and Beth going?" called Larry in a very loud voice.

"Oh, nowhere," whispered Connie, "you run along."

"Mother, mother!" called Larry at the top of his voice, "where are Connie and Beth going?"

Just then mother came downstairs. "Oh, girls, it is raining. Mother said you could not go in the rain. I don't want you to get wet."

"But, Mother, we are all ready. Why can't we go?" whined Connie. "There's nothing to do here."

"You may sew; or have you read your new books?" said mother.

"We don't want to sew, and we don't want to read! We want to go to the show," Connie pouted.

Larry began to sing: "You can't go to the show 'cause it's going to rain some more. You can't go, you can't go!" He sang in a tune all his own.

"Hush, Larry!" said Connie impatiently.

"I know what you can do. Tomorrow is daddy's birthday, and you may make him a birthday cake. I will give you the recipe and you can make it all by yourselves," said mother.

"I want to make a birthday cake, too," called Larry. "I want to eat a birthday cake."

"Oh, Larry!" said Beth, "let daddy eat it. But we will let you help us make it. Run and wash your hands."

In just a minute Connie and Beth were in the kitchen. They were reading the cake recipe mother had given them. Soon there were three busy children. What fun they had! Of course Larry helped. Before they had finished he looked like a clown. He had cake batter from one ear to the other.

"I want to taste that now," said

Larry. "That's good, Connie, do you want me to put some chocolate in it?"

"No, Larry, that is not a chocolate cake, this is daddy's birthday cake," answered Connie.

"Where's the cream? Don't we have ice cream for a birthday?" continued Larry.

"But, Larry, tomorrow is daddy's birthday. Then we shall have the ice cream," explained Beth.

At last the cake was finished. They had been very careful. It was a beautiful cake, and they were all happy.

Just then the door opened, and in walked daddy.

"Well, I have caught a new pig in the kitchen!" And he grabbed Larry. They all had to laugh.

"Daddy, we wanted to surprise you, but you caught us. Look what we have made for your birthday," said the girls.

"What?" said daddy in surprise, "you made it?"

"And me, daddy!" chimed in Larry. "Well, this is a happy surprise! This is the best birthday present I ever had."

How good the children felt. Connie was glad she did not go to the show.—Cynthia Smyth Newsome, in Storytime.

MOUNT ZION REPORTING.

(Continued from page 9.)

receipts and games during our social hour. The cradle roll had their little party and gave candy and crayons for Ellis Island.

The film, "More for Peace," was presented in our church with 25 present.

The tenth of December, Mrs. Gray was honored by her class on her birthday. We met with a shut-in for our Christmas party and exchanged gifts. Christmas week we gave another shut-in a Christmas party, presenting a lighted tree and each of us giving gifts to her. We lighted candles while singing carols and giving the Christmas story. We also helped three other families who wouldn't have had much of a Christmas otherwise.

May the prayers be that we grow stronger in our Saviour's work.

MRS. J. L. GRAY,

Reporter.

There can be no peace when there is not God in the hearts of men. If you drive the devil out of the human heart, the stream of life will be sweet happy and peaceful.

—Rev. Charles Clifford Peale.

The Orphanage
J. G. TRUITT, Superintendent

DEAR FRIENDS:

Wanderlust! Three boys about 12 each ganged up and decided to go away. They left about ten o'clock from the school building. No, they would not take to the highway because the radio controlled state highway patrolmen would pick them up shortly. They counted cross-ties instead. Going was fairly pleasant on a warm, sunlit day. Freedom, new scenery, no school, no orphanage . . . no food. Nightfall came on, but they were now in a neighborhood one of them was somewhat familiar with, so they waited around until after dark, and after the family had gone to bed. Then they crawled under the house where it was warm and slept. Next morning they persuaded their friend (?) to keep quiet about them and feed them, and let them go on their merry way.

The next day was also warm. The railroad ties were fun. Besides they would soon be far away. Toward night it became cloudy. Night was very dark, but they hated to turn back. The deep woods on either side were formidable looking. Finally, they could not see the woods, and to make the picture completely dismal and lonely it began to rain. One of them had left his coat at school the morning before, and his cap. To make a long story short, they did decide to return to the town through which an hour or so ago they passed. Going back toward lights, and people, and perhaps food seemed good to their little souls. They did find a stranger who fed them and learned their story. He carried them to the mayor's office where we were telephoned. In a few hours they were back here. Next morning they had to be brought before the superintendent and the assistant superintendent. We heard their story. Talked with them and to them. Agreed with them on certain privileges being deprived them for awhile. They had hardly gone out the office door before a good friend of ours called over long distance telephone to ask for two of them for the week-end. When I explained what had happened he readily agreed that we should not upset our "campus" period to let them come.

The moral to the above true story is: Boys need friends, friends who have time to do things with them, and go places together. God bless leaders of Boy Scouts, and those who love boys and understand the lure of the wanderlust. Here at the orphanage we try to see to it that our children are understood and given the best possible care. We may not have all the material things we need, and I know full well we do not, but we have a consideration which we hope will point the way to a good future for children under our care.

When you do a service for one of these boys or girls, a service that is in line with sound wisdom in his or her development, you help us and help them. When you contribute toward the maintenance of this child-caring institution you help a homeless, helpless child. "Inasmuch as you do it unto one of the least of these ye do it unto me."

Thanks for your help.
JOHN G. TRUITT,
Superintendent.

REPORT FOR FEBRUARY 12, 1953.
Commodities for the Week.
Youth Fellowship, Oak Grove Christian Church, Toilet articles.
Woolworth's, Burlington, N. C., Candy.
Sunday School Monthly Offerings.
Amount brought forward	$2,167.59
Eastern Va. Conference:
Christian Temple	$ 20.00
Windsor S. S.	10.00
	30.00
N. C. and Va. Conference:
Burlington S. S.	$ 76.85
Tryon, Ersk. Mem.	95.00
	171.85
Virginia Valley Conference:
Linville S. S.	$ 1.33
	1.33
Total	$ 203.18
Grand Total	$2,370.77

Special Offerings.
Amount brought forward	$1,938.72
Dr. Paul D. Rudd, Reidsville, N. C. for Majorie Hayes	$ 4.50
Mrs. J. I. Beale, Franklin, Va.	10.00
State of N. C.—Gasoline Refund	77.75
Woman's Fellowship, Bay View Cong. Christian Church	5.00
Mr. & Mrs. H. C. Hedley, Bayside, Va., in memory of Mrs. Alice Mills	5.00
E. F. Craven, Greensboro, N. C.	25.00
Lehigh Valley Railway (interest)	20.00
Mrs. O. D. Lawrence, Ashboro, N. C., in memory of B. S. Lawrence	5.00
Mrs. Lemmie B. Rawles, Suffolk, Va.	5.00
H. O. Byrd, Suffolk, Va. for Woodie Byrd	20.00
Woman's Missionary Society, Oak Grove Church for Ella Jean Haith	10.00
Wake Chapel Christian Missionary Society for Betty Jean Proctor	10.00
"Mary Sue Brittle" Sunday School Class for Woodie Byrd	14.70
Mr. & Mrs. W. R. Hundley, Suffolk, Va. in memory of Mrs. C. A. Shoop	5.00
Rev. Earl D. Weed, Durham, N. C.	10.00
Special Gifts	195.59
	$ 422.54
Grand Total	$2,361.26
Total for the week	$ 625.72
Total for the year	$4,732.03

What is defeat? Nothing but education; nothing but the first step to something better.—Wendell Phillips.

MEMORIAL GIFTS
"Instead of Flowers"

Dr. John G. Truitt
Christian Orphanage
Elon College, N. C.

Dear Dr. Truitt:

Please acknowledge the enclosed $..... as a memorial gift sent to the Christian Orphanage in lieu of flowers in memory of:

..... (Name of Deceased)	 (City)	 (Date of Death)
..... (Survivor to be Written)	 (Address)
Name.....
Address.....

INTIMATE ITEMS IN DEATH OF MR. HOUSE.

(Continued from page 3.)

later his head fell back and he died instantly of a heart stroke.

Memorial services were held at the Southern Pines Church on January 22nd with Dr. W. T. Scott, Dr. John G. Truitt, and Dr. L. E. Smith leading the service. The pall bearers were Trustees of the church and Dr. Roy McMillan who was his personal friend and physician.

Final services were held at Newport News on Friday, January 23rd. The Rev. A. Lanson Granger, minister of the Church, was in charge, assisted by Dr. Millard Stevens of Norfolk, president of the Southern Convention, and Dr. H. S. Hardecastle. Pallbearers there were members of the Robert Lee House Club. This Men's Bible Class was started by Dr. House and named for him after he left Newport News. Interment was in Memorial Park, Newport News.

Roman Catholic friends had masses for him at Notre Dame University, and the Chapel of Mary Immaculate Hospital, Newport News. His Negro friends held a Memorial Service at Franklinton Center on February 6th with Dr. W. T. Scott and the Rev. J. T. Stanley in charge of the service. His Jewish friends have planted a tree in Israel in his honor and memory.

THE HANDS OF CHRIST.

(Continued from page 6.)

It was to dispel man's deepset fear of not being loved that God sent Jesus Christ into the world. The central theme of the Evangelist John was the love of God that casts our fear and releases Christians to love one another.

"We have seen and testify that the Father has sent His Son as the Savior of the world," he wrote. "So we know and believe the love God has for us. God is love, and he who abides in love abides in God, and God abides in him. There is no fear in love, but perfect love casts out fear. For fear has to do with punishment, and he who fears is not perfect in love. We love because He first loved us."

"Let not your hearts be troubled, neither let them be afraid . . . for the Father himself loves you."

To believe that at the heart of the Universe there is goodwill toward men; that we are not just specks of cosmic dust with a brief moment of self-consciousness during which we seek to push other specks of dust aside in order that we may think ourselves more important than we are; to believe we are more than this will do more than anything else to make us trust our more generous impulses, and our more kindly thoughts, and to let our hands be an expression of the Divine Will.

"Christ has no hands but your hands," said St. Theresa. When, as members of the Christian Church, we are called "the body of Christ," it means that the work of Christ, the expression of His eternal love, is to be done by us. What, then, should our hands be engaged in doing?

If we have in us the mind of Christ, our hands will do Christ's work when we produce and distribute useful goods, even as the hands of Christ gave shape to oxen and tables, to plows and benches. No work that serves the needs of mankind and makes life more pleasant is to be despised.

If we have in us the mind of Christ, and our hands do a work of healing, then that healing is the work of Christ's hands. And how much healing we can do with the touch of our hands, we shall probably never know. Just in the giving of medication, in the messaging of a tortured muscle, in the changing of bandages, how much of the healing will of parent, husband, wife, or nurse is communicated to the patient! And how hard it is to want to get well if that encouragement is not given. And how much—outside the sickroom—can the clasp of a hand or a touch on the shoulder transmit of encouragement and love!

Sometimes, in deep humility and in great love, Christian hands may have to do the work of chastisement, of restraint, of judgment, even as Rembrandt haloed the hands of Christ as they drove the money-changers out of the Temple. There is such a thing as holy anger, though always one must have the mind of Christ if that anger is to be more than outraged pride or frustrated self.

The hands of Christ worked, healed, the hands of Christ chastised, the hands of Christ gave. They gave themselves to be pierced and broken by blind and sinful men, in order that the world might know that he stood by what he said, and more than that, that the world might know that God gave of Himself without counting the cost, so that men might know there was a love at the heart of the universe which could leave men free to make their own choices between good and evil, and yet hold nothing back in showing men that their sins were offenses against the very nature of the universe.

And so our hands, if they are directed by the mind of Christ, will give what life calls upon them to give. Not many of us perhaps will be called upon in advance of the hour of our death as our witness to the faith that is in us, but all of us will be called upon to translate our lives into money, into goods, into services, into an outreach which will enable others to do on our behalf what we want to have done for Christ's sake.

Such sacrifices will be demanded of everyone: taxes for highways whether you drive a car or not; taxes for schools whether you have children to be educated or not; contributions for hospitals whether you will ever be in them or not; gifts to help build churches where you will never worship; grain to feed people whom you will never meet.

These are some of the things sought of our hands. And we will give—either grudgingly and of necessity—in which case we have done no Christian deed;—or we will give cheerfully, "according to the measure of the gift of Christ."

It will be as we work, as we meditate judgment, as we heal, as we give—after the mind of Christ—that we can pray as the Apostle wished us to pray, "lifting holy hands."

O God, who didst make thy love known through the hands of Jesus Christ, thy Son, our Lord; grant that we, as the continuing embodiment of his Spirit, may at all times serve thy purposes and express thy will by our every gesture, touch and action. Through the same Jesus Christ our Lord.

AMEN.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

(Continued from page 12.)

down on our great cities with their poverty and sickness and sorrow and sin and ignorance and indifference and unresponsiveness. And we get an insight into how he yearns that the people might come to him that they might have life and have it more abundantly. We should also hear the note of warning, which continued disregard and disobedience inevitably brings.

Based on "International Sunday School Lessons;" Copyrighted 1951 by Division of Christian Education, National Council of the Churches in the U. S. A.

The Law of Stewardship

I think that it is but fair to recognize that there are spiritual laws as well as natural laws under which the individual must work. There are laws of progress and growth. These laws are as eternal as the very heavens, but they are not fully understood. But, then, what laws have been? Newton is given credit for formulating the law of gravitation, but the law has been established from the beginning of time. The law under which the gasoline engine works has existed throughout the ages of history. Gasoline exploded by a spark under pressure would have made an automobile run in the year 1 as well as today. The law is eternal. But man had not yet grasped the idea to use it. The laws under which the airplane raises itself and conquers the air are old laws; but we are only beginning to appreciate them.

In the same way, there are laws of life. These have also existed from the beginning of time, but have not always been appreciated. The law of stewardship is such a law. I would here forget any objective in using Christian stewardship as a way to get money and talk about it as a way to find life. Reduced to its simplest terms, the law is:

1. God is the Owner of all.
2. I am the steward of his wealth.
3. I find the biggest satisfaction in life by using this wealth entrusted to me in the way which will bring happiness to mankind and advance the Kingdom of God.

The law of stewardship thus takes issue with the law of acquisition. It says to man that it isn't what you get, but what you give that counts. It challenges the right of the individual to make his biggest aim in life the acquiring of wealth or fame, and it substitutes for the old law the rule of service for others. It tells man frankly that he gets the most out of law as he gives the most.

—Wm. H. Leach, in Church Finance.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY. 1956.
Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches.

The CHRISTIAN SUN

ORGAN OF THE SOUTHERN CONVENTION OF CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES

In Essentials Unity — In Non-Essentials, Liberty, — In All Things, Charity

VOLUME CV

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 26, 1953

NUMBER 9

The Lord's Acre Program in the Valley Conference

Dedication of Lord's Acre Potato Planting at Wissler's Chapel
(See article on page 5)

News Flashes

Mr. Curtis Young is acting as the guest editor of the Young People's page this week, while Rev. Max Vestal relaxes!

Dr. W. Millard Stevens is conducting a pastor's class for young people who plan to become members of his church in Norfolk on Palm Sunday. The class meets each Sunday morning at 9:45, in the pastor's study.

Hunterdale Women Present Check for $500.00

The Treasurer of the Hunterdale Women's Work, Mrs. J. F. Cook, presented a check for $500 to the Hunterdale Christian Church on February 14 on behalf of the Women's Auxiliary of the church. The pastor, Rev. Clyde Fields, received the gift, to be applied to the church indebtedness, on behalf of the church.

The Women's Auxiliary of the church is divided into three circles with a membership of approximately fifty women. The Circle Leaders are Mrs. William Vaughan, Mrs. Marvin Whitley, and Mrs. Robert Hollowell. Mrs. Larry Overby is president of the Women's Work with Mrs. Asa Joyner as vice-president and chairman of Friendly Service. Mrs. J. F. Cook is general treasurer and Mrs. R. E. Carter is general secretary. The Circles meet for study and fellowship each month and the Auxiliary meets together as a whole once each quarter.

The Hunterdale Christian Church Women's Work is an integral and important part of the church life. The church as a whole is deeply appreciative of the contributions made by them in the field of missions, stewardship, and fellowship.

Schedule of Lenten Services at Norfolk Temple

Under the general theme, "The Lord's Prayer," Dr. W. Millard Stevens, preached last Sunday on the subject, "Our Father," at the morning worship service. His subjects for the remaining Sunday before Easter are: "Thy Kingdom Come," "Our Daily Bread," "Forgiveness," and "Temptation and Deliverance." On Palm Sunday morning the subject will be "Thine is the Glory." At this service the pastor's class will unite with the church.

The general theme for the evening services during Lent is "Christ and His Cross." The subject for February 22 was "The Mystery of the Cross." Other subjects will be: "The Saviour of Men," "The Great Shepherd of the Sheep," "The Servant of the Lord," and "The Glory of the Cross."

Lenten Program of Preaching at Liberty Spring

Dr. Jesse H. Dollar, pastor of the Liberty Spring Christian Church, near Suffolk, Virginia, has announced a Lenten Program of Preaching, running from February 22, through April 5, under the general theme: "We Would See Jesus." On the first Sunday in Lent, Dr. John G. Truitt supplied the pulpit preaching on the subject, "In Showing Them the Father." Subjects for the next five Sundays are "In the Setting of His Face," "In His Ministry to the Needy," "In His Love for Children," "In His Transfiguration" and "In His Triumphal Entry."

The series will be continued, beginning on Palm Sunday evening at 8 o'clock and each evening of the week: "In His Teaching about the Kingdom," "In His Impatience with Sin," "In His Power as a Teacher," "In His Prayer Life," "In Fellowship and Communion." On Friday evening, there will be shown "We Beheld His Glory," a moving picture of the Crucifixion and Resurrection, in colors.

On Easter Sunday, there will be an early morning Communion Service at 7 o'clock, and the subject at 11 o'clock will be, "We Would See Jesus in His Glory."

Leadership Training School For Norfolk

The Norfolk Leadership Training School is being held at the Christian Temple, beginning on Sunday, March 1, and continuing through Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of that week. Four courses are being offered:

"Introduction to Teaching," by Miss Pattie Lee Coghill, Educational Secretary of the Southern Convention.

"Worship," by Mrs Jeannie B. Carley, Director of Religious Education, Christian Temple.

"Dramatics in the Church" by Mrs. J. Everette Neese, Teacher of Speech and Dramatics.

"Administration" by Mr. Norman Schlegel, Teacher of Templeman's Bible Class, Christian Temple, and successful business man.

The opportunity provided by this school should not be overlooked.

J. EVERETTE NEESE,
Dean.

Eastern Virginia Evangelistic Rally

Following is the program for the Eastern Virginia Evangelistic Rally to be held Tuesday, Thursday and Friday of next week:

PROGRAM
7:30 P. M.

Prelude

Invocation

Hymn—"My Faith Looks Up to Thee."

Scripture Lesson—Host Pastor.

Statement of Purpose

Address—"Pulpit Evangelism," by Rev. O. D. Poythress.

Hymn—"O Master, Let Me Walk With Thee."

Address—"Personal Evangelism," by Rev. Melvin Dollar.

Hymn—"A Charge to Keep I Have."

Address—"Assimilation of Church Membership," by Rev. A. Lanson Granger.

Discussion

Hymn—"Take My Life and Let It Be."

Benediction

WAKEFIELD—MARCH 3.

Wakefield, Waverly, Isle of Wight, Hopewell, Burton's Grove, Dendron, Richmond, Barrett's, Spring Hill, Mt. Carmel, Centerville, Antioch, Windsor, Union (Surry), Johnson's Grove, Bethlehem (Disputanta).

BETHLEHEM, MARCH 5.

Bethlehem, Suffolk, Berea, Oakland, Cypress Chapel, Sunbury, Liberty Spring, Holland, Holy Neck, Eure, Hunterdale, Franklin, Newport News, Oak Grove.

SOUTH NORFOLK, MARCH 6.

South Norfolk, First Church, Bay View, Christian Temple, Rosemont, Berea (Great Bridge), Little Creek, Second Church, Elm Avenue, Portsmouth First, Shelton Memorial.

Freedom of religion is every American's right. With this right go certain responsibilities. Not the least of these is the duty of each of us to be tolerant toward every person, whether he exercises his right as our own religious creed or according to another.—Selected.

Laymen and the Church . . .

J. Earl Danieley, Editor, Box 515, Elon College, N. C.

The Witness of the Church

Three hundred laymen from the churches of the Southern Convention met at Elon College on Sunday afternoon and evening, February 8, for the Mid-Winter Rally of the Laymen's Fellowship. It was one of the most enthusiastic and profitable gatherings ever held in our Convention, according to Superintendent Wm. T. Scott.

In charge of Chairman W. B. Williams of Newport News, Virginia, the program moved forward with precision, including a song service conducted by W. H. Baker, also of Newport News; the worship service led by Earl Danieley of Elon College; a message of welcome from President L. E. Smith; two beautiful selections sung by the college choir; and addresses on Stewardship and Evangelism by Dr. Scott and the two visiting guests, Rev. David H. Sandstrom of New York City, and Dr. Robert Cashman of Chicago, Moderator of the General Council of Congregational Christian Churches.

In his introductory remarks, Dr. Cashman paid high tribute to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, saying that as a regular subscriber, he had been greatly helped by its vital messages on evangelism, church history and polity, news of Elon College, and reports of progress in the various areas of service in the Convention. "THE CHRISTIAN SUN stands out like a lighthouse," he continued, "to give direction to all ships on the sea of life."

"How do you rate the Public Relations Program of your church?" asked Dr. Cashman, of the Laymen's Fellowship.

The witness of the church is not a single event at a particular time. Public Relations is the total impression we make upon others by our thoughts, words, attitudes and deeds.

Are you a Christian Steward—recognizing God's ownership of everything—including not only our material resources, but our thoughts, time, talents, energy, influence, and life itself?

If you think that you really own anything, as for example your home or car, ask yourself how much it will be worth to you in 75 years from now.

"Every man goes down to the grave," said Rosseau, "clasping in his hands only that which he has given away."

We cannot really give anything to God, for whatever we might offer is his already, and may be taken from us without notice. It is for us to become good custodians of that which has been entrusted to our care.

Emphases for Laymen 1953

1. Revitalize personal, daily, devotional life.
2. Develop personal visitation evangelism and regular church attendance.
3. Establish an organization for men in every local church and enrich the program of men's groups now organized.
4. Promote Schools of Churchmanship with Stewardship as a central theme.
5. Secure and train local leaders, especially lay preachers.
6. Encourage vocational Christianity.

—Walter A. Graham.

There is a growing movement among Laymen's Fellowships for each person to ask if his daily life and work fit into the Christian pattern.

The welder asks if he is riveting his bolts, so that his product will be safe from accident to others.

The attorney wants to be sure that his legal practice follows Christian principles as well as secular law.

The church janitor examines his
(Continued on page 10.)

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr

A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom as represented by the Congregational Christian Churches.

Our Principles

1. The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
2. Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
3. The Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
4. Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and church membership.
5. The right of private judgment and liberty of conscience is a privilege that should be accorded to and exercised by all.

Managing Editor John T. Kernodle

Departmental Editors—Convention, Wm. T. Scott; Missions, F. C. Lester; Women's Work, Mrs. F. C. Lester; Young People's Work, Max Vestal; Children, Mrs. R. L. House; Sunday School Lesson, H. S. Hardcastle.

Institutional Representatives—Elon College, L. E. Smith; The Christian Orphanage, John G. Truitt.

Board of Publications—Duane Vore, Chairman, S. T. Holland, Secretary; R. C. Helfenstein, S. E. Madren, W. W. Snyder, G. D. Colclough, Treasurer, ex officio.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Year $3.00
Two Years 5.00

Published by the Board of Publications of The Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches, Inc. Printed every Thursday except the last in June and December by Central Publishing Co., Inc., Richmond, Va.

Entered as second-class matter at the Post Office at Richmond Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

General contributions should be addressed to the editor at Southern Pines, N. C., and should reach him by Wednesday of the week preceding date of publication.

Departmental material should be sent to the proper departmental editor, at the address shown on their page.

All other material and business communications except regarding subscriptions should be sent to the Office of Publication, 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond 19, Va.

The Christian Sun Subscription Blank

Subscription Price: 1 year, $3.00; 2 years, $5.00

Date.....195....

Dr. Wm. T. Scott, Supt.,
Elon College, N. C.

Enclosed find $..... for which please send The Christian Sun
() 1 year, () 2 years — () New Subscription, () Renewal.

To

Address

Who is a member of Church

() Renew, () Enter my own subscription for () 1 year, () 2 years.

My Name

My Address

From the EDITOR'S Desk

What Will Lent Mean to You?

Every so often the housewife finds it necessary to do more than sweep the floor and dust the furniture. She does a thorough cleaning job from wall to wall. The mill owner could go on making socks with the same machines, the same help, at the same rate of production. But occasionally he must buy new and better machines, train new employees, study the market and experiment with new materials. Likewise, the merchant must use new lines and arrange more attractive displays if he is to compete for business with hope of success.

It is even more important that we take stock once each year of our inner lives. This is the purpose and meaning of Lent. Down through the generations Christians have found the six weeks before Easter a good time to appraise their faith, to weed out faults, to correct errors, to establish discipline, and to rededicate their lives to Christ and the Church.

What will Lent mean to you this year? It may mean nothing at all. The farmer cautioned the motorist, "Take care before you turn down that road, because you'll be in them ruts for a long time." Some of us have been in "them ruts" too long. We need to launch out on new highways and to seek new frontiers of the spirit.

To this end many of our churches have prepared special services for the observance of Lent in this year 1953. Every member of every church where these pre-Lenten services are being held should avail themselves of the opportunity being offered them.

HENRY E. ROBINSON.

A Wrong Idea of Faith

A minister in another denomination recently tried to comfort a broken-hearted mother who had lost a son in the war by saying, "Because of your faith and your son's faith, you were both in the will of God. You were harmonized with his will and purpose. Your son being yielded to God, God's will was done. True faith is to believe that what has happened has happened for the best. If one does not take that attitude, he is setting his personal desire against the wisdom of God."

I am convinced that such is not the kind of faith which our Heavenly Father wishes us to cherish. Such an explanation of the tragedy is certainly neither a compliment to God, nor a person who holds that view. To believe that whatever happens had to happen, and must be for the best, is not faith but fatalism, which is the exact opposite of faith. It is manifestly unfair to God for any professed believer to be so fatalistic. It is the same as saying that the bullet or the bomb that caused the death of that mother's son was ordered and directed by divine decree; or that God saw to it that her son was placed in the line of the bullet or bomb at just the right time to have his death occur. What nonsense! Such a view as that of such a tragedy incriminates God and violates reason and common sense.

God's will has never been responsible for war, for the God and Father of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ, is a God of Peace. In all history God has never willed a single war. It is not God's will that the present war should be taking place. It is not God's will that that mother's son or any other mother's son should be brutally killed by war. Such a view of God makes God less good than any person who holds that view, for what man, who even claims to be religious, would will war upon any nation, or will that those thousands of fine young men should have met their death in war?

Man's selfishness, man's brutality, man's unbrotherliness, man's inhumanity to man—and not God's will—are responsible for every war and for every social injustice.

ROY C. HELFENSTEIN.

First Year of the Lord's Acre Plan in the Valley Conference

By REV. RALPH M. GALT
New Market, Virginia

A year ago, the Executive Committee of the Virginia Valley Conference decided to invite Dr. Dumont Clarke of Asheville, North Carolina, leader of the Lord's Acre movement and a great spiritual Christian, to present the Lord's Acre plan to the Conference at its Midyear Meeting in March.

"Brother Clarke," as he wishes to be called, graciously came at considerable sacrifice of time and strength. He gave his lecture, well illustrated with colored slides, and thrilling and moving as a sermon, twice in the community. Dr. Clarke spoke both at an interdenominational meeting at Linville Creek Church of the Brethren at Broadway, and at the conference meeting in Bethlehem Church.

Mr. Clarke, who is a former missionary to India, explained that the Lord's Acre plan is that individuals and groups dedicate to the Lord some productive or living thing, such as a part of a field or garden, a pig, calf or lamb, some chicks or ducklings. Then those who have dedicated projects work together with God and raise their products until they are ready for market. Finally the participants sell their products and present the price to the church or to some special Christian cause. Brother Clarke emphasized that the plan is not simply a way of increasing church finances, but that there are great spiritual values in working so consciously with God. Some children who have carried out Lord's Acre projects have even finally dedicated their lives to the Lord as ministers and missionaries.

Young People Lead Movement.

The young people of three Valley churches have been leading the movement during the past year. Soon after the Midyear Conference, the writer of this article, who is pastor of the Shenrock Charge churches, presented the Lord's Acre plan to the young people of Bethlehem and Concord churches, and Wissler's Chapel and Woods Chapel. At the meeting in which the plan was presented to Wissler's Chapel and Woods Chapel young people, each group immediately decided on group projects, Wissler's group decided to have a Lord's gardens and Woods decided first to raise a calf for and with the Lord, and later decided to have a potato garden also. Adult friends helped the young people with their projects all along the way. Two faithful widows lent land for the Lord's gardens: Mrs. Lula Bambers for Wissler's, and Mrs. Florence Day for Woods.

When the soil had been plowed in the hollow at the end of Mrs. Bambers' peach orchard, and when the potatoes had been cut up for planting, about twenty persons of all ages with one horse, gathered at the edge of the field for the dedication service which was led by the writer. The Lord's Acre Service prepared by Dr. Clarke was used. Then the group quickly and enthusiastically spread the fertilizer, planted potatoes and set out tomatoes, following the horse and plow. The Lord's hand was evident from the beginning when he blessed the planters with a shower of rain as they were finishing their work.

Lima beans, string beans and sweet corn were also planted in the garden. Carroll Litten, president of the Wissler's Young People, was named the Lord's Acre farm manager, and called for groups to cultivate and harvest the garden as they were needed. Mervin Litten, the father of Carroll, and five others, helped a great deal with the garden, as did also Deacon A. N. Green. Pastor Galt helped some with planting, cultivating, harvesting and marketing.

When harvest time came, a large group came to help. They were delighted to find that though most potato crops in the community had almost failed, due to drought, there were in the Lord's garden more than 32 bushels of the finest, biggest potatoes. The soil had been well pulverized by plows and harrows going through it five or six times while the people followed looking for every potato, and so turnip and mustard seeds were sown over the ground for a second crop on the Lord's Acre. Lord's Acre potatoes commanded the high price of $4 a bushel on the market.

After the main crops from the garden were gathered in, a special thanksgiving service was held by the Wissler's Chapel group. "First fruits" thank offerings from the orchards and gardens of the neighborhood included beautiful apples, canned peaches and many kinds of vegetables. Most of these, too, were added to the Lord's garden products. When all was marketed, the total amounted to just about $200, which was turned over to the church treasury.

It helped Wissler's Chapel pay $375 on her parsonage debt, pay all Convention and Conference apportionments, and beautify the interior of the chapel, to say nothing of the unmeasurable spiritual benefits the project had for the participants.

The Woods Chapel group got their Lord's potato patch in early on high ground. Unfortunately, an early summer drought hit this project especially hard, and only about six bushels of potatoes were harvested from this garden. Elderly Mr. Ed. Stroop worked up quite a sweat plowing up the potatoes for this sizeable group of harvesters.

Woods Chapel young people looked a long time for a young calf they might buy and raise for and with the Lord. Finally Mrs. Cletus Goche-nour kindly sold them one she had planned to raise herself. The John Lewis Kagey family, the Austin Kipps family, and the Cletus Goche-nour family, gave much feed and time to raising the calf.

A joint dedication service was held for three Lord's Acre projects at the Woods Chapel Lord's potato garden. A good sized group participated in the service which was led by the writer. The three projects included, besides the garden, the calf and a little black pure-bred puppy dedicated by Mrs. Florence Day, which she held during the service.

Little children led them. Especially was this true at the Bethlehem Church. Two children, Linden and Patricia White, brother and sister, had the first Lord's Acre project to be completed in the Valley Conference. Without saying anything to their parents or pastor, they decided to raise a large bunch of chicks for and with the Lord. After their pastor heard of this project, it was announced to the congregation and dedicated by prayer at a Sunday morning service in the church and without the presence of the chickens. After the chickens were marketed,

(Continued on page 13.)

Good Americans are Good Neighbors

By ROY C. HELFENSTEIN, D. D.
First Congregational Christian Church, Richmond

"Inasmuch as you have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, you have done it unto me."

American citizenship places the responsibility upon every American to be a "good neighbor"—to give a lift where a lift is needed, to lend a helping hand where help is required, to the extent of one's ability. American citizenship embodies the ideal and responsibility of beneficent neighborliness.

A young man asked Jesus, "Who is my neighbor?" and Jesus answered the question by relating a story on which one of the great fraternal organizations of the world is based. The story goes like this: "A certain man was going down from Jerusalem to Jericho; and he fell among robbers, who stripped him and beat him, and departed, leaving him half dead. And by chance a certain priest was going down that way; and when he saw him, he passed on the other side. And in like manner a Levite also, when he came to the place, and saw him, passed by on the other side. But a certain Samaritan, as he journeyed, came where he was: and when he saw him, he was moved with compassion, and came to him, and bound up his wounds, pouring on them oil and wine; and he set him on his own beast, and brought him to an inn, and took care of him. And on the morrow he took out two shillings, and gave them to the host, and said, Take care of him; and whatsoever thou spendest more, I, when I come back again, will repay thee."

"Which of the three," asked Jesus, "thinkest thou, proved neighbor unto him that fell among the robbers?"

The young man answered, "He that showed mercy on him."

And then Jesus said unto him: "Go, and do thou likewise."

A "good neighbor" is one of life's greatest blessings. To be a "good neighbor" is one of life's greatest privileges. A "good neighbor" is anxious to be of service. He does not wait until some calamity befalls his fellow-man before he renders a neighborly service. He renders service to prevent calamity. He does not wait for some emergency to shriek its S.O.S. call but acts to forestall emergency. The Good Samaritan, in the story told by our Lord, worked single-handed to render his neighborly service. But how much better it would have been if the people of the community round about

"Inauguration"

By LEONARD B. WELTE.

A man walks to the rostrum
A challenge in his eyes;
He takes the oath of office,
And "a Nation's hopes arise."
And millions now should help him
In this time-tested way,
When new hands grasp the tiller,
Now is the time to pray!
Throughout the roaring tempest
He'll stand more solidly,
If standing near him are the feet
That walked upon the sea!
His eye will see more clearly
For his nation and us all;
If aided by the eye that sees
And notes each sparrow's fall!
The Ship of State steered by his hand
May safely sail ahead
If nearby on the tiller
Are the hands that broke the bread.
We can overcome all trials
And always we'll be free,
If we will pray as one once prayed
In dark Gethsemane.
A man walks to the rostrum
To battle for the right,
And he'll have strength tomorrow,
If we pray for him tonight.

* * *

The above was submitted for publication by Dr. R. C. Helfenstein of Richmond. Mr. Welte is the director of the Health Department of the Richmond Y. M. C. A.

had joined together in neighborliness, and had warned the traveler of the danger in advance, or better still to have joined hands in giving protection to all who travelled that dangerous road, so that the robbers from the "hide-out" along the way would have had no chance to molest any traveler passing that way.

In that interesting story which Jesus told about the man who was the victim of the tragedy, the five types of people likely to be found in every community are presented.

First were the robbers who, partially because of society's neglect in helping them to get the right viewpoint in life, became enemies to society and thought only of taking advantage of their fellow-men—typifying those who think only of self and who are willing to resort to any unethical measure to get what they want.

Second, was the man who fell among the thieves, typifying the people in every community who need to be served.

Third was the priest who saw the man's predicament, but being so engrossed in ecclesiastical responsibilities, was not disposed to use any of his time in considering the man's sorry plight, gave him but a glance and passed by "on the other side," failing to realize that any religion is meaningless that does not concern itself with human need.

Fourth, was the Levite who, though on his way to perform his temple duties, paused long enough to look at the man who was lying on the ground half dead from the wounds dealt him by the bandits. But the Levite also failed to connect his religion to fraternal service, thus giving the lie to all that he professed, and he, too, passed by on the other side.

Fifth is the character in the story who was "the certain Samaritan" who saw the man in need of assistance, "and he had compassion on him, and went to him and bound up his wounds, pouring in oil and wine, and set him on his own beast and took him to an inn and took care of him." This certain Samaritan was the only neighbor of the five. None of the rest were good for anything—for the person who is not good to his fellow man is good for nothing.

The thieves beat the man up. The priest and the Levite passed him up. "The certain Samaritan" helped him up.

The welfare agencies of our day are eyes and hands for us all in seeing the needs and meeting the needs of our respective communities, for their service is in fact rendered by each person who helps to make the services of these agencies possible.

Any man who is worth his salt will stick up for what he believes right, but it takes a slightly bigger man to acknowledge without reservation he is in error,—Gen. Peyton March.

News of Elon College

PRESIDENT L. E. SMITH, Elon College, N. C.

The Meeting of The Board of Trustees

For a number of years the Board of Trustees of Elon College has been meeting in biennial session. The mid-year meeting, in January or February, as a rule is the business meeting of the Board. At this meeting, various committees make their reports, among which are the Finance Committee, Building Committee, Investment Committee, and Committee on Faculty. The meeting for 1953 was held February 17. There are thirty-six members of the Board. Twenty-five members were present. Others were away on business trips or ill with the flu.

The report from the Building Committee called attention to the obligation of the Board and the college constituency to pay the debt on the gymnasium and thus clear the way for other building operations. The college is so badly in need of new dormitories and a new dining room. The amount owing on the gymnasium is $46,000. A quarterly payment is due on March 15. It is the purpose and hope of the administration to be able to reduce the debt to $37,000. This will be possible provided those who are in arrears with pledges will pay the amounts due. We should, by all means, take care of this debt and be ready to begin building operations in early fall or early spring.

At the request of the student legislature, the Board voted unanimously to discontinue the requirement compelling students to attend Sunday school and church. This places the students on their honor. It is hoped that they will be faithful in their attendance at church. The removal of this obligation does not affect attendance at chapel in the least. There are three chapel periods each week. Monday, the students have their program. Wednesday and Friday are religious programs in which either some members of the faculty, the choir, or an invited speaker address the student body on appropriate and vitally religious topics. The public should not feel that Elon College has, in any way, let down the bars in religious requirements on the campus. The church, while on the campus, is a separate organization and is not officially connected with the college. In reality, the college has no authority over the church. The college shall urge students and faculty members to attend church as a privilege and an opportunity for worship.

The report of the Finance Committee, augmented by the report of the Business Manager of the college, Mr. W. E. Butler, Jr., called attention to the fact that as of January 1, our books were in balance. Of course, the spring quarter is the difficult one. Students graduate, others drop out of school, new registrations are not sufficient to atone for the losses, all of which necessarily means a loss in funds for the spring quarter. We are dependent on the Sunday schools and churches of the Convention to help take up the loss through payments on conference apportionments and Sustaining Fund obligations.

The Registrar's report showed that we have enrolled to date for the year 1952-53 a total of 665 college students. This does not include adult education or summer school. This number is more than a ten percent increase over the same period as of last year. This increase is due largely to the efficiency of the Field Secretary's office and the cooperation of the ministers and church officials of the Southern Convention. We shall need all of this assistance to keep our enrollment for 1953-54 equal to the present enrollment. Together, we can keep our present student body and increase it if we desire and are determined.

* * * * *

Apportionment Giving

"Procrastination is the thief of time," no doubt is a true statement. Often times we delay and delay until it is entirely too late, and it is "later than you think."

No one realizes the necessity of making contributions on time half so keenly as the individual who is responsible for the conduct of the institution dependent upon the contributions. To be waiting for support—a support that is essential to the stability and progress of the institution in question—and then to have that support delayed past the necessary hour, is a hazard to the development of the program essential to the total organization of which the institution is a part.

A single glance at the accompanying report which shows contributions to the college from only two churches out of two hundred is convincing of neglect somewhere along the line. I am sure that this delay is not purposeful but simply waiting for a little more convenient time. We are interested in our college. We do mean to do our share in its support, but there is an opportune time so far as the college is concerned.

In this connection, the college is making a desperate appeal to our Sunday schools and churches. I am sure that the response will be general and generous.

Previously reported	$ 779.11
N. C. and Va. Conference:
Pleasant Grove	$ 10.00
Western N. C. Conference:
Albemarle	$ 20.00
	30.00
Total to date	$ 809.11

Race Relations Services Held in Chapel Hill

Nearly 300 people of all races filled the Chapel of the Cross Episcopal Church at Chapel Hill, North Carolina on the afternoon of Race Relations Sunday. The service, sponsored by the Minister's Association (itself an inter-racial organization) was presided over by the president, the Rev. Richard L. Jackson, minister of United Congregational Christian Church. The Men's Chorus from St. Paul's African Methodist Church provided special music for the occasion. Dr. Edwin McNeill Poteat, pastor of Pullen Memorial Baptist Church, spoke on the subject, "What About Segregation?" During the course of his talk he said, "Segregation is a sin. It is a denial of the Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man. It is a system which carries within it the seeds of its own destruction. Christian people ought to be in the foreground in its abolition."

An enthusiastic response to the service and message was evident on every hand.

Because a fellow has failed once or twice, or a dozen times, you don't want to set him down as a failure till he is dead or loses his courage—and that is the same thing.

—George Harace Lorimer.

Missions at Home and Abroad

The Riggs Expect to Come Home This Spring

Kilanjunai P. O.,
Ramnad Dist., So. India,
February 1, 1953.

DEAR FRIENDS:

Yes, we think we are actually going home, one of these days! The latest on that is, if present plans and hopes work out, to sail from Bombay on April 9, and then go overland from Basra, on the Persian Gulf, through Bagdad, Damascus, Constantinople, and Athens, and then by sea through the Mediterranean and straight from Gibraltar, arriving in New York about May 21. Miss Brown plans to go all the way with us, which would make our job of sightseeing with the two children a bit easier.

In a way we both hate to be leaving our work here at this point. We are just barely getting a start, and it is so interesting, with so many opportunities opening up, and with so much that is promising now but which will have to be closed down if another doctor cannot be found to take over. (For example over a hundred of the leprosy cases on the list are rather severe and have already shown definite improvement, but the time remaining is too short to complete the cure, and if they are left stranded all their progress will go for naught and they will be doomed.) We feel as if we should be looking forward to a full seven-year stretch here instead of just two more months.

On the other hand it is high time we stopped a bit and took stock. We have been living here only seven months, but in another two weeks it will be a year since I took over responsibility for this clinic and started making at least bi-weekly visits to see patients. That means that I will have completed a cycle of one year and gotten a taste of all the ordinary medical and health problems that affect this area. A shorter time would not have sufficed. For instance I made the statement not too long ago that dysenteries and diarrheas were no problem in this area. I should have known better, because I saw a few cases of typhoid last spring, and know that cholera pops up occasionally, and the same conditions of sanitation that make those diseases possible would also favor the spread of dysentery. It actually got its start last fall during the period when it rained some and there were a number of cloudy days when the sun's sterilizing rays could not act on the human deposits all over the landscape, and perhaps some of the germs were washed into the drinking water reservoirs by the rains. But what I didn't know was that the village people are so accustomed to their diarrheas and take them so casually—or fatalistically—that they didn't even bother to come in and report them at first. It was only around Christmas time that I began getting babies reduced to skeletons or swollen up grotesquely with fluid, because of malnutrition precipitated by having what little food they did get to eat passed too quickly through the intestine to be absorbed by the several weeks' worth of chronic diarrhea. Since then there has been an ever-growing parade of babies and adults with the same complaints or plenty of variations, and an ever-growing death list because they were too far gone when they first came in to respond to what simple cheap remedies I have available. I am now convinced that diarrheas and their complications are the biggest single cause of death here. But meanwhile, although all of this could be prevented by timely administration of a few sulfa tablets to fresh cases, or better still, by getting across to the people a few fundamental facts about the relationship between filth, flies, drinking water, and dysentery, I found myself helpless to go around the villages and do these things that needed to be done—or should have done two or three months before if I had only known—because I have been kept so busy in my regular clinics attending to one emergency after another that no time is left to do anything about drying up the source of all these troubles. I used to get so tired, in China, of pulling patients through one attack of malaria or clearing up some deadly complication of neglected chronic malaria, and then have them show up a few months later with the same thing all over again because they had gone back to the same mesquite-ridden environment. How much better it would be, if the same amount of money and effort could be spent on DDT instead of malaria medicines. In the same way I could easily throw myself out of a job here, more or less, instead of being so rushed as I am at present, if I could break into some of this vicious cycle that perpetuates the diarrheas, but I never get a start and am unlikely to in my present set-up because of this same rush of them!

The same thing is true of the leprosy. After Christmas the numbers of new cases, especially of the infectious type, started levelling off, and I thought that all the infection in the area had been unearthed and brought to light and was under treatment. Now a whole bunch of new ones are popping up again. Furthermore, in analyzing my year-end statistics required by the Government, I discovered that only two out of sixty of the infectious cases were what I could call early, and all the rest were moderate or advanced, which means that they had been infecting their neighbors in their villages for years and had already missed the optimal stage for treatment. Then I remembered that I had promised everybody when I started here that I would be going about the villages, surveying the supposedly healthy, picking up those early cases who didn't know they had it, and curing them before they could do so much damage to themselves and others. But not one bit of that work has been started yet, or has the slightest chance of being started at the present rate. But there isn't the slightest chance of my abolishing leprosy in the area by my present "practice" of waiting till they are advanced before doing anything about it.

I need not mention any more horrible examples to point out the obvious fact that the whole philosophy of what I am doing here is fundamentally wrong, or at least useless, and I need to pull back a bit and take stock and try to figure out a more constructive approach.

Meanwhile, we are beginning to have delegations of V.I.P.'s and committee meetings to decide what is to happen after we leave on furlough. At all costs this work must go on, they say; and a doctor must be found to hold the line and maintain the status quo—but no one has the slightest idea where to find one. (Today's distinguished visitor—not Dr. Jones—even pronounced that it was absolutely necessary that I—or this hospital—must have a jeep, so that the sphere

(Continued on page 13.)

Church Women at Work

With Emphasis on Missions

MRS. F. C. LESTER, Editor

840 Sunset Avenue, Asheboro, N. C.

Belew Creek Missionary Society Reports

The Woman's Missionary Society of Belew Creek Christian Church, near Winston-Salem, North Carolina, had a very successful year under the leadership of Mrs. Vandola McGee, president. We had our meetings monthly and have approximately thirty members on roll.

We observed the World Day of Prayer with Salem Christian Church. We had several chicken pie suppers and bake sales during the year. The society gave $50 for the repairs on our church. To our sick and shut-in friends we sent flowers and cards. We had our thank offering program.

With the help of our pastor's wife, Mrs. Koon, we organized a junior missionary society.

We had our installation service for our new officers, who are: Mrs. Annie Preston, president; Mrs. Beck Preston, vice-president; Mrs. Lura Marshall, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Margaret Flinchum, assistant secretary-treasurer and reporter. The Program Committee: Mrs. Helen Elliott, Mrs. Sue Isley, Mrs. Beckie Neal. The Flower Committee: Mrs. Maude Strader, Mrs. T. R. Preston, Mrs. Pauline Murray, Mrs. Irene Self.

MRS. MARGARET FINCHUM.

* * * * *

New Society is Organized at Kallam's Grove

The Kallam's Grove women organized a missionary society at their church on December 2, 1952. The second meeting was held at the home of the minister and his wife, Rev. and Mrs. Fred Allred, on January 2, 1953, at which time the following officers were elected: Mrs. Helen Newman, R. 2, Madison, president; Mrs. H. D. Kallam, R. 2, Madison, vice-president; Mrs. Frances Hawkins, R. 2, Madison, secretary; Mrs. Alan Joyner, R. 2, Madison, assistant secretary, and Mrs. T. G. Fuquay, R. 1, Summerfield, treasurer.

At their third meeting, February 14, they had as their special speaker Miss Marie Crosby, from our Angola West Africa Mission.

PATTIE LEE COGHILL.

Progress Reported at Moore Union

The missionary society at Moore Union, near Sanford, N. C., which was organized last year, is coming along nicely. They are meeting at the church on the Tuesday after the second Sunday and report fine meetings and good results. Quoting Mrs. Gilbert Lett, the president, "We had a wonderful Christmas meeting, with a good program and about eighteen in attendance."

The society has made several quilts and sent them to the orphanage, and bought a runner for the church.

PATTIE LEE COGHILL.

* * * * *

Good Programs at Chapel Hill

It has been over two months since the women of the Chapel Hill Church had their Christmas program; but it will be remembered for a long, long time. Because it was so effective and because we used the program sent out by Mrs. Weseman, we would like to share it with you. We think our programs have always been of an elevated nature, and strangely enough, they always seem to be climbing a little higher up the ladder of success, in thought, planning and presentation.

MRS. J. R. ELLIS,

President.

* * *

FRIENDLY SERVICE TO ELLIS ISLAND

The program was directed by Mrs. A. C. Shearer and Mrs. Mamie Leonard.

Mrs. Shearer began the program with a story of the origin of the Christmas tree, which was followed by the group singing "O Tannenbaum." Each member had been given a little booklet upon arrival, with the program outlined, words to the songs and receipts for the refreshments. The booklets were an artistic masterpiece, with red covers decorated with a large green "Greetings" in script and bright shiny silver snow flakes.

Mrs. Leonard then told us about Ellis Island and Jennie Pratt. To further emphasize the importance of our friendly service, four members of the fellowship gave a pantomime of an immigrant at Ellis Island. It was not elaborate, but was most effective and impressive in its simplicity.

The church hut was decorated in usual Christmas garb and was lighted by our Christmas tree, which was decorated with white lights and hundreds of small flags from nations all over the world. After the pantomime, the lights were turned on the tree for the first time, and Mrs. Jim Hutchins began to sing "O Come, All Ye Faithful." The women then brought their gifts forward and they were placed under the tree, gifts to make some people happier at Ellis Island. Mrs. Shearer dedicated them with a prayer.

There was also a light note to the program. Games from Sweden, Mexico and France were enjoyed. "Blow the Feather" (Sweden) was one of them. A rope was stretched about waist high across the hut. The women were divided into two groups, one on either side of the rope. A feather was blown into the air, and the goal was to keep the feather from falling on your side of the rope. It was refreshing to know that the fellowship is made up of so many long-winded people!

In keeping with the theme of the program, the hostess served cookies made from foreign receipts as part of the refreshments. They were very appetizing. The recipes follow:

SWEDISH COOKIES: 4 cups sifted flour (cake); 2 cups butter; 1 cup sugar; 1 egg, well beaten; 1 teaspoon vanilla. Sift flour once, measure. Cream butter thoroughly, add egg and beat well. Add flour, a small amount at a time, mixing thoroughly after each addition. Add vanilla and blend. Shape into rolls, 1½ inches in diameter, chill overnight, cut in thin slices. Bake 4 or 5 minutes in hot oven. (From: "Traditional Holiday Recipes by Jane Carter.")

RUSSIAN COOKIES: 1 cup sifted flour, 1 cup sugar, ¾ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon extract of vanilla, 3 egg whites very stiffly beaten, 1½ cup walnut meats finely ground. Sift flour once, measure, add sugar and salt, sift again. Add vanilla. Drop from teaspoon on greased baking sheet, bake in moderate oven (350) twenty minutes. (From: "Traditional Holiday Receipts.")

CHINESE SWEETS: Puffed rice balls are made like our popcorn balls except that puffed rice and peanuts are used. To one package of puffed rice use one cup peanuts. Pour the sugar syrup as for popcorn balls over this, mold the mixture into small balls, and stick each on the end of a small stick such as candy "suckers" are made on. (From: "Boys and Girls in China" by Juanita Kent.)

Packet Praised.

We would like to go on record as advocating the use of the material in the Packet. Please do not get the
(Continued on page 15.)

A Page for Our Children

MRS. R. L. HOUSE, Editor, Southern Pines, N. C.

The Great Seal of the United States Contains Fascinating Symbols

On the great seal of the United States are 13 stars, 13 stripes, 13 clouds in the glory, and 13 letters in the motto E Pluribus Unum. There are also 13 arrows in the eagle's left claws, and 13 leaves and 13 berries on the olive branch in the eagle's right claws. The arrows represent war and the olive branch represents peace. The eagle looks in the direction of peace. The nine feathers in the eagle's tail symbolize the judiciary—the nine Supreme Court judges.

The reverse of the seal contains an unfinished pyramid of 13 layers. This is to show that the United States would continue to grow and improve. The year 1776 is lettered in Roman numerals on the bottom layer. The eye in a triangular glory, surmounting the pyramid, symbolizes an all-seeing Deity—importance of the spiritual over the material—while the pyramid itself symbolizes strength. Above the eye is the Latin motto An-nuit Coeptis, adapted from Virgil's "Aenid" (IX, 625) and translated as "He (God) favored our undertakings." The motto below the base of the pyramid is Novus Ordo Secorum, adapted from Virgil's "Eclogues" (IV, 5) and translated as "A new order of the ages (is born)."

The Division of Protocol, State Department, is the custodian of the United States seal. It is affixed to proclamations issued by the President, treaty ratifications, full powers, presidential warrants for extradition, papers of appointment of cabinet officers and commissions of others appointed by the President.

If this story is sufficiently interesting to make you want to see the great seal of the United States, the pleasure is yours. Take a look at the $1.00 bill.

* * * * *

"Elijah Hiding in a Cave"

Brave and true as Elijah had been, there was once that he lost his courage and failed to trust in his heavenly Father.

When Ahab reached home from Mt. Carmel, he hurried to Jezebel, his wife, and told her all that Elijah had done; of the fire that came down from heaven and burnt the sacrifice and of the putting to death of the priests of Baal. At once Jezebel went into a terrible rage. She said: "Elijah must surely die!" She was so crazy with anger she sent a messenger to Elijah. "Thus saith the queen, So let the gods be to me, and more also, if I do not cause thee to be killed tomorrow."

Suddenly Elijah, the man who faced the angry king and the great host of Israel, lost his bravery. Without waiting to find out what God wanted him to do, forgetting how God had always cared for him in the past, he fled out of the land of Israel into Judah, and, still afraid, a day's journey into the wilderness. There, all alone, weary and hungry and sick, he huddled down under a juniper-tree, and began to moan his fate. He was so discouraged that he begged God to let him die. "Take away my life, O Lord," he cried.

In the midst of his despair he fell asleep. Presently an angel touched him on the arm, awakening him.

"Arise and eat," said the angel. Glowing before his eyes were some red-hot coals on which a cake was baking, and nearby was a jug of water. After he had eaten he lay down again and soon was slumbering. A second time an angel awakened him. "Arise and eat, because the distance is too great for thee," the angel said. A second time he ate, and then, arising, he set out through the wilderness for Mt. Horeb. For forty nights and days he traveled, without anything more to eat or drink, until he reached the mountain.

Elijah, at Mt. Horeb, found a cave and went in to hide himself. Now he was not only discouraged, but ashamed, because he had fled. He was very unhappy. He heard the Lord asking of him, "What doest thou here, Elijah?"

He tried to make excuses. He told how faithful he had been to God, and how wicked Israel had been; how all God's prophets had been killed, and now "I, even I only, am left; and they seek to slay me."

God's loving care was still about Elijah, even in his weakness. "Go forth and stand upon the mount before the Lord," came the command.

Elijah obeyed. As he stood upon the rugged mountainside there came a terrible cyclone down into the valley which blew over great trees and sent heavy rocks crashing down into the valley. Then came an earthquake which seemed about to tear the mountain to pieces. Then a great wave of fire seemed to sweep up from the valley. Elijah, calm again, stood unafraid. He knew that the Lord was not in these. Suddenly, after all the tumult, there came a still small voice that asked again: "What doest thou here, Elijah?" Then the prophet drew his cloak over his face, and in fear and awe heard the voice of God.

"Go, return on thy way to Damascus, and when thou comest anoint Hazael to be king of Syria; and Jehu to be king over Israel; and Eliash to be prophet in thy place." Then the Lord told Elijah that he was not the only follower of God who had escaped death; that seven thousand of the children of Israel were still refusing to worship the idol Baal and were loyal servants of God.—Reprint from The Free Will Baptist.

LAYMEN AND THE CHURCH.

(Continued from page 3.)

duties, and more especially his attitude, to make certain that his spirit is in harmony with the purposes of his minister.

The teacher sees in his class, not just pupils, but future leaders of destiny.

The factory worker no longer feels the monotony of an assembly line, but looks ahead to the constructive uses of his product.

The writer of a song, the painter of a picture, the editor of a newspaper, or the author of a book comes to realize that in his creative ability, he is able to influence the character of his fellowman.

The tired mother in the home renews her strength and finds joy in her work, as by faith she realizes that she is not only encouraging her husband in the earning of a living and service to the outside world, but that by her loving example and comradeship, she is planting the seeds of culture and of Christian character in the hearts of her children.

In other words, all of us can lift our most common tasks to new spiritual heights, and become partners with God in the creation of a better world.

As never before, laymen are seeking God. It is the privilege and the duty of the Church to bear the witness and to reveal the answer.

R. C.

Youth at Work in the Church

MAX VESTAL, Box 792, Elon College, N. C.

The Time for Our State Rallies Is Approaching

The young people in Virginia are really making a lot of plans for their State Rally. The date is March 21 and 22. Those in Eastern Virginia are inviting those in the Valley of Virginia to the Suffolk Area. Their meeting place will be the Suffolk Christian Church, but those of the Valley Conference will be entertained overnight and for the Sunday morning church services by the following churches: Bethlehem, Cypress Chapel, Liberty Spring, Holland, Holy Neck, Oakland, and Berea. A spaghetti supper will be served for a cost of 85 cents by Rev. Duane Vore and the Suffolk Young People on Saturday night.

The conference presidents in North Carolina and Phil Mann, president of the Southern Convention, met in Raleigh, N. C., on Friday, February 20, and made definite plans for their rally which is to be held at Elon College on March 29. They plan to have a picnic supper. Each person will bring his own sandwiches.

Programs of the two rallies are going to be very much the same. They are going to feature Nick Pisdiscalzi (better known as Poo-poo) as guest speaker. Nick is president of the National P. F. Also the Elon Players are going to give an Easter radio play called "Release."

These rallies look pretty good on paper, but they will be a lot better if your church is represented in a fine fashion.

* * * * *

What Is Pilgrim Fellowship?

Have you ever thought about what it means to be a member of the Pilgrim Fellowship? When you joined your P. F. group, did you do it because your friends were members, because you thought it was the thing to do, or because you wanted to be a member of a Christian Young People's group?

What does P. F. mean anyway? Look up the words Pilgrim and Fellowship in the dictionary. You will find that Pilgrim means a traveler, one who goes on a Christian Pilgrimage. Fellowship means the act of being in association with a group or an individual. Well, these two words tell us just what P. F. is. We are many members in association with each other and all in Fellowship with God.

When you joined the P. F., no one wrote out a set of rules you had to follow, as is done in a great many organizations; but you were making your spiritual commitment to God much stronger than it was. Since you became a member of P. F., have you been a pilgrim for Christ and a fellow to your neighbor?

Which Are You?

Are you an active member,
the kind that would be missed,
Or are you just contented
that your name is on the list?
Do you attend the meetings and mingle with the flock?
Or do you stay at home
and criticize and knock?
Do you take an active part to help the work along,
Or, are you just satisfied to be the kind that "just belong"?
Do you ever go to visit
a member that is sick?
Or leave the work to just a few and talk about the clique?
There's quite a program scheduled that I'm sure you've heard about,
And we'll appreciate it if you, too,
will come and help us out.
So come to the meetings often and help us with hand and heart,
Don't just be a member,
but take an active part.
Think this over, fellows,
you know right from wrong:
Are you an active member,
or do you just belong?

* * * * *

The North Carolina & Virginia Conference Holds Rally

On February 1 the Reidsville Young People entertained the North Carolina and Virginia Conference at a Rally held in the Reidsville Church. For the first time in two years the program featured a speaker. Dr. James Hess spoke on "The Position of Youth in the Church." He included many of his personal experiences which took place in India. They were both interesting and inspiring. At the end of the address Dr. Hess let different persons ask him questions. One of the questions brought out the fact that there is a youth organization in India, S. C. M. (Student Christian Movement), which is similar to our U. C. Y. M. (United Christian Youth Movement).

There was an abundance of food. We brought sandwiches but those Reidsville folk really had everything imaginable to eat. It was good, too!

After supper a fellowship hour was held. This featured games and group singing. The meeting was closed by the delegates to the rally singing "Blest Be the Tie That Binds" and Rev. John Graves pronouncing the benediction.

* * * * *

Did You Know?

That the Beverly Hills Church (N. C. & Va. Conf.), has formed a P. F. group. They will elect officers and install them the first Sunday night in March.

That the National P. F. Council will not get out a packet next year. This means that it will be necessary for all groups to subscribe to the "Pilgrim News," which is the national P. F. newspaper. The commissions' programs will be outlined in it.

That the Eastern Virginia Conference is already getting out a newsletter and that the North Carolina & Virginia Conference is going to get out a trial one before the North Carolina State Rally.

That it is time to make plans for a good P. F. summer program. Don't let your P. F. group drop to a low ebb this summer. Plan such a good program that a great deal of interest will be stimulated and you will get some new members.

That is still not too late to think about putting on an Easter program in your church. It would be a good project for your personal action chairman to promote.

* * * * *

Courtesy of Curt

Dr. Robinson (at baptism of baby): "His name, please."

Mother: "Randolph Morgan Montgomery Alfred Van Christopher Me-Goof."

Dr. Robinson (to assistant, J. G.): "A little more water."

* * * * *

Mary: "Do you know what the patriotic worm did?"

Harry: "No, I don't. What?"

Mary: "Why, he joined the Apple Corps"

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE, D. D.

"Jesus Urges Alertness"

(TEMPERANCE LESSON)

LESSON X—MARCH 8, 1953

MEMORY SELECTION: Watch ye, stand fast in the faith; quit ye like men, be strong.—I Corinthians 16: 13.

LESSON TEXT: Matthew 25: 1-13.

DEVOTIONAL READINGS Titus 2: 1-8, 11-13.

A Wedding Feast.

Jesus is talking about the Kingdom and the coming of the King. He likened it unto a wedding feast, and not a woeful feast. Its keynote is joy. It was all of one piece with his general teaching. He came that men might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly. He talked about the joy which he would give his followers, which the world could not give and which the world could not take away.

We all too often think of Christianity in terms of what we have to give up, when we ought to think of it in terms of what we receive. Christians have no right to expect an easy time, but if they have Christ they will have a joyful time. He will fill our hearts with gladness, and like the apostles of old, we can sing songs even at midnight. We ought to be ashamed of our gloom and our glumness if we name the name of Christ.

Preparedness and Unpreparedness.

"The wise took oil in their vessels with their lamps . . . but the foolish, when they took their lamps, took no oil with them." One group had prepared for emergencies; the other group was unprepared. The Bible urges faith, but it does not discount or discourage foresight. We are to "trust in God," but we are also to "keep our powder dry." We are to use our todays in getting ready for the tomorrows. The Boy Scout motto, "Be prepared," is also the motto for the Christian. Routine experiences may well serve as preparation for remote emergencies. The time to get ready for tomorrow's temptations is today, and the way to prepare to win the battle against tomorrow's big temptation is to win the victory against today's little temptation. Young people should be using the days of youth in preparing themselves for mature life. All of us should be building up reserves of moral and spiritual strength so that when an emergency does come, we shall be ready. One never knows what might happen; he had better be prepared as best he can for what might happen.

The Emergency and the Opportunity

"But at midnight there is a cry, Behold the bridegroom cometh!" That was the hour of emergency and of opportunity. It came when they least expected it. Such hours usually come that way. It may be some great emergency, some time of testing, some disaster, even death itself, although this parable was not concerned primarily with death. Many a man's house has fallen because when the rains came and the winds blew and the floods beat upon his house it did not have a good foundation—he had not prepared it for the great emergency.

But the thing works the other way, too. Instead of some great sorrow, the coming of the bridegroom may be the coming of some great joy. God may have some rich blessing in store for us, and we may not be ready for it. We have been asleep. We have let the oil of Christian faith and living run low! Or again it may be some great opportunity, some open door that has suddenly opened for us. Alas, how many people are unfitted for many jobs that are now open to trained men, because they did not take advantage of their opportunities to learn while in school, or did not go to school at all. All of life is not made up of great emergencies and opportunities. But come they do, and so many of the pangs and poignancies of life are made up of remorse over lack of preparation and provision for these things.

Non-Transferable Resources

"Peradventure there will not be enough for us and for you; but go ye rather to them that sell, and buy for yourselves." At first sight that looks like selfishness and callousness. Why didn't those who had some extra oil share with those who had no oil? It looks like smugness to say nothing of selfishness. But interpreted in terms of life and experience, it is inevitable. If a man lacks inner resources, others cannot transfer to him their grace. Here are two women, one of them flippant, shallow, worldly, caught in a flood of great sorrow. Her response to sanctifying motives has been only in fitful moods. The other has nurtured her inner life and tended her inborn faith until it burns with a steady flame. Can the flippant woman borrow the other woman's faith in her dark hour? Can character be so easily transferred? When temptation comes can there be a borrowing of moral fiber? To be sure we can help others in hours of emergency. But ultimately and inevitably each one of us must deal with the things that life brings on the basis of personal response.

Closed Doors

"And the door was shut." Somewhere, somehow, the foolish virgins found oil, and hurried back to the wedding feast. But when they arrived there, the door was shut, and they could not, and did not get in. As Dr. Buttrick says, "there is an end to opportunity. There is a tide in the affairs of men, but it does not remain at the flood; it ebbs. There may be another tide, but that tide is gone, and gone forever." There are many hours that we would like to recall, but we cannot. As we go through life, we close forever many doors behind us, doors that are shut, not by an arbitrary God, but by our own unpreparedness and responsiveness. When they came they found us sleeping or unprepared and they are gone forever.

Watch Therefore!

"Watch, therefore, for ye know not the day or the hour." This does not mean feverish anxiety. We cannot always be at strained attention. Watchfulness is rather the set of the soul, it is the undertone of the soul, finding expression through the faithful performance of the day's duties. John Wesley was once asked what he would do if he knew that the Saviour was coming that night. He replied in simple and significant language, "I would do my day's work, say my evening prayers, and lay me down and go to sleep."

Based on "International Sunday School Lessons;" Copyrighted 1951 by Division of Christian Education, National Council of the Churches in the U. S. A.

Having over three million excessive drinkers is an important accident factor in our mechanized world.

Have You Read?

SNOWDEN-DOUGLASS SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSONS FOR 1953. By Earl L. Douglass, D.D., The Macmillan Company. 470 pp., $2.95.

For years "The Snowden Commentary" on the International Uniform Sunday School Lessons has been rated by thousands of teachers of Adult and of Intermediate - Senior classes as being the most rewarding help available in planning their lessons from week to week. Dr. Earl L. Douglass has been the editor of thirteen annual editions of this widely used Sunday School Lesson commentary. The 1953 edition is one of the best of the entire series of thirty-two editions. Teachers in Sunday schools of practically all denominations have found each edition of invaluable assistance in their work because of the authoritative biblical data presented, the commonsense application of the lessons to modern thinking and living, and the wealth of illustrative material given with each lesson. The material for each Sunday presents not only the Bible lesson, but also the biblical background, basic outline, plan of presentation, teaching guides and the Christian values of the lesson.

Teachers of the Uniform Lessons will find in this 1953 edition vital information which would require many hours of research study to acquire.

R. C. HELFENSTEIN.

* * * * *

FLOWER ARRANGEMENTS FOR CHURCHES. By Adelaide B. Wilson, M. Barrows & Co., Inc. 192 pp., $4.00.

This is a timely contribution to a greatly neglected field of church interest. In fact such a book is long past due. It is filled with practical ideas for Flower Committees responsible for the floral decorations of their churches. The author warns against the poor taste of making floral decorations suggest "a flower show" as is sometimes done by Flower Committees. Emphasis is laid upon the importance of naturalness and simplicity in the flower arrangements. Perhaps the author overstresses the problem of arranging flowers as a part of the "worship setting," for women are usually placed on the Flower Committee who are natural-born artists in this field of service. Inate lovers of flowers and of harmony instinctively have the "know-how" in artistically arranging flowers in their homes or in their church. To such people, the arranging of flowers for the best effect is more of a joy than a problem. Many authorities on flower arrangements in church would take issue with the author on the question of placing flowers on the altar and on the Communion table, preferring to use flower stands and having a cross and candles on Communion table or altar.

The author wisely warns against "over decoration"—too many flowers in a vase, shoddiness and carelessness—chucking flowers unsymmetrically into a vase, the using of unattractive vases, etc.

Any Flower Committee will profit by reading this suggestive book. Some may wish that the author had simplified her presentation a little more than has been done, and that more emphasis had been laid upon "Flower Arrangements as an aid to worship" rather than as an end in itself. Flowers do talk. And so much can be said with flowers! In the church, they may be made to speak most eloquently of the glory of God.

R. C. HELFENSTEIN.

LORD'S ACRE PLAN IN THE VALLEY CONFERENCE.

(Continued from page 5.)

the children turned over the proceeds which amounted to $20, to help equip their new church building.

Not all the projects were by children and young people. Two adults had individual projects. Mr. Robert Sellers, Church Building treasurer of Bethlehem Church, set aside one of his young steers to fatten for the Lord. This was also dedicated in the same church service as the White's chickens, and the steer also was not present at the service. The other individual project was the pure-bred dog dedicated by Mrs. Florence Day, treasurer of Woods Chapel, which has been mentioned above. This dog brought in $10 to the Woods Chapel building fund.

Although definite projects were not completed in churches other than the three reported above, much interest in the Lord's Acre movement was shown by leaders of the Conference, which may result in future action.

The Rev. E. J. Rohart, the chairman of the Conference Stewardship Committee, recommended the Lord's Acre and distributed literature about it at the annual meeting of the conference. At the Young People's Rallyes, reports of young people's Lord's Acre projects were asked for and made. The Rev. Henry V. Harman, pastor-at-large, helped harvest the Wissler's Chapel Lord's Acre potatoes, tomatoes and beans. Even conference delegates from our urban church at Winchester expressed much interest in the movement. We expect the movement will grow from these little beginnings with the help of God.

LETTER FROM THE RIGGS.

(Continued from page 8.)

of our usefulness here could be extended. But he neglected to mention where the needed thousands of rupees to buy and maintain one would come from!)

I don't mean to be sarcastic, for actually I am delighted to see more interest being taken in this area by people who had previously been city- and center-minded. This period here has been worthwhile for that reason, that it has put Kilanjanai on the local map. Actually, of course, the Government has been facing the same problem in dozens of similar rural areas in our Diocesan area, where it has been maintaining similar hospitals and dispensaries which are now threatened with closing down because doctors can't be found who are willing to go out into the Styx and serve in them. In other words there are dozens of potential Kilanjanais in this Diocese and this is just one tiny corner of India. The trouble in the past is that they have been considered "The Styx" instead of "Shangri-la". And everybody has tended to look down on the villagers who deposit their fees indiscriminately and perpetuate the dysentery cycle as stupid yokels.

I can't help but admire a scathing editorial I read recently in the Madras English-language newspaper. I had often gotten annoyed with patients' relatives who said that they couldn't bring their dangerously ill patients in for proper treatment because they were "too busy with the harvest." Well we have watched the

(Continued on page 15.)

The Orphanage

J. G. TRUITT, Superintendent

DEAR FRIENDS:

Sixteen Sunday schools helped us this week. Thank you, thank you so much. I guess there is nothing much more selfless and satisfying than making a contribution to help care for homeless children — especially when we know they are being given by such funds a good home and good training. God has blessed us all, and it is a joy to do something for him in return. Remember the words of Jesus: Inasmuch as ye do it unto one of the least of these ye do it unto me. How good it would be if every Sunday school in the Convention would give a chance once each month to help these children.

We are short one matron, and also one matron is out sick, so you can see we are up against it. We have to carry on. These 80 children have to be fed three times a day. Their clothes, their baths, their schooling have to go on every day. Larry needs glasses, Frankie needs shoes. Virginia needs new clothes being a senior in high school and Easter just around the corner. Betty Ann needs soon an appendectomy, and several need tonsilectomies. All need care, loving understanding advice and counsel and care. Some are not doing well in school. Some are taking undue advantage of their extra energy and making it noisy where it should be quiet. Some complain of their food — not many, and none should, for it is good. Can I do this, and may I do that, and when the answer is no, sometimes but not too frequently, there is unsportsmanlike response. The friendship of a fine constituency is good for most of these things. Your help puts a song in our hearts here and that helps every lad and lassie.

Speaking of song, Wake Chapel's song leader, Joe Stephenson, and pastor Fred Register, will be here this afternoon for three days of special services on our campus. The children and all their helpers will gather together each evening at 7:30 for worship, featuring song, and prayer, and sermon adapted to the children's need. At 4:00 each afternoon there will be a special service in the Children's Building. The boys and girls here look forward to these services, and so do the matrons and other workers. We greatly appreciated these two fellow workers donating their time and services to the orphanage for these three days.

There was a pretty wedding in the superintendent's home last Saturday night when Betty Jean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Wagoner, of the orphanage family was married to Melvin H. Stegal, of Macon, N. C. Betty is a graduate nurse, and her mother was reared at the orphanage and attended Elon College. The bride is office and surgical nurse for Dr. J. W. Johnston, of Burlington, who is a son of Uncle Charlie Johnston, former superintendent. The groom is in the armed services of his country.

JOHN G. TRUITT,
Superintendent.

REPORT FOR FEBRUARY 19, 1953

Commodities for the week.

Liberty (Vance) Congregational Christian Church, Clothing.

Miss Vera V. Cleave, Wadley, Alabama, Clothing.

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

Amount brought forward $2,370.77

Eastern N. C. Conference:

Clayton$ 33.00
33.00

Eastern Va. Conference:

New Lebanon$ 20.00
Newport News S. S. 13.80
Norfolk, First 20.54
Portsmouth, First S. S. . . 4.38
58.72

N. C. and Va. Conference:

Asheville, Woman's Fellowship$ 40.00
Ingrams S. S. 18.66
Long's Chapel 2.72
61.38

Western N. C. Conference:

Brown's Chapel S. S.$ 5.00
Pleasant Cross S. S. 6.00
Pleasant Union S. S. 10.73

Ramseur S. S.	60.00
Zion	30.00	111.73
Virginia Valley Conference:
Bethel S. S.	$ 2.00
Palmyra S. S.	3.00	5.00
Mayflower Church, Minneapolis, Min.
		37.29
Total	$	307.12
Grand Total	$	2,677.89

Special Offerings.

Amount brought forward	$2,361.26
Mr. and Mrs. Hosea Lambeth, Elon College, N. C.	$ 5.00
Miss Edith Walker, Burlington, N. C. in memory of Mrs. L. T. Brinekerhoff	7.00
Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Norfleet, Holland, Va., in memory of E. F. Raiford	5.00
Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Norfleet, Holland, Va., in memory of Dr. G. G. Holland	5.00
Mrs. George Steinbach, Franklin, Va., for Mattie O'Neill	5.00
Special Gifts	3.00
	30.00
Grand Total	$2,391.26
Total for the week	$ 337.12
Total for the year	$5,069.15

Mother: "What did your father say when he fell off the ladder?"

Junior: "Shall I leave out the naughty words?"

Mother: "Of course, dear."

Junior: "Nothing."

MEMORIAL GIFTS

"Instead of Flowers"

Dr. John G. Truitt
Christian Orphanage
Elon College, N. C.

Dear Dr. Truitt:

Please acknowledge the enclosed $..... as a memorial gift sent to the Christian Orphanage in lieu of flowers in memory of:

.....
(Name of Deceased)

.....
(City)

.....
(Date of Death)

.....
(Survivor to be Written)

.....
(Address)

Name.....

Address.....

In Memoriam

MOORE.

Miss Nonie Bell Moore was a life-time resident of Burlington, N. C. and was forty-seven years a member of the First Church. She was active in many phases of church life, and highly esteemed by all her associates. The last months of her life were marked by suffering which she had with great patience and courage. Funeral services were conducted by the Reverends John S. Graves and Henry E. Robinson, January 12, 1953, in the sanctuary of the church which she loved and served.

RUDD.

After successfully undergoing an operation last summer, Viola Rudd had returned to her work in Burlington Mills and was stricken without warning on January 5. After a brief stay in the local hospital she was removed to Duke Hospital in Durham where she was operated on but never rallied. She died on January 18, 1953. Services were held in the First Church, Burlington, where she had been a member since July of 1928, and were conducted by the Reverends W. W. Snyder and Henry E. Robinson on January 20, in the sanctuary of the church. Miss Rudd had lived with the family of R. B. Fitch for over twenty-five years.

MILLS.

We, the members of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Rosemont Congregational Christian Church, wish to pay loving tribute to the memory of Mrs. O. S. Mills, who passed away, January 7, 1953. She was one of the first presidents and had been one of the leaders and loyal supporters ever since the society was organized.

Because then, of the love and esteem in our hearts for her, be it resolved:

1. That God's way is always best.
2. That we honor her life by being true in service to the cause she loved and served.
3. That we extend our heartfelt sympathy to the family and commend them to God for comfort.

RUITH HASSELL,
FANNIE HERBERT,
ELIZABETH SWINK.

Committee.

MILLS.

Mrs. Alice Gibson Mills, a member of the Betty Gibson Bible Class of the Rosemont Christian Church, passed to her Heavenly Home on Jan. 7, 1953.

In her going the class has lost a beloved member and friend.

She was ready to go when her Master called.

Therefore, be it resolved:

1. That while we miss her cheerful words and sunny smile, we know that our loss is her gain, and we submit to the will of God, who doeth all things well.
2. That we extend our sympathy to the bereaved family, and emulate the faith which radiated from her life.
3. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to her family, a copy to "The Christian Sun," and a copy be recorded in the minutes of our class.

GRACE GIBSON JOHNSTON,
MABLE P. BRENT,
DORIS LIVERMAN.

Committee.

LETTER FROM THE RIGGS.

(Continued from page 13.)

villages during the past month getting their harvest in, with men, women, and children working with the last ounce of their strength. We watched schools close because no one could afford to take time out for such things of lesser importance. And we saw how they worked earlier to cultivate and irrigate the fields and use every last drop of rain from the timely thundershowers to the best advantage. And how successful their efforts have been around here this year is shown by the huge piles of rice and ragi straw piled up for fodder in each village. It is a sight for sore eyes because they are the highest piles in five years. The people here may not eat vegetables this next year but at least they will have grain!

The editorial in the paper I referred to relates how the cultivators of 30,000 acres of half-grown rice in the Madura area were petitioning the Government to install pumps in the almost dry bed of the huge reservoir on the Western Slope to raise the last few feet of water in the bottoms to the level of the outlet pipes, in hopes that it might save part of their crops at least. The Government was upset and called them stupid fools because they had disregarded the warnings that there would not be enough water to grow that second crop, so if they lost it it would be their own fault. But if they would pay the cost of transporting and installing the pumps the Government would see what could be done. The farmers readily agreed but pleaded with the Government to please cut the red tape and hurry because the time was short and it would soon be too late. The editor went on to say, What is wrong with these Government officials? For months they have been urging the farmers to greater efforts to grow more grain and make India self-sufficient for food so that the country's capital reserves would not have to be drained away in importing famine-relief grains from the outside. But now when these farmers risk everything and work hard and try to do the impossible and raise an extra crop, the Government scolds them and calls them stupid yokels: they are heroes—they with their hard work and drudgery, producing food from this desert where anybody in his right mind would say nothing could be grown—these are the heroes of this part of the world. And it is high time that they were giving them the appreciation and sympathy and help that they deserve.

Best regards,

Ed Riggs.

CHURCH WOMEN AT WORK.

(Continued from page 9.)

idea that we rely completely on programs that have been planned for us. We would be the first to take advantage of an interesting speaker, a highly advertised film strip, etc. We have done just this several times this year.

Special Speakers.

As a matter of fact, one of the highlights of the year in programs was having Dr. and Mrs. E. J. Woodhouse honor us with a visit at our November meeting, which happened to be the night before the national election.

Dr. Woodhouse is a member of the faculty here at the University, as a teacher of political science. His intelligence and dynamic personality have left impressions on students and acquaintances that time never effaces. His wife is as "cute as a button," and has her Ph.D., also in political science. When the program opened, she told us that the Woodhouses could give two kinds of speeches—one in which they stood erect and did a lot of arm-waving, or one in which they sat down around a table, over a cup of coffee, and had a discussion. The latter is what we got. The political campaign was covered completely and was done in as much of an impartial manner as could possibly be. They are both great thought stimulators, and the group enjoyed questions and answers after their talk.

Our Conclusion.

But getting back to the Packet. We contend that nine times out of ten, it is easier to just ask somebody to speak than it is to really do some serious thinking and planning on the use of the material in the Packet. Could this be the sentiment of those who would like to reject the use of it? Get yourselves a good program chairman, as we have, give her the Packet that might be collecting dust on a shelf, and watch the two of them go to work! The result will be more than rewarding.

MRS. RAYMOND STRONG.

Who Belongs to What Church?

Excerpts from a Survey of Religion in the U. S.

More adult Americans count themselves active members of a church than even the churches realize. Seventy-three adults in each 100, or a total of 75,900,000 men and women, say they are Protestants, Catholics or Jews.

Ninety-five out of 100 Americans, 18 years old or over—nearly 99 millions—say they have a preference for one or another religion, more often Protestant, Catholic or Jewish than any other. Only 5 out of 100 say that they have no religious preference whatsoever.

How many people in the United States are Protestant, how many are Catholic, how many Jewish? Who are the more than 5 million who have no preference, no church?

To answer these questions, the Catholic Digest engaged a firm of independent commercial opinion-research experts to conduct an overall survey. Estimates have been made before by the various religious bodies, each for its own membership. . . . Now, for the first time, we have figures based on a scientific survey covering ALL religions in the United States. The sampling methods used to measure other aspects of life in America have been applied to give us information about Americans and religion.

The figures revealed are new. They are the most accurate now attainable. And the findings give us a clearer, more factual picture of ourselves in relation to our religious affiliation than any we have had before.

The sampling of public opinion is a science. . . . In the case of religious affiliation, it is possible to count every person; but it has not yet been done. That is the task of the Bureau of Census; but until the bureau can be persuaded to ask questions about religious belief or church memberships, the figures discovered by the Digest-sponsored survey are not only the most up-to-date, but the most accurate available. Experts in the field of sampling would accept these figures as accurate within 1 per cent. . . .

This survey counted only Americans who are 18 years of age or over. According to the 1950 census figures, such citizens numbered 104 million. There are also 46,700,000 children in the United States, whose religious affiliation cannot be measured with the same degree of accuracy as that of grown men and women. . . . But we are dealing in this article with those of us who are 18 or older.

For statistical purposes, the only fact that can be learned about everyone is, "What does he say he is?" We must assume that if a person says he is Protestant, Catholic or Jewish, that is what he is. . . . Further, there is a manner of asking which makes it easy for everyone to include himself in. If you ask a man, "Are you a Protestant?" he may hesitate to answer. . . . The wording of the question avoided that. It was: "By the way, what is your religious preference, Protestant, Catholic, Jewish or what?" Testing proved that this wording enabled a person to answer quickly and accurately. The answer to this and other related questions revealed the facts that 95 per cent of Americans who are over 17 have a definite religious preference; 73 per cent of all of us say we belong to a church, and 68 per cent have attended church services within the last 12 weeks.

The figures also show that out of every 10 Americans, 7 are Protestant, 2 are Catholic, and the odds are even that the tenth is either Jewish or has no religious preference.

. . . Statistically, and actually, the man who never goes to a Sunday service is an exception. As individual and as Americans, Protestants, Catholics and Jews may well be edified at the large numbers of us who say we belong, in some fashion or other, to a religious body.

On the other hand, regardless of . . . the small percentage, there are more than 5 million Americans who are indifferent to any religion. Who is to blame save all of us. Our bad example in not living up to our principles, our timidity in discussing religion, our foolish fear of offending, our smugness in possession of what we regard as religious truth—these are some of the things that cause religion to languish. They are faults we can correct.

Freedom of religion is every American's right. With this right go responsibilities.

—Catholic Digest.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY. 1956.
Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches.

The CHRISTIAN SUN

ORGAN OF THE SOUTHERN CONVENTION OF CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES

In Essentials Unity — In Non-Essentials, Liberty, — In All Things, Charity

VOLUME CV

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, MARCH 5, 1953

NUMBER 10

"Except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it"

Build with Him
by Supporting the
CHURCH BUILDING LOAN FUND CAMPAIGN

March 1 through June, 1953

News Flashes

From reports of the American Board, it has been ascertained that not less than 56 foreign students affiliated with our denomination, are studying in the United States.

Dr. Warren H. Denison has observed his 56th anniversary as an ordained minister, and has preached for 61 years. Last year he made 278 addresses in eight states. He started this year's work in Florida, beginning on January 5, with an engagement in St. Petersburg. He had at last reports already accepted invitations to Stewardship service in eight states for 1953.

In this issue Bryan Drake, Secretary of the Department of Higher Education for the Congregational Christian Churches, raises the question as to the worthwhileness of the "attack on communism in higher education." You may not agree with all he says—the writer of this note would make several mental reservations—but he nevertheless offers you food for serious thought.

Miss Alice E. Cary, who is touring our mission stations in the Pacific, reports that the Marshall Islanders "believe in education." She writes that in the Marshall Island churches the "membership gives a dollar a year per capita for their education program, and another dollar for . . . food" of students. What a blessing it would be for Elon College if our constituency would make the Elon College Sustaining Fund two dollars per capita and would really raise it

There is appearing in The Richmond Times Dispatch during Lent a series of forty articles written by laymen of different faiths, expressing their personal feelings about what religion means to them. The writer in a recent issue was Mr. Alfred A. Doffmeyer, a product of our Valley Conference, and now the chairman of the Official Board and a deacon of First Church, Richmond, Virginia. We are sure that our readers will approve of the article being reprinted in this week's issue of THE SUN.

From Interdenominational Religious Work Foundation, Richmond,

Va., "News Notes" for February, 1953, comes the following: "In Memoriam—Robert Lee House, Congregational Christian Minister and Trustee of the Interdenominational Religious Foundation, was called 'home' on January 20, 1953. The Rev. Mr. House represented his denomination from 1941 to his death and was Treasurer of the Foundation for three years (1947-1949). He believed in the interdenominational approach to home missions in our state institutions and gave unselfishly of his time and talent in the promotion of the Kingdom of God. We shall find someone to succeed him, but no one can ever take his place."

Congratulations to Rev. Max Vestal. According to reports, he "has finished his work at Elon." That may be cause for sorrow or joy, according to the way you look at it, but either way it is reason for congratulation. Now a word to our young people throughout the Southern Convention: Max will not have as much time to "Relax" as he did when in school—believe it or not. So it is up to you to get the news of what your local Fellowship Organizations are doing in to him. He cannot edit what you don't send in. Please see that he doesn't have too much time to "Relax" on that job. He won't know that we are saying this until he sees it in print. By the way, material should be sent to him at Asheboro, North Carolina. MG. EDITOR.

Suffolk District Training School

Congregational Christian Churches of the Suffolk area will sponsor a Training School for Christian Workers to be held in the Suffolk Christian Church, March 8-11, 1953. The school will begin on Sunday afternoon, March 8, with a general enrollment period at 2:30 o'clock. A general assembly and a worship service will begin at 3:00 o'clock, with one class period to follow.

Three courses will be presented:

"Teaching Children," by Miss Pattie Lee Coghill.

"Improving Our Sunday School," by Rev. Earl Farrell.

"Principles and Program of the Congregational Churches," by Dr. Wm. T. Scott.

The writer will serve as Dean of the school.

A worship service and two class periods will be held on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights, with a special closing service on Wednesday night. This school presents a splendid opportunity for workers in the local churches to improve their efficiency and to increase their fruitfulness in Christian service.

H. S. HARDCASTLE.

Services at United Church of Chapel Hill

The United Congregational Christian Church, Chapel Hill, North Carolina, is presenting a series of Lenten and Easter services which are aimed at meeting the spiritual and intellectual needs of people living in a modern scientific age. "Believing that more and more, enlightened people are insisting that religious truth rest upon a foundation adequate for any other kind of truth," states the pastor, Rev. Richard L. Jackson, "these services will seek to come to grips with the basic tenets of the Christian faith as they apply to the every-day needs of modern man."

Dr. Fred West, minister of the Hillyer Memorial Christian Church, Raleigh, North Carolina, will speak on Wednesday, March 11 at 8 p. m., on "Strengthening Our Spiritual Foundations Through Prayer." Dr. West is a graduate of Lynchburg College. He received a Ph. D. from Yale University, and has served as chairman of the Department of Religion at Wabash College and Texas Christian University. In addition to serving as pastor of his present church, he has taught at Atlantic Christian College.

On Wednesday, March 18, Dr. James Phillips, Chaplain of Duke University, will speak on "Strengthening Our Spiritual Foundations Through Repentance and Forgiveness," and on March 25, Dr. A. C. Howell of the Department of English of the University of North Carolina will speak on "Strengthening Our Spiritual Foundations Through an Understanding of God's Word."

On successive Sunday mornings at the 11 o'clock worship hour, the minister of United Church, Rev. Mr. Jackson, will deliver a series of sermons on "What Can I Believe?" On March 8, the theme will be "What Can I Believe about God?" The rest of the series will include: "What Can I Believe about Jesus Christ?" "What Can I Believe about the Church?" "What Can I Believe about Eternal Life?"

Laymen and the Church . . .

J. Earl Danieley, Editor, Box 515, Elon College, N. C.

What About Our "Place in The Sun?"

The Executive Committee of the Laymen's Fellowship of the Southern Convention met at Elon College, N. C., on February 7, 1953. Several matters were considered. One important item of business resulted in a decision to ask the Board of Publications for a regular space in THE CHRISTIAN SUN. The Board approved the request, and consequently the Laymen of the Convention have been assigned the space.

The questions arise: Is this matter really important? How will the space be used? Will this decision have any effect on the work of the men of our church? We cannot at this time give clear-cut answers to these and other questions which occur to us. However, this one thing we know: here is an opportunity and a responsibility. If the men of the church visualize the opportunity and accept the responsibility, this can be the beginning of a new day for our men's organizations throughout the Convention.

What can you do? What should you do? First, you should communicate with the editor of this column as to what you want to see printed in the column. Let him know the type of thing that you are primarily interested in; don't hesitate to tell him what will be of greatest value to your local group. Second, contribute to the column. Send in the news from your local group. Tell the other men in the Convention just what your group has done and is doing. What you have accomplished in your group may be just what another group needs to know in order to be stimulated into action. We cannot know what you are doing unless you write to us and give us the information.

* * * * *

Plans Are Being Made

Some plans have been made for this space. Beginning next week, we will have a suggested program for each month. This is something new for us. We know that the women of our church have been using prepared programs to a good advantage for a long time. Some of the men's groups have suggested that they would like to have such material. The first series will begin immediately. The entire series of programs might be entitled, "The Laymen and His Relationships." The topics for the series of eight monthly programs are given here:

- "The Layman and His Pastor";
- "The Layman and His Church";
- "The Layman and His Community";
- "The Layman and His Country";
- "The Layman and His Family";
- "The Layman and Civic Responsibility";
- "The Layman and Recreation";
- "The Layman and His Soul."

At present it is planned to give a general outline which can be used for the program along with some questions for discussion. If you and your group think that something other than this will be of more help to you, the editor would appreciate hearing from you.

The mission of our Master was to seek and to save the lost. He came to save the lost. He lived to save the lost. He died to save the lost and he arose to save the lost. Everyone that has been saved, is being saved, or will be saved, was saved for the purpose of saving others. The obligation rests upon all Christians.

—A. E. Lupton.

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr
A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom as represented by the Congregational Christian Churches.

Our Principles

1. The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
2. Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
3. The Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
4. Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and church membership.
5. The right of private judgment and liberty of conscience is a privilege that should be accorded to and exercised by all.

Managing Editor John T. Kernodle

Departmental Editors—Convention, Wm. T. Scott; Missions, F. C. Lester; Women's Work, Mrs. F. C. Lester; Young People's Work, Max Vestal; Children, Mrs. R. L. House; Sunday School Lesson, H. S. Hardestal.

Institutional Representatives—Elon College, L. E. Smith; The Christian Orphanage, John G. Truitt.

Board of Publications—Duane Vore, Chairman, S. T. Holland, Secretary; R. C. Helfenstein, S. E. Madren, W. W. Snyder, G. D. Colclough, Treasurer, ex officio.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Year $3.00
Two Years 5.00

Published by the Board of Publications of The Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches, Inc. Printed every Thursday except the last in June and December by Central Publishing Co., Inc., Richmond, Va.

Entered as second-class matter at the Post Office at Richmond Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

General contributions should be addressed to the editor at Southern Pines, N. C., and should reach him by Wednesday of the week preceding date of publication.

Departmental material should be sent to the proper departmental editor, at the address shown on their page.

All other material and business communications except regarding subscriptions should be sent to the Office of Publication, 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond 19, Va.

The Christian Sun Subscription Blank

Subscription Price: 1 year, $3.00; 2 years, $5.00

Date 195

Dr. Wm. T. Scott, Supt.,
Elon College, N. C.

Enclosed find $ for which please send The Christian Sun
() 1 year, () 2 years — () New Subscription, () Renewal.

To

Address

Who is a member of Church

() Renew, () Enter my own subscription for () 1 year, () 2 years.

My Name

My Address

From the EDITOR'S Desk

The Joy and the Rewards of Sharing

The Church Building Loan Fund Campaign now being launched in the Southern Convention by our denomination makes strong appeal to all men and women, who, not content merely to have good church advantages themselves, are anxious to share in order that others may have any church opportunities at all.

At the time of any call for people to share their blessings and their prosperity with others, I always think of my experiences along the shores of the two seas of Palestine.

Those two seas offer an impressive parable to which every person in the Southern Convention should give thoughtful consideration as this most important campaign asks for their cooperation.

"There are two seas in Palestine. One is fresh, and fish are in it. Clumps of green and sprays of color adorn its banks. Trees spread their branches over it and stretch out their thirsty roots to sip its healing waters. Along its shores the children play as they played when Jesus was there. He loved it. He could look across its silver surface as he spoke his parables.

"The River Jordan makes this sea with sparkling water from the hills. So Galilee laughs in the sunshine. And the men build their houses near it—and the birds their nests. And every kind of life is happier because the Sea of Galilee is there.

"The River Jordan flows south into another sea. Here is no splash of fish, no fluttering leaf, no children's laughter. Travelers choose another route unless on urgent business or on a sight-seeing excursion. The air hangs heavy above its waters, and neither man nor beast nor fowl will drink from its supply.

"Now what makes this mighty difference in these two neighbor seas? It is not the River Jordan—it empties the same good water into both. It is not the soil in which they lie, nor the country round about. This is the difference. The Sea of Galilee receives, but does not keep the Jordan. For every drop that flows into it, another drop flows out. The receiving and the giving go on in equal measure. The other sea is shrewder, hoarding its income jealously. It will not be tempted into any generous impulse. Every drop it gets it keeps.

"The Sea of Galilee gives and lives. The other sea gives nothing. It is named . . . 'The Dead Sea'."

There are two seas in Palestine. . . .

There are two kinds of people in the world. . . . Which kind are we? R. C. HELFENSTEIN.

Concern for Secular Financial Drives

The number of financial drives launched in the average community, rural or urban, during the span of a year is surprisingly high. The number has been cut somewhat in urban communities through recourse to the "Community Chest." This is a plan that could be studied with profit by our rural communities, for the arguments in its favor apply to almost any situation and there are additional factors operative in rural areas, not the least of which are the distances involved in each drive and the fact that the same people become involved in an assortment of drives.

The picture is complicated by the fact that some worthy undertakings, the American Red Cross, for example, will not cooperate in the Community Chest. In addition, other enterprises of merit which relied primarily on the method of providing the opportunity to give, now are venturing into the field of the organized drive. An example of this is the "March of Dimes." When purely local concerns are added to those of national character, it is obvious that these drives for funds constitute an undertaking of large proportions.

The churches have a practical concern in this, for almost invariably the leadership and workers for such undertakings are drawn from the pool of active church members, and these in turn are the leaders and workers in raising funds for the churches and their interests. Moreover, if the number of such undertakings increases in the future as it has in the past, the churches are going to be in active competition for the gifts of the people who constitute their membership. Even if each individual gave as he could afford, it is conceivable that there is a limit on the funds available. In the more realistic view that most do not give to anything as they ought and could, it is probable that the spirit of competition will intrude soon rather than late.

The burden of this editorial is two-fold. In the first place, the worth of most of these undertakings is not questioned. Of course, there could be instances in which investigation would be desirable. What is suggested is that the churches have a concern for their own sake and for that of the communities in which they are located to develop and support the idea of the "Community Chest" or something similar in nature, and the need is particularly great in rural areas. Secondly, the churches should be concerned about the overall development in this area that the resources of and for the churches in terms of people and money not be over-taxed. JAS. H. LIGHTBOURNE, Jr.

If I Could Wake the Conscience of the World . . .

By CHRISTIAN CHRISTIANSEN

Representative in Syria of the Lutheran World Federation
Service to Refugees

On a sandy, rocky mountain slope, about one mile outside Bethlehem and on the way to Hebron, there is a small village; not a village of houses, but of hundreds of grey tents. That is the refugee camp where 3,500 Arabs have found a temporary stay.

The refugees are all homeless, they all came from Palestine which is now called Israel. For more than four years, these people have been living on international charity.

Their troubles and sufferings started when the Jews began to fight with the Arabs over the Holy Land. When the Jews declared the State of Israel, thousands of the Palestinian Arabs had to flee.

They now live—"exist" would be a better word—on rations which the United Nations Relief and Works Agency gives them regularly once a month. Many of their tents, which are also supplied by WNRWA, are torn as a result of the severity of last winter. Only a very few refugees have been able to make themselves small, primitive huts, mostly of mud-bricks or tin from old barrels or jerri cans.

There is not a tree in the whole camp, not a blade of grass or a flower to break the grey monotony. To the west, one can see the houses in Bethlehem, morning and evening, the refugees can hear the bells from the Church of the Nativity, the Holy place where our Lord was born. Toward the east, from the top of the hill on which the camp is situated, one can see the Mount of Olives, Calvary and the Towers of many churches in Jerusalem.

Not only the sandy, dusty landscape is grey and wretched, but also the minds and souls of the refugees are dark and bitter. As I visited the camp some weeks ago, together with an Arab interpreter, a bit of sensation was created, as not every day brings a visitor.

We were greeted by Hasan Mustafa, the camp leader, a tall, slim Arab with a red fez on his head, dressed in a long gown. A pair of dusty sandals protected his feet against the warm sand. "Ahlan wa sahelan" ("welcome") he said with genuine Arab politeness and hospitality. He took me into his tent where I enjoyed a cup of the strong, sweet Arab coffee. After I had explained the purpose of my visit, I went out into the camp.

I looked around. Small groups of men stood or sat on the earth talking; men of all kinds and all ages: farmers, teachers, lawyers, sheiks, craftsmen. Some used a red fez, some a turban, and some had just put a big piece of white cloth on their heads to protect them against the sun.

Children, brown like chocolate, but poorly dressed, ran around between the tents, playing and shouting as all children do. But clouds of dust arose around these.

The women seemed to be the only ones who had something to do. Some were very busy with open fires outside their tents. (There is neither electricity nor any other modern form of stoves in the refugee camps.) Others walked barefooted to a close-by brooklet for water.

As it is the custom in this part of the world that women carry most of the things on their heads, I had the opportunity to admire those women for their upright posture and their incomprehensible ability to walk at a normal speed with a tin bucket—or petrol can—full of water on the head without losing a single drop.

Some fifty Arabs stood in a long queue in the sunshine outside a bigger tent and waited patiently for the distribution of their rations, holding empty tins and bowls in their hands. A similar number queued outside the tent of the camp clinic, most of them women and children sitting or lying on the sand.

The United Nations run this clinic, in other places it may be the Lutheran World Federation, the Quakers, or other church welfare agencies that serve the refugees by employing doctors and nurses, and giving free treatment and medicine.

The clinic is open daily, except on Sundays. Usually the mothers start to come with their children at 4 or 5 o'clock in the morning. All want to be the first, nobody likes to wait for hours in the hot sunshine.

As the people arrive, numbers are distributed, and everyone gets in to see the doctor in accordance with his number. I got permission to stay with the doctor for about an hour and had the opportunity to be present when he examined several of the children.

How poorly dressed they all were! I thought of all the faithful congregations behind Lutheran World Action and their splendid support of our welfare program. Here was a place where help in the form of clothing was badly needed. Many mothers brought their babies wrapped in coarse sacks, and neither the boys nor the girls seemed to have underwear of any kind.

How thin were their arms and legs! Most of the children were also not clean, since water is scarce in this place and must be used with the greatest economy. The bit of soap which UN gives to every refugee once a month is also far from sufficient and not of good quality. The refugees receive no money, and most of them are therefore unable to buy themselves soap or a comb.

"Undernourishment and unhygienic living conditions cause most of the sickness," the doctor told me, while he carefully examined one of the small patients, "and most of our children have no longer the normal strength of resistance."

Oh, if I were able to get some tons of dried milk and some vitamins for these children! Yet, milk powder and vitamins are not enough. Would that I were able to wake up the conscience of the Christian world, to shout so loud that our western nations would begin to understand and realize what an injustice has been, and is still being inflicted upon an innocent people. Almost one million Arabs of Palestine are left to homelessness, suffering and a terrible poorness; their homes and property were given to a million foreign Jews from all corners of the world.

There were 868,415 Palestinian refugees at the last census. Very few of them were able to bring any property when they fled, most of them only brought the clothing they had on. "What property did you get out with you," I asked the camp doctor. "Nothing but my wife and two children," was his answer. "I didn't even get my stethoscope with me!"

What is there to do with these refugees? Where shall they go, if one can persuade them to go anywhere at

(Continued on page 13.)

What My Religion Means to Me

By ALFRED A. DOFFLEMYER

To me, religion is "a way" of living—an attitude of life toward God, toward one's self and toward one's fellowman. Our largest self-realization depends upon a proper attitude toward one's self, toward God and toward one's fellowman. Religion is based upon faith. Faith is a looking inward, upward and outward. Looking inward, we discover our actual self; looking upward, we discover God; looking outward, we discover others—and a concern for them implies fellowship. Through fellowship, love is kindled within the heart. Through love for our fellowman, we find, or come to know God in his largest fullness.

I believe the religion of Jesus is another way of saying "the Christian religion," for his religious faith and practices should be the religious faith and practices of his followers. The religion of Jesus inspires its devotees with love for and a dedication to God as man's Heavenly Father. It calls its devotees to be brothers in service as well as brothers in sympathy. Because of my commitment to Jesus Christ and his "way of life," my religion is grounded in the faith that the author of life is a God of love who never sends sorrow, suffering or trouble to anyone, but who desires and is able to help everyone in any time of need—if they in sincere faith call upon him for help.

Christ is "the Alpha and the Omega" of my religious interest. I believe he is the highest revelation of what God is like and of what God would have all men to be like.

Christ's life evidenced no imperfection. His way becomes my goal. I am challenged daily to try to attain it. I may, and will, often fall short—but I will not compromise or surrender my goal. Thus, I find that my faith is based upon the Fatherhood of God, the Lordship of Christ, and the brotherhood of mankind.

Prayer is the heart of the Christian religion. Jesus found it necessary to pray. I feel that prayer is much more essential to me than it was to Jesus and his disciples. It is the universal nature of man to pray. Life to all is difficult; it is a walk, and not a ride; life's burdens are often beyond our strength to bear. We seek strength outside ourselves—we turn to God for help. Prayer is not a begging, demanding, importuning procedure. It is a withdrawing in supplication to God for divine strength and assistance.

The church calls me to prayer; it challenges me to serve; it is the medium through which my religion may grow. It is a human institution having a divine purpose. It lays no claim to being composed of perfect people, but of people who are seeking "the better way." I believe that the church is God's major challenge for religious thinking and living. Its interest and welfare should be an intimate part of our daily living. It is the only agency in the modern world which is dedicated to the promotion of the highest spiritual, social and economic welfare of mankind. The individual is its chief concern—first, last and always. Because of this fact, I accept with enthusiasm the challenge of the church in giving a proportionate part of the fruits of my labor to its program of service, and in freely giving of my time (not required by my vocation) in its program of visiting the sick and those in trouble as well as lending a hand at every opportunity of rendering service to the church itself.

My religion brings me the peace of God which is beyond understanding—a peace which has to be experienced in order to be known. It is my sincere conviction that the religion of Jesus offers the only hope for world peace and world security.

Church Building Fund Campaign Committee Meets in Suffolk

The Church Building Fund Campaign Committee of the Southern Convention met February 11, 1953, at the Suffolk Christian Church.

Among those present for this meeting were Mr. William Kincaid Newman, National Director of Area 2, of which the Southern Convention is a part, and Mrs. Graham Wisseman, a member of the National Committee. There were some 25 other people present, representing the Convention Office staff, the Convention Executive Committee and all five of the Conferences.

Mrs. Wisseman reported that there was an enthusiastic spirit in the National Committee meeting held on January 25, at Cleveland, Ohio. She stated that over one million dollars had already been subscribed on this four and one-half million dollar campaign.

Mr. Martin T. Garren, Southern Convention General Chairman announced that Mr. John T. Kernodle had been asked to act as Publicity Director for the Southern Convention. He also announced that Mrs. W. B. Williams of Newport News, had been named as Chairman of the Speakers' Bureau, succeeding Mrs. O. H. Paris, who resigned because of ill health.

Dr. Jesse H. Dollar, chairman of a special committee charged with preparing a pamphlet telling the story for our Southern Convention, gave a brief description of a tentative pamphlet. His committee was asked to prepare the pamphlet as soon as possible.

Dr. Wm. T. Scott urged strongly that all Conference committees meet as early in March as possible.

It was agreed that all money collected and all pledges should be handled through the Southern Convention Office.

Mr. W. K. Newman shared some of the methods used in other areas in carrying the message to the people. Three methods for telling the story of the campaign were suggested for our use: (1) District Rallies (for 8 to ten churches) to which the minister and two key laymen would be invited; (2) Local church Rallies; (3) Announcements at the Women's Spring Rallies.

Chairman Garren reported that the organization for the Southern Convention had been completed. He expressed confidence in those who make up this organization and in the ultimate success of the campaign. He solicited the interest, suggestions and prayers of all.

The absence of Dr. Robert Lee House was very keenly felt by those who were present.

FRED REGISTER,
Secretary.

News of Elon College

PRESIDENT L. E. SMITH, Elon College, N. C.

The Two and One Half Million Dollar Campaign

I know that the readers of THE CHRISTIAN SUN and the members of our churches are wondering how the College Campaign is coming along. I wish that I could tell you. Judging from the reports received to date, I should say that we are not doing very well. You may be able to judge the progress in the Convention by the progress that the campaign has made in your church. I would like the assurance that we would reach our goal, but if not, the assurance that every individual member had done the best he could to make the campaign a success.

This article is being written on Friday, February 27. The active participation of the local churches of the Southern Convention is supposed to be completed by the close of February. I am sure that a number of our churches have made the canvass and have succeeded well. I trust that each church in the Convention will make its report as early in March as is possible.

We should realize these facts:

First, if it had not been an absolute necessity for our college to have additional and better equipment for the convenience and comfort of our students, the idea of a campaign to secure funds would never have been promoted.

Second, if the dining room and dormitories are provided for the college, they will cost a considerable amount of money. You cannot build these days for nothing. It costs money—a great deal of money.

Third, the college belongs to the church. It is the church's obligation to see that the equipment at the college is what it ought to be.

Fourth, in seeking funds with which to pay for added equipment and improvements, the church would scarcely expect others to assume this responsibility without considering its own interest and its own responsibility to contribute.

Fifth, the amount asked for is well within the ability of the church. It is a question of desire and willingness. A gift to the college is a gift to the church. A gift for this purpose will not go without its reward.

If you consider the opportunity and the responsibility that goes with the opportunity, I trust that also we may remind ourselves of the joy and the blessing of a duty well done and the feeling that one has done his share.

* * * * *

For What Do You Pray?

Here is an interesting story that came out of the depression years of the early thirties. During this depression, our privately endowed colleges were finding it extremely difficult to meet bills and keep their doors open. A college president was addressing the delegates attending the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. He related this personal experience.

He was going from one church to another appealing to the people to support the college. One day he spoke to a very wealthy congregation of the denomination that had built the college. He appealed for funds. When the service was over, and elderly lady came to him and made a modest contribution. She said that was all the money that she could give, but that she could give her prayers. She stated that she had made a list of the people in this church who could and should contribute largely and was praying for everyone of them that they might make a good contribution to the college. In about six months one of the wealthiest men in the congregation died. When his will was put on record, it was revealed that he had left $50,000 to the college. Immediately another wealthy man went to the campus of the college, gave the president a check for $50,000, and said, "Now, I have made my contribution, will you please tell Sister ——— to take my name off her list, that I have paid."

When you go to prayer in these days of uncertainty and stress, so many things crowd in for petition. You may not have money to contribute to Elon College, but if you are a Christian, you may pray for the college and pray for those who do have funds that God may influence them to contribute. Pray not only one time, but many times. In fact, we are commanded to pray without ceasing, to be always in an attitude of petition that God may do for us and the objects of our love what we ourselves cannot do.

Miraculous things would happen if there could be a united prayer for our college throughout the entire church. We do need things other than money, and you should pray for the interest of the school, that the professors may be the kind of men and women to guide and instruct the young people who come for training and guidance. Pray that in no way whatsoever any should be caused to depart from "the faith" but might be strengthened in their belief in God and the realities of the Christian religion and that all might live lives of sincerity and above reproach of any kind or character. Pray that the college may not fail in its contributions to anyone but that all may receive increased information, evident development of character and enriched spiritual life.

There are many things for which you pray, I am sure, but when you go to prayer, do remember the college, that its needs may be met and its contributions to individuals and to the church may result in multiplied usefulness.

* * * * *

Apportionment Giving

There is much to be said for systematic giving. Modest weekly contributions do not constitute too great a strain on accumulated funds. When the total amount due is paid in a lump sum, it often times results in hardships, even though temporarily.

In consideration of these facts, the Convention evolved a plan for the support of the college that could easily be adopted and met on a weekly basis by any local church in the Convention. We have a few churches that pay the full apportionment for the college in advance, others pay weekly, others pay quarterly, and still others pay at the end of the year. It would seem that the systematic plan that calls for weekly contributions would be more convenient for the local church, and certainly such a plan would be more helpful for the college.

If words were at the command of the writer to make an impressive appeal, these words would certainly be employed. In the light of the pres-

(Continued on page 15.)

Missions at Home and Abroad

Just Another Ordinary Month?

Kilanjunai P. O.,
Ramnad, So. India,
February 1, 1953.

Dear Dick and Dorothy:

I was going to say that January was another very ordinary month; but then, in checking back in my diary I guess a lot of things have happened after all.

For New Year's we were going to be away from home, so Ed made appointments at the hospital for a very early hour, and we were eating breakfast before seven. Much to our surprise, the whole hospital staff came over while we were eating to present us with leis, fruit and sugar. They gave it in a very nice spirit and made us feel very mumble, for we were the last ones on earth to get such a gift.

Ed saw patients, and then the Children and I went along with him to his North Clinic, hoping he would get through early and have a picnic lunch with just the four of us. The children enjoyed themselves, even though Joy had an eye infection, but Ed had two emergency calls in two different directions, and we only got glimpses of him coming and going.

The first week in January, the staff was very much upset because the big money box from the hospital was stolen. I think that was the first time in the history of the hospital that anything like that had happened. It was taken from a locked room, and the room had been re-locked so that the theft was not discovered until the next morning when the box was to be placed in the reception room. They gathered up three or four suspects, all of them from the lower caste group. To us who are used to police who try to do things scientifically, it looked like comic opera, except that some very innocent people suffered a great deal for a short period of time.

The clinic work has been getting heavier and heavier, so that I am looking forward a great deal to the time when Ed can get a rest. This place really needs two doctors, and so far they haven't even found one, and the clinic may have to close down when we go. I hope they can at least find a fellow for one year!

Our last Wednesday clinic here in Kilanjunai itself had over seventy patients, all of whom needed careful attention and many of whom big hospital facilities, but couldn't afford to go. And there are many more who need food more than anything else!

Just before the end of the month, we had visitors from Madura. They were the first to come since last fall, and it was really an event. They were Miss Nicholson and Miss Brown, escorted by Miss Bosanquet of the Anglican Mission. The ladies have a school in Madura for destitute girls, and were out here investigating possibilities of starting sewing classes which could make things to sell in their industrial department. Their department has so many orders that they can't fill them right there at the school and so are expanding to the villages.

Then, last but not least, the head of our work here, Dr. Jones, came to visit us yesterday. She is trying to help us plan for the future of this place while we are gone. We are an out-branch of her hospital in Ramnad, and so she takes a great deal of interest in our problems.

Besides everything else, we have been very busy getting ready to go home—visas, permits, etc.

Sincerely,

FRAN RIGGS.

The McDowells Return to Africa

Dr. Henry Curtis McDowell, Congregational Christian educator and missionary administrator under the American Board, sailed back with his wife, Mrs. Ruth Alexander McDowell, to his work among the Ovimbundu in Elende, West Central Africa on St. Valentine's Day, February 14, on the S. S. African Grove from New York City to Lobito, Angola.

Dr. McDowell, who first went to Africa in 1919 to a mission station manned entirely by Negroes, did such an exceptional piece of work among the Ovimbundu that he was called "The Booker T. Washington of West Africa." He has just completed a furlough begun in the spring of 1952.

His experiments in democracy among the Ovimbundu, his study of their psychology, history and philosophy, have made him a pioneer in that field.

For the past six months Dr. McDowell has been occupying the Africa Chair in the Kennedy School of Missions, Hartford Theological Seminary Foundation, and making his home in Hartford.

Dr. and Mrs. McDowell are well-known in New Haven, where he was once pastor of Dixwell Avenue Congregational Church, of which he is now a special representative in Africa. The McDowells are also the special representatives of the Church of the Redeemer in New Haven and the First Church of Westboro, Mass.

The growth of the fine Ovimbundu Christian Church has been stimulated by Dr. McDowell's work and he travels widely throughout the entire area surrounding Elende, conferring with the people and the churches.

Dr. McDowell was educated at Talladega College, where he received B. A., B. D., and D. D. degrees. He has also received the gold award of the Harmon Foundation for religious service.

His wife was born in Kings Mountain, North Carolina and was educated at Lincoln Academy, Barber Scotia Junior College, and Bennett College, Winston-Salem, N. C. She taught in the North Carolina public schools before her marriage.

Dr. Lester Goes to Fayetteville

The Asheboro, North Carolina, Church is a child of the missionary enterprise in the Southern Convention. It was the Mission Board which paid the salary of Lanson Granger to come to Asheboro, make a survey, organize a church and become its pastor. Missionary money helped the church when it was ready to build.

In turn, the Asheboro Church has been interested in missions. Early in its history, it organized a missionary society. Often it has had missionary speakers, Miss Angie Crew having been here on a number of occasions. It has made a habit of "tithing" its income in planning its budget—that is at least one-tenth of the total for "others," which is not too bad a record considering that it has had a building debt to be paying on.

It has now taken another step in the direction of missionary work. The relatively new church at Fayetteville was without a pastor. Both the people here and the Mission Board felt that the Asheboro pastor, Dr. F. C. Lester, was the man who could best do the job that needs doing there at

(Continued on page 9.)

Church Women at Work

With Emphasis on Missions

MRS. F. C. LESTER, Editor

840 Sunset Avenue, Asheboro, N. C.

North Carolina Women's Rallies

Mrs. W. T. Scott, president of the North Carolina women, has recently written the society presidents concerning the annual Spring Rallies. The guest speaker will be Mrs. David McKeith, whose husband is the executive vice-president of the American Board, and as such directs the foreign mission work of our denomination. Mrs. McKeith will bring us first-hand information from our mission fields, for she has visited many of them with her husband in the last few years. She will also direct a "Buzz Session" in the afternoon, when any questions about our mission work will be answered.

The offerings at the Rallies will take care of the expenses, and then the balance will be used for building churches within the Southern Convention.

Here are the dates and places—and let every society be represented—not only by the president, but by one or two or three carloads of interested women.

Sanford District—Southern Pines, March 23.

Asheboro District—Union Grove, March 24.

Henderson - Raleigh Districts—Chapel Hill, March 25.

Greensboro-Burlington Districts—First, Burlington, March 26.

Halifax District—Hebron, March 27.

* * * * *

The Woman's Missionary Convention

Every two years the women of the Southern Convention (North Carolina and Virginia) meet for a business session and for inspiration and fellowship. That meeting is to be held this year on April 28 and 29 at the First Church in Burlington, N. C.

It is important that every North Carolina society fill in and return the card which has been sent to them by Mrs. W. T. Scott, president, with the name of their delegate, for these people must be elected at the rallies. Each society is entitled to one delegate for each 25 members, but no society may have more than four delegates. Mrs. Scott reminds the societies not to elect as their representatives those people who are already voting delegates—Convention officers and Life Members.

* * * * *

Executive Board to Meet

The semi-annual meeting of the Executive Board of the Woman's Missionary Convention of the Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches (what a mouthful!) will be held at Franklinton Center, Franklinton, North Carolina, on March 10. If there are any matters which you think that the Board should consider in their plans for future work, please write to Mrs. W. B. Williams, 1253 24th Street, Newport News, Virginia, or any other member of the Board.

* * * * *

The Importance of Lent

Mrs. Duane Vore, convention superintendent of Spiritual Life, has made us realize anew the importance of Lent through means of her recent letter. In its entirety, or in part, it should be read to every women's society.

In case you have not read it, let us remind ourselves again of the meaning of Lent in words Mrs. Vore quoted from Stanley North: "It is a period of preparation and renewal. It is a gate through which we may pass to follow along a path of study, of prayer, of reading, of worship, of service and at last to discover, possibly to rediscover, the living and vibrant, the captivating and challenging spirit of Jesus Christ. But the gate must be opened and the path must be followed. May it be that with the coming of Easter each of us shall know the unspeakable joy of experiencing within, the resurrection of the living Christ."

The editor of this page would like to join with Mrs. Vore in her closing sentence, "May God bless and guide each of you as we travel down the Lenten path into Easter."

* * * * *

A Message for Us

The following story is taken from "Lenten Devotions for Young People." I believe it has a meaning for each of us:

"A story in a Southern paper not long ago told of a working mother, hurrying to get to her office and to get the children to school, who took her family to a restaurant for breakfast. Sitting at the counter, they were separated. She was startled to hear her six-year-old call from down the line, 'Mother, don't they ask the blessing here before they eat?' In the embarrassed pause that followed, the counterman said, 'Sure we do, sister. Will you say it today?' And many bowed as she said, 'God is great, and God is good, and we thank him for our food.'"

* * * * *

Rosemont Observes World Day of Prayer

The World Day of Prayer was observed at the Rosemont Christian Church, South Norfolk, Virginia, on the night of February 20. The missionary society of the church sponsored the program and all four of the churches of the community participated, rendering a most interesting program.

The attendance represented each congregation, and all persons attending, both men and women, felt that it was an inspiring meeting, realizing that the program had been outlined and planned by our African friends. The choir of the host church filled their usual place and added that part that only music can add to a program.

MRS. PAULINE B. DENNIS,
Church Reporter.

LESTER TO FAYETTEVILLE.

(Continued from page 8.)

this time. After careful consideration, the Asheboro Church voted to give Mr. Lester a six months' leave of absence for the purpose of helping the Fayetteville group get a building erected on its lovely acreage and the group stabilized for more effective service in the future.

During Mr. Lester's absence, the Asheboro Church has appointed a committee to plan for pastoral service, the idea being to have a variety of speakers and programs. One of these special services will be a broadcast on Palm Sunday, March 29, over WGWR, Asheboro, when the choir will be responsible for the entire program.

Perhaps the Asheboro Church is setting an example for other churches that could release their pastors for short-term missionary service, while the lay members "carry on."

REPORTER.

A Page for Our Children

MRS. R. L. HOUSE, Editor, Southern Pines, N. C.

Former Capitals of the United States

The present-day generation of Americans think of Washington, D. C., as the only capital this country ever had. This is not the case, for there are eight places that once were capital of the United States.

When General Howe marched his British Hessians into Philadelphia, in 1777, George Washington wintered at Valley Forge, and Congress wintered at York, Pennsylvania. It is thus that York, Philadelphia and Lancaster, Pennsylvania; New York City; Trenton and Princeton, New Jersey; Baltimore and Annapolis, Maryland, each shares the honor of having been once the capital of the United States.

During its first 25 years, Congress moved frequently. Indeed, when it was endeavoring to select a permanent city, Congress came near achieving perpetual motion by voting for alternate meetings at two capitals, one on the banks of the Potomac and one on the banks of the Delaware.

Lancaster, Pennsylvania, was the capital of the United States for only one day, September 27, 1777. After a single meeting in Lancaster, Congressmen decided it would be safer to put the Susquehanna River between them and General Howe's army, so they adjourned to New York. Once before, the Continental Congress had fled to Philadelphia. While Washington was crossing the Delaware the year before, the national legislature moved to Baltimore for two months.

Evacuation of Philadelphia by the British in 1778 permitted Congress to make the metropolis of the colonies again the capital, and so it remained until an incident five years later which led an angry Congress to demand an independent Federal District. Although the Revolutionary War was over, the legislators found themselves without money to pay soldiers and dismiss them from military service. Eighty men in the Lancaster barracks mutinied and marched on Philadelphia, where they were cordially received by brothers-in-arms. They menaced Independence Hall, where Congress, in session, appealed in vain to the Pennsylvania State Government for protection. Indignant at the insult, Congress adjourned to Princeton, New Jersey, and resolved that when it established a national capital, it would be independent of any state or city protection.

Nassau Hall and Princeton living accommodations so cramped Congress that it adjourned to meet the following year at Annapolis, Maryland. In the Maryland State House, General Washington resigned his commission, while the lawmakers received him with their hats on. Washington completed his brief message, bowed, and the legislators lifted their hats but bent not an inch. Next year Congress met in Trenton for two months before proceeding to New York. Washington was inaugurated first President of the United States on Wall Street, where stands the present Sub-Treasury of the United States.

Washington, D. C., owes its choice to the insistence that the permanent government seat should be in the geographical center of the United States! The capital, it was argued, should be located neither north of the Delaware River nor south of the Potomac River, but far enough inland to be safe from enemy attack.

Bidding for the capital of the United States was strong. Kingston, New York, was first to issue an invitation. Annapolis, Maryland, cited its central location. Trenton, New Jersey; Germantown, Lancaster, York, Carlisle and Reading Pennsylvania, sent prospectuses setting forth their advantages; and historic Williamsburg, Virginia, also petitioned.

Congress once actually voted to create two capitals, one on the Potomac near Georgetown, and the other on the Delaware near Trenton. It proposed to meet in Annapolis and Trenton alternately until residences of the two selected communities could be provided.

In 1789, the Senate and House both finally voted to establish the capital at Germantown, Pennsylvania, and the enactment of the bill into law failed only because of a minor amendment by James Madison, which required postponement of the measure until the next session.

The compromise — by which the South voted for Hamilton's debt-funding bill in exchange for a capital on the Potomac — resulted in Congress instructing President Washington to select a site between the Eastern Branch and Conococheague Creek. Eastern Branch enters the Potomac where Washington, D. C., now stands, but the Conococheague joins it 75 miles north and west. Near "that Indian place," as Congress called it, the Potomac River bends within two miles of Pennsylvania's Border. A Federal City in this region could have touched three States — Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania — so this possibility was included for political reasons.

George Washington journeyed up the Potomac, raising false hopes in the hearts of residents of many villages, including Hagerstown and Williamsport, Maryland, before he announced his choice, the present District of Columbia.

* * * * *

"Try a Little Fun"

By LAURA GRAY.

Issued by the National Kindergarten Association.

I was staying with my sister Mary and her family. "Come children, time for bed!" she announced to five-year-old Susan, busy with toys on the living-room floor.

A chorus of "I don't want to go to bed! Don't want to go to bed!" ensued.

Mary, who was a big strong woman, lifted Tom and carried him kicking and screaming into the bathroom, where the noise of running water mingled with his cries. The same procedure followed with Susan. The bathing and putting to bed of these youngsters was one awful struggle, and if Mary had not been strong, well, I don't know how the job would have been accomplished.

At last she returned and sank into a chair beside me. "Thank goodness that's over!" she ejaculated. "It's the worst part of the whole day!" She fanned herself with the newspaper.

That was yesterday. Tonight I was "on duty." As the front door closed behind Jack and Mary, who were dining out, I wondered how I could have been so foolish as to have offered to take charge. My experience with children was limited to two years as a kindergarten teacher. I was small, slight, and had not quite

(Continued on page 13.)

What is the Significance of the Attack on Communism in Higher Education?

By BRYAN DRAKE, Secretary

Department of Higher Education, Congregational Christian Churches

From many sources we hear of the impending attack on communism in higher education. Perhaps certain groups are girding themselves for a new battle on communism in the college and universities, but the campaign has been on for a number of years. There have been loyalty oaths, possibly there are going to be hordes of them now. When I was a college president prospective donors and others sometimes interrogated me about the "dangerous" attitudes of teachers, and more than once the question of communism was raised; perhaps this scrutiny now will become a normal part of the process of requesting contributions and support. I believe that I can perceive evidences that this may be coming to pass. Certainly higher education is in a defenseless position at the moment, and this, strategically, is an excellent time for its enemies to strike.

I speak of the "enemies" of higher education. They are "enemies," but most of them are "good" men and women, and respected citizens. They do not look upon themselves as "enemies" of higher education, but rather as persons who have its best interests at heart. Thought control always is exercised by some of the "best people" who wish to control thought in the interest of certain noble purposes which they have in mind. The enemies of Stephen, Paul and Savonarola were not bad people, but were folk who believed thinking could be regulated by law, and who feared the free journeys of the mind and spirit.

A campaign of seeking out communism in higher education will take the form inevitably of censorship of text books and demands for faculty resignations by non-academic judges. Examination of text books will be from the point of view that objective treatment of tabu subjects is subversive. Teachers who attempt to be objective will be under fire, and the administrators who protect them will be in jeopardy. Unfortunately we know the pattern, for it has been used by sincere bigots of the Christian faith. In fact, it is only a minority who ever really believes in freedom of thought, for it is a stiff doctrine to practice. It is easy enough for all of us to give lip service to democracy and to practice some of its external forms, but to have faith in genuine freedom is too hard for the majority.

The self-appointed censors of higher education are threatening to debase higher education. They are to be found in every state and county, and this may be some of the results: Faculty people will be frightened, and many forms of protective behavior will be observed. Administrators will hurry to set their houses in order, lest charges of communism stick. Students will arrive on campuses suspicious and alerted to report in youthful exaggeration the subversive remarks of professors in class room or bull session. Donors will be alarmed by the mailings which they receive, and in their confusion, will give to inferior institutions and causes which are approved by the censors.

It is a tragedy when any educational institution compromises with the truth, but it is a major catastrophe when a church-related educational institution debases its education because of fear of criticism and punishment. We must remember, however, that the church-related institutions are exposed to terrific pressures, and unless the churches stand squarely behind them with spiritual encouragement and generous financial support, no one dare cast a stone.

It is remarkable that the liberal religious forces are known to be aligned on the side of freedom of thought, and, as Hitler attacked the church first in order to win control in Germany, the censors of higher education are including the National Council of Churches and its constituent denomination in their attacks. And, of course, they are correct, because religion is always the defender of the individual to speak and think according to the dictates of his conscience.

Actually freedom is the chief enemy of totalitarian communism, and religion is the chief enemy of atheistic and materialistic communism. Those who fear freedom, have that fear in common with communists.

And those who spread suspicions and rumors against the churches to which the majority of Americans belong are making it less necessary for communists to do the same thing.

Let no one shake your confidence that freedom of conscience and of speech are a bulwark against every evil which assails us; that our Christian faith which preaches love, forgiveness and the sovereignty of God in the life and action of man, is the dependable pattern for individuals and society in every crisis, and any prophets of crisis, who would declare a temporary moratorium on some Christian virtues in order to meet an immediate need, are false prophets. Of course, you may be under attack if you are not a cautious individual for you are the kind of person who is liable to be offensive to those who think men are saved by law rather than by faith. However, it is you who are serving as a religious leader in the academic community, who will be among the staunchest and most effective defenders of freedom of thought and teaching, and, by the same token, the real obstacle to the success of communistic influence in your college or university. If the crusaders against communism in higher education were really smart, they would subsidize every university student religious center, every college chaplain's office, and every college town church in America.

"The Best Is Yet To Be"

Some well known writer and commentator said, after the recent national election: "I'm not a prophet, but when President Truman walks out of the White House, and President Eisenhower walks in, things are going to begin to happen that may bring permanent peace around the world."

One thing is certain, preachers in pulpits, chaplains in the service, and mothers in their homes, have been praying that war in Korea may soon end. The destiny of the United States and the entire world are one and the same. Years ago governments rose and fell. Men sought office for personal gain. Fluent speakers who had money could buy their way into office by making promises. That day is passing. That is false security.

Wendell Wilkie had that idea in mind when he wrote "One World." Universal peace must come soon or we

(Continued on page 15.)

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE, D. D.

"Accountable to God"

LESSON XI—MARCH 15, 1953.

MEMORY SELECTIONS "Verily, I say unto you, Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of these my brethren, even these least, ye did it unto me."—Matthew 25:40.

LESSON: Matthew 25: 31-46.

DEVOTIONAL READING: Ezekiel 34: 20-27.

Jesus adds a touch of the dramatic to his teaching during the closing days of his ministry. Take for example the scene in today's lesson. Here is the Son of God, the King, in his risen glory, sitting upon his judgment throne at the end of the Messianic Age. Surrounding him, and ministering unto him, are his angels in their glory. And drawn up before him in serried ranks are all the nations of the whole earth from all ages. It is the Great Judgment Day. And on the basis of the King's judgment, this great concourse of people is divided into two large groups, the one on the right hand and the other on the left hand. They are awaiting the verdict of judgment from the Son of God, the King on the throne. Talk about drama—here it is!

The Judgment.

"It is appointed unto all men to die, and after that the judgment,"—thus wrote the man of God under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit. The fact of judgment is just as inescapable as the fact of death. To deny that men, all men, shall have to give an account of themselves to God, that we must all stand before the judgment seat of Christ, is to deny any moral significance to the universe, and any moral responsibility to men.

One of Shakespeare's characters expressed this matter of judgment after death, when he says in so many words, "to die, to sleep, perchance to dream, ah, there's the rub." Jesus is simply being true to his trust when he reminds his hearers that they must give an account of the deeds done in the flesh. The man who lives as if there is no Judgment Day is of all men most foolish, and he will be among all men, most miserable.

The Judge.

Christ will be the Judge. He is the Judge. As King, he is Judge, and as Judge, he is King. That means, of course, that there will be no appeal from his verdict. It will be final and irrevocable and "unappealable"—if there is such a word. He has final and complete authority, the Father has committed all judgment into his hands. But if his judgment is final, it will also be fair. He will not judge as men judge. He knows our frame. He knows all the forces that play upon our lives. He knows the motives that underlie our acts. Indeed, he will reverse many of the judgments of men. Furthermore, he will be governed not by strict justice, but by mercy. Men may well fear the judgment of Christ, but they need not be afraid that they will not be given a fair trial and a fair verdict. The judgments of the Lord are true and righteous altogether.

The Judged.

"Before him shall be gathered all the nations." Every one of us, every man must appear before the judgment seat of Christ. In this world, we sometimes read that the defendant "did not appear in court." In the other world there will be no such thing. Unless there is a judgment for all men, there is something wrong with God's dealings with mankind. If the heathen are not to be held accountable for their deliberate sins, just as Christians are, there is no divine justice. All men will be judged, all men are judged. To be sure, those in darkness will not be judged on the same basis as those who are in the light. But God's final judgment involves all men, all nations.

The Basis of Judgment.

It is somewhat dangerous to become involved in all the details of this story. For instance, it might be argued that the story teaches "salvation by works." Inasmuch as we do good works to our fellowmen, we get on the side with the "sheep" in the Great Judgment Day. But that is not what the story is designed to teach, and does teach. Jesus is emphasizing the spirit and motive of service as being more important than the service itself. He is emphasizing the spirit of love and of humaneness in the human heart. He is saying that our attitude of mind and heart toward Christ is expressed in our behaviour toward our fellowmen. The basis of God's judgment is loving service. Faith must be proved by service. It should be noted that Jesus does emphasize the fact that salvation is a matter of love in the heart, and not simply of ideas in the head!

This principle of judgment goes far and deep. It can be applied, it is applied, to nations as well as to individuals. The nation that holds life cheap, which does not respect personality, which is callous and careless in its attitude toward the weak and the wayward, will bring down upon it the righteous wrath and judgment of God.

It is to be noted that "the sheep," the "blessed of the Father," were unconscious of the goodness they had done. "When saw we thee hungry . . . athirst . . . a stranger, naked . . . sick, etc?'" The fact that it was unconscious made it all the more acceptable to God. Their acts were not done to be seen of men, or to merit favor with God, but done in the spirit of love and service.

And it is to be noted further, that Christ identifies himself with humanity; not simply with the rich and the good, although he is identified with them. But he also identified himself with the underpaid and underprivileged and with the underfed and needy of humanity everywhere.

The Verdict of Judgment.

"Come ye blessed of my Father . . . depart from me ye cursed . . ."

There is a final separation between the sheep and the goats. Here is the doctrine of final reward for the good, final punishment for the evil. Here again, it should be said that this verdict is no capricious or arbitrary act of God. It is a part of the eternal order of things. The fact is, men themselves determine their destiny. Furthermore, what kind of universe would this be if there were no difference in the final state of a Nero or a General Booth, a Hitler or a Lincoln?

Whatever the final verdict may involve, it involves presence with, or absence from the King and those who have the spirit of the King. One does not have to believe in a literal hell with burning fires to preserve the truth of the awfulness of the punishment of the bad life. And not only cruelty, but of callousness. To be banished from the presence of love and holiness and joy and light, is hell, whatever else it may be.

Based on "International Sunday School Lessons;" Copyrighted 1951 by Division of Christian Education, National Council of the Churches in the U. S. A.

IF I COULD WAKE THE CONSCIENCE OF THE WORLD.

(Continued from page 5.)

all? So far all experiments of persuasion have failed. The refugees will only move out of their camps if they can move home. They feel that they are victims of international policy, the pawns in a game. They hate this and want nothing but to live in peace and independence in their own homes.

I asked some of the men if they had heard about plans of the United Nations to resettle them in places outside of Israel in other parts of the Middle East. Yes, some had heard or had read about such resettlement schemes. "But we will not accept it, we want to go home, we want justice!" was the unanimous cry. "We know that we shall lose every chance to return to our homeland if the UN should succeed in persuading us to move far away to the Euphrates or the Tigris!"

One evening I was present at a meeting in the Lutheran World Federation's office in the old city of Jerusalem. About a dozen political Arab leaders had been invited, and the problem under discussion was how we could help the refugees in the most efficient ways.

We talked about the miserable conditions in the camps where people starve, suffer and sink, morally as well as physically. The question was raised whether it was not better to face the facts and to bring the refugees away from the camps to other areas where houses and work could be provided for them and enable them to become self-supporting and to regain their self-respect.

The resistance to such a thought was unanimous; one after another the Arab leaders spoke against it. Among them was the Mayor of Jerusalem. He didn't use many words; but what he said was spoken with firmness and conviction:

"We do not want our homeless countrymen moved to far away places. We want justice, we want to get our homes and our country back. We shall sooner let some of our people die in their tents in the waiting time, than we shall agree to let UN deport them to other countries. Our homes have been taken away from us, we fight for justice and a just fight will always demand lives and sacrifices."

The whole question of the future of the refugees, the future of Palestine, the final borders of Israel, the payment of indemnity to the refugees for all the land and property which the Jews took from them, the release of the Arab bank accounts which Israel still keeps frozen, and the question of how to get the present armistice into a peace treaty seems to have ended in a blind alley.

Jewish and Arab negotiators can not stand each other and will not sit together at the same conference table. The United Nations' special political commission for Palestine has not been in the Holy Land the last year, but has its meetings in Paris and New York. One doesn't hear from them anymore, and one day we shall probably hear that the committee passed away!

The feeling of having been unjustly treated, poorness, hopelessness and despair create hate and hard minds and keep a dangerous fire burning. There are enough cold-blooded people only too interested in keeping the flame glowing, fanatic agitators, who put the interest of foreigners above those of their own country. Carefulness is needed if the fire shall be kept down. The question of the Palestinian refugees must be solved and justice must be given to these unhappy people before peace and stability can be obtained in the Middle East.

FOR THE CHILDREN.

(Continued from page 10.)

recovered from a badly sprained ankle. As seven o'clock neared I truly dreaded the coming ordeal. Physical force was out of the question. "Now children, time for bed," I said weakly.

"Don't want to go to bed! Don't want to!" both wailed, and ran and hid.

I sat down nonplussed, but I could not suppress a chuckle as I caught Susan's bright eyes peering inquiringly from under the table.

An emancipated Teddy bear, sprawling forlornly on the floor, gave me an inspiration. In a high squeaky voice, I spoke for him. "I'm so tired! I want to go to bed! Where's Susan? Oh, I wish she'd take me to bed."

Susan showed interest. Teddy continued his pleading. The girl came out, grabbed up the bear, ran and covered him up in her own cot, then returned to her hiding place. What should I do now?

A small wooden tugboat, minus its funnel, lay on the floor, showing the word Toot painted on its side. Surley a low, gruff voice would suit a tug: "I wish somebody would find my funnel and put me in the water. I'm so tired of dry land! I want to go for a sail."

Tom's grinning face appeared over the back of the couch. He darted out, caught up the tug, went to the toy box, found the funnel, fitted it to the boat, and rushed into the bathroom.

Then Teddy's squeaky voice called from the bedroom, "I want a bath, too." Susan responded immediately and soon we were all in the bathroom.

"Teddy, you can't have a bath!" I said, just as Susan was about to throw him in. "You have a fur coat and the water would spoil you, but you can sit up and watch!"

Susan complied, apparently fully entering into the fun. The atmosphere had changed; instead of opposition, I received cooperation. The youngsters undressed themselves. Toot went toot-tooting all around the bath. The children were having so much fun I wondered how I would ever get them out.

Thereupon Teddy conveniently fell off the chair and wailed, "I'm so tired. Please, Susan, take me to bed!" The girl stepped right out and began drying herself. In a cosy nightie, she picked up the bear, went to her room, climbed into bed and snuggled down with the toy animal in her arms.

Tom put Toot on the chair beside his bed. "Auntie, that was fun," he said. "Someday I'm going to give Toot a real sail in the pool."

"Toot, toot; thank you, Tom!" growled the tug.

I left a peaceful, happy bedroom and went back to the living room, triumphant, wondering why parents did not always try a little fun instead of so much physical force. Of course, I realized that I had an advantage in that I was fresh and new to these youngsters. Still I think those who have charge of them do not make enough use of the love children have for pretending and play-acting.

The typical American adult may be a man or a woman, is about 38, white, and a high school graduate. If a man, he is a skilled manual worker, such as a machinist or inspector; if a woman, she is the wife of such a man. He or she belongs to the middle-income group and lives in a small town in Illinois, prefers one of the Protestant denominations, is a church member, and attends about once a month.

The Orphanage

J. G. TRUITT, Superintendent

Dear Friends:

On sunny afternoons, our baseball field on the campus is alive with boys. A lack of sufficient gloves, etc, requires softball, but even so, there is much excitement and joy. Our boys look forward to spring as do the girls. The winter gets to be long, especially when there has been a goodly share of colds.

Already the robins are here, and jonquils. Already the children are thinking of Easter and new shoes, suits and dresses. Four seniors are beginning to think of their trip to Washington, D. C., with their class and are beginning to wonder as to the finances, yes, and the proper clothes.

Miss Foster is glad to have all the annual reports cleared off her desk, and now she has begun to train the boys and girls for their Easter program. Several dates are made for them, and others are being made.

Mr. Wagoner has stored in a car load of fertilizer, top dressing for the small grain, guano for corn, and top dressing for the permanent pastures. Seed corn has been purchased, and alfalfa seed have been safely stored away for the sowing. Cabbage plants have been planted—1200 of them, and but for the rainy season, much other garden would have been planted. New chicks have been placed in the brooder house, and the hens are doing their share well.

Spring is just around the corner. Little boys and girls crowd into my office after school with their numerous requests, and matrons catch me here and there to put in their requests for this and that. Overalls have been worn and washed beyond repair, and shoes have been mended beyond mending again. One matron has been out several weeks on account of sickness, and some of the matrons are feeling overworked. But, by and large, it is a happy family, and their food is good, and there is good teamwork.

Many of the children are proudly displaying "A's" and "B's" on their report cards—while others listen in, not having quite as good reports to show. All of them think they will do better next time, and many of them will, because they love to please their matrons and me.

Roy Black and Jimmy Burgess, two of our fine young fellows, went with me to the Park's Cross Roads Church this past Sunday. We joined the Sunday school classes for the lesson period, and when it was over, the three of us stood before them together and gave some thoughts on what is being done at the orphanage. We were heartily received. We saw a lovely church and a very live people.

After dinner, we visited my old home and my sister, Mrs. Essie Truitt Simpson, and then returned home—Jimmy in time to help water and feed the chickens, and Roy to help in the dairy. Roy has decided to answer the "call" to the ministry, and he seems to have all the qualifications for such purpose in his heart. He has a most attractive manner, and is an A-grade pupil.

On last Saturday I took Angelee Haith and Ella Jean Haith to see their old grandmother. How glad she was to see them when we went into her room where she is mostly confined to her bed. What good times we had as we road along, looking forward to seeing her. The grandmother told me that her children loved me, and of course that repaid me for the trip.

Tuesday, Charles Ward, our crippled boy, will journey with me to Gastonia for a check up, and I hope that the day will be pretty, for there will be much to see and much to talk about.

It all adds up to: It is good to be your servant—servant of the Convention and servant of the Church, in seeking to be to these children a friend to help them as you would want them helped, and to guide them as you would have them guided.

JOHN G. TRUITT,
Superintendent.

REPORT FOR FEBRUARY 26, 1953

Commodities for the Week.

Miss Angel Tyree, Hampton, Va., Clothing.

Theo. R. Eason, South Norfolk, Va., Clothing.

Mrs. Clara Williams, Ahseville, N. C., Clothing.

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

Amount brought forward..... $2,677.89

Eastern N. C. Conference:

Wake Chapel $ 50.00

50.00

Eastern Va. Conference:

Norfolk, Little Creek ... $ 30.00

Portsmouth, First 31.50

61.50

N. C. and Va. Conference:

Durham S. S. $ 25.99

Reidsville S. S. 117.00

142.99

Western N. C. Conference:

Albemarle $ 20.00

20.00

Virginia Valley Conference:

Newport S. S. $ 25.31

25.31

Total $ 299.80

Grand Total $2,977.69

Special Offerings.

Amount brought forward $2,391.26

General Mills, Inc. (for coupons) $ 34.00

Mr. & Mrs. J. Earl Danieley, Elon College, N. C., in memory of Miss

Lillian Long 5.00

Miss Lura Kennedy, Worthville, N. C. 10.00

(Continued on page 15.)

MEMORIAL GIFTS

"Instead of Flowers"

Dr. John G. Truitt
Christian Orphanage
Elon College, N. C.

Dear Dr. Truitt:

Please acknowledge the enclosed $..... as a memorial gift sent to the Christian Orphanage in lieu of flowers in memory of:

(Name of Deceased)

(City)

(Date of Death)

(Survivor to be Written)

(Address)

Name.....

Address.....

Youth at Work in the Church

REV. MAX VESTAL, R. 1, Asheboro, N. C.

North Carolina Rally Notice

The following Post Card notice, signed by Curtis Young, Bettie Burt Hight, Cleman Shankle and Phil Mann, has been sent out to North Carolina Young People:

"The time for our Statewide Rally is approaching rapidly. Mark the date, March 29, on your calendar and plan to be at Elon College, N. C., at 2:30 p. m., for registration.

"Nick Piediscalzi (Per ed is cal zi), the National P. F. president, will be the speaker. He is really good. You will like him. The Elon Players will present an Easter Play, "Release." You will take a trip to the orphanage. These are three things we feel you will enjoy very much, so bring all the young people in your church between the ages of 12 and 24."

* * * * *

"Relax With Max"

You know, I've really been worried lately. For the last month or two, I haven't had any news from our youth groups. What's happened to you? They say that no news is good news, but I don't agree. Send the news!

* * *

A motorist stopped his car on a country road and asked a native-looking individual how far it was to Millerstown. The reply was: "It's 24,999 miles the way you're headed, but if you just turn around, it ain't but four."

* * *

A friend of mine was at a studio having her little girl's picture made. When the photographer began to chirp and make noises with the toys, the child just sat there and stared, no smile whatsoever. Then suddenly she looked up at her mother and said, "Mommie, isn't that man silly?"

* * *

A father, mother and young son were listening intently to their first radio. Suddenly the announcer remarked that it was five past two. The boy stared at the old family clock, which was evidently five minutes fast. Then, with an expression of one who has just understood the truth, he exclaimed, "Gee, Pop, the radio's running slow today!"

Some Polio Facts for 1953

Tremendous recent progress toward a control for infantile paralysis has brought us to the threshold of prevention of the disease. Thanks to the support of the March of Dimes by the American people, scientists are now planning the first field trials of a polio vaccine, and manufacturers are producing the blood fraction, gamma globulin, for limited use as a temporary preventive of paralysis.

Both are good news. Hope rides high.

But despite this, 1953 will see outbreaks of polio; we cannot count on any startling reduction of cases this year. Reasons:

- (1) The vaccine is not here—it has yet to be tested;
- (2) Despite every effort of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, the American Red Cross and government authorities, gamma globulin will be in such short supply it can be given to fewer than one million children out of a population of 46,000,000 in the most susceptible age groups.

We must understand and accept the facts and keep cool heads when faced with the reality of polio. We cannot relax our watchfulness nor ignore the usual precautions yet awhile. If polio comes to your community, you will want to observe the sensible rules for good health that have been urged in previous years:

- ... Let your children continue to play with their usual companions—avoid new groups;
- ... make sure they scrub their hands before eating, avoid use of other people's soiled towels, or dishes and tableware;
- ... beware of fatigue and chilling, which lower resistance to polio virus;
- ... don't subject young children to unnecessary and lengthy travel.

Consult your doctor if your child has any symptoms of polio: headache, fever, sore throat, upset stomach, stiff neck or back—and keep him in bed, away from others, till the doctor can come.

If polio strikes, turn to your local chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis for advice and financial assistance where needed.

Conquest of polio is not yet here—but final victory is much nearer.

NEWS OF ELON COLLEGE.

(Continued from page 7.)

ent needs of the college, such an appeal would be apropos.

Previously Reported	$ 809.11
Eastern Va. Conference:
Burton's Grove	$ 10.00
Rosemont	50.00
N. C. and Va. Conference:
Happy Home S. S.	$ 14.70
Western N. C. Conference:
Pleasant Grove	$ 5.00
Virginia Valley Conference:
Antioch	$ 5.90
	85.60

Total to date $ 894.71

"THE BEST IS YET TO BE."

(Continued from page 11.)

are misreading the teaching of the Scriptures.

The prayer of President Eisenhower on the day of his inauguration was a masterpiece coming from the heart of a master Christian. This is no time to nurse political prejudices. The man in the White House is everybody's President—a man who knows how to pray and trust God. God is the ruler of the Universe. He is ready to listen.

S. M. SMITH.

THE CHRISTIAN ORPHANAGE.

(Continued from page 14.)

From "Jett," Norfolk, Va.	5.00
Philathea Class, Suffolk Church (for Harvell boys)	5.00
Young People's Class, Reidsville Church, for Phyllis Morningstar ..	15.00
New Hope Christian Sunday School, Roanoke, Alabama	3.89
Special Gifts	135.00
	$ 212.89
Grand Total	$2,604.15
Total for the week	$ 512.69
Total for the year	$5,581.84

Less time is required to do a thing right than to explain why you did it wrong.—Temple Tidings.

A GREAT DAY HAS ARRIVED

By WILLIAM KINCAID NEWMAN, Area Director

March 1 marked the beginning of the Church Building Loan Fund Campaign in the Southern Convention. The campaign began in the rest of the country in July, immediately following its unanimous endorsement by the General Council of Congregational Christian Churches, but was delayed until March 1 in the Southern Convention to enable Elon College to complete its Two and One Half Million Dollar Campaign.

A splendid group of men and women have agreed to serve on the Southern Convention Committee under the chairmanship of Mr. Martin Garren of Greensboro, North Carolina, and on the Campaign Committees in the five Conferences of the Convention. The Convention Goal of $135,000 has been approved by the Executive Board of the Convention, and the Conference Goals have all been approved by vote of the Conferences at their fall meetings.

The campaign is off to a fine start in the remainder of the country. Already oversubscribed are three Conferences: Florida, Montana and Puerto Rico. The total of Declarations of Purpose received for the country as a whole now stands at $1,431,072.

A letter has been sent out to each member of your Conference Committee; and here are some of the things which the committee is being asked to do:

1. Become thoroughly acquainted with the reasons for the campaign and the plans for carrying it out.
 - a. Have a meeting as soon as possible to get organized.
 - b. At the meeting go over page by page the instructions contained in the "Chairman's Manual" and, of course, the questions and answers in the "Quiz" and the statement of the case in the "Time to Build Churches is Now."
 - c. Allocate goals to the churches in the Conference.
2. Enlist the churches in the Conference in the campaign.
 - a. Persuade each church to have a speaker. Mrs. W. B. Williams is chairman of the Speaker's Bureau for the Convention. There is also to be a Speaker's Bureau representative in each Conference.
 - b. Persuade each church to show its membership the campaign film, "The Basis of the Blueprint" (available from Convention Office).
 - c. Arrange for two members of Conference Committee to meet with the official board of each church to explain the campaign and the campaign literature.
 - d. Get each church to sign a Declaration of Purpose.
 - e. Get each church to appoint a committee to prosecute the campaign in its church.
3. After the churches have been enlisted in the campaign, the Conference Committee is to do all it can to help them raise their goals.
 - a. Advise them as to means of promotion within their memberships.
 - b. Help them secure speakers.
 - c. Plan training sessions for campaign workers at which groups may be brought together for a thorough training.
 - d. Give special attention to churches without pastors and to those where there has been a recent change in pastorate.
4. Procure lists of possible large givers and send them to the area office.

The CHRISTIAN SUN

ORGAN OF THE SOUTHERN CONVENTION OF CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES

In Essentials Unity — In Non-Essentials, Liberty, — In All Things, Charity

VOLUME CV

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, MARCH 12, 1953

NUMBER 11

Leave It with Him

Yes, leave it with Him; the lillies all do
And they grow;
They grow in the rain, and they grow in the dew—
Yes, they grow;
They grow in the darkness, all hid in the night,
They grow in the sunshine, revealed by the light—
Still they grow.

They ask not your planting, they need not your care
As they grow.
Dropped down in the valley, the field—anywhere—
Yet, they grow.
They grow in their beauty, arrayed in pure white;
They grow, clothed in glory, by heaven's own light—
Sweetly they grow.

The grasses are clothed, and the ravens are fed
From His store;
But you who are loved and guarded and led,
How much more
Will He clothe you, and feed you, and give you His care!
Then, leave it with Him; He has, everywhere,
Ample store.

Yest, leave it with Him; 'tis more dear to His heart,
You will know,
Than the lillies that bloom or the flowers that start
'Neath the snow.
Whatever you need, if you ask it in prayer,
You can leave it with Him, for you are His care—
You, you know.

—Anonymous.

News Flashes

Guest speakers at the Asheboro Congregational Christian Church on recent Sundays have included David Crowle and Curtis Young, both ministerial students at Elon College, and Dalton Harper, a graduate of Elon and a deacon in the Asheboro church. John Truitt, Jr. is to be the speaker on next Sunday.

Rev. Avery Brown, who was licensed at the last session of the Western North Carolina Conference, is now serving Bailey's Grove, Flint Hill (R) and Sophia churches. He and his family are living in the parsonage at Sophia. Mr Brown expects to enter Elon College for the spring quarter. We wish him every success in his work.

The Eutaw Community (Congregational Christian) church in Fayetteville, N. C., held its second anniversary dinner on Friday evening, March 6. Guests included Dr. and Mrs. W. T. Scott and Dr. and Mrs. J. G. Truitt of Elon College and Rev. Fred Register of Fuquay-Varina, the president of the Eastern North Carolina Conference. A delicious turkey dinner was served by the women of the church to the group, which included a number of visitors from other churches in Fayetteville, including Mayor Joseph Talley, Jr., who brought greetings from the city. Unfortunately, Mrs. Florence Rogers who donated the building site, was ill and could not share in the occasion, although she sent a written message which was read by her friend, Mayor Talley. Dr. F. C. Lester, acting pastor, presided over the dinner meeting. One of the features was a birthday cake and a jar for birthday offerings which held $100 when the meeting ended.

Portrait of Dr. Fred Field Goodsell Is Presented

The presentation of a portrait of Dr. Fred Field Goodsell was the occasion for about one-hundred and fifty members and friends of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions to gather on Monday, March 9, at the Old South Church in Boston. Dr. Goodsell was the Executive Vice-president of the American Board from 1930 till 1949. Under his distinguished leadership many steps of administrative progress were taken. The office which he filled was largely shaped and given meaning through his genius for organization and his wisdom in dealing with the difficult and often complex problems of the board.

Dr. Russell Henry Stafford, president of the Hartford Seminary Foundation, and for many years president of the American Board during Dr. Goodsell's term of office presented the portrait. Dr. Stafford paid high tribute to Dr. Goodsell as a man and as a servant of the board. He also emphasized that the American Board is in the most important business in the world, the success of which will prove America's greatest asset.

Mrs. Theodore A. Greene told something of Mr. Richard Meryman, the artist whom she knows as a New Hampshire neighbor. Mr. Meryman, unfortunately, could not be present though a visit from him was expected.

Dr. Goodsell at present is engaged in writing a history of the American Board which will require extensive research and much study with the hope that it may be completed in about three years.

The new portrait will be hung in the American Board rooms at 14 Beacon Street in Boston along with other distinguished leaders of the past.

HENRY E. ROBINSON.

The Southeast Regional Meeting

The Southeast Regional Meeting was held at Lake Byrd Lodge, Avon Park, Florida, February 24-26. The theme of the meeting was "The Living Church" with the hymn, "God of Grace and God of Glory," used as the hymn of the sessions.

Dr. Douglas Horton, secretary of the General Council of Congregational Christian Churches, delivered the opening address on "The Church Itself," and this was followed by an address by Dr. Aurelius Pinckney of Louisville, Kentucky. Other addresses were delivered by Dr. Henry Smith Leiper, secretary of the Missions Council, on the theme "The Church and its World Mission"; "Education and the Church" by Dr. Victor Obenhaus of Chicago Theological Seminary; "Evangelism for our Day," Dr. Wofford C. Timmons, New York City; "Our Chris-

(Continued on page 7.)

Dr. Hunter and Groupe to Visit Far East

Rev. Armstrong Hunter of Boston, Mass. and Mansfield, Mass., Resource Secretary of the Missions Council of Congregational Christian churches and Rev. and Mrs. Baldwin W. Callahan, 37 Gay Street, Newtonville, Mass., are three of seven Congregationalists flying Tuesday, March 10 from San Francisco, California, on the first leg of a 32 day visit to the Far East including the Philippines, Hong Kong, Macao and Japan, with stop-overs in Honolulu. Mr. Hunter is the conductor of the tour. Mr. Callahan is the secretary of Missions and Stewardship of the Massachusetts Congregational Conference and Missionary Society.

This tour which is under the auspices of Church World Tours, sponsored by the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions and the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A., is planned in order that people may "travel with a purpose" and obtain a true insight into the religious beliefs of the people in the countries they visit.

This trip is made almost completely by air and will include special visits to the churches and mission establishments in all the countries visited so that the tour members will see firsthand how the missionaries live and work and what are some of the tangible results of Christian missions in the Far East.

The others in the party are Rev. and Mrs. Jess H. Norenberg of Madison, Wisconsin; Miss Gladys Green of Miami Beach, Florida, and Mrs. Helen Brown Webb of Chattanooga, Tenn.

Sanford Church Dedicates Library

A long cherished dream came to a beautiful realization the other Sunday when there was dedicated in the Sanford Congregational Christian Church a modest but nevertheless comprehensive library for the use and enjoyment of members of Sunday school and church.

The dream was the possession of Mrs. Marvin C. Fulton who though confined much of the time to her home has pondered in her heart what things she could do to strengthen her church and make its ministry the more effective. Last summer the dream began to take shape, and with

(Continued on page 15.)

Laymen and the Church . . .

J. Earl Danieley, Editor, Box 515, Elon College, N. C.

"The Layman and His Pastor"

Today we offer the first of a suggested series of programs which may be used in meetings of the local church laymen's fellowship. These programs are offered with hope that they may serve as a stimulus which will eventually lead to better programs for the entire year; if this is true you will want to continue with your plans and that is as it should be. However, you might like to keep these suggestions which will appear each month on file and use them at a later date. Some of the material for these programs has been adapted from the material prepared by the Evangelical and Reformed Church for use in Churchman's Brotherhoods; the use of this material is gratefully acknowledged.

We are anxious that groups needing this material will use it; we especially want your comments about the material whether you use it or not. The type of material which we print will be determined largely by your reaction to that which is presented.

The suggestion program for this month is the first in the series, "The Layman and His Relationships."

"The Layman and His Pastor."

Suggested Scripture: Exodus 17:9-13; Luke 10:9; Acts 20:28-35.

Suggested Hymns:

"My Dear Redeemer and Lord."

"Onward Christian Soldiers."

"God of the Prophets."

"Rise Up, O Men of God."

1. First program concerns relationship between pastor and the laymen; this is appropriate and important; he is chosen to come to us by us but he is ordained by and is a spokesman for God; thus he is primarily responsible to the Good Shepherd who has placed us in his care: we then owe him our friendship and loyal support.

2. Pastor should be to the people as nearly as possible what Christ was to his disciples; He was to them Leader and Friend;

(a) Leader—The pastor, under God, is the leader of his flock; members should look to him for advice, seek his council and guidance in many matters; will always be willing to cooperate to give his methods and projects a fair testing; the minister is not a dictator but he should lead in thought and action, and happy is the church where this is truly the case and where he has the support of all of his people for the total program of the church!

(b) Friend—The example was set by Christ who called his disciples not as servants but as friends; when the leader is friendly and is a friend, cooperation is easier; real test of friendship sometimes is whether constructive suggestions can be given and taken in a good spirit; pastor and people should be able to share ideas for the good of the church without any offense. Another characteristic of friends is that they talk To and not About each other; friends never speak unfavorably about each other to other people; they will however make suggestions to each other. Jesus said, "Greater love hath no man than that he lay down

(Continued on page 11.)

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr

A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom as represented by the Congregational Christian Churches.

Our Principles

1. The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
2. Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
3. The Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
4. Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and church membership.
5. The right of private judgment and liberty of conscience is a privilege that should be accorded to and exercised by all.

Managing Editor John T. Kernodle

Departmental Editors—Convention, Wm. T. Scott; Missions, F. C. Lester; Women's Work, Mrs. F. C. Lester; Young People's Work, Max Vestal; Children, Mrs. R. L. House; Sunday School Lesson, H. S. Hardcastle.

Institutional Representatives—Elon College, L. E. Smith; The Christian Orphanage, John G. Truitt.

Board of Publications—Duane Vore, Chairman, S. T. Holland, Secretary; R. C. Helfenstein, S. E. Madren, W. W. Snyder, G. D. Colclough, Treasurer, ex officio.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Year $3.00
Two Years 5.00

Published by the Board of Publications of The Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches, Inc. Printed every Thursday except the last in June and December by Central Publishing Co., Inc., Richmond, Va.

Entered as second-class matter at the Post Office at Richmond Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

General contributions should be addressed to the editor at Southern Pines, N. C., and should reach him by Wednesday of the week preceding date of publication.

Departmental material should be sent to the proper departmental editor, at the address shown on their page.

All other material and business communications except regarding subscriptions should be sent to the Office of Publication, 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond 19, Va.

The Christian Sun Subscription Blank

Subscription Price: 1 year, $3.00; 2 years, $5.00

Date 195 . . .

Dr. Wm. T. Scott, Supt.,
Elon College, N. C.

Enclosed find $ for which please send The Christian Sun
() 1 year, () 2 years — () New Subscription, () Renewal.

To

Address

Who is a member of Church

() Renew, () Enter my own subscription for () 1 year, () 2 years.

My Name

My Address

From the EDITOR'S Desk

The Supreme Court and Segregation

It appears quite likely the ruling of the Supreme Court of our United States on the question of segregation in the public schools will not be known until the fall of this year or the spring of next. Of course it is possible the ruling will be announced this spring.

That there is a considerable difference of opinion on this subject among the members of our churches in the South, is quite obvious. Admitting the stubborn fact, it is still disheartening that most of the statements reaching the eyes and the ears of the public have been those of the extremists among the proponents of segregation. The course of action they suggest in the event the court rules in favor of ending segregation in the public schools amounts to the destruction of the public school system. The constitutionality of changing the public system into a private system is questionable. The financial implications for the average family are serious. There is the question of the extent to which the Negroes would immediately take advantage of the ruling.

Certainly there is the need for citizens who will advocate less strenuous and damaging lines of action. The best possible course for those who presently favor segregation is that of waiting to see what happens under the ruling in the event it is against segregation. Those who are opposed to segregation, and the number steadily grows, should be concerned that the change, if it comes, be orderly. The need is great for responsible citizenship and it is here that our church people can make vital contribution.

The predominant Christian witness in our nation is opposed to segregation on Christian grounds. That fact alone would lead all who uphold segregation and earnestly seek to be Christian constantly to review the grounds of their own thinking. The problem is acute for the South, because that is where the Negroes are in large numbers. This fact should not be used as an excuse by those who favor segregation. Likewise, this fact should not be ignored by those who oppose segregation when they consider the concrete lines of action by which to implement their principles. We should all seek to discuss and act in this situation in the Christian spirit.

JAS. H. LIGHTBOURNE, JR.

What Is Evangelism?

Much has been said lately in our churches about evangelism. Has it ever occurred to you that this word may mean a great deal of different things to different people? To some, evangelism indicates a preaching mission where men are urged to give up sin and accept the Saviour; to others evangelism has been replaced with something which we call a period of religious emphasis or a series of special services. Whatever we finally agree to be the real meaning of evangelism, most of us are agreed that we would like to see some real enthusiasm, loyalty and eagerness to get men into the right relationship with God.

What was the approach which was used so successfully by the Man of Galilee? He never held a revival; he enlisted men one by one when he was seeking his disciples; it was at night that he earnestly talked to Nicodemus; a question about a drink of water led to the redemption of the unfortunate woman of Samaria; it was a friendly personal contact that enlisted the loyal devotion of Peter; Zachaeus was convinced even as they were talking and eating together; Thomas had his doubts dissolved without fanfare but in quietness and with love. The fruits of his labors bear testimony to the effectiveness of the methods used by the Christ as he taught and preached.

The Greek word for evangelism means "to bring the good news." Good news concerning God and his love for mankind; good news of joy, hope, faith and courage; good news of Christ and his purposes and program; good news of the personal victory which is possible through the Christ—this is what we are privileged to bring to others. Goodspeed gives this translation of Mark 1:14-15: "... Jesus went into Galilee proclaiming the good news from God, saying 'the time has come and the reign of God is near; repent, and believe this good news.'"

Jesus was convinced that he had the greatest good news ever told; it was his consuming passion to share that news. We profess to know that same "good news"; we indicate that we believe to be true and worthwhile. As Christians, we are privileged to bear that good news, to be true evangelists.

J. EARL DANIELEY.

The Happiness of the Unburdened

By REV. RICHARD K. MOORE, Ed. D.

Jacksonville, Florida

Most people today are burdened—many of them overburdened. One of the greatest needs of our times, spiritually, psychologically, socially, and in every other way, is that of finding the proper way to carry unavoidably burdens and to discover ways of being rid of unnecessary burdens.

Jesus said: "Come unto me, all ye that labor, and are heavy-laden, and I will give you rest." The Apostle Paul, writing in the Epistle to the Romans, urges a life that is dead unto sin, that rises and lives with Christ in newness of being. "Being then made free from sin, ye became the servants of righteousness," he wrote. And again: "Now being made free from sin, and become servants to God, ye have your fruit unto holiness, and the end everlasting life."

It is idle to talk of happiness and fullness of life for the overburdened. I used to know a fellow with a heart of gold who accomplished a great deal of good and made a real success of himself, but he was always so burdened with care and had so much to contend with, that his body and mind could not stand the strain for long, and he went to an untimely grave. This is not uncommon in any age. Sometimes we live under conditions that we cannot control, and we must simply make the best of it.

I am thinking today, however, of some types of situation which are very definitely avoidable.

There is the common class of individuals—to which many of us belong—who simply do too much. We are interested in many aspects of life, and we see so many things, in home and community that need doing. We impose terrific physical and mental and spiritual burdens upon our strength—and sometimes it is impossible for us to keep going. We need, then, to learn the lesson of serving our God with happiness and contentment, and not solely in exhausting activity. In order to prove our religious zeal we do not have any obligation to make physical or nervous wrecks of ourselves, and in many cases wiser fellowship with others would dictate the passing-along of many of these duties to others.

A message about the happiness of the unburdened is so very much needed, also, in the lives of those who have gotten their relationship with other people all tangled up. It may be that they cannot forgive. Or they find others around them irritating or unreliable. In their work or in their home life their contacts with others may be unhappy. All this often causes serious mental and physical disturbances which must be removed before any permanent cure can be found. It has become rather widely known that psychiatrists have often found that baffling physical conditions in their patients are due to some festering grudge or hate or maladjustment. Once this has been removed, the patient usually finds a state of health and happiness far beyond his expectations. People burdened with some unsatisfactory social relationship must settle that first before they can benefit from spiritual and mental therapies, or even the physical ones.

Clergymen and others, such as social workers, often find people burdened with a sense of wrong-doing, founded either upon actual occurrences or upon imagination. There are cases where the individual has actually done wrong, and has never suffered any punishment. When this is admitted, and some authority administers punishment, they become satisfied and relieved, and go on to live a relaxed life. Others, however, keep all this to themselves and let it grow within them, doing all sorts of damage. Still others keep on punishing themselves, a burden upon their soul, which colors all their attitudes and influences their daily behavior. They are indeed burdened. Release may come from a discovery of a revealing and loving religious faith, through some channel—or it may come through the ministrations of a wise friend or counsellor, who understands what these things can do.

Case Studies in these fields, as many of you know, are as absorbing as they are important in life. Religious faith has no more important function than to meet the need of the burdened—particularly those who have a sense of guilt and sinfulness or worthlessness and those who are not properly adjusted to people who have contact with their lives or with society itself. As a result of many of these conditions, people are lonely and full of discontent and a sense of defeat. They come to feel that life will never be very significant for them, and so they draw into themselves and go along on a lowly routine. Or, in some cases, they abandon any hope of constructive and purposeful living, maintain themselves by some menial job, and try to escape from it all by a daily round of entertainments and methods of relaxation.

It is indeed strange that in our scientific age we have learned so quickly many important lessons about maintaining our physical health, through new preparations and drugs, and we have adopted so many advanced ideas about diet and relaxation, and much else. But we have been so slow to learn the vital therapy associated with the unburdened life. Many simply dismiss religion with hardly a wave of the hand. They also refuse to examine their habits, to see if some fundamental overhauling may be in order there. Habits can become bullies of us all, and they can become instruments whereby we try to guage truth. Something becomes habitual, and apparently successful—and we quickly label it as therefore in line with the truth.

Life can certainly be complex, and we cannot always follow it along as we would like. But many of us get the cart before the horse, as it were. We try to set things right and to achieve success before we have sought means of finding relief from various types of burden we carry.

Another type of burden roots right in personality itself. Sometimes what is wrong with us is not based upon something evil we have done; some hatred of a fellow-being, or anything of that kind—but a personality defect of weakness: impulsiveness, quick-temper, prejudice, a careless way of doing things, for instance. Such individuals can never get the power out of their religious faith and their social contacts that is really possible, until they are aware of these conditions and do something about them.

As a fellowship today, we have among us, no doubt, and among the groups in our society, many who are more or less conscious of living burdened lives. They know that life is not what they would like to have it. They know that they fear, and doubt, and worry, and get into all sorts of tangles with their fellow beings. They develop routines and attitudes

(Continued on page 15.)

Commonsense Protestantism

By STANLEY U. NORTH

General Secretary, the Division of Church Extension and Evangelism

Religion is not the product of common sense. The Pilgrims who crossed the North Atlantic in the winter of 1620 in the Mayflower, by the logic of the man of the street, lacked commonsense. And, as a matter of fact, half of that brave company lost their lives the first winter from exposure. The remnant leveled off the graves so the Indians would not know how serious had been the losses to the colony; but when spring came and the Mayflower weighed anchor to return to the homeland, not a single person—man, woman or child—lost courage and returned! I suspect that when the news of that first winter at Plymouth reached England there were those practical-minded people who were unable to resist the comment, "I told you so."

And yet, how poor indeed we would be except for those people of deep religious convictions who emigrated from their homelands to the eastern seaboard of this nation. They came from Germany, France, Switzerland, Holland, the Scandinavian countries, England, Scotland and elsewhere. As a result, the Protestant denominations represent, in much part, a transfer of national expressions of the Reformation from one country or another in Europe and Great Britain to America. Each denomination has played an important part in the life and development of this country. Each has a valuable contribution to make to the on-going life of the nation. It is about one aspect of the latter that I wish to speak.

There are four sociological facts that characterize the contemporary scene and have an important bearing upon church life. The first is the unanticipated vast increase in the population of the past decade and a Census Bureau forecast of a still greater increase in the 1950 decade. During the 1940's the population was augmented by 19,000,000. This has meant a large number of new communities needing to be churchied. It is difficult to visualize 19,000,000 people. Possibly this will help. The population of New England, plus New York and New Jersey, is approximately 19,000,000. In that area there are 1,333 Congregational Churches; and there are about the same number of Methodist Churches and also of Baptist Churches. There are that many, and more, Roman Catholic Churches. And there are the Presbyterian, Unitarian, Universalist, Disciples, Reformed, Lutheran and Christian Science Churches, and numerous Jewish synagogues. This suggests the enormity of the task that faces the forces of religion to meet the needs of this new population.

The current rate of increase in the population is 3,000,000 annually. That is equal to the State of Iowa. The Census Bureau predicts an increase in the 1950 decade of 30,000,000. That is equal to the population of Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin and Minnesota.

Now the fact of the matter is the task that Protestantism faces is so stupendous that it can only be performed cooperatively. Insofar as each of the denominations has its own strategy, born of a concern for its own extension, unrelated to the existence of other denominations and their strategies, there will be a wasteful repetition of the clustering of churches, each relatively weak, consequently deficient in leadership, in plant and in program, with Protestantism looked upon with contempt rather than with respect, by the intelligent people of the community.

It is not to the credit of Protestantism that there are on the West Coast residential developments having 1,000 homes, housing 3,000 and more people, and not possessing a single church, while other communities, promising from the viewpoint of church extension, are seriously over-churched. It just doesn't make sense. It is wasteful. It is inefficient. It is self-defeating both in terms of the community that is over-churched, and certainly in terms of the community that is under-churched.

A second sociological fact of importance to church life is the great migration of the 1940's. More than 70,000,000 people changed their places of residence; 28,000,000 moved sufficiently far to require establishing new church relationships; 13,000,000 moved across state lines. The effect of this is to scramble church constituencies in a marked degree. Look at the list of people received by letter of churches of my own denomination to indicate by show of hands the denomination of their original membership. I have yet to find a church where those of Congregational background are a majority. It is just plain commonsense, in the nature of the migration problem, that people should seek to identify themselves with the church of their new neighborhood, and that that church should seek to serve them in the name of Protestantism, be their former affiliation what it may have been. Certainly the first consideration is that every community shall have adequacy of church life, which means it should be neither over-churched, nor under-churched. Too often we have been guilty of a third rate loyalty—we haven't been primarily Christian, nor primarily Protestant, we have been Sectarian. I am reminded that when the thief on the cross prayed to Jesus: "Remember me when thou in any church of any denomination. It will be highly composite. I have asked the people of a large number comest into thy kingdom"—Jesus didn't inquire as to what was his denomination; he replied immediately: "This day thou shalt be with me in Paradise."

A third sociological fact of importance to church life is that of inflation. In 1940 church construction cost 32¢ a cubic foot. Today, cost are between $1.25 and $1.50 a cubic foot. That means that the various denominational church building societies have to appropriate from three to four times as much aid to accomplish the same amount of building as in 1940. This has resulted in the building funds becoming seriously depleted, if not exhausted. All of the major denominations are consequently in process of raising substantial amounts to augment their church building funds. It would seem a matter of commonsense that the people contributing to these funds should have a right to expect that they would be used in the interest of Protestant cooperation in order that the needs created by the expanding and migrating population shall be effectively met. Imperialism on the part of any denomination is both unbecoming and, I submit, un-Christian. We are all members of the Reformation family. We ought to act toward each other as brothers.

A fourth sociological fact that has serious meaning for Protestantism is social change. This has special ref-
(Continued on page 13.)

News of Elon College

PRESIDENT L. E. SMITH, Elon College, N. C.

Optimism Versus Pessimism

On Monday night at the regular Rotary Club Meeting in Burlington a good friend of Elon College asked me the question, "How is the college?" I said, "Fine." He replied, "That's the way to talk."

I inquired about his business and he said it was fine. Whenever business isn't going so well, he stated, it is necessary that he persuade himself that it is going well. He also said that he had learned that it never helped to be pessimistic about business.

This friend is not only one who is asking questions about the college. "How goes the college"—I hear from different sections and different individuals that the college is not doing so well. I wonder sometimes how these people know. The college isn't doing so well unless they judge everybody else's contribution by their own. Individually and personally that might change the picture.

It does pay to be optimistic when in reality things are not doing so well. If one does not believe in the things that he is doing, regardless of what may be the attitude of others, he will not make progress. I recall the day when Elon's picture was really dark. The college had debts but no funds. The college needed equipment but had no credit. It needed encouragement but got only words of doubt and of skepticism. It was a time when the president of the college, whoever he might have been, needed to be optimistic, needed to magnify his faith in the present and the future of the institution. At any rate, the college has emerged from these embarrassing situations to a more satisfactory position in the field of Christian higher education and in the business and economic world.

Even though we have passed from a pessimistic atmosphere to a more optimistic outlook, yet today we face a situation that will test the faith, the loyalty, and the generosity of the college's friends and supporters. Additional equipment is essential to the present and the future of Elon College. The college itself cannot provide the funds necessary. Its only recourse and source of support are those who have made the college possible, and those whom the college has helped to establish in business and profession by instruction, information, and guidance. If these sources fail, the college has no one else to whom it may turn. It is dependent on us—you and me. In God's name may we not fail.

* * * * *

Apportionment Giving

In planning for the support of the boards and institutions of the church, the Southern Convention has allotted certain periods in the calendar year in which each institution or board is to publicize its interest and needs, and call on the Sunday schools and churches to give support.

We have just emerged from the college period—January and February. The contributions received by the college are reflected in the reports submitted through THE CHRISTIAN SUN, our church paper. Those who are accustomed to reading these reports need not be reminded of the scarcity of contributions and the meagerness of the amount received.

The Convention, in addition, has provided that the orphanage and missions should receive one Sunday each month for their support respectively but that the college is to receive only one Sunday each quarter—the fifth Sunday.

In the division of time, March, this month, happens to have a fifth Sunday. The appeal is herewith submitted to officials of our Sunday schools and churches of our Convention to please inform their people of the college and its needs and give every individual of every church and Sunday school an opportunity to express his interest and confidence in our college by a generous offering. The college shall be very grateful.

Previously Reported	$ 894.71
Eastern Va. Conference:
Cypress Chapel	$ 33.85
N. C. and Va. Conference:
Apple's Chapel S. S.	$ 81.44
Elon College	427.00
Gibsonville	61.00
Virginia Valley Conference:
Linville S. S.	$ 7.50
New Hope S. S.	7.00
	617.79
Total to date	$1,512.50

THE SOUTHEAST MEETING

(Continued from page 2.)

tian Stewardship," Dr. Nelson Dreier; "An Overall Strategy for the Southeast," Dr. Truman B. Douglass, executive vice-president of the Board of Home Missions, New York.

The chapel services were conducted by Dr. W. Millard Stevens, pastor of the Christian Temple of Norfolk, Virginia; Dr. Thomas Anderson, president of the Southeast Regional Meeting; Rev. Joseph B. Calhoun, West Palm Beach, Florida; Rev. Erston M. Butterfield, new superintendent of the Southeast Convention; Dr. Arthur D. Gray, president of Talladega College, Alabama.

There were three seminars—Stewardship, Dr. Jesse H. Dollar, chairman; Evangelism, Dr. W. Ernest Collins, chairman; Education, Dr. Wm. T. Scott and Dr. Philip M. Widenhouse, co-chairman.

Constructive plans and suggestions were made for improving the stewardship and evangelism program of our churches in the Southeast and hearty endorsement was given to Franklinton Center as a training center for our Negro churches and of Southern Union College, Wadley, Alabama, for our churches of Alabama and Georgia.

Those attending from the Southern Convention included the following: Dr. and Mrs. Roy C. Helfenstein, Dr. and Mrs. W. Millard Stevens, Dr. and Mrs. Jesse H. Dollar, Mrs. W. B. Williams, Mrs. Garland Spratley, Miss Pattie Lee Coghil, Rev. W. J. Andes, Mrs. A. W. Andes, Rev. W. W. Snyder, Rev. Howard P. Bozarth, Superintendent Wm. T. Scott, Rev. R. A. Whitten, Rev. H. V. Harman, Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Pell, Dr. and Mrs. W. B. O'Neill, Mr. and Mrs. I. H. Vickery, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. McIver, Dr. F. C. Lester, Mrs. C. L. Whitlock. Approximately one hundred persons were in attendance at the meeting from all the conferences of the Southeast, and the meeting was regarded as one of the most important sessions of our united church in the Southeast area.

Officers for the next two years were elected as follows: President—Dr. Jesse H. Dollar, Suffolk, Virginia; vice-president, Rev. Aurelius Pinckney, Louisville, Kentucky; secretary-treasurer, Superintendent W. N. Tuttle, Avon Park, Florida.

The Southeast Regional Meeting is held every two years, but the Executive Committee will meet in 1954.

WM. T. SCOTT.

Missions at Home and Abroad

India Still Needs Assistance

February 5, 1953.

Dear Friends at Home:

Yesterday, Wednesday, as we went out the gate, we saw a line of women and children with tin trunks and bundles on their heads trudging wearily along through the dust and heat. Realizing that it was the same group that we had passed ten miles out of Poona (75 mi. away) last Saturday, we stopped and asked where they had come from and whither they were going. From Poona and going to their little village, 16 miles away. The men of the families? Wandering around the country, looking for work. Why were they going? No work and no food, and they hoped to work out existence somehow in their little village. The schools in other villages have closed, no water; the pastor must leave Parner, no water. Forty families have left Hanga, no work, no food, no water. Day after day, tales of hunger and thirst and want increase. There is no work in the fields and so no money to buy what food there is. Can you imagine what it would mean to go three miles for water to drink? Or to get it out of the pipe for only 1 to ½ hours a day, as we do here? Day after day the line of people wanting work and all kinds of help increases. The area affected by famine in this area is about the size of Greece and the number of people is over 4,000,000. At a big mass meeting held here in the city Joe was elected to the "Committee of Fifteen" which is to administer the Famine Relief (Government) for the whole area. Our Intermission Relief Committee of eleven of which he is chairman, is handling the relief program for the church organizations through the National Christian Council. He has just returned from Nagpur, where he represented Western India in the "All India Famine Relief Committee." From morning till late at night, talk of hunger, thirst, illness, fills the house. In the Ahmednagar District alone, 700,000 people are affected. Yesterday the American Council for Economic Aid was here from Bombay and Joe called together a group of the political and social leaders of the area to discuss conditions and the program for relief. Many relief works are being started and many more will be needed for the worst time is ahead as the heat and drought increases. Grain shops are being opened and "doles" established by Government.

You may wonder what we can do in face of so gigantic a need. As someone has said "the first thing that comes to hand," that I would say is, deepening of wells. In many places if the wells were sunk "the height of a man," as they say in Marathi, the people would not only have water to drink but some for their fields. In one village—the village where we have just had 85 baptisms—there are five wells, which if they were deepened, would water 120 acres as well as giving the household water needed. But they have no money to buy the cement for the walls of the well and the power for the blasting. We figure that in many cases, $10 will furnish what they need in addition to their own labor. In the poorer communities around us, there are at least 100 wells which need deepening.

Money for food and fuel for the children and aged. They are always the ones who suffer first for the adults of working age must eat to work—when they can get work! Already our infant welfare centers have increased from 36 to 85. The pastor in Nagpur has 250 children coming every morning. Which had you rather do, eat well for three days or eat a little for six days? In one of our feeding centers in the district, the pastor said that he gave out all his milk powder and egg powder and multipurpose food in three days because he wanted the children to feel "comfortable" for a short time, while the others gave out a little each day for a week. Which would you do? Neither way is very happy, is it? All of our CARE parcels are being used in this way, but we must have money for fuel and for other foods available here. These children are of all castes and creeds, Hindu, Moslem, outcaste, Christian—all hungry!

Help for the Students. This is the group that is most vulnerable to the Communist propaganda that "no one really cares about you." Many of students in the high schools and the colleges here in Ahmednagar cannot afford to board at the regular dormitories but have their food sent in from home on the buses that run throughout the country. The tin boxes are taken at a tiny cost when the weight is little. The other day one of the boxes was confiscated because it was over-weight. It seems that there was nothing for the home to send but a few pieces of sugarcane, of little food value but heavy in weight. And that was all that the lad in college had to live on. At the college a sizable group is being fed daily. Without help, many will have to leave school and be added to the group of unemployed and hungry.

Help for blankets and clothing. Fortunately most of the cold weather has not been cold! And what there is, is nearly over. But we do need clothing for the women and children especially. Cloth here is very cheap now and it is better to buy here than at home and then pay the postage. The postage itself will buy a lot.

The Sisal Fiber Industry. You can imagine that with all this going on, how very thankful we are that we have been able to keep the Sisal Fiber Industry going—with your help. We could not have done it without the sales from home and your generous response to our appeals for orders. We have just put on six extra women and yesterday the "collector" (he corresponds to our State Governor) asked me to open up a center for another 30 or 40 women. I am trying to figure what it will mean for a budget. We shall have to take their children in the Welfare Centre as well. I have had second and third orders from some of you which has pleased me much! Now I am asking, if possible, that I may have 25 twenty-five dollar orders to be made up during our worst months of May, June, July, to be sent to reach you by October. If you can help us in this way, I shall breathe a big sigh of relief for those are our slack months and will, this year, be the months of greatest accumulated need and misery. If you cannot send the money in advance—which is easier because of the Reserve Bank regulations, I can still send the bags to you and wait till you sell them before I collect the money. So that is our goal; 25 x $25 equals peace of mind for me and security for 75 or more women!

When you are thinking of the extras given at "The One Great Hour of Sharing," you can share in the
(Continued on page 15.)

Church Women at Work

With Emphasis on Missions

MRS. F. C. LESTER, Editor

840 Sunset Avenue, Asheboro, N. C.

New Friendly Service Project

Recently there has gone to each president a letter from Mrs. W. E. Wissemann concerning friendly service gifts for Miss Corinne Nordquest in Africa. Since our mission study for this year is "Africa," since our World Day of Prayer service was written by African women, and since Miss Nordquest is one of our missionaries for special study (see article elsewhere on this page), it is fitting that we send some special gifts to Africa.

There are some special restrictions which are very important. In the first place, missionaries have to pay a 50% duty on all things coming to them. That means that when you make out the customs declaration tag that you put the minimum price on such things as used clothing, or if you include new handmade articles only the cost of the material and not of the article if bought readymade in a store. On the other hand, of course, do not value a large box for a dollar or two when you think it would be worth ten or twenty. After all we must be honest!

Then we must remember that Miss Nordquest, or any other missionary, finds it almost impossible to find these extra dollars for duty payments. So we are asked to send The American Board an amount equal to half the declared valuation of things we send her. So that your society will receive credit for this giving, send this money to your Conference treasurer, designating that it is to go to the American Board for Miss Corinne Nordquest.

The packages must not weight over 11 pounds or be valued at more than $14.00. Everything in the package must be listed on custom declaration tag and be sure to mark it gift parcel.

Things to Send.

Bible Costumes—for small children, made out of material that will wash well to fit children four and five feet tall.

Bean Bags—about five inches square made of strong, heavy, dark materials. Empty bags may be sent to save shipping weight, if desired, and they can be filled in Africa.

(Needles and thread enclosed for sewing them up would probably be a good idea.)

Stuffed Toys—for gifts to small children in our Sunday schools at Christmas.

"Glory Bags"—small cloth bag of bright, figured material with a draw string in the top. In it may be a bar of soap, wash cloth, powder for baby, a comb, and any such articles. These are given to the women in our Bridgman Memorial Hospital at Christmas. They could be about 10 by 12 inches in size.

Layettees—for needy minister's families or other church people.

Good Used Clothing—although it is not severe in Africa in the winter, it does get cold and they do not have much way to heat their homes and so this clothing is appreciated. Everything should be clean. Only good usable clothing should be sent. No shoes.

* * * * *

Meet Miss Corinne Nordquest

One of our new missionaries is Miss Corinne Nordquest, who went to Africa in 1949, where she is now doing religious educational and social work, with particular emphasis on the Sunday school.

Miss Nordquest was born in Ash-tabula, Ohio. She graduated from our Schauffler College in Cleveland in 1944. While in school there she was active in children's work at the church in Hudson, Ohio, sang in the Schauffler choir, was superintendent of Sunday schools in Brookline Village, and worked at Hiram Settlement House for Negroes in Cleveland.

She was director of religious education in the First Congregational Church of Hyde Park, Massachusetts from 1944-47 and at our First Church in Auburndale, Massachusetts in 1948. While in this area she studied at Andover Newton Theological School.

She says, "As far back as I can remember, I have been interested in people of other countries and in the work of our missionaries. The hope for a world peace lies in the permeation of all of life with Christian standards and ideals. The supreme need in our world today is for more people with Christ-like character. I would like to have an active part in the great missionary enterprise of bringing the gospel of life, love and joy to millions who so earnestly seek it and desperately need it."

Letter from Miss Nordquest.

Space does not permit that we print the entire letter which Miss Nordquest wrote to her friends in America last fall, but here are some excerpts from it to show you the variety of her experiences there.

"Our cornerstone laying ceremony, inaugurating the rebuilding of our church and school at Western Native Township, destroyed by fire a year ago, was held at our school grounds on September 6. All the money raised thus far is needed to put up the buildings. We need desks for 550 pupils, tables and chairs for the teachers, blackboards and easels, maps and a world globe for the school besides benches and other furniture for the church. Any money for gifts may be sent to the American Board and designated 'Western Native Township School.'

"On Sunday, September 7, we had our annual Scout Parade and Service. Boys and girls come in uniform from four schools.

"That same day we were observing National Sunday School Day with a parade and service at the Johannesburg City Hall. Nearly 2,000 African Sunday school children packed into the city hall for the service.

"Another building project in which we are engaged is the building of the church for our people at Moroka, shanty town location. The people there live in any kind of shelters put up out of whatever scrap material they can get together. There are few churches. The need for this church is tremendous.

"Much of my time these days is spent in preparing lessons stories to be used in all our American Board Sunday schools next year. I am selecting suitable stories and revising them. A young woman is translating them into Zulu and then they are checked by one of our pastors. Finally I stencil them and mimeograph about 400 copies.

"Perhaps so many different pictures run together in one letter will be confusing. But that's our work. Needs and problems wherever we turn. Challenging situations to face.

(Continued on page 15.)

A Page for Our Children

Mrs. R. L. HOUSE, Editor, Southern Pines, N. C.

Origin of the Name—Uncle Sam

The name, Uncle Sam, is applied to the United States, and that fact is universally known but how and why the name was applied is not so widely known. Here is the true story of the name's origin:

When Sam and Ebenezer Wilson of Mason, New Hampshire, decided to seek their fortune, they went to Troy, New York, where Sam engaged in several different lines of work, finally becoming a meat packer. He endeared himself to those with whom he associated, and came to be known as Uncle Sam Wilson. One day, in 1812, a river boat pulled up to Troy's Ferry Street dock. On the wharf were several casks of meat ready for shipment to the United States Army. One of the boat's passengers noted that on each barrel were the letters "U. S." and upon inquiry as to their meaning, was told that the letters meant Uncle Sam—Uncle Sam Wilson who was feeding the army. Uncle Sam feeding the army seemed like a joke, but the story soon spread and the name came to mean the United States Government. The name has persisted through the years.

* * * *

May I say a most gracious thank you to all of you who remembered me with notes and cards but failed to put your address on them? I wish you had so I could have said Thank You in a more personal way but your remembrances were greatly appreciated.

J. J. H.

* * * *

"Mother Goose and Her Rhymes"

By MABLE-RUTH JACKSON.

Issued by the National Kindergarten Association.

I had first met Mrs. Rood when, on the same day, both of us visited the kindergarten which our respective small children attended. After that, we met several times while shopping, and then one afternoon she dropped in at my home for a little visit.

We had been chatting away when presently, in a lull in the conversation, we heard my Larry giving to her Billy his own version of a nursery ditty:

"Little Jack Honer

Sat in a corner,

Eating a Chwismus pie.

He stuck in his thumb

And pulled out a plum,

And said what a good boy he was—

But he wasn't."

My eyes met Mrs. Rood's mirthfully, but we both carefully refrained from overt smiling until the youngsters had left the room to play with some of Larry's toys. Then Mrs. Rood said, "I don't think Billy knows a single one of those old jingles. Of course, our mothers' generation didn't know anything better and so you and I also learned them. But I didn't teach Billy Mother Goose rhymes. Frankly, I think they're rather silly and not at all uplifting—certainly not literature."

"But—" I began, bristling a little because I felt as though she had maligned a dear relative.

"In place of them I read him Milne, and Stevenson's Child's Garden of Verse. I want to form his taste for what is really good."

"Larry has heard those, too," I said defensively, "but I've never thought of them as taking the place of Mother Goose. I grew up with those quaint old tales and I don't think they hurt my taste for good reading. In fact, I know they didn't."

I was still simmering a little after she had gone. Eliminate Mother Goose from childhood experience! Why, it seemed unthinkable to have a child grow up lacking intimate acquaintance with Peter Peter Pumpkin Eater, Little Boy Blue, Bopeep, Little Miss Muffet, Simple Simon, Mother Hubbard, and all the other fascinating characters, so much a part of the traditions of English-speaking people that they seem always to have existed among us. In truth, they have been ours since about 1760, but France lays claim to them even earlier, her own Perrault having written the Rhymes about 1696. The characters, some of them grotesque, some amusing, many endearing, but all immensely pleasurable and understandable to a child's heart and mind are held there as fondly as the tattooed old Teddy bear is held in his arms.

Quite probably Robert Louis Stevenson himself, when he was "a wee sma' lad," knew many of the verses. There couldn't be a better source for a child's first idea of rhyme and rhythm.

Reference to one or more characters in Mother Goose are heard nearly every day on some radio program. Apt phrases have been quoted from them numberless times. Writers have woven stories and poems and plays from ideas gleaned from the jingles. A person ignorant of them, it seemed to me, would be in some degree illiterate.

But aside from this, their delicious, whimsical wisdom needs no other claim to a reason for existing than the delight the Rhymes have afforded generations of children, to whom Mother Goose, "the most remarkable dame in all history," is a joyous, beloved friend.

Fayetteville Church Observes Its Second Birthday

Approximately seventy-five persons gathered at "Breece's Landing" dining room in Fayetteville on the night of March 6, where a birthday dinner commemorating the second anniversary of the Eutaw Community Church of Fayetteville was observed.

A delicious turkey dinner "with all the trimmings" was served. Honorable Joe Talley, mayor of Fayetteville and a friend of the church, welcomed the group and introduced Dr. F. C. Lester, interim pastor in Fayetteville (Dr. Lester's Asheboro Church has granted him leave of absence of six months for the purpose of leading our Fayetteville Church in its building program).

The group was saddened by the absence of Mrs. Florence L. Rogers, member of the church and donor of the beautiful church building site. Mrs. Rogers is ill but sent a message which was read to the group.

Dr. Lester made appropriate remarks after which he introduced Superintendent Wm. T. Scott, Dr. and Mrs. John G. Truitt, Rev. Fred P. Register (president of the Eastern North Carolina Conference), and others.

Plans are being completed for the erection of the first unit of the church and construction is expected to begin within the next few days.

Youth at Work in the Church

REV. MAX VESTAL, R. 1, Asheboro, N. C.

"Relax With Max"

An ant climbed atop a wrapped cracker box on a store shelf and saw a pal scurrying along the opposite edge at a great rate.

"Where the heck you hurrying to?" inquired the first.

"Don't you see?" panted the other, indicating ahead of him. "It says, 'Tear along dotted line.'"

* * *

On a Scottish golf course there is a sign that reads: "Members will kindly refrain from picking up lost balls until they have stopped rolling."

* * *

A young lady had just returned from a friend's wedding and her mother was getting the details.

"And who gave the bride away?" she asked.

"Her little brother—and how!" replied daughter. "Right in the middle of the ceremony he stood up in his seat and shouted, 'Hurray, Jane! You got 'im at last!'"

* * *

Aren't people funny? Many will listen to the radio announcer tell about a new toothpaste containing x-21. Without having any idea of what x-21 is they will rush down to the store and buy some. But when it comes to Christ, who has been proved through the centuries, they doubt, fear, suspect, and ignore. Aren't we funny?

* * *

As you know they have recently been forced to change governments in Russia, or at least the leaders of the government. Everyone wonders what will happen, because there is no firm foundation on which they may build. We who serve Christ have this firm foundation which has lasted through the years on which we can depend in times of confusion. As we feel sorry for those who do not have this foundation in Christ, let us not fail to trust in it ourselves.

Fame is a vapor, popularity an accident, riches take wings. Only one thing endures, and that is character.

—Horace Greeley.

LAYMEN AND THE CHURCH.

(Continued from page 3.)

his life for a friend," and this is the ultimate test of friendship; may not need to lay down life but may need real courage to stand up for the pastor or a fellow member of the fellowship.

3. We called our minister; he is our leader and our friend; we need to give our comradeship and full support to this "man of God"; then we can expect and will receive genuinely inspired and inspiring leadership from him.

Questions for Discussion.

1. What part should the pastor have in the fellowship? Should he be an officer? Should he attend all of the meetings? Should he serve as a speaker? Should he suggest projects for the group?
2. Review some of the work done by your fellowship in and about the church and community, and have your secretary send a copy of the review for use on this page of THE SUN.
3. How can the men of the fellowship aid the minister in his conduct of public worship? in his attempt to teach as well as preach? in his work as a pastor? in his wider work with others in the community?

Other Suggestions for a Meeting.

Why not invite some minister of another church to come and speak on the topic, "What a Minister Expects of His Men"? Or, a layman might speak on the topic "What the Christian Layman Expects of His Minister".

Layman Is Named Chairman of Radio and Press Committee

Mr. Charles C. Parlin, a Methodist layman and a senior member of the New York law firm of Shearman and Sterling and Wright, has been named chairman of the important Press and Radio Committee for the Second Assembly of the World Council of Churches. The Second Assembly of the World Council will be held on the Northwestern University campus, at Evanston, Illinois, in August, 1954. As chairman of the United States Conference Committee on Interpretation and Support, Mr. Parlin's responsibility will extend also through the pre Assembly period.

The selection of Mr. Parlin for the chairmanship was made by the World Council's Central Committee of 90 representatives from the 161 member churches of 43 countries around the world. The announcement was made public at the Executive Committee meeting of the United States Conference for the World Council of Churches, formerly known as the Conference of the U. S. A. Member Churches.

Mr. Parlin is a native of Wausau, Wisconsin, and a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania and Harvard Law School. His home is in Englewood, New Jersey, where he serves as a member of the Community Chest Board and Board of the Urban League. He is director of the City Bank Farmers Trust Co., of New York; United States and Foreign Securities Corporation; United States and International Securities Corporation; The Citizens National Bank and Trust Company of Englewood, N. J.; Celenese Corporation of America.

He has been a lay delegate to the past four General Conferences of the Methodist Church, and was a representative to the Amsterdam (constituting) Assembly of the World Council of Churches in 1948. He is a member of the Methodist Commission on Church Union, the General Board of the National Council of Churches, a member of the Finance Committee of the World Council of Churches. He is an active lay leader in the Englewood, N. J., Methodist Church, where he teaches a class of Senior High School boys.

We were examining Guido's "Aurora," in the Rospigliosi Palace, and as we sat behind the row of artists busily copying the celebrated painting, we could not help noticing how they differed from each other as well as from the immortal fresco. After a time we called the attention of our guide to the fact that of each of the painter's copies no two were at all alike. With an expressive gesture, he replied, "Don't look at them, but only at the original!"

—W. Baxendale.

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE, D. D.

"In the Shadow of the Cross"

LESSON XII—MARCH 22, 1953.

MEMORY SELECTION: "I lay down my life, that I may take it again. No one taketh it away from me, but I lay it down of myself."—John 10 : 7-18.

LESSON: Matthew 26 : 6-13; 26-30.

DEVOTIONAL READING: John 10 : 7-18.

A Story of Two Suppers.

Today's lesson has as its setting two suppers. The first supper is in the home of a man named Simon, a man who had been cured of the leprosy, and who out of gratitude, had invited Jesus and the disciples to be his guests at the evening meal. Something happened there which made it immortal—Jesus said that wherever the gospel was preached in all the world, this story would be told!

The other supper took place in the "Upper Room" of the home of a man who is unnamed and unknown. Jesus and the disciples had gathered to celebrate the historic feast of the Passover, a symbolic meal eaten by the Jews to commemorate the exodus of their forefathers from Egypt centuries before. And in connection with that historic meal, Jesus instituted another "supper" which has also become immortal, the "Lord's Supper," the "Sacrament of Holy Communion." Wherever the gospel is preached in all the world, Christians observe this meal, which like the event connected with the supper mentioned above, has also become immortal. Each scene is fraught with meaning and with spiritual significance. Let us look briefly at them.

The Supper in Simon's House.

This man Simon was a leper. He had evidently been healed by Jesus, and out of gratitude he had invited Jesus to be a guest in his home. During the evening meal a woman, an uninvited guest, had come in, and breaking open a jar or cruse of very expensive ointment—Mark says it was worth a whole year's wages!!—she poured it over his head. The disciples were shocked at the "waste" as they called it. Instead of pouring out something that cost that much, why not sell it and give the money to the poor? They were like the folks who say that instead of sending money to foreign mission enterprises, we ought to take care of "the poor right at home" but who give little or nothing to the poor right here at home. Why did the woman do this? Some think, that inasmuch as Jesus had recently ridden into Jerusalem and had publicly proclaimed his Messiahship or Kingship, she "anointed him King" in this symbolic way. Luke says it was the act of a forgiven sinner. John says it was an act of overflowing love. Take your choice. Jesus says that, although the woman probably did not know it, she was anointing his body for burial. Even as they sat there, the shadow of the Cross lay upon them. He was preparing them for his death upon the Cross, soon to take place.

Some lessons clamor for attention in this story. For instance, this story would teach us that no sacrifice is too great when it comes in adoration of the Christ. Isn't it strange how folks will spend and squander money on so many things, and then complain if they are asked to give liberally to Christian causes, or criticise those who give sacrificially.

Then there is the lesson in this story, as it is in the other story, of the gracious and the good acts of unknown people. What was the woman's name who did this gracious and immortal act? Nobody knows. What was the name of the man in whose "Upper Room" Jesus ate the Last Supper, and instituted the Lord's Supper? Nobody knows. Only a few folks get their names in headlines or on the front pages, but the world's work and the world's sacrifices are made by unknown and unnamed men and women. Like the one whose body lies under the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, their names are "known only to God." But God knows, and God rewards in his own way and in his own time.

Then of course there is the lesson of gratitude, illustrated both in Simon's hospitality and in the woman's prodigality.

The Supper In The Upper Room.

The other scene is laid in the "upper room" of a home in Jerusalem. The Master is gathered with his disciples for the feast of the Passover, commemorating the deliverance of the Hebrew people from bondage in Egypt. In connection with that Old Covenant, he institutes another fellowship meal, commemorating the New Covenant. It was a very simple thing which he did. He took a broken bit of bread and blessing it, told them that it was a symbol of his body which would be broken for them. Then he took the cup, and after blessing it, he told them that the red wine was a symbol of his blood which would be shed for the remission of their sins. Both were symbols of the redemptive process which became operative through faith in Jesus Christ. That event took place nineteen hundred years ago. And yet today in every church in Christendom, Christ's followers gather around or before the Communion Table, and do this "in remembrance of him" and find that through this simple service, grace and peace are ministered unto them. Ah, the magic and the mystery and the miracle of it all!

Here, too, some lessons clamor for attention. What about the Master's words, "I shall not again drink of the fruit of the vine until that day when I drink it new with you in my Father's Kingdom?" That does not sound like defeatism, does it? His death would not be in vain. The powers of darkness and evil could not prevail. God's Kingdom would come. The future belongs to the forces of righteousness and decency and and light and love and truth.

"And when they had sung a hymn, they went out to the mount of Olives." They went out into the darkness and facing the devilry of men, with a song on their lips. And he sang with them. Perhaps it wasn't so hard for them to sing—they did not know what was in store for them. But he knew. And he went forth singing. It is an amazing spectacle, a spectacle that has been reenacted again and again by thousands of Christ's followers who have faced disaster and devilry and death itself with a song on their lips. We do not know what they sang, but it was probably one of the Psalms which were usually used in connection with the Passover Feast, the 115th to the 118th. In the 118th Psalm there are these words, "The Lord is on my side; I will not fear; What can man do unto me?" Thank God for the cheer and the courage that great Christian hymn can give.

Based on "International Sunday School Lessons;" Copyrighted 1951 by Division of Christian Education, National Council of the Churches in the U. S. A.

COMMONSENSE PROTESTANTISM.

(Continued from page 6.)

erence to urban centers, but it has significance too for the rural community. Commercial and industrial sections of every city tend to encroach upon residential areas. Fine old homes of yesterday become rooming houses, or mortuary establishments, or headquarters for various community organizations. The original gentile white Protestant inhabitants move to more pleasant places, to be followed by a successor of national and racial groups. The great churches which have been clustered at the heart of the city, initially serving all the people of their respective denominations throughout the city, find themselves competing with neighborhood churches, and literally struggling to survive. There are various adaptations. There are mergers and federations and relocations. Occasionally, not too often, a church will adapt its program to serve its neighbors, and so live, rather than to spend the energy required to serve its members who have moved miles away, and so slowly die.

The record of Protestantism in the inner-city, in much part is not one of which we can be proud. It has been characterized by retreat. There have been a dozen denominational strategies but rarely a Protestant strategy. Ofttimes the motivation has been purely economic, based on the increased value (over the years) of the property.

There are two problems here. Their solution requires at once a vital religion and considerable commonsense.

As the character of any neighborhood undergoes change, there need to be adjustments, but they should be orderly, in accordance with on-going needs of the area, not arbitrary without regard to continuing responsibilities. This involves denominational cooperation issuing in factual studies to discover the needs and to develop the requisite program. It takes a lot more religion to serve an underprivileged area which is a drain upon missionary funds than to serve an area which is an important source of revenue. But certainly Protestantism ought not to be forever surrendering blighted areas to the Roman Catholics. Roman Catholics face the city in its totality. Each parish has sufficient territory to provide its support. It serves the people of its parish. Protestantism faces the city, not infrequently, primarily as denominations seeking to extend themselves to best advantage. Plane common sense argues that we should face the city in the interest of the Kingdom as Christians and Protestants, the denominations being instruments to achieve our purpose, but not our purpose.

The second problem caused by the deterioration of the old neighborhoods, once the strongholds of Protestantism, is the shrinkage in missionary-giving on the part of great churches of yesteryear. This is illustrated in the fact that the benevolences of the Congregational Churches of Boston, Brooklyn, Cleveland and Detroit in 1950, were $114,000 less than the giving of the churches in those cities in 1930. That indicates an ominous trend. It provides a second motivation for establishing new churches in the emerging new neighborhoods. But certainly any church extension program ought to be orderly, based on unmet needs of the community, and with the consent and cooperation of sister denominations. I am fully aware that certain denominations act independently without regard whatsoever for the existing churches. This is questionable commonsense. And to put it bluntly, the conduct of churches toward each other ought to be on an ethical plane quite above the level of competitive super-markets. We are never going to have good community relations until the denominations that have subscribed to comity procedures practice comity on the local level, be the decision favorable or unfavorable. Everybody accepts favorable decisions. It is when a decision hurts, but is obeyed, that comity is strengthened. Some time ago a prominent denominational official remarked with regard to a certain comity decision, that "of course, it is only advisory." But so is the Golden Rule only advisory! One doesn't have to practice it. But he had better practice it, if he wants to be known as a Christian.

I doubt not that you have anticipated my conclusion. If Protestantism is to adequately serve the community in terms of the vast new population, the unprecedented mobility of the population, the exhaustion of funds due to excessive demands plus the inflated building costs, and the nation-wide experience of neighborhood deterioration, it must cooperate.

Of course, what we ought to do is to merge. Jesus prayed that we might all be one. And he gave us a new commandment, that we should have love, one for another, even as he has loved us, that we should love one another. To merge is easier said than done as we Congregationalists have discovered. But surely we can cooperate. Not to do so is to be provincial. It is bad churchmanship. It brings disrepute upon religion.

A strong Council of Churches is essential to the effectiveness of the Protestant witness in any city. The Council looks at the city in its entirety. It needs to know the facts as regards needs met and unmet, over-churching and under-churching, communities in transition, communities emerging, the social agencies and the services they aim to render, juvenile delinquency, vice, disease, divorce, and the other social indices.

The Gospel most certainly needs to be preached. And it needs must be practiced. It just is not enough that a church shall give generously to the foreign missionary enterprise, and be oblivious to missionary needs in its own community.

Individual churches do not have the staff, nor the facilities, to do the essential research or to analyze the assembled social facts. The Council of Churches, properly staffed, can render that service for all the churches. It can quicken their conscience. It can mobilize their energies. It can speak in the name of Protestantism and command a hearing. It can alert the city government in its various departments. It can champion the under-privileged, the discriminated against, the exploited. To do nothing is frequently to do much. To pray for the coming of God's Kingdom, as we so glibly do, and not to cooperate to bring it about, is to waste one's breath.

"Why call ye me 'Lord, Lord,' and do not the things that I command you."

I was once a pastor at Schuylerville, N. Y., where on the Burgoyne surrender grounds stands a celebrated monument. It is beautiful to look upon. On one side in a niche is General Schuyler, and on the other side, if I remember correctly, is General Gates; on the third, in the same sort of niche is another distinguished general, but on the fourth the niche is vacant. When I asked the reason, I was told: "It is the niche that might have been filled by Benedict Arnold."

—J. Wilbur Chapman.

The Orphanage

J. G. TRUITT, Superintendent

Dear Friends:

The Sunday schools have gone above the $3,000.00 mark, and others have brought the total for this year above $6,000.00. This is occasion for gratitude. There are so many things in the run of a week to make me thankful. I hope I shall never lose the grace of gratitude. I know I have to seek pretty hard for funds with which to pay our bills, and I am real sorry that I am getting the name of being a beggar. I could not stand it except for the fact that I am seeking to help these children just as you expect me to. And I am seeking to keep throughout the bounds of our Southern Convention the good name which this institution has. So what I am now trying to say is: I want to give thanks to you everyone for all you do for us here.

You will observe in this report interest on Chester H. Roth Co., Inc., bonds. Do you realize that it is through Clyde W. Gordan that we hold these bonds. Mr. Gordan's interest in the orphanage, the college, and our local churches in Burlington is something for which I am grateful. You will see in this report an item of $5.00 for one of our seniors in high school. The Willing Workers Class of our Shallow Well church is undertaking to help her get some of the clothes, class dues, Washington trip, etc., which require additional funds as she comes up for graduation. Now that is wonderful. I know that class, and I am glad they will get a real joy in helping her. They will be making a real investment in a very fine girl. She has already applied for nursing school at Rex Hospital in Raleigh. She is a capable, fine girl, and the Willing Workers class is to be commended for helping her. So there is another occasion for gratitude.

I have already told you that J. B. Long, whose contribution you see in this report, is having his check as a County Commissioner sent to us each month. And notice also a gift from the Hensley's in Elkton, Va., and the goodly number of Sunday schools which got their offering in this week's report. Yes, there is so much each week—even every day—for which to be thankful. Do any of you remember Sion M. Lyman, the blind ministerial student at Elon several years ago? Well, we hear from him occasionally with generous help. Sion never saw the orphanage, as you and I see it, but he heard the laughter of these little children, and he felt at times the touch of their little fingers, and he remembers. Then how about J. H. Johnson sending us every two months 50 copies of the Upper Room! He would be real interested to know that he is sowing good seed in good soil. I see it, and I know it.

No, I do not relish the title "good beggar," and so I want you all to know I am a good "appreciator" of all you do in so many very kind ways for these children here. If your good works are appraised and appreciated by me as I see them, how much more in the heart of God. "In as much as you do it unto one of the least of these," says Jesus, "ye do it unto Me."

This week, from a young lady who spent many years here and who is making good in life, I have this letter: "May God shed his richest blessings on you well in all the work that you are doing." Thanks to her, and for you everyone I accept her gratitude and prayer of blessing, for you made her chance possible.

JOHN G. TRUITT,
Superintendent.

REPORT FOR MARCH 5, 1953.

Commodities for the week.

J. H. Johnson, Norfolk, Va., 50 copies of "The Upper Room."

Mrs. S. M. Layman, Greenland, N. H., Clothing.

Sunday School Monthly offerings.

Amount brought forward $2,977.69

Eastern N. C. Conference:

Morrisville $ 8.20

8.20

Eastern Va. Conference:
Bethlehem (Nans), S. S. $ 17.84
Rosemont (for Jo Ann Arnold) 20.00
Rosemont 20.00

67.84

N. C. and Va. Conference:
Belew Creek S. S. $ 6.00
Burlington S. S.86
Happy Home S. S. 56.30
Mebane 6.60
Pleasant Grove 5.00

74.76

Western N. C. Conference:
Brown's Chapel S. S. $ 5.00
Seagrove 14.00
Smithwood 20.00

39.00

Total $ 189.80

Grand Total $3,167.49

Special Offerings.

Amount brought forward $2,604.15

Chester H. Roth Co., Inc.
(interest) $ 30.00

J. B. Long, Elon College,

N. C. 20.70

Mr. & Mrs. Ras Hensley,

Elkton, Va. 10.00

Willing Workers Class,

Shallow Well Church

for Ann Kinch 5.00

Pisgah Sunday School,

Pisgah, Alabama 10.00

Special Gifts 257.33

$ 333.03

Grand Total $2,937.18

Total for the week $ 522.83

Total for the year $6,104.67

Conscience is like a watch—it may look right, and you may go by it on the assumption that it is right, and find that you have missed your train. The watch must be set by the sure time, and regulated from time to time.—Maltbie D. Babcock.

MEMORIAL GIFTS

"Instead of Flowers"

Dr. John G. Truitt
Christian Orphanage
Elon College, N. C.

Dear Dr. Truitt:

Please acknowledge the enclosed $..... as a memorial gift sent to the Christian Orphanage in lieu of flowers in memory of:

(Name of Deceased)

(City)

(Date of Death)

(Survivor to be Written)

(Address)

Name.....

Address.....

THE HAPPINESS OF THE UNBURDENED.

(Continued from page 5.)

which act just like chains around their bodies. To all such we say, in Christian fellowship today, without delay look into the ways and means whereby the love and ministrations and faith in Christ can set you free. Before you try to carry on toward some goal, use every means at your disposal to find release from burdens you are carrying—of whatever nature they may be. Don't let wrongs you have done, calamities you have suffered, experiences you fear, injuries you have suffered, color all of life and keep you from truth and love and hope that will set you free, and bring happiness and power into your life.

If you would be happy and if you would serve God and man to the best of your ability, first unburden your heart and mind of all that would enslave and weaken them.

MISSIONS AT HOME AND ABROAD.

(Continued from page 8.)

food relief that is being sent to India through the Congregational Christian Service Committee. Remember when I was at home, we talked of the impossibility of our understanding what it felt like to be hungry? Let us try to realize it more and to recall the text heard in New York and elsewhere "When thou has eaten and art full, beware lest thou forget the Lord thy God."

Those of you who have been in the habit of remembering our work with your extra gifts beyond your usual pledges, can send your gifts either through the American Board in Boston (14 Beacon Street) marked for Famine Relief in our care or by personal check direct to us. All help for the Sisal Fiber should be sent in personal check to me, because of the necessity of cashing the USA dollars here when we are exporting goods from India.

Thirty-four years ago today, we landed in Ahmednagar for the first time. Then it was famine. Since that time we have had four periods of "scarcity." Today, without question is the worst. While discouragement and depression is great, we take courage from the knowledge of your support in gifts and prayers.

Sincerely yours,

FLORENCE and JOSEPH MOULTON.

CHURCH WOMEN AT WORK.

(Continued from page 9.)

Unlimited opportunities all about us, and even though our resources are greatly limited, we must do our best."

* * * * *

New Society at Antioch

On Tuesday evening, February 24, a group of ladies met at the Antioch (Randolph County) Congregational Christian Church and organized a missionary society with fifteen members. The group was organized under the direction of Mrs. Winfred Bray, wife of the pastor.

After a short worship service the following officers were elected: President, Miss Mildred Cox; vice-president, Mrs. Billy Norwood; secretary, Mrs. Yancy Hayes; treasurer, Mrs. Clinton Asbill.

Future plans for the society will be outlined at the next meeting which is to be held at the church on Friday evening, March 13.

* * * * *

World Day of Prayer Observed by Group

A group of ladies from Union Grove, Randleman and Antioch (R) missionary societies met at the Union Grove church on February 20, at seven-thirty to observe the World Day of Prayer. An impressive program was presented, using the theme "Walk as Children of Light." Several members of the societies participated in the service, which was led by Mrs. Winfred Bray, wife of the pastor of this group of churches. An offering was taken for the projects designated.

This is one of the fine ways in which a group of churches can co-operate. More of the churches served by one pastor could have fellowship of this kind for the mutual benefit of all. We shall hope to hear of other cooperative ventures from the missionary societies at Antioch, Randleman and Union Grove.

As the old historian says about the Roman armies that marched through a country burning and destroying every living thing, "they made a solitude and called it peace." so men do with their consciences. They stifle them, forcibly silence them, somehow or other; and then when there is a dead stillness in the heart, unbroken by no voice of either approbation or blame, but doleful like the unnatural quiet of a deserted city, then they say it is peace.—A. Maclaren.

SANFORD CHURCH DEDICATES LIBRARY.

(Continued from page 2.)

the coming of Miss Dorthy Foltz as summer worker with the young people things really began to happen. Miss Foltz was of inestimable assistance in making contacts with publishing houses and in the securing of lists of basic books in various fields. Uppermost in the mind of Mrs. Fulton was the thought that there might be available some of the best books for collateral study and reference and thus open a door to better teaching and, too, there was the hope that the presence and easy availability of some of the classics and other worthy books would stimulate the reading of good literature on an even-widening basis. At once the 'dreamer' became a 'doer', telephone bells began to jangle; door chimes to render their sweet music; the postman to deliver irresistible epistles and before very long our 'dreamer' had in her possession sufficient funds—this enterprise was not to provide a dumping ground for discarded literature of ancient vintage—to, at least, see the dream become a practical reality. A Library Board was appointed consisting of Mrs. T. G. Proctor as chairman, Mrs. S. E. Kennedy, Mrs. Fisher Wicker, Burke Buchanan and Rex Thomas. This board is to establish policies and to have general supervision of the project. The library was fortunate in securing the services of Mrs. Charles LaRue who has had college training in library science. Mrs. Gordan Wilkie, a public school teacher, will act as assistant librarian.

The Fulton family has meant much in the life of our church. The late Deacon Fulton was a tower of strength when the church was in its formative years and he always could be depended upon to give not only sage counsel but generously of his means. His family follows in his footsteps, but his widow is, we believe, the shining symbol of a great host who though physically handicapped are spiritually alert and ever seeking new and larger ways for the promotion of the eternal kingdom of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ.

SADIE HOLLAND O'NEILL.

Nelaton, the great French surgeon, once said that if he had only four minutes in which to perform an operation on which a life depended, he would take one minute to consider how best to do it.

Ten Commandments for the Home

By ROY C. HELFENSTEIN

1. Thou shalt honor the Lord, thy God, and Him shalt thou reverence in thy home, and Him shalt thou worship in His church, that thy home may be blessed with His constant presence.

2. Thou shalt live "in honor preferring one another," that honor and understanding shall characterize all your home-life.

3. Thou shalt recognize Christ as "the unseen guest" at every meal, the quiet listener at every conversation, offering thanks to God in his name before each meal, that thy home may be known as a Christian home.

4. Thou shalt have the best religious books and magazines in thy home, and thou shalt spend at least as much time in reading them as thou spendest in reading the Daily News and other secular publications, that thou may grow in grace and in the knowledge of God, and that visitors to thy home may take knowledge that thou dost think on these things.

5. Thou shalt each one share the duties of the home, that the joy of each member may be complete in the home which the Lord thy God hath given thee.

6. Thou shalt make thy home a rendezvous for fellowship, where noble spirits delight to gather for wholesome fun and for uplifting conversation, that others may share the joy that is yours.

7. Thou shalt rejoice and make gladness to resound in thy home that memories of home shall ever be an inspiration to your lives.

8. Thou shalt cultivate family loyalty and appreciate one another, that harmony, good will and love may be yours.

9. Thou shalt always speak with gentle voice and calm, and in tones of kindness shalt thou call to each other, that thy home may be a place of quietude and peace.

10. Thou shalt seek to make thy home attractive and inviting—a place of beauty, which shall be a joy forever—that thy home may be a blessing to all who enter there and that it shall always be an honor to God.

The CHRISTIAN SUN

ORGAN OF THE SOUTHERN CONVENTION OF CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES

In Essentials Unity — In Non-Essentials, Liberty, — In All Things, Charity

VOLUME CV

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, MARCH 19, 1953

NUMBER 12

The Latest Home Mission Project of THE SOUTHERN CONVENTION

Lake View Community Church, Route 2, Burlington, North Carolina

A LETTER FROM OUR YOUNGEST CHURCH TO THE NEXT YOUNGEST

To the Pastor and Members of Beverly Hills Church, Greetings:

We have received from Dr. W. T. Scott the fifty dollars which you so graciously sent us. The Lakeview Community Church wishes to express its sincere thanks for your continuous support of our church. You have not only supported us with money, but with your friendship and companionship. We have drawn from you ideas for our church building, you have given us your faith in our venture, and now we have received money to help fulfill our dreams. We will always have a warm and close feeling for the Beverly Hills Church.

We send you our thanks and best wishes with the prayer that God will continue to bless you in the furthering of his Kingdom.

SHIRLEY COBB, Secretary

MISSIONS PERIOD
March 1 through June, 1953

"Relief and Reconstruction" Merits Our Aid

"Relief and Reconstruction" is one important aspect of our Christian World Mission. The needs throughout the world are many and critical. According to available reports, there are 5,000,000 refugees in Korea alone who are in desperate need of food and clothing. It is so foreign to our general experience that it seems fantastic to learn that some 50,000 orphans roam the Korean country-side living as best they can.

The situation in India is critical. Because of droughts, floods and the plagues of grasshoppers, the crops will not be sufficient to feed the population. Famine is a reality. In addition, medical facilities and supplies are not adequate to cope with the situation.

The Palestinian situation continues to reflect the needs of the one million Arab refugees living in tent villages.

In Europe there are close to eleven million refugees and the number is growing with refugees coming out from behind the Iron Curtain. All over the world there are peoples in need of help, victims of war and natural catastrophe.

"One Great Hour of Sharing" was observed by churches of many denominations throughout this country on Sunday, March 8. This endeavor, undertaken by the Department of Church World Service of the National Council of Churches, represented a "United Appeal for Relief and Reconstruction." Our Congregational Christian Churches were among approximately eighteen denominations participating directly in this effort. Because of local circumstances within our Southern Convention probably only a few of our churches participated directly in this program. Yet it is not too late to do something for Relief and Reconstruction beyond the funds designated for that purpose by the Mission Board. Churches and individuals can make gifts through the Convention office or various agencies.

The dimensions of the problem are so great, involving so many people in so many lands, the individual is likely to wonder what he can do. Certain basic facts should be kept in mind. For $8.50 a child will be provided with three cups of milk per day for a year. Twenty cents will provide a penicillin injection for the treatment of pneumonia, meningitis and other diseases. Ten dollars will send a food parcel overseas. Seven dollars will send a blanket to Korea.

Information concerning the needs and how they can be met is available from the Congregational Christian Service Committee, 110 East 29th Street, New York, N. Y., and from our Convention office, also from the Church World Service Department of the National Council of Churches, 120 E. 23rd Street, New York, N. Y.

Relief and Reconstruction definitely is a part of Our Christian World Mission. Where there is human need, there should be the Church of Christ extending a helping hand. World War II and the Korean conflict have inflicted untold suffering upon millions of people. They should be helped and can be helped. Conflicts in other parts of the world have brought about similar situations. This is a real opportunity to exercise Christianity.

It should be noted that gifts from churches designated for Relief and Reconstruction are credited to the church, if sent through the Convention office, on the Foreign Mission apportionment. But basically, the effort for Relief and Reconstruction should be in addition to the regular apportionment for Foreign Missions. Here is another real opportunity for churches, groups and individuals to make a solid and needed contribution to Our World Mission.

JAMES H. LIGHTBOURNE, JR.

Aged Missionary Dies in Madura

A Congregational Christian missionary in India for 40 years, Dr. Harriet Parker Vaughan, died in Madura, India, February 27, at the age of 85.

In 1937, Dr. Vaughan received from the Indian Government the Kaiser-i-Hand Medal given for distinguished service to the people of India. She began her medical career in the fine American Hospital for Women and Children in Madura, when it was only a small and poorly equipped institution.

Treating thousands of patients annually, she also identified herself with the work of lepers, founding the Dayapuram Leper Hospital, and with deserted children, starting the Birds' Nest, a home for friendless children.

Dr. Vaughan spent many weeks outside hospital walls traveling among the grass roots people, visiting obscure villages in the hills, riding in uncomfortable native carts and sleeping in primitive wayside inns. In 1945 her fiftieth anniversary was fittingly celebrated in the chapel of the American Hospital for Women and Children, at which time 50 fragrant garlands were placed over her shoulders.

The Birds' Nest, which was started by Dr. Vaughan as her "chief recreation and leisure," was really a small cottage where she gathered together homeless waifs and became their "mother."

Born on July 29, 1867, in Putney, Vermont, Dr. Vaughan was educated at Smith College and the Woman's Medical College of New York. She went first to India in 1895 as a single woman, but out there met and married Rev. C. Stanley Vaughan. Returning to the United States in 1934, the Vaughans retired in 1935. Mr. Vaughan died the next year, and she returned to India in 1937, making her home part of the time at Restbit, Shembaganur Post, South India.

Lenten Activities at the Reidsville, North Carolina, Church

With an idea of stressing various phases of the Convention's program and introducing prominent clergymen of our Convention, the pastor of the Reidsville church planned a series of special Lenten services on Sunday nights, beginning with Sunday, February 22, when the Rev. Walstein W. Snyder of our Beverly Hills Community Church and president of our conference, was the speaker for the evening service.

The following Sunday night, the pastor of the church brought the message, and several young people of the church participated in the service in various ways, such as presiding and leading in prayer. The youth choir also assisted.

On Sunday, March 8, Dr. William Sloan of Elon College, who has recently returned from an extended trip abroad and who has had some contact with the Reidsville Church's missionaries, brought the missionary message.

On Sunday, March 15, Dr. John G. Truitt, superintendent of the Christian-Orphanage, and a group of boys and girls from the orphanage presented a program. Before this service, there was a covered dish supper in the basement of the church.

Laymen and the Church . . .

J. Earl Danieley, Editor, Box 515, Elon College, N. C.

First Fellowship Report

Today we present the first of what we hope will be a long series of reports from the local men's fellowships. It gives your editor a real pleasure to have this report from the men's group of our Chapel Hill Church. It was his privilege to serve as interim pastor in the church in Chapel Hill, and it was during his "pastorate" that the fellowship there was organized. It is now approaching its second birthday and is real evidence of the fact that a "young" group consisting of a small number of men can do a real job in and for the church.

* * * * *

A Report from Chapel Hill

The Men's Fellowship began its second year of activities last July, with their regular monthly meeting in the church parsonage, at which time our pastor, Rev. Richard L. Jackson, was host. The new officers took over their designated functions and made plans for the coming year.

We sponsored two money-making projects—one, an ice cream social, last summer, was a big success as a social as well as a source of income. During the fall we worked a refreshment stand at the football games in Kenan Stadium and used the money realized to improve the facilities of our church.

Our improvement projects include water-proofing and remodeling the basement of the church, and seeding the parsonage and church front lawns in grass. Most of the labor on these projects was by the members of the Men's Fellowship. We also bought twenty-five metal folding chairs and presented them to our church.

Our Father and Son Banquet last November was well attended and was served by the women of the church. Rev. Henry E. Robinson of the Burlington Church was the guest speaker.

Our monthly programs are varied between movies, interesting speakers, and discussions of meaningful subjects, and we have all benefited greatly by them.

L. C. NEVILLE,
Reporter.

Wanted: More Reports

These reports from the various groups are encouraging and stimulating. Let us hear from you concerning your group and the work it is doing.

* * * * *

Do You Know Your Officers?

The officers of the Southern Convention for the two-year term, 1952-54, are:

Chairman—W. B. Williams, Newport News, Virginia.

Secretary - Treasurer—S. H. Pell, Ramseur, N. C.

* * *

Your dues of fifty cents per member should be sent to the treasurer, Mr. Pell.

News Flashes

Rev. Isaac Terrell, an Elon College graduate, has just been named pastor of the church at the Mills Home Baptist Orphanage, Thomasville, N. C.

President L. E. Smith combined business and pleasure on a visit to Florida during the past two weeks. While in Florida he addressed a meeting of Elon alumni in Jacksonville, and also contacted a number of individual alumni and friends of the college.

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr
A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom as represented by the Congregational Christian Churches.
Our Principles

1. The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
2. Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
3. The Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
4. Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and church membership.
5. The right of private judgment and liberty of conscience is a privilege that should be accorded to and exercised by all.

Managing Editor John T. Kernodle

Departmental Editors—Convention, Wm. T. Scott; Missions, F. C. Lester; Women's Work, Mrs. F. C. Lester; Young People's Work, Max Vestal; Children, Mrs. R. L. House; Sunday School Lesson, H. S. Hardcastle.

Institutional Representatives—Elon College, L. E. Smith; The Christian Orphanage, John G. Truitt.

Board of Publications—Duane Vore, Chairman, S. T. Holland, Secretary; R. C. Helfenstein, S. E. Madren, W. W. Snyder, G. D. Colclough, Treasurer, ex officio.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Year$3.00
Two Years 5.00

Published by the Board of Publications of The Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches, Inc. Printed every Thursday except the last in June and December by Central Publishing Co., Inc., Richmond, Va.

Entered as second-class matter at the Post Office at Richmond Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

General contributions should be addressed to the editor at Southern Pines, N. C., and should reach him by Wednesday of the week preceding date of publication.

Departmental material should be sent to the proper departmental editor, at the address shown on their page.

All other material and business communications except regarding subscriptions should be sent to the Office of Publication, 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond 19, Va.

The Christian Sun Subscription Blank

Subscription Price: 1 year, $3.00; 2 years, $5.00

Date.....195....

Dr. Wm. T. Scott, Supt.,
Elon College, N. C.

Enclosed find $..... for which please send The Christian Sun
() 1 year, () 2 years — () New Subscription, () Renewal.

To

Address

Who is a member of Church

() Renew, () Enter my own subscription for () 1 year, () 2 years.

My Name

My Address

From the EDITOR'S Desk

The Missionary Program of Our Convention

AN EDITORIAL BY REV. JAMES H. LIGHTBOURNE, JR.

The mission of the Congregational Christian Churches "... will be consummated in the conversion of the world, the union of all the followers of Christ, and his reign in human society." This statement of lofty design is to be found in the "Manual of the Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches," in the section dealing with the principles of our fellowship of churches. It is in keeping with the vital traditions born of actual workings of our fellowship.

In this period we designate as the Mission Period for the work of our churches, it is almost mandatory that we be aware of the fact that we are a missionary-minded people seeking to Christianize the world and to unite all followers of Christ. While we are interested in missions in other lands as a means to offset the influence of communism and so safeguard the free world our primary motivation should be drawn from our understanding that we are concerned to work for the design of God. It is his will that the gospel be proclaimed among the nations. The kingdom for which we labor and hope is the Kingdom of Christ.

The missionary program of our Southern Convention functions within the Convention itself and around the world. There is work to be done here. There is work to be done there. The program is supported by our personal missionary activities and by our freely given gifts that workers and supplies may be available. The pages of this issue and of every issue of The Sun tell us of the good work in which we are engaged.

The success of the program is dependent in part upon our gifts. Now is an excellent time to consider what we are going to do for missions this year. How fine it would be if the Easter Offering for Missions in our churches would be given over and above the regular apportionment. There is danger in carrying this principle too far but gifts can be designated for special purposes both at home and abroad.

The missionary effort is a life-line of the Kingdom. It has many tasks—preaching, teaching, healing and ministering to a variety of needs. The program of Relief and Reconstruction is involved. The opportunity is at hand. Let us be at the work!

"Carrying On"

AN EDITORIAL BY DR. ROY C. HELFENSTEIN

Jesus once said, "My Father worketh hitherto, and I work." It is his divine will that all who call him Lord, shall follow his example.

No doubt the consideration that gave Jesus the greatest inspiration of his life was the thought that he was "carrying on" the work which his Heavenly Father, God, had instituted from the beginning of time—"My Father worketh hitherto, and I work"—"My Father launched the enterprise of his Kingdom, and I 'carry on.'"

The secret of Jesus' power of personality and the secret of his power in prayer was the fact of his being wholly committed to the doing of his Heavenly Father's will—"Thy will not mine be done."

No life can know its possibilities; no life can experience its largest self-realization; no life can fill its mission in the world or realize the fullest joy of living that has not made full commitment to the Heavenly Father, God, and to the doing of his will.

People with the highest ideals, the deepest sincerity, the greatest power in service, are those who most fully commit their lives to the doing of God's will, giving of themselves and of their substance.

Listen to Jesus' own words, "As thou hast sent me into the world, even so have I also sent them." He gives each of his disciples a like commission to his own—a like service to render—a like opportunity to prove one's sincerity and fidelity by working to help establish God's Kingdom upon the earth.

As the worthy soldier gladly accepts the challenge of the "Carry on!" from the lips of his fallen officer, so every true disciple of Jesus gladly accepts his challenge to "Carry on!" in promoting the work of the Kingdom of our God.

A fitting prayer for each Christian with which to begin the new day would be, "Grant, O God, that with eagerness and efficiency I may accept thy challenge and the challenge of Jesus to 'Carry on' in the work of the Lord."

Our Responsibilities to The Church in Angola . . .

By MERLIN W. ENNIS*

For too long and in too many fields missions have remained missions, their converts looked upon and treated as dependents. In Africa there are missions which have been in operation for more than four hundred years without having produced an African church. This is not the case in Angola, where the American Board has worked since 1880.

Angola is no longer a land of primitive folk with strange and brutal developed resources, is going to figure large in the future. Its inhabitants are a greater asset than its water power or its mineral wealth. Africa has been under the white man's domination for a long time. If the continent were to be turned over to its people tomorrow they would inherit few great monuments of European culture, few ideals of law and order. Actually the African believes that our civilization generally is one cans) continue to come to the great city of Goli (Johannesburg) with a sure and steady pace as if they knew that 'White civilization', no matter how much it hates and despises them, cannot keep them down forever."

"Dog Catch it! Dog No Eat It!"

The native population is aware of the unwarranted injustices inflicted upon them in their own land by a few uninvited outsiders who, in their turn, are aware of this justifiable resentment. Although frightened they are doggedly determined to hold their position as a right. The African has great patience but that he understands his situation is illustrated by this proverb, "They say, 'Dog go catch it!' but they never say, 'Dog go eat it.''" The African digs the gold customs. It is a land of intelligent people eager to enter the future on a footing of equality with the civilized. Here there are strong, indigenous churches pushing evangelization on their own account, directing their own affairs, financially responsible for their own churches and primary schools. They are no second class Christians. The existence of self-sustaining churches of Angola is an immensely important fact.

OUR MINISTRIES IN AFRICA

THE AMERICAN BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS FOR FOREIGN MISSIONS

The Place of Africa in World Politics.

Most commentators on world affairs consider that Africa, because of its size and its great store of undeveloped resources, is going to figure large in the future. Its inhabitants are a greater asset than its water power or its mineral wealth. Africa has been under the white man's domination for a long time. If the continent were to be turned over to its people tomorrow they would inherit few great monuments of European culture, few ideals of law and order. Actually the African believes that our civilization generally is one Colonialism Versus The Development of The African.

Those who have read Cry the Beloved Country, White Man Boss, and magazine articles on South Africa have an idea of the tremendous social pressure developing within the continent. Basil Davidson says, "It can be clearly seen that the central problem of South Africa is not the neurotic nationalism of the Nationalists so much as the refusal of the white population as a whole to face its own situation. They prate of 'White civilization' and yet prepare the way for Black civilization and they (the Afri-

and diamonds, the copper and the uranium; he tills the plantations; builds the dams and harbors for the benefit of others. Another proverb says, "The blind chicken scratches for the others to eat." a trader, in a fit of pique, said to an educated African, "Whose country is this anyway?" and was astonished to receive the reply, "Ours!" Everywhere the white man has been saying, "The land is ours." These conditions cannot continue. The problem is to bring about a just solution in an intelligent, Gandhi way.

The Relation of Angola to Africa as a Whole.

Africa is a part of the world and its politics. Angola cannot be separated from Africa as a whole so it cannot be separated from the world problem. The churches do not exist in a vacuum, they are a part of Angola for better or for worse. Our

*Dr. Ennis retired in 1945 after 42 years of service in the West Central Africa mission of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions. Since 1903 he had been engaged in evangelistic and educational work and linguistic research. He and Mrs. Ennis, who served in Angola from 1907, now live in Lexington, Massachusetts.

Christian World Mission is in a position to assist a body of believers vitally important for the future. They are not only important but one may dare say that they are the key to the solution. An energetic, expanding church is handling its own affairs in a democratic manner. Church members are the only people in the colony familiar through usage with the democratic process; they are united; they have a high standard of morality and character. They are joined with all the non-Roman believers actually, though not organically, to form the Church of Christ in Angola. This establishes a fellowship across all denominational, racial and linguistic barriers. The country is geographcivilization; they are losing their old religion yet they are religious; they are essentially moral in an immoral ambient. In some instances churches have doubled their numbers in every three-year period. Consequently there is a large number of untaught believers.

Physically they are the inhabitants of a high plateau in the tropics; their economy is naturally agricultural. Politically they are in a dependency of a Corporative State. As nationals they have certain advantages and some disadvantages. Intertribal wars have been abolished and internal travel is permitted. There is a degree of discrimination; even a well dressed, educated African must go the women.

The link between the Government and the Roman Catholic Church, due to the Concordat, has placed all public education under the Church. Marriage and birth registries of the Roman Church are legal while those of the Protestant bodies are not. This is but a brief sketch of some of the difficulties under which these Christians live.

What Is To Be Done For Them?

One of the treasures of the British and Foreign Bible Society is a Gospel handwritten on coarse paper by an Ochimbundu, who, shanghied to the cocoa plantations, began to evangelize his fellow victims. When they wished gospels he taught them to ically central and there are no barriers to prevent the expansion of brotherhood. This is one place where the gospel of Jesus is being applied to the larger politics of today.

African Children Listening to a Story

Our Eggs Have Hatched.

The mission eggs have hatched abundantly; and now is the time for wise American parental help. What line should it follow?

Know Your Offspring.

A prime condition for effective help is to know these fellow Christians, their character, numbers, physical surroundings and their religious, cultural and economic needs. Let us note things that should be known: The Ovimbundu have lost their tribal organization; they still keep their family loyalties. They are adapting themselves to the patterns of white second class on trains and steamers. Usually Africans may not eat in a public dining-room; politically they may vote the one party ticket in an election. Their chief disadvantage is economic. The poll tax is equal to the legally fixed wage of a common laborer for one hundred days. Each male begins to pay at the age of sixteen. At that age also every able-bodied male is subject to a labor draft called "contract labor." The contract is dispensed with and the individual has no option. The labor periods vary from six months to two years. As there is more work than men, the period between drafts is progressively shortened. This, together with other requirements, is bad for individual initiative, and it causes much of the responsibility for school and church activity to fall on write and then had them make their own copies. When the Bible Society found this proof of devotion and enterprise, did they stop printing gospels for Africa? Not at all. So in our case. We should supplement the energy and devotion of the African Christians by helping them with what they cannot as yet provide for themselves. There are many capable young men and women ready and willing to be trained for church leadership. Our Mission staff is small and overworked, funds low and the dollar shrunken and still shrinking. The Mission needs more money for training teachers who will staff schools to prepare pastors and teachers and catechists: There is need of both men and women, capable of giving assistance in church

(Continued on page 11.)

News of Elon College

PRESIDENT L. E. SMITH, Elon College, N. C.

Elon News Items

The famous Barter Players of Virginia presented the stage version of Owen Wister's novel, "The Virginian," in Whitley Auditorium on Monday night, March 16.

* * *

Dr. Horace H. Cunningham, of the Elon History faculty, recently published an article on "The Organization of the Confederate Medical Department" in the North Carolina Historical Review.

* * *

The Elon Players, student dramatic group, were represented at a regional dramatic conference at Chapel Hill on March 6, and 7 by Mrs. Elizabeth R. Smith, faculty director, who was accompanied by Johnny Meadows and Johnny Bolt, student members of the Elon Players.

* * *

Miss Alene Gentry of Timberlake, North Carolina, Elon student, and Theodore Webb, a recent Elon graduate from Rockingham, North Carolina, were married on the national TV show, entitled "Bride and Bridegroom," on March 2.

* * *

The Elon College basketball squad closed its season by battling to the finals of two tournaments within a week. The Christian eagers went to the finals of the North State Conference tournament in Winston-Salem before losing to High Point, and then went to the finals of the Carolinas NAIA Tournament in Greenville, N. C., before losing to East Carolina.

* * * * *

Elon College Choir Has Successful Northern Trip

The Elon College Choir, which has enjoyed great success and acclaim in recent years, returned to the campus on Monday March 9, after the most successful northern tour in the history of the organization. It was the sixth successive year that the Elon Singers had spent their spring vacation on a personal appearance tour.

Thirty-six members of the choir, chosen from a campus group of 67 students, made the long jaunt northward by chartered bus, and traveling through the Middle Atlantic States and as far north as New Hampshire in New England, making twelve concert appearances within a space of ten days.

The choir was accompanied on the trip by Prof. John Westmoreland, who directed the singers in their programs; by Prof. Jonothan Sweat, who served as accompanist for the group, and by Miss Virginia Groomes, another faculty member, who appeared in solo roles with the student singers.

The first appearance of the Elon Singers was at Main Street Methodist Church in South Boston, Virginia, on Friday night, February 27. This was followed by four concert programs in Eastern Virginia during the weekend. The Eastern Virginia programs were at Cypress Chapel on Saturday evening, February 28; at Holland Christian Church at 11 o'clock Sunday morning, March 1; at the First Congregational Christian Church in Portsmouth at 3:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon, and at the Suffolk Christian Church at 8 o'clock on Sunday evening.

The choir then made a long jump on Monday, March 2, to Rahway, N. J., where the group sang in the First Baptist Church of Rahway that evening. Another long bus trip was on the program for Tuesday, with the singers appearing in Central Congregational Church, Lynn, Mass., on Tuesday evening, March 3. The singers were at Smith Memorial Church, Hillsboro, N. H., on Wednesday evening, March 4, and then appeared at the United Congregational Church of Norwich, Conn., on Thursday evening, March 5.

One of the highlights of the tour came at noon on Friday, March 6, when the Elon group sang in Milbank Chapel at Columbia University, before an audience that included both students and faculty members of the university's School of Music. This was followed that evening by an appearance at the Second Congregational Christian Church in Irvington, N. J.

The choir members returned to New York and had a free day in the city on Saturday, March 7, spending Saturday night there and leaving on Sunday morning on the return trip. They stopped in Philadelphia for the final concert appearance of the tour at Glenolden Congregational Church, on Sunday evening, March 8. The next day brought the long trip back to the Elon campus.

Indicative of the reception accorded the Elon Singers in their concert appearances, is the review given their program in the Bulletin, of Norwich, Conn., after their appearance there. The Norwich paper declared that "it was one of the most inspiring programs of sacred music presented here in some time and most admirably performed." The program was described as quite appropriate for the Lenten season, being well chosen from the works of Bach, Haydn, Berlioz and Brahms, with arrangements by Virgil Thomson and Randall Thompson.

The opening selection, "The Heavens Are Telling," from Haydn's "Creation," was described as the most powerful of the group, offering ample opportunity for the Elon Singers to display their talents and training. The reviewer declared that "the choral group gave an unusually fine rendition of Brahms's Requiem," and he paid tribute to the presentation of "My Shepherd Will Supply My Need," a number arranged from the Twenty-third Psalm.

Elon students making the tour included: Bernard Jones, Ritha Morris, Jimmy Rhodes, Jerry Lowder, Ronnie Black, Joe Morris and Patsy Melton, of Burlington, N. C.; Mary Sue Colclough, Lois Scott and Cooper Walker, of Elon College; Lacy Fogelman, Judith Ingram and Jerry Smyre, of Greensboro; James Clyburn, of Charleston, S. C.; Charles Crews and Harriett Talley, of South Boston, Va.; Annie Laura Albright, of Mebane, N. C.; Golda Brady and Helen Craven, of Ramseur, N. C.; Judith Chadwick, of Boxford, Mass.; Patsy Deaton, of Troy, N. C.; William Ginn, of Mount Pleasant, S. C.; Sarah C. Hunt, of Stearns, Ky.; Betsy Johnson, of Fuquay Springs, N. C.; Ashburn Kirby, of South Norfolk, Va.; Kenneth Lambert, of Norfolk, Va.; Phil Mann, of Cypress Chapel, Va.; Meryle Mauldin, of Winston-Salem, N. C.; Girlita McPherson, of Asheboro, N. C.; Barbara Millner, of Danville, Va.; Jean and Dalton Parker, of Suffolk, Va.; E. B. Moore, of Reidsville, N. C.; Norma Roberts, of Jamesville, N. C.; Shirley Swank, of Hillsboro, N. H.; and Elizabeth Ward, of Staley, N. C.

Foreign Mission Projects Of The Southern Convention . . .

Angola Mission—

The Angola Mission of the American Board (formerly called the West Central Africa Mission) is nearing its 75th birthday, but it is one of the youngest spirited missions you can find anywhere. Twenty nine missionaries of our churches serve it; but their influence is extended 80 fold by the 2,179 African workers who carry the work forward in villages and congregations far out from the mission centers. The Christian community of the Angola mission numbers more than 60,000, or approximately one-tenth of the people of the area we serve. The African Church which has been developed from our work operates more than 430 schools—in a land where no public education is available to the Africans. And in 35 village centers there are dispensaries, where a missionary doctor or an African dispenser is actively engaged in promoting better health.

The work of the Angola Mission is closely joined with that of the United Church of Canada Mission. Africans under either mission consider themselves part of one church—the Church of Christ in Angola. To become a member is quite a process, too. One has to study for two years under a catechist or village church worker, and then in public meeting answer four questions, after questions relating to Christian knowledge have been satisfactorily answered. The four questions are: "Can you read and write?" "Do you give all you can to the church?" "Have you brought another into the Christian fellowship?" and "Do you live at peace with your neighbors?" The same questions are then asked of the congregation. If these questions are satisfactorily answered by the candidate and corroborated by the congregation, he is received into the church.

The Church of Christ in Angola is entirely self-supporting, and has its own missionary projects, reaching out to untouched areas, supporting a missionary work among the contract laborers on Angola's coast. Our job in Angola, therefore, is to train the leaders for the church, to assist in the operation of the schools and to maintain the central hospitals where the village dispensers get their training and their supplies. But to do this task in Angola, where the church is increasing rapidly every year, an increasing number of missionaries is needed. Help for Angola may yet make at least one nation Christian—really Christian—in the next ten years.

A Christian Village School near Bailundo, Angola, Africa

Harriet Summerville—

Harriet Summerville is one of the missionaries of the Angola Mission of the American Board. Young (she graduated from Schauffler College in Ohio in 1941), she is a trained religious educator who teaches girls at the girls' high school in Dondi how to conduct church school classes and youth programs in their communities back home. She is an able woman, and through her contact with the women who will lead their communities when they have finished their training she has an influence up and down Angola. She is a person of warm human sympathy, too. When a missionary friend was recently to leave for furlough, she did not know what to do with a little African girl she had been caring for. Harriet Summerville offered to take on the responsibility for the African girl—in addition to all her other responsibilities, which are heavy enough for any normal person already. That is like her—where human values are involved, she can be counted on to be interested. But the people of Reidsville, North Carolina, already know this. Harriet Summerville is their missionary, doing an important work, and doing it well, today in Angola. Miss Summerville is the project of our Reidsville Church.

* * *

Sr. Henrique Kapinala—

Sr. Henrique Kapinala is a music teacher at Currie Institute, Angola. His name does not appear in the personnel list of the Angola Mission, but he is paid out of the American Board contribution to the General Work of Currie Institute.

He is an exceedingly able teacher and a fine Christian man. His children, who are now nearly grown, all show promise of being excellent leaders. He is in charge of the general musical activities of Currie and has organized and directed many fine choirs.

His home church is Bailundo; and during vacations he goes there and is active in the church program.

A couple of years ago he was selected for a special scholarship, and went to the Union of South Africa, where he took advanced courses in music at one of the leading institutions of that country. This trip did much to broaden him and greatly increased his effectiveness as a worker in Angola.

* * *

Rev. and Mrs. Maxwell Welch—

Max and Betty Welch, parents of four children, are missionaries in (Continued on page 11.)

Church Women at Work

With Emphasis on Missions

MRS. F. C. LESTER, Editor

840 Sunset Avenue, Asheboro, N. C.

Virginia Valley Rallies

Mrs. Cecil Whitlock of Winchester, new president of our Valley women, announces two Rallies in the Valley of Virginia Conference. It is hoped that every church in our Valley area will be represented at one of these meetings.

On Sunday, March 29, there will be a session at Mt. Olive (R) Church, located near Elkton, at 2:30 p. m., for the churches in the southern part of the conference. That evening at 7:30 there will be a Rally for the churches in the northern part of the Valley at the Winchester Church.

Mrs. David McKeith of Boston, whose husband is the executive vice-president (which means the "working head") of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, which includes all of our foreign work, will be the guest speaker. As you will learn from reading the article on this page about Mrs. McKeith, she has traveled widely and is someone on her own account, and not merely as "Dr. McKeith's wife."

* * * * *

Last News About North Carolina Rallies

Mrs. W. T. Scott, president of the North Carolina Women, reminds us that the North Carolina Rallies occur next week. The schedule is as follows:

Monday, March 23—Sanford District, Southern Pines;

Tuesday, March 24—Asheboro District, Union Grove;

Wednesday, March 25—Henderson-Raleigh Districts, Chapel Hill;

Thursday, March 26—Greensboro-Burlington Districts, Burlington;

Friday, March 27—Halifax District, Hebron.

The Rallies will begin promptly at 10 o'clock, and expect to adjourn at 3:30 p. m. Lunch will be served by the host church at a nominal fee.

As stated in the article about Mrs. David McKeith, which you will find on this page, she will be the guest speaker. She will also conduct a "Buzz Session" (question and answer period) concerning our foreign mission work in the afternoon.

Other features of the program will be information concerning the recently started Church Building Fund Campaign, by Mrs. W. E. Wisseman, a representative of the national committee, and a report from the Missions Council meeting in Cleveland by Mrs. W. T. Scott, entitled, "Is North Carolina Listening?"

MRS. DAVID McKEITH.

Mrs. McKeith to be Rally Speaker

"We are the only truly fortunate people on the earth today and should simplify our lives to make the lives of others a little easier," says Mrs. David McKeith, Jr., of Boston, Mass., leading Congregational Christian lay woman, speaking from a wide background of travel and knowledge of other lands. She will speak at the North Carolina and Valley of Virginia Rallies, places and dates for which are given elsewhere on this page.

In 1944 Mrs. McKeith visited the Near East, including Greece, Turkey, Syria and Lebanon, with her husband, Dr. David McKeith, Jr., executive vice-president of the American Board of Foreign Missions, who was making an official tour of Africa and the Near East. She has made several trips to Europe and lived for a while on the continent with headquarters in Italy. She also has visited widely in South America.

In Mrs. McKeith's tour of the Near East, she was deeply moved by the patience and fortitude of the people of Greece, carrying on under distressing circumstances, as well as by that of the hundreds of thousands of Arab refugees clustered in tiny tent villages.

Mrs. McKeith, in 1950, was state chairman in Massachusetts of the Ecumenical Register of Church Women, a program to enlist the Protestant women of the United States in a movement for world Christian unity.

The daughter of Congregational Christian missionaries, Mrs. McKeith spent her childhood in Puerto Rico, where her father and mother, the Rev. and Mrs. O. J. Scheibe, were at work. Later, Mr. Scheibe was pastor-at-large for the Southwestern areas of the United States. Miriam Scheibe McKeith, therefore, comes naturally by her deep interest in the Christian enterprise.

After graduation from Pomona College, Mrs. McKeith taught school for a period in California before going to the University of Chicago for further study. She later did Religious Education work in the South Shore Community Church of Chicago. It was there she met and married Dr. McKeith.

* * * * *

Eastern Virginia Board Meeting

The executive board of the Eastern Virginia Woman's Missionary Conference met recently at the Suffolk Christian Church, with the president, Mrs. Garland Spratley, presiding. Mrs. H. S. Hardecastle, secretary, reported every member of the board present. Mrs. Millard Stevens, chairman of Christian Family Life, led a most impressive devotional. Mrs. G. C. Brittle, the superintendent of the Waverly District, Mrs. Ray Gordon, superintendent of the Suffolk District, and Mrs. J. Everette Neese, superintendent of the Norfolk District, reported on the work of their districts and presented suggestions for the program for the spring district meetings.

The theme chosen for the meetings is "Is It Nothing to You?" Miss Pattie Lee Coghill, educational secretary of the Southern Convention, sent a telegram confirming Miss Hil-da Thiem of Micronesia as the guest speaker for the Eastern Virginia District meetings. The Superintendents'

(Continued on page 10.)

A Page for Our Children

MRS. R. L. HOUSE, Editor, Southern Pines, N. C.

Interesting Facts About Presidents of the United States

Since much has been said and written recently about the Presidency of the United States, the following facts about some of the Presidents may be of interest, not only to children who read this page, but to the parents of many of them, as well as others:

George Washington, John Adams, Thomas Jefferson, James Madison, James Monroe, John Quincy Adams, Andrew Jackson, Martin Van Buren, and William Henry Harrison were Presidents born in what was not the United States at the time of their birth, but a part of the British Empire.

Theodore Roosevelt was the youngest President to assume office, being only 42; William Henry Harrison was the oldest, 68. Garfield died the youngest, at 49; John Adams lived the longest, dying at 90.

Except Buchanan, all Presidents of the United States were married. Married twice were Tyler, Fillmore, Benjamin Harrison, Theodore Roosevelt, and Wilson. Washington, Madison, Jackson, Buchanan and Harding had no children. John Adams was the father of a President, and William Henry Harrison was the grandfather of one.

John Tyler, Millard Fillmore, Andrew Johnson, Chester A. Arthur, Theodore Roosevelt, Calvin Coolidge and Harry Truman become Presidents through the deaths of elected Presidents.

The President of the United States, by tradition, is a civilian, and hence not permitted to wear a uniform representing any branch of the national service. He has a cabinet only by custom as established by President Washington, the Constitution making no provision for a cabinet. He cannot be arrested, not even for a serious crime, and no court may subject him to its jurisdiction. Only when impeached is he subject to judicial process.

The President of the United States lives in the White House, rent free, but there is no law to cover this concession. The law merely grants him the use of the furniture and other effects belonging to the United States and kept in the Executive Mansion.

I am planning to pay a courtesy visit to the present President just after Easter, and I will tell you something about it then.

ACTIVITIES AT REIDSVILLE.

(Continued from page 2.)

On Sunday night, March 22, President L. E. Smith of Elon College will bring the message; and on Sunday, March 29, Palm Sunday, Superintendent Wm. T. Scott will bring the evening message.

On Thursday night of Holy Week, known to some of us as Maundy Thursday, there will be a celebration of the Lord's Supper in the church, and on Easter Sunday morning there will be a sunrise community service at the Reidsville Congregational Christian Church, with all the other churches of Reidsville participating. Following this service, the young people of our church will meet together for a fellowship breakfast.

There will be no evening service on Easter Sunday, but on the following Sunday, April 12, at 7:30, the Elon College Choir will present a sacred concert, which is being looked forward to with high anticipation.

OUR RESPONSIBILITIES TO THE CHURCH IN ANGOLA.

(Continued from page 6.)

organization. There is great shortage of printed material. There is African talent for these jobs but they need direction and advice.

Africa has many diseases and if the cure of the sick is not to be left to the magician and the herbalist we must have more medical personnel, both for direct service and in training African medical assistants, nurses and midwives. In all this the intelligent interest and prayerful co-operation of the home folk is urgent. We can be joyful and praise God that we have a gospel to give and to implement. But let us keep in mind the injunction of our Master, "Feed my sheep."

CHURCH WOMEN AT WORK.

(Continued from page 9.)

Forum in the afternoon, will reaffirm, "It Is Something to Us."

Mrs. W. B. Williams, president of the Woman's Missionary Convention, told of some of the actions taken at the Mid-Winter Meetings in Cleveland, regarding themes for the coming year. Mrs. W. V. Leathers, Literature chairman, spoke of an attractive demonstration used at the meetings in Cleveland.

The Waverly District meeting will be held March 31, at the Waverly Christian Church; the Suffolk District meeting will be held April 1, at the Cypress Chapel Church, and the Norfolk District meeting will be held at South Norfolk on April 2.

* * * * *

Did You Know?

Following are some unreported news items gleaned by your editor at the Southern Convention Women's Board meeting on March 10:

Mrs. W. V. Leathers, treasurer of the Convention women; Mrs. Cecil Whitlock, president of the Valley women, and Mrs. W. T. Scott, president of the North Carolina women, attended the Mid-Winter Meetings in Cleveland. They went along with Mrs. W. B. Williams, our Southern Convention women's president.

At this same Meeting, the above-mentioned Mrs. Williams was made a member of the executive committee of our National Women's Fellowship.

Mrs. Bayard Buckham of Oakland, California, is the new president of the National Women's Fellowship, and we are joining with other state groups in helping to pay her expenses to the World Congregational Meeting in Scotland in June.

Our own Mrs. W. T. Scott hopes to accompany her husband to that great meeting. (We warn you, Della, we will expect some first-hand reporting for this page!)

Mrs. W. B. Williams, Mrs. Cecil Whitlock and Mrs. W. T. Scott attended the recent Southeast Regional Meeting in Avon Park, Florida.

The Burlington Council of Church Women, of which Mrs. Henry Robinson, our Interdenominational Cooperation chairman, is president, sponsored observances on the World Day of Prayer, not only in white and Negro churches, but even in the mills of Burlington.

The churches of Chapel Hill, in February, as the result of a "brain storm" on the part of Mrs. Richard L. Jackson, had an "African Safari," with stops that included study of Africa, the movie, "Cry, the Beloved Country," a panel discussion by experts, and the observance of the World Day of Prayer.

Youth at Work in the Church

REV. MAX VESTAL, R. 1, Asheboro, N. C.

Virginia State-Wide Youth Rally Suffolk Christian Church March 21-22

Featuring: Nick Piediscalzi, National Pilgrim Fellowship President, and the Elon Radio Players, presenting "Release," a Lenten play.

Spaghetti Supper—Over-night in homes of young people.

Attend church with hosts and hostesses on Sunday morning.

* * *

North Carolina State-Wide Rally Elon College March 29

Featuring: Nick Piediscalzi, National Pilgrim Fellowship President, the Elon Radio Players, presenting "Release," a Lenten play, and a visit to the Christian Orphanage.

Bring sandwiches for supper.

Entertainment by Elon Singers.

* * * * *

Mr. Cudic Speaks at Liberty

The senior youth group of the Liberty Congregational Christian Church had as its guests on March 8, the Henderson young people. Mr. Cudic, who is a D. P. from Germany, was the guest speaker. He has been in this country for three years, having been sponsored originally by the Fuller's Chapel Church. He is now a member of the Henderson Christian Church, and at present is the assistant manager of the Charles Store in Henderson. Mr. Cudic stressed the difference in the way in which Christians accept their trials and tribulations and the way in which those who have no faith give up completely and seem not to care whether they live or die.

* * * * *

Relax With Max

Hope all you young folks will plan to attend the State-Wide Rallies in whichever state you live. They will be well worth while. The national president of the Pilgrim Fellowship, Nick Piediscalzi, will be at both rallies. The Elon Radio Players have been working hard on the Lenten play which they will present at each rally. And, of course, each rally will have special features of its own, which I am sure you will want to go find out about.

President Nicholas Piediscalzi

"I find as I travel over the country meeting with many of our young people that 'teen-agers' are seeking something more than excitement and good times. They are seeking for a mature faith to live by. They are seeking themselves. They are searching for God." This from Nicholas Piediscalzi, president of the Pilgrim Fellowship, the national youth organization of the Congregational Christian Churches. Nick, as he is widely known, will speak at the two State-Wide Rallies to be held in Virginia and North Carolina this week and next.

NICHOLAS PIEDISCALZI.

Born in Chicago, of Italian-American parents, Nick attended the public schools of that city before going on to Grinnell College, where he graduated in 1952. He expects to enter Yale Divinity School this fall to start his theological training.

Feeling that churches should avoid the temptation to build newer and better edifices in order to sponsor more parties for young people, he believes the true purpose of the Christian Church is "to join men in redemptive fellowships where the living Christ is met face to face and heart to heart. . . . A church must always bring people into a living relationship with God and serve the religious needs of the community."

MISSIONS AT HOME AND ABROAD.

(Continued from page 8.)

Angola, in their second term of service. As with most missionaries, they spent a good part of their first term in language study. Like other Angola missionaries, they found this was quite an assignment. Missionaries in Angola must learn to write and speak both Portuguese (the official tongue in Angola) and Ovimbundu (the language of the African people they serve). The Welches came through all right, and in between times they found it possible to do a heavy schedule of "regular work," too, which was necessary because of the shortage of American mission personnel.

The work in Angola comes naturally to the Welches.

Before they went to Angola in 1947, they had served rural parishes in Massachusetts and Maine. Both had studied rural church work at Bangor Seminary. When they applied for an American Board commission they were therefore assigned to Angola, where the church, a huge and thriving organization, is a rural church, and in some cases a church of the open air.

Max and Betty are "down Mainers." Both were born in Maine, and bred in Maine. Max is a graduate of Bowdoin, Betty of Farmington. But they have made the transition to Angola well, and have been working in Galangue since 1948, first as junior missionaries (to the Sam Coles as seniors) and then, since 1950, as the missionaries in charge. On furlough in the U. S. today, they look forward to returning to Angola and the various enterprises of the Galangue school, kindergarten, as well as church work. Among their plans: The development of a program of visual education for the whole mission area.

Max is the kind of person that people like to talk to—and Africans discovered this fast. They walk miles to talk over their problems with him. They welcome him to the villages when he goes on his tours. But when he talks about the church they listen, for they know that, as with them, it is with him a first love.

In Max and Betty Welch we are represented in Angola today. Would that there were many others like them.

"If you can't go, you can send the gospel through your gifts."

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE, D. D.

"Jesus Is Crucified"

LESSON XIII—MARCH 29, 1953

MEMORY SELECTION: "God commended his love toward us, in that while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us."—Romans 5:8.

LESSON: Matthew 27:32-44, 54.

DEVOTIONAL READING: Romans 5:1-11.

It is difficult to write anything new about the Cross of Christ. Certainly, thanks be unto God, it is not necessary. The Cross of Christ is one of those things which in God's providence is old, very old, but ever, ever new. It was more than an event in time, it represents an eternal process. Even as it revealed the awfulness of human sin, and the awesomeness of divine love, so does it symbolize the eternal heartache of the Father for his children, and his unwearied effort to save them from their sins. It is a revelation of the divine plan for saving the world, and a declaration of the power of vicarious suffering to accomplish God's purpose.

As the writer of these "Notes" was reading again and again the words which constitute today's lesson—and only a few of the verses that cover the Crucifixion scene are printed in the text—he was impressed by the faces and folks around the Cross. And because they represent types or attitudes today, he wants to call attention to them. They might be listed in groups, each beginning with the letter "C."

For instance, there were the Cruel. Jesus had been sent to the Cross by the calculated cruelty of the leaders of Israel. With deliberate enmity and diabolical cunning, they finally had the sentence of death pronounced upon him. Their cruelty brought suffering and death upon an innocent Man. It is so today. There are those who deliberately bring cruelty upon their fellowmen. Apparently without any regard for the rights or feelings of their fellow-men, they seek their own pleasure and profit and and preeminence, bringing devastation and even death upon their fellow-men. This is done both at individual levels and on large scales.

Then there were the Callous. Take for instance the Roman soldiers—and this is no indictment of soldiers as a group. Here was a man, dying on a cross, suffering unspeakable agony, and even as he suffered and died, they were callously "shooting dice" for his garments! That seems unbelievable, but today there are thousands of people who, although they would not deliberately inflict cruelty on others, are callous to the sufferings of others, both near at hand and far away.

The Contemptuous were there too. Some of those who passed by railed on him, wagging their heads, making fun of him, cynically suggesting that if he really were the Son of God, he would come down from the Cross. Even the chief priests and the scribes and the elders joined in this contempt and cynicism. "If he be the King of the Jews, let him come down from the cross, and we will believe on him." Perhaps this contempt was as hard to bear as the cruelty itself.

The Cautious were there. "And they sat and watched him there." These words could apply, of course, to the crowd in general. But it appears that they refer to the soldiers who were responsible for the decree of execution. This apparently was no ordinary man. He would bear watching. He might do something after all. Or his fanatical followers (they did not seem so fanatical at the moment) might make a last-minute effort to rescue their Leader. So they were on their guard, "they sat and watched him there." So likewise there are always those who are cautious when great issues are at stake. And they see to it that nothing comes of great efforts and great causes. They are the guardians of the status quo, the defenders of vested interests and special privilege.

As might be expected, the Curious were there. A great crowd followed the soldiers and the prisoners as they made their way out of the city to the "place of the Skull," Golgotha. Human nature has some queer quirks. When there is an execution by hanging or electrocution, the warden of the penitentiary has more, many more applications for admission than he can possibly grant. Why should any normal person want to see another man hung or electrocuted? In the presence of the world's suffering, all that some folks do is to ask questions about or raise problems concerning it.

There were some Conscripted there too. As the procession moved along, the Master, worn out by the ordeal of the night, and broken down by the weight of the heavy Cross, fell beneath the load. Immediately, the soldiers commanded a man named Simon to carry the Master's Cross. Thus was symbolized that universal phenomenon whereby the innocent have to suffer for the sins of others. But because we are all bound up in the bundle of life, it is ever thus, and will be world without end. The penalties of the sins of others often fall upon the innocent, and men are conscripted to bear the crosses of others.

The Contrite were there. Luke tells of at least one man, who was impressed by what he saw. And it brought a change of heart to him. Himself on a cross (he turned to the Master and asked that he might be remembered when the Master came into his Kingdom. He was a symbol of that great multitude which no man can number, who at the Cross have seen the awfulness of their sin against society and the Saviour, and have asked for forgiveness and pardon. Thus did the hymn-writer phrase it:

When I survey the wondrous Cross
On which the Prince of Glory died,
My richest gain I count but loss
And pour contempt on all my pride.

Were the whole realm of nature mine,
That were a present all too small;
Love so amazing, so divine,
Demands my soul, my life, my all.

And finally, the Concerned were there. There stood by the Cross the mother of Jesus, and other women. The disciples were there, although they were somewhat removed. When the Master said, "I thirst," there were those who offered him drink. Indeed, long before this, there were those who, trying to lessen the agony of the ordeal on the Cross, had offered him an opiate, a ministry of love. Everybody was not Callous or cruel, or cynical or contemptuous, or curious or cautious. There were those who cared. There were those who had compassion. Today, too, there are those who care. Like Paul of old, they seek to know the fellowship of his sufferings. The sorrows and sins of the world lie heavy upon their hearts, and they give themselves to the service of their fellowmen in vicarious and sacrificial service.

Based on "International Sunday School Lessons;" Copyrighted 1951 by Division of Christian Education, National Council of the Churches in the U. S. A.

"My Brother's Keeper"

A Sermon

By REV. RICHARD L. JACKSON,
Chapel Hill, North Carolina.

TEXT: Genesis 4:1-16.

Out of the dim and ancient past comes to us the story of Cain and Abel. Here is a narrative which perhaps for a thousand years, was passed from one generation to another by word of mouth before finally it was written down. If our main concern is historical truth, we will have to pass this story by—it comes from a period which predates a concern for historical accuracy. But, if our chief concern is with verifiable human experience, then this account is as relevant to our modern world as when it was written.

There is one thing which everyone who reads this story must carefully note. It is this: there is no indication that Cain intended to commit murder. Thus far in the narrative, there is no such thing at death—at least for humans. Cain, in his anger, struck Able, but who can say that he wanted to kill him. When Able fell, Cain may have been astonished that his brother lay so still, for so long a time. Why didn't he get up? What had happened that this motionless body no longer spoke or moved? He may have seen sheep die, but was it possible that he had killed his brother?

The tragedy of this first murder may be repeated in every act of un-governed sin. The result often out-runs what was intended. "I didn't mean to do it," we hear Cain cry, but it's too late. For Cain, as well as sometimes for us, anger got loose and knew no bounds.

You and I, perhaps are not guilty of physical murder, although that sometimes happens too. We commit murder in more subtle ways. We pass on a choice bit of gossip—then we are startled to read the headlines that someone committed suicide. We helped to slander and we read in the paper that the husband and wife we smeared have been divorced.

Damage often goes beyond the obvious deed. A famous criminal lawyer once said, "I have never killed anyone, but I frequently get satisfaction by reading the obituary notices." The trouble always begins in the sermon on the mount. "Whoever is angry with his brother is already a murderer."

It is not clear just why Cain hated Able. It probably was not because of anything Able did at all—but because of what he was. In comparing himself with his brother, Cain felt a sense of inferiority—he was frustrated because his brother was a better man than he was—and he struck out blindly and bitterly at the superiority that shamed him. Not a person alive today has not, at one time or another, for this same reason, felt hostility and resentment toward another. It is very common in my profession.

When Cain had done his worst to Able, the fact remains: he could not offense, through violence in act or word that satisfied our desire for revenge. Perhaps it was only a sneer, a contemptuous look, an ignoring act that struck home like a poisonous arrow. Where are they now? these victims of the evil we did? To what grave of undeserved suffering and sorrow have we brought them?

Or suppose, we never intended evil—sometimes our stupidity and carelessness, our blundering folly can hurt others—can cause wounds too deep for healing. Our clumsy words, our careless indifference, our concern about ourselves alone. Edward Roland Sill has a poem which I believe is worth quoting in this connection. It is called "The Fool's Prayer."

The royal feast was done; the King sought some new sport to banish care,
And to his jester cried: "Sir Fool, kneel now, and make for us a prayer!"
The jester doffed his cap and bells, and stood the mocking court before;
They could not see the bitter smile behind the painted grin he bore.

Frank Meacham Plans a Day with the African Staff of the Chikore Station get away from God. To his guilty conscience came the question "Where is Able, thy brother?" Over and again it came. And Cain, seeking to evade responsibility, finally hit upon an answer that he could give, "Am I my brother's keeper?"

Sooner or later men must recognize that any act of imprudence or cruelty to another human being, any failure to respect the rights of another—brings them face to face with the judgment of God. "Where is thy brother?" That's the question. The unrepentant, guilty will always try to evade it. But that is a question which every man needs to face squarely.

Who among us has hurt some other human being? We may have not dealt the mortal stroke that Cain gave Able, yet in some way we have destroyed a part of another's happiness—or his well-being. It may have been through sudden anger that has lashed out against some supposed

He bowed his head, and bent his knee upon the monarch's silken stool;
His pleading voice arose, "O Lord, be merciful to me, a fool.
No pity, Lord, could change the heart from red with wrong to white as wool;
The rod must heal the sin; but Lord, be merciful to me, a fool.
'Tis not by guilt the onward sweep of truth and right, O Lord, we stay;
'Tis by our follies that so long we hold the earth from heaven away.
These clumsy feet, still in the mire, go crushing blossoms without end;
These hard, well-meaning hands we thrust among the heart strings of a friend.
The ill-timed truth we might have kept—who knows how sharp it pierced and stung?
The word we had not sense to say—who knows how grandly it had rung?
Our faults no tenderness should ask, the chastening stripes must cleanse them all.
But for our blunders—oh, in shame before the eyes of heaven we fall.
Earth bears no balsam for mistakes; men crown the knave and scourge the tool that did his will; but Thou, O Lord, be merciful to me a fool."

(Continued on page 14.)

The Orphanage

J. G. TRUITT, Superintendent

Dear Friends:

A matron and eight girls went to town this morning to purchase shoes and other things, getting ready for our first showing of our Easter program. The Rev. Tucker Humphries and his Reidsville Church have invited us to Sunday evening supper, and to a presentation of our program at 7:30 o'clock. It will be a lovely trip for the children. It is a good thing for any church to do. It gives the boys and girls something different to look forward to, and it gives them good training. Miss Foster has been busy keeping up with the work in the office and preparing the children for this program. We feel that this is one of the very constructive pieces of work being done here.

Tuesday of this week, I spoke to the Evangelical and Reformed ministers of this district in their Burlington church, which by the way is a large and progressive church, with Dr. Harvey A. Fesperman as their minister. They served a lovely dinner, and were most cordial in their reception of my message.

At the same time I had to send Mr. Wagoner with Charles Ward, our crippled boy, to Gastonia for a check up. His doctor found him making good progress and asked that he come again in four months. I wish you knew Charles. It is hard to keep him off of roller skates and to make him "be careful." We like his pluck and rejoice in his progress, only we just do not want him to get hurt.

It really is wonderful how happy these children are, and how they adjust to the routine of life here. They are permitted to go for rides with their sponsors any Sunday afternoon. They are permitted to have a weekend with their sponsors once each quarter. They are given plenty of time for play and fun. They have a television set in each building, gifts of good friends. They have good food and good clothes—and by the way, let me here thank so many of our friends for the funds with which to buy children whom they are sponsoring clothes, and also for the good used clothes that come in to us here.

Yesterday I added some balls and gloves to our baseball equipment, and how happy the boys were! Too bad it was raining in the afternoon, and it is still raining today. But eventually the sun will be shining, and we shall hear the sounds of baseball, and what sounds they are. Even the players participate with not only their hands and feet, but also with their heads and lungs! And those who look on are just as loud—I hear somebody say, "including the superintendent"! Well, that is the way the boys like it, and so it is.

Ben Johnston, one of Uncle Charlie's fine children—his really own son, I mean—sent us a check for $50, folded into that March Monthly Calendar. Ben is a fine young man, mayor of the old town of Hillsboro, N. C., and a worthy son of a great father.

Look at the report attached hereto, and you will find some most interesting things. We greatly appreciate what people are doing for us. We need your help, and needing it, know how to appreciate it.

JOHN G. TRUITT,
Superintendent.

REPORT FOR MARCH 12, 1953.

Commodities for the week.

Mrs. R. C. Luke, Hampton, Va., Clothing.
Miss Lizzie Boyd, Halifax, Va., Quilt.
Morrisville Christian Church, Clothing.
Burlington, First Christian Church, Clothing.

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

Amount brought forward $3,167.49
Eastern N. C. Conference:
Bethel $ 13.40
Eastern Va. Conference:
Liberty Spring S. S. $ 20.00
Norfolk, First 15.43
N. C. and Va. Conference:
Apple's Chapel S. S. $ 48.45
Belew Creek S. S. 6.00
Elon College 246.00
Long's Chapel 9.57
310.02

Western N. C. Conference:
Pleasant Union S. S. $ 14.79

14.79

Virginia Valley Conference:
Linville S. S. $ 1.33
New Hope S. S. 6.51

7.84

Total $ 381.48

Grand Total $3,548.97

Special Offerings.

Amount brought forward $2,937.18
Richard L. Daniel, Jacksonville, N. C. $ 5.00
Mr. & Mrs. John B. Stratford, Graham, N. C., in memory of Mrs. James P. Harden 5.00
Mr. & Mrs. Nelson Jackson, Tryon, N. C., in memory of Mrs. Elizabeth M. Evans 10.00
Philathea Class, Reidsville Church 10.00
Mrs. M. C. Faucette, Asheville, N. C. 15.00
Ben G. Johnston, Hillsboro, N. C. 50.00
Senior Class of Pleasant Ridge Christian Church, for Thurmond Arnold 5.60
Miss Celeste Penny, Raleigh, N. C. 15.00
Special Gifts 155.00

$ 270.60

Grand Total $3,207.78

Total for the week $ 652.08

Total for the year $6,756.75

"MY BROTHER'S KEEPER." (Continued from page 13.)

The room was hushed, in silence rose the King and sought his gardens cool
And walked apart, and murmured low, "Be merciful to me, a fool."

As we seek to rationalize our own thoughtlessness, our carelessness and self-centeredness we too cannot escape the voice of God, "Where is Thy

MEMORIAL GIFTS

"Instead of Flowers"

Dr. John G. Truitt
Christian Orphanage
Elon College, N. C.

Dear Dr. Truitt:

Please acknowledge the enclosed $..... as a memorial gift sent to the Christian Orphanage in lieu of flowers in memory of:

(Name of Deceased)

(City)

(Date of Death)

(Survivor to be Written)

(Address)

Name.....

Address.....

brother?" Why is your back turned toward him? What will do you now? In deep contrition go to him—before you go to the altar—go to your brother. See whether by God's mercy that which you struck down can be restored.

It may be that God will ask us a more drastic question than he asked Cain.—particularly those of us who have responsibility in and for the fellowship in the Christian church. He may ask not only for those we have hurt, but concerning those whom we have neglected.

Several months ago at a YMCA conference at Camp New Hope, a German refugee student made this profound observation. "To deliberately kill another man is murder. But just to sit by and let him die when you could have done something to help—is this not murder also?" What about the thousands of refugees pouring out of iron curtain countries, seeking freedom, who have left behind them everything they had. Arriving in Western Europe, they become wanderers and refugees on the face of the earth—not knowing where the next meal is coming from. "Where is thy brother?" What of the hundreds of thousands of Koreans whose homes have been destroyed, their families broken—destitute, homeless, friendless. "Where is thy brother?" What of the Indians—facing famine again this year because the rains have failed.

Have you ever seen a refugee—filthy, ragged, forlorn, stopping now and then to pick the irritating insects from his body. At night they sleep on the streets—and many of them—the lucky ones—sometimes don't wake up in the morning. During the day they go from house to house—not asking for money—just a little bit of food in their bowl—enough to keep the pangs of hunger from gnawing for a few hours. Worst of all is the dullness in their eyes—a dullness that shows that hope has almost gone—no-one cares anymore. That pathetic dullness in their eyes says more than all the rags or the filth. They're hungry for food and clothing—but they're even hungrier for someone to show a little kindness and compassion. They can't help but notice that when sleek, well-dressed people approach them, they instinctively turn their faces away and hurry by. Outside the United States, there are millions of people like that today. A European, at a recent church council, posed this question to his American friends, "How can a rich man enter the Kingdom of God?" For before we are permitted to enter the door, we must answer the question, "Where is thy brother?"

Do we Christians realize how much of Jesus' time was spent in doing good things for people? Sometime when you have a few minutes to spare, pick up the book of Mark and see how many times it says that Jesus had compassion on people—see how many times he laid his hands on them—yes, he laid his hands on them, on the beggars, on the loathesome, disease ridden lepers. It was a law of that land that whenever anyone had leprosy, he must cry out, as he walked along, "Unclean"—and no one in the world would touch him—no wife, or friend. Yet Jesus put his hands on them.

The question God posed to Cain that day, "Where is your brother?" waited a long time for an answer. But the final answer came in Jesus Christ.

C. F. Von Weizsacher says that the thing that makes love really Christian is all a matter of seeing. He reminds us of the parable of the Good Samaritan. A man lies by the roadside half beaten to death. Two brothers pass and do not help him. A third, a stranger, sees this man needs help. Everything is in the seeing. For once the stranger has seen in his heart the others plight, the help comes almost of itself. Every one knows full well he would have to help if he were to see the distress, and we look the other way just for this reason. Love is an attitude of the soul which keeps ones eyes and heart open to see the needs of our fellowman.

The word "care," as Franklin Cole has pointed out, is a strange little word. As a noun, it signifies a worry or a trouble we'd like to get rid of. A care is something which presses down on us and cramps the full expression of our personalities.

But the verb "to care" describes a different range of felling and experience. Those who care do not cramp their personalities; they release them. They enter new words of faith and knowledge and friendship by the very sentiment of caring about them.

Paradoxically, but truly it can be said that the way to overcome cares is to care. We can overcome the noun by practicing the verb. Why is that true? Because most cares are self-centered. If we could remove all cares that revolve around our little lives, our family and neighborhood, there wouldn't be many left. Cares involve us in a small circle—and the center of the circle is always ourselves.

The way to enlarge the circle—and the way to relieve our cares, is to care about other people. By thus extending our interests, our sympathies, and our activities, we practice not only good mental therapy, but we practice good Christianity as well. And when caring in deep enough, it leads to sharing.

The Mission Board of our Southern Convention is asking every church at this Lenten Season to make a sacrificial offering for others. These gifts will be used to give material and spiritual aid to people who are in desperate need at home and abroad.

Most churches are already giving through their conference apportionment for this work of rehabilitation, relief and Christian Missions. But who is giving enough? How wonderful it would be—if each church would make such an Easter offering—over-and-above—the conference apportionment this year.

Some denominations, during Lent, ask people to give up something. We don't do that generally—it seems like such a negative approach. It's far more important that we become aware of the crying need of the world and that we open our hearts and our pocketbooks to send help to our brothers in the far corners of the world.

Halford Luccock, in a recent article in the Christian Century, comments that it is often said of a person that his bark was worse than his bite. Wouldn't it be wonderful if it could be said of us, "His bite was worse than his bark." It is so easy to spend our time barking—talking about all the evils around us, how bad things are. "The main trouble with barking is if one barks ferociously enough, it brings the delusion that one has actually done something about it. That's the danger of high sounding resolutions at church gatherings. There are so many resounding barks and so few real bites."

Christians have talked about love and compassion for others long enough. Now is the time to act—by making some real sacrifice during this holy season and sharing what we have with others. The question raised by Cain "Am I my brother's keeper?" has only two possible answers. Cain answered it in one way, Jesus in the other. Today the question is being asked us. How will we answer it?

"Our Ministries in Christ"

THROUGH

The Missions Board Budget for 1953

HOME MISSIONS—"To help make America a Christian Nation"

CONVENTION HOME MISSIONS	$ 39,394.00
Salary Aid to Pastors serving 22 Churches	$ 14,694.00
Building Aid to 13 Churches	24,700.00
NATIONAL HOME MISSIONS	14,750.00
(Serving Our Entire Nation)
Church Extension and Evangelism	$ 7,000.00
Franklinton Center	1,000.00
Ministerial Relief Division (Superannuation)	5,000.00
Department of Higher Education	1,000.00
Christian Education Division	500.00
American Missionary Association	250.00

FOREIGN MISSIONS—"Serving the People around the World Through Our American Board"

INDIA	$ 8,323.00
Prakash Bhonsle	$ 1,230.00
Robert and Marie Fairbanks (Reidsville Project) ..	1,600.00
Dr. and Mrs. Edward Riggs	1,500.00
Higher Education Scholarships	105.00
United Theological College of West India	200.00
Evangelistic Work through Mr. Deva Pragasm and the Gospel Band (Gibsonville and Shal- low Ford)	463.00
Bible Woman (Rosemont S. S. and Shallow Ford)	225.00
Vadala Station	3,000.00
AFRICA (Angola)	2,580.00
West Africa Mission (EVA and NCVA Young People)	$ 600.00
Harriet Summerville (Reidsville Project)	1,280.00
Sr. Henrique Kapanala (Currie Institute)	300.00
Rev. and Mrs. Maxwell Welch	400.00
JAPAN (Leona Burr)	1,800.00
GENERAL FUND (F. M. Service in the Entire Work)	9,665.00
RELIEF AND RECONSTRUCTION	1,000.00

NOTE: There will appear in The Christian Sun in this and following issues descriptions of the work being done through our gifts as indicated above.

The CHRISTIAN SUN

ORGAN OF THE SOUTHERN CONVENTION OF CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES

In Essentials Unity — In Non-Essentials, Liberty, — In All Things, Charity

VOLUME CV

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, MARCH 26, 1953

NUMBER 13

"The Cross of Christ"

In the Cross of Christ I glory,
Tow'ring o'er the wrecks of time;
All the light of sacred story
Gathers round its head sublime.

When the woes of life o'ertake me,
Hopes deceive and fears annoy,
Never will the Cross forsake me;
Lo! it glows with peace and joy.

When the sun in bliss is beaming
Light and love upon my way,
From the Cross the radiance streaming
Adds more luster to the day.

Bane and blessing, pain and pleasure,
By the Cross are sanctified;
Peace is there that knows no measure,
Joys that through all time abide.

In the Cross of Christ I glory,
Tow'ring o'er the wrecks of time;
All the light of sacred story
Gathers round its head sublime.

—Ithamar Conkey.

News Flashes

Rev. Melvin Dollar was a visitor at the office of publication this week. He was in Richmond checking material for the Rosemont building program.

Superintendent Scott and President L. E. Smith are attending the Virginia Valley Central mid-year conference at Bethlehem Church on Thursday, March 26.

Mr. Norman L. Beal, of Charlotte, N. C., brother-in-law of the managing editor, died early this (Thursday) morning of heart failure. No funeral arrangements had been made when we went to press.

The many friends of Rev. G. C. Crutchfield, pastor of the Bethlehem Church of the North Carolina and Virginia Conference, will regret to learn that he is a patient at the Alhambra County Hospital, Burlington.

Beverly Hills Church in Burlington has launched a campaign to raise $10,000 on the erection of their church building. The church now has seventy members of the church and 130 in the Sunday school. Rev. W. W. Snyder is the pastor, and he and his church are to be commended on the splendid progress being made at this church.

Zion Church, a new church organized near Burlington three years ago, is making fine progress under the leadership of Fred H. Wrenn, student pastor. Mr. Wrenn is a ministerial student at Elon College. The Sunday school and church membership are growing, a new heating system has been installed in the church, and there is a fine promise for this work.

Rev. Dwight Jackson will assume the duties as pastor of the Haw River Congregational Christian Church on Sunday, March 29. The Rev. Jackson comes to us from a pastorate in Benson, Minn. During the past six months, J. Earl Danieleley, of the Elon faculty, has served as interim pastor. During this time three new members have been received by letter of transfer. The people of the church have renovated the parsonage and put it in condition for the arrival of Rev. and Mrs. Jackson.

Suffolk Christian Church Presents Easter Program

On Sunday evening, March 29, at 8 o'clock, there will be presented in the auditorium of the Suffolk Christian Church a program of music, scripture and pageantry, entitled "The First Easter." Repeated from last year by request of a large number of people, there have been several changes and additions to the program. One of the outstanding scenes will be that of the "Last Supper." The presentation will be under the direction of Miss Gladys Yates. The several choirs of the church provide the music for the occasion.

Pleasant Ridge Lord's Acre Project

The pastor of Pleasant Ridge, Rev. Max Vestal, had asked at the morning service for volunteers to help sow the Laymen's Lord's Acre of oats. Early morning on Monday found Harry Smith, Howard Brown and Charlie Joyce busily oiling the farm machinery which had grown rusty over the winter months of idleness. The pastor was there to run errands with the help of Paul Joyce, Charlie's five-year-old son. Friendly bantering and laughter filled the cold morning air, until they were drowned out by the roar of the three tractors. Pulling a bog harrow, a disc harrow and finally the drill with the oats and fertilizer, the three tractors followed each other around the five acres of land which had been given by Joyce for the project.

All this work is just a part of the Lord's Acre project which has been adopted by the Pleasant Ridge Christian Church of the Western North Carolina Conference. In another field on his own farm, Herman Pell was also sowing on his Lord's Acre. Everett and Theodore Cox have already tilled the soil and planted the seed on the two-acre plot around the parsonage. Others are planning to give corn, wheat and other products which will be set aside from the planting. Two of the young men who operate a service station are planning to give the wages they earn from washing their first car on Saturdays. Others are planning to give the first hour's wages each week. They are following the idea which has been with the worshippers of God since the earliest recorded times—"Thou shalt not delay to offer the first of thy ripe fruits . . ."—Exodus 22: 29.

The Sunday school classes are also
(Continued on page 15.)

Rosemont Gives Reception for New Members

On Sunday, March 8, Rev. Melvin Dollar concluded his first year as pastor of the Rosemont Church. On this Sunday, thirty-two members were received into the fellowship of the church. Twenty-six of these were young people coming in through the pastor's class. During the past year 104 people have joined.

On Wednesday night, March 11, there was a reception given for all the people who had joined during the past twelve months. This was sponsored by the board of deacons, deaconesses, and junior deacons. A very large group attended, and the fellowship was enjoyed by all. A huge cake was prepared, with a candle stick upon it, signifying the first church birthday of the new members who had joined during the past year. Three of the senior deacons gave brief talks, expressing their appreciation for what these new people had meant to the church, and at the same time impressing upon the minds of those present the importance of each member accepting his individual responsibility in making the church what it should be.

During the past year the attendance for both the morning and evening services has more than doubled, thus greatly improving both the spiritual and financial status of the church. The church is in the midst of erecting an educational plant and the enlarging of the sanctuary. The educational plant will be completed by the last of April, and the sanctuary by mid-summer. Both the sanctuary and educational plant will be air conditioned throughout.

Church Building Fund Committee of E. N. C. Conference Meets

An important meeting of the Church Building Fund Committee of the Eastern North Carolina Conference was held at Henderson, N. C., on March 12. The meeting was called by Mr. I. H. Vickery, chairman, for the purpose of discussing ways and means of presenting the Building Fund Campaign to the local churches of this Conference.

It was decided that we ask Mr. W. K. Newman, National Director of the Campaign, to meet with representatives of all the churches in three district rallies. The committee thought well of this suggestion and three ral-
(Continued on page 10.)

Laymen and the Church . . .

J. Earl Danieley, Editor, Box 515, Elon College, N. C.

Western North Carolina Conference Plans Rally

The Laymen's Fellowship of the Western North Carolina Conference will hold a Rally at the Bennett High School Cafeteria, March 28 from seven until nine o'clock. The men of the Pleasant Grove Church are hosts for the evening of "Fellowship and Food."

The officers are planning an interesting program for the Rally. As a part of the program there will be group singing. The men of the Western Conference enjoy group singing and it is almost always planned as a part of the program. In addition to the group singing, there will be quartets which will furnish special music.

The Laymen's Bell will be given in recognition of attendance to the organized group with the most points: each member present counts 20 points, each member of the church or Sunday school who is not a member of the Fellowship counts 10 points, and each visitor counts 5 points.

* * *

Conference Rallies are an essential part of our Laymen's work; let us know of the plans for the Rally in your Conference.

* * * * *

Walter Graham Writes

This column has indicated that reader reaction is highly desirable. It is entirely fitting that the first letter which the editor received concerning this new column was from Walter A. Graham, Director of our National Laymen's Fellowship, of Pembroke, Kentucky. He indicates in his letter that he is very pleased to note that we now have a regular column in THE SUN. This quotation from his letter expresses the desire of many of us: "The program material . . . has been read with great interest. . . I hope that it will be used. . . ." The National Director has taken the first step; who will be the next one to offer material for this space or suggestions as to the use of this column? All correspondence with readers is appreciated.

* * * * *

The Laymen's Fellowship of First Congregational Christian Church of Durham, N. C., met Monday, March

23rd. Your editor spoke on the "Responsibilities of a Christian Layman."

Lakeview Holds First Service in Church Building

Lakeview Community Congregational Christian Church, on the Union Ridge Road, five miles from Burlington, used its new and first church building for the first time on Sunday, March 22. Rev. John G. Truitt, Jr., a senior ministerial student at Elon College, is the pastor of this church.

The Lakeview Church was started by the Mission Board in the summer of 1952. A survey was made by Mr. Truitt in June, a first service was held in a nearby school building in July and on August 24, 1952, the church was organized. A beautiful church site of approximately two acres was donated by Mr. C. R. Faucette of our First Church, Burlington. Plans were developed for a parish house and construction began on December 15. The structure erected will eventually be the educational building with the auditorium to the front. The present building provides a room for church services, seating close to 100, and there are five classrooms. The building is constructed of cinder block. The cost of the building was approximately one-half of what it normally would have cost because the laymen of the community did much

(Continued on page 10.)

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr
A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom as represented by the Congregational Christian Churches.
Our Principles

1. The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
2. Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
3. The Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
4. Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and church membership.
5. The right of private judgment and liberty of conscience is a privilege that should be accorded to and exercised by all.

Managing Editor John T. Kernodle

Departmental Editors—Convention, Wm. T. Scott; Missions, F. C. Lester; Women's Work, Mrs. F. C. Lester; Young People's Work, Max Vestal; Children, Mrs. R. L. House; Sunday School Lesson, H. S. Hardestel.

Institutional Representatives—Elon College, L. E. Smith; The Christian Orphanage, John G. Truitt.

Board of Publications—Duane Vore, Chairman, S. T. Holland, Secretary; R. C. Helfenstein, S. E. Madren, W. W. Snyder, G. D. Colclough, Treasurer, ex officio.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Year $3.00
Two Years 5.00

Published by the Board of Publications of The Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches, Inc. Printed every Thursday except the last in June and December by Central Publishing Co., Inc., Richmond, Va.

Entered as second-class matter at the Post Office at Richmond Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

General contributions should be addressed to the editor at Southern Pines, N. C., and should reach him by Wednesday of the week preceding date of publication.

Departmental material should be sent to the proper departmental editor, at the address shown on their page.

All other material and business communications except regarding subscriptions should be sent to the Office of Publication, 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond 19, Va.

The Christian Sun Subscription Blank

Subscription Price: 1 year, $3.00; 2 years, $5.00

Date 195 . . .

Dr. Wm. T. Scott, Supt.,
Elon College, N. C.

Enclosed find $ for which please send The Christian Sun
() 1 year, () 2 years — () New Subscription, () Renewal.

To

Address

Who is a member of Church

() Renew, () Enter my own subscription for () 1 year, () 2 years.

My Name

My Address

From the EDITOR'S Desk

Why Take Part in Evangelism?

Second of Three Editorials on Evangelism by J. EARL DANIELEY

In every walk of life there are motives that impel men to act; in some places a man either produces a certain amount of work or he loses his job; often we find men working tirelessly because they have important goals in mind. Thomas Edison often went without food and proper rest in order to give more time to his work. The question arises, do we have strong motives in the field of religion? Are there any really good reasons why we should spend our time being evangelists, telling others the "good news" of the Christ? If so, what are some of our motives?

When we identify ourselves with Christ and his Church we commit ourselves to the purposes and program of the Church. "If ye love me, keep my commandments." "... as my Father hath sent me, even so send I you." Every true Christian hearing this command will have the desire to obey it. Our first motive for participation in a program of evangelism is that Christ expects it.

Looking about us we see men living under many different circumstances and conditions. We are likely to feel, and certainly should feel, that these men might be happier and might do a better job of living if they knew more about the Christian faith which is ours. Thus our debt to our fellow-man calls us into action. Other men have labored, sacrificed and, in many cases, given their very lives that the gospel could be given to us; certainly we can do nothing less than our best to see that it is passed on to others of our own and succeeding generations.

The third motive is our desire for spiritual growth. If we are to grow spiritually, we must have spiritual food and exercise. The Christian life becomes more abundant when it is shared. As we divide what we have to share, God multiplies our blessings.

There are many other motives for participation in evangelism. The question is: do you have a personal motive which is strong enough to cause you to act?

An Irrefutable Argument

An Editorial by ROY C. HELFENSTEIN

Some prayers do not count for much, but the disciple James declared that always "the prayer of a sincere Christian has power."

To us the best argument for the efficiency of prayer is the memory of a prayerful father and mother. Their implicit faith in the power of prayer was vindicated by their consistent habit of prayer and by the beautifully contented lives that they lived. They believed that prayer could solve their every problem and master every situation. Regardless of losses, disappointments, betrayals, burdens, hardships, reverses, sorrows, failures, or troubles of any kind, they were always hopeful, trustful and cheerful; and in times of rewards realized, promises fulfilled, unexpected blessings received and prayers answered, their gratitude knew no bounds. God was as real to them as each of them was to the other. They knew "in whom" they believed and were confident that he would keep them and theirs and all that they committed to his care.

The radiance of their lives was clearly the evidence of the power of prayer.

We do not know just what their philosophy of prayer was, but we do know what their practice of prayer meant to them and to their home. It meant more than words can express.

There are many homes of the present generation which lack that indefinable and invaluable something that homes with praying parents have always had. If the parents in such homes would but strike the mystic coil of memory, they too might be able to recall that the secret of the happy home of their own childhood days was praying parents—a factor that the home which they themselves are making for their children does not have. Every child is entitled to the advantage of having praying parents.

Fortunate indeed are those who, today, do have the advantage of being brought up in homes that are blessed by praying parents.

The Church and Education In the Southeast

Abbreviation of an Address Delivered at the Southeast Regional Meeting

By DR. VICTOR OBENHAUS

A fellow passenger in a Tampa taxi pointed to a revival tent as we were passing by and said, "That kind of thing is passing out in the South. Young people of this generation are going to ask for something more intelligent and more related to the actual needs of themselves and their times."

In that observation lies a clue to much that is happening in the Southeast. Education may do away with some kinds of emotional revivalism—the question is whether it can also help people understand the deeper needs of our society for a genuine and wholesome faith. This, in a large measure, is the problem of our schools and colleges, but it is also the task of intelligent leadership in the churches. Church leadership and college leadership are, therefore, a part of the same concern. If the colleges through wise teaching can help young people realize that the fundamental problem of our time is a spiritual problem, then in turn our churches will have as their leaders, both lay and ministerial men and women who can give intelligent direction to the society around them. Incidentally, it will also bring to the colleges a quality of students which in turn will greatly enhance the total life of the colleges.

We have heard from many sides that the South must parallel the gains made in other parts of the country. Perhaps there is some truth in this, but it is also quite likely that many of the patterns and experiences through which other parts of the country have passed will be unnecessary for us. There is no need for our making the same kinds of blunders that other portions of the country have made. A wise and deeply understanding religious leadership can help us avoid some of the pitfalls and the unnecessary side journeys.

There is also a tendency to blame our faults upon particular agencies like the school or the church, each feels that the other has been at fault. We have heard something of that here in this conference. We must not overlook the fact that our problem is not simply a regional one—we are confronted at this time with a dilemma that has world proportions as well as national and local ones. We are confronted with an intellectual revolution, a cultural revolution. No group, school, church, public, government, or anything else, has fully accommodated itself to the nature of this revolution. We have met in such a conference as this to understand the role of the church in relation to this cultural-intellectual revolution, and particularly as it has affected one region of one nation.

Nor can we be so naive as to assume that any single formula will provide a consistent and uniform answer to a situation as diverse as that we confront here. For example, in our deliberations as a church body, we are confronted with a rural and urban variation. We are dealing with people of high educational level and of very little education. In our midst are some persons of substantial income and a good many of very low income. And obviously we have the whole situation markedly influenced by the fact that we are dealing with a bi-racial constituency. There are possibly still other variations. There is a common ground upon which we face all of these but we are aware that no single simple pattern, formula or idea will resolve them all at once. This makes the profundity of the Christian faith all the more significant as it provides men and women with a dimension and a resource which is adequate for anything so varied.

Let me illustrate what I mean from a situation that I know fairly well. Pleasant Hill Academy is one of the institutions of the Southeast which has been caught up in the revolution of which we have been speaking. It served a great need and served it well through some sixty-five years of its existence; it educated a large number of young people and sent them into society better equipped than they would otherwise have been. The American Missionary Association which sponsored and supported Pleasant Hill Academy has a long and magnificent record of this sort of activity. But at Pleasant Hill, as in many other places, private education was no longer needed. The pump had been primed for public education and now it has become a public school.

There remains, however, the church, crafts program, and the farm in the Pleasant Hill Community Center still surviving. The question before those now working in the remaining institutions and those responsible for the administration through the A. M. A. and Church Extension Division is "What is the role of such a project as this in our time?" These institutions had a purpose and it was definite. They were to provide education for people who could not have it in an earlier day. Is there a comparable need in our time?

It is my conviction that there is a comparable need though it may not be as evident or as dramatic. Hewing out a frontier is something dramatic and visible. Providing a basis for genuine and meaningful living for those after the frontier has been won is just as important though perhaps not as visible. Ministering to people's minds and hearts is actually more important than cutting down trees and building buildings. We founded schools and assumed that what was needed was simply to give an education. The rest would take care of itself. That we know is not the case. It is much more important to know what kind of education people are getting and whether their needs are being met.

Underlying the intellectual-cultural revolution of our time is the theological revolution. One of the foremost questions before us, as a denomination, is whether we can interpret intelligently to our people the nature of the revolution which is taking place in theological thought. If the religious life of our people is capable of coping with the far-reaching and all-engulfing movements around them we could make a distinctive contribution.

But again it must be repeated this is not a problem simply of the Southeast region. This is as true in the Corn Belt, the Wheat Belt, and every other "Belt." The issue for us is whether our religion can enable people to understand the basic needs of individuals and groups who find themselves in a greatly changed and world situation. How, in other words, can a good life be built in a local community? We have seen small communities disintegrate and life become drab and meaningless for lack of intelligent understanding of group life and the role of the individual in our contemporary society.

(Continued on page 11.)

The Church Building Loan Fund and The Southern Convention

By REV. JESSE H. DOLLAR

The Congregational Church Building Society is one of the oldest agencies of the Congregational Christian Churches, being established in 1853. Through the years it has been the helping hand of thousands of our churches in the erection of church buildings, parsonages, educational buildings, etc. At present its assets total $3,500,000.00, all of which is loaned to churches of our fellowship throughout the United States. While there has been no concerted effort to increase these funds in many years, the needs have multiplied with the growth of our country until we find ourselves faced with the absolute necessity of increasing the Loan Fund or failing to meet the demands of the present and future of our churches.

WHY THE PRESENT CAMPAIGN FOR $4,500,000?

The population of the United States has increased more than twenty million since 1940. More than half of the total population has moved since 1940. Thousands of new communities have sprung up as a result. Thousands of our church members are among those who have moved, and many of them located in these new communities where other thousands belong to no church at all. They must be ministered unto and brought to Christ. Church building from 1940 to 1950 was difficult. We could not keep pace with changing situations; building materials were scarce, and "Wars and rumors of wars" increased costs of materials and labor. The present demands for aid to build new churches in new communities, to enlarge old buildings and educational facilities, is staggering. Let Mr. W. K. Newman, Secretary of the Church Building Society, speak. He says: "In the last two-year period we counted, which is now about one year old, we turned down applications for $2,400,000. At the last meeting we were able to appropriate loans for (only) $60,000 and had to turn down applications for $150,000." We may add that of the $60,000 appropriated at the last meeting, almost half of it came to the Southern Convention. That may answer another question for you.

HOW HAS THE SOUTHERN CONVENTION PROFITED?

We asked that question and got this answer: "The total aid furnished to white churches in North Carolina since the origin of the Building Society comes to $178,808.68. The total aid furnished to Virginia Churches (including Rock Springs at Arlington) $90,056.21." This makes a grand total of $278,864.89 which the Church Building Society has invested, through loans and grants, in the churches of the Southern Convention. These facts amaze all of us! Equally amazing is the fact that $90,650.98 of the above amount of aid was in grants, which are not re-payable as long as the receiving church remains a Congregational Christian church. To indicate that these loans have been placed well, and have been the means of life to these churches, there is, at present, a balance of only $42,358.60 outstanding against the more than one-quarter of a million dollars advanced to the churches of the Convention. As we have repaid loans, the money has gone out to other churches to help them as it helped us. You see, therefore, that building churches is a co-operative effort—many thousands of people have a part in building a local church.

WHAT CHURCHES IN THE CONVEN- TION HAVE BEEN AIDED?

In Virginia we have Richmond, Windsor, Hunterdale, Christian Temple, Second Church and Bayview, Bethlehem (Disp.), Damascus, Newport News, Portsmouth and others. In North Carolina, we have First Church (Greensboro), Ashboro, Chapel Hill, Raleigh, Durham, Winston-Salem, Ashville, Tryon, Albemarle, Burlington, Union, Fayetteville and many others. You may judge for yourself, from your own knowledge of these churches, whether the Church Building Fund has been a real source of life and strength in the Southern Convention. It wants to do more—much more, but the Building Fund dollar is just like the one you have in your pocket—it is worth only fifty cents on today's buying market.

WHERE IS THE MONEY NEEDED?

Many churches in the convention want to enlarge and improve their present facilities. Others need and want parsonages. And we must build new churches in many of the "hot spots" of population in the Convention. Let us look at a few situations: North Carolina had an increase of 490,306 in population from 1940 to 1950, or 13.7 per cent. Alamance County, where our work is centered, grew from 42,000 in 1930 to 71,000 in 1950. We have two new churches in that county to take care of a population increase of 31,000, which is the best we have done anywhere in the Convention. The population of Burlington increased 101.3 per cent from 1940 to 1950. We have one new church there. Fayetteville doubled its population in the ten-year period. We have one church there—a new one. Henderson's population increased 43.8 per cent in ten years. We have one church there. Raleigh had an increase of 40 per cent in her population, yet we have only one church in that Capital City! Winston-Salem had an increase of 10 per cent in population, and is one of the largest cities in the State, yet we have only one church there. Durham had an increase of 18.5 per cent in population, yet we have only one church in that city of 71,311. Sanford increased her population 101 per cent while we still try to serve with one church there. Except as noted, we have not added a new church in these thriving cities in ten years while most of them are surrounded with "feeder churches" of our Fellowship. This means that, by and large, our people moving into these cities are going into other churches or are dying spiritually.

In Virginia, we find an increase in population since 1940 of 640,907, or 23.9 per cent, and have not organized a new church in that ten-year period. Let us look further: Winchester had a growth in population of 14.4 per cent, and Harrisonburg had an increase of 23.3 per cent. The area greatest affected by increase in population is in Tidewater. Norfolk had an increase in population of 47.9 per cent from 1940 to 1950. Newport News, 14.3 per cent; Portsmouth, 57 per cent; South Norfolk, including recent annexation, 50 per cent plus. Nansemond County had an increase of 10.8 per cent; Norfolk County, 178.9 per cent; Princess Ann County, 111.6 per cent. Yet, we have not had a church "born" in this entire area in more than ten years! Need we ask,

(Continued on page 14.)

News of Elon College

PRESIDENT L. E. SMITH, Elon College, N. C.

Southward

For the past two years it has seemed advisable that I make a trip through South Carolina, Georgia, and Florida in interest of Elon College. Many of my friends accuse me of going on a pleasure jaunt. I admit there is a bit of pleasure in a visit to Florida during the winter months. There are also plenty of opportunities to render significant services for the College. There are between 50 and 60 Elon Alumni living in the southern part of South Carolina, Georgia, and the entire State of Florida. To keep in touch with these alumni of the College, is to keep their interest alive.

On this particular trip, I had a very pleasant visit with Mr. and Mrs. Horace Phillips formerly of Suffolk, now of Hardeeville, South Carolina. These are good friends of the College and contribute regularly to its support.

As I parked my car in Savannah, Georgia, someone hailed me on the street. I looked and it was J. L. Wilson, formerly of Burlington, now a successful businessman in Savannah. Mr. and Mrs. George Parkerson, formerly of Norfolk, Virginia, are now living in Savannah. Mrs. Parkerson, nee Nettie Tuck, is a graduate of Elon College. George grew up in the Third Christian Church in Norfolk. He is district superintendent for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. This is a very good job. I had a very pleasant visit in their home and a very delicious lunch. In Jacksonville, Florida, we have three young attorneys who are alumni of the College. They are C. C. Howell, Jr., Clark Toole, and W. H. Maness. Mrs. Toole is also a graduate of the College. Bill Maness assembled a group of the alumni and their friends at his home on Ortega Boulevard for the annual alumni banquet. Bill and his wife served a dinner to about sixteen people. We had a very good meeting for the College. There was enthusiastic interest in the present campaign.

In Orlando I talked with some alumni over the telephone but did not have the privilege of meeting them personally. I did form the acquaintance of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence D. Long of Winston-Salem. Mr. Long is a brother of Claude Long, President of the National Bank of Burlington, and was the private secretary of the late W. N. Reynolds of Winston-Salem.

While visiting Hardeeville, South Carolina, Horace Phillips asked me to see his friend, Joe Lykes at Tampa. Mr. Lykes is the owner of the Lykes Steamship Company, advertised as one of the largest concerns of its kind in the world. Mr. Lykes is a very striking personality, an astute business man, a loyal churchman, and a friend of the privately endowed colleges of our country. It is good for Elon College to know him and his corporation.

Mr. and Mrs. Castor, Mr. and Mrs. McDonald, Tampa, Florida, are also interested in the College. Mrs. Castor and Mrs. McDonald are sisters of Mrs. A. L. Hook. Also, I had the privilege of meeting Mr. W. C. Franks, a brother of Tommy Franks, who was a school mate of mine. Mr. Franks is a retired government employee and expressed interest in the College.

In St. Petersburg I had the privilege of an introduction to Mr. and Mrs. Roy D. Judd of Norwich, Conn. These are new friends of the College and are interested in its welfare. Also, I had the privilege of renewing acquaintance with Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Jackson, formerly of New York, now of St. Petersburg, and the opportunity of a delicious dinner with them in their home.

Fort Myers, Florida, is a very beautiful city. I had the name of W. P. Franklin as an alumnus of Elon College. Mr. Franklin owns a large hardware store. I walked in the store and asked for Mr. Franklin. The clerk said to me, "Here he comes now." I spoke to him and asked him if he knew anything about Elon College. He said, "I know a lot about it. I was there at the beginning of the College. I was a student at Graham Normal Institute before Elon College was founded." I was the guest of Mr. Franklin for a tour through Thomas A. Edison Gardens, a most elaborate lay out. Before leaving he said to me he plans to remember Elon College in the disposition of his personal affairs. Mr. Franklin has literally built himself into the life of the city and community.

From Fort Myers I drove to Miami where I had the privilege of worshipping with Dr. and Mrs. Wiley Scott in the Community Church and a great church it is. The church was filled to overflowing and they heard a very excellent gospel sermon. Through the courtesy of Dr. Scott I had the privilege of meeting Mr. August Giger, a retired philanthropist, who, at the close of a conference, expressed interest in Elon College and the type of education that we are giving young people today.

In Pompano I had a conference with Joe John who is an extensive land owner in that part of Florida and who is half owner in a 28-acre tract of land. Elon College owns the other half. There is a semi-land boom in this section of the state and it seems now that the College may be able to retrieve the $10,000 invested in this land back in the late twenties. If this is possible, we shall be fortunate.

W. D. Browne and family live in West Palm Beach. Unfortunately, Mrs. Browne died about a year ago. Mr. Browne and nine children survive. The children are doing well. They are thinking of establishing a memorial for Mrs. Browne at the College. I made my home in their home at Elon College for three years while a student here.

At Palm Beach I visited the Biltmore Hotel, owned by the Taylor Brothers of Norfolk, Virginia and Palm Beach, Florida; also visited their place of business. They own the shipping line that runs from West Palm Beach to Cuba. At present they are building an ultra modern hospital at their original home, Sea Level, North Carolina.

I returned to the College Sunday afternoon, March 15. My record showed that I had made 28 calls in the interest of the College and driven 2,200 miles. On Monday morning I was in the office ready for hard work.

* * * * *

Apportionment Giving

During my absence no report was made of amounts received from Sunday schools and churches on the conference apportionment. I wonder if our friends realize that we are getting behind in our payments. The compiled report of two weeks makes a very good showing. The College is grateful for these contributions.

(Continued on page 10.)

Foreign Mission Projects Of The Southern Convention . . .

With Our Workers in India . . .

P. S. Bhonsle, Indian Educator and Leader

Prakash Shiwaji Bhonsle is an Indian educator and leader, the son of the Marathi Mission of the American Board, who is principal of the Bible Training School in Rahuri, India. Rahuri is a small town (7,000 inhabitants) near Ahmednagar, but the 60-year-old school enrolls 90 students from a wide area of western India. Through its graduates, both men and women, the school has a wide influence, too. Most of the students are at work before, during, and after, their education at the Bible Training School, in the villages of India. Mr. Bhonsle was orphaned while still a baby. He was adopted by an American Board missionary, who brought him up, made it possible for him to be educated, and who, as he says, "gave me life." While in America in 1950 he visited the missionary who had cared for him, Miss Nugent, now living in retirement in Canada. Of Prakash Bhonsle, the Congregational Christian News Bureau writes: "While his native tongue is Marathi, Mr. Bhonsle also speaks Hindi and most fluent English. He has been called by some of his friends 'Mr. Personality Plus,' for his contagious smile, gracious attitude and completely disarming friendliness make him an 'Ambassador without portfolio' of whom India can well be proud."

Robert and Marie Fairbank are Engaged in "City Work"

Robert and Marie Fairbank are missionaries of the American Board in Sholapur, India, near Bombay, engaged in "city work." Specifically this means that they run a hostel for Indian boys who work in the mills of Sholapur, visit the churches of the city and the area surrounding it, counselling with leaders, suggesting new ideas, keeping things running smoothly. It means also that Mrs. Fairbank helps run a social center in Sholapur, which has for many years been a place of influence and strength. Bob Fairbank has an additional job: secretary and associate treasurer of the Marathu Mission of the American Board. This is sometimes a full time job in itself. And in 1952-1953, when famine in the Sholapur area became acute, both the Fairbanks took time from their already busy schedules to help set up a famine relief distribution system, help get food which had been sent from America into the villages and towns of western India where it was very much needed.

Bob and Marie Fairbank come from widely different backgrounds. Bob is a fourth generation missionary, and was born in Sholapur. A graduate of Amherst (1920) and of Hartford Theological Seminary (1926) he worked in Vadala, a mission center not too far from Sholapur, immediately following his college training. When he returned to the U. S. for further study in 1923 and enrolled at Hartford, he met Marie Lively of Oklahoma, who had come from Park College to study at the Kennedy School of Missions. The Fairbanks were married in 1925 and that year were sent out as missionaries of the American Board together. The first years of their married life were spent in Vadala, where even then they had large responsibilities, Marie as manager of the school and baby welfare center, Bob as supervisor of the mission schools and the churches of the Vadala district.

Now back home in Sholapur, they are hard at work. And the work that they are doing counts in today's India. They are training leaders for the morrow (Marie recently turned over the direction of the social center in Sholapur to a young Indian) and in virtually all they do they contribute to a growing, vital, self-supporting church. Mr. and Mrs. Fairbank are projects of our Reidsville Church.

Ed and Frances Riggs Practice Medicine!

Dr. and Mrs. Ed Riggs are young missionaries of the American Board, who have had enough experience in the few years since they sailed (singly) to China in 1946 to make a lesser couple's hair curl. Both have had medical training. Both are fourth generation missionaries. Both were sent in 1946 to help reopen the Shaowu Mission of the American Board, closed for years by World War II, 250 miles inland from the China coast in the frontier city on the River Min, Shaowu. They met, therefore, in Shaowu, and having worked together decided they liked and would be married. They were so married in 1948. Shortly after their marriage they decided that they should push the influence of the mission into the villages surrounding Shaowu, and moved to a village several miles from the city and from the mission hospital, which was left in the charge of Chinese national workers. Then came civil war, which broke virtually around their heads, which forced them to move to the coastal city of Foochow, and eventually from China altogether. But their desire to be of use to the cause of the kingdom of God continued unabated, and they were assigned to India, to a station which needed just such a couple.

In India Ed and Frances, and their two children, were assigned to Manamadura, a station where the American Board, in cooperation with Leprosy Missions Societies, maintained a hospital and dispensary for sufferers from Hanson's disease, as people with leprosy are now called. They were assigned to public health work, too, which was a first love with both. Before long, however, they felt that the work of the station could be handled pretty well without their full time help, and they moved to an Indian village out from Manamadura, where there was a small hospital and where there was tremendous need for medical information and aid. They are at work there today—living close to the people—sharing their skills and their concern—and raising two lovely children, too. And the amazing thing is that with Ed and Frances Riggs, each of these things is being done as though there was nothing else to do. In rural India, they are making their lives count.

Higher Education Scholarships for India's Future Leaders

Everyone who comments on the situation in India today says that it may be only five years more that are available to representatives of the west, of Christianity, to make their impact on India. After that doors may be closed—as doors are closed in China today.

(Continued on page 12.)

Church Women at Work

With Emphasis on Missions

MRS. F. C. LESTER, Editor

840 Sunset Avenue, Asheboro, N. C.

Eastern Virginia Rallies

Mrs. Ray F. Gordon, vice-president of the Eastern Virginia Woman's Missionary Conference, sends the following information about the Rallies in that area.

Dates and places are as follows:

Waverly District—Waverly, Church, March 31.

Suffolk District—Cypress Chapel, April 1.

Norfolk District—South Norfolk, April 2.

The theme of the Rallies is a very intriguing one, "Is It Nothing to You?" The guest speaker will be Miss Hildegard Thiem, whose picture you will find on this page along with information concerning her most interesting life.

The program for the Rallies will be:

Call to Worship.

Worship Service.

Roll Call of Societies.

Recognition of Visitors and Ministers.

Appointment of Committees.

Address by Miss Thiem.

Special Music and Offering.

Hymn and Benediction.

Lunch.

Hymn and Prayer.

Superintendents' Forum: "It Is Something to Us."

Business.

Closing Meditation.

It is hoped that every church in the Eastern Virginia area will be well represented. They are reminded to turn in names of delegates to the Woman's Convention at their Rally.

* * * * *

Miss Thiem Will Be Rally Speaker

A skilled linguist, speaking French, Spanish, German, English and Palau, Miss Hildegard Thiem, German-born Christian missionary under the Liebenzell Mission of the U. S. A., is on her way back to her work in the Palau Islands in the South Pacific.

She will be the guest speaker at the Eastern Virginia Women's Rallies, scheduled to be held March 31, April 1, and April 2.

Miss Thiem finished her linguistic studies at Wiesbaden and Frankfurt, and was commercial correspondent and interpreter in French and English for a time, after which she was governess to the children of a Dutch baroness, a job which included German lessons.

In 1931 Miss Thiem entered the Liebenzell Seminary in Germany for missionary training and after graduation was ordained and sent to the Palau Islands in Micronesia. This was in 1935, and she did evangelistic work as well as teaching until 1940, when she returned to Germany for furlough.

MISS HILDEGARD THIEM

Prevented from going back to her work in the South Pacific by World War II, Miss Thiem worked for over six years in an Evangelical Fellowship Church in the Province of Hesse. The latter part of this enforced absence from her mission field was spent at Liebenzell serving the mission in various ways, including teaching. Her main task while there was the translation of the New Testament into the Palau language.

In 1952 Miss Thiem reached the United States, and has been at the Schooley's Mountain, New Jersey, headquarters of the Mission Home Eben-ezer. That summer Miss Thiem took courses at Boston University, and in the fall of the same year made an extensive trip into the middle west speaking widely in the company of two other missionaries, one of whom was on her way to Manus Island.

Miss Thiem expects to leave for her work among the Palau Islands in May. In the Truk area the Liebenzell missionaries will be working in cooperation with missionaries of the American Board.

* * * * *

"The Cross of Calvary"

A Worship Service by

MRS. RAYE V. KNIGHT, Chairman of Spiritual Life, Eastern Virginia Conference.

With a Cross as the focal point of the worship center, and to a background of very soft music, the leader reads:

"God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have eternal life."

Soloist sings first verse of "The Old Rugged Cross."

"And when the sixth hour was come, there was darkness over the whole land until the ninth hour. And at the ninth hour Jesus cried with a loud voice, My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?"

"... Jesus crying with a loud voice, said, Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit; and having said this he gave up the ghost."

"Now the centurion and they that were with him watched Jesus, when they saw the earthquake, and the things that were done, feared exceedingly, saying, Truly this was the Son of God."

Prayer: Our Father and our God, we come to Calvary again to view the Cross of Jesus and to seek to understand as never before the meaning of the love which was poured out for the world. We pray for the valor of true faith and the power of loving spirit, that we may be worthy followers of Christ. Amen.

Meditation on the Cross: "The hill of comfort is the hill of Calvary. The house of consolation is built with the wood of the Cross. The temple of heavenly blessing is founded upon the riven rock, riven by the spear which pierced Christ's side. No scene in sacred history ever gladdens the soul like Calvary's tragedy."

"Is it not strange, the darkest hour
That ever dawned on sinful earth,
Should touch the heart with softer power
For comfort, than an angel's mirth?
That to the cross the mourner's eye should turn,
Sooner than where the stars of Bethlehem burn?"

(Continued on page 15.)

A Page for Our Children

MRS. R. L. HOUSE. Editor, Southern Pines, N. C.

An Unusual Island and Its People

There are many interesting and unusual places in the world. One of these is the island of Bali located east of Java in the West Indies, and containing 2,000 square miles. This island has the world's slimmest women, fattest pigs, has no drunkenness, no beggars, and no child marriages. The island is also interesting because each inhabitant attends to his own business.

On fan-shaped Bali live a million inhabitants, who are never in a hurry and who spend much of their time praying to pagan gods and outwitting pagan devils. Every act of every inhabitant is a service to the temple gods, and every spot is considered holy and every peaceful hour is sanctified to holy life.

The economic and social life of the island is guided and controlled by the religious beliefs of the natives. No one is rich and no one is poor. Crime is rare, but when a trial is necessary it is conducted in the council yard between midnight and day, and usually on a moonlight night, for there is no other light.

The history of the island is shrouded in mystery. The Hindus from India invaded the place about 700 A. D. and the records of the island date from that time. It remained an Indo-Javanese colony until 1518 when Java lost control to the leaders of Brahmanism, Buddhism and Hinduism. As a consequence of this mixture of peoples and religions, the island is a land of strange beliefs and many barbaric customs.

The inhabitants, both men and women, are skilled artisans, and for centuries they have made a cult of beauty. Highly specialized in designing, their craftsmanship in silver, stone and wood is known and highly prized in many parts of the world. Not all natives, however, make their living as craftsmen. Some are farmers who cultivate rice as the major crop on land that is scientifically irrigated. Cattle are raised, but for export only, since the only meat eaten is pork.

In recent times attempts have been made to modernize Bali, but the inhabitants prefer to carry on as they have done for centuries. It is quite possible that if they if they were subjected to the ways of modern man, in time they would become extinct.

BUILDING FUND COMMITTEE MEETS.

(Continued from page 2.)

lies were set up for our Conference, to run on three consecutive nights, each of these to be dinner meetings. The time and place of these meetings were as follows:

Liberty (Vance)—Tuesday, March 24, at 6:30 P. M.

Sanford—Wednesday, March 25, 6:30 P. M.

Wake Chapel—Thursday, March 26, at 6:30 P. M.

These meetings were set up in these three districts in order that every church in the Conference would have the opportunity of attending one of these rallies. It was decided that a letter should go out to every pastor and Sunday school superintendent in the Conference, urging their support. It was suggested that every church be represented by the pastor, Sunday school superintendent, chairman of the Finance Committee, president of the Women's Society, president of the Young People's Society, and any other key persons.

The program for these rallies was as follows:

Devotions—Fred Register.

Film: "Basis of Blueprint."

National Building Fund Campaign —W. K. Newman.

Southern Convention and Eastern North Carolina Conference — I. H. Vickery.

Discussion.

Two new members were named to the Building Fund Committee: J. Earl Parker and Will L. Wood.

Members of the Committee present for this meeting were: I. H. Vickery, chairman, Fred Register, L. L. Vaughan, W. T. Scott and W. A. Grissom.

HOLD FIRST SERVICE.

(Continued from page 3.)

of the construction work. This new group has a fine spirit of solidarity and consecration. The church has been a great blessing to the community.

At the first service held on Sunday morning, March 22, there were eighty persons for Sunday school and 110 for morning worship. The first sermon was delivered by the pastor, Rev. John G. Truitt, Jr. In the afternoon, at 3:00, the members of the church together with a large representation from nearby Congregational Christian Churches of the area filled the building for the service of consecration. The pastor was in charge of the service and other parts taken were as follows: invocation, Rev. Kenneth D. Register, pastor of the Union Ridge Church; historical sketch of the Lakeview Church, Dr. Wm. T. Scott, representing the Mission Board; scripture lesson by Matt Currin, Jr., ministerial student at Elon College; a solo, "Bless This House," Ronnie Black accompanied by James Clyburn, music students at Elon College; sermon, "Consider the Church," by Dr. John G. Truitt, Sr.; act of consecration, Rev. W. W. Snyder, pastor of the Beverly Hills Church and president of the North Carolina and Virginia Conference; prayer of consecration, Rev. H. E. Robinson, pastor of the First Church, Burlington. Those present for this service were much impressed with the opportunity and with the facilities we have at the new Lakeview Church.

Heartiest congratulations to John G. Truitt, Jr., and his people in a job well done.

W. T. S.

NEWS OF ELON COLLEGE.

(Continued from page 7.)

The amounts received for 1953 are from comparatively few Sunday schools and churches. When contributions begin to come in our reports will be more inspiring and more helpful.

Previously Reported $1,512.50

Eastern N. C. Conference:

Liberty (Vance) $ 50.00

New Hope 3.00

Fayetteville 2.50

Eastern Va. Conference:

Norfolk, Bay View $ 20.00

Newport News 400.00

N. C. and Va. Conference:

Ingram S. S. $ 36.04

Pfafftown 13.00

Beverly Hills, Burlington

S. S. 12.08

Virginia Valley Conference:

Mt. Olivet (G) $ 5.00

Winchester S. S. 8.34

554.96

Total to date $2,067.46

Youth at Work in the Church

REV. MAX VESTAL, R. 1, Asheboro, N. C.

The Young People of both Virginia and North Carolina are meeting in their Annual Rallies within the next few days. It is hoped that there will be full reports of these occasions for this page.

If there is any truth in the statement that there is always a lull before a storm, there should be a veritable storm of material sent in by the young people of our Convention and Conference Fellowships within the next few weeks.

* * * * *

"Relax With Max"

Maynard Wells of Semora, N. C., sent in the jokes for today's issue. Thanks, Maynard.

* * *

AN IDEAL CHURCH MEMBER.

A horse trader once went to Henry Ward Beecher and said: "Mr. Beecher, I have a good family horse I want to sell you. He is a good carriage horse; he works double with any horse and on either side of the tongue. In short, he is a good all-round horse and a good team worker."

Mr. Beecher replied: "My friend, I can't buy your horse, but I would like to have him as a member of my church!"

* * *

MARK IT FRAGILE.

A woman was mailing her family Bible to a brother in a distant city.

"Does it contain anything breakable?" asked the postal clerk.

"Just the Ten Commandments," she replied.

* * *

JUST BRAGGING.

John, six, and Sue, five, were visiting their grandparents who had just bought a television set. Pointing to the aerial, John said, "Granddaddy, what is that?"

"Silly," piped Sue, "don't you know? They put that up to let folks know they have television."

The law of harvest is to reap more than you sow. Sow an act, and you reap a habit; sow a habit, and you reap a character; sow a character, and you reap a destiny.

—G. D. Boardman...

THE CHURCH AND EDUCATION IN THE SOUTHEAST.

(Continued from page 5.)

There are some hopeful clues and some genuine pioneering going on along these lines. This disintegration of individual and community life was going on at a rapid pace in the state of Montana. Recognizing the importance of this process for the rest of the nation the Rockefeller Foundation provided a substantial sum of money to enable a corp of workers to understand what all of this meant. Baker Brownell and his colleagues went into the State of Montana to see what could be done toward bringing back the wholesomeness that had gone out of so many communities and out of individual lives as well. That story is told in a number of places. Perhaps the best popularization of the account is "Small Town Renaissance" by Richard W. Posten. Brownell's own philosophy of the venture is to be found in his "The College and the Community."

Theologians have generally been pretty suspicious of sociologists and vice versa. The issues in which we in the Southeast are concerned are both theological and sociological. One of the pioneering fronts along which theologians are working is that of the meaning of the word community and the significance of the concept community for individual welfare. But significantly this is what the sociologists are doing, too. All of a sudden we have awakened to the importance of the small group and the local fellowship for individual wholesomeness. Perhaps our very special concern in religious circles with individual salvation has obscured the fact that all individuals are a part of social groupings. There is no such thing as a socially unconditioned person. Salvation, thus, may be personal but unless it recognizes the group life and the part the "community" plays our efforts as religious leaders are doomed to severe restriction.

Now where does our Congregational Christian denomination fit into all of this? As we heard Douglas Horton state last night, a part of our genius as a denomination stems from recognition of the importance of the congregation. The congregation is the small group—it is the company of those who can help to make us what we might be because of all the benefits accruing from membership in a warm, understanding and searching fellowship.

As a denomination, likewise, we have always been willing to experiment, to adapt ourselves to changing situations. Great religion has always helped men break out of formal patterns and to heed the admonition and counsel of the Holy Spirit which can be captured by no established forms. We need churches then which can demonstrate what a true congregation might be. This involves a willingness to experiment and to appropriate to ourselves the gains made along many lines by the pioneers of social thinking.

Prominent in our deliberations here has been the question whether our college students will take an active part in the life of our churches. Actually we have been rather critical of the colleges because they have not trained young people to take that kind of an active part. I believe the answer lies in the area we have just been discussing. College students, in their various collegiate disciplines, have come to know that one of the pioneering edges of our society is the study of the relation of an individual to his group. Colleges all over the country are awakening to the importance of the small community. It is becoming the new laboratory of the Social Sciences for many colleges and universities. This is not something foreign and extraneous to the church—this is the new frontier of the church. There is hardly time here to spell this out fully. Let it suffice to say that this is a part of the theological revolution of this century.

Thus because of our traditions of pioneering along so many lines we can wish for our denomination that it might grasp the meaning of these new developments and appropriate to itself the many new resources available. As a ministering church here are new tools for our service.

Rev. Dorothy Ann Weaver, a Vermont Congregational Christian minister and Minister of Education in the Jericho Congregational Parish, has accepted the post of Director of Children's Work for the Congregational Christian State Conference of Illinois, having begun her new work on March 15.

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE, D. D.

"The Living Lord"

LESSON I—APRIL 5, 1953

MEMORY SELECTION: "I am the resurrection, and the life."—John 11:25.

LESSON: Matthew 28:1-10, 16-20.

DEVOTIONAL READING: John 11:17-27.

What We Do Not Know.

There are some things which we do not know that are connected with the Easter Story, and we might as well face this fact. We do not know, for instance, how an angel could roll away a stone, and talk to women so that they could understand what he was saying. We do not know what became of the body of Jesus. We do not know how a man who was dead on Friday was alive again on Sunday morning. We do not know how this man could suddenly appear to his friends, talk with them, have company with them, and then suddenly disappear. We do not know by what strange process the physical body of Jesus was transformed into this kind of spiritual body. The gospel writers themselves did not know, or if they knew, they did not tell us. We are in the presence of the unexplained, and the unexplainable. Christians have to admit that there are some things about the Resurrection of Jesus that they do not understand and cannot explain. And so far as the writer of these Notes is concerned, these things do not bother him. For there are some things that we do know, and these things are the things which count.

What We Do Know.

We know that something happened between Friday evening and Sunday morning, something which cannot be explained, but something which cannot be explained away. On Friday evening the friends of Jesus lovingly dressed the body of their dead Friend and laid it in a tomb in a garden. A deputation of Roman soldiers saw to it that the tomb was sealed and that guards were posted to make sure that nobody molested the body. And yet, when a group of women, and later two of the disciples of this man, came to the tomb, it was empty—there was no body there! That empty tomb is a solid, stubborn historical fact. Try to explain it away! Did the Roman or Jewish authorities steal the body? If they had, think with what fiendish glee they would have produced it when the disciples of Jesus began to preach that he was alive again!

Did the disciples and the friends of Jesus, in spite of an armed guard, steal the body of Jesus? The critics and cynics ask us to swallow a lot of bunk and baloney, but that is going too far! For these disciples went out and preached that their Master was alive again: they had seen him, they had talked with him. They not only made the fact that he was alive again the central theme of their preaching—they were willing to risk their lives and to die for it. Is it likely that they would do this if they knew it was all a ghastly lie, if they had the dead body of Jesus!! We do know, therefore, that the tomb was empty, and not by natural process.

We know, too, that there was a revolutionary change in the disciples after that first Easter Sunday morning. The thing that happened had changed them from cringing, cowardly, discouraged, defeated men into courageous, crusading, conquerors. How account for that change? We can account for it only by the fact that they were convinced that he was alive again—they had seen him, more than one of them had seen him, they had seen him many times, they knew he was alive! And with great power and persuasiveness they witnessed to this fact.

Then, of course, we know that there is the Christian Church, the Church of Christ—a great and enduring reality in the world. It is the greatest institution on earth, greatest in numbers, in wealth, in influence, in mission. And the Christian Church rests on the foundation of faith in Jesus Christ as being alive again and forevermore from the dead. The Church of Christ itself is the most impressive witness to the fact that Jesus Christ came alive from the tomb. My dear friends, there are some things about the Easter Story that we do not know, but there are some things that we do know. And the things we do know are far more important than the things we don't know. Things that we experience are far more important than things we cannot explain.

What We Can Believe and Hope For.

Because of what we know, there are some things we can believe and hope for. Space forbids anything but a brief mention of them. We can believe and trust God and Christ. For Christ kept his word and his promise here, and he can keep it everywhere and anywhere down the line. We can believe the Scriptures—they are authentic. We can trust the universe—it conserves personality and moral values. We can believe in immortality in the sense of personal continued existence. We can believe that because Christ lives, we too shall live. We can believe that our dead who die in Christ are with him and alive forevermore. We can hope for a reunion with those who have gone before, in the Father's house of many rooms.

What We Should Do.

It was the living Christ, into whose hands the Father had given "all authority," who commanded his disciples "to go into all the world and make disciples of all the nations, baptizing them into the name of the Father and the Son and the Holy Spirit, and teaching them to observe all things" that he had commanded them. Easter brings confirmation. It also brings a commission. It brings comfort. It brings also compulsion.

Based on "International Sunday School Lessons;" Copyrighted 1951 by Division of Christian Education, National Council of the Churches in the U. S. A.

WITH OUR WORKERS IN INDIA.

(Continued from page 8.)

What should be done, if this be true, in India, today, so that five years from now the Christian movement will be on as strong an Indian basis as possible? The answer seems obvious: get busy raising up Indian leaders who will carry on the work of the Church and of the missions which we have begun and carried along so far. And the American Board, in our name, is working on this obvious answer. It is training men and women for leadership, in the churches and mission centers. It is sending more young people to school, selecting those who show promise and putting funds aside to make their higher education possible. Scholarship aid helps mightily in this process of course: oftentimes the most able young people in India (as in the U. S. A.) are the ones least capable of financing their own education and training.

But India needs men and women trained in Christian institutions for other reasons, too. Observers of Indian life say that unless there is raised up for Indian public life a group of leaders who cannot be corrupted, who will hold the interests of the multitudes close to their hearts, the future of India as an independent nation is itself in jeopardy. Higher education scholarship aid builds a stronger India for the morrow. And a strong India will also be a friendly India to a cause Christians hold dear: the increase of freedom among men.

United Theological College of Western India

United Theological College of Western India, in Poona, near Bombay, is a union institution, in which we Congregational Christians share with two other mission groups. It enrolls about 24 students (about half of them women) who serve as pastors and teachers in some cases as professors following their graduation. Two of our missionaries serve on the staff. The course of instruction is similar to that of a seminary in the U. S. A.—Greek and Hebrew are taught, as well as church history and Bible—but there is a difference. In India, colleges are affiliated with central universities; Poona's Theological College is affiliated with the University of Serampore, which conducts the annual examinations. As a consequence, most persons taking the examination fail to pass. But a failed B. A. is almost as good as a satisfactorily passed B. A. The same goes for B. D. degrees. Poona has a pretty good record for work, however. One of its students in 1951 received the highest ranking of all students from all other 12 schools affiliated with Serampore.

The College has recently begun a kind of "in-service-training program" for men in the ministry. It offers them refresher courses, guides their reading, helps them find new and better ways of doing their everyday work. Its students do field work in the villages during their studies. Some are married and bring their families to school with them, however (in a recent year the campus family included 40 children), and therefore have not too much time for work in the churches. There is a tremendous need for workers, however, since of the 102 churches in the Poona area only 60 are served by ordained pas-

(Continued on page 15.)

"The Faith of the Christian Woman"

*A Radio Sermon
Delivered Over Station WEDO*

By REV. JOHN F. C. GREEN, D. D.,
McKeesport, Pennsylvania.

This is the Lenten Season. Around the world, in the Christian Church, devout believers are trying to make the faith more real to themselves by something extra that they do or that they do not do. Many give up little luxuries, of sweets, or nicotine or drink. Some give more time to religious reading and prayer. These things are outward things that should set forth the inward, spiritual truth. They are good—in any way of a measure of self-discipline—as means to the end, and that end is the realization of the experience of Christ: that he may live in his followers. It is significant in all the Bible-story, how much Jesus dealt with women. To women first came the sacred annunciation. Women are at the foot of the cross; women came, first to the tomb, and to them was first given the word of the crowning resurrection.

Thus it is ever. Look about the churches. Take the women at worship and at work out of the churches, and—we wonder—would the churches be able to continue their high vocation! Thank God for the women!

Strange it is that in many churches women have been barred from the direct leadership and responsibility for the direction of the Church. There is, of course, St. Paul's comment, "Let the women keep silence in the churches." There is also his note, from an unmarried man, "A woman's crowning glory is her hair." He did not like the hats, perhaps! But he urged that for the sake of avoiding offense, in Greece, whither he wrote, the women conform to the custom. A woman, with head uncovered, exposed herself to ugly imputations as to her character. Nowhere did he, nor the Lord profess that women should be seen, not heard, or that the fruit of the work of their hands, should be silently accepted and that they should be relegated to the background in church management. In Christ there is no East or West; nor is there male and female in the perfection of the spiritual life.

In my now many years of ministerial service I have seen many congregations at worship and at work. And the world around, it seems, women are the first to hear the Master's word and the most faithful followers of His teaching in His work. One wonders what the great American Protestant missions that have circled the world since 1810 would have accomplished, had not women in the countless churches made the support of missions their own obligation! And that outreach of the Church into all portions of the world stands as a missionary movement second to none in the whole history of the Church. Look at the local congregations! Sometimes the men officers come together for stated meetings, monthly, perhaps. And too often the contribution of these leaders in actual work is minimal. In other words, the proportion of workers and worshippers in our churches, of men and of women, is heavily in favor of the women. And, therefore, thank God for the loyalty of the women!

In the present Scripture, the Syro-phenician woman proved her faith in Jesus, when his own people were in doubt. She needed help for her daughter, who was demented, "possessed of the devil," said the contemporaries of Jesus. Nor would she be turned away from her quest for his help. The Jews despised her as a Gentile, and the orthodox would have felt that they needed cleansing, had even her shadow fallen across their path. And to test her faith, Jesus used the term that these would apply to her, a "dog." But she returned, in meekness and deepest humility, "Yea, Master, but even a dog eats of the crumbs that fall from the master's table."

It is touching, that as Jesus faced the supreme test of the cruel trial and the cross, he retired to the home of friends, Mary and Martha and their brother Lazarus, whom he had raised from the dead at the pleading of the sisters. There in human friendship, in the ministrations of these women, he met and enjoyed the last fellowship of his earthly course: thence he went to the constitution of the Last Supper in communion for all his Church, and through the agonizing prayer, in the fellowship with the Father above, to the saving sacrifice of the cross.

The Orphanage

J. G. TRUITT, Superintendent

Dear Friends:

Raising a small family of your own is a real job. Raising a family of eighty children is a "really real job."

It is because of so many good friends with kind, generous ways of thinking, that the burden is lightened enough to make the work a pleasure. Frequently a fellow who understands just sits down and writes a check and sticks it in an envelope and mails it to the orphanage. Many of them say very little, several of them say nothing. They let the check be a silent way of saying: God bless you, brother. Go ahead and do the best you can for I think the children are in good hands. At least I can always think they mean pretty words as well as real help. And I am telling you it does help our spirits here as well as furnish funds with which to run the institution.

This week's report shows for the week $622.71. A good many people had to think of us to make the week's income reach that good figure. I want you everyone, and all the other friends of former weeks to know that I am most grateful.

The children did their prettiest at Reidsville the other night, and the Reidsville church, with their genial and efficient pastor, did well by them in turn. It was a great occasion and we were all very happy. It is something the children get a real joy out of doing.

On the 29th, Palm Sunday afternoon, from 4:30 to 5:30, we are expecting between four and five hundred young people from all over this state to visit the orphanage. They will be holding their annual Rally on the college campus.

JOHN G. TRUITT,
Superintendent.

REPORT FOR MARCH 19, 1953.

Commodities for the week.

Mrs. A. Y. Allred, High Point, N. C., Clothing.

Circle 5, Women's Fellowship, Suffolk Christian Church, Towels and toilet articles.

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

Amount brought forward $3,548.97

Eastern N. C. Conference:

Catawba Springs $47.48

Damascus 20.00

Ebenezer 34.59

Mt. Auburn S. S. 5.65

Plymouth—Special 10.00

117.72

Eastern Va. Conference:

Newport News S. S. $13.65

Bay View—Special 5.00
Windsor S. S. 10.00

28.65

N. C. and Va. Conference:
Burlington S. S. $89.37
Union (Va.) S. S. 10.00
Beverly Hills S. S. 13.88

113.25

Western N. C. Conference:
Zion $30.00
Zion (for Hugh Black) . 8.50

38.50

Virginia Valley Conference:
Winchester S. S. $ 8.34

Total $ 306.46

Grand Total $3,855.43

Special Offerings.

Amount brought forward $3,207.78

Miss Georgia Bradley,

Mebane, N. C. $ 1.00

Mrs. C. E. Newman, Vir.

gilina, Va. 1.00

Mr. & Mrs. W. M. McPherson, Burlington, N. C. . 20.00

A. C. Shearer, Chapel Hill,

N. C., in memory of

Donald R. Sutherland . 5.00

Mrs. Anna Lee Johnson,

St. Petersburg, Fla. . . 5.00

Mr. & Mrs. J. J. Felton,

Suffolk, Va. 10.00

George B. Helmer, Newport News, Va. 10.00

Lawrence S. Holt Fund . 150.00

Damascus Missionary Society, Sunbury, N. C. for

Raymond Harvell 30.00

Mrs. O. B. Jones, Norfolk,

Va., in memory of Otis

B. Jones 5.00

Ladies' Bible Class, Holland Church 10.00

Mr. & Mrs. J. L. Read,

Norlina, N. C. for Ella

Jean and Angelee Haith 20.00

Special Gifts 49.25

$ 316.25

Grand Total $3,524.03

Total for the week $ 622.71

Total for the year $7,379.46

CHURCH BUILDING FUND.

(Continued from page 6.)

"Where is 'room' for a new church?" Need we ask, "Why should we go over-the-top in this campaign for the Church Building Loan Fund?"

WHAT SHALL WE DO?

We must have money, beyond the ability of the people in these hi-potential areas to provide, if we are to measure up to our responsibilities. There are similar situations in other parts of the country. The campaign to raise $4,500,000 is on a national scale. That means that the nearly six thousand churches in our Fellowship will join in providing the funds to build new churches in these waiting situations of increased population. Again we say, "Thousands will help us build a local church!"

WHEN DO WE BEGIN?

The National Campaign for these funds began last July. The campaign in the Southern Convention was postponed until March, 1953, so as not to interfere with the campaign to raise $2,500,000 for Elon College. That campaign closed February 28, and the Building Loan Campaign began March 1.

IT IS UP TO YOU

Our goal for the Southern Convention is $136,000. If the facts and figures in this article have moved you to action, we will succeed in raising it. At least 30 per cent of all we give will be earmarked for use in the Convention. Since we have already received many times more than we are now asked to give, dare we do less? Other information, with plans for procedure, will come to you from your Conference Committee. We bid you Godspeed and Good Luck!

MEMORIAL GIFTS

"Instead of Flowers"

Dr. John G. Truitt
Christian Orphanage
Elon College, N. C.

Dear Dr. Truitt:

Please acknowledge the enclosed $..... as a memorial gift sent to the Christian Orphanage in lieu of flowers in memory of:

(Name of Deceased)

(City)

(Date of Death)

(Survivor to be Written)

(Address)

Name.....

Address.....

CHURCH WOMEN AT WORK.

(Continued from page 9.)

"Light springs from the midday-midnight of Golgotha, and every herb of the field blooms sweetly beneath the shadow of the once accursed tree. In that place of thirst, grace hath dug a fountain which ever gushes with water pure as crystal, each drop capable of alleviating the woes of mankind.

"We never should have known the love of Christ in all its heights and depths if he had not died; nor could we have guessed the Father's deep affection if he had not given his Son to die."

When Jesus came to Golgotha, they hanged him on a tree,

They drave great nails through hands and feet, and made a Calvary;

They crowned Him with a crown of thorns, red were His wounds and deep,

For those were crude and cruel days, and human flesh was cheap.

When Jesus came to Birmingham, they simply passed Him by,

They never hurt a hair of Him, they only let die;

For men had grown more tender, and they would not give Him pain,

They only just passed down the street and left Him in the rain.

Still Jesus cried, "Forgive them for they know not what they do."

And still it rained the winter rain that drenched Him through and through;

The crowds went home and left the streets without a soul to see,

And Jesus crouched against a wall and cried for Calvary.

Soloist sings first verse of "I Gave My Life for Thee."

Prayer: Dear God, forgive us, we pray, for the thoughtless and careless way in which we often have regarded the Cross and all that it symbolizes. Help us this day to enter into sympathetic understanding of the full meaning of the supreme sacrifice which was made that we might have eternal life. Amen.

WITH OUR WORKERS IN INDIA.

(Continued from page 13.)

tors. The school operates on a budget of about $7,000 a year, of which our contribution is a very small part—but essential. And it does a work which in the U. S. could not be done for five times that amount—and a work very much needed.

Evangelistic Work in North Central Council, South India

Samuel Devapragasam is an Indian national pastor who lives at Dindigul, a town on the northern edge of our Madura Mission area. He is an evangelist through and through. As chairman of his area committee for the Church of South India, he is constantly urging missionary outreach into villages and towns and settlements which have as yet no organized church. The "task force" in this campaign is the Gospel Band, a group of three or four people who have had experience in church work who enter villages and hold meetings—perhaps by day, perhaps by night—for whoever will come. The meetings are preaching and singing services, but they are good education, too. And they are productive. In 1951 more than 350 people became Christians in a half dozen villages where extensive work had been done. Fuller reports written by Devapragasam are available, should anyone wish them. They are remarkable testimony that even in a famine stricken area the church of Jesus Christ is on the move. This work is the project of Gibsonville and Shallow Ford Churches.

Indian Bible Women

Bible Women are women, usually of the older generation, who do evangelistic work in the villages in which they live. Some are illiterate, knowing the Gospel by heart and reciting from memory long passages of scripture in their talks with the women folk of their community. Some, on the other hand, are not only literate but also actively engaged in helping others become so. They use the Laubach charts like experts, and in little Indian villages are a source of strength and light. Bible women are usually paid very little, and some serve entirely on a volunteer basis. But they are part of the work of the church, and are visited on occasion by their Indian superintendent, to whom they report on results and problems, from whom they receive encouragement and advice. In many villages of South India the Bible Women are the backbone people of the communities: In India as in the U. S. A. one should not underestimate the power of a woman. As she goes about to the homes of her village, visiting, comforting, helping, the Bible woman—who is a kind of pastor at large in the name of the church—brings the Gospel to the basis of India's life. Betty Gibson Class of Rosemont and the Shallow Ford Church support this work as projects.

The Vadala Station

The American Board leaflet "Point Four Plus" carries a picture taken at Vadala, India. It shows a missionary, Gifford Towle, and an Indian colleague, George Smith, examining a good crop of jowar (sorghum), produced on the Vadala model farm. In an India perpetually hungry, a crop like that shown teaches a convincing and pleasant lesson.

Vadala is a station of the Marathi Mission of the American Board in western India. Its ministries cover a variety of needs. There is an elementary school there, which takes village children through the primary grades. There is a vocational school, which trains boys in such trades as carpentry, sisal fibre working, and farming. There is the Vadala farm, a demonstration center for the Vadala area. Because of it farmers from all around are learning to improve their fruit, egg, and crop production. There is a hospital at Vadala, too. It ministers to more than 3,000 persons annually. There is a Baby Welfare Center, which ministers to both mothers and children. And there is the church, under national leadership, which is the center of Vadala's program.

Each of the activities which the American Board maintains in Vadala is itself a kind of demonstration of what can be done in India's villages to make life healthier, cleaner, more satisfying. The Christianity which Vadala displays is a practical and living faith.

Vadala is a center of influence which is lifting a region of western India, lifting it at the real roots where governments sometimes forget the people live.

PLEASANT RIDGE PROJECT.

(Continued from page 2)

taking projects. One class is collecting scrap metal; another, paper. One class is setting out a birthday jar, which will receive gifts from each member when he has a birthday, and other classes are preparing projects under the leadership of J. C. Newell, who heads the church's Lord's Acre Committee.

The proceeds of these many and varied efforts of the members and friends of the church will be dedicated at the church on Thanksgiving Day, when the annual Harvest Day Festival will be observed. These gifts will be used to complete the payment on the new Sunday school rooms and for the interior decoration of the sanctuary. But the project is more than that—it is the giving of thanks to God for his many blessings—it is the joy of working together in his Vineyard.

North Carolina CROP Reports Year of Activity

Dr. John D. Metzler (left), National CROP Director, Receiving check for $10,800 from Rev. Carl R. Key of Durham, N. C.

At a recent meeting of the North Carolina CROP Executive Board, Carl R. Key, State CROP director, and a minister in the Congregational Church, reported on the full year of work. In 1952-53, cash receipts, food shipments and contributed services amounted to $29,902.76. Three carloads of corn were shipped from the state. Two thousand cases of powdered milk were sent to Pusan, Korea, in January and should arrive in time for distribution this winter; and 7,500 pounds of peanut butter from Northampton County were nearly ready for shipment to Athens, Greece, and Istanbul, Turkey.

Dr. John D. Metzler, national director of CROP, from Elkhart, Indiana, attended the annual board meeting; and Mr. Key presented him a check for $10,800 to be used on expenses and food shipments by the National Office. Much greater quantities of food can be sent overseas by purchasing in bulk and shipping the same way.

"Great unmet food needs still exist in Europe and Palestine and Korea among the many refugees there," declared Dr. Metzler. "India and Pakistan, Trieste and Northern Greece are other needy areas. The Christian Rural Overseas Program is asked by Church World Service and the distributing agencies overseas for at least 6,000 tons of bulk food toward meeting the minimum feeding needs in 1953-54."

Rev. Mr. Key was re-appointed State director for 1953-54.

The CHRISTIAN SUN

ORGAN OF THE SOUTHERN CONVENTION OF CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES

In Essentials Unity — In Non-Essentials, Liberty, — In All Things, Charity

VOLUME CV

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, APRIL 2, 1953

NUMBER 14

Open Your Door to Christ

By C. REXFORD RAYMOND

"Behold, I stand at the door and knock: if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him and sup with him, and he with me."—Revelation 3: 20.

"And Jesus came and spake to them, saying, All power is given unto me in heaven and on earth. Go ye, therefore, and make disciples of all nations, . . . teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you; and lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world."—Matthew 28: 18-20.

Christ said our open door lets Him come in!
Learn what that message means for us today:
We sup together, for we are akin.
Henceforth He will abide with us alway.
If Easter only means to us that Spring
Has brought us blossoms and the singing birds,
Heed this, glad Easter's world-wide carolling
Is not in terms of Spring or vernal words.

For Easter comes to tell us Christ is here
At dawn, high noon, and through the darkest night.
All days are His alike throughout the year;
His presence shines in us to make life bright.
If we will open wide the door for Him,
The path to peace and joy will not be dim.

News Flashes

A special graduate school for rural ministers is to be held again this year at Emory University, Georgia, July 14-29.

Dr. John R. Scotford, formerly the editor of Advance, who is now freelancing, has been on a speaking tour in North Carolina. While there he visited Southern Pines and Chapel Hill.

Dr. W. Millard Stevens has been conducting a pastor's class at the Christian Temple as a part of the pre-Easter program. On last Sunday he was rewarded for his work by having the entire group enter the church.

Mrs. Robert Lee House will represent THE CHRISTIAN SUN at the three-day session of the Associated Church Press, which will be held in Washington, April 8, 9, 10. The managing editor hopes to be able to attend one day's sessions.

Two classes have recently named their groups after people in our Convention. Hope Mills, in North Carolina, organized a young women's Bible class recently and named it for June Joy House. A class organized at Newport News, Virginia, has become the Howard S. Harcastle Class.

The congregation of the Christian Temple in Norfolk, Va., has voted to begin recommended renovations of the church kitchen and other parts of the building. The work is to start immediately, and the church hopes to have it completed at an early date. The estimated cost is around $10,000.

Dendron Church Dedicates Memorial Window

The Fellowship Window recently installed in the Dendron Christian Church, Dendron, Virginia, was dedicated on Sunday morning, March 15. The window is a reproduction of the painting of the Head of Christ by Sallman. It was contributed by friends and members of the church in commemoration of the Fiftieth Anniversary of the church, which was observed in November, 1951.

Rev. James Madren, the pastor of the church, was assisted by Rev. R. E. Brittle and Rev. J. M. Roberts. Mr. Roberts offered the dedicatory prayer and Mr. Brittle preached the morning's sermon. The special music consisted of an anthem, "Lift Up Your Heads," by Emerson, and a selection by a quartette composed of Mesdames J. R. Bishop, J. W. Maynard, L. T. Williams and P. I. Leadbetter. Mr. Madren conducted the dedicatory service.

An outstanding feature of the occasion was the reading of a poem of her own composition, "Behold, the Christ," by Mrs. B. V. Hargrave of Franklin, Virginia, a former member of the church.

Helen Kenyon, Inspiration and Brass Tacks

One of the great things about our Church Building Fund Campaign is the number of people who are working on it, and working hard, both on the church, association, conference, convention and national level. Few, if any, work harder than Helen Kenyon, the national head of the Speaker's Bureau. She does her own work well and she inspires the rest of us. She came up the other day with the following which I find too good to keep to myself.

1ST BRASS TACK—Do it now. Declarations of Purpose to be in before April 30.

Why? Small tacks:

- Expensive to keep the national set-up another year.
- The need, the crisis.
- Will lose out in enthusiasm if it drags. Ronald Bridges' "Gee Whiz."

2ND BRASS TACK—Accept your goal. After educating your people.

Small tacks:

- The materials—have you ordered them?
- The film—have you shown it?
- A speaker to tell the story—have you had one?

3RD BRASS TACK—Sign and send in your Declaration of Purpose, and keep the duplicate in your church files.

4TH BRASS TACK—When you have done it, help another church to do it, too.

Someone recently said of some of the churches in a State Conference: "A lack of sense of time and of urgency is their privilege, but our problem."

Let's get down to Brass Tacks and get the job done now!

WM. KINCAID NEWMAN.
Area Director.

Unique Maundy Thursday Candle-Light Communion Service at Richmond Church

On Thursday night of Holy Week, known as "Maundy Thursday" in church nomenclature, the First Congregational Christian Church, Richmond, Virginia, will observe Holy Communion after the traditional observance by the Waldenses in the thirteenth century.

The Waldenses are generally recognized as constituting "The First Protestant Movement"—the group of Christian folk originating in France and Italy—and claiming, upon their withdrawal and excommunication from the Roman Catholic Church, to be the revival of the First Century Church. The movement was named after the founder, Peter Waldus, a very wealthy merchant of Lyons, France, who founded the sect about 1170 A. D. The group, down through all the centuries since and today, are characterized by their deep religious interest, their high spiritual and moral idealism, their superior personal conduct, and the place of prominence accorded to the laity in the life and activities of their churches, now to be found in various parts of Europe and other sections of the globe.

This sect of dissenters from the ecclesiastical system of the Roman Catholic Church more than three centuries before Martin Luther introduced his Reformation, still survives.

In the twelfth century A. D., they were driven by tragic persecutions to the valleys of Piedmont, where the sect today has its largest representation. The persecutions which these noble people suffered included the burning of their homes and churches, the destruction and confiscation of their property, and the molesting unto death of many of their leaders.

The Waldenses profess substantially the Protestant principles of faith—their doctrines from the early beginning of the movement being largely the pattern followed by the various Reformation leaders more than three centuries after the far-seeing layman, Waldus, launched the Waldensian Movement.

The story of the founding and the subsequent history of this unique Christian movement is one of the most interesting chapters in all the history of Christianity. That story reads like a thrilling romance. Its founder, Peter Waldus, after a very unusual religious experience, was led, after providing for his family, to

(Continued on page 13.)

Laymen and the Church . . .

J. Earl Danieley, Editor, Box 515, Elon College, N. C.

Project of the Southern Convention Laymen

When the Southern Convention met in Durham, N. C., last year, the Laymen's Group voted to undertake the development of the Conference Center to be set up at Moonelon as their project for the biennium. In this connection, plans have gone on for the building of the first unit in this development.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN is presenting on the back page of this issue a perspective sketch and floor plans for this first unit, which will house an auditorium or dining room and the administrative offices, in the hope that this presentation will further the work of this program.

* * * * *

Suggested Program for April

This is the second in a series of suggested programs entitled, "The Layman and His Relationships." Although you may not use the material now, clip it and save it, and use it at some future time.

"THE LAYMAN AND HIS CHURCH."

HYMN: "Blest Be the Tie," "I Love Thy Kingdom, Lord," or "The Church's One Foundation."

SCRIPTURE: Matthew 16:13-19; Acts 6:1-4; Psalm 1.

PRAYER: We pray today, our Father, for thy Church, not only as it is but as it can become. Help us to make it strong, effective and alive. Amen.

MEDITATION: A Congregational Christian layman can truly be proud of his church heritage. As one of the oldest denominations or Christian fellowships in America, it has had no little part in the shaping of our government. It has helped make democracy.

Is the church just the little white frame building in the middle of the village or the red brick building at the country cross roads? What about the Southern Convention of churches or the local conference? Have our men ever heard of the General Council or the International Council of Congregationalism?

A good Congregational Christian layman is also aware of his participation in the National Council of Churches of Christ in the United States of America, as one of the thirty denominations which support that body and furthermore would proudly relate his support of the World Council of Churches which meets in 1954 in the United States.

The Congregational Christian layman sees more than a building or a group of like-minded folks, on a local, national or international level, but also a distinct philosophy toward religion. No one can tell him or his church what to believe, how or when they shall worship, or how his church shall be organized. In this freedom, however, there is a terrifying responsibility which too often is utterly ignored.

A layman has just begun church life when he joins. That membership should mean attendance, financial support, through study a thorough understanding of the entire program, loyalty to the minister and all the staff, constant application of Christian principles to the church and all of its relationships to the community.

QUESTIONS FOR DISCUSSION:

1. How can our church building be made more attractive?
2. What is our church program? Daily-weekly-monthly-annually?
3. What is the job or mission or

(Continued on page 8.)

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr

A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom as represented by the Congregational Christian Churches.

Our Principles

1. The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
2. Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
3. The Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
4. Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and church membership.
5. The right of private judgment and liberty of conscience is a privilege that should be accorded to and exercised by all.

Managing Editor John T. Kernodle

Departmental Editors—Convention, Wm. T. Scott; Missions, F. C. Lester; Women's Work, Mrs. F. C. Lester; Young People's Work, Max Vestal; Children, Mrs. R. L. House; Sunday School Lesson, H. S. Hardcastle.

Institutional Representatives—Elon College, L. E. Smith; The Christian Orphanage, John G. Truitt.

Board of Publications—Duane Vore, Chairman, S. T. Holland, Secretary; R. C. Helfenstein, S. E. Madren, W. W. Snyder, G. D. Colclough, Treasurer, ex officio.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Year $3.00
Two Years 5.00

Published by the Board of Publications of The Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches, Inc. Printed every Thursday except the last in June and December by Central Publishing Co., Inc., Richmond, Va.

Entered as second-class matter at the Post Office at Richmond Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

General contributions should be addressed to the editor at Southern Pines, N. C., and should reach him by Wednesday of the week preceding date of publication.

Departmental material should be sent to the proper departmental editor, at the address shown on their page.

All other material and business communications except regarding subscriptions should be sent to the Office of Publication, 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond 19, Va.

The Christian Sun Subscription Blank

Subscription Price: 1 year, $3.00; 2 years, $5.00

Date 195 . . .

Dr. Wm. T. Scott, Supt.,
Elon College, N. C.

Enclosed find $ for which please send The Christian Sun
() 1 year, () 2 years — () New Subscription, () Renewal.

To

Address

Who is a member of Church

() Renew, () Enter my own subscription for () 1 year, () 2 years.

My Name

My Address

From the EDITOR'S Desk

Christ's Call to Our Troubled World

By ROY C. HELFENSTEIN

Mankind itself, together with rampages and irregularities of nature, is responsible for the world's troubles. The sins of man, and not the will of God, have brought the havock and peril which today threaten the security and perpetuity of civilization itself.

Christ's call to our bewildered and troubled world is God's call for individuals, for groups, for homes, for business, for industry, for education, for the nations, and also for the Church itself, to "repent and believe the Gospel." Yes, the Church of the Crucified Christ must also repent of its complacency, its self-sufficiency, its coldness of heart, its credal barriers, its unchristian attitudes, its lack of vision and passion in service.

Human happiness and social security can be realized in no other way than by genuine repentance all along the line, and the exercising of sincere belief in the efficacy of the Gospel of Christ for every realm of human relationship. The pernicious lie proposed by the philosophers of humanism, namely that man is sufficient in and of himself to carve his own destiny and to insure his own salvation, should be apparent to every thoughtful person. Without God's guidance, which is never imposed, but which must always be sought, man in and of himself is lost in the maelstrom of life's uncertainties. Human progress can only be realized by mankind working in cooperation with God.

The Gospel is the Good News that "man is not only worth being saved but also that he can be saved," if with all his heart he truly seeks the Lord.

It is not "the fear of God" that men and women in our modern world need, but belief in and love for the God whom Jesus loved and worshipped, and for God's Church. That is what the modern world so desperately needs. Mankind needs only to "fear" the consequences of ignoring God.

The Good News of the Gospel of the Risen Christ is that God is a loving Heavenly Father and that salvation and man's fullest self-realization are available to all who repent and believe.

Our sins and our rejection of God do not enrage our loving Heavenly Father—they break his heart, as sin and the rejection of his Son broke his heart at Calvary. That is the eternal message of "The Cross."

After Evangelism--What?

By J. EARL DANIELEY

Much has been said and written within the last few months on the subject of evangelism. One would almost believe that it is an end within itself. There are many who believe that once we tell the "good news" to a person, and that person professes to believe the "good news," that there is nothing else to be done. Is this true? Or is this person a newly-born Christian who needs care, help and guidance? Is not living the Christian life a matter of growth and do we not all need all of the assistance that we can have?

There are certain steps for the newly-born Christian to take; the number and arrangement here given are arbitrary, but they include much that is absolutely essential:

1. Join the Church. This is a very important step, but it is not a cure-all. However, it is important to identify oneself with others who are like-minded; spiritual growth is more likely to continue when the person is thus associated with those seeking the same ends.

2. Worship Regularly with Christians. It is agreed that one does not have to go to church to worship God; but the Church is a fellowship of worshippers, and it is a good place to go to grow!

3. Daily Devotions. Exercise of spirit as well as exercise of body and mind is important. One needs daily to practice the presence of God; to be still and recognize the reality of God; to be quiet and listen to the voice of God.

4. Take an Active Part in the Church. If one is to serve, he must have something to do; there should be some job in your church for each person; it should be something he can do; it should be important enough to warrant taking his time; it should make a definite contribution to the church. He should also have an opportunity to enlist others for the Sunday school and the church.

Our program of evangelism is important, but it will fail if we fail to keep those we win; to help them to grow and to become of service to God and to the Church.

The Church for These Times

An Address before The Southeast Regional Meeting

By REV. AURELIUS PINCKNEY
Louisville, Kentucky

Let us, for a brief moment, fling up the back window and look at a segment of time in our world. The condition of the civilized world was propitious for the spread of a new religion at the birth of Christ. There was one world bound together by Roman law and Greek culture. The philosophy of the Greeks and enlarged and educated the intellect, but the up-building and construction of the Roman empire had loosened the bonds of immorality and blunted the sting of conscience. Philosophy sought at that time, as now, to answer some of the hard questions respecting man and his destiny or to give man some practical guidance in life or solace in the cruel grinding circumstances of Roman life. For, in truth, the Augustan age was an age of darkness in which licentiousness and human cruelty was at its zenith; liberty in all its aspects lay prostrate; Roman virtue gave way to sensuality; hope to despondency; the west turned to the east in the faint hope of finding light and help. Here in the very heart of crises the Savior of mankind was born.

This carpenter of Nazareth moved straight to the heart of simple folk, not in terms of destruction, but in terms of a complete fulfillment of all the longings of the human soul. At the core and center of every life is God—a God who is Father, a God who orders, a God who sees, a God who guards and guides, a God upon whom we can depend.

“Shall we destroy Caesar?”

“No! Caesar is necessary, for he represents orderly government. This is what we must have.”

“Shall we cling to the letter of the law?”

“No! Justice must be tempered with mercy. Who is without sin among you?”

“Shall we love those who love us and extract a tooth or pluck out the eye of him who spitefully uses us?”

“No! Love him. Love everybody. Love thy neighbor as thyself. And Peter, as you do, you come to be like me, sons of God, a rock that shall not be moved. Yes, upon it ‘I’ll build my church and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it.’ ”

“These are everlasting truths I give you—truths sealed with my blood. Like me they will be crucified and buried but like me they will rise in the newness of life. At Pentecost they will speak for me; they will speak for me in Jerusalem, at Antioch, in Corinth, on Mars Hill, in Macedonia, in Rome, in ages called Dark, in the Renaissance, at Plymouth Rock. The embodiment of them is my church. They will always be the symbols of my resurrection.”

So, then, the Church for these times was the Church for other times—changeless and the same. It will be first of all a church centered in God; secondly, it will be a church with a dynamic faith; third, it will be a church without fear; fourth, it will be a church with a message.

The founders of the early church set at naught the omnipotence of the State. Like Socrates, they resisted the power of the State when conscience protested. Peter and the Apostles were seized by the ruling class and thrown into prison. At the gates guards were placed to prevent their escape. But angels came to the rescue and set them again in the market place where they preached the eternal gospel of Jesus Christ.

“Did we not command you,” said they, “not to preach in his name?”

The celebrated reply came, “We ought to obey God rather than men.” A higher law, a power supreme, an authority above that of the State was recognized.

Is it not conceivable then, that the church centered in God, leaning close to his throne, could literally lift the State with all its imperfections into the kingdom of God? For, as you are aware, the kingdom of God means the kingdom of good, of sincerity, of love and humility, of the lofty, of the spirit, of the soul. It is of men and for men. It is in us.

We are admonished in sacred scriptures to be perfect even as God is perfect, be holy as God is holy, be just as God is just, but through Jesus Christ God becomes our Father and the Father is love. So the church for these times must be a fountain of love where all people of whatever race or nation they may be can come and drink of the water of life freely, above the margin of social state or cast.

The woman with the issue of blood had heard about Jesus. It was good news. Strangers came and spoke of his power. “I know,” said she, “one day He’s coming by. He’ll make me well again.” That day came. The teeming populace swarmed about Jesus. There was no way for a feeble woman to breast the human tide for audience. But inside of her there was a growing, propelling, moving faith that He could and would make her whole again. Faith? Yes, she had it! Here was faith with power, neither weak, supine nor vacillating. Through the press of the crowd she moved. She touched Him. She was made whole again.

Here in our little corner of the world, the opportunities for laboratory experimentation in Christian experience and action is unlimited. Shifting populations are ubiquitous; transitions from agrarian to urban communities are evident; old attitudes toward ethnic and racial groups are slowly changing for the better; new concepts of one world are in the process of formation. Indeed, the church for these times must keep undimmed its faith in God, its faith in itself, its faith in its destiny.

In the crisis of our nation, some of us remember the heartening, reassuring words that tumbled from the lips of a stricken, crippled man as he stood on the threshold of despair and grasped the reigns of power. “There is nothing to fear except fear itself.” With God as the center and circumference of its life, the church will fear no evil, his rod and his staff will comfort it. So, on the basis of this divine assurance we ask, will this church be shackled by public opinion, however wrong that opinion may be? Will it dare to stand on its feet and say “this is right, this is from God?”

I can tell you what happened in other times: There was tribulation, distress, persecution, famine, nakedness, peril and the sword. Yea, they were killed all the day long. But in the deathless words of St. Paul, “Neither death nor life, nor angels, no principalities nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come shall separate us from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus, our Lord.”

The eternal truths of God is the message of the church. This spiritual food will always be its message. This must come clean and clear cut, uncompromisingly against sin. It must

(Continued on page 8.)

The American Board-- A Five-Minute Survey . . .

The humid air of the jungle mellow the light of the flickering lamp. Inside the jampacked thatched building the people are singing their praises to God. Gathered at the end of a long day of labor, they lift their hearts with the rhythm of a familiar hymn. The words as sung are unknown to the visitor though he knows them well enough in his own language, and he sings with them:

*Elect from every nation
Yet one o'er all the earth . . .*

The experience is intensely meaningful to the men and women who make up the congregation as well as to the visitor. You can see it on their faces, even as the lamp flickers.

Our Congregational Christian Fellowship reaches around the world. This congregation—in Africa or India or the Philippine Islands or wherever it may be—is an out-post of the growing edge of our world-wide fellowship. The organization of our churches which helped to create it is the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions.

The American Board was organized in 1810, “for the purpose of propagating the Gospel in foreign lands by supporting missionaries, by diffusing a knowledge of the Holy Scriptures, and by maintaining appropriate Christian activities and institutions.”

Across the decades this purpose has been carried out through churches, schools, hospitals and clinics, presses, industrial and agricultural projects, welfare centers, and the homes and personalities of missionaries and their national associates.

The American Board works today in fifteen mission areas in Africa, China, India and Ceylon, in Europe and the Near East, Japan, the Philippines, Micronesia and Mexico.

At work in these missions are more than 300 missionary representatives of our Congregational Christian churches. One in four of our missionaries is an ordained minister. Two in four are women. Almost all missionaries are college or university graduates, and a majority have had post graduate training in some special field. Two dozen of them are medical missionaries; more than five times that many are teachers.

Besides the missionaries stand more than 8,000 overseas national Christian leaders, the indigenous men and women teachers, preachers, doctors and nurses of our missions. Many of these national Christian leaders have been trained in our schools; some have studied in America. National leaders take major responsibility for the continuing work of our missions. They are a healthy fruit of our mission enterprise.

Together, our missionaries and national associates work in nearly 500 churches (more than half of which are self-supporting), three dozen universities and colleges and theological seminaries, eighteen training schools, fifty-seven secondary schools, and more than 1,000 primary schools. Medical work is carried on in twenty-one hospitals and thirty-four clinics. There are twenty-four social centers affiliated with the American Board missions around the world, too.

Each year more than ten million pages of Christian literature are produced under American Board auspices abroad. Contributions to the work from the field, including the sums paid for schooling and medicines, match contributions from America a little better than 1 to 1.

The American Board is governed by approximately 1000 corporate members who are representative of our entire Congregational Christian fellowship. The Board holds meetings annually. In between meetings its affairs are administered by the Prudential Committee of forty members.

The executive staff consists of the Executive Vice-President, who is the chief officer, and the secretaries of the various departments of the Board. The Foreign Department handles all correspondence with the fields; the Treasury Department manages the funds of the Board; the Missions Council does the educational and promotional work; the Medical Department has general oversight of all medical work and cares for the health of our missionaries. The Research and Candidate Secretaries complete the list. American Board headquarters occupy the major part of three floors of the Congregational House, 14 Beacon Street, Boston.

Support of the American Board is derived from gifts from churches and from individuals, from legacies and matured conditional gifts, and from income from invested funds. The budget each year is more than a million and a half dollars.

The the American Board more than 300 missionaries and 8,000 national leaders are today teaching, preaching, building the church, healing, serving, creating a better life. They are extending the Kingdom of God among men in fifteen mission areas. You and your church can participate, and have a world-wide influence for good, by supporting them and the American Board, through your interest, your prayers, your gifts. — The Missions Council.

“Getting the Most Out of Life”

And who doesn't want just that! It is the one greatest desire of every person. We want people to like us. We want to be at home with everybody. We soon learn that to have good neighbors, we must be a good neighbor. To get the most out of life, we must be efficient—know how to get things done

One of the hard things is to get acquainted with self. Find out what our limitations are and to discover that we are dependent on a higher power. “I can do all things through Christ who strengtheneth me.”

Another thing and a very important one, is to know how to take care of the health of this body in which we live. We can't have health by thinking sickness. We can't have wealth by thinking poverty. In the 37th Psalm we find these verses: “Delight thyself also in the Lord, and he shall bring it to pass—give the the desires of thine heart.”

We come into life to manifest the divinity within. We are created in the image and likeness of God. To glorify him in all we do is our daily business. In what frame of mind do we go to bed at night? How do we get up in the morning. Ever stop to think what you mean when you say, “Good Morning” to your neighbor. We simply mean that is our wish!

Some people seem to enjoy poor health. They like to talk about how bad they feel, how the world is going to the devil, how corrupt our government is, how crooked politicians are. All of this adds up to one thing—the importance of having a time and place where each day at a fixed hour we may steal away and be alone with Jesus. The Master felt the need of that quiet hour, because he left

(Continued on page 11.)

News of Elon College

PRESIDENT L. E. SMITH, Elon College, N. C.

The Valley Conference

The churches in the Valley of Virginia have had the custom for many years of meeting as a delegated body twice a year. They meet in the spring and until recently, in the summer, but now the second annual meeting of the conference is held in the fall. As a rule, practically all churches are represented at these conference occasions. The delegates and ministers enter heartily into the one-day program and much good is accomplished.

The spring session of this conference was held Thursday, March 26. The conference met at Bethlehem Church. It was my privilege to attend a very good session. Mr. K. B. Dofflemeyer, an active layman, is the president, and Mr. Clarence Phillips, a layman, is the secretary. They do a good job of presiding and recording. An impressive devotional service was held by Reverend Mr. Rohart who holds a pastorate in the Valley, serving five churches. He called the conference and all to prayer. It was an impressive occasion.

Dr. Fred Buschmeyer, assistant minister of the General Council, Mr. Martin Garren, a layman of Greensboro, N. C., and Superintendent W. T. Scott, addressed the conference. The theme of the conference was "Open Doors"; and Dr. Buschmeyer spoke on the many doors that the church, in its program, opens up to the members of the church. He noted particularly the doors that the Building Fund Campaign will open for people living in unchurched communities. Mr. Garren and Dr. Scott appealed to the ministers and delegates to support the Building Fund Campaign in earnest and with convincing generosity.

In the afternoon the secretary called the roll of all the churches. Some delegate representing every church, reported projects undertaken during the year and the results.

It was a very interesting session of conference. I enjoyed being present. The conference was reminded that the campaign to raise $2,500,000 for Elon College is in progress. This campaign was authorized by the Southern Convention and accepted by every local conference constituting the Convention, and every local church should share the responsibility of doing something worthwhile about this before undertaking new obligations and new campaigns.

* * * * *

The Two and One Half Million Dollar Campaign Fund

A number of interested persons throughout the Convention are anxious to know how the college campaign is coming along. I could add my anxiety to theirs if it would do any good. A number of our churches have submitted very good reports. I had planned to report in detail, naming the churches that have conducted the campaign and indicating the amounts given in pledges and cash payments. In the office we are finding that this is quite a job. No report should be made until we are reasonably certain that these reports are correct. Those who have followed reports concerning the campaign recall that this new phase of the campaign (the last five years) was launched about two years ago. At that time the total amount received during the preceding five-year period totalled in round figures $1,000,000.00. The total amount secured to date will total approximately $1,340,000.00 which means that in the last six-year period we have secured in cash and pledges approximately $340,000.00.

This leaves us a long way from the goal of $2,500,000.00, but we have nearly four years to go. With a vision, a passion, and a determination we can reach this goal without difficulty.

I am sure that the church and friends of Elon college would be more determined about this campaign if they could but realize the full significance of Elon College, our College, being well equipped and made a strong institution from every standpoint. Whatever the church undertakes, it needs trained leadership. This is the business of our College.

Elon College is dedicated to that task in the name of Christian education for our church.

* * * * *

Apportionment Giving

In the conduct of a program for the church in these days, there are many items that claim the attention of the church and clamor for financial support. This is to be expected. We are a part of a complex society with a multiplicity of opportunities and responsibilities.

The church, in the midst of a society such as ours, has a responsibility unequalled by the church at any age. The local program, including improvements to the physical plant, new buildings, new furniture and the current budget, not only require money but more money than at any previous time. The membership of the church has these responsibilities. No one else would. When the individual member thinks of all of these calls for local sustenance and then the calls on him for interests, institutions, and boards beyond the local church, he is not only confused but sometimes seems to be staggered by the responsibilities. The only way to meet all of these demands and silence all of these calls is for each individual member of the church to put his giving on the Biblical basis—that is, to take one-tenth of his earnings and put this tenth into the storehouse of the Lord and see if that will not bring to him a blessing, a blessing in peace of mind, contentment of spirit and joy of heart and soul. It is a joy for one to feel that he has met his obligations to his church in every particular and it certainly is a joy for a church as a whole to feel that it has not faltered in its support to any necessary cause of his church, locally or beyond its parish.

We shall rest ourselves in the hope and faith that our church shall live up to its opportunities in all phases of its program; that the Kingdom may come in its own councils and in the councils of the Kingdom of God on earth.

* * * * *

The Sustaining Fund

I regret the necessity of calling to the attention of our people the necessity of the Sustaining Fund for Elon College. The contributions for the past two years to this fund for the College has been the difference between a balanced and unbalanced budget. Had it not been for the help received from the Sustaining Fund, the College would be in the "red" today and rather heavily. If we allow the College to slip back into debt in its operating program, it will be difficult to catch up and get out again.

I know that we have many causes but I doubt if we have any that is more necessary, more urgent than the Sustaining Fund. A number of our
(Continued on page 13.)

Foreign Mission Projects Of The Southern Convention . . .

The General Fund of the American Board

The American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions is the overseas arm of the Congregational Christian Churches of America. It is the oldest foreign missionary society in the United States, and for many years served as the society not only for Congregationalists but for Presbyterian and Reformed Church people, too. Today it operates missions in 14 countries—missions which are staffed by 350 missionaries and more than 10,000 national leaders. It operates on a budget of more than $1.6 million—to which is added about $2 million in contributions received on the various fields to extend and carry the work forward. The American Board's main emphases are two: To extend the Church of Jesus Christ and to train national Christian leaders to do the work which missionaries have pioneered. Approaching now its 150th birthday (the Board was organized in 1810) it remains one of America's outstanding societies, in many ways the most respected and most pioneering of all overseas church agencies.

Toward the basic budget of the Board the Congregational Christian Churches give more than $1 a year. And this million dollars works in their name—in the task of preaching, teaching, building the church, healing, serving, creating a better life—through churches, schools and hospitals and social centers all the way around the world.

What Are We Doing About Relief and Reconstruction?

Our world is not a pleasant place in which to live—if you are a victim of war. Huddled in tent cities in the Lebanon—not a hundred miles from Palestine—and in the rubble of the cities of Korea—are thousands upon thousands of refugees. Millions more are in Germany and France and Austria. And in Italy there are hundreds of thousands of persons who have all but lost their hope. In Spain, in India (where famine walks again for the fifth straight year), in Japan, in the Philippines—wherever there is need to which our churches can minister—the Relief and Reconstruction Fund of our denomination is at work. The organizations through which it operates are the Congregational Christian Service Committee, the American Board and the Home Board, Church World Service, and the World Council of Churches. Among 30 million refugees, 100 million hungry, through R. and R. we are showing our Christian compassion on our brothers who stand in need we can scarcely imagine, but which they, every day and every minute, feel.

Leona Burr and the Work in Japan

Leona Burr is a missionary who has really been around. She was born in South Dakota, was a teacher in a public school in the midwest, went to China in 1919, where she was assigned to school work in Shaowu 250 miles up the River Min from China's coast. That job lasted five years; then she was shifted to Kienning. And then in 1927 she was sent to India for a year—to work at a girls' high school near Bombay, and to interpret China to India and India to the world. Back in China in 1930 she was assigned to Foochow College, at the mouth of the River Min. Then came the Sino-Japanese War, when Foochow was under attack and privation and uncertainty and sirens and guns were the order of the day. In 1940 Leona Burr was reassigned to Fukien Christian University, now exiled to Shaowu. But war caught up with her there, and she was reassigned in 1944 to the inland university of Hwa Chung. Here not far from the Burma border, she taught on logs in open air classrooms. Wars had in 1946 brought her back to Fukien Christian University on its home campus at Foochow. But then again she was reassigned to Shaowu again for a year, then back to Foochow. In the U. S. in 1948 for furlough she was asked to serve another year in Shaowu—and then, after a year in Foochow, war came again and she was reassigned to Japan. She is now teaching English at Kobe College in Nishinomiya, but her impending furlough in 1953 will probably mark her retirement.

So Leona Burr has been around.

She has served the Church of Jesus Christ in a dozen communities in different lands. And wherever she has been she has cared for the task at hand with devotion and strength. Versatile is one word which describes her, and committed is another.

LAYMEN AND THE CHURCH.

(Continued from page 3.)

purpose of our church, locally? universally?

4. Why should we cooperate in our Southern Convention project?
5. Where can the layman make his best contribution to the church?
6. Why do I believe in my church, and what does it really mean to me?

This program has been adapted from material sent out from the national office of the Laymen's Fellowship at Pembroke, Ky.

* * * * *

"No Letter Today"

I seem vaguely to remember hearing on the radio some years ago a song by the name, "No Letter Today." Serving as editor of this column, I am coming to a greater appreciation of just what the author of the song had to say. To date the response to the column has been somewhat less than we expected. We repeat what we have said before: if this column is worth the time and the space which it occupies, it is because it is being useful to our men's groups. The only way that we can know that is for you to let us hear from you. Your comments and suggestions are invaluable as we attempt to plan the work. Let us hear from you. J. E. D.

THE CHURCH for THESE TIMES.

(Continued from page 5.)

stem from the very heart of Jesus, stabbing in, sinking into the heart of the individual as he sits in his pew. For paradoxically, he is the church. This message, through him must mold and motivate the thinking and actions of the community of which he is a part; it must and will shape the destiny of the nations; it must circle and girdle our world in bonds of love.

Go, preach the gospel. Use whatever means there are at your command—pulpit, radio, television, gymnasium, psychiatry, council, prayer! Teach all nations, baptizing in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost, teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you, says Jesus. And lo I am with you always, even unto the end of the world.

Church Women at Work

With Emphasis on Missions

MRS. F. C. LESTER, Editor

840 Sunset Avenue, Asheville, N. C.

The Woman's Convention

"Rejoicing in Our Task" is the theme that has been chosen for the Twenty-First Biennial Session of the Woman's Missionary Convention of the Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches which will be held at the First Christian Church, Burlington, N. C., April 28, 29.

Delegates and visitors from each church in the Convention are invited to attend the two-day session which will open at two o'clock on Tuesday and close with lunch on Wednesday. Visiting delegates will be overnight guests of the members of the Burlington Church.

A Fellowship Dinner will be held on Tuesday evening at six o'clock. It is hoped that many women who live in the Burlington area, but who cannot attend all the sessions of the Convention, will join the delegates for this dinner and the evening session of the Convention. All women's society presidents are asked to cooperate with the entertaining church by sending in the list of their delegates desiring overnight lodging and the number of reservations for the Fellowship Dinner by April 10th, using the return post card that has already been mailed them. (If any society president failed to receive their card it will be appreciated if they will send the above information to Mrs. Harold Ingle, 422 Moorehead St., Burlington, N. C.)

Dr. Henry Smith Leiper of New York City heads the Convention program as the featured speaker. Dr. Leiper, an internationally known Congregational Christian churchman and ecumenical leader, is Minister and Executive Secretary of the Missions Council of the Congregational Christian Churches. He will speak on the subject, "Life and Task of the Church Around the World."

Rev. and Mrs. Wm. Q. McKnight, for over twenty-five years missionaries to Japan, will be guests at the Convention. Mr. McKnight has been invited to speak at the Tuesday afternoon session. The McKnights will be remembered as having gone to Japan in 1919 as missionaries from our Christian Church. They served under the American Board following the merger with the Congregational Churches in 1931.

A number of reports and quite a bit of very important business will claim the attention of the delegates at this biennial session of the Woman's Convention. It is hoped that all churches will have their full quota of delegates present for the entire session. Officers, departmental superintendents, and standing committees of

EASTER CAROL

Cheer up friends and neighbors,
Now it's Easter tide;
Stop from endless labors
Worries put aside:
Men should rise from sadness,
Evil, folly, strife,
When God's mighty gladness
Brings the earth to life

All his truth and beauty,
All his righteousness,
Are our joy and duty,
Bearing his impress:
Look! the earth waits breathless
After Winters strife:
Easter shows man deathless,
Spring leads death to life.

Ours the more and less is;
But, changless all the days,
God revives and blesses,
Like the sunlight rays.
"All mankind is risen,"
The Easter bells do ring,
While from out their prison
Creep the flowers of spring.

—Anonymous,
Tr. by Percy Dearmer.

the Woman's Missionary Convention; officers of the three Women's Conferences; and holders of Life Membership Certificates are also voting delegates.

The committee on registrations will begin registering the delegates at 1:30 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon. Any delegates arriving by bus or train and desiring transportation to the church will please notify Mrs. Ingle of the time and place of their arrival.

MRS. W. B. WILLIAMS,
President.

* * * * *

More About Jennie Pratt

The women of our Missionary Societies who used the Christmas Friendly Service program written by Mrs. W. E. Wissemann will be interested in reading the article, "Mrs. Liberty of Ellis Island," which appears in the April issue of Coronet. The three-page article, written by Adeline McConnell, tells in a very interesting manner of the work of Mrs. Jennie Pratt who has "declared her life to the bewildered little immigrants who seek to become Americans."

MRS. W. B. WILLIAMS.

* * * * *

World Day of Prayer at Elon College

For several years at Elon College the World Day of Prayer has been observed together by the Woman's Society, the college students and the high school students in one common service of worship at the Elon College morning chapel hour.

This year, by invitation of our Women's Society president, the pastor of the Elon College Community Church, Rev. Howard P. Bozarth, planned and conducted a beautiful and dignified prayer service. Representatives from the students and faculty, as well as from the women of the church, were designated to give the introduction, to read the Scripture and to pray for special causes appropriate to the day.

Special prayers were led as follows: Church Universal—Dr. L. E. Smith; Missions and Missionaries—Dr. Jas. H. Hess; World Wide Fellowship of Students—Matt Currin; Institutions of Higher Learning—Dr. D. J. Bowden; Schools and Children of All Lands—Dr. James P. Hill; Men and Women of Our Armed Forces—Geo. Barron; United Nations and World Peace—Mrs. W. W. Sloan. Others participating were Tom Targett, Grace Mathews, and Sammy Nelson.

All united in the closing unison prayer from the Pilgrim Hymnal.

* * * * *

Durham Church Reporting

Our women under the leadership of Mrs. D. M. Estes, president, have been very busy with meetings of various kinds, with serving dinners and the bazaar held at the church last fall. However, we have been slow in making a report.

We have three groups, the regular society and two circles. Each group meets separately, except for special occasions when we meet jointly.

We have followed the Packet pretty closely. One program, "Together With God," from the booklet, "Building With Love and Gratitude" was

(Continued on page 13.)

A Page for Our Children

MRS. R. L. HOUSE, Editor, Southern Pines, N. C.

Holy Week

This is Holy Week, and it is Holy Week around the world. Different people celebrate it in different ways, but for Christians it remains the last week of Jesus' life on earth.

Each day has its special meaning. Each day has its own history. Some of the boys and girls who went to church last Sunday received a palm branch to take home. This is a symbol. Symbols remind us of something and by palms we are reminded of Jesus riding on the little donkey and the boys and girls going before him with flowers and palm branches.

Some of you will be having services of Communion in your churches tonight. It is called Maundy Thursday. It is the night of Pasa or Passover that our Jewish friends observe, but for us it is called the Last Supper.

Tomorrow will be Good Friday, and it is a day of sorrow, when pain came to Jesus and he left the earth.

But Sunday brings Easter and with it a great message of joy. The day tells us that Christians can overcome the pain and death of earth and live anew. It is a day of rejoicing. It comes when flowers are blooming, birds are winging, and we wear new clothes as a symbol—a symbol of new life.

Some people just go to church on Easter, and they go so that others may see their corsages and clothes. Others go because they love the church and go every Sunday. It matters not if their clothes are old or new, what does matter is that God has made a promise of new life to us.

Others who go will be happy as they think of people around the world celebrating Easter. Some of them are having their first Easter, for they have not known of God, the Father, and Jesus, the Son, before. Perhaps these people live in far off India or Africa, and the missionary teacher or preacher has just told them this joyful news. How wonderful it must sound to little ears who have not heard before of such love and hope! There may not be pots of Easter lilies or fragrant corsages or choirs singing, "Alleluia," but the love of God is the same as with us.

If you have filled your Cent-a-Meal jar or box, you have helped bring the story of Easter and a Risen Saviour to many in far places.

Listen on your radio to the lovely Easter services that will be broadcast. The Knights Templar have an interesting one, as do the Moravians at Winston-Salem, N. C. With music, voices and hearts, let us greet one another as they did of old, "He is risen!"

* * * * *

"Parents' Influence, Unlimited"

By HELEN GREGG GREEN.

Issued by the National Kindergarten Association.

At a Y. W. C. A. luncheon I had called a pretty girl who was serving me, "Mable." Often had I chatted with her as she worked by the lockers after I had been swimming in the great pool.

Several days later the gentle-voiced maid smiled at me. "You forget my name's Kathryn! I didn't want to correct you before a crowd," she said.

I am still thinking of her courtesy. How delightful it is when we meet, also, among the so-called cultivated circles, persons who, like Kathryn, are thoughtful of the feelings of those whom they contact.

We talked of this and other subjects as a number of us chatted at a volunteer organization meeting.

"One of my friends, Betty Brown, heard someone call attention, before strangers, to a word I had mispronounced," remarked Edith Tanner. "Betty's eyes didn't know whether to twinkle or snap, but when she saw I was embarrassed, she said, 'Never mind, Edith, the exception proves the rule.'"

A usually reticent mother spoke up. "An acquaintance of mine took every opportunity to put me in a bad light. You know the type who provokes a laugh at another's expense!"

"What did you do?" someone asked.

"I thought of retaliating—then I remembered how often I've told my boys, 'Don't lower your standards because the other fellow does,' and I kept silent. I'm thankful to say she left the city."

I remembered a Serbian proverb and repeated it: "He who preserves a wise silence speaks well."

Mary Ainger, who has a Master's degree in eugenics, glanced at the tips of her red shoes. "If we remember our children are mirrors reflecting their parents, we shall be likely to display a little wisdom," she said.

"Apropos of mothers' and dads' examples." Betty's twin sister, who loves to "study folks" as she calls it, cut in, "I noticed a father, mother, and bluejeans-age son as they left a restaurant. They were extremely well-dressed, but all three—well you excuse me if I tell you?—were actually using toothpicks as they walked along the street."

"Now we're on my pet subject," Judy Finley, the lovely reddish-blond mother of five, eagerly began as she entered the discussion. "While the more formal way of living—the old grand-manner way—is gone forever, we still need some of the restraint and good breeding that was a part of it. Heaven protect us from a stuffed-shirt manner, but some of us have let down the bars much too far. Don't you think so?" Her voice was low and soft, the way I try to keep mine during a discussion, but don't.

"How right you are, Judy!" our psychologist agreed. "But, in spite of all we can do, our youngsters will have bad manners of one kind or another occasionally. Just when I think I'm getting somewhere with my Home Charm School one of my brood is audaciously rude. However, I never make an emotional issue of the breach. If one does," she looked up, glancing at each of us brightly, "the child will remember the argument rather than the point you're trying to put over."

My husband, bless him, brings home ideas he picks up from friends. His latest is of the father of four who never disciplines a child in the presence of anyone else. When needful, dad and "offender" go to a small study and hold a conference. He believes this is a fine way to build a good father-child relationship. For, alas, too many parents, especially fathers, never really listen to their offsprings' points of view.

"After all," this understanding father told my husband, "it's not the good—or—bad behavior which counts so much; it's a child's attitude!"

Youth at Work in the Church

REV. MAX VESTAL, R. 1, Asheboro, N. C.

Pilgrim Fellowship Rally Held at Suffolk, Virginia

A Statewide Pilgrim Fellowship Rally of the Congregational Christian young people of Virginia was held on Saturday, March 21. The rally was at the Suffolk Christian Church, and there were many young people present from the various Congregational Christian Churches of Eastern Virginia and the Valley of Virginia.

There was a report from the Valley of Virginia on "The Lord's Acre," which is a garden planted to raise money for the church. Reports from Eastern Virginia were on CROP (the Christian Rural Overseas Program), which is sending food and clothing to poor people overseas. Another report concerned the Eastern Virginia Budget.

The speaker of the evening was Nick Piediscalzi, the national president of the Congregational Christian Pilgrim Fellowship. He gave a very inspiring talk on the meaning of Pilgrim Fellowship.

The rally was concluded with the presentation of the religious play, "Release," by the Elon College Radio Actors.

ROBERT GREEN,
Rt. 2, Mt. Jackson, Va.

* * * * *

The Counselor's Job

There is no one thing that tells all you need to know about working with young people. But "to work with young people" probably states the counselor's job in the best way. Sometimes the adult makes suggestions, he must help the group pick and choose from their own ideas, and sometimes must give a gentle "push" to help them move ahead. He certainly is the most mature person present at the meetings and the planning sessions.

One of the very best ways of influencing and guiding the Christian growth of the young people is to meet with the officers at least once a month. This, of course, will be in addition to their fall retreat, and perhaps a mid-winter planning conference, at which the program for the weeks ahead is outlined. The counselor will find himself as part of the group. Meeting with the officers with that kind of relationship will be the best investment of time for the achieving of the Christian purposes for which he is working. Such a relationship means that the officers have "our" ideas—not youth ideas and adult ideas. The counselor has been part of their group.

The essential qualities needed for the adult counselor are sincere love and understanding of young people, and a firm Christian purpose—not "gushy" love; not belittling concern; not a too protective approach. It is a relationship that treats the young people with integrity, respect and an understanding of their particular stage of development. It is seeing the possibilities in each and every one—possibilities that are hidden beyond recognition in some of the reckless individuals with whom we work.

The counselor sets the tone for much of the life of the group. If he is sure of his own goal, and sincerely lives it, he will help the group achieve Christian purposes. He will help influence program plans so that they, in fact, help to achieve Christian growth. If he is not enthusiastic, and is uncertain, it will undoubtedly reflect in the life of the group.

The counselor should surely be present at the meetings. He should spend some other time with the young people in recreation and in social ways. The young people should know him as a person.

The counselor should know the program resources available. Much of his task will be achieved if he can give the right suggestions at the right time. Knowing program possibilities is essential.

The counselor should know each of the young people personally in order to understand the variety of pressures and problems they have. Sensitivity to this will help him help the group to plan for a group life which truly meets the needs of those young people.

The counselor can never "know how he's doing." There are no tests to give, as teachers do. There are not the measurements of Christian growth and understanding such as could be used in certain club activities. This is a process of growth in Christian faith. This is leading young people to know God as Creator and Father. This means faith in yourself and the future. It means trust that God's Spirit is at work!—Adapted from Program News.

* * * * *

"Relax With Max"

When I was in Europe, I saw a scene that I have often thought of as an example of the devotion of a wife to her husband. One day this old Italian farmer was busy mowing his hay crop with a hand scythe. When it began to rain, the old man ran for shelter. In a few minutes, however, his wife came with an umbrella; and while she held it over him, he continued his work. I first thought what a show of devotion this was in the wife's part, but then I got to thinking how difficult it must have been for the man trying to harvest his hay under an umbrella.

Seriously, all you young folks who live on a farm should be very thankful for the equipment we have in this country. God has given to the farmers over the last twenty-five years an opportunity for tremendous improvement. But be sure not to let your prosperity hide your true wealth.

* * *

The manufacturer who makes the best of things usually succeeds.

* * *

To win a baseball game, the batter has to leave the home plate, circle the bases and come back where he started from. When we find Jesus, let us not be content to stay at homeplate, but busy ourselves circling the bases (in the right direction) so as to score for Christ!

"GETTING THE MOST OUT OF LIFE."

(Continued from page 6.)

his disciples many times when he was tired. He went away to be alone and to talk with his Father.

Our ministers, the pastors of our churches, feel the need of that in these uncertain times when the world may be facing war. First thing in the morning, why not say, "This is the day the Lord hath made, I will rejoice and be glad in it."

Will Rogers, the nation's most beloved humorist, used to say that he never saw a man he couldn't love. Learning how to love and be loved is the surest way to get the most out of life.

S. M. SMITH.

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE, D. D.

"Paul's Conversion at Damascus"

LESSON II—APRIL 12, 1953

MEMORY SELECTION: I count everything as loss because of the surpassing worth of knowing Christ Jesus my Lord.—Philippians 3:8.

LESSON TEXT: Acts 22:3-16.

DEVOTIONAL READING: Isaiah 6:1-8.

The conversion of Saul or Paul was a momentous event in the life of the Christian Church and in the history of the world. Evidence of this fact is to be seen in the prominence given to it in the records of the Acts of the Apostles—it is repeated three times: once as written by Luke for his Christian readers, and twice as told by Paul himself on significant occasions. When one considers what an important part Paul played in the early history of the Christian Church, and of his continuing influence through his letters as a part, and a big part of the New Testament—nearly half of the New Testament was written by him—one sees that he is dealing with one of the dominant and determining personalities of the Christian movement. Indeed, next to Jesus Himself, Paul is the most dominant personality in the Christian religion. He is the Number Two Man in Christianity.

A Chosen Instrument.

When God told Ananias to visit Saul after he came into the city of Damascus, He said "he is a chosen instrument of mine. . . ." A chosen instrument indeed! Here was the one man above all others who was needed for such a time as this in the Christian movement. Although not strong physically, and afflicted with some malady which he himself referred to as "a thorn in the flesh" the man had a tough constitution and underwent rigors and hardships that would have killed far stronger men. He was a man of great ability. God had endowed him with a great mind and that mind had been trained in one of the great universities of that time. He was a man of culture, a man who spoke Greek fluently, and who was steeped in the finest culture of his day. He was a man of great and also tender emotions. He felt as deeply as he thought. He was deeply religious. He had a genius for religion, and a passion for righteousness. He had an eager spirit and volcanic energy. He had a genius for friendship, and a gift for organization. He was a man, who by native endowment and by training, combined in his person a clear head, a warm heart, an indomitable will. He was indeed "a chosen instrument of God" and God wanted to make sure that he got His man. Several steps or factors were involved in the process.

A Conviction.

As Paul made his way to Damascus that bright morning, all was not well with him. To be sure he had tried to live in all good conscience before God and man unto that day. To be sure he was zealous for the faith of his fathers. To be sure he was even then on his way to arrest followers of Jesus in a frenzied and fanatic effort to "liquidate" this new movement. But later events show that he was "all at sixes and sevens with himself within." His conscience was troubled. He could not forget the day that he had held the clothes of those who had stoned Stephen, and how he had seen that young man die for his faith. There was a light on the man's face never seen on land or sea, and a serenity of spirit, and a winsomeness of manner that Paul just did not have. In spite of his strict obedience to the law, and his zeal for the faith, he was uneasy, restless, troubled, hungry of heart. And when the Risen Christ appeared to him in all his glory, conviction of sin became overwhelming. In that light, he saw that his righteousness was as filthy rags. He saw himself as a sinner, as he later says, "the chiefest of sinners." That is where the process of conversion must begin. Men must see themselves as sinners. And even the best of men see themselves as sinners when they stand in the presence of the Living Christ. A new vision of Christ in His divine holiness and power and mercy must result in the consciousness of sin.

A Conversion.

Through the offices of an humble and otherwise unknown man, Paul is helped to understand the meaning of his experience, and is converted. It is significant that even in this historic and momentous conversion in which there was so much evidence of the divine and the miraculous, there was an important element of the human. It was an humble man named Ananias who explained to Saul the gospel of peace, the forgiveness of sins, the necessity of baptism, and the gift of the Holy Spirit. When by faith he accepted these truths, his eyes were opened, and at the same time the darkness and blindness of his soul was taken away. His sins were washed away, and at the touch of this man—not an apostle be it noted—he was filled with the Holy Spirit. How much the world owes to unknown and unnamed laymen, who in obedience to the impulse of the Holy Spirit, have won somebody to Christ who has been an outstanding servant of the Lord Jesus Christ! How many people can name the man who led Dwight L. Moody to Christ? Or who preached the sermon which led Spurgeon to Christ? Or what the man's name was who was reading the New Testament when John Wesley's "heart was strangely warmed"? Laymen and laywomen are not alive to their opportunities to make incalculable contributions to the Kingdom by winning others to Christ. There may be in some Sunday School Class the day you teach this lesson, somebody who can be a "chosen instrument of God" if he or she is won to Christ by your witness and your work.

A Confession.

It was characteristic of this fellow Paul that as soon as he was converted, he made his good confession. It was both immediate and heroic. He would be no disciple of Jesus, secretly, for one cause or another. He immediately began to bear witness to Christ and to speak for Christ. One makes a mistake if, after finding Christ, for one reason or another, he countenances a delay in confessing Christ. And let him begin where he is, no matter how hard it is. The very fact that we confess Him openly will strengthen and steady us. There is no place in today's world for secret disciples. And if we confess Him before men, He will confess us before our Father who is in heaven.

A Career.

Thus began a career that literally changed the world. With the same enthusiasm and energy that had characterized him as a persecutor and defender of the faith, Paul now gave himself at once, and for the rest of his life, to proclaiming and propagating the Christian faith. He traveled ex-

(Continued on page 15.)

CANDLE LIGHT COMMUNION SERVICE.

(Continued from page 2.)

"sell all that he had and give to the poor," devoting himself thereafter to the cause of religion.

The Waldenses advocated from the beginning that all Christians, men and women, lay and cleric—should freely interpret the scriptures and that the laity shared equally with the clergy in the responsibility of Christian teaching and in church administration. Devotees of the Waldensian faith subscribed to "vows of poverty, chastity and obedience."

At the Maundy Thursday night Candle-light Service in the Richmond church, the laymen will have the principal parts in the program. The pulpit and other ecclesiastic setting will all be removed from the rostrum and a long table placed in the center of the rostrum, at the ends of which and along the back side of of the table eight of the deacons will be seated, four on each side of the pastor. On the table will be placed the Emblems of Holy Communion and "The Cup" secured by the pastor at an excavation off King David Street in the old part of Jerusalem in 1932. This ancient cup has been declared by prominent archaeologists to be the type of cup used by the Lord and his disciples at their Last Supper together.

NEWS OF ELON COLLEGE.

(Continued from page 7.)

Churches have sent in their Sustaining Fund money for the conference year 1952-53. If your church is not in the list, will you please check with the proper officials and see if something can't done about this fund at an early date? I know of no other effort at this particular time that would be more beneficial to the financial interest of the College.

Previously Reported	$ 533.00
Eastern N. C. Conference:
Morrisville	$ 2.00
Virginia Valley Conference:
Linville	$31.00
Eastern Va. Conference:
Rosemont	$528.00
N. C. and Va. Conference:
Winston-Salem	$ 50.00
	611.00
Total to date	$1,144.00

CHURCH WOMEN AT WORK.

(Continued from page 9.)

repeated. We first gave it in the society and then to one of the circles. Mrs. W. H. Elder, Mrs. J. M. Saunders, Mrs. Nat Hunter, Mrs. J. O. Kimroy and Mrs. J. E. Harward took part in it.

The Thank Offering program was given on Sunday morning at the 11:00 hour in place of the morning worship, with women from all three groups taking part.

World Community Day was observed on Wednesday night, with Dr. S. C. Harrell as the leader. We donated to this cause.

In November we had our Bible study of Colossians. We met at the church on Sunday evening. Mrs. Robert S. Smith was the speaker. One week later, also at the church, Miss Mary Ann Harrell reviewed the book These Rights We Hold.

For our December meeting the Friendly Service program was used, and a contribution was made to Ellis Island.

On Sunday evening, January 14th, Miss Clarene Perry reviewed the book Africans on Safari. Following this the filmstrip Travels in Africa was shown. The following Wednesday night after prayer meeting the movie More for Peace was shown.

All of these meetings were held at the church.

The World Day of Prayer was observed with four other denominations of the city joining in. The program was held at our church at 10:30 A. M. Mrs. Carl Key was the leader and Mrs. R. H. Woody, organist. Members from the other churches took part.

We are now making plans for May Fellowship Day.

MRS. J. E. HARWARD,
Program Chairman.

Financial Report—Second Quarter 1952-53

WOMAN'S MISSION BOARD—NORTH CAROLINA CONFERENCE.

Quarter ending March 15, 1953.
WOMEN'S SOCIETIES.
Albemarle	$ 1.75
Amelia	5.00
Apple's Chapel	82.00
Asheboro	55.00
Auburn	3.75
Berea	10.00
Beulah	6.00
Beverly Hills	6.00
Burlington	375.50
Carolina	8.47
Chapel Hill	35.00
Concord	23.25
Damascus	2.50
Durham	68.00
Elon College	180.80
Erskine Memorial	75.00
Flint Hill (R)	7.75
Gibsonville	45.70

Fuller's Chapel	30.00
Greensboro-First Church .	140.65
Greensboro-Palm Street .	19.00
Hank's Chapel	57.00
Haw River	18.00
Hebron, Virginia	10.00
Henderson	35.00
Hines' Chapel	10.00
Hopedale	36.45
Ingram, Virginia	48.16
Liberty, N. C.	10.00
Liberty, Vance	50.00
Long's Chapel	12.50
Monticello	12.00
Mount Auburn	34.05
Mount Bethel	5.00
Mount Zion	23.00
New Lebanon	20.00
Oak Level	4.00
Pfafftown	6.00
Pleasant Grove, N. C.	5.00
Pleasant Grove, Virginia	13.08
Pleasant Hill	20.00
Pleasant Ridge (G)	13.00
Pleasant Ridge (R)	10.00
Raleigh	50.00
Ramseur	10.00
Reidsville	155.00
Shallow Ford	20.00
Shallow Well	25.00
Smithwood	5.00
Spoon's Chapel	16.25
Union Grove	7.50
Union, N. C.	30.00
Union, Virginia	15.00
Winston-Salem	24.00
Youngsville	12.50
	$ 2,021.36

JUNIOR SOCIETIES.

Durham	$ 13.07
Greensboro-First	12.11
Henderson	9.00
	34.18

CRADLE ROLL.

Apple's Chapel	$ 5.50
Durham	11.23
Elon College	40.00
Greensboro-First	12.11
	68.84

Total Receipts

DISBURSEMENTS.

Florist	$ 5.78
United Church Women:
World Day of Prayer
Offerings	55.46
World Day of Prayer
Literature	3.94
Expense of the president	11.95
President's Expense to
Cleveland Meeting	125.00
	202.13

Mrs. W. V. Leathers, Treasurer
Woman's Mission Board, Southern Convention, for:
Life Memberships	$ 50.00
Thank Offering	150.75
Memorials	30.00
Rachanyapuram School	9.00
Relief & Reconstruction
Children's Fund	40.00
Foreign Missions-Special
Fund	45.00
Missions-General Fund	1597.50
	1,922.25

Total Disbursements

Respectfully submitted,
SUSIE D. ALLEN,
Treasurer.

The Orphanage

J. G. TRUITT, Superintendent

DEAR FRIENDS:

Thanks for this good report. Thirteen Sunday Schools and many friends contributed a total of $633.43. Thank you, every one. We are at your mercy. So you can see how thankful we naturally would be when you are generous. So many people have helped with clothing and shoes for these children, and we are grateful.

I would like to make this suggestion: Just as far as possible with your group it is well to send clothing for the children in care of me rather than to the child direct. In that way you will get a note of thanks and thus know that it reached here, and also you will see it in THE SUN. Too, clothes should be sent to us because it creates a problem for some children to have new shoes often, or to be dressed beyond a normal standard every day, when other children cannot be so dressed. I know it is the wish of every one to help us with each child, and not to cause the child to be or make a problem. Thank you.

I felt deeply grateful to the South Norfolk friends for helping me with David Haith's extra high school expenses and his trip with the seniors to Washington. I am also very grateful to others who have sent in help on our other seniors. What we would do with the problems we have here were it not for understanding and generous friends, I do not know! Thanks to you for cheering us with your faith and trust in us to do a good job, and to do it in all humility and to the very best of our ability. I frequently consult with the matrons and the others here, also with members of our executive committee, about the work I am assigned to do. They help me a great deal. Especially am I indebted to the president of our Board, Mr. V. R. Holt, for his interest in the work and the way in which he helps me whenever I call on him.

We have had difficulty keeping a matron at the Baby Home since Mrs. Nancy Whitt went over to the Nazareth Orphanage last October. She was young and experienced in her job and managed well. The third one since then has now given me notice that in a few days she will have to go. I am real sorry for she is a good worker and cooperative, but she says it is too much for her. I tell you this to ask you to make me a suggestion as to whom I may secure. It is obviously a real job, and needs a person of strong personality and good health. It is a good place for someone to make a very real contribution to little children. There must be the right one some where. I trust the kind Heavenly Father to help us find that right person.

Thanks to so many friends for visiting us lately. We always enjoy having you come to see us. Please do come and let us show you what we are trying to do, and who we are trying to do it for. I believe you will enjoy seeing the children and seeing the home which you are providing for them.

JOHN G. TRUITT,
Superintendent.

REPORT FOR MARCH 26, 1953.

Commodities for the week.

Jr. Missionary Soc., Holland Christian Church, Clothing.
Doreas Class, South Norfolk, for Jeanie & Hubert Cook, Easter Clothing.
Mrs. G. Butler, Norfolk, Va., Clothing.
Mrs. Emma Chamberline, Windsor, Conn. Clothing.
Mrs. E. W. Beale, Zuni, Va., Clothing.
Pleasant Grove Miss. Soc., Halifax, Va., Clothing.
Mrs. L. R. Allen, Franklin, Va., Clothing.
Pleasant Hill Miss. Soc., Snow Camp, N. C., Clothing.
Woman's Miss. Soc., Flint Hill (R) Church, Clothing.
Chris Allen & Nancy Bridges, Franklin, Va., Easter Hats.

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

Amount brought forward $3,855.43
Eastern N. C. Conference:
Bethel $ 17.90
Liberty (Vance) 52.00
Oak Level S. S. 9.00
Wake Chapel 47.41
126.31
Eastern Va. Conference:

Bethlehem (Nans) Special $ 14.80
Portsmouth, First S. S. . 16.43
31.23
N. C. and Va. Conference:
Bethel $ 10.63
Durham S. S. 26.07
Ingram S. S. 3.96
Reidsville S. S. 100.00
140.66
Virginia Valley Conference:
Bethel S. S. $ 2.00
Mt. Olivet (G), S. S. ... 3.00
Newport S. S. 30.05
35.05
Total $ 333.25
Grand Total $4,188.68

Special Offerings.

Amount brought forward $3,524.03
Reliable Bible Class, Portsmouth, First Church for Raymond Arnold $ 5.00
Elder Cong. Christian Ch., Dadeville, Ala. 1.64
West Mem. Bible Class, Suffolk Christian Church 33.90
Ladies' and Men's Bible Class, Winchester Ch. for Barbara Jean Arnold 6.00
Julia Smith S. S. Class, High Point Church for Marjorie Oakes 10.00
Junior Class, Bethlehem (Nans.) Christian Ch. 10.00
Mrs. George B. Vick, Courtland, Va. 10.00
Maude Hedley Bible Class, Rosemont Christian Ch. for Angelee Haith ... 15.00
Philathea Class, Suffolk Christian Church for W. C. and Raymond Harvell 5.00
John Morrison Bible Class, South Norfolk Ch., for Jo Ann Arnold 10.00
West Memorial Bible Class, Suffolk Christian Ch. for Marie Proctor and Marjorie Oakes 10.00
Theo. R. Eason, South Norfolk, Va. 50.00
(Continued on page 15.)

MEMORIAL GIFTS

"Instead of Flowers"

Dr. John G. Truitt
Christian Orphanage
Elon College, N. C.

Dear Dr. Truitt:

Please acknowledge the enclosed $..... as a memorial gift sent to the Christian Orphanage in lieu of flowers in memory of:

(Name of Deceased)

(City)

(Date of Death)

(Survivor to be Written)

(Address)

Name.....

Address.....

Morehead Planetarium at Chapel Hill Presents Easter Program

The fourth annual Easter program opened at the Morehead Planetarium last week. Presentations have been given every evening and on Saturday and Sunday afternoons. Around 20,000 visitors are expected to attend the Easter program.

"Easter, The Awakening," which is the title of this year's presentation, combines science and religion in a beautiful seasonal concept. Huge scenes portray the glory of Easter and its significance. These sets cover a combined length of half the perimeter of the large Planetarium dome, and range in height up to thirty-five feet above the audience. They are concealed from the audience until the psychological moment, when successively they appear, bathed in warm colors, to visibly relate the narrated scriptures. The sequences include "The Last Supper," "The Agony in the Garden," "The Crucifixion," "The Sepulchre," and "The Resurrection."

An altar with forty-one candles, ranging in height up to six feet, supports a great "stained glass" window. The altar adorns the figure of the risen Christ, which occupies the central panel of the window. This set alone spans the entire southern portion of the chamber. When completely illuminated by almost seven thousand watts of power, this work of art provides an exalting climax to the greatest of all stories: that of Easter, the season of awakening for nature and man.

Alcoholic Beverages Consumption Increases in United States

Official records show that alcoholic beverage consumption in the U. S. A. has increased 124.6 per cent from 1934 to 1952, while the consumption of alcohol in these beverages has gone from 0.53 gallons per capita in 1934, to 1.39 gallons per capita in 1952, an increase of 162 per cent, declares the American Business Men's Research Foundation, in making public an appraisal of records since the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Although there has been some fluctuation during the past 18 years, beer consumption, which was only 7.90 gallons in 1934, has made an increase of 115 per cent, to 16.95 gallons in 1952. This represents a drop of 2.91 gallons per capita, as compared with the peak year of 1945.

Wine consumption, however, has broken all previous records of per capita consumption, making an upward leap of more than 507 per cent increase, 1934 to 1952. In 1934, wine consumption was recorded as 0.14 gallons per capita. By 1952, however, with slight fluctuations, this reached a per capita of 0.85 gallons, a more than 500 per cent increase in the first years of the repeal period.

As far as whiskey, and its intimate, though minor, relations, brandy, gin and rum are concerned, they have registered, from 1934 to 1952, an overall of 203 per cent increase in per capita consumption, although from 1946 to 1952, there has been a drop from 1.39 gallons to exactly 1 gallon in the latter year, according to the official records.

Automobile Accident Toll Record Set in 1952

More than two million casualties, the worst automobile accident toll in the nation's history, were recorded in 1952, according to figures released recently by The Travelers Insurance Companies of Hartford, Conn.

Last year's traffic deaths totaled 37,600, an increase of 500 over the 1951 mark. The injury count soared to 2,900,000, more than 127,000 over 1951.

The company statisticians collect and analyze accident facts from each state, and then compile the totals:

The most dangerous mistake in driving last year was excessive speed. Speed killed 13,430 persons and injured nearly 600,000, according to the report. Drivers under 25 years old were involved in almost 25 per cent of the year's fatal accidents, although they constitute only about 15 per cent of the total of all drivers.

More than 15,000 persons were killed, and nearly 750,000 hurt in weekend crashes in 1952. Forty per cent of the deaths and 36 per cent of the injuries occurred on Saturdays and Sundays last year.

However, it was the second consecutive year of improvement in the pedestrian record. Pedestrian casualties were reduced by more than eight per cent in 1952. Crossing between intersections, "jay walking," still is the chief cause of pedestrian death and injuries.

Three out of four 1952 auto accidents happened to passenger cars that were being driven in clear weather on dry roads.

Eighty per cent of vehicles involved in fatal accidents were traveling straight ahead.

Saturday was found to be the most dangerous day of the week to drive.

1952 was the third consecutive year of increase in the death toll.

Farms of Today Are Run on Motor Fuel

About 10 billion gallons of motor fuel are consumed on U. S. farms annually, according to a recent survey of the national farm market.

This approximates one-fourth of total U. S. consumption of gasoline.

The farm figure includes fuel used in stationary engines, but cars, trucks and tractors account for more than seven billion gallons.

A fifth of all farmers, it was learned drive their automobiles at least 15,000 miles a year, while the same proportion put that much mileage on their trucks in a year's time.

Four billion gallons of motor fuel are sold directly to farmers each year by tank trucks, the survey found.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

(Continued from page 12.)

tensively, preached unceasingly, wrote voluminously, prayed earnestly, witnessed courageously, organized and administered successfully, suffered indiscribably, lived sacrificially and triumphantly, and died gloriously and gladly for his Lord. Nothing counted with him but Christ. Christ was his passion and his pride, and his personal possession.

Based on "International Sunday School Lessons;" Copyrighted 1951 by Division of Christian Education, National Council of the Churches in the U. S. A.

THE ORPHANAGE.

(Continued from page 14.)

New Hope Christian S. S., Roanoke, Ala.	3.50
Miss Clarice Gunn, Reids- ville, N. C. for Jo Ann Black	25.00
Miss. Circle, Hillside Chris- tian Ch., La Grange, Ga.	20.00
Miss L. Kennedy,, Worth- ville, N. C.	10.00
The Bertha Mitchell S. S. Class, Liberty, Vance, Christian Church	5.00
Mrs W. K. Wise, S. S. Class, Franklin Ch. for Mattie O'Neil	10.00
Joe King, Burlington, N. C.	5.00
Special Gifts	54.80
		$ 299.84
Grand Total		$3,823.87
Total for the week		$ 633.09
Total for the year		$8,012.55

Moonelon--Southern Convention Conference Center

PROPOSED -DINING-ADMINISTRATIVE BLDG.

FLOOR PLAN

(See note on page 3 of this issue)

The CHRISTIAN SUN

ORGAN OF THE SOUTHERN CONVENTION OF CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES

In Essentials Unity — In Non-Essentials, Liberty, — In All Things, Charity

VOLUME CV

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, APRIL 9, 1953

NUMBER 15

How Others Know We Are Christians

By our kindness and compassion,
By our help to those in need,
By our sympathetic patience,
By our willingness to heed;

By our happiness and gladness,
By unfailing charity,
By our tender ministrations,
Lord, may we interpret Thee.

By our eagerness to follow
Humble in the Master's way;
By our loyalty and meekness,
By our courage day by day;

By our kind consideration,
By forgiveness full and free,
By our just appreciation,
Lord, may we interpret Thee.

By our strength in overcoming,
By refusing selfish gain,
By response to those who struggle,
By relieving woe and pain.

Just by daily, helpful service
May we true disciples be,
Showing forth the love of Jesus,
Lord, and thus interpret Thee.

—Anonymous.

News Flashes

Encouraging reports come from other areas regarding the National Church Building Loan Fund Campaign. What has your church done?

A number of our churches have conducted their campaigns for the Elon College "Two and One Half Million Dollar Fund." Has your church completed its campaign?

The Richmond Church received fifteen new members into its fellowship on Easter Sunday morning. Thirteen of these were adults and two youth; nine on confession of faith, six by letter of transfer. Dr. Helfenstein also christened one child. The Youth Fellowship of the church held a sunrise service followed by an Easter Breakfast, to which 60 remained.

How many new members did your church receive on Easter Sunday? Has there been anything of unusual interest happening in your church? Are you starting a new project? Mr. Preacher, get your church clerk to send us a postal card, with the news on it. Or do it yourself. Other people are interested in what you are doing. Send it direct to the office of publication at 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond 19, Va. And do it now!

On Maundy Thursday evening, the people of the First Church, Norfolk, participated in a very fine and inspiring service. Added to the regular observance of the Lord's Supper, the choir under the direction of Mrs. James Ambruster gave it's Easter Cantata, "The Divine Redeemer," by Lorenz-Gounod. Mrs. Paul Sieloff, church organist, accompanied the choir. On Easter Sunday morning, nine new members were admitted to the fellowship, bringing the total received so far this year up to thirteen.

Rev. R. E. Brittle, pastor of the Bethlehem Congregational Christian Church of Nansemond County, near Suffolk, Virginia, on March 8, observed his twenty-fifth anniversary of this church. On the occasion of this anniversary, the church was presented a portrait of him by the Sunday school, and to Mr. Brittle went a cash purse towards the purchase of a new automobile. Hearty congratulations to Mr. Brittle. He is one of our most faithful and consecrated ministers and an able pastor and leader. May good health and long years of continued service be his portion.

Harvey L. Carnes, the new pastor of our church at Franklin, Virginia, is a native of Kentucky, where he graduated from Asbury College and Asbury Theological Seminary. He came into our fellowship in 1948, serving as pastor of the Congregational Church of Addington, Mass., until 1951. Following his ministry in Massachusetts, he served as minister of youth in our great First Congregational Church, St. Petersburg, Florida. Both Mr. and Mrs. Carne are consecrated and capable leaders, and we wish for them a most happy ministry with our Franklin people.

REV. HARVEY L. CARNES

Washington Township Sunday School Convention

For a number of years four churches in Guilford County—Oseola Baptist, Friedens Lutheran, Browns Pilgrim Holiness, and Apples Chapel Congregational Christian—have met annually in the interest of the Sunday School. The meeting is known as Washington Township Sunday School Convention. While the Baptist Church no longer cooperates in this work, the other three churches continue their interest.

On Sunday, March 29th, it was our privilege to attend this meeting and to share in the program held at Apples Chapel. The church was filled to capacity. Mr. R. M. Murrell of Apples Chapel, president, and his associates, planned a good program around the general theme "Sunday School working together for better community understanding."

Beginning at 11:00 A. M., Rev. J. R. Lackey, pastor of Apple's Chapel, led the congregation in the invocation. The devotional service was conducted by Rev. Keith Beam, pastor of Friedens Lutheran Church. Parts on the program were taken by the three pastors: "The Difference in Our Community Churches," by Mr. Beam (elsewhere in this issue will be found Mr. Beam's excellent paper); "The Similarities of Our Community Churches," by Mr. Lackey; "The Ways of Better Community Understanding," by Rev. C. A. Brown of the Pilgrim Holiness Church; and the concluding address was given by Superintendent Wm. T. Scott.

The splendid fellowship and concern of these three churches meeting together in a desire better to serve their fine rural community were a source of pleasure to the writer.

WM. T. SCOTT.

Statement Made at the Celebration of Rev. R. E. Brittle's Twenty-Fifth Anniversary

By EDWARD T. JOHNSON
Supt., Bethlehem Sunday School.

Rev. Mr. Brittle, the members of this church realize that today brings to a close your twenty-fifth year of service to the Christian Churches of this county—twenty-five years of untiring work and faithful service to Nansemond County.

We know that this is your silver anniversary and realize that this is a day of celebration for you. We, the people of Bethlehem Church, want you to know that we, too, rejoice in the fact and are grateful to God that twentyfive years ago you came to this great county which we love so dearly, and which most of us call home. You may look back upon these years as unforgettable years to each and every one of us present today—you have made them so. You have indeed made foot prints on the sands of Nansemond County, foot prints visible to all, foot prints which many yet unborn will plainly see.

I know of no words better to describe your twenty-five years of service to this community than those of a poem by Dr. John G. Truitt:

Yours were twenty-five fine years of serving,

From early youth to days more mature:

Twenty-five years of constant building

Life on foundation which aye endure.

Your earnest prayers, your Christian counsel,

Given for our parents ere we were born,

Your ceaseless work as friend and pastor,

These lives of ours henceforth shall adorn.

(Continued on page 10.)

Laymen and the Church . . .

J. Earl Danieley, Editor, Box 515, Elon College, N. C.

Another Encouraging Report

Today we present a report from one of the youngest churches in our fellowship. The Beverly Hills Church in Burlington is doing a fine work in many respects; the report which we are publishing today is an indication from one phase of the work. It is highly encouraging to take note of the fine progress being made by some of our "younger" churches and some of the "newly organized" men's groups.

The Beverly Hills Fellowship

In August of 1952 our Laymen's Fellowship was organized. We now have 23 members. Since being organized we have been able to accomplish a number of things. One of the most outstanding things we have been able to do is to sponsor the Boy Scouts of our church. This troop was organized the first of February of this year. Mr. Robert Blue is our Scoutmaster and Mr. T. A. Vincent is our Assistant Scoutmaster. Our Scout Committee is made up of the following: Walter L. Baker, Chairman, Robert Lynch, Henry Oakley, Norman Burke, and R. O. Wilkins, Jr. Our Institutional Representative is J. L. Faulkner, Jr. On Sunday, March 22nd at our evening service our Scout Troop presented a most interesting program. At this service each Scout was also presented with the badge he had achieved since the troop was organized. Our Layman's Fellowship feels it is a privilege to sponsor such a group. We can already see that this scouting program is adding a lot to the total work of our church.

The officers of our Layman's group are as follows: Mr. W. C. Perry, Jr., President; Mr. T. A. Vincent, Vice-President; Mr. Jack Rhodes, Treasurer; and Mr. Odell Gregory, Secretary.

W. W. SNYDER,
Pastor.

Further Plans for This Column

Within the next few days a questionnaire will be sent to the officers of local Men's Fellowships for the purpose of obtaining information for use in this column. Among the desired items of information will be a list of the officers, the date of organization of the Fellowship, the projects which have been undertaken, methods used in financing projects, frequency of meetings, types of programs, and the extent of participation by the men of the church in the work of the Fellowship. Your editor hopes to use the information obtained in this manner for writing reports about the work in each of the churches and also, if possible, combine the results of the questionnaires to give some statistics which will be of interest. Your cooperation in promptly returning the information requested will be greatly appreciated.

Talladega College to Inaugurate
New President

On April 8, 9, 10, many noted educators are assembling on a campus set within the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains—the campus of Talladega College—to honor a man who since his college graduation in 1929 has moved into a place of leadership in two large areas of human endeavor.

It is quite fitting that educators and churchmen intermingle throughout the program, for in the entire 86 years of Talladega's history they are inseparably interwoven.

The occasion of this meeting is the formal inauguration of Dr. Arthur D. Gray as president of Talladega. Dr. Gray has been acting as president

(Continued on page 15.)

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr

A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom as represented by the Congregational Christian Churches.

Our Principles

1. The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

2. Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

3. The Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

4. Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and church membership.

5. The right of private judgment and liberty of conscience is a privilege that should be accorded to and exercised by all.

Managing Editor John T. Kernodle

Departmental Editors—Convention, Wm. T. Scott; Missions, F. C. Lester; Women's Work, Mrs. F. C. Lester; Young People's Work, Max Vestal; Children, Mrs. R. L. House; Sunday School Lesson, H. S. Hardcastle.

Institutional Representatives—Elon College, L. E. Smith; The Christian Orphanage, John G. Truitt.

Board of Publications—Duane Vore, Chairman, S. T. Holland, Secretary; R. C. Helfenstein, S. E. Madren, W. W. Snyder, G. D. Colclough, Treasurer, ex officio.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES
One Year	$3.00
Two Years	5.00

Published by the Board of Publications of The Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches, Inc. Printed every Thursday except the last in June and December by Central Publishing Co., Inc., Richmond, Va.

Entered as second-class matter at the Post Office at Richmond Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

General contributions should be addressed to the editor at Southern Pines, N. C., and should reach him by Wednesday of the week preceding date of publication.

Departmental material should be sent to the proper departmental editor, at the address shown on their page.

All other material and business communications except regarding subscriptions should be sent to the Office of Publication, 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond 19, Va.

The Christian Sun Subscription Blank

Subscription Price: 1 year, $3.00; 2 years, $5.00

Date.....195....

Dr. Wm. T. Scott, Supt.,
Elon College, N. C.

Enclosed find $..... for which please send The Christian Sun
() 1 year, () 2 years — () New Subscription, () Renewal.

To

Address

Who is a member of Church
() Renew, () Enter my own subscription for () 1 year, () 2 years.

My Name

My Address

From the EDITOR'S Desk

The Importance of Worship

By STANLEY C. HARRELL

"If you can't get people to come to the services of worship, you can't do much for them." In these words are summed up the convictions of a minister who has had a remarkable success in the capacity of pastor in the far West. Those of you who have had years of experience in the work of the Church, look back over the way that you have come and see whether or not your convictions fit in with this declaration. There are those who do not hesitate to say that they find the worship services of the church dull and uninteresting. How many men or women do you know who have attained a satisfactory religious experience by going their separate and individual ways? How many men or women have rendered a service to the kingdom that is worthy of mention, who have not been regular attendants at the services of worship? Take a look at what is going on in the average church, and see if much is being done for, or with, or through the folks who are church members but do not attend services of worship.

If there is as much truth in this preacher's statement as the facts seem to indicate, is there not occasion to present the matter of church attendance in a different light? Church members have been told that it is their religious duty to attend church, and it is. But perhaps it would be equally true to tell the careless church members and all others that unless they attend the services of worship that there is not much that can be done with them. It is time that the church member face the facts. When the doctor is dealing with a difficult case, he does not hesitate to tell his patient or the nurse that unless his directions are followed that there is nothing much that he can do for the patient. After all, there is no one who has so great an interest at stake in the spiritual condition of the individual as the individual himself. And he ought to know exactly what is his part, if anything is to be done for him.

The Place of Religion in Democracy

By ROY C. HELFENSTEIN

The Christian religion is the very foundation of democracy. It lays emphasis upon the importance of education and seeks to encourage people to think for themselves. Communism encourages people to refuse to think for themselves, and insists that others do their thinking for them.

The intelligence and initiative of the average citizen determines the strength and success of democracy. In a democracy, the ballot of the ignorant and irresponsible voter counts for as much as the ballot of the most intelligent person. The possibilities under such a system are easily apparent. If 51 per cent of the voters are ruled by prejudice and ignorance, progress is blocked. That is the risk democracy takes. Is the risk worth taking? Russia, led by ignorance in her quest for democracy, got communism instead; Germany, ruled by prejudice in her quest for democracy, got fascism instead. The slogan in the first world war was, "Making the world safe for democracy." It was a good slogan, but it is of even greater importance to have "democracy that is safe for the world." The possibilities for bad as well as for good in democracy, make education and religion the more imperative. Democracy must be based, to be safe, on reverence for God and an intelligent citizenry.

Christian democracy is more than a political system and more than a form of government; it is an ethical principle which does not depend upon a certain type of government. It may succeed in a monarchy; it may fail in a republic. Christian democracy depends upon faith in the Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man. Such faith is the very heart of democratic life.

The Christian religion lays the greatest emphasis upon respect for human personality and human rights of all religions. Jesus placed the individual as of more value in the sight of God than all the world beside. Democracy cannot survive without religion. Jesus gave the foundation of democracy in his words, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy mind and with all thy strength, and thy neighbor as thyself."

Fascism and communism consider the individual as nothing and God as but a myth. People who believe in God and are sincerely concerned about the personal rights and the personal privileges of individual people, stand on common ground with Jesus and the founders of our national life. Both religion and education are essential in democracy.

American democracy calls for a knowledge of things and their forces, and a knowledge of men and their ways, and a knowledge of God and his love. Only knowledge touched with love for God and man can make a "democracy that is safe for the world."

"Is Anybody Listening?"

An Address by MRS. WILLIAM T. SCOTT, Conference President
Given before the North Carolina Missionary Rallies

Two thousand years ago the command was given, "Go ye into all the world." Down through the years, the same voice has been vibrating on the ears of each generation, and to-day, if we are listening, we can still hear that mandate of our Lord: "Go ye" to my people in their need.

Many individuals have heard and answered this call. You know their names as well as I do—St. Paul, Livingstone, Schweitzer, Kagawa, Laubach, and all the others. The Christian Church for centuries has been at work under the command—sometimes weakly to be sure, but sometimes quite strongly. Always the call has been answered partially and incompletely, and with varying results.

Recent records show that we have Christian Churches in 159 countries, with a total of 692,400,000 members. This sounds good to our ears—does it not?—until we hear the figures on the other side of the ledger! Are you listening, can you hear me? There are 1,364,600,000 people in the world who are non-Christians! This means there are nearly seven hundred million more on the non-Christian side than on the Christian side! They outnumber us two to one! Is it strange, then, to have had World Wars I and II, and maybe III? And rumors of more wars, IV and V? Somehow, we must unstop our ears and hear again, in obedience to the command!

The voice of God is calling its summons unto—us
As once He spoke in Zion, so now He speaks again.

Whom shall I send to succor my people in their need?
Whom shall I send to loosen the bonds of lust and greed?

Can Christ count on our North Carolina Woman's Conference? Are we listening?

I believe our national church leaders are hearing and answering the call. This year 26 Protestant groups have determined to look together at "The Life and Task of the Church Around the World." This is our Mission Study Theme for 1953-54. Our program theme for our women's work is "Rejoicing in Our Task."

Dr. Truman B. Douglass, executive vice-president of our Board of Home Missions, speaking on our theme, had this to say: "The congregation which is mainly pre-occupied with its own comfort, prosperity and enjoyment of its inner fellowship has obviously forgotten why it exists. It has surrendered its reason for being and its title to be called a church." He further stated that "the simplest prescription and the surest for the revivifying of a devitalized and moribund church is to provide it with a sense of mission that will save it from introversion." Those are big words, typical of Dr. Douglass' literary genius! But it is clear what he means. I am sure that each of us knows of some such church, in which this has happened — some church, nearing death, which has been brought to life because two or three or more members began to listen to the whole gospel—listening not only to the comforting and assuring words of Christ, "Lo, I am with you always," and these are wonderful words, but also listening to his "Go ye, and make disciples."

I believe that our North Carolina Conference is listening, and that together we shall go out in his service. It is my hope and ambition that together we may kindle a missionary spark in every church of our conference. To this end your district superintendents and other board members, together with Miss Coghill, have started to work. Many churches have already been contacted, and one society has been reorganized. Others are being revitalized and are in the making.

But we have found facts that rather concern us: We have, according to the figures in our latest Annual, 133 churches. We have 82 societies in our North Carolina Conference, of which number 68 contribute regularly to the on-going work of missions. Their names are included on our treasurer's books. But what of those other 65 churches? Some of them are on our rolls, but appear to be inactive. It would be unfair, certainly, and perhaps untrue, to assume that they are not mission-minded, or do not have a missionary zeal. But the fact remains that almost half of our churches do not claim to have organized missionary groups.

Does this not offer a challenge to you in the local societies? Could we not mobilize our forces and go out in His name to each of these 65 churches before our fall conference. At least we can make a survey and report our findings. Maybe they are doing a wonderful job, but we need to know even that. We, ourselves, could benefit from the experience.

We have a plan. We have a list of the churches and have placed a star by the ones already having, to our knowledge, missionary societies. As new societies are formed, stars will be placed by that church's name. Our goal will be a star for every church. After that? Well, we will build more churches! Would you visit one of these 65 churches? That might well be your extra achievement goal. Your reward would be the satisfaction of bringing new life to a dying church. These are some of our opportunities! Is anybody listening?

The wonderful reports which have been given here today are evidence to the fact that you are listening. I am proud of the work that you are doing. Some of you are doing all that seems possible to be done. Our treasurer tells us that more money came in during last quarter than in any other quarter during her fourteen years of service. Somebody is listening! Our Thank Offering for Carroll County has reached the sum of $2,217.22—perhaps one of the largest Thank Offerings that we have ever given. But even that is not enough. To whom much is given, much is required. A North Carolina newspaper carried recently, no doubt unwittingly, a sharp contrast between conditions in America and those of other countries. The headline said, "Year's first quarter shows average weekly wage of $53.61 for this area." Then boxed in, just to fill up space at the end of the article, was this statement: "Sardines are sold one at a time from the opened can in China, because few people can afford a whole can." That is probably an exaggeration, but the headline is a fact. We are a privileged and fortunate people.

Our recent Mid-Winter Meetings in Cleveland, Ohio, served as a real "hearing aid" to your new and inexperienced president. Somehow, I came away burdened by the many needs of the world, and with a keen sense of my responsibility to the North Carolina Conference. For five days and nights we heard the reports, the plans and the pleas for "Our Christian World Mission." Like the poet, "Still I gazed and still the won-

(Continued on page 13.)

The Differences in Our Community Churches

By Rev. Keith Beam*

The first point of difference which the individual would most readily notice between our churches is that of the places of worship themselves. For example, the Lutheran Church has certain furnishings which are common to every Lutheran Church in the land—such as altar, lectern, pulpit. While there are no requirements as to how these are arranged, the pattern for their arrangement is pretty generally accepted by all such churches. The Congregational Christian Church, since it is its own complete authority, is completely free to design its church furniture in line with the wishes of the congregation. That is, they are at complete freedom to arrange it in any manner they wish, so long as it is helpful to the conducting of divine service. Likewise, the Pilgrim Holiness Church gives a great deal of freedom to the local congregation, in that it has no prescribed standards along which they are supposed to furnish their house of worship. Of course, they, too, furnish their church along the lines which is more conducive to true worship.

The next area of difference is to be found in the service of Divine Worship itself. The Congregational Christian Church, in maintaining the principle that each church is its own authority, and that no rules from above are binding unless the churches themselves subscribe to those rules, are completely free to conduct the service of worship as they see fit. So here you will readily see the services will, inevitably, vary with different churches, since each church can plan its own program of worship. The Pilgrim Holiness, also, maintains the right of each congregation to work out its own form of worship. Each church is free to institute those forms of worship which seem to have the most meaning for them. The only requirement is that such worship services be with dignity, in order, and in a spirit of holiness. While the Lutheran Church is not required to follow any set pattern, it is almost universally true that it does. There is a definite Order of Service prescribed in the Common Service Book, which all Lutherans are urged and requested to use.

The next prominent difference to be found is in the realm of Church Government. The most authoritative ecclesiastical government is to be found in the Pilgrim Holiness Church. Their churches are super-

Pleasant Grove Sunday School Honors Aged Member

The Sunday School members of Pleasant Grove Christian Church of Bennett, N. C., paid special honor to one of their members on February 1, 1953. Mrs. Sarah Brown (known to everyone as "Aunt Sarah") who is 84 years old had just completed a perfect attendance of four years in

MRS. SARAH BROWN

Sunday School. She is a member of the Adult Women's Class and very active in spite of her age.

This special day had been designated as "Aunt Sarah's Day." She was presented with a perfect attendance pin by her teacher, Mrs. H. H. Bray, a beautiful corsage by the class, and the Sunday School presented a gift in her honor. The flowers for the church that day were given by her grandchildren. She is the mother of six children who were present; also four sisters and one brother. She has also been a mother to one family of five grandchildren whose mother died several years ago. Her life in her church and community has been a useful one as well as an honorable one.

Rev. Bill Simmons, the pastor, paid tribute to her for her faithful attendance to her Sunday school and church and her loyal service to God.

vised, on the local level, by District Superintendents, and on the national level and above by the General Superintendent, and assistants, the First and Second Assistant Superintendent. In matters of Church Polity, their position is final. These Superintendents are elected to their position, and must be re-elected every four years. Then, on the other hand, the Congregational Christian Church maintains the most complete freedom. They have Convention or Conference Superintendents and Presidents, but they can only make suggestions in regard to Church Polity. But whether or not the suggestions are carried out is up to the individual congregation. The Lutheran Church fits somewhere in between the two. While its local and national officials do not carry absolute authority, their position is more than suggestive. They cannot compel their ministers to any one certain course of action, but their advice and recommendations carry quite a good deal of weight. Their officials are elected on a conference, or local, basis; on a state-wide, or synod-wide basis, and on a national basis.

The last major difference is that of doctrine. In pursuing its policy of the independence of the local congregation, the Congregational Christian Church maintains the principle that the local congregational is free to determine which doctrines it will teach.† There is no creedal basis for the whole church, so each congregation is free to decide for itself. The Pilgrim Holiness Church recognizes four statements as its doctrinal position: 1. Regeneration by faith; 2. Sanctification by faith; 3. Divine healing; 4. The Second Coming of Christ. All Pilgrim Holiness Churches are required to subscribe to these statements. The Lutheran Church, as its doctrinal position, recognizes the Apostle's, Nicene, and Athanasian Creeds as being completely in accord with Scripture. There are also various other writings by Luther and his immediate followers, to which all Lutheran Churches must subscribe as being in accord with Scripture.

*The above address was delivered by Rev. Keith Beam, pastor of Friedens Lutheran Church, at the Washington Township Sunday School Convention held at Apple's Chapel Congregational Christian Church on Sunday, March 29. The Lutheran, the Pilgrim Holiness and the Congregational Christian Churches cooperate in this Township Sunday School Convention.

†The Congregational Christian Church in the South subscribes to the "Five Cardinal Principles" as printed in the mast-head of this paper, on page 3.

News of Elon College

PRESIDENT L. E. SMITH, Elon College, N. C.

Elon College News Items

The Music Department of the college has given us quite a few inspiring and helpful programs recently. Professor Alton Jones, instructor in the Juilliard School of Music, New York City, gave a piano recital recently to the delight and enjoyment of all who were present. Fred Sahlmann, a graduate of Elon College and now a student at Teacher's College, Columbia University, returned to the College on Saturday evening of last week and favored the faculty, students and his many friends with a full piano recital. Fred is really a brilliant pianist. He has the ability to make a first class concert pianist. Charles Lyman, a student at New York University, was on the campus for the weekend. The faculty, students and friends were delighted to see him. The Music Department sang "The Seven Last Words," by Dubois on Sunday evening at 8:15. It was a beautiful and inspiring rendition. The college and all who know them are proud of the Elon College Singers and the magnificent work they are doing.

* * *

The present college year is slipping away. We are now well into the work and requirements of the last quarter. The enrollment in college this year has been quite satisfactory. Prospects for 1953-54 are good. The co-operation of the church in the matter of enrolling our own church young people is desirable and would be of great benefit. Do you have members of your church who are high school seniors? If so, speak to them about our college. Send Mrs. Burns their names and have them make inquiry concerning admission.

* * *

The Elon College Baseball Club is getting off to a good start. They have played three games so far this season. The scores were: Elon 2, Williams College 0; Elon 16, Connecticut Wesleyan, 0; Elon 3, Ohio University 0.

* * * * *

Have You Prayed

Two-and-one-half million dollars is a lot of money. It is a lot of money for the constituents of Elon College to secure for the college. Officials, friends and interested individuals have said to me on different occasions, "This is too much money to expect the churches in the Southern Convention to contribute, even over a period of ten years. It is simply too much; we can't do it." I have had only two persons to say to me that the churches in the Southern Convention could contribute this much for the well being of our college if we wanted to.

A fundamental question is have we arrived at a decision concerning this necessary and vitally important question. Have we arrived at a negative decision on the basis of what we give for all purposes or have we made our decision on the basis of what we have left after we have given? The biblical story concerning the widow's mite is familiar to us all. The Lord said, "She hath given more than all." Not because of the amount she cast in, but because of after giving her mite, she had nothing left. The Lord does not expect us to give all that we have, but he does expect that we shall share what we have for the coming of his kingdom.

Old Testament exhortation would require us to give one tenth of our earnings with a promise of abundant blessings. The New Testament standard of giving does not abrogate the Old Testament standards but emphasizes that standard, urging that we lay aside on the first day of every week according as the Lord has prospered us. Truly, what we give is a part of what the Lord has lent us. We only give back that which is his own.

The question that confronts every sincere Christian is, "Can I afford to give less than one tenth of what I make out of the gratitude of my heart for the blessing that I have received, knowing that all things come from God, that it is his to give and his to withhold, that Paul may plant, and Apollos may water, but that God giveth the increase?" Too many good, sincere Christians deny themselves of material prosperity and spiritual enrichment by withholding from him for themselves that which is justly his.

We, as a church, have no right to say we cannot give this or that, until we have really given, in addition to one-tenth, our offerings and put God to the test to see what the fruits of our giving shall be. If our people would tithe their income and bring their tithes into the storehouse of the Lord, there would be plenty of money for any Convention program, for any and all of our institutions, and for any normal expectation from our united church. May God give us the faith and the courage to obey his command and follow the leading of his spirit.

The way for any Christian to settle these questions is by way of prayer. Have we prayed for our college? Have we prayed for our brethren? Have we prayed for ourselves, that we all may give what we should, knowing that when we do, God will bless us and bless what we have left for ourselves. He will give the increase.

* * * * *

The Two and One Half Million Dollar Campaign

The members of the church, the alumni, and friends who have contributed generously to the campaign fund are becoming anxious to know what the results are from the local churches, from the alumni, from our friends, and what the total received to date is from all sources. We had planned to make a detailed report for this week's CHRISTIAN SUN and the current Alumni News. However, we find that to make a detailed, accurate report is an arduous task and a difficult thing to do.

I should say that a number of our churches have conducted the campaign with fairly good results—some very good. A larger number of our churches have not, as yet, made a report. One encouraging factor about the campaign is that there are certain individuals who are making, or proposing to make larger donations; and some of these individuals have put themselves on record as having put the college in their wills for substantial amounts. Others are making their contributions now, that the college may have the use of the money as it faces the present crisis and that they may have the satisfaction of directing the investment of their funds and the joy of seeing the same at work for the college while they live. We hope to be able to report some of these individual gifts in a subsequent issue of THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

(Continued on page 11.)

Foreign Mission Projects Of The Southern Convention . . .

The Work of Our American Board In Johannesburg, Africa

The travel agencies describe Johannesburg as "the city of gold." So it is: built on gold fields at the turn of the century, its economy today is largely based on the gold from its mines. The travel booklets picture Johannesburg as a modern city, with clean and pretty streets, with large marble halls and with gently sloping lawns. They show a healthy, sunny, beautiful place, peopled apparently only by whites.

But there is another side of Johannesburg. "Cry the Beloved Country" portrayed that other side both in words and film. Johannesburg is also a city of slums, of black men compressed into "native townships" which are circumscribed in area despite tremendous population growth. And, though the travel booklets never hint so, it is also a city of fear. Time magazine, in a recent issue, indeed, called it a city of terror.

The American Board works this "other side" of the city of gold. Its message of health—real health, the kind you can feel and see—and of strength and hope for the oppressed is the really good news that Johannesburg needs.

Five Congregational Christian missionaries are permanently assigned to work in Johannesburg. They are:

LEE and MADGE BERGSMAN. Lee is supervisor of the African churches and schools—"The Bantu Congregational Churches of the American Board"—in Johannesburg and the Transvaal. Madge, in addition to caring for the two Bergsman children, supervises the teaching of domestic science in missions schools in the city.

CORRINE NORDQUEST. She, like the Bergsmans, is a younger missionary and supervises religious education in the African churches. She does some social work too.

RAY and DORA PHILLIPS. Dr. Phillips is director of the Jan Hofmeyr School of Social Work for African and Indian students, which is helping many Africans, both directly and indirectly, to better their lot. Mrs. Phillips teaches in the Hofmeyr

School, and also helps manage several girls' clubs and related organizations. Both of the Phillips are recognized as community leaders both by African and European leaders.

The most important part of the American Board's work in the Johannesburg area is the work with the African churches, which were founded as a result of the missionary efforts of an earlier day and which today look to the Board and the mission-

A Service in Johannesburg, So. Africa

aries for counsel, nurture and friendly guidance. The churches number more than 90 and include 2,300 members. They are strong churches, and they make an impact on the African community. To be a church member in Africa means something; you are not admitted until after 18 months of strenuous preparation. These churches are not rich. How could they be when their members earn, on an average, only 37c a day? And yet, the members give far more than we in America in proportion to wealth and strength. When an American Board township school burned recently, the African churches of Johannesburg contributed all of the sum necessary to rebuild it, with the exception of $2,000, which came from America. The churches live in faith.

Alongside these churches stand institutions which have been developed through the concern of missionaries and American Board aid. They are now largely financed locally, though operated in close fellowship with the South African Mission:

BRIDGEMAN MEMORIAL HOSPITAL.

Founded in 1928, it is strictly a maternity hospital. It treats more than 30,000 patients a year.

ALEXANDRA HEALTH CENTER AND UNIVERSITY CLINIC.

Here "better Bantu babies" is an achievement as well as a motto and goal. There has been opened recently a new dental clinic and dental surgery unit.

BANTU MEN'S SOCIAL CENTER.

The center, founded in 1924, provides one of Johannesburg's few settlement houses for Africans.

TALITHA HOME is a home for dependent girls without homes.

DETENTION HOME AND PLACE OF SAFETY, for girls in trouble, awaiting trial.

HELPING HAND CLUB is a hostel for native working girls without a home in the city.

The amount which the American Board spends each year for work in Johannesburg is about $7,000, including missionary salaries, which, with all allowances, average about $200 a month for a family of four. Probably the American Board should be spending five times that amount to adequately accomplish the goals set for itself, but there just is not money available. The American Board does an amazing amount with that little it is able to budget for Johannesburg

(Continued on page 13.)

Church Women at Work

With Emphasis on Missions

MRS. F. C. LESTER, Editor

840 Sunset Avenue, Asheboro, N. C.

Dr. Leiper to Speak at Woman's Missionary Convention

Internationally known Congregational Christian churchman and ecumenical leader, Dr. Henry Smith Leiper of New York City, minister and executive secretary of the Missions Council of Congregational Christian Churches, will speak at the twenty-first biennial session of the Woman's Missionary Convention, at the First Christian Church, Burlington, N. C., on Tuesday evening, April 28, at eight o'clock.

Widely acquainted in interdenominational circles, Dr. Leiper was for twenty-two years the associate general secretary of the World Council of Churches, in which capacity as a Christian "Ambassador-at-large" he traveled thousands of miles annually, much of the time by air. He is honorary secretary of the American Friends of the World Council of Churches.

One of the guiding forces in the ecumenical consultations which presided the setup of the World Council of Churches and from its provisional beginning on its General Secretariat, Dr. Leiper was also ecumenical secretary and consultant to what is now the National Council of Churches of Christ in the U. S. A.

World Traveler.

For a quarter of a century a world traveler who practically "commuted" between the United States and Europe, having made over seventy crossings, Dr. Leiper has also visited in Australia, New Zealand, Malaya and India at the invitation of church and government leaders. He has traveled extensively in the Orient.

With contacts including not only church and political leaders, but the common people in some thirty-seven lands, Dr. Leiper, who possesses a genius for creating warm friendships with people of all races, countries, religious persuasions and economic classes, captivates his audiences by the humanness of his message.

Dr. Leiper knows the missionary movement from both the home point of view and the foreign angle. He was editorial secretary of the Congregational Commission on Missions, the organization which preceded the present Missions Council, and for five years was a missionary of the American Board in China.

Varied Activities.

It was his interest in interchurch aid, aroused by work with the China International Relief Commission in 1918-1922, which made him one of the leaders in setting up the interdenominational overseas relief program of the Protestant churches during World War II. He was a founder of the churches' work for refugees. Recently, at the request of the Indian Government, he served on a commission to study famine conditions in that land.

DR. HENRY SMITH LEIPER

During World War I, Dr. Leiper was with the Army Y. M. C. A. in Siberia and saw the Russian Revolution developing, while later he witnessed the beginnings of Japanese militarism and German Hitlerism in those lands.

The Missions Council of which Dr. Leiper is now the leader is the official joint body of our churches for educating the constituency in matters of home and foreign missions and securing their support. The Missions Council includes the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, the Board of Home Missions and the Council for Social Action.

"A church without a world mission is not a Christian Church" in the opinion of Dr. Leiper.

Dr. Leiper is also an author of note, having written or edited some nineteen books.

Born in New Jersey of Scotch-English ancestry, Dr. Leiper is a graduate of Amherst College, Union Seminary and Columbia University.

* * * * *

The South Norfolk Missionary Society Reports

The South Norfolk Missionary Society, under the leadership of our wonderful president, Mrs. C. N. Harris, has a great record for the past year. We have four groups, with excellent leaders; each held monthly meetings, completing the book of James. The combined circles meet together in quarterly luncheon meetings, the first Wednesday in March, June, September and December. The programs are well prepared on our Home and Foreign study books, dedication of Friendly Service gifts, and our Christmas program. These meetings begin at 10:30 a. m., and have created great fellowship and friendliness for all of our ladies.

I list below a few of our many accomplishments for this year:

We attended the World Day of Prayer service with other churches of our community.

We had good attendance of our ladies at all Rallies and the Conference.

Five of our members attended the School of Missions at Elon.

Apportionment was paid in full; sent $40.00 to Thank Offering, sent two Life Memberships, two Memorials.

Gave Tea honoring Miss Angie Crew, inviting other local societies.

Sent package to Franklinton Center, consisting of towels, sheets, pillow-cases, bed-spreads, scarfs and wash-cloths.

Sent to Ryder Memorial Hospital, 36 children's hospital gowns, made by members, also bandages, adhesive tape and 20 yards of netting.

One hundred pounds of good used clothing were sent to New York for distribution in Lebanon.

Christmas bags were sent to the children of Ellis Island.

Purchased gifts for underprivileged children in our community, for Christmas; filled five baskets of food, completing a Christmas dinner from fowl to desert, for needy families.

Redecorated the pastor's study; redecorated the church parlor; completed the big job of carpeting the

(Continued on page 13.)

A Page for Our Children

MRS. R. L. HOUSE, Editor, Southern Pines, N. C.

When we were hanging our clothes on the line the other day we heard a far-away "tap - tap, tap - tap" like someone knocking at our door instead of ringing our chime. One of the children ran around to let them in, but there wasn't anyone there. Yet we still heard a faint knocking. We laughed, shrugged our shoulders, and began to hang socks when the faint "tap-tap" grew louder. It was then that we discovered the tappers were not callers at our front door, but tenants in our old walnut tree. It was a pair of red-headed woodpeckers and the red-headed woodpeckers and the reason they sounded so faint was—

They were making a nest and their heads were far down in the hole. Have you ever seen a woodpecker nest? It is very neat. First, they make the front door and that must be perfectly round as if bored by a human's auger. It is smooth and slick without a rough edge. Next the inside is hollowed to form a "U" shape hole which is slightly enlarged at the bottom. Our woodpeckers had made their front door and were pecking inside.

We sat on the ground and watched them for some time. The father was very bright with his red crest. He would leave the hole and look for insects. He drilled holes with long, sharp bill. He looked for insects that live under the bark and in the wood of the tree.

Mother Woodpecker was not quite so gay in color but she was certainly busy. She stayed in the nest for long periods of time and all we could see was the tip ends of her stiff tail feathers. Sharp claws and stiff tails enable woodpeckers to cling to the sides of trees and stay upright.

Little bits of bark sawdust would drift down as she backed out of the nest. All morning they worked making their home just right. We left to work in our home and when we came back to see if our clothes were dry, the woodpeckers were resting. They clug, stiff-legged to the side of their home and pecked at each other. From time to time they made their loud, queer call, "Wee-o, queoo, queer." Another woodpecker came to call, but not for long, for Father Woodpecker shoood him off.

We are glad to have the Woodpecker family with us. They are among the most interest of our birds. Watch for the red-headed fellow. You will know them by their knock, knock, and their quier-o call.

* * * * *

"It's Easier to Do It Myself"

By MARION BROWNFIELD.

Issued by the National Kindergarten Association.

"I made an agreement with Janet," said her mother to the music teacher, "that she was to have a modest allowance, just for spending as she pleased. However, in return, she was to make her bed and straighten her room each morning before she went to school, and she was to clean her room every Saturday morning."

"That seems like a good plan," the music teacher replied, "a good, workable plan."

Janet's mother sighed. "I thought so, too. It did work for about a week, then Janet began to forget to do her morning duties."

"Well, of course, she would at least clean her room Saturdays," the music teacher suggested, thinking of the extra time for practicing on the piano which she would need.

"Yes," said Janet's mother, "but I find it's really easier to do it myself than to remind her constantly. If I remind her too often, she says I nag her! Or, if Janet admits she agreed to do it, she has some excuse—that there was something special to do on Saturday, like buying a birthday gift for a party in the afternoon."

"My mother," said the music teacher, "told me this story about herself and my grandmother. They lived about a half a mile in sight of the schoolhouse, and my mother was supposed to hang up her clothes as soon as she changed to her school dress each morning. Mother liked to go early to school, to play with the children before the session started. One morning, however, she heard my grandmother blow a horn for her to return, when she had almost reached the schoolhouse. She came running home in alarm. 'There must be sickness or an accident,' she thought. But my grandmother was calm. She merely said, 'You forgot something!' and she led my mother back to her bedroom. There on the floor lay her clothing just as she had stepped out of it and skipped off to school.

"Shamefacedly, my mother hung up her dress and made her belated way back to school. She never forgot again!" The music teacher laughed. "It seemed to be an object lesson for me, too. I had a never-tardy record at school, and I didn't want to repeat my mother's experience—even though I was always slow about dressing in the morning. There were no harsh words in my grandmother's discipline—but some simple appropriate action that made an impression."

"I've thought of taking Janet's allowance away from her," Janet's mother mused. "But her father says I should leave her bed unmade. Nevertheless, when guests come I hurry in and do it myself! It's easier."

"It's easier for me to count for my pupils," the music teacher remarked. "But that way they are not learning how to do it themselves. I have to remind them, joke them, and use all sorts of strategy!"

"I want Janet to know how to make her own dresses," said her mother. "She's all enthusiasm about buying material and a pattern. And then after I have cut it out and she sews a little while, she begs, 'Mother, you finish it!' and I usually give in. It's really easier than standing over her and showing her how to use the tucker and the gatherer, and she hates to sew on snap-fasteners! So I sew them on. It's easier to do it myself."

REV. BRITTLE HONORED.

(Continued from page 2.)

Today but tokens our true appreciation
Of what the twenty-five years have meant to us all;
Our hearts to God we lift in great thanksgiving
That twenty-five years ago you heard our call.

It is the desire of Bethlehem Sunday School that all who shall enter this church building in the future shall meet face to face with this man who has made so many foot prints on the sands of time.

It is a great honor and privilege for me to present to Bethlehem Christian Church, on behalf of our Sunday school, a portrait of the Rev. Richie E. Brittle.

Rev. Mr. Brittle, may God bless you with health and strength to serve Nansemond County for many more years,

Youth at Work in the Church

REV. MAX VESTAL, R. 1, Asheboro, N. C.

Virginia Valley Youth Rally

The Congregational Christian and the Evangelical and Reformed young people are planning a Spring Youth Rally to be held with the Woodstock E. & R. Church on the afternoon of Sunday, April 19, from 2:30 to 7:30.

If your church does not have an organized youth group, do not let this keep you from attending. This meeting is for all young people who are, or ought to be, connected with our churches, between the ages of ten and 24.

Begin making plans now to have a representative group present from your church. Each person can pick his or her favorite group, but be sure that everyone who wants to attend gets a way to do so.

If possible, bring with you one item of food or used clothing. Also bring supper for your group. The drink and dessert will be furnished by the Woodstock church.

The program for the afternoon follows:

- 2:30 Fellowship Period, led by Rev. Paul Helm, of the E. & R. Church of Harrisonburg.
- 3:15 Presentation of the Theme by Rev. H. V. Harman.
- 3:45 Discussion Groups for Seniors 9th grade and above:
 - 1. This Life of Mine—Vocation.
 - 2. These Friends of Mine—Boy-Girl Relations.
 - 3. This World of Mine—War, Peace, Young People.
 - 4. Leadership Training.
- 3:45 Activity Groups for Juniors below the 9th grade:
 - 1. My Church and I—How to know each other better.
 - 2. My Friends and I—Friendship and fellowship.
 - 3. My Friends of the World—Getting to know them better.
 - 4. Music and Worship Group.
- 5:00 Out-door Activities.
- 5:30 Supper.
- 6:30 Workcamp Experiences, by a college student of the E. & R. Fellowship.
- Offering.
- 7:00 Closing Worship Service.

"Salutation to the Dawn"

*Look to this day!
For it is life, the very life of life.
In its brief course
Lie all the verities and realities of your existence—
The bliss of growth,
The glory of action,
The splendor of achievement,
For yesterday is only a dream
And tomorrow is only a vision;
But today well lived makes every yesterday a dream of happiness
And every tomorrow a vision of hope.
Look well, therefore, to this day!
Such is the salutation to the dawn.*
—Kalidasa,
the Indian dramatist.

* * * * *

Relax With Max

Thanks to Ruina Winn of our Liberty Vance Church for some of the articles and jokes for the page today.

* * *

"The most relaxing recreating forces are a healthy religion, sleep, music and laughter. Have faith in God—learn to sleep well—love good music—see the funny side of life—and health and happiness will be yours"

—Dale Carnegie.

* * *

"Can we play at keeping store in here, Mama?"
Yes, but I have a headache, so if you do you must be very, very quiet."
"Oh, all right, Mama. We'll pretend we don't advertise."

* * *

Visitor: "A hundred years old! Well, that's a wonderful record. I suppose you folks are very proud of him."

Native: "Oh, I dunno. He ain't done nothin' 'cept grow old, and look how long it took him to do that!"

NEWS OF ELON COLLEGE.

(Continued from page 7.)

Has your church made its campaign? Has it completed the campaign? Have you made your contribution? This is the opportune time for the friends of Elon College to come to its support and it is certainly the opportune time for individuals to make their contributions.

Make this matter of giving to the college a matter of prayer. The questions that a Christian settles on his knees are usually settled right.

* * * * *

Apportionment Giving

"Apportionment Giving" is a good and proper term, though it may not be sufficient by any means. It simply means that we take the money that we have and apportion it to the various causes within the Convention needing financial support. This may fall far below the needs of any or all causes that the church is under obligation to support. The amount of money that we have to apportion by no means may represent the amount of money that should be given by the members of the church for the needs of the institutions, boards or causes of the church.

Perhaps a more satisfactory term would be "Appropriate Giving." This would mean that the members of the church would give sufficiently to meet the needs of the institutions and causes of the church. It would also mean that the individuals who contribute would contribute amounts equal to their ability of contributing.

There is a difference in "Apportionment Giving" and "Appropriate Giving." May we, as a church and as a people, soon come to the place where our contributions may be appropriate for the needs of the causes that we support.

Previously Reported	$2,067.46
Eastern N. C. Conference:
Mt. Auburn	$ 12.25
Morrisville	7.05
Mt. Auburn	65.00
Wake Chapel	36.60
Eastern Va. Conference:
Bethlehem (Nans) S. S. .	$ 22.15
Dendron S. S.	4.55
Holland	56.00
Liberty Spring S. S.	24.00
Mt. Carmel S. S.	27.20
Newport News S. S.	26.35
Rosemont	102.00
Portsmouth, First	11.69
Suffolk S. S.	63.06
N. C. and Va. Conference:
Burlington S. S.	$ 84.75
Greensboro, First	204.86
Pleasant Grove	50.00
Western N. C. Conference:
Brown's Chapel S. S.	$ 8.53
Flint Hill (M)	3.85
Pleasant Union	10.00
Virginia Valley Conference:
Dry Run S. S.	$ 4.71
Leaksville	16.20
Winchester S. S.	8.34
Wisler's Chapel	4.00

850.14

Total to date $2,917.60

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE, D. D.

"Reaching Out from Antioch"

LESSON III—APRIL 19, 1953.

MEMORY SELECTION: "We are ambassadors for Christ, God making his appeal through us. We beseech you on behalf of Christ, be reconciled to God."—II Cor. 5:20. (R.S.V.)

LESSON: Acts 11:25-26; 14:8-20.

DEVOTIONAL READING: Mat. 28:16-20.

When a Fellow Needs a Friend.

Paul, the new convert, was having a hard time. As soon as he was converted, he began to preach and to testify in Damascus. He did it with such conviction and such power, that he aroused the envy and hatred of the Jews, "who took counsel together to kill him." When he escaped through the help of friends, he went to Jerusalem, where he tried to join the band of the disciples, but they were suspicious of him. But Barnabas, the great hearted, vouched for him, and Paul did a great work in Jerusalem for a time. Once more the Jews "went about to slay him," so his friends sent him away again, this time to his home town of Tarsus, a long way off. It must have been very discouraging, and a fainter-hearted man than Paul would have given up and turned to something else. Perhaps the thing that held him through this trying period was the friendship and faith of Barnabas, "the son of consolation."

Now there will be many new members of the church after our Easter season; and many of them will be young people and new converts to the faith. The new life will not be easy. There will be discouragements and defeats, and they will need help. Happy will be that person who finds a friend like Barnabas to strengthen his faith and give him friendship. Here is an opportunity for laymen and laywomen to render great service for Christ and Christ's people. "Adopt" some new member and be a friend to him.

The Man Who Was Willing to Take Second Place.

While Paul was in Tarsus, things were happening elsewhere. Persecution, which burned like a fire at Jerusalem, had scattered the disciples everywhere, and they had gone far and wide. But they were burning embers, and everywhere they went, they started another fire. Some of them went as far as Antioch, and they were more broad-minded than some of the others and began to preach to the Greeks as well as to the Jews. "The hand of the Lord was with them," and a great many "believed and turned to the Lord." In fact, news of the great awakening reached the apostles at Jerusalem, and they sent Barnabas to Antioch to take a look at things. He saw at a glance the possibilities of the work, and he knew there was need of a leader for the new movement. Immediately, he thought of Paul, and he sought out the inactive—if we can think of Paul being inactive—Paul and persuaded him to go back to Antioch with him. For a whole year these two men preached and taught with marked success, and God greatly blessed their work. Here again Barnabas showed a remarkable spirit, a spirit that, alas, is so often sadly lacking even among Christians and members of the church—the willingness to "take second place." That takes grace, but Barnabas had grace, as well as gumption and goodness.

Westward, Ho!

There was an expulsive and an expansive power in early Christianity. These first followers of Jesus had a consuming passion to share the good news with others, with all men. It was not long before the leaders of the church at Antioch felt the impulse to send some of their number toward the West. They picked out the best—Paul and Barnabas—and after a simple and solemn service, they sent them away with prayer. Thus began, in a way, the great missionary movement to the Gentiles, the movement that ever moved westward, and which has transformed whole nations and changed history. The story of Christian missions is the "greatest story ever told" in many respect. Some chapters in it read like fiction, but they are fact.

One of the Chapters.

Today's lesson gives only one of the many intriguing and inspiring chapters in this story of missions.

Here are Paul and Barnabas at Lystra, in Asia Minor. They have been preaching the gospel, either in the synagogue, or in the streets. They see a lame man, a fellow who had been a cripple from birth, a man who had never walked in all his life. While Paul was speaking, this man looked at him intently and listened eagerly. There was something in the man's face that caught Paul's attention, and he perceived that "he had faith to be healed." Crying out with a loud voice, "Stand up on thy feet," Paul got an immediate response. The man "leaped up and walked." That was of course a miracle, in terms of what we can explain by natural law. But that miracle and greater miracles than that have happened again and again, when men, in faith, have responded to Christ's call and command. To cleanse a sinful heart, to bring healing to broken hearts, to renew life from within, to give spiritual sight to the blind, to cause the lame to walk in paths of righteousness, to deliver from the bondage of evil and vile habits, is even more of a miracle than to make a man physically lame walk again. The story of missions is an amazing record of changes wrought not only on, and in, individuals, but on, and in, peoples and nations.

No wonder these people of Lystra thought the gods had come down to them in the likeness of men. They had never seen it in this fashion before, or heard of it. They would have done sacrifice unto Paul and Barnabas, if these humble men had not restrained them. They used the occasion to tell about the true God, who had not left himself without witness, even among these people who had not heard of him. For these men, every occasion was a new opportunity to bear their witness for Christ.

The Unfinished Task.

Missions is an unfinished task. Today, more than ever, the Church needs to be missionary. A great deal has been done, a great deal is being done, but a great deal needs to be done. And, by and large, the Christian people of the world are not setting the world on fire in missionary activities and spirit. The United Stewardship Council reports that in 1949 the average income in the U. S. A. was $1,453, while the average contribution to missions was $1.25. This means that the average American gives less than one-half a cent a day for foreign missions. And all the der grew, how my small head could hold all that I knew."

(Continued on page 15.)

"IS ANYBODY LISTENING?"

(Continued from page 5.)

More than 350 church leaders were in attendance. For two days we attended our Women's State Presidents Fellowship, one day of which was held at Schauffler College. We saw our own President, Mrs. W. B. Williams become a member of the executive committee of the National Women's Fellowship and we were proud of Tudor. We were present for the election and installation of our new national President, Mrs. W. Bayard Buckham. You'll love her! She bubbles over with personality and she majors in home-making. She could not be present for any of the meetings except for a little while on the first day. The rest of the time she was confined to her hotel room because of a bad case of the "flu." Then came the meetings of the American Board, the Board of Home Missions, Council for Social Action, Church Building Loan Fund Campaign, Relief and Reconstruction, Demonstration—Rhythmic Choir, and the premier showing of our feature film for 1953—"The Hidden Heart," the goal for which is the showing in every church. Then I might as well confess, here and now, that I slipped away from our Women's Meeting long enough to attend the Superintendent's Banquet with my husband. He had reminded me while on the train going to Cleveland that this was his 20th trip to the Mid-Winter Meetings of the Missions Council and that this was the First time I had been with him. Well I knew you would want me to go with him.

We heard national and world famous speakers. Jr. James Robinson, Negro minister of the Church of the Master in New York City probably brought the most popular, maybe the most stirring, and certainly the most talked-of message. He impressed us with the fact that the Voice of America has failed; that after all only one and one-half per cent of the people of Asia have radios and could not not listen if they wanted to. He condemned us for wasting our best creative talents by trying to prove that one type of lipstick makes a better impression than another, or one cigarette is longer than the other, or one car faster than the other. "What does one in India, who does not have rice, care about skyscrapers and big industries," said Dr. Robinson.

Well, my cup was filled to overflowing, and I was tired and ready to go home. Just as I had reached this stage of saturation, when I could not take in another thing, our retiring president, Mrs. Ellis Hemingway (a choice person), looking exhausted, announced that we would stand for a moment's rest. She declared, "The head can absorb only what the seat can endure!" I believed it. By now, you, too, will agree. It has been a long but good day, and you are ready to go home.

May we stand, and with heads bowed, join in this prayer and this commitment:

We heed, O, Lord Thy summons
And answer here are we.
Send us upon thine errand,
Let us Thy servants be.

Take us and make us holy,
Teach us Thy will and way,
Speak, and behold we answer,
Command and we obey.

FOREIGN MISSION PROJECTS.

(Continued from page 8.)

work, however. The $45 we give for an unregistered private school, for example, pays half the teacher's annual salary and cares for 36 children.

There have been results in Johannesburg. Many of the leaders of the 1952 "civil disobedience" campaign were Africans trained in our American Board schools. Many of the churches of Johannesburg are reaching out into untouched areas of the city's life, sending missionaries of their own to the gold fields and mine compounds, as well as to other countries in southern Africa. But there are crying needs. New gold fields have been discovered to the west of Johannesburg, and the churches are asking for American Board aid in ministering to the needs of the men who are doing the work in their development. New tensions are developing in the older townships, and new problems are developing in the newer African settlement areas.

One day twenty years from now, on the new gold fields of South Africa may stand a new Johannesburg. On the old gold field may stand the parent city. Pray God that in both centers our Congregational Christian witness may remain strong and increase, so that for all the people the Johannesburgs of South Africa may be in truth cities of gold.

CHURCH WOMEN AT WORK.

(Continued from page 9.)

entire auditorium and rubber tiling the halls and stairways. The cost of this was $4,400, all paid by our Missionary Society.

We sponsored the showing of the film, "More for Peace," at a Sunday night service.

Our church entertained the Annual Conference in October, and we enjoyed having them. Everyone commented on the beauty of our building.

Yes, we are very proud of our South Norfolk Church, and especially are we proud of the work of our women. In order to achieve success, we know that we must have great leaders, and again I say, our president, Mrs. Harris, is one of the most capable and beloved persons in our Eastern Virginia Conference.

Mrs. O. D. POYTHRESS,

Reporter.

* * * * *

Report of Treasurer of the Eastern Virginia Woman's Missionary Conference

Quarter Ending March 15, 1953.

Balance brought forward $ 194.31

RECEIPTS.Women's Societies.

(On Apportionment)

Antioch	$ 16.25
Berea (Nansemond)	25.00
Bethlehem	70.00
Cypress Chapel	40.00
Cypress Chapel (Angeles Brittle Circle)	15.00
Dendron	10.00
Eure	13.75
Franklin	75.00
Great Bridge	20.00
Hopewell	4.70
Holland	40.00
Holy Neck	37.50
Isle of Wight	25.00
Liberty Spring	55.00
Mt. Carmel	13.75
Mt. Zion	7.50
Newport News	35.00
Norfolk:
Bay View	22.50
Christian Temple	93.75
First—Dec.	20.00
Little Creek	8.75
Rosemont	95.00
Second	20.00
Oak Grove	9.60
Oakland	22.50
Portsmouth:
Elm Avenue	15.00
First	30.00
Shelton Memorial	10.00
Richmond—First	10.00
Spring Hill	3.00
South Norfolk	30.00
Sunbury (Damascus) ...	25.00
Union (Southampton) ..	26.25
Wakefield	9.30
Waverly	15.00
Windsor	54.00

$1,023.10

Young People.

Berea (Nansemond)	$ 25.00
Bethlehem	30.00
Burton's Grove	6.00
Cypress Chapel Dec. (late)	25.00

(Continued on page 15.)

The Orphanage
J. G. TRUITT, Superintendent

DEAR FRIENDS:

What is the news at the Orphanage? Well, for one thing we are in great need of a matron for the Baby Home. Twenty-eight children are looking for somebody to live with them, and guide their little lives. Two of our big girls live in the Baby Home and work as assistants to the house-mother. We are putting an advertisement in Burlington and Greensboro papers seeking applications for the job. All of you who read these lines please consider this an appeal to you to help find a matron for the Baby Home.

When they ask you about the job tell them it pays a comparatively good wage, offers them a good corner room with running water, board, one day off each week, an a most gratifying job if one loves little children and has the ability to manage them. Two high school girls, trained to assist and who understand the work live right in the same building and help with the children. The matron and her helpers see that the children rise in time to get dressed or be dressed as the case may be and ready for breakfast. All but five of them then are off soon to school, the pre-school children have enough to entertain themselves much of the time; at noon they are prepared for lunch—first and second grade children remain at school for their lunch; from 1:00 to 3:00 o'clock is quiet hour; 3:00 to 5:30 play and chores if any; supper at 6:00; after supper activities; and shortly after 7:30, since we rise early, to bed. A matron with her two helpers who does that job has a real one, but if she works it rightly she can provide for herself time for rest, as well as a day off each week. She has two weeks' vacation in summer with pay. The Orphanage helps her with her Social Security, and is a very cooperative and understanding employer. In fact, it is a good job for the right person. For us it is a "must." Please let us hear from you.

Our three seniors left today with the other seniors in our high school on their Washington trip. Thanks to all who helped them. They were so appreciative, and fit in well with their classmates. They are Ann Kinch, Virginia Black and David Haith.

Besides five "dates" in five churches in April and May I have other engagements: April 7, presentation of the Orphanage work before the Alamance (and Burlington) Community Council at a luncheon meeting in Alamance Hotel; April 18, a speech at a breakfast meeting in an Alamance County school cafeteria; an address at the Junior-Senior banquet at Liberty, N. C., high school; and commencement sermon for our own Elon high school. I spoke yesterday before the student body at the college an Easter message. They were an inspiring congregation, and as quiet and reverent as in any church. Last night I spoke for Miss Foster before all our children and workers here in Johnston Hall and they, too, make an inspiring congregation.

Now let me thank you everyone for so much good help for Easter. How good you have been to us here! Thank you so much.

JOHN G. TRUITT,
Superintendent.

REPORT FOR APRIL 2, 1953.

Commodities for the week.
Leaksville Church, Valley of Virginia, Clothing.
Mrs. R. C. Luke, Sr. Hampton, Va., Clothing.
Flint Hill (R) Miss. Soc., Dress.
Smithwood Christian Church, Clothing.
Woman's Adult Bible Class, Liberty, Vance, Five Quilts.
Mt. Gilead Sunday School, Clothing.
Mrs. R. T. Brittle, Elberon, Va., Clothing.
S. S., Cong. Christian Church, La Grange, Ga. Socks.
Mrs. B. A. Maggini, Asheville, N. C., Shoes and ball.
Pleasant Ridge (N. C.—Va.) W. M. S. Clothing.
Ingram Christian Church, Clothing.
Woman's Aux., Greensboro, First Church, Clothing.

Mrs. Stella Huffines, Elon College, N. C., Clothing.
T. Hayes Holland, Franklin, Va., Brooms.
Mrs. J. H. Booth, Elon College, N. C., Dress.
Mrs. J. R. Pleasants, Durham, N. C., Clothing.
Mrs. W. R. Cole, Newport News, Va., Clothing.
Mrs. R. C. Luke, Sr., Hampton, Va., Clothing.
Harvey L. Sawyer, Portsmouth, Va., Clothing.

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

Amount brought forward	$4,188.68
Eastern N. C. Conference:
Morrisville	$ 9.02
New Elam	13.93
		22.95
Eastern Va. Conference:
Holland—Special	$ 11.50
Bay View—Special	21.50
Rosemont	40.00
South Norfolk, for David Haith	45.00
Spring Hill—Special ...	5.00
Suffolk S. S.	150.00
		273.00
N. C. and Va. Conference:
Asheville—Special	$ 50.00
Mebane	11.00
Mt. Zion	10.80
Reidsville—Special	50.00
		121.80
Western N. C. Conference:
Flint Hill (M)	$ 9.60
Pleasant Cross S. S.	9.40
Spoon's Chapel—Special .	20.25
		39.25
Virginia Valley Conference:
Wissler's Chapel S. S. ...	4.00
		4.00
Total	$ 461.00
Grand Total	$4,649.68
Special Offerings.
Amount brought forward	$3,823.87
Mrs. Isabelle F. Robinson, Albany, N. Y., for Jo Ann Arnold	$ 10.00
Mrs. Elmor Wilcox, Braintree, Mass.	5.00
		(Continued on page 15.)

MEMORIAL GIFTS
"Instead of Flowers"

Dr. John G. Truitt
Christian Orphanage
Elon College, N. C.

Dear Dr. Truitt:

Please acknowledge the enclosed $ as a memorial gift sent to the Christian Orphanage in lieu of flowers in memory of:

..... (Name of Deceased)	 (City)	 (Date of Death)
..... (Survivor to be Written)	 (Address)
Name.....
Address.....

In Memoriam
CARTER.

The passing of Mr. Jarrett J. Carter on March 6, 1953 brought to an end a life that had been of unusual value to Wadley and the Wadley area. For almost eighty years he had lived in this community and had given himself unreservedly to its welfare. He gave some sixty-three years to the service of the church and during most of that time served in the office of deacon.

He shared in every movement that was for the advancement of his community, and gave liberally of his time and means to support of every such movement. He gave himself especially to the work of the church. This service was centered first at the Beulah Christian Church at Truett, Alabama, and then the Christian Church at Wadley. He was a loyal supporter of Southern Union College, and became a member of the Board of Trustees at the time of the founding of the College. He served many years in that capacity. His liberality and continuing confidence in the future of the school did much to keep it alive during the first difficult days of its life.

Mr. Carter gave a living example of the true meaning of Christianity. Much like the Master whom he served, he went about doing good. The sick of the entire community learned to expect him as a helpful visitor. He sought always, not only to serve his fellowmen, but also to lead them into the church and into the fellowship of the Lord he served so faithfully.

He is survived by two sisters: Mrs. Jim Wilkins of Wadley, and Mrs. Minnie Lankford of Gadsden, Alabama; and by a brother, the Rev. E. M. Carter of Youngsville, N. C. He is survived also by his widow, Mrs. Lula Carter: a son, Mr. Vernon L. Carter, Wadley, Ala.; and by three daughters: Mrs. Lois Melton, Collegeboro, Ga., Mrs. J. R. Hines, Alexander City, Ala., and Mrs. G. A. Fuller, West Point, Ga.

"He rests from his labor but his works do follow him."

A. R. VAN CLEAVE.

GOMER.

On January 1, 1953 James Jackson Gomer 87 departed this life. He was the son of the late Thomas and Mary Jane Turlington Gomer. Mr. Gomer was the oldest member of Holy Neck Congregational Christian Church. Having been a member for 75 years. He was senior deacon, a member of the board of trustees and a charter member of the Men's Bible Class. He attended church regularly until failing health prevented; even though confined to his bed for several years he never ceased to be interested in his church. In his death Holy Neck Church lost a faithful, sincere and consecrated member.

We, the Board of Deacons, will miss his physical presence, but in spirit he will always be with us.

Therefore be it resolved:

1. That the members of the church emulate his traits of Christian character and in so doing pledge ourselves to more loyal service to our church and our God.

2. That we thank God for his long life of Christian service.

3. That we extend to his loved ones our deepest sympathy and commend them to our heavenly Father for strength, comfort and guidance.

BOARD OF DEACONS,
Holy Neck Church.

TALLADEGA'S PRESIDENT.

(Continued from page 3.)

for the past year and has already proven his great worth in this field of administration.

Dr. Gray has also received another outstanding honor during the past year. At the last biennial session of Congregational Christian Churches, he was chosen to head the Executive Committee.

CHURCH WOMEN AT WORK.

(Continued from page 13.)

Eure	4.75
Franklin	9.00
Holland	6.25
Holy Neck	20.00
Liberty Spring	25.00
Mt. Carmel—Dec. & March	10.00
New Lebanon	5.85
Norfolk:
Bay View	1.75
Christian Temple	30.00
Little Creek	2.50
Rosemont	15.00
Oak Grove	2.50
Portsmouth—First	7.50
Union Southampton	12.00
Windsor	5.00
	$ 243.10

Juniors.

Antioch	$ 7.80
Berea (Nansemond)	13.17
Bethlehem	5.00
Cypress Chapel	5.00
Dendron	2.50
Eure	1.25
Franklin	7.50
Holland	5.00
Holy Neck	5.00
Liberty Spring	6.85
Mt. Carmel	5.00
Newport News	3.00
Norfolk:
Bay View	1.50
Christian Temple	9.00
Little Creek	1.00
Oakland	1.25
Portsmouth—First	3.00
Windsor	20.43
	$ 103.25

Cradle Roll.

Cypress Chapel	$ 1.00
Dendron	4.50
Eure	1.25
Franklin	2.00
Liberty Spring	10.00
Mt. Carmel	2.00
Mt. Zion	1.00
Oakland	1.27
First—Portsmouth	2.00
	$ 25.02

Thank Offering.

Holy Neck—Extra	$ 25.00
Rosemont	102.12
Oakland—Extra	50.40
South Norfolk	10.00
Waverly	14.10
	$ 201.62

Life Memberships.

Eure	$ 10.00
	$ 10.00

Memorials.

Rosemont	$ 10.00
	$ 10.00

Grand Total $1,810.40

DISBURSEMENTS.

Driver Post Office, stamped envelopes	$ 3.48
Va. Council of Churches	50.00
Mrs. M. V. Leathers, Convention Treas.	1,535.06
Mrs. Barbara B. Nelms, Youth Fellowship Treas.	81.03
	$1,669.57

Balance $ 140.83

Respectfully submitted,
MRS. GEORGE M. CORNELL,
Treasurer.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

(Continued from page 12.)

while he is giving more than a dollar and fifty cents a day for war. Perhaps if we had sent more missionaries to China through the years, we would not have to send so many men to the East in military service.

How much did you give to the Special Easted Offering for Missions two weeks ago? How much do you give to the benevolent enterprises of your church?

Based on "International Sunday School Lessons;" Copyrighted 1951 by Division of Christian Education, National Council of the Churches in the U. S. A.

THE ORPHANAGE.

(Continued from page 14.)

Mrs. W. H. Garrett, South Norfolk, Va.	5.00
Mrs. Oscar V. Ewell, Norfolk, Va.	8.00
Progressive Bible Class, Newport News Church, for Wayne Knight and Betty Oaks	15.00
W. E. Lowe, Sr., Elon College, N. C.	5.00
Bethel Miss. Soc., Elkton, Va., in memory of J. L. Long	5.00
Mrs. H. E. Pearce, Franklinton, N. C.	1.00
Dr. J. H. Neese, Monroe, N. C.	15.00
C. E. Newman S. S. Class, Virgilina Cong. Christian Church, in memory of Dr. C. E. Newman ..	5.00
Miss Pattie Adams, South Boston, Va.	10.00
Special Gifts	54.25
	$ 138.25

Grand Total $3,962.12

Total for the week $ 599.25

Total for the year $8,611.80

"What Must the Church Be Doing?"

There are seven essential functions that must be exercised by every church—and by the Church Universal—if it is to fulfill its divine mission.

First, Maintenance: Each church must maintain itself in the place where the providence of God has placed it, as long as it is needed in that place. This is a relative function. The church does not maintain itself for the sake of maintenance itself. It maintains itself in order that it may fulfill the other six functions which have absolute value for God and for man.

Second, Worship: The church must provide the worship of God for its people and for all whom it may win to share that worship with them. This is the most obvious and exclusive function of the church. The principle of it is that we become like that which we adore. The text is, "God is a Spirit and they that worship him must worship him in Spirit and in Truth."

Third, Evangelism: The church must tell the Good News of Jesus; the Good News—the Gospel—that God is like Jesus. The text is "Whoever will, let him come."

Fourth, Education in Religion: The church must teach and develop its people, and all whom it may reach in the truth about God, and about man, and about man in relation to God. The text is "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."

Fifth, Community Service: The church must seek out and seek to serve the human need about it—in its neighborhood, in its town or city, in its state or nation, in the world and in humanity. The text is "Inasmuch as ye did it to one of these, ye did it unto me."

Sixth, Missions: The church must seek and strive to reproduce itself wherever it is not. The text is "As the Father hath sent me, so send I you." Missions is the reproductive function of the church. The missionary is the seed of the church. The church that does not preach, teach and give for missions is sterile and barren.

Seventh, Fellowship: The church must continuously develop the communion of its people, one with another, in the friendship of life and the communion of each one and of all with God in the communion of devotion. The text is "That ye may have fellowship with us, yea, and our fellowship is with the Father."

These things the church must do. To do these things, each Christian must help. By these things the church has lived, lives now and will live and will bring mankind into that life with God which is the only national goal of human existence and the fruit of which is love, joy and peace.

—Rockwell Harmon Potter.

The CHRISTIAN SUN

ORGAN OF THE SOUTHERN CONVENTION OF CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES

In Essentials Unity — In Non-Essentials, Liberty, — In All Things, Charity

VOLUME CV

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, APRIL 16, 1953

NUMBER 16

Elon College is Beneficiary of Memorial Foundation Established by Dr. W. H. Boone

Mrs. Annie Elizabeth Moring Boone

As a living memorial for all time to his wife, Mrs. Annie Elizabeth Moring Boone, Dr. W. H. Boone has donated to Elon College the sum of $25,125, to be held in perpetual trust by the Durham Bank and Trust Company, Durham, North Carolina. Long years after they both are gone, they will be contributing to the support of Elon College. In establishing this fund, Dr. and Mrs. Boone will live in the annals of Elon College so long as the college stands. This is a memorable gift and it memorializes the one honored and the donor himself. The entire church will express its gratitude for this generous gift and lasting memorial.

News Flashes

The Duke University Convocation for Ministers will be held on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, June 2-5, 1953.

Special evangelistic services were held at Cypress Chapel, Nansemond County, Virginia, the week after Easter. The pastor, Rev. Earl Farrell, was assisted by Dr. H. S. Hardeastle.

The interior of the sanctuary of First Church, Norfolk, has recently been redecorated and the floors have been sanded. The color scheme has been completely changed. The old colors were buff and dark mahogany. The walls are now a pastel green and the woodwork an off-white.

We learn that Mrs. Garland Spratley, president of the Eastern Virginia Woman's Missionary Conference, was elected recording secretary of the Virginia Council of Church Women at the annual meeting which was held in Norfolk last week. Congratulations, Mrs. Spratley.

Dr. H. S. Hardeastle reports that he received fourteen members into the church fellowship at Berea (Nansemond) during the Easter season, and seven at Oakland. Communion services were held at each church, the one at Oakland on Wednesday night of Holy Week, and the one at Berea on Maundy Thursday.

We have received an announcement of the marriage, on Sunday, April 12, in Richmond, of Miss Janie Pierce, daughter of the late A. E. and Dora C. Pierce, to Mr. Scott W. Dunn, the son of the late Mrs. Sallie Will Dunn of Halifax County, Virginia. Rev. R. C. Helfenstein officiated. Congratulations and best wishes to them.

The year 1952 saw a gain of 13,950 new members in the Congregational Christian Churches in the United States, according to a statement recently released by Dr. Douglas Horton, Minister of the General Council. The total membership of our churches now stands at 1,231,477. However there was a loss of 31 in the number of churches.

Recently we published an article by Bryan Drake, the efficient head of our Department of Education, concerning the investigation of teachers in our colleges. Mr. Drake had the fear that the matter might be carried too far. Now Dr. Daniel A. Poling has gone a step further, raising the question, "Should Clergymen be Investigated?" An editorial released by Christian Herald and bearing the title above, is printed for your consideration elsewhere in this issue.

Sunday, April 19, is "Christian College Day, and is being thus observed by many church-affiliated colleges throughout the nation. The article, "The Community of the Christian College," published in this issue and written by Dr. J. Edward Dirks, associate general director of the Commission on Christian Higher Education of the National Council of the Churches of Christ, is appropriate in this connection. We commend it to our readers.

A District Training School was conducted this week in the Virgilina-Semora area. The sessions on Sunday, Monday and Wednesday were held in Union Church, Virgilina, and the Tuesday night session was at Lebanon Church, near Semora, North Carolina. The school was in charge of Miss Pattie Lee Coghill, assisted by Dr. H. S. Hardeastle of Chuckatuck, Virginia. There was a buffet supper at the parsonage on Sunday evening. The school closed on Wednesday night. Rev. Mark W. Andes is the efficient pastor of this group of churches.

The Supply Pastors' School at Duke University

The Supply Pastors' School of the Duke Divinity School will convene June 15 to July 1. This school provides a refresher course for pastors who have not had seminary training or for those who would like to "brush up" a bit in their study. Dr. Robert G. Armstrong of Lebanon, Conn., a former superintendent of the New Hampshire Congregational Christian Conference, served on the faculty in 1952 and is due to return for the 1953 session. He will give a course on Congregational Christian history and polity.

It is hoped that a number of our ministers in the Southern Convention will enroll in this school, and scholarships will be available to assist in the expenses. Those interested will please contact Supt. Wm. T. Scott, Elon College, N. C.

"A Time to Build"

During the week beginning Sunday, April 19, there will be broadcast over 241 stations, under the auspices of the Building Loan Fund Campaign of the Congregational Christian Churches a feature program entitled "A Time to Build."

This will be a 15-minute dramatization of the overwhelming need for new churches and our denominational share in the nation-wide Protestant effort to meet this need.

The broadcast will be one in a popular series sponsored by the National Council of Churches—weekly broadcasts devoted to the story of the Church in action.

Radio stations in North Carolina participating include those at Asheville, Chapel Hill, Dunn, Durham, Gastonia, Leaksville, Reidsville and Winston-Salem. Virginia stations include Lexington, Martinsville and Richmond.

Be sure to check with your local newspaper or station for exact date and time.

Chairman of Elon College Board of Trustees Establishes Trust Fund

Dr. W. H. Boone of Durham, North Carolina, graduate of Elon in the Class of 1894, has made a substantial gift to Elon College. The gift is made in the form of a memorial trust fund in honor of his late wife, Annie Elizabeth Moring Boone, who also attended Elon and held a diploma from the Art Department. Her interest in art and music continued throughout her long and useful life. With this in mind, Dr. Boone directed that the fund be known as the Annie Elizabeth Moring Boone Memorial Fund for Elon College. The Fund was established through the Durham Foundation and administered by Durham Bank and Trust Company of Durham, North Carolina, with instructions that the income be paid annually on April 1st to Elon College, with the further suggestion that it be used to promote the purposes of the Departments of Fine Arts and Music. He further expressed the hope that he or other members of his family would be able to add to the Fund in the future.

The gift comprises securities understood to have a value of approximately $25,000.00. The securities were delivered in trust to the Foundation March 31, 1953.

Both Dr. and Mrs. Boone have been faithful and devoted members of the
(Continued on page 15.)

Laymen and the Church . . .

J. Earl Danieley, Editor, Box 515, Elon College, N. C.

Let's Take Inventory

The Laymen's Fellowship has certain objectives and projects which have been set up on a convention-wide level and to which we should give serious consideration. Today we are covering a number of these in question form in the hope that each of us will take a very serious and a very real inventory; let us measure ourselves and our group by this yardstick and then let us remedy the situation where there is room for improvement.

Are the men of your church organized into an active fellowship? If not, won't you make personally a real effort to start such an organization?

Does your church annually observe Laymen's Sunday in October? If not, won't you seek the cooperation of the men of the church and your pastor in the planning of such a program this year?

Are you proud of the way the business of your church is carried on? Is the church organized and administered efficiently? This is something that all of us need to give more attention.

Do you and your family regularly attend Sunday school and church services? Do you take the time and make the effort necessary to encourage others to attend? Are you sufficiently interested in your church and her program to give that type of support?

What is the condition of your church property? Does the building need painting, the grass need cutting, the shrubbery need pruning and fertilizing? Are there other things which should be done? Active laymen are constantly on the look-out for things to do and see to it that they are done.

Do you practice Christian principles in the earning of money? After the money is earned do you consider yourself a steward of God charged with the responsibility of using that money to the best of your ability? Do you actively support the church program in a financial manner? Do you encourage others to give financial support to the local church, conference and convention enterprises? This is a part of Christian Stewardship. Do you see to it that your minister receives an adequate salary? So many churches fail to do this.

How much time do you spend in private and family devotions? Is your Bible read very often? Do you set aside a time for prayer and do you make use of the power of personal devotions? These are "holy habits" of a Christian and worth our consideration and attention.

A "Pastor" Praises His People

During the last few months it has been my privilege, as a layman, to serve as the "pastor" of the Congregational Christian Church at Haw River. For any layman to assume the role of pastor is difficult; there are so many things to do; so many things need to be said; there is so much responsibility; the church depends so heavily upon what the leader thinks and does; it indeed is frightening to think of the consequences of a failure under such circumstances. Surely one can undertake such responsibility only with a deep sense of humility and a conscious need of divine guidance and help.

Last September the Church at Haw River asked me to occupy the pulpit during the interim after the Rev. W. P. Smith left the church and before the Rev. Dwight Jackson assumed the active pastorate. First, it should be said that Rev. Smith had done a job which is worthy of note; he had or-

(Continued on page 15.)

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr
A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom as represented by the Congregational Christian Churches.

Our Principles

1. The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
2. Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
3. The Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
4. Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and church membership.
5. The right of private judgment and liberty of conscience is a privilege that should be accorded to and exercised by all.

Managing Editor John T. Kernodle
Departmental Editors—Convention, Wm. T. Scott; Missions, F. C. Lester; Women's Work, Mrs. F. C. Lester; Young People's Work, Max Vestal; Children, Mrs. R. L. House; Sunday School Lesson, H. S. Hardestel.
Institutional Representatives—Elon College, L. E. Smith; The Christian Orphanage, John G. Truitt.
Board of Publications—Duane Vore, Chairman, S. T. Holland, Secretary; R. C. Helfenstein, S. E. Madren, W. W. Snyder, G. D. Colclough, Treasurer, ex officio.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Year$3.00
Two Years 5.00

Published by the Board of Publications of The Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches, Inc. Printed every Thursday except the last in June and December by Central Publishing Co., Inc., Richmond, Va.

Entered as second-class matter at the Post Office at Richmond Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

General contributions should be addressed to the editor at Southern Pines, N. C., and should reach him by Wednesday of the week preceding date of publication.

Departmental material should be sent to the proper departmental editor, at the address shown on their page.

All other material and business communications except regarding subscriptions should be sent to the Office of Publication, 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond 19, Va.

The Christian Sun Subscription Blank

Subscription Price: 1 year, $3.00; 2 years, $5.00

Date.....195...

Dr. Wm. T. Scott, Supt.,
Elon College, N. C.
Enclosed find $..... for which please send The Christian Sun
() 1 year, () 2 years — () New Subscription, () Renewal.
To
Address
Who is a member of Church
() Renew, () Enter my own subscription for () 1 year, () 2 years.
My Name
My Address

From the EDITORIAL Viewpoint

What Do We Believe?

By JAMES H. LIGHTBOURNE, Jr.

Frequently the observation is made that it is difficult for the members of our churches to state and explain the distinctive characteristics of our churches in matters of faith. Few, if any, of our churches require the acceptance of a particular creed for church membership. At a fellowship of churches we do not adhere to a particular creed. The "Manual of the Southern Convention" includes a section on the "Sentiments of the Church" in which scriptural passages having reference to the various general areas of Christian faith are set forth. However the section primarily is suggestive for faith and a guide for more detailed exploration and definition.

There is no doubting that it would be easier for us to understand ourselves and to explain ourselves to others if we did have a definitive statement of faith. Yet a notable characteristic of our fellowship of churches has been the principle of "the right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience." Its intent is not to make definite faith an unimportant element of the Christian life. Rather it is a principle affording the ground of fellowship for conscientious Christians who do differ on theological grounds. That is a distinctive and meaningful characteristic.

The "Principles of the Christian Churches" which afford the framework of our organization well can serve as the key to understanding and explaining ourselves, even though they do not constitute a statement of faith. They do set forth specifically what kind of a fellowship we are. The "Affirmation of Faith of the General Council of Congregational Christian Churches" (rather generally known as the "Kansas City Statement"), while not a binding creed, is suggestive of the faith characteristic of our fellowship. Probably more use should be made of these.

The suggestion has been made that this matter of our faith should be the subject of discussion at the meetings of our Conferences and Convention more frequently than it is. This appears to be a wise suggestion. Certainly there is evidence on every side that the question, "What do we believe?" is being asked in all seriousness. The question and the questioners deserve attention. Each of us would benefit from free and honest discussion of the content of Christian faith.

"By This Shall All Men Know"

By STANLEY C. HARRELL

"By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another."—John 13:35. According to John's Gospel, the above words were spoken as Jesus and his disciples celebrated the last Passover, and before the Lord's Supper was instituted.

It was the vision of Jesus that his disciples should be bound together by cords of love, which were to be stronger than any other human ties. This love was to work that perfect unity within the Church, for which Christ prayed in his High Priestly petition. It was to do more than weld the disciples together in an indissoluble body. It was to be the unmistakable sign to all the world that they were truly Christ's disciples.

Until the love of Christ is so strong within the hearts of his followers, that they love one another, there can be no true Christian brotherhood within the Church. With such a love one for another, a local church becomes the most delightful fellowship to be found anywhere on this earth. The sad fact is that such a church is so seldom to be found.

It takes a truly great soul to contain such a love. There is something God-like in such an encompassing affection. It rises above petty likes and dislikes. It looks through and beneath the surface blemishes and imperfections of human character. It sees the inherent worth and dignity of the human soul, even as Christ saw them. It sets itself to the task of inspiring high aspirations. It lends a helping hand to every worthy endeavor for which another may be striving.

There is something drastically wrong with our local church programs if they do not give due emphasis to the inculcation of such Christian love. The whole of Christian activity needs to be examined in the clear light of the thirteenth chapter of I Corinthians. If it were only possible for church people to trade their "superiority complex" for a "Christian love complex," what a wonderful change would be wrought.

The weakness of Protestantism is due to the failure to recognize the part which Christian love must play, in all Christian activities. The only apology which can be offered for denominationalism is that it has emphasized truths which were unknown, ignored or forgotten. That apology must be weighed in the light of: "Although I have the gift of prophecy, and understand all mysteries, and all knowledge; and though I have all faith, so that I could remove mountains, and have not love, I am nothing."

The Community of the Christian College

By J. Edward Dirks

Those who are deeply concerned about our Christian colleges in America and about their future role in the scene of higher education, are frequently asked and asking themselves, What is a Christian college? How is it different from other higher educational institutions? What is its uniqueness and what can it best contribute to the whole academic world? Such questions cannot be dismissed in a day which is undergoing a rethinking of the whole nature and purpose of higher education. They cannot be ignored at a time when the Christian colleges find themselves on the defensive and their role minimized or misunderstood.

The traditional answers are today more difficult to accept, and they are not wholly convincing. While it is true, for example, that that Christian college is "related" to the church, such a relationship is sometimes extremely tenuous and ambiguous. A church affiliation expressed by way of administrative associations may or may not be evidenced by a wholehearted devotion of the entire campus to the Christian faith. Others would perhaps insist that a Christian college is an academic institution in which the basic requirements include at least a course in religion and attendance at the services of worship in the college chapel or local church. This is a good answer, but it is undoubtedly not adequate when it becomes apparent that these requirements are met in only a perfunctory way by the students, or dismissed as being actually superfluous by the teaching or administrative staff. It is not even an adequate answer when it is interpreted as an indication that the Christian college is doing its educational job and adds the plus in religion, for religion is not an addition, but an integral part of life. Still others have sought to identify the Christian college as the natural school for the training of students from its related churches for Christian vocations in the so-called "secular professions" or in full-time church vocations. While this may, generally speaking, be the historical background of many of the church-related colleges, it is also true that these colleges have become increasingly cosmopolitan as they have sought to serve their whole constituency and have devoted their full resources to the inclusive needs of a changing society. Moreover, education is always more than vocational training.

It is true that for a college which is Christian, a meaningful church relationship is essential, a basic educational in the content of our religious heritage should be required, participation in the full life of Christian worship should be encouraged, and the view that all constructive human tasks are our Christian calling should be strongly set forth. But, while these criteria are significant marks of the Christian college, they can neither be treated independently of one another nor can they be separated from a still more basic characteristic in which they are meaningfully rooted.

The Christian college is called upon to be distinctive by being a community of those who search after truth, knowing that the community of faith and of learning belong to each other and sustain each other. As it is a community, in the full sense, so it also makes possible an identification of the other marks by which it witnesses to its Christian calling. Let us examine these in turn.

I.

The Christian college can achieve a significant identity in being an academic community in which faith and thought are interrelated. To interrelate the life of faith and of thought is always difficult, and it is made especially so against the background of a form of humanistic rationalism which composes the prevailing context of our modern Western academic tradition. According to this, our minds are purely rational instruments, by means of which we discover the facts and interrelate them, if at all, by the somewhat mechanical process of reasoning until we can draw valid conclusions. It is the prevailing assumptions that faith, our basic loyalties and commitments of life, our trust and our fundamental world views, have no legitimate role to play in such reasoning; in fact, they are most frequently treated as unwelcome intruders, distracting us from the required neutrality and detachment of the scholar. Such a split of the head from the heart prepares the way for a decay in both personal and social life, for the disrupting of our moral formulations, and for isolating our religion from the rest of our life.

The Christian college is, to be sure, obligated to be a true academic community. It should be rigorously exacting in the tasks of scholarship; it should sit reverently in the presence of the facts about the world of matter and man, and it should be active in its search for new facts. It should be a community in which there is a full, free and fruitful discussion of ideas, in which our basic perspectives and world views are expressed and evaluated, and in which the whole range of the premises of faith, including our Christian faith, are examined critically.

The truly educated person does not emerge from the institution which has crammed his head with facts or equipped him with all the latest techniques but which has not helped him to relate his knowledge to his whole life of faith. The truly educated person is the product of the community in which his knowledge has grown, and in which his faith has been evaluated, deepened and revealed. He becomes an educated person not in proportion to his knowledge alone, but also in proportion to his full growth in the wholeness of life. The Christian college is challenged, because it is a community both of faith and of learning, to be the context in which such growth is possible and guided. This is its distinctive identity: a community of those who learn to study as they pray, and who are wise enough to pray as they study. It is a fellowship of persons for whom every fact and interpretation can be understood as a manifestation of God, and for whom study is a prayerful exploration after God.

II.

If the Christian college can realize its high calling to be an academic community in which the heart and the head are reunited and the whole person freed to love God and man fully, then it can make a most necessary contribution to the whole higher educational world. Academic institutions are awake today, as they have not been recently, to the great need for wholeness. Universities are "multiversities"; colleges are frequently only collections of departments. The disciplines are usually interpreted as independent and autonomous units, and the students are not expected to "transfer" their learning from field to field. Because we fail to understand each other across the various departmental lines, communication becomes impossible, isolation becomes a necessity, and community becomes an obvious impossibility.

(Continued on page 7.)

Our Churches Report . . .

The Ministry of Rev. W. T. Madren in Halifax County, Va.

A large section of Halifax County, Virginia, felt the effects of the ministry of Rev. W. T. Madren this Easter season. Mr. Madren is faithfully serving the Ingram-Pleasant Grove-Liberty area.

Through a carefully planned program, the people of the entire community, composed of several denominations, were drawn closer together and much closer to the Cross. Five services were held during the week preceeding Easter. The services were held in different churches each night, with an outstanding personality of that denomination speaking.

The observance of Holy Communion conducted by Mr. Madren at the Ingram Congregational Christian Church on Thursday night was a thing of beauty, and proved a deep religious experience for the large gathering. Except for a huge lighted candle burning on the Communion table, the church was darkened. Several young ladies, dressed in white and carrying white lighted tapers, conducted the participants to their seats. After a period of soft music and silent prayer, the ushers lighted the twelve candles on the altar from the large candle representing the Light of Christ. As a background, there was a white cross and white lilies. The deacons and elders of the community churches assisted in serving the congregation.

For each service, a vested choir composed of members of the community churches sang. This choir had worked long hours to give the services their best. A young lady of the Baptist church conducted the choir, while the Presbyterian organist was the accompanist.

On Sunday morning at 6 o'clock the community gathered on the lawn at "Carlbrook," the home of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Carlton, for a Sunrise Service. Rev. Mr. Thompson of the Baptist Church and Rev. Mr. Madren conducted this moving and lovely service. Overlooking the large lake, the Easter story seemed to take on a new meaning. As if to symbolize the meaning of the great day, the cloud that had partly obscured the sun lifted and the full glory of the sun shone upon the group as Mr. Madren declared, "He is risen."

J. K. LANDRUM.

Revival Services at First Church, Burlington, N. C.

Special revival services were held in the First Church, Burlington, N. C., April 12th through April 16th, with the Rev. W. Redd Turner of Clinton, S. C., as guest preacher. Rev. Turner is a graduate of Elon College and was an interim pastor of the Burlington Church about 20 years ago. He was received with a fine response in Burlington, renewing many former acquaintances.

REV. W. REDD TURNER

During the week prior to the special services ten Cottage Prayer Meetings were held in the various sections of the parish in preparation for the revival.

H. E. ROBINSON.

Easter Activities at Second Church, Norfolk, Va.

Easter Sunday was, unquestionably, an occasion of rejoicing throughout all Christendom. The planning and labor of the Lenten period reached its climax on Resurrection Day. The experience of ingathering and full churches was quite universal. What happened at Second Church was, no doubt, repeated throughout the majority of the churches of the Convention.

However, since my knowledge of the activities of Easter Sunday is somewhat limited to my congregation, may I share with you what happened.

On Maundy Thursday evening, a service of Holy Communion was held and was well attended. Also, the attendance at the Easter Sunrise Service was good.

At the eleven o'clock worship service, the sanctuary was filled. The Junior Choir made its first contribution to our worship services, appearing in new burgandy robes. The soloist for both the morning and evening services was Miss Marcia Norvell, a new member coming from the Knox Presbyterian Church. The Adult Choir added its contribution to the morning service by presenting a beautiful anthem.

The Easter Sunday evening service was also well attended.

Fifteen new members were received into the church during the Easter period. Eight of them were from the Pastor's Class. This makes a total of 23 received thus far this conference year.

Truly, it was a time of rejoicing for the membership of the Second Church, Norfolk.

J. EVERETTE NEESE.

Special Union Service at Liberty Vance

Community Holy Week services were held each evening during the week preceding Easter at the Liberty (Vance) Church, sponsored jointly by Liberty and the New Bethel Baptist Church.

Rev. B. B. Littleton of the Baptist church and Liberty's pastor, Rev. W. A. Grissom, alternated in bringing the messages. Two laymen from each church assisted the ministers by conducting the devotional and offering the evening prayer. Laymen from the Christian church assisted the Baptist minister, and Baptist laymen assisted the Christian minister.

Mr. Grissom chose a father and son in each instance to assist the Baptist minister. F. B. Fuller and F. B. Fuller, Jr., assisted in the Monday evening service, and C. O. Eaves and Russell Eaves assisted in the Wednesday evening service. Mr. Littleton chose laymen of his church to assist Mr. Grissom, J. T. Griffin and Ozelle Edwards helping on Tuesday evening, and Wallace Duke on Friday evening.

The Thursday evening service was a special service commemorating the Last Supper. Calvin Ayseue of Lib-

(Continued on page 11.)

News of Elon College

PRESIDENT L. E. SMITH, Elon College, N. C.

Annie Elizabeth Moring Boone

There are many disappointing things about the Two and One-Half Million Dollar Campaign now being conducted for Elon College. The money is to be used for buildings, equipment, and endowment. On the other hand, there are many very encouraging things.

For several months Dr. William H. Boone has had under consideration the matter of establishing a memorial at Elon College for Mrs. Boone. Unfortunately for him and family, the local church, and our entire denomination, Mrs. Boone was called to her reward rather suddenly. She was a member of the Moring family; a family that contributed largely to the progress of our church in its early beginning. Dr. Boone is the son of a faithful minister, Reverend Charles Atlas Boone, of our church in the South.

A few days ago I was in Durham, called to see Dr. Boone, and he told me of his plans—a generous and magnificent gift to the College. That morning he had made the final arrangements and signed stock owned by him to Elon College for the establishment of a memorial fund for Mrs. Boone.

Dr. Boone had considered putting the college in his will for $25,000. Later he decided to make the gift definite and final now while he is living so that he may have the joy of knowing that the foundation is established as he wanted it and seeing the fund in operation.

There are many other friends of Elon College who are considering a bequest to the College by the executives of their will. This is fine and wonderful, but it would be much better for them, their estate and the college to begin now making a bequest. Mrs. J. L. Kernodle of Burlington, widow of the late Dr. J. L. Kernodle, gave to the college a building valued at $75,000.00 The deed conveying the property to the college was completed and put to record. Mrs. Kernodle, however, retains a lifetime interest in this property but by making it an outright gift she received consideration in income tax payments. These two benefactions for Elon College mean a very great deal to the college.

I am sure that I may speak for the Board of Trustees, for the faculty, student body, the church in the Southern Convention, and for interested friends in expressing profound appreciation to Dr. Boone of his benevolence and interest in Elon College. He has served his church well and efficiently. He has served his college by his counsel, his time, and his money. His gift not only means much to the college but to everyone interested in Elon College. There are doubtless others who will find joy in following his example. Dr. Boone's gift counts on the Two and One-Half Million Dollar Campaign Fund and puts the Durham Church over the top in its share in the campaign.

* * * * *

Apportionment Giving

The other day a man said to me, "I have a little money but I don't know what to do with it." He meant by that that he knew of no place where he could invest this money, with economic conditions as they are, to advantage to himself and at the same time be assured of his investment.

There are different ways and different things in which we can invest our money. Some will pay dividends of material values and others will pay dividends of human values. For all these years we, as members of the church, and the church itself have been investing money in human beings. These investments have been paying dividends in human character, human efficiency, and in human service in the church, in the name of Christ and for the coming of his kingdom.

There are many great souls among us who have never invested much money in houses, or land, or stocks, or bonds, but have through the years invested their lives in the church, in the institutions of the church that have resulted in dividends in consecrated workers for the church and for the glory of God. Every dollar that you, your Sunday school or church contribute to Elon College is an investment that will bear rich dividends in the years to come. Those whom you bless, many of them will rise up and call you blessed for what you have done.

Opportunities for investment in human lives through Elon College are ever present and inviting investors to risk their funds in the hands of the college that it may continue the fine services to young people that it has been rendering through the years.

Previously Reported	$2,917.60
Eastern N. C. Conference:
Mt. Gilead	$34.00
Eastern Va. Conference:
Shelton Memorial	$ 3.00
N. C. and Va. Conference:
Bethel	$ 5.00
Durham S. S.	23.67
New Lebanon S. S.	13.80
Western N. C. Conference:
Shady Grove S. S.	$20.50
Virginia Valley Conference:
Bethlehem	$23.00
	127.97
Total to date	$2,847.57

THE COMMUNITY OF THE CHRISTIAN COLLEGE

(Continued from page 5.)

In the face of such a critical disruption of the academic community, and in the presence of such fragmentation, the claim that the college can be a community is an intriguing and challenging claim. Yet this is precisely the claim of the Christian college. To be sure, it shares in the fragmentation—it, too, has its numerous divisions and sub-divisions—but it has also learned that wholeness of our personal life is inextricably bound to a wholeness in the community.

Moreover, because most of the Christian colleges are relatively small, the exacting task of being a community is somewhat minimized; most of its faculty and students at least know one another by name; and because it is acknowledged that only a part of the educational process takes place in the classroom, laboratories and libraries, the Christian college is also typically a residential community, in which the whole day or week is potentially available for the full intellectual, moral and spiritual growth of its members. Because it is also most normally a college located in a small or middle-sized town or city, it has natural entree into the life of its surrounding community, despite the timeworn separations between town and gown.

But the Christian colleges also have a deeper resource upon which to draw. They stand the nearest of all academic institutions to the true source

(Continued on page 8.)

Foreign Mission Projects Of The Southern Convention . . .

The American Board Work at Inanda, South Africa

Back of the shorestrip which lines South Africa's Indian Ocean, the land rolls into green hills, lovely valleys. Near the cities, the hills and valleys are heavily settled in "rural suburbs" made up of families whose breadwinners commute each day to the more populous cities, or who work small landholdings surrounding their homes. Inanda is one such rural suburb along South Africa's coast. Fifteen miles inland from the port of city of Durban, it is also an important Inanda is also an educational center. A day school for African children is there, run by our South African Mission. It is larger than similar schools in neighboring settlements, and goes through the 9th year. Graduates of the several dozen other schools in the area sometimes are sent to this central school for further training, particularly if they are promising young people which the churches wish to train as leaders. This Inanda school is government subsidized, operated by the mission, which operates 70 or 80 other schools in various parts of Natal.

A New Doctor for a New Africa center of work for us Congregational Christians. Several factors combine to make this so.

Inanda is the center of a district of churches — "blackskinned, singing churches" they have been called—which have grown up as a result of mission work of earlier years. These African churches serve their villages and communities, and, like Congregational churches elsewhere, are bound together into an association type of organization. Headquarters of the association is the Inanda church, which in one sense is the parent church for all the rest, considering them at times preaching places or outstanding churches. The reason for this is that the Inanda church is the largest and strongest of the district and has its own pastor and an adequate church building. The neighboring churches are cared for by lay preachers and the Inanda pastor who "rides the circuit" every other Sunday for preaching services.

At Inanda also is Inanda Seminary, which has an influence up and down the coast of Natal which no other African school can claim. A girls' school—a missionary school—it offers a high school education for 300 girls. One of the features of its program is an industrial training—including home economics, which has earned it the reputation for producing first-rate Christian homemakers and village leaders for a wide area of South Africa. Its students are drawn from all over the Union of South Africa and are carefully chosen from more than 750 applicants a year. The school operates on a budget of about $40,000 a year, including missionary and teachers' salaries. Of this amount our Congregational Christian Churches in America, through the American Board, provide about 20 per cent and most of this is in personnel. Student fees (about $12,000 a year) and government grants make up the rest.

Seven American Board missionaries are stationed at Inanda. All are assigned to work in Inanda Seminary—but help with church work and the other schools, as they can. The missionary actually responsible for this lives a hundred miles away, at Maphumulo.

Thus Inanda, suburb center of Christian work, is an important outpost of Our Christian World Mission.

THE COMMUNITY OF THE CHRISTIAN COLLEGE

(Continued from page 7.)

of Christian community. Does true community exist, indeed, apart from Christ? Can wholeness be given apart from God's grace? Can our numerous divisions be healed by any effort less than Christ's sacrificial love? The Christian academic community despite its continuing distinctions, finds its true unity at the foot of the Cross. In this unity, it has a challenging opportunity to contribute a greatly needed rediscovery to the whole community of learning, and also to the whole community of faith.

III.

Thus, it is possible also to insist that the Christian college, if it is true to its calling as an academic Christian community rooted in Christ, can by doing its basic task also make its most profound and most appropriate witness to the fullest reaches of our Biblical Christian faith.

In recent years there has been a renewed emphasis upon the nature of our Christian vocation. Much is implied in this renewed acknowledgment of a great emphasis of the Reformation, for it involves a wholly new understanding of the Christian faith and the Christian life. In His commission to His disciples, Jesus said, "Ye shall be my witnesses, and ye shall receive power." Such witnessing does not mean preaching alone; indeed it does not mean speaking, unless our verbal witness is a further and perhaps more explicit expression of our whole life's witness to Christ's claims. Our whole life—for the Christian college, its whole life both curricular and extra-curricular—is to be engaged in the demanding and exciting task of being the bearers of the Gospel's good news. This faith is, moreover, the faith of a people who, in God's purpose, are to be the nucleus of that humanity in which wholeness of life, full love, and social justice are the marks,

Church Women at Work

With Emphasis on Missions

MRS. F. C. LESTER, Editor

840 Sunset Avenue, Asheboro, N. C.

Church Women of America Will Observe May Fellowship Day

Tens of thousands of U. S. church women will meet on May Fellowship Day, Friday, May 1, to discuss how they can take action as citizens to build more Christian communities and a more Christian nation.

"Citizenship—Our Christian Concern" is the theme this year for the annual observance sponsored by hundreds of state and local councils of church women and by the General Department of United Church Women of the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U. S. A.

Nationally the United Church Women's program for the past year has emphasized the women's political responsibility. Locally, many church women's groups are already engaged in programs on race relations, juvenile delinquency and other action projects for better community living.

Now the women are being called on to consider more direct political action as part of their concern as Christians.

In the call to May Fellowship Day, Mrs. Allen Knight Chalmers, chairman of the national committee for the observance, urges that the church women make May 1 "a day of dedication to informed and active citizenship."

At their gatherings on that day, many of the churchwomen will be taking stock of themselves as Christian citizens, from a self-evaluation chart with questions like these:

"Do I know the names of the Congressmen, from my district, the U. S. Senators from my state, my representative in the state legislature?"

"Have I ever written to any of them on any issue in the last year?"

"Have I ever attended a meeting of my city or town council?"

"Women can no longer escape responsibility for politics and for national policy," it is stated in a handbook, "Citizenship—Our Christian Concern," prepared for May Fellowship Day.

Mrs. Theodore O. Wedel, Washington, D. C., wife of the Canon of Washington Cathedral and member of the United Church Women's executive committee, is author of the handbook.

Mrs. Wedel points out that women, with their concern for community health, schools and other facilities, have every reason to be active in local politics, and can also do their most effective work there.

Noting that "the power of American political parties lies in the smallest sub-divisions, the 150,000 local precincts," Mrs. Wedel urges church women to become informed and active in local politics where they can be most immediately effective.

Societies Take Note

Mrs. W. E. Wisseman, chairman of Friend-Service, asks that you take special note of these two items concerning that department. They are clarifications concerning Friendly Service gifts to Miss Corrine Nordquest, about which each society received a letter from Mrs. Wisseman recently.

1. If you are sending a package to Miss Nordquest, please write a card to Mrs. W. E. Wisseman, 315 North Edgewood Street, Greensboro, North Carolina, and ask her when it should be mailed. (You will remember it said in the letter that not too many packages should reach Miss Nordquest at the same time on account of customs regulations.) Mrs. Wisseman will then write you the best time to mail your package.

2. If you wish to send money to Miss Nordquest, which may seem simpler than the packages, which have to be cleared through customs, send that money to your Conference Treasurer, marked "for Miss Corrine Nordquest." The money will be sent to the American Board, where it will be credited to her account and she can draw on it for the things she needs.

If there are further questions, Mrs. Wisseman will be glad to answer them for you.

Sincere Christian love, Mrs. Wedel writes, will lead to a search for the causes of slums, juvenile delinquency, poor schools or lack of health facilities, to discussion of these problems in groups and in meetings of city councils and planning bodies and to the encouragement of honest and overburdened public officials and the struggle to replace officials who are lazy or corrupt.

When millions of American church members begin to really express their Christian faith in active citizenship, Mrs. Wedel predicts, "America may indeed become a Christian nation at home and in her world-wide relationship."

Waverly District Rally

The thirty-third annual spring rally of the Waverly District, Eastern Virginia Woman's Missionary Conference, met March 31, 1953, in the Waverly Christian Church. The meeting was called to order at 10:45 by the superintendent, Mrs. G. C. Brittle. The theme for the program was: "Is It Nothing to You?"

The call to worship and an inspiring worship service were given by Mrs. J. W. Maynard, New Lebanon. Prayer was led by Mrs. Garland Spratley.

Roll call of churches showed the following present: Barretts, 1; Bethlehem, 4; Burton's Grove, 2; Centerville, 0; Dendron, 7; Hopewell, 3; New Lebanon, 3; Richmond, 4; Spring Hill, 5; Union, 0; Wakefield, 4; Waverly, 12.

Ministers and visitors recognized were: Rev. Ernest Brickhouse, Hopewell; Mrs. Hoover, Waverly Baptist Church; Mrs. Annie Bell Holdsworth, Dendron.

A most stirring and inspiring message on her work in Micronesia was given by Mrs. Hilda Thiem.

Special music was rendered by Mrs. R. H. Clark.

The offering, $15.50, was taken by Mrs. John Balint and Mrs. Walter Rusnak.

The afternoon session was called to order at 1:30 and Mrs. Simms led in prayer. The minutes of the 1952 session were read and approved.

The following officers were elected: Superintendent, Mrs. Frank Sodomka; Assistant Superintendent, Mrs. Garland Morris; Secretary and Treasurer, Mrs. Edward Bresko. Nominating committee members were: Mrs. W. C. Seely, Mrs. W. T. Parsons, Mrs. H. E. Drewry.

The rally will meet at Spring Hill Church in 1954.

A panel discussion was led by Mrs. G. C. Brittle, who asked, "Is It Nothing to You?" The following reported, "It Is Something to Me": Mrs. Huber, Cradle Roll; Mrs. Simms, Young People; Mrs. Morris, Spiritual Life Committee; Mrs. Vick, Christian Family Life; Mrs. Gay, Friendly Service; Mrs. Johnson, Interdenominational Cooperation; Mrs. Spratley, Life Membership and Memorials; Mrs. Brittle, Visual Aids and Literature.

An interesting discussion took place when the floor was opened for questions to Miss Hilda Thiem concerning her work in Micronesia.

(Continued on page 13.)

A Page for Our Children

MRS. R. L. HOUSE, Editor, Southern Pines, N. C.

I Attend Associated Church Press Meeting

The Board of Publications is a committee of men named by our church to see that this paper is edited and printed, and any other matters that need attending to. This Board, most graciously, sent me to Washington to represent THE SUN at the Associated Church Press meeting. The A. C. Press is like the Associated Press, except its members edit and print religious papers.

There were 120 people present and they came from near and far. There were speakers, teachers and writers—all of whom had new ideas for church people to read about and to learn.

On Thursday morning the group was received in the Executive offices of the White House by President Eisenhower. He looks like his pictures, he had a warm twinkle in his eye and he said some interesting things to us. We would have enjoyed a leisurely stroll across the White House grounds, especially to have seen the deep orange tulips around a lovely fountain, but unfortunately, the rain fell heavily and we scurried from door to door and only glanced at the flowers in passing.

After sessions that night, I joined the family of a college classmate and we watched the Cherry Blossom Festival parade which took an hour and a half to pass. Every state had a princess, a band, a float and tried to make theirs the prettiest and the best. You can just bet that I cheered the loudest for North Carolina and Virginia's floats and bands!

Although many of the editors present have larger magazines and papers, none were connected with one so old as this. Some people looked very surprised when I told them our SUN had been going into our homes for over 100 years. Some of the writers complained of "meeting the deadline" (the time when all material must be in) but they readily admitted that a weekly deadline was much worse than their monthly ones!

Some very great men spoke to the group. Bishop Oxnham of the Methodist Church was one. Another was the young man who is education editor of Life magazine. He had studied church magazines and showed pictures illustrating good and bad faults. Some of the editors had sad-looking faces when that session was over!

Between sessions I spent some time with C. B. Riddle who was once our editor. He showed me some interesting places in the old city and we chatted about writing and work. These extra visits added to my enjoyment.

We should be proud to have our church paper a part of such a fine group. Every year there are a few more women at the sessions which shows that more and more women are doing the work of the Church. I came home feeling proud of our paper and thinking it was good to have been there.

J. J. H.

"Manners: End or Means?"

By JANICE A. McDONALD.

Issued by the National Kindergarten Association.

"Stop doing that, Johnny!" his mother said. "That's rude."

What was he doing? One of a dozen or more performances that are bad manners. He may have been rough to a playmate, or slammed a door, interrupted someone who was speaking, eaten greedily at mealtime, been impertinent or talked out of turn at school.

Teaching good manners sometimes seems like an endless, hopeless task. The two-year-old cannot be expected to understand nor to follow the rules of etiquette that a seven-year-old can. The ten or twelve-year-old child has many things to work on before becoming an adult social-minded being. So the mother now and then cries out, "Where are your manners?"

Good manners should mean good character-traits. Think what is entailed: courtesy—which is kindness, thoughtfulness, sympathy, patience, and cooperation.

Good manners are not an end in themselves. They are a good form of behavior with unselfishness added. A rogue's charming manners are only surface polish. Of what worth are taking off your hat and inquiring after your sick grandmother if he then inveigles you into a scheme whereby you lose all your money?

The basic fact in all wrong doing is that the culprit thinks first and foremost of himself. Manners that are really good spring from unselfishness and consideration for the other person. Kindness will be found in good manners but not in bad.

How do good manners parallel good morals? Is not an example of this the bringing up of a child to mean "I'm sorry!" when he has committed a misdeed? Merely saying it would be false politeness. Surley, if we reach children through understanding and sympathy, giving them emotional security, they will not get into serious trouble.

How are the mother's manners? Is she kind and polite only with her friends? The children must obey her of course, but if she says "please" and "thank you" to Johnny, gives him her attention when he is talking, says "I'm sorry" if she has been unfair, Johnny will reason: "You have to have good manners. They're important, and they're nice when others use them on you!"

Everyone is pleased when he sees a child with good manners. Perhaps Johnny gave an older person his seat on the bus. What prompted him? His mother's nervous and irritated demand? Or did his mother gently point out to him that the woman had a lot of bundles and looked tired?

Johnny can be taught to find true joy in unselfishness by a frequent expression of appreciation from Mother. For instance: "You make me happy by remembering to take the cake nearest you," and, "Tell me now about the new house. I'm proud that you remembered to keep still when Mr. Smith wanted to talk to me."

Teaching the little observances in manners, "Use your handkerchief," and the bigger ones—thinking of others in every way at home and abroad—all of which come under "good manners," are a means for developing good character.

The repeated admonitions, over the years, all relating to Johnny's being a well-brought-up youngster, are never ends in themselves. Though it sometimes seems a hopeless task to instruct children properly regarding good manners, how very important and necessary it is!

Our business is not only with eternity but with time, to build up on earth the kingdom of God, to enable man to live worthily and not merely die in hope.—Lord Tweedsmuir.

Youth at Work in the Church

REV. MAX VESTAL, R. 1, Asheboro, N. C.

First Norfolk Youth Hold Easter Communion Breakfast

The Pilgrim Fellowship of the First Church, Norfolk, held its second annual Easter Communion Breakfast on April 5. The young people came to the church at 7:30, set up the tables, prepared breakfast of bacon and eggs. When everything was ready they gathered around the tables and were led in a very inspiring Communion Service by Rev. Charles C. Thomas, pastor of the church. After the Communion Service, the members ate their breakfast together. The members are already looking forward to next year when they will have another of these meetings.

* * * * *

Relax With Max

I'm sure the young folks at the First Norfolk Church has a very inspiring Communion Service and breakfast on Easter morning. Rev. Cecil Thomas sent me the article, and here is the closing sentence of his letter: "You can edit it any way you see fit as long as you don't change the name of the church or the minister!" Now, really, I ain't ever done that, have I?

* * *

I was very fortunate to be one of the many guests of the Mauldins in our Winston-Salem Church over the Easter weekend. Gee whiz, we had a nice time. Got up at three o'clock, too—in the morning that is—for the Easter Sunrise Service there. Thanks, Mauldins!

* * *

The late Peter Marshall, former Chaplain of the Senate of the United States, told the following story:

"A mother disciplined her little boy by telling him, 'God won't like it if you do that,' or if he persisted in his bad behavior, 'God will be angry with you.' And this worked beautifully for a long time.

"But one night at supper the little fellow refused to eat his prunes. His mother said, 'God won't like you if you don't eat those prunes.' This had some effect, and he ate all but two of the prunes. Then his mother said, 'God will be angry with you if you don't finish your prunes.' But this time he wouldn't eat another bite, and he left the two wrinkled prunes on his plate.

"To punish him for disobeying, his mother took him to his room and put him to bed early. Just as she returned downstairs, the most terrible thunder storm broke. The thunder and lightning, wind and rain, were furious. Soon the mother began to feel sorry for her son, so she tip-toed up to his room to comfort him. When she opened the door, the little boy was standing with his face pressed to the window, and he was saying to himself, 'All this fuss over two little prunes.'"

Should Clergymen be Investigated?

By DR. DANIEL A. POLING.

Should clergymen, as well as educators, be investigated by Congress?

Yes—as individual citizens.

Red lies, red murder, red rape, red slavery and red atheism are over half the world today. These are incredible facts, but they are facts and, for the moment, they are victorious facts. In the United States there are a few—only a few, to be sure, but a menacing few—"red deans," red educators, red labor leaders, red politicians and red journalists, who give their allegiance to these facts. Among us are men, not many, but one would be too many, posing as priests and preachers who are active agents of Communism.

But there are other clergymen, educators, labor leaders, politicians and journalists who are soft toward these facts, who raise other issues that have their rightful place but that are out of place as invoked here. Here there is only one issue—Communism—and with that issue joins the life and death struggle of freedom to survive.

Today free church and free school, free labor and free industry, free press and free speech, all the freedoms, are in one package, and that package is on fire. Now to invoke one freedom so as to weaken the united front against the implacable foe of all the freedoms is little short of treason to freedom itself.

Education and religion are presently vulnerable areas into which subversives and Communists have moved with deadly precision. Clergymen and educators are for "mercy" and they are for the right of the "idea" to be expressed. The success of this infiltration is apparent in the live fire directed by certain clergymen and educators against their fellow Americans who are out in front, leading the offensive, uncovering the camouflage and carrying the fight to the foe. If procedure is wrong, if there are methods of investigators that are unfair and un-American, they are unfair and un-American to all and must be corrected for all. But as to Communism, no group is competent to investigate itself. Clergymen and educators are first-class citizens, too, and should as citizens seek no exemption not granted to others.

These are "times that try men's souls." But it is late and very late. In the present crisis, when the foundations are moved and the world rocks, there is one and only one choice for loyal Americans: "Who then is on the Lord's side"!

OUR CHURCHES REPORT.

(Continued from page 7.)

erty and Alford Asycue of Bethel conducted the devotionals. Deacons from both churches united in the Communion service, and members of both churches joined in the taking of the emblems. This was a very unique service—a sacred service that will be long remembered.

The choirs of the churches alternated in furnishing the music. Several special selections were offered and enjoyed.

These services were followed on Sunday by a special Easter program presented in music. The choir of the Liberty Church, with some assistance from the Baptist church choir, presented a cantata, "Christ, the Victor." The music was well rendered, and the cantata thoroughly enjoyed.

Bethel Baptist Church presented its own Easter program on Sunday night, with an Easter message by the pastor and special music by the choir.

All of these services were quite well attended by members of both churches with visitors coming from other communities.

This week's services will be long remembered by the entire community as a week of the best and most co-operative services ever held in this community.

MRS. FLETCHER FULLER.

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE, D. D.

"Paul's Conflicts in Corinth"

LESSON IV—APRIL 26, 1953

MEMORY SELECTION: "We endure any thing, rather than put an obstacle in the way of the gospel of Christ."
—I Corinthians 9:12.

LESSON: Acts 18:1, 4-16.

DEVOTIONAL READING: Psalm 61.

Saints in Corinth.

When Paul wrote his letters to the members of the Corinthian Church, he addressed them as "saints." Saints in Corinth!!! Of all places!!! Corinth was a wealthy and a worldly and a wicked city. It was filled with immorality and idolatry. In a sense, it smelled to high heaven. But there was a church there, and there were "saints" there. There were good people in this bad place. Folks can be good anywhere. To be sure, environment counts and helps. Nobody ought deliberately to put a child in an evil environment, or ought one to put oneself in a bad environment. But, by the grace of God in Christ, a man can live a clean, honest, unselfish life anywhere. It is not where a man is that counts, but what he has in him. In most cases, a man is simply passing the buck when he blames his environment for his sins.

Paul in Corinth.

Laughed out of Athens, Paul came to Corinth. It took courage to do that. There were Christians in Corinth, a few at least, but they were from the lower classes. As he later writes, "not many noble were called." But Paul saw in Corinth, and in every city, a fertile field for evangelistic effort, and fields white unto the harvest for Christ. So into Corinth he came. He found a man and his wife there, lately come to Corinth to escape persecution at Rome, and because they were of the same trade as he—tentmakers, he made his home with them. Paul insisted that the laborer was worthy of his hire, but there were times when the folks did not have the hire, so he earned his own living by making tents. It was a small matter to Paul that he had to work by day in order to preach by night, or on the Sabbath day.

"And he reasoned in the synagogue every Sabbath day, and persuaded Jews and Greeks." The new Revised Standard Version puts it thus, "And he argued in the synagogue every Sabbath, and persuaded Jews and Greeks." He was always looking for, and taking advantage of, opportunities to witness for Christ. And he did it with persuasive power. So things went well with him and his work for a while.

Growing Opposition.

In due time, however, Silas and Timothy came to Corinth from Macedonia, and they told in glowing terms about the splendid growth of the new movement in that section. That was too much for the Jews of Corinth, and they raised opposition, and blasphemed. They saw in Paul a growing menace to their religion and they determined to scotch the thing then and there. The thing is being repeated in many parts of the world today. Witness, for instance, the efforts which the Communists are making to throttle the church in the Russian occupied sections of Europe. A free church is the greatest threat to dictatorship.

Forfeited Privileges.

"He shook out his raiment and said unto them, 'Your blood be upon your own heads; I am clean; from henceforth I will go unto the Gentiles.'" It was a dramatic and decisive event in the Christian movement. Paul became convinced that his work was with the Gentile world. Like the Master, he had gone unto his own, and his own had not received him. These Jews had forfeited their high privileges, and they paid dear for their forfeiture. From henceforth, although Paul yearned for the salvation of his fellow-countrymen, and preached to them whenever he had a chance, his ministry was for the Gentiles. These Jews never knew the fearful price they paid for their forfeited privileges. Life would have been so different for them if they had received and responded to the gospel. Men hear the gospel at their peril. Hearing involves responsibility. Disobedience brings judgment and destruction.

A Word of Encouragement.

Was Paul discouraged? Did his efforts seem futile? Was the going hard, and getting harder? We do not know. But evidently he needed some word of encouragement and hope. Thus it was that one night the Lord spoke to him in a vision, and bade him be of good cheer and courage. He was to continue to speak and to preach in Christ's name. No harm would come to him in that city. Furthermore, his efforts were not at all fruitless, for God said "I have much people in this city." Thank God for the encouragement which he gives his discouraged and despondent workers from time to time. What minister, or teacher, is there who would not have become discouraged and quit long ago if from time to time God had not given him a bit of encouragement in one way or another. Let us not be weary in well doing for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not.

Much Ado About Nothing.

Maddened by Paul's preaching and success, the Jews finally rose up and brought him before Gallio, the proconsul of the city. They accused him of being "un-Jewish"—he was persuading men to worship God contrary to the law. These fellows would have made fine members of some of the committees charged with checking up on folks with "un-American" activities and ideologies. Before Paul could open his mouth to defend himself, Gallio told the Jews he would have nothing to do with the case. If they had had any charge against Paul that would carry weight in court, all right. But if they were concerned with the difference between twiddle-dum and twiddledee, he would have nothing to do with it. So he "drove them from the judgment seat."

Folks can get into the greatest stew about things that do not amount to anything. How much friction and heat are generated in theological discussions and religious arguments, that throw no light at all upon the subject. It is time that the churches stopped arguing this jot and tittle of theological belief, and joined in common cause against the forces of evil in our modern world. We ought to stop fighting each other, and get together to fight against the devil.

Based on "International Sunday School Lessons;" Copyrighted 1951 by Division of Christian Education, National Council of the Churches in the U. S. A.

Sympathy is a thing to be encouraged apart from humane considerations, because it supplies us with the materials for wisdom.—Stevenson.

Meditation and Prayer Clear Way to Victory

A Holy Week Sermon

By REV. J. EVERETTE NEESE.

(From Norfolk Ledger-Dispatch.)

The day before the observance of the Passover Feast was a day of quiet meditation in the life of the Master. So far as the New Testament record is concerned, we have no reference to any activity on this day in which Jesus and his disciples shared.

They had arrived in Bethany the evening before. The disciples' faces must have shown a tinge of sadness, for only a little while before Jesus had said, "After two days is the Passover, and the Son of Man is betrayed to be crucified." That evening the meal was served in the home of Simon the Leper, and it was here that Mary poured the remainder of "an alabaster box of very precious ointment" on the head of Jesus while "He sat at meat." Judas, probably supported by some of the other disciples, complained of the waste, saying, "This ointment might have been sold for much." Jesus again administered a rebuke to Judas, the severity of which must have been emphasized by the look which the Master gave him.

The night was spent in Bethany, and then followed the unrecorded day which, to us, would be most interesting and enlightening if we only knew what Jesus said and did. Suffice to conclude, however, that before him was the cross and that through it redemption would be available for all men. Thus this day of quietness and inactivity, so far as the biblical record is concerned, must have become, for him, another day of preparation for the events which were soon to follow.

I am glad there is an unrecorded day in Holy Week. To me, it is symbolic and healing. Our knowledge of the activity of Christ recalls his frequent departure "into a solitary place" for meditation and prayer. Perhaps, this day was another of those momentous occasions when Jesus, in the quietness of the mountain side, won the victory of forthcoming days. On this day his real agony was met and his real cross borne. For when he came over the hill from Bethany to Jerusalem the next day, he came, not as a martyr, but as a conqueror.

We all have need of these unrecorded days, when the wheels of life slow down, and we can be alone with our soul and God. Our victories are won long before the battle takes place. The spontaneous battles of life are those that have the longest history; not those for which planning has been done. We can no more meet a moral emergency without the habit of self-discipline than a plant can bud in the spring which has not stored up resources for growth in the winter. Frequently, our lives move on monotonously and our days seem insignificant. Then we are confronted with temptations, opportunities or decisions and, in that hour, it is too late to begin our preparation to meet them.

It is a truth that our crises are adequately met, not in the moment of emergency, but through the stored-up strength of uneventful, unrecorded and remote days; just as our Lord courageously met his death on the Cross in the solitudes of the spirit which he sought long before the day of his crucifixion.

Therefore, on this unrecorded day in Holy Week, it would be advantageous for us to follow the pattern of Jesus in prayer; and although our prayers may not be answered after the manner of our wishing, we shall, like Jesus, find strength to face the coming days. And we shall, by our trust in God, be able to transform our cross into a symbol of spiritual victory. Today let us seek strength through prayer and meditation.

CHURCH WOMEN AT WORK.

(Continued from page 9.)

Mrs. Brittle expressed her thanks to all who participated on the program, to the ladies of the Waverly Church who prepared a delicious luncheon, and to Rev. Brickhouse whose presence meant so much to our Rally.

It was voted to send a wire to Miss Pattie Lee Coghill to let her know we were thinking of her, and with regrets that she could not be with us because of illness.

The closing meditation was given by Mrs. Garland Spratley, after which Mrs. Edward Bresko sang "Was That Somebody You?"

MRS. EDWARD BRESKO,
Secretary.

* * * * *

Raleigh District Presidents' Meeting

A most interesting meeting of the presidents and program chairmen of the North Carolina Woman's Missionary Conference was held at the Congregational Christian Church in Durham on January 18 to discuss plans for the coming year.

Mrs. W. T. Scott led the devotional part of the program and for meditation used the topic "Great Power of Love."

Miss Pattie Lee Coghill was the leader of the "Buzz Session," in which were brought out the various problems confronting the women's societies in their attempt to encourage active participation by more members of the church.

Mrs. Scott and Miss Coghill discussed "The Friendly Service Program."

At the close of the business session the benediction was pronounced by Mrs. Richard Jackson. An invitation was extended by Mrs. D. M. Estes to view the Bible exhibit and to remain for tea.

MRS. J. O. KIMREY,
Secretary.

* * * * *

The Sloans Come to Ingram

Sunday afternoon, March 29, Dr. and Mrs. Sloan came to Ingram. Dr. Sloan reviewed our mission study book, showed slides of Africa, and delighted us with his stories of the little-known continent. Mrs. Sloan, who won our hearts completely, is truly a woman with a world-wide vision. She is an inspiration to Christian women. The women of Pleasant Grove and Liberty Churches were also our guests.

At the close of the meeting the group went to the dining room for coffee, sandwiches, and home-made desserts. Here the group continued their discussion which had to be cut too short to allow Dr. and Mrs. Sloan to meet separate speaking engagements for the evening.

REPORTER.

When a man says money can do anything, that settles it: he hasn't any.—Ed. Howe.

The Orphanage

J. G. TRUITT, Superintendent

DEAR FRIENDS:

Thank you for all you did for us at Easter. And thank you for this good report. Easter was a beautiful day at the Orphanage. The sunrise service was lovely with the townsfolk and the Orphanage folk joining in together on our campus. The fields are so pretty and green and much of the green pastures are in full view, therefore, it was a beautiful and inspiring sight to see the sun rise across the way.

Our children attended church at 11:00 o'clock and they looked so pretty in their Easter clothes, with new shoes, and every girl with a pretty hat. Thanks to you, one and all, for making this possible. And how well the children behaved and what good compliments they received from so many who saw them at church. Mrs. Truitt could see them from the choir and she was real pleased with them.

Every member of the Orphanage staff is proud—justly proud—of the job we are doing here. We are cognizant of the results and they make us happy. We are taking homeless children, and we are putting hourly, daily efforts into our work toward their training—mind, body and spirit. You should see how much even a few weeks does for some of these little ones as they come in here.

We know you are glad for us to do a good job by each child here, from the most unlikely to the most capable one—with no exceptions. We know you do not want these children who mix and mingle with the public school children and the public worship folks to be humiliated. And we believe you want us to be able to do something besides worry and wonder every week where the "where-withal" is coming from. We trust God. We trust these children. We trust you, and we believe you will help us pay our way as nearly as possible each month. When you know what we are doing and the "open-to-all" way in which we are doing it I have every reason to believe you will give me the chance to do a good job by every individual boy and girl, and a chance to have the right number of matrons and the right kind of matrons. This is your institution—I am proud of it, and may you be proud of it, too.

If you follow these reports you will see donations from many places. There are people in no way connected with our churches who give fairly regularly to the Orphanage. They greatly help to supplement the giving of our own people. There kind increases, and to them a bulletin is mailed each month. This bulletin picks out some of the facts published regularly in THE CHRISTIAN SUN. Each issue of that bulletin brings response from some of these friends.

Every family in the Southern Convention should have access to THE CHRISTIAN SUN. It is your church paper. Our church's news cannot be received over radio—too expensive—nor can it be received over the television, still more expensive; but the news of your churches and your institutions, and much news from the work of the church throughout the world is in your church paper. You should have access to it every week, and it would be good to browse through it regularly. A lot of people read it. All should see it.

Thanks to everybody for all you are doing for us.

JOHN G. TRUITT,
Superintendent.

REPORT FOR APRIL 9, 1953.

Commodities for the week.

Misses Pattie & Willie Adams, South Boston, Va., Clothing.
Miss. Society, Ingram Christian Church, Clothing.
Mrs. N. L. Whedbee, Sr., Driver, Va., Clothing.
Mrs. J. H. Barnwell, Burlington, N. C., Clothing and Books.
Mrs. Frances D. Rickard, Burlington, N. C., Material.
Mrs. J. M. Riddle, Sanford, N. C., Clothing.
Baraca Class, Berea Christian Church, Candy.
Mrs. W. C. Medlin, Henderson, N. C., Clothing.

Mrs. J. A. Waters, Elon College, N. C., Candy.

T. R. Eason, South Norfolk, Va., Clothing.

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

Amount brought forward $4,649.68

Eastern N. C. Conference:

Auburn S. S. $ 36.33
Mt. Auburn S. S. 9.25

45.58

Eastern Va. Conference:

Bethlehem (Nans)—Special $ 11.00
Bethlehem S. S. 30.00
Dendron S. S. 22.00
Liberty Spring S. S. 20.00
Portsmouth, Shelton Memorial, Special 10.00

93.00

N. C. and Va. Conference:

Belew Creek S. S. $ 12.00
Greensboro, First 90.34
Pleasant Grove S. S. 35.18

137.52

Western N. C. Conference:

Brown's Chapel S. S. $ 5.00
Shiloh 23.84

28.84

Virginia Valley Conference:

Dry Run S. S. $ 2.00
Winchester S. S. 8.34

10.34

Total $ 315.28

Grand Total $4,964.96

Special Offerings.

Amount brought forward $3,962.12

Mrs. Ester E. Jinkens, St. Paris, Ohio $ 10.00
Junior Miss. Soc., Holland Christian Church 1.00
Dr. Paul D. Rudd, Reidsville, N. C. for Margie Hayes 20.00
Rev. Henry V. Harman, High View, W. Va. ... 2.00
Mr. & Mrs. F. C. Cope-land, Suffolk, Va. 10.00
High Point Friend 50.00
H. O. Byrd, Suffolk, Va. for Woddie Byrd 15.00
Harold Boone, Pittsboro, N. C., in memory of Kenneth Ray Cotten .. 5.00

(Continued on page 15.)

MEMORIAL GIFTS

"Instead of Flowers"

Dr. John G. Truitt
Christian Orphanage
Elon College, N. C.

Dear Dr. Truitt:

Please acknowledge the enclosed $..... as a memorial gift sent to the Christian Orphanage in lieu of flowers in memory of:

(Name of Deceased)

(City)

(Date of Death)

(Survivor to be Written)

(Address)

Name.....

Address.....

In Memoriam

NORFLEET.

God in his infinite love has called home our sister and co-worker, Lydia Norfleet.

We as a church desire to record our sorrow in her death.

The Holy Neck Congregational Christian Church, and Missionary-Aid Society of which she was a faithful member mourn her loss.

To her relatives, friends and acquaintances we extend our sympathy and commend them to our heavenly Father.

Mrs. JUNE O. DAVIDSON, Sr.,
Miss ALLIE LEE NORFLEET,
Mrs. CHARLIE C. BAKER,
Committee.

JONES.

We the members of Holy Neck Congregational Christian Church wish to pay tribute to the memory of our departed member, James Kemper Jones, who passed away February 24th.

Therefore be it resolved:

1. That the community has lost a good neighbor and friend.
2. That the members of the church deeply feel our loss in his passing.
3. That we extend our deepest sympathy to his family and pray the blessings of our heavenly Father upon them.

Mrs. JUNE O. DAVIDSON, Sr.,
Miss ALLIE LEE NORFLEET,
Mrs. CHARLIE C. BAKER,
Committee.

JOHNSON.

Whereas God in his infinite love has called home our friend and brother Eddie Lester Johnson.

We as a church desire to record our sorrow in our loss.

Therefore be it resolved:

1. That Holy Neck Congregational Christian Church and Church School, of which he was a faithful member, as long as health permitted has lost one for whom they mourn.
2. That we extend our warm sympathy and earnest prayers to his loved ones.
3. We commend them to our heavenly Father who doeth all things well.

Mrs. JUNE O. DAVIDSON, Sr.,
Miss ALLIE LEE NORFLEET,
Mrs. CHARLIE C. BAKER,
Committee.

SIPE.

On January 23, 1953 Mrs. Elizabeth Pierce Sipe of News Ferry, Virginia Passed from her earthly home to her eternal reward.

She had been a member of Pleasant Grove Christian Church since she was a young girl. Her loyalty to it is worthy of the emulation of all those who knew her. She served the church as secretary for nearly forty years and prepared the communion from the death of her mother until recently when her failing health made it necessary to pass the sacred duty to someone else. She and her mother made their home a haven for the ministers and their families for nearly a century. By this means and through the church paper together with attending the conferences and conventions they kept posted with the church and its activities.

Mrs. Sipe graduated from Elon College about the turn of this century. She kept herself well posted with what was going on there until her death.

She was a person of strong convictions. Those who knew her were never in doubt as to where she stood on problems pertaining to her church or other current topics. She showed this loyal spirit to her church by her presence and her contributions plus a zealous service for both the church and community.

For the past nine years Mrs. Sipe had lived in the home of her cousin, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Carlton at Peaces. She maintained her own home at News Ferry but due to a broken hip and physical incapacitation she stayed at the Carlton's where she became one of the family.

The only near relations left are a niece Miss Janie Pierce of Richmond, and a nephew, Mr. Edgar Pierce of Hilton Village. She leaves a large number of cousins and a host of friends.

Pleasant Grove has lost a loyal member and the community, a valuable citizen.

Her funeral service was conducted on Sunday afternoon, January 25 at 3:00 P. M. from Pleasant Grove Church by her pastor, Rev. Weldon Madren, Dr. L. E. Smith, President of Elon College and her former minister, Rev. Joseph E. McCauley of Waverly, Virginia.

J. E. McCAULEY.

PASTOR PRAISES HIS PEOPLE.

(Continued from page 3.)

that people knew who was responsible for each detail; the work of the church proceeded smoothly largely because of the organizational work which he accomplished before leaving the church. This is a matter to which all ministers might well give considerable thought; it is extremely important to the on-going of the church.

Those who have had experience in public speaking of any kind know that there are groups which are responsive and easy to speak to and that there are other groups which seem to erect barriers between themselves and the speaker and almost seem to dare him to get anything across. The group at Haw River was most responsive; they have a deep appreciation for simple, straightforward thinking and speaking. It is not necessary to "beat around the bush"; they appreciate hearing just what the minister has to say. This was one of the great joys that I found in the service at Haw River. They are a people after my own heart—honest, sincere, lovable and loving, genuine Christians. May their tribe increase!

Our final service at Haw River was on Palm Sunday; there were more than 100 people present for the morning service; the choir, as usual, did a splendid piece of work. As a special favor for me they sang the most beautiful anthem, "Seek Ye the Lord." Mrs. Beamon Busick sang the solo part and it was especially well done. As I have said many times any church would be proud to have such a conscientious group as we had in the choir. Good music added so much to the inspiration and the worshipfulness of our services; we shall ever be grateful for it.

The church held a fellowship supper in the church basement in the evening. A large number of the people attended and enjoyed a bountiful meal together. After the meal, Mr. Frain Bain, as spokesman for the group, presented two place-settings of Lenox Pine China to Mrs. Danieley and me. The china, of course, is beautiful; we cherish it as we cherish the memories of our friends in the church.

To our friends at Haw River we express our deep appreciation; to the Rev. and Mrs. Dwight Jackson, who now begin their ministry there, we express a sincere welcome. Our experience in Haw River leads us to believe that you will have a most enjoyable ministry with these fine people; as you begin your work you have our best wishes. May God bless you and the church which you serve, that it may continue its service to the community, to the denomination, and to our God.

J. EARL DANIELEY.

ESTABLISHES TRUST FUND.

(Continued from page 2.)

Christian Church for a great many years. Mrs. Boone was the daughter of the late Hon. John M. Moring, former Speaker of the House of Representatives of the State of North Carolina, and devoted to the interests of Elon College. Dr. Boone has been a member of the Board of Trustees of Elon College since 1915, serving as Chairman since 1934. It is interesting to note further that Dr. Boone is a son of the late Rev. Charles Atlas Boone (popularly known as "Uncle At"), who was a minister in the Christian Church.

THE ORPHANAGE.

(Continued from page 14.)

Mr. Lindsey C. Neville, Chapel Hill, N. C.	1.00
W. P. Robertson, Chicago, Ill.	2.00
Special Gifts	274.00
Grand Total	$4,352.12
Total for the week
	$ 705.28
Total for the year
	$9,317.08

What Makes a College a Church College?

A STATEMENT BY THE CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN COLLEGE COUNCIL

The official statement of the denomination giving criteria of a Church College is as follows:

1. Its plan of education is functionally integrated in the larger Christian community.
2. It seeks to make the total experience of students a Christian one.
3. Its staff personnel, whether in the trustees, administrators or faculty, is composed mainly of men and women who actively foster the Christian faith.
4. Its emphasis in the teaching function is on the Christian point-of-view.
5. Its out-of-class program for the students seeks to develop an environment which will encourage the growth of Christian character.
6. It may maintain relationships with other church bodies, thus demonstrating in itself the ecumenical spirit.
7. Its academic standards are in keeping with those established by recognized accrediting agencies.

The Administration and Board of Trustees must agree to the above criteria and make request for recognition, if the college is to be recognized as a Congregational Christian College.

However, the actual state of religion on a campus depends upon administration and faculty attitudes, and upon financial support of the religious program. There must be curricular provision of religion as an academic discipline, and that means budget for teaching, books and classroom equipment. There must be an adequate chapel, and that means budget provision for a chaplain, special speakers, music, the chapel building and its equipment. There must be voluntary religious activities on the campus, and that means budget provision for staff leadership, equipment, transportation for deputation teams, office expense, funds for sending delegates to student conferences, etc. . . .

A church college is interested in the churches, and offers its facilities for conferences of church groups; its faculty and officers assume denominational responsibilities; and in every way possible the college seeks to serve its churches.

On the other hand the churches seek to serve the colleges. Many local churches guide their youth to the church college, and individual members of the church itself make financial contributions to the college. . . .

* * * * *

Elon College is an accredited church college of the Congregational Christian Churches. It is the church college of The Southern Convention. Elon's present campaign for Two and One Half Million Dollars has been inaugurated that it may better serve the church of which it is a part. Make sure that your local church is supporting this campaign.

The CHRISTIAN SUN

ORGAN OF THE SOUTHERN CONVENTION OF CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES

In Essentials Unity — In Non-Essentials, Liberty, — In All Things, Charity

VOLUME CV

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, APRIL 22, 1953

NUMBER 17

We Solicit Your Support for . . . ²³

The Building Loan Fund Campaign

The New First Church of Greensboro, North Carolina

(One of the latest of our churches to receive aid from the Building Society)

The future vitality and witness of our fellowship depend on our ability to respond to the growth and movement of the American people with a vigorous program for the establishing of new churches, as well as the re-establishing and re-equipping of our existing churches.

The church extension enterprise can be undertaken with solid assurance of permanent increase in the vigor of our fellowship and with the certainty of establishing strong new centers of Christian witness and influence in the life of the nation. We can be assured, too, that our existing churches will be better and stronger as they attain a greater outreach through whole-hearted participation in the program of church extension.

An effective program of church extension is impossible without substantial resources for church building. The advance of a sound strategy of church extension requires adequate funds which can be administered by an organization of our fellowship which holds the needs of the whole nation in its view.

The most important opportunity immediately before us can be realized only by increasing the permanent working resources—for the building of new Congregational Christian Churches, and expanding and improving existing ones, through the nation.

We lay this need and opportunity upon the concern of members of the churches of the Southern Convention and solicit your attention to the Church Building Loan Fund Campaign.

News Flashes

We are presenting the Building Loan Fund Campaign in this issue for the consideration of our readers.

Mrs. Wm. T. Scott, Elon College, N. C., wife of Superintendent Scott, entered Alamance County Hospital, Burlington, N. C., Sunday, April 19th, for a major operation.

The churches aided by our Church Building Loan Fund become productive churches and contribute support and recruits for all the ministries of our churches at home and overseas.

Due to the increased attendance for the worship services at Rosemont, it has become necessary to conduct two morning services to accommodate the congregation. Both services are being well attended.

This week's Saturday Evening Post features an article by Dr. Thomas Anderson, pastor of Central Church in Atlanta, Georgia. Dr. Anderson is well known to many members of our church in the Southeast.

Increased population means new homes and new communities. On the basis of one Protestant church for every 5,000 people, we will need over 10,000 new churches by 1960. Our Congregational Christian share of the new churches is 333, 220 of which are badly needed now.

Pleasant Grove Christian Church, News Ferry, Virginia, has completed a very successful every member canvass. Since their new pastor, Rev. W. T. Madren, has been in the field, twenty-three new members have been added to the church; seven by letters of transfer and sixteen upon profession of faith.

Ninety-six requests, totaling $2,-368,600 for aid, had to be refused by the Church Building Society because of lack of funds during the last two years. Many churches which needed to borrow money for building or improvements, did not make requests of the society for they knew that no money was available. We need an increase of at least $4,500,000 to meet present needs and opportunities.

The Virginia Rural Ministers' Summer School

This very popular school which will be held at Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Blacksburg, Va., July 6-10, 1953, is primarily for Virginia pastors, though our North Carolina pastors will be most welcome. It is hoped that a number of our pastors will attend this school. We will be able to offer some scholarship assistance for those who would like to attend. If you are interested, contact Supt. W. T. Scott, Elon College, N. C., at once.

Scholarship for Rural Ministers

The Southern Convention is entitled to recommend a pastor for a scholarship in connection with his attendance at the interdenominational School for Rural Leaders at Garrett Biblical Institute, Evanston Illinois, June 22-July 24. This school is on a graduate level, and a student to qualify must be a college graduate. Garrett Biblical Institute is offering three scholarships covering room and tuition, and Dr. Thomas Alfred Tripp of the Town and Country Department of the Board of Home Missions of Congregational Christian Churches thinks he can make an additional scholarship of $50 available. If a rural pastor should be interested in this scholarship and attendance at this institute, he should contact Dr. Tripp at 287 Fourth Avenue, New York 10, New York, immediately.

Progressive Revival at Woods Chapel in the Valley

Eight different ministers will on eight successive nights preach at the Woods Chapel Congregational Christian Church revival meeting, just five miles northeast of New Market, Virginia. The services are scheduled to start on Sunday, April 26, and to end on Sunday, May 3, beginning at 7:30 each evening.

Rev. Walter B. Fuller of Harrisonburg, a member of the Valley Conference, of which Woods Chapel is also a member, will preach on Sunday evening, April 26. Rev. Verlin Proctor of Shenandoah Caverns, who has been recently licensed to the ministry, will preach on Monday, April 27. On Tuesday night, the guest speaker is scheduled to be Rev. John Waye, pastor of the Smith Creek Baptist Church at New Market. Rev. E. J. Rohart, pastor of the Linville Charge, is invited to serve as guest minister on Wednesday, April 28. On Thursday evening, Rev. D. N. Weiford, pastor of the Manor Memorial Methodist Church at New Market, is to preach at Woods Chapel. Rev. R. E. Newton of the Leaksville Charge will be the guest preacher on Friday, May 1. The speaker for May 2 is to be Rev. Ernest E. Muntzing of the Linville Creek Church of the Brethren near Broadway.

Rev. Ralph N. Galt, the pastor of Woods Chapel, will assist at all services except on April 26, and he will preach at the concluding service of the revival on Sunday, May 3.

Special music for the Woods Chapel Revival is being arranged, and it will include several numbers by the Young People's Choir of Wissler's Chapel, a neighboring sister church.

The public is cordially invited to attend all services.

Easter at Howard's Chapel Christian Church

Superintendent Scott visited the Howard's Chapel Church on Easter Sunday, April 5, and presided over a business meeting of the church when new officers were elected. Officers elected were as follows:

Deacons—J. W. Breame, Route 2, Reidsville, N. C.; Robert Moore, Route 2, Madison, N. C.; Joe H. Moore, Rt. 3, Reidsville, N. C.

Trustees—Henry Breame, Route 2, Reidsville, N. C.; J. W. Breame, Route 2, Reidsville, N. C.; Dwight W. Moore, Reidsville, N. C.; Mrs. Wiley Fulp, Reidsville, N. C.

Superintendent of Sunday School—Robert Moore.

The new treasurer elected for the church was Mrs. Carl Merritt, Route 2, Reidsville, N. C., and the secretary elected was Mrs. W. E. Jones, Route 4, Reidsville, N. C.

Five new members were received into the church—two on confession of faith.

Howard's Chapel was organized about 1883, and it was received into the membership of the North Carolina and Virginia Conference at its 85th annual session held at Poplar Branch, N. C., on November 16, 1883. Rev. J. T. Pall was the first pastor.

Howard's Chapel is located on North Carolina Highway No. 65 just beyond Wentworth, N. C.

It is hoped that a regular pastor may be obtained soon for this church. They have a good Sunday school and a fine community. It is our earnest hope that their splendid new building may be put into good use and that it may be a blessing to the community.

W. T. S.

Laymen and the Church . . .

J. Earl Danieley, Editor, Box 515, Elon College, N. C.

Activities of the Laymen of First Church, Burlington

The activities of the laymen of the First Church, Burlington, have been centered of late in the Board of Deacons which has sponsored Revival Services (April 12-16) and functions attending such a project. The Board in this church has twenty-four members which is unusually large and representative. A special committee secured the guest preacher, Dr. W. Redd Turner of Clinton, S. C. Another was responsible for his entertainment during his stay in Burlington. Each deacon took his share of names from a list of fifty prospective members for personal calling. A series of ten cottage prayer meetings were held during the week prior to the Revival Services. These were arranged by the Board of Deaconesses, but two deacons were assigned to each meeting and assisted in it.

At a recent assembly of the Church School, Mr. Egbert Truitt, life-deacon, and member of the Board for twenty-five years presented the following explanation of the duties of a deacon:

"After nearly a quarter of a century as a Deacon in this church I have been called upon to tell you something about the duties of a Deacon. Now some twenty-five years ago I might have been quite an authority as some one who has never had the responsibility as serving in this office. My experience is that the duties of a Deacon can never all be told by word of mouth. The things he can and should do are endless. He must first seek the guidance of his Heavenly Father and humbly follow where He leads. Standing before you now is no choice of mine, but having been selected by our Board it becomes my duty, as it is the duty of every Deacon, to undertake whatever task that may come his way. There is strength and courage in the great storehouse of the Lord which is available to everyone who may seek it.

"I should like to list just a few of our duties. The Board should share the pastor's concern for the spiritual ministry of the church. Deacons also assist in the administration of the Lord's Supper. In this service each member should know definitely what is expected of him, that this service may proceed with ease, order, humility, and dignity. It is also the responsibility of the Deacons to attend to the supply of the pulpit during any absence of the pastor and at any time the church is without a pastor. When a special pastoral committee is not provided the Deacons have the responsibility of locating and recommending a candidate for the pastorate.

"A dutiful Deacon should be a radiant friendly soul. His sincerity, and kindness should kindle a similar spark in other hearts. He should acquaint himself with the Holy Book. He should not let his pastor hold any monopoly on the theology. It is also the duty of every Deacon to be faithful in attendance at all services of his church that he may be a living example of faithfulness to others.

"Still many duties other than church attendance are most essential. James 1:27 says this: 'Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is to visit the fatherless and widows in their afflictions and to keep himself unspotted from the world.' Of all men Deacons should strive to keep themselves unspotted. He should take a personal interest in every member of his parish—in their successes and reverses, in their sorrows as well as joys.

(Continued on page 8.)

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr

A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom as represented by the Congregational Christian Churches.

Our Principles

1. The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
2. Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
3. The Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
4. Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and church membership.
5. The right of private judgment and liberty of conscience is a privilege that should be accorded to and exercised by all.

Managing Editor John T. Kernodle

Departmental Editors—Convention, Wm. T. Scott; Missions, F. C. Lester; Women's Work, Mrs. F. C. Lester; Young People's Work, Max Vestal; Children, Mrs. R. L. House; Sunday School Lesson, H. S. Hardcastle.

Institutional Representatives—Elon College, L. E. Smith; The Christian Orphanage, John G. Truitt.

Board of Publications—Duane Vore, Chairman, S. T. Holland, Secretary; R. C. Helfenstein, S. E. Madren, W. W. Snyder, G. D. Colelough, Treasurer, ex officio.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Year $3.00
Two Years 5.00

Published by the Board of Publications of The Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches, Inc. Printed every Thursday except the last in June and December by Central Publishing Co., Inc., Richmond, Va.

Entered as second-class matter at the Post Office at Richmond Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

General contributions should be addressed to the editor at Southern Pines, N. C., and should reach him by Wednesday of the week preceding date of publication.

Departmental material should be sent to the proper departmental editor, at the address shown on their page.

All other material and business communications except regarding subscriptions should be sent to the Office of Publication, 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond 19, Va.

The Christian Sun Subscription Blank

Subscription Price: 1 year, $3.00; 2 years, $5.00

Date.....195....

Dr. Wm. T. Scott, Supt.,
Elon College, N. C.

Enclosed find $..... for which please send The Christian Sun
() 1 year, () 2 years — () New Subscription, () Renewal.

To

Address

Who is a member of Church

() Renew, () Enter my own subscription for () 1 year, () 2 years.

My Name

My Address

From the EDITORIAL Viewpoint

The Imperativeness of Church Extension

By W. MILLARD STEVENS

One of the great imperatives which our churches face today is that of extending herself. Unless we do extend our churches all over these United States, our usefulness will be greatly impaired. The opportunity for establishing new churches in our country today is without measure. We must meet this opportunity. Hundreds of new communities have grown up all around us in the past twenty years. These communities need the Church. Other communities have grown by "leaps and bounds," and established churches in these communities are not adequate to meet the needs. These churches need in many cases to expand beyond their own ability to do so, and in other cases the churches need to relocate. We not only need the "will" to meet these needs, but we need money to help these churches get started.

This is the very purpose of the Four and One Half Million Dollar Campaign now being conducted in behalf of The Church Building Department of our Board of Home Missions throughout the country. If our churches are to meet the present and future opportunities for expansion, The Church Building Department must have a large Revolving Loan Fund to help these new churches. This campaign will provide these funds. These funds will serve many generations in making the churches strong and the faith of men vital.

The present Loan Fund of The Church Building Department is very small when compared with the present needs. Our churches in the Southern Convention have shared bountifully in this fund over the years, yet we had no part in its establishment. We know that our churches will want to do their full share now in enlarging the fund. This will be accomplished if all our churches accept and raise their suggested goals in the Four and One Half Million Dollar Campaign. We are confident that the goal will be met in the Convention. You are urged to see that your church has an opportunity to meet its goal.

What Is the Church?

By ROY C. HELFENSTEIN

The Church is the Body of Christ in the modern world.

God was in Christ in that long ago, as he walked on earth among men. God was in Christ reconciling the world unto himself. And just so, God is in the Church today, reconciling the world to himself. God is the Redeemer of men and of mankind—the Redeemer of every human relation. Man is helpless to save himself or his world except as man himself is saved by the divine love of God. That divine love must be recognized and appropriated in order to experience its power.

The Church cannot save anybody, but the Church is dedicated to the proposition of seeking to put men and women and boys and girls in touch with the God who can save. Such an institution has rightful claim to the sincere love and support of every person living in God's world and receiving the blessings of his divine providence. All men, all conditions of human life, need to experience the redeeming power of God.

Any notions that may have been entertained about humanity being on a sort of automatic escalator, rising to new heights of attainment and self-sufficiency; or any ideas about the "genus home" being so inately good and so definitely qualified for advancement in man's own right without divine assistance—any such ideas entertained in the balmy days of peace have certainly been exploded by facts and circumstances for all who think through the problems of life in these days of man's inhumanity to man!

Man has capacity for goodness, capacity for being saved, but salvation is from God. And when we speak of salvation, we do not mean the kind that is advertised as a sensational experience promised those who take some revivalist's hand in a high moment of sensationalism and publicly make declaration of belief and purpose. When we speak of salvation, we refer to the experience of a man or woman or boy or girl who calmly and sincerely yields their life to the divine love of God, saying with the poet, "Take my life and let it be Consecrated Lord to Thee."

Salvation means "not to be wasted." It involves personality, talents, affections, possessions. It involves the saving of all that concerns mankind.

Mankind can never be saved, we as individuals can never be saved, in our own strength; but the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ can save any man, any group who with all their hearts do truly seek him.

Man at his blundering best falls far short of his possibilities—short of his own expectations and of what God expects. Faith in God's help—God and man working together—brings victory. "God alone can save, but God cannot save alone." He needs man's cooperation. That is the message of the Church to men who have lost their way, to a world bruised and battered by man's selfishness, unbelief and failures.

What About Your Children?

By WM. KINCAID NEWMAN

"I don't mind if Mary Elizabeth's Sunday School class has to meet in the church kitchen, but why does she always have to sit under the sink?" Mary Elizabeth, like thousands of other children, lives in one of the great sprawling housing developments on the edge of one of our large cities. It might be Norfolk or Burlington or Raleigh or New York or Los Angeles. Wherever we look the problem is the same. Churches are overwhelmed with the children of the thousands of newcomers to their communities. They are holding classes in the former coal bins, towers, kitchens and garages. They are worshipping in parsonage living rooms, schools, firehouses, town halls, basements, anywhere they can find a place, even outdoors. Many thousands of other boys and girls are growing up with no Sunday schools at all, with no knowledge of God and His love, of the teachings of Jesus, of the principles of Christian citizenship which have made American democracy what it is.

Why? Growth and mobility. America has grown by 25 million people since 1940 and is continuing to grow by three million a year. This is the fastest growth in our history. Mr. Average American is having more children. He is living a longer life, thanks to medical science. In the old days if a man was born in Leaksville, he stayed in Leaksville. If he was born near Pleasant Grove, he stayed there all his life. Today he doesn't. He may move to Greensboro or Ashboro or Suffolk or Winchester, or he may end up in Detroit or Toledo or Bridgeport, Washington or Wichita. What will he find when he gets there? Rows and rows of little Cape Cod cottages (built everywhere except on Cape Cod) or Texas ranch houses (which don't look like the houses in Texas). He will find people from everywhere in the country, the mountains of New Hampshire, farms of Missouri, woods of northern Minnesota or Dodger fans from Brooklyn. He will find television sets, mortgages, overcrowded schools, fancy shopping centers and neon lights. Will he find the church? Will his children have a chance to be brought up in the faith of their fathers? Will they grow up as pagans? Will the new towns be composed of selfseekers looking for an easy profit or of Christians trying to create a good community?

The answer depends largely upon you—and upon others like you all over the country. It depends upon their response to our Church Building Loan Fund Campaign. A hundred years ago our ancestors faced a similar problem. They were concerned about the people at the west—in remote places like Illinois and Ohio and a few sparsely settled towns on the other side of the Mississippi River in the new State of Iowa. They organized the Church Building Society. Each year thousands of Congregational Christians have given funds for its work. They have helped people build churches from Maine to Oregon, from North Dakota to Florida. Many of us today have belonged to churches which the Society has helped. Many of our children belong to churches begun with its help. The towns where they have moved are better places because Christians have created churches which are serving them when they are in need. Many more live in towns where no one has built a church, where there are no Sunday schools for their children.

Do people want churches established? Some of them don't. They would rather not have anyone talking about God, or the Ten Commandments. Most of the people do. Five
(Continued on page 13.)

THE CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCH BUILDING LOAN FUND

Declaration of Purpose

We believe that it is of overwhelming importance to help in the erection of church buildings to meet the needs of America's unchurched millions and to provide a place where children may receive training in the basic principles of Christianity.

We acknowledge with gratitude the generous assistance in church building financial aid already received by many churches of the Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches. We further realize that our own financial resources without aid from our Church Building Society will be inadequate to meet the needs of our churches of this area. We gladly join our Congregational Christian Churches of America in support of the Church Building Fund Campaign.

We are pleased to report that our church, at a meeting of the members held the day of, 195..., voted to co-operate in the Church Building Fund Campaign of the Congregational Christian Churches and accepted a goal of $.....

It was agreed that our church would seek to reach this goal by:
(Check below the statement which applies to your church.)

- [] 1. A special solicitation of our church to be held the week beginning, 195..., in which we will endeavor to secure a pledge from each member of the church.
- [] 2. By seeking a pledge from each member of the church for this purpose at the time of our regular every member canvass to be held the week of, 195...
- [] 3. By including each year in our budget, for years, the sum of $....., which will be paid in quarterly installments of $....., beginning, 195...
- [] 4. By annual solicitation each year for years.

..... Church
By Secretary or Clerk
Address
..... Pastor Treasurer

NOTE.—Mail "Declaration of Purpose" to the Southern Convention Office, Elon College, N. C. Make checks payable to The Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches, designated "Church Building Fund" and mail to Elon College, N. C. Payments should be completed not later than March 1, 1956.

Church Building Loan Fund Campaign Opportunity for Southern Convention

By SUPT. WM. T. SCOTT

The Church Building Loan Fund Campaign now being conducted by the Congregational Christian Churches the United States is an opportunity for the Convention. It is an opportunity for us to take our place in our united Church. While we of the Christian Church and particularly of the Southern Convention have made many contributions to the total work and influence of our denomination, we have also received a great deal. Up to now we have made no contributions to the Building Society, and yet our churches of the Convention have shared generously aid provided by our "Congregational" brethren. Our churches have received aid from the Building Society to the extent of about $270,000.00, $90,000.00 of this being "grants," which are repaid at the option of the churches receiving "grants" so long as the Church continues active. The $4,500,000.00 Building Loan Campaign is our opportunity to take our share of providing funds for aiding present and future churches.

The resources of our Convention are not sufficient to take care of all our building aid needs for the future. Our Southland is expanding and new churches are needed if we are to take our places in this growing area. For instance, it is reported that in 1952 approximately 365 "new" and "major" industries moved South from other areas of the country. We must be ready with funds to offer newly organized churches for literally hundreds of growing areas. The funds of the Congregational Christian Church Building Society will be available to assist worthy churches in our area.

We not only raise this fund for the present. We contribute to the future as well. It is estimated that the Church Building Loan Fund will turn over every eight years. That is, in eight years the funds will have been loaned and repaid, on the average. This means that in 24 years the sum of $4,500,000.00 we are now attempting to raise as a denomination will be used four times, helping our churches to build plants totaling $18,000,000.00, and the total amount will still be there and available for aiding future churches. This is an opportunity for us of the Southern Convention to invest in the future.

The quota for the Southern Convention is $135,000.00 to be raised in three years. The list of quotas adopted by the Committees of the five Conferences will be found elsewhere in this issue. It is our hope that very soon every church in the Convention will have accepted its quota and made plans for paying same.

Let us arise to our opportunity—to take our place in the total life of our denomination by taking our rightful share in providing funds with which to help the Church go across our country to growing communities. The 42 per cent of our American citizens outside the Church are our responsibility and opportunity, if we are to help stem the tide of paganism in America. The 15 millions of boys and girls under seven years of age in America without religious instruction are our opportunity and responsibility. Let every church of the Convention take its place and accept its share of the quota of $135,000.00 that our denomination may succeed in raising the total of $4,500,000.00. It is encouraging that as of April 14th more than $2,000,000.00 of the total goal has been raised, pledged, or accepted as goals. Let us not fail to take our place in this great forward movement for such a time as this.

We urge our churches to accept their quotas, sign and forward the "Declaration of Purpose," a copy of which may be found on page 5, to the Southern Convention Office at once.

Suggested Local Church Quotas for the Church Building Loan Fund

The Southern Convention accepted the quota of $135,000.00 in the denomination's Church Building Loan Fund Campaign's $4,500,000.00. The Conferences of the Convention all accepted quotas as indicated below. The Conference Committees in joint session arrived at a "formula" for local church quotas that would treat all alike. Perhaps you have wondered how local church quotas were arrived at. Well, here is how.

All quotas were arrived at on exactly the same basis. For instance, the Committee of your Conference took the Conference total membership, home expenses, and apportionment giving for three years (1950-1952), and after adding the totals for three years then divided by three to get the average for the three-year period. Then the Committee did the same for each church in the Conference. That is, we took for each church its membership, home expenses, and apportionment giving for the same three-year period, and then figured what percentage each church's membership was of that of the Conference. The same thing was done for home expenses and apportionment giving. Then the three percentages were added and then divided by three to get the average percentage of the three. The average percentage was the portion of the total Conference goal suggested to each church for its quota.

We earnestly hope that each church will accept its full quota, and where possible to go beyond it. We have already received several "Declarations" from churches accepting their quota or exceeding it. In an early issue of THE CHRISTIAN SUN we expect to publish the list of churches up to that time reported as having accepted their quotas. Please send your "Declaration of Purpose" or write to Superintendent Scott, The Southern Convention Office, Elon College, N. C., reporting your church's acceptance of its goal.

Suggested Building Fund Goals

VIRGINIA VALLEY CONFERENCE.

Conference Quota—$5,736

Church	Quota
Antioch	$ 343
Bethel	377
Bethlehem	312
Beulah	33
Concord	122
Dry Run	129
Joppa	52
Leaksville	436
Linville	393
Mayland	131
Mt. Lebanon	211
Mt. Olivet (G)	276
Mt. Olivet (R)	267
New Hope	157
Newport	426
Oak Dale	300

(Continued on page 15.)

News of Elon College

PRESIDENT L. E. SMITH, Elon College, N. C.

The Support of Independent Colleges

The Association of American Colleges at its recent annual meeting in Los Angeles, California, authorized its commission on education and industry to hold a workshop meeting to which representatives of state foundations of independent colleges and representatives of industry be invited. The associated colleges of Indiana agreed to be host. Arrangements were made for the meeting to be held in Indianapolis, Indiana, April 12 to 15. There were 38 states represented. President Frank Sparks of Wabash College, Crawfordsville, Indiana, was the general chairman of the meeting.

In addition to various college presidents and other college representatives, the meeting was addressed by outstanding laymen representing business corporations, foundations and organizations. Mr. Earl Bunting of the National Association of Manufacturers in a public address expressed the keen interest of the members of his foundation in an adequate support for our privately endowed colleges. His organization is calling upon business to give generous support to this type of higher education now.

Mr. Duling of the Lilly Endowment, Incorporated, Mr. Andrews of the Russell Sage Foundation, New York, Mr. Wilker of Union Carbide and Carbon Corporation Scholarship Plan, Mr. Files of Pillsbury Mills, Mr. Collacott of Standard Oil Company of Ohio, Mr. Bell, Attorney of Chicago, and Mr. Pantzer, attorney of Indianapolis, all gave splendid addresses calling attention to the pending plight of the privately endowed colleges of the United States and emphasizing the fact that tax-supported schools receive funds from the state and were now soliciting funds, all of which accentuates the present precarious financial conditions of our privately endowed schools, and urged industry in general to contribute for the financial support of the privately endowed colleges of our country.

This was one of the most, if not the most, significant meeting in the interest of privately endowed higher education that it has ever been my privilege to attend. Business has a stake in this type of education. The campus of privately endowed independent colleges is the bulwark of freedom in education. Freedom in business, industry, politics, and religion depend upon freedom in education. When freedom in education goes, freedom as we know it and love it is greatly endangered. Since business and industry are compelled to give financial support to our state institutions through the power of taxation, is it not a more desirable thing to give voluntary support to those institutions that have and are making significant contributions to the freedom of our country and the American way of life.

The privately endowed and church related colleges of North Carolina are now in the act of completing the North Carolina Foundation of privately endowed and church related colleges. This foundation solicits and appeals to business and industry of the State to share in the support of its respective institutions.

* * * * *

The Sustaining Fund

The Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Church in its biennial session held at Oakland Church, Chuckatuck, Virginia, officially authorized a sustaining fund for Elon College, calling upon the local churches of the Convention to contribute $1.00 per member annually to this fund for the support of the College. In 1951-52 a total of $12,308.82 was received. This proved a lifesaver for our college. It provided necessary funds for faculty salaries, and the cost of operation. The college is equally in need of this support, if not more acutely so for 1952-53. As of even date a year ago, the college had received considerably more money from the churches to be credited to the Sustaining Fund Account. At present we are far behind a year ago. Reports have been filed stating that a large number of our churches have placed the Sustaining Fund in their budgets which means that the College may expect these payments by local churches during or at the close of the present year.

This is an appeal to these churches that if it is not convenient to pay the whole amount to please send a payment on your obligation as soon as possible. Elon College is in need of funds with which to meet bills and provide necessary equipment. My report to the Board of Trustees is in progress. I am anxious to make a favorable report of total contributions to the Sustaining Fund. Your contributions will greatly improve this report.

Previously Reported	$1,144.00
Eastern N. C. Conference:
Morrisville	$ 2.00
Southern Pines S. S.	14.38
Eastern Va. Conference:
Holland	$ 83.00
Suffolk	36.00
Windsor	150.00
N. C. and Va. Conference:
Union (Va.)	100.00
Western N. C. Conference:
Providence Chapel	$12.90
	398.28

Total to date	$1,542.28
* * * * *

Apportionment Giving

It is sometime advisable to measure the distance of the journey to be taken, to stop, consider the distance traveled and the remaining distance to be traveled.

The Southern Convention has requested that the churches constituting the various conferences of the Convention contribute a total of $15,000 through the apportionment plan to the College. The distance to go is twelve months. Approximately one-third of the distance has been traveled, with only one-fifth of the amount apportioned raised. To be exact, the College has received on apportionment, including this week's contributions a total of $3,190.21. As of this date last year the College had received on apportionment a total of $4,454.59 which is one-third more than the amount received this year.

Our pastors, Sunday schools, and churches should consider these facts and realize that it is more expensive to operate their college now than it was a year ago. I know that $1,000 is not too big a sum on a budget of $150,000, but when you lack $1,000 of having enough to meet the month's bills, you are placed in an embarrassing position.

This is an appeal to our friends not to forget us, but to come to the rescue of the college in these moments of need.

Previously Reported	2,847.57
Eastern N. C. Conference:
Shallow Well	$ 54.00
(Continued on page 14.)

The Church Building Loan Fund and The Southern Convention

By MARTIN T. GARREN

Convention Campaign Committee Chairman

The Church Building Loan Fund Campaign is going forward actively in the Southern Convention.

This campaign is the special emphasis of our denomination for the current biennium. It represents the Congregational Christian Church's acceptance of the responsibility and opportunity of the Protestant churches in the extension of Christ's kingdom to our nation's rapidly growing and shifting population. With an estimated increase in our population of nearly thirty million in the decade 1950-1960, our Protestant churches and our own fellowship face a tremendous challenge. It is estimated that there is immediate need for 220 new Congregational Christian churches largely in new community that will not have the resources to build churches without help. Many of our existing churches need a source from which to borrow funds at a small rate of interest for programs of plant expansion and improvement. We have many instances in the Southern Convention where new church plants are needed and where existing church plants need expansion and improvement. This is a project of imperative urgency and needs the support of each of us whether we be ministers, laymen or laywomen. We must meet the challenge of our times if we are to grow and progress as local churches or as a denomination.

The Church Building Loan Fund Campaign is not the result of an idea of an individual or a small number of persons. The campaign grew out of regional meetings of twelve hundred representative members of our fellowship across the nation. These "grass roots" meetings were initiated by many members of our denomination who felt keenly the necessity for increasing the facilities of our denomination for witnessing to our faith. Practically all other Protestant denominations are conducting similar efforts toward development of new churches and improvement of existing churches.

The Church Building Loan Fund Campaign has been approved and enthusiastically recommended by all boards, commissions, and organizations of our denominations including, of course, the Laymen's Fellowship and the Women's organizations. It was unanimously approved by the more than eleven hundred delegates to the meeting of the General Council at Claremont in June of 1952. This approval was given in what is said to have been one of the most dramatic sessions in all the history of the General Council. The campaign bears the stamp of approval and the endorsement of the Southern Convention and of each of the Conferences in the Convention.

Many laymen and laywomen across the nation are giving much time and effort to the conduct of this campaign because of their conviction that this is a program of imperative necessity and one that will extend the Kingdom of God in our nation and in our time. Ministers and laymen are combining their efforts and abilities to carry the campaign to a successful conclusion. This campaign is a memorial to those past generations who have left us such a rich religious heritage, to the present generation as it attempts to bear witness to its faith, and to the generations to come later to be nurtured in our churches.

The Southern Convention Church Building Loan Fund Campaign Committee earnestly solicits the whole-hearted support of every member of each church in the Convention in the conduct of this campaign. We hope that everyone will give careful attention to the information which will be made available. We feel that all who understand the cause and the need which they are being asked to support financially will be willing, even anxious, to participate fully in this project.

Members of the Convention and Conference committees are rendering sincere service to their churches and their denomination in this campaign. It is earnestly hoped that all the members of the churches of the Convention will work with the various members of the committees in this campaign so that we will soon achieve success in our efforts accept our opportunities and our responsibilities.

The various Conferences have accepted their goals. The overall goal was accepted sometime ago by the Convention. Local church quotas have been suggested by the various Conference committees. These suggested quotas are based on a formula which has been used in this campaign in other parts of the nation and which seems to be as fair and equitable as any which might be devised. The Conference committees are emphasizing the fact that these local church quotas are suggested quotas and that there is no desire whatever to fix hard and fast quotas. Every effort is being made to disseminate full information regarding the formula used in drawing up the suggested quotas and the efforts that have been made to arrive at suggested quotas which will be fair to every church.

The Convention and Conference committees sincerely hope that the individual churches will give sincere attention to this campaign. It is hoped that the local churches will all soon find it possible to accept their suggested quotas, if they seem fair and reasonable, and will sign the Declarations of Purpose. Then the committees trust that the churches will make plans to meet their quotas by the methods felt to be best for the individual churches.

The members of your Convention and Conference committees earnestly solicit the cooperation, the advice, and the prayers of every member of each church in the Southern Convention.

ACTIVITIES OF LAYMEN OF FIRST, BURLINGTON.

(Continued from page 3.)

"May I say finally that the greatest influence you can wield in this world is by your personal example. So to be a dutiful Deacon, seek to do the will of your Heavenly Father and be a living witness to His word and the teaching of the same. Now on behalf of the Board of Deacons of our church I wish to beg an interest in your prayers that we may strive, with you, more sincerely that His kingdom come and His will be done in our midst."

* * *

Fifteen or twenty of the younger men of the church, members of the Iris McEwen Sunday School Class, have been engaged in redecorating the enlarged room of the class. Painting, cornices, and other minor repairs were done by the men. The class is now working hard to fill every seat on Sunday morning.

Church Women at Work

With Emphasis on Missions

MRS. F. C. LESTER, Editor

840 Sunset Avenue, Asheboro, N. C.

The Twenty-First Biennial Session of the Woman's Missionary Convention

The twenty-fifth biennial session of the Woman's Missionary Convention of the Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches will meet with the First Christian Church of Burlington, North Carolina, on Tuesday and Wednesday, April 28, 29, 1953.

The theme for the entire session will be "Rejoicing in Our Task. The first session will be called to order at 2 o'clock, Tuesday afternoon.

The tentative program is as follows:

PROGRAM

TUESDAY AFTERNOON 2 o'clock

Call to Order—Mrs. W. B. Williams,
President

"Faith for Our Task"—Mrs. Duane
N. Vore, Spiritual Life Superintendent

Announcements

Appointment of Committees

Reports of Conference Presidents:

Eastern Virginia—Mrs. Garland
Spratley

Valley Virginia—Mrs. Cecil Whitlock

North Carolina—Mrs. W. T. Scott
"Financing Our Tasks"—Mrs. W. V.
Leathers, Treasurer

"Tasks Accomplished Through the Years"—Mrs. L. W. Stagg, Historian

Hymn

"Recommendations of Tasks of Love"
—Mrs. Raye V. Knight

Speaking for the "Tasks of Love":

Thank Offering—Mrs. W. E. Wis-
seman

Life Memberships and Memorials—
Mrs. J. S. Rollings, Sr.

Friendly Service—Mrs. W. E. Wis-
seman

Solo, "How Beautiful Are the Feet" from Handel's "Messiah"—Miss Virginia Gromes

"My Task While in Japan"—Rev.
Wm. Q. McKnight

Announcements

Hymn

Adjournment

Rev. William Q. McKnight Will Speak at Woman's Convention

A son of Indiana, Rev. William Q. McKnight, who was for over 25 years a missionary in Japan, will speak at the Tuesday afternoon meeting of the Woman's Missionary Convention, which is holding its twenty-first biennial session at the First Christian Church of Burlington, N. C., on April 28 and 29.

Dr. McKnight, who styles himself an "unregenerated farmer," worked

REV. WM. Q. MCKNIGHT

6 o'clock

FELLOWSHIP DINNER—SOCIAL HALL
MRS. W. E. WISSEMAN, V.-Pres,
Presiding

Invocation—Dr. W. Millard Stevens

Welcome—Mrs. Harold Ingle

Group Singing—Led by Mrs. D. B.
Harrell, Jr.

Greetings—Mr. J. Earl Danieleley, V.-
Chairman, S. C. Laymen's Fellowship

School of Missions—Mrs. Carl Wallace

Church Building Loan Fund:

"The Time is Now"—Mr. Martin
Garren, Convention Chairman

"A Voice from the Past"—Rev. H.
E. Robinson

"A Friend from Another Country,"
Miss Luuk Groot—Presented by Mrs. L. E. Smith

(Continued on page 13.)

under the American Board and was Professor of Rural Evangelism in the Theological Seminary at Doshisha University, Kyoto, Japan, during the last term of his service in that land. At the same time, he was teaching in a school run by the Methodists.

A unique experiment in "farmer evangelism" was earlier conducted in Japan by Mr. McKnight, and his life among the rural folk of that country give him an unusual story. Just prior to World War II, he lived on a farm which raised rice, vegetables and livestock. Mr. Matsuyama, then a member of the Japanese parliament and a Christian lay leader, had opened up a tract of swamp land to be cultivated by young farmers on a cooperative basis. Here it was that the McKnights lived and by their door passed daily tenant farmers and their families.

It takes but little imagination to see how naturally contacts are made under such circumstances and how new ideas on stock breeding, diet, food raising, hygiene and even religion can be spread.

Mr. McKnight was educated at Wabash College, Princeton Theological Seminary, Boston University and Chicago Theological Seminary. When he first went to Japan in 1919, he was a missionary of the Christian Church, following the merger of the Congregational Christian Churches, he was taken over by the American Board.

Dr. McKnight was born on a farm in Indiana and spent his boyhood there. When he started in college, it was with the intention to be a lawyer, but the call to definite Christian service came after graduation from Wabash, and the world lost a good attorney, but gained a highly successful and dedicated Christian missionary.

* * * * *

Liberty (Va.) Has Good Year

The Woman's Missionary Society of Liberty (Va.) Christian Church has closed another year of work, and good fellowship in working together for our church and our Master. We have had a very good year, through the cooperation of each member of our society.

We have tried to meet the requirements for the year. Some we haven't come up to and some we have gone over.

The programs for World Community Day, May Fellowship Day,
(Continued on page 11.)

A Page for Our Children

MRS. R. L. HOUSE, Editor, Southern Pines, N. C.

The Man Who Popularized Bird Life

Among the great Americans who fought poverty and won prominence in this country's early years, and whose achievements are now nationally and internationally appreciated, was John James Audubon, student of birds, and artist of the feathery tribe.

Audubon Park, in New York City, and Audubon Memorial State Park, in Kentucky, memorialize the man whose love for the wild was an obsession. Thousands of Audubon societies in all parts of the English-speaking world also honor the man who popularized bird life so widely.

Audubon was born in Santa Domingo, April 26, 1785, was reared in France, came to America with his father at the age of 18, and settled near Philadelphia. Always a lover of the great outdoors, young Audubon spent a few years exploring nearby wildernesses. Meantime, he married and decided to become a merchant. He first opened a store at Louisville, Kentucky, then a frontier trading post, but his venture came to naught because he could not resist the lure of the wilderness, and neglected his business. His wife and children were destitute.

However, Audubon's unprofitable business venture opened the way to his true vocation and lasting fame. In the autumn of 1820 he set forth down the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers with the definite purpose of looking for birds to portray, paying his expenses by portrait painting.

After reaching New Orleans, Audubon still had to rely on his art for support by giving drawing lessons, and painting street signs. His wife aided by accepting work as a governess. With this assistance and his persistence, Audubon pursued his dream—to produce a mammoth publication of birds drawn from life.

In 1824 Audubon had material ready for his publication but failed to interest a publisher. With the aid of the artist Sully, he went to Liverpool and met with success. In 1827 Birds of America appeared, which still holds its place as the most attractive volume of its kind in the world.

When Audubon returned to America he was acclaimed the foremost naturalist of the nation. His wife, who had done so much to help her husband realize the dream of his life, shared the praise.

In 1841 Audubon purchased an estate on the Hudson, and died there January 27, 1851. The estate is now Audubon Park.

* * * * *

Buying Mother a Birthday Present

One morning when Granny Randall was carefully dusting the precious treasures in her old curiosity shop, the door opened slowly and a dear little curly-head stepped in.

"Good morning," she piped brightly; "how are you this morning?"

The old lady smiled at the child, who was a stranger to her.

"Very well, I thank you, dear. Is there anything I can do for you?"

"Well, you see, Granny, tomorrow is mother's birthday, and I want to give her a present. I have been saving my pennies for ever so long, and I have 24. See?"

The child held out her hand and there, sure enough, were the pennies. To her, of course, they seemed a fortune.

"I can get something lovely with them, can't I, Granny?"

"I'm sure we'll find something, my dear," returned Granny.

So together they searched among the small articles around the room. Suddenly the little girl spied a motto, or sampler, embroidered in bright colors.

"Oh, how pretty! Could I buy that with 24 pennies?" She looked wistfully up into Granny's face.

"Why, yes, dear; you might. That is the 23rd Psalm. My little sister made it long ago," the old lady's bright face clouded; "I hate to part with it, but it might help someone."

"O, is it a Jesus story?" asked the child.

"Yes, dear."

"Please, then, Granny, I'd love for Mother to have it. You see, since Daddy died, Mother says Jesus does not love her any more. Grandma must feel so sorry to know that. 'cause she loves Jesus. She and Daddy are in heaven, you know," she explained simply.

"O, please, can't I take it to Mother, 'cause then she'll know that Jesus does love her, won't she?"

The old lady's eyes filled with tears.

"Yes, dear child, you shall have it. Maybe Jesus will show your mother how much he loves her. My dear little sister who made it died many years ago"—and her voice trembled slightly—"but take this to your mother, dear, and may God bless you."

The little girl left the shop with the package under her arms happy that she had found such a nice present for her mother. That night when she said her prayers, she asked, "Please, Jesus, show Mother how very much you love her."

Before breakfast the next morning she ran into her mother's room with her gift.

"Here is your birthday present, Mother dear; I bought it all myself. It's a Jesus story," she added.

The mother's lips tightened, but seeing the child's clouded face, she smiled, and then opened the package. She sat perfectly still for a long time, or at least it seemed a long time to the child. Then the little girl saw the tears in her mother's eyes.

"The Lord is my Shepherd, I shall not want," whispered her mother to herself. "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil, for thou art with me."

"O, Daddy," she cried, hugging the little girl to her, "I have been so foolish! 'The Lord is my Shepherd,'" she repeated again softly.

After a little while she asked Dorothy where she had obtained the sampler. Then the child told her the story of the motto.

"We must go and see the dear old lady. I am so glad she let you have it, when it meant so much to her, too."

So as soon as breakfast was over, they made their way to the little shop.

"O Granny, Mother has found how much Jesus loves her, and I'm so glad!" And indeed the child looked happy.

"Yes, Mrs. Randall, I don't know how to thank you. Surely God himself led my little girl to you." There were tears in the mother's eyes, but her face was bright for the first time in many months.

"I am sure it was our heavenly Father who sent the motto to you. I am glad that it helped. I am glad the Lord is indeed your Shepherd now."—Evelyn MacLaughlin, in The Epworth Herald.

Youth at Work in the Church

REV. MAX VESTAL, R. 1, Asheboro, N. C.

Miss Dunn Accepts Position with Rosemont Church

Miss Ruth Dunn has accepted the position as Religious Education Director of the Rosemont Church, taking office on June 1st.

Miss Dunn was brought up in a Congregational Christian home, and has a good background in the meaning of the Congregational Christian Church. She received her first two years of college education at the Lynchburg College. She then entered Elon College, where she received her A. B. degree. She received her training for her Master's degree in Religious Education at Hartford Seminary.

Miss Dunn has worked for the past two and one-half years in the Convention Office with Miss Pattie Lee Coghill. With this experience she has further qualified herself for field work in Religious Education.

The Rosemont Church feels fortunate in securing one with such a fine background, and with such qualifications as those of Miss Dunn.

* * * * *

"The Ridgesingers"

The "Ridgesingers," which the newly adopted name for the youth choir of the Pleasant Ridge Congregational Christian Church, presented a musical program in the Winston-Salem Congregational Christian Church on April 12.

Mrs. Sybrant Pell, counselor of the group, was the director and accompanist. Rev. Max Vestal narrated the program, which centered around praise of God and Christ. Soloists were Emma Allen and Betty Hudson. Others in the chorus include Velma Allen, Kitty Lee Cox, Hilda Rumley, Peggy Smith, Norman Smith, James Beane, Johnny Chaney and Harris Rumley.

After the service the Pleasant Ridge group was entertained with a fellowship supper. The offering given will be used to buy robes for the youth choir at the Winston-Salem Church.

* * * * *

"Relax With Max"

Hired man: "Boss, can you raise my wages?"

Farmer: "Well, I have so far, sonny. So you just go back to work; and I'll see if I can make it this week again."

* * *

Some people leave their footprints in the sands of time, while others leave only the mark of a heel.

* * *

Two women met on the street after a long absence. Said the first:

"Gracious, Dorothy, I haven't seen you for seven years. You certainly look a lot older."

"You, too, Eleanor, dear. I would not have recognized you except for the dress and hat."

* * *

The Ozark mountaineer is a rugged individual. One day a hardy member of the clan came down to a hospital in Little Rock and had his appendix removed. The following morning his doctor found him sitting up in his chair, hugging the steam radiator.

"Man alive!" the medic cried. "You shouldn't be sitting up. You'll tear your stitches out!"

The patient regarded the physician reproachfully. "What's the matter, doc?" he grunted. "Ain't the thread no good?"

Evangelistic Services Held at Fuller's Chapel

Special evangelistic services were held at Fuller's Chapel Congregational Christian Church from April 12-19. Rev. E. M. Carter is the pastor. Rev. Fred Register, president of the Eastern North Carolina Conference and pastor of Wake Chapel Church, and a layman from the Wake Chapel Church, Mr. Joe Stephenson, assisted in the services. Splendid progress is being made at the Fuller's Chapel Church. Mr. Carter writes regarding the work as follows: "Three years ago we had in the Sunday School an enrollment of 75. Now we have 150." Rev. E. M. Carter is one of our older ministers in time of service in the Convention and has rendered significant service not only in the pastorate but as a long-time secretary of the Eastern North Carolina Conference.

CHURCH WOMEN AT WORK.

(Continued from page 9.)

the Thank Offering and World Day of Prayer have been enjoyed by all so much. For the latter we met with Ingram and Pleasant Grove societies at Ingram, and we felt spiritually enlightened by this service.

We meet in the homes twice a month with good attendance. We make an effort to go to the homes that are handicapped, and they seem to enjoy our programs so much. We take them things and then send cards to the shut-ins.

We are glad to welcome the new members that have joined our group, and we extend to them the banner of Jesus Christ, that they, too, will help us to keep it waving on high for the Glory of God and the advancement of His Kingdom.

Although our society is still small, each member is interested and we are looking forward to a greater year than we have ever experienced in the past.

MRS. YOUNGER BRAY,
President.

* * * * *

Gibsonville Reporting

Our women's missionary society will be two years old this August. We have our monthly meetings regularly and the membership has grown from 12 to 31 members.

We have carried out our projects, sent packages to overseas relief twice, we support a missionary, our society took part in the World Day of Prayer in the city, when all the churches meet together each year.

I think our women are doing a fine work and each member is always willing to do her part, even if it means sacrificing, to help others.

MRS. LESTER STANLEY.
(The Pastor's Wife)

Rural Life Sunday—May 10, 1953

A special order of service for Rural Life Sunday, May 10, may be had from the Town and Country Department of our Board of Home Missions, 287 Fourth Avenue, New York 10, New York. Cost: 75c per 100.

At least 75 per cent of all of our churches have been aided at one time or another from Church Building Loan Funds. Now all members of all churches are called upon to raise at least $4,500,000 more to be available for church building purposes.

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE, D. D.

"Building the Church at Ephesus"

LESSON V—MAY 3, 1953.

MEMORY SELECTION: "No other foundation can any one lay than that which is laid, which is Christ Jesus."—I Cor. 3:11. (R.S.V.)

LESSON: Acts 19:8-10; 20:17-27.

DEVOTIONAL READING: I Cor. 3:10-15.

Indiscouragable Soldier of Christ.

Paul had just been thrown out of a synagogue at Corinth. So he went to Ephesus. It was a pagan city, and he faced a hard job. He knew that there would be opposition and persecution. So what? What difference did that make to this courageous and indiscouragable soldier of Christ? There were folks in that city who needed Christ and the Christian message, and Paul was not one to pass by a door until he had tried to open it. So to Ephesus he went. As always, he had an eye for Christian strategy. Ephesus was the center of a large territory, the hub of a vast area, and it offered a strategic base of operations for the spread of the gospel.

Concerning the Kingdom of God.

"And he entered into the synagogue and spake boldly for the space of three months, reasoning and persuading as to the things concerning the kingdom of God." The kingdom of God was the central theme of Jesus' preaching. During his ministry on earth he constantly talked about the kingdom of God. And after his resurrection he spoke with the disciples "concerning the kingdom of God." Paul took his cue from the Master. The rule of God in human life. God as Sovereign as well as Saviour, was his recurring theme. The Risen Christ was Lord of history and of life. Our modern world needs more emphasis upon this theme. As usual there was a carrying response to his message. Some believed, but the hearts of others were hardened, and they disobeyed the gospel.

A Split in the Church.

"He departed from them, and separated the disciples reasoning daily in the school of Tyrannus. And continued this for the space of two years. So that all that dwelt in Asia heard the word of the Lord, both Jews and Greeks." In a way, it was a split in the church. But it was a necessary step. The Jews were opposing him and obstructing his work. Accordingly he took those who were believers and who were eager to learn more with him from the synagogue and went to a "school" nearby, where he continued to teach for two more years. News of his preaching and the influence of his work went far and wide, and the gospel was proclaimed throughout the whole region. Here was another case of forfeited privilege. And here was another instance of a city church which was missionary, one which was concerned with establishing churches in the suburbs and in rapidly growing sections of the surrounding areas. The kingdom of God is like unto a grain of mustard seed. It grows from very small beginnings, and like leaven it leavens the whole lump.

A Farewell Sermon.

The lesson skips a period of time in Paul's ministry and omits some of his activities in the interim between the time he worked in Ephesus, and the time when he called the elders of hear his "farewell" sermon. It only gives us the gist of what he said, said out of a full heart to them of full hearts. It is always an experience which touches the depths when a good pastor preaches his farewell sermon to a congregation which he has served faithfully, and to whom he and they are bound together with bonds that are strong and tender. There may be things that he would like to say to them during his ministry, when he was disappointed in them, or even irked by them, but at the last his heart is too full to say them, and tenderness is the key-note. It was thus with Paul.

A Good Minister.

Paul's words to the Ephesian elders were a challenge to every minister and a blue print for action. Their first characteristic is humility—serving the Lord with all lowliness of mind. He had been among them as one who, like his Master, was the servant of all. Paul was proud of the gospel, but he was humble in spirit. And there were times when his heart almost broke—"and with tears, and with trials which befell me by the plots of the Jews." Every minister, no matter how sincere and earnest, has his moments of heartache and his opposition.

But even as he had been humble, he had been courageous. "I shrank not from declaring unto anything that was profitable." It is easy to preach what folks like and want to hear. It takes courage, and it takes love, to preach what folks ought to hear, and to preach it the right way. The ideal is to "preach the truth in love." Some ministers are afraid to preach against some sins for fear they will offend some member of the congregation. A minister ought to preach the whole truth, what folks need as well as what they like.

He had done both public and personal evangelism. "Teaching you publicly and from house to house, and testifying both to Jews and to Greeks." It is one thing to stand behind a pulpit and preach Christ to men; it is another thing to go into homes and shops and offices and talk to men about Christ face to face. But pastoral personal evangelism is often far more effective than pulpit evangelism.

He had preached the whole gospel, "among whom I went about preaching the kingdom." Well-rounded, full-orbed, balanced and inclusive preaching had been the character of his public and private utterances. The emphasis had been upon "repentance toward God, and faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ." He had, of course, preached about many things, but ever and again it had all rooted in repentance toward God, and faith in Jesus Christ. That is the formula for salvation. If men confess their sins, God in Christ is faithful and just to forgive them their sins and to cleanse them from all unrighteousness.

And he had done all this without any hope of earthly reward. He had not coveted any man's silver or gold.

Facing the Unknown Future Unafraid.

And what about the future? He did not know. He felt sure that there would be hard times ahead. But he counted not his life dear unto himself. He wanted only to be faithful to his great trust. God in Christ was able to supply all his need. Because he knew whom he had believed, he could face the unknown future unafraid.

Based on "International Sunday School Lessons;" Copyrighted 1951 by Division of Christian Education, National Council of the Churches in the U. S. A.

WHAT about YOUR CHILDREN.

(Continued from page 5.)

hundred joined the new church we started in Milwaukee in its first year. At the Hillcrest Church, Pleasant Hill, California, we started services in the parsonage, bought with the help of the women's missionary society of First Church, Oakland, California. With the help of all our churches through the Church Building Society a small church building was built. Before it was finished they had one hundred members. Within a month after completion it grew to 200 and in four months more the Sunday school reached 340.

Help is needed for old churches, too. The Union Church of Hunterdale, Franklin, Virginia, had been worshipping for 100 years in a small frame building. Then Franklin grew with many new homes erected near the church so that it was too small to hold the people. With the help of the Society the members erected a fine new church. Damascus Church, Sunbury, N. C., burned to the ground. The Society helped replace it with a modern brick sanctuary and education building. At Glastonbury, Connecticut, a hurricane blew down our historic First Church, leaving the people with no place to worship. Again the Society came to the rescue with a loan which helped them rebuild. First Church, Greensboro, became surrounded by factories and the location was no longer convenient to its members. The Society helped build its fine new building in a residential neighborhood.

The funds of the Society do not do the whole job. They supplement what the people in the church do for themselves. They are given out as loans which when repaid are again loaned to other churches. The members of the churches give themselves sacrificially to build the churches, and then repay the loans that other churches may be helped. Thus a gift to the fund is used over and over again in the course of the years. Loans are repaid every ten years and often faster. At present loans are being repaid approximately every eight years. Thus in a hundred years your gift helps build twelve churches.

The present funds of the Church Building Society are the result of the giving of our fathers and grandfathers and great grandfathers. What they have done has been of inestimable value. But what is the present value of the money which they gave? What do things cost now, compared with the old days? The cost of buildings has risen to three or four times what it was and the value of the present funds has corresponding decreased.

Thus the present funds are able to do less work at just the time they are needed most because of the increase in population. The Society has had to turn down hundreds of churches because of lack of funds. Many churches which should have been started. Many churches have built buildings which are much too small. Mary Elizabeth has no place to go to Sunday school or has to sit under the sink.

The members of our churches are not taking the problem casually. After consulting the Southern Convention and the various State Conferences, the General Council of Congregational Christian Churches voted unanimously at its meeting in Claremont, Calif., last June to conduct a campaign to raise $4,500,000.00 to do the job better. The start of the campaign was delayed in the Southern Convention until March 1st to make way for the Elon College Campaign, also of vital interest to our churches. In the rest of the country the churches have already passed the halfway mark in the campaign. It is now up to the Convention to do its share—$135,000. The Convention has asked each Conference to take a share of this. Each Conference has approved its goal and assigned a quota to each church. Each Conference has appointed a committee which is at work taking the message to the churches.

Some churches have already accepted their quotas. The first was Lee's Chapel, Moncure, N. C., Rev. Fred Register, pastor. This church is just completing a new building itself after sacrificial giving by its members and many hours of donated labor. Lee's Chapel has not only accepted, it has paid in full! Other churches are following its lead.

What should your church do?

1. Tell its members about the campaign.
2. Show the campaign film, "The Basis of the Blueprint."
3. Vote to accept your quota and send in a Declaration of Purpose to the Convention Office.
4. Raise your share so that churches may be built to serve America's need.

By 1960 there will be 50 million more people in America than there were in 1940.

THE WOMAN'S CONVENTION.

(Continued from page 9.)

TUESDAY EVENING
8 o'CLOCK

Hymn

Prayer—Mrs. John G. Truitt

Anthem, "O Divine Redeemer," Gounod—Burlington Choir

Introducing the Speaker—Dr. Wm. T. Scott

"The Life and Task of the Church Around the World"—Dr. Henry Smith Leiper, Minister and Secretary, the Missions Council

Dedication of Offering—Rev. Henry E. Robinson

Hymn

Benediction

* * *

WEDNESDAY MORNING
9 o'CLOCK

Hymn

Prayer—Mrs. Carl Dawson

"Rejoicing in Our Task"—Mrs. W. B. Williams

Continuing Tasks:

Cradle Roll—Mrs. Carl Wallace

Children—Miss Julia Woodson

Young People—Mrs. W. Millard Stevens

Editor—Mrs. F. C. Lester

Spiritual Life—Mrs. Duane Vore

Interdenominational Cooperation—

Mrs. Henry E. Robinson

Christian Family Life—Mrs. W. Millard Stevens

Life Memberships and Memorials—

Mrs. Tucker G. Humphries

Literature—Miss Pattie Lee Coghill

Visual Aids—Mrs. Wm. T. Scott

Hymn

"Our Home Mission Task in the Southern Convention"—Dr. Wm. T. Scott, Superintendent

Special Committee Reports:

Staley Memorial Scholarship Fund—Mrs. John G. Truitt

Timothy Chang and Chinese Ministerial Scholarship—Dr. Wm. T. Scott

Revision of Constitution—Mrs. W. E. Wiseman

Finance—Mrs. F. C. Lester

Recommendations—Mrs. Raye V. Knight

Nominations—Mrs. J. Rollie Gayle

Courtesy—Mrs. L. W. Vaughan

Credentials—Miss Ruth Dunn

Miscellaneous Business

Installation of Officers—Dr. Henry Smith Leiper

Adjournment

* * *

Immediately after adjournment, lunch will be served in the Social Hall of the church.

The Orphanage

J. G. TRUITT, Superintendent

DEAR FRIENDS:

There is something nice some organization or class could help us with, namely, a shower room on the back porch of Johnston Hall where 29 boys have to bathe in only two tubs. The two bathrooms are on the second floor and are rather small. When it comes bath time for 29 boys there is a very crowded situation. Besides, boys working in the field or at the barn or with the hogs, need to have a shower bathroom on the ground floor rather than having to make their way to their rooms then wait their turn at the two over-used tubs. It is estimated that to build a shower on the large back porch would cost around $700.00. In it would be a large anti-room for soiled clothes, and a large shower room with four shower heads. This would be worth so much to us. Send a donation on it, or take it as a project, please.

Today fifty of our boys and girls have gone to the circus, guests of the Burlington Kiwanis Club, transportation, chaperonage, tickets and treats. Mighty nice thing for our good neighbors to do, and we wish to thank them.

Today, Mr. Wagoner and I visited the Nazareth (E. & R) Orphanage near Salisbury. Looked over their farming operations, their dairy, their plant. Had dinner with their staff—the children were all in nearby public schools. They have 45 children, seven women on their staff, and two men. They are doing an excellent job, and everyone seemed real happy and enthusiastic about their work and their positions. They had many pretty shrubs on their campus, some of them in full bloom. With your help we are going to take some of the drabness off our campus by shrubs. A small number of shrubs properly placed and tended could do a lot for the beauty of this already beautiful campus.

Our Children's Program was a good success at Smithwood Church, and the people were so kind to us in all their compliments, and in the lovely dinner which they served us. Everyone seemed so glad they had invited us, and we all had a good time. We leave happiness in the hearts of the people because they have seen and approved the work we, through their assistance, are doing for homeless children, proteges of the people who care.

This next Sunday I shall take our children's program to Palm Street Church, Greensboro, N. C., where I preached my first sermon some forty years ago. I appreciate the opportunity to preach there again on this anniversary occasion, and I am so thankful for the blessings of God during the forty intervening years. As a ministerial student at Elon College, I supplied the pulpit one Sunday for Dr. W. C. Wicker.

Thanks again for your help in this work, and may God bless it with his oversight and care.

JOHN G. TRUITT,
Superintendent.

REPORT FOR APRIL 16, 1953.

Commodities for the Week.

Mrs. E. W. Vickers, Elon College, N. C., Dresses.
Mrs. G. V. Smith, Sanford, N. C., Clothing.

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

Amount brought forward $ 4,964.96
Eastern Va. Conference:
Dendron—Special$ 5.00
Christian Temple 20.00
Portsmouth, Shelton Memorial 4.00

29.00

N. C. and Va. Conference:
Bethel$ 3.22
Burlington S. S. 123.00
Greensboro, First—Special 80.00
Liberty—Special 5.50
Greensboro, Calvary S. S., 27.00

Western N. C. Conference:
Pleasant Ridge—Special . $ 32.32
Pleasant Union 20.69
Shiloh 15.17

238.72

Virginia Valley Conference:
Bethlehem 16.75

68.17

Total $ 352.65

Grand Total $ 5,317.61

Special Offerings.

Amount brought forward $ 4,352.12
C. V. Hooper, Morehead City, N. C.$ 50.00
Ivor Sunday School, Wakefield, Va. 3.89
Birdie, Alice & Sallie Wilson, Virgilina, Va. 5.00
National Bank of Burlington (dividends) 36.00
First Christian Church, Roanoke, Alabama 10.00
W. R. Slaglo, Virgilina, Va. 5.00
Margaret, Lowry & L. A. Daniels, Driver, Va., in memory of Mrs. Regina Warrington 5.00
Mr. & Mrs. W. H. Parker, Driver, Va., in memory of Mrs. Regina Warrington 5.00
Special Gifts 130.00

249.89

Endowment Fund.

The Duke Endowment $ 2,975.34
Total $ 3,225.23
Grand total $ 7,577.35
Total for the week $ 3,577.88
Total for the year $12,894.96

APPORTIONMENT GIVING.

(Continued from page 7.)

Eastern Va. Conference:
Mt. Zion$ 15.00
Spring Hill S. S. 5.42

N. C. and Va. Conference:
Asheville$ 27.00
Greensboro, Palm Street . 115.00
Hines Chapel S. S. 13.43
Ingram S. S. 48.91
Burlington, Lakeview S. S. 19.88

Western N. C. Conference:
Flint Hill (R)$ 5.00
Zion 5.00

Virginia Valley Conference:
Bethel S. S.$ 34.00

342.64

Total to date $3,190.21

MEMORIAL GIFTS

"Instead of Flowers"

Dr. John G. Truitt
Christian Orphanage
Elon College, N. C.

Dear Dr. Truitt:

Please acknowledge the enclosed $..... as a memorial gift sent to the Christian Orphanage in lieu of flowers in memory of:

(Name of Deceased)

(City)

(Date of Death)

(Survivor to be Written)

(Address)

Name.....

Address.....

BUILDING FUND GOALS.

(Continued from page 6.)

Palmyra	151
Timber Ridge	495
Winchester	1,101
Wissler's Chapel	136
Wood's Chapel	188

EASTERN VIRGINIA CONFERENCE.

Conference Quota—$51,000

Church	Quota
Antioch	$ 378
Barrett's	204
Behea (Nansemond)	872
Bethlehem (Disputanta)	459
Bethlehem (Nansemond)	2,040
Burton's Grove	153
Centerville	184
Cypress Chapel	1,321
Dendron	209
Eure	709
Franklin	2,132
Great Bridge (Berea)	1,197
Holland	1,913
Holy Neck	1,270
Hopewell	464
Isle of Wight	357
Johnson's Grove	138
Liberty Spring	1,591
Mt. Carmel	872
Mt. Zion	265
New Lebanon	224
Newport News	3,264
Norfolk: Bay View	724
Christian Temple	5,330
First	969
Little Creek	388
Rosemont	2,861
Second	877
Oak Grove	265
Oakland	1,530
Portsmouth: Elm Avenue	704
First	1,410
Shelton Memorial	683
Richmond	1,459
South Norfolk	2,796
Spring Hill	265
Suffolk	6,290
Sunbury (Damascus)	775
Union (Surry)	163
Wakefield	459
Waverly	1,066
Windsor	842

EASTERN NORTH CAROLINA CONFERENCE.

Conference Quota—$17,690

Church	Quota
Amelia	$ 381
Antioch	203
Auburn	343
Bethel	76
Bethlehem	131
Beulah	517
Catawba Springs	480
Chapel Hill	509
Christian Chapel	173
Christian Light	304
Clayton	292
Damascus	214
Ebenezer	343
Fayetteville	285
Fuller's Chapel	324
Good Hope	196
Hayes Chapel	166
Henderson	1,087
Hope Mills	195
Lebanon	104
Lee's Chapel	166
Liberty Vance	1,283
Martha's Chapel	134

Moore Union	173
Morrisville	207
Mt. Auburn	523
Mt. Carmel	203
Mt. Gilead	332
Mt. Hermon	200
New Elam	460
New Hope	477
Niagara	95
Oak Level	279
O'Kelley's Chapel	71
Pinney Plain	200
Pleasant Hill	134
Pleasant Union	373
Plymouth	297
Pope's Chapel	233
Raleigh	948
Sanford	975
Shallow Well	686
Six Forks	65
Southern Pines	1,081
Turner's Chapel	376
Wake Chapel	1,966
Wentworth	244
Youngsville	170

WESTERN NORTH CAROLINA CONFERENCE.

Conference Quota—$11,476

Church	Quota
Albemarl	$ 885
Antioch (C)	189
Antioch (R)	211
Asheboro	775
Bailey's Grove	88
Bennett	69
Big Oak	208
Biscoe	62
Brown's Chapel	357
Center Grove	46
Ether	236
Flint Hill (M)	127
Flint Hill (R)	127
Glendon	40
Grace's Chapel	436
Hank's Chapel	694
High Point	426
Liberty	361
Mt. Pleasant	187
Needham's Grove	335
New Center	182
Park's Cross Roads	444
Patterson's Grove	48
Pleasant Cross	187
Pleasant Grove	578
Pleasant Hill	1,006
Pleasant Ridge	591
Pleasant Union	295
Providence Chapel	97
Ramseur	383
Randleman	215
Seagrove	326
Shady Grove	197
Shiloh	223
Smithwood	335
Sophia	260
Spoon's Chapel	132
Union Grove	246
Zion	395

NORTH CAROLINA—VIRGINIA CONFERENCE.

Conference Quota—$50,552

Church	Quota
Apple's Chapel	$ 1,563
Asheville	742
Belew Creek	465
Berea	570
Bethel	575
Bethlehem	1,442
Burlington: Beverly Hills	364
First	6,390

Lakeview	75
Carolina	520
Concord	460
Danville	2,840
Durham	3,357
Elk Spur	202
Elon College	2,450
Gibsonville	1,020
Graham-Providence Memorial	495
Greensboro: Calvary	688
First	3,292
Palm Street	1,243
Happy Home	1,320
Haw River	1,065
Hebron	359
Hines Chapel	607
Hopedale	603
Howard's Chapel	391
Ingram	975
Kallam Grove	344
Lebanon	525
Liberty	635
Long's Chapel	681
Mebane	156
Monticello	460
Mt. Bethel	414
Mt. Zion	631
New Lebanon	825
Pfafftown	258
Pleasant Grove	814
Pleasant Ridge	364
Reidsville	3,221
Rocky Ford	202
Salem Chapel	414
Shallow Ford	1,057
Tryon	2,014
Union (NC)	1,395
Union (Va)	1,498
Winston-Salem	814
Zion	66

We Americans are migrating people. Just as we migrated in 1620 and 1853, we migrate today. Some of us move from the country to town; some of us from the city to the suburbs; some of us move a thousand miles to new work and a different climate. We move, and we must move our churches with us. We must give our children and grand-children means to move their church with them. The funds of the Church Building Society are capital funds. They are paid back in about eight years and then start on another building venture. They will go on from generation to generation, building churches for our children and our children's children. Help your church to help make a larger fund available for this important task.

Among the "Fruits of Success" of the Church Building Loan Fund Campaign will be: New communities with the church at their center; a new generation brought up in the Christian faith and life; new and stronger churches contributing leadership and support to all ministries of our fellowship; a growing, dynamic Congregational Christian fellowship, in a growing, dynamic America.

Why Support the Building Society Loan Fund Campaign!

Today the pulpit is still central in a prophetic ministry, but church programs must include all sorts of activities for young and old.

There are many more people to serve. Many more church buildings are needed. Costs have gone up steadily. Greatly increased resources are needed.

For years to come, there will be more little children than for a long time. Today over 15 million boys and girls under seven are without any form of religious education.

Americans live longer than they used to live. We face the problem of religious education, recreation and other church programs for older people. Today life tends to begin at sixty or sixty-five.

A hundred years ago we were missionary minded. We were keen for organizing new churches and housing them suitably. Our opportunity now is more than ten times as great. Are we still missionary minded? Do we still want the Church to follow the people?

We must recover the missionary spirit that organized homeland societies and supported missionaries in the foreign field at the same time. If we are to continue to export dollars to the younger churches overseas, we must have exporting churches gathering in these dollars for export.

A larger proportion of the population than ever before is now affiliated with some church; however, the number of people not reached by any church is now larger than ever before. Millions of these people live at prohibitive distances from existing churches. We must have more, not fewer, churches to serve new residential neighborhoods and increased populations.

What is the part of each church in this campaign?

1. To learn the facts.
2. To accept a quota as suggested by its Conference committee.
3. To work out and carry through a plan for reaching this goal by the method best suited to that particular church.

What is your personal part in this campaign?

1. To aid your church in doing its share.
2. To work and pray and give for the successful completion of this important Christian enterprise cheerfully and joyfully, with the radiance of the true Christian spirit.
3. To watch your gift grow as it becomes a part of a revolving loan fund of the Congregational Christian Church Building Society. $4,000,000 given now can in 24 years do approximately $18,000,000 worth of building and still be available for future generations. This plus the $3,500,000 the Church Building Society now has on loan, gives hope and promise to match the need and opportunity for increased Church Building Loan Funds to be used over and over.

The CHRISTIAN SUN

ORGAN OF THE SOUTHERN CONVENTION OF CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES

In Essentials Unity — In Non-Essentials, Liberty, — In All Things, Charity

VOLUME CV

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, APRIL 30, 1953

NUMBER 18

Our Bay View Church Consecrates

A New Educational Building

Pictured above is the New Educational Building of the Bay View Congregational Christian Church, Norfolk, Virginia. The inset is the front view of the Sanctuary, the original building. We congratulate Rev. Johnson L. Griffin, the pastor, and his congregation upon the completion of this beautiful and functional church plant. Read Mr. Griffin's story on page 6, this issue.

News Flashes

The Executive Board of the Southern Convention met in Henderson, N. C., on Thursday, April 23, in semi-annual session. We presume that a full report of its actions will appear in a subsequent issue of THE SUN.

We are printing in this issue a post-Easter radio sermon by Dr. Richard K. Morton of the Union Congregational Church of Jacksonville, Florida. Lack of space has delayed its publication, but it remains timely and well worth one's reading.

The friends of Mrs. Wm. T. Scott, who is a patient at Alamance County Hospital, Burlington, N. C., will be glad to learn that she is convalescing satisfactorily, following a major operation. Her physicians report very satisfactory progress, and it is to be hoped she may be recovered sufficiently to accompany Superintendent Scott to the International Congregational Christian Council meeting in St. Andrews, Scotland, in June.

The Importance of the Declaration of Purpose

Our only means of knowing when the total goal of the Church Building Loan Fund Campaign has been accepted by our churches in terms of local church goals is through the Declaration of Purpose, a sincere statement of the intention of each church to do its part in the campaign. It is our guide in planning for the future and our means of determining the progress we are making. Each church is earnestly requested to accept a goal as soon as possible, decide upon a time and a way for raising the money, and then report to us through the Declaration of Purpose. As soon as your Declaration is received you will be sent a Certificate of Acknowledgment and a poster. Both should be placed where they can be easily seen. A church increases the value of its participation in the campaign by acting early on the Declaration of Purpose. We are rerunning the "Declaration" on page 15 this week.

Virginia Valley Ministers Hold Rewarding Retreat

On the day before our mid-year conference, March 25, all six of us Valley Conference ministers met with

Fred S. Buschmeyer, head of the Department of the Ministry of the General Council, for a rewarding retreat. The fact that there are but six of us on "active duty" (Galt, Harman, Madren, Newton, Rohart, Whitten), made the meeting most intimate. In fact, we began with a "confession session" where we testified to our own inner feelings and the circumstances surrounding our calls to the ministry.

Having shared our convictions, we proceeded to share the fine food set before us by Mrs. Whitten—the meeting being at the Winchester parsonage. After dinner, we entered into a general discussion of the relation between the minister himself and the gospel which he preaches. Before this discussion was completed, we were joined by Dr. L. E. Smith of Elon College.

In our discussion, we reaffirmed our need to know the Bible, not just about the Bible; and to preach from it, not just about it. We thought about the centrality of Jesus Christ, both for the Bible and for the ministry of the church. Realizing that the gospel is so much larger than any of our own interpretations, we spoke of the need to preach intimately but with a great sense of humility. While our testimony must be personal, we must watch against overdoing the personal element at the expense of the sense of history and the sense of the "otherness" of God.

We discussed last about the experience of church membership. People—even those already in the church—must come to know Jesus better, and we must speak plainly that they may know him. But the experience of knowing him must be ethical as well as emotional.

We Valley ministers are greatly indebted to Dr. Buschmeyer for both leading us in our thinking and for sharing intimately our fellowship.

H. V. HARMAN.

Winchester Bible Class Reports a Rich Experience

The Fidelis Class of the Winchester, Virginia, Congregational Christian Church held recently one of the most interesting and inspiring sessions of its history. A short while ago our church suddenly found herself facing the financial burden of a new furnace and redecorating of the sanctuary, which had been badly smoked by the old furnace. The figures obtained for the work were staggering, and we realized that every group and every individual in the church must do the utmost in order to accomplish this gigantic task.

Special individual contributions were made. One of the adult classes held bake sales. The Juniors gave a "work week," and other projects are under way.

At its March meeting, the Fidelis Class decided to try the "Talent" plan. Individual members were to invest $1.00 and bring to the April meeting their earnings. The class met, and opened with the usual worship service. After routine business, the devotional leader read from the scriptures the parable of the talents. Individuals then presented their talents and what they had earned. Each had a story to tell as the gifts were laid on the altar. Interested and loving hearts and hands and minds had been truly busy. There was the sale of soup, pies, clothespins, aprons and bags; coffee in offices, sandwiches in places of business at lunch time, proceeds from coca cola machine in a place of business, profit on home-made pies made by the wife of a restaurant owner and sold there; a day's waitress tips, crocheted work, candy sold, fresh cocoanut cakes at Easter time. A group supplemented the gift by holding a bake sale. One man's employer, learning of the plan, contributed $25 because of his interest in it. When the gifts had all been presented, the pastor, Rev. Robert A. Whitten, offered a prayer of dedication.

The offerings amounted to $250. The group was not large, and there is more to be added. The spirit of the undertaking seemed to be contagious as one story after another was told. It was thrilling! Everyone agreed that this is only a beginning. Our talents will continue to earn others, and possibilities are beyond anything we could imagine.

The spirit of the meeting was wonderful—a rich experience for everybody present. The class, at this meeting voted, as is their custom, to pay $2.50 for each child going to camp from our church.

The financial gift was appreciated, but of far greater value was the spiritual benefit derived from our venture.

We pass our experience on with the prayer that others who have faith as we did to try it, may know the rich and rewarding experience that was ours.

MRS. T. F. TRENARY,
Class Reporter.

Laymen and the Church . . .

J. Earl Danieleley, Editor, Box 515, Elon College, N. C.

Our Summer Conference Center

Chairman W. B. Williams of our Laymen's Fellowship has just written a letter to us which is concerned with our project to raise $25,000 for the development of "Moonelon" as a summer conference center for the Southern Convention. This is a job which all of us want to see done. We need the center for our men's work, for the women of the Convention, and, most important, we need the center for our children. We cannot afford to have either of these groups suffer for lack of such facilities as we are able to provide for them.

Some of our men are already doing an excellent piece of work on this project. We have heard some very encouraging news from Asheboro, for example. We will try to give you their story in the issue next week. In the meantime, won't you check up and see if anything is being done in your church; don't hesitate to take the lead, and let's put our shoulders to the wheel and do this job!

Your contributions should be sent to S. H. Pell, secretary-treasurer of the Laymen's Fellowship, Route 1, Ramseur, North Carolina, designated for "Moonelon." Won't you let him hear from you and your group soon?

Do you know what was given to the Convention by Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Sellars to start this project? A site of 20 acres of land, a lake, a concrete swimming pool, a two-story dwelling, a care-taker's house and a picnic shelter. The valuation of this property is $35,000. We have the responsibility of raising only $25,000 to provide other needed facilities—surely we can count on you to do your part in this worthy endeavor.

* * * * *

News Notes from the Western Conference

The Western North Carolina Conference Laymen's Fellowship met at Pleasant Grove Church on March 28, for a dinner of Bar-B-Q and ham. There were 108 present. Rev. Henry E. Robinson spoke to the men concerning the possibilities of the conference center at "Moonelon." The men at the meeting contributed $44 to "Moonelon" and appointed a committee to study further means by which the men's group could support this worthy cause. The members of the committee are: Dalton Harper, chairman; Hubert Beane, Martin Deese, Cyrus Shoffner and Rev. Winfred Bray.

We are delighted to report the organization of two more new Fellowships in the Western Conference: one at Liberty and one at Spoon's Chapel. We hope to have a complete report on each of these groups at a later date. There has also been organized at Union Grove a Junior Fellowship; we hope to report this group more completely later also.

The laymen of the Western Conference Fellowship will meet with the Union Grove laymen in the Coleridge High School Cafeteria on May 30. It is tentatively planned to have an address by a missionary.

S. H. PELL.

* * * * *

Pleasant Ridge Laymen Meet

The Laymen's Fellowship of the Pleasant Ridge Congregational Christian Church, Ramseur, N. C., met on Saturday night, April 25, in its regular monthly meeting and voted to give $150 to the Church Building Loan Fund by March 31, 1956. This is probably the first laymen's group to make such a move.

HARRY R. STEWART,
Reporter.

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr

A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom as represented by the Congregational Christian Churches.

Our Principles

1. The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
2. Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
3. The Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
4. Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and church membership.
5. The right of private judgment and liberty of conscience is a privilege that should be accorded to and exercised by all.

Managing Editor John T. Kernodle

Departmental Editors—Convention, Wm. T. Scott; Missions, F. C. Lester; Women's Work, Mrs. F. C. Lester; Young People's Work, Max Vestal; Children, Mrs. R. L. House; Sunday School Lesson, H. S. Hardcastle.

Institutional Representatives—Elon College, L. E. Smith; The Christian Orphanage, John G. Truitt.

Board of Publications—Duane Vore, Chairman, S. T. Holland, Secretary; R. C. Helfenstein, S. E. Madren, W. W. Snyder, G. D. Colclough, Treasurer, ex officio.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Year $3.00
Two Years 5.00

Published by the Board of Publications of The Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches, Inc. Printed every Thursday except the last in June and December by Central Publishing Co., Inc., Richmond, Va.

Entered as second-class matter at the Post Office at Richmond Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

General contributions should be addressed to the editor at Southern Pines, N. C., and should reach him by Wednesday of the week preceding date of publication.

Departmental material should be sent to the proper departmental editor, at the address shown on their page.

All other material and business communications except regarding subscriptions should be sent to the Office of Publication, 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond 19, Va.

The Christian Sun Subscription Blank

Subscription Price: 1 year, $3.00; 2 years, $5.00

Date 195 . . .

Dr. Wm. T. Scott, Supt.,
Elon College, N. C.

Enclosed find $ for which please send The Christian Sun
() 1 year, () 2 years — () New Subscription, () Renewal.

To

Address

Who is a member of Church

() Renew, () Enter my own subscription for () 1 year, () 2 years.

My Name

My Address

From the EDITORIAL Viewpoint

Twelve Avenues of Service Open to Young People in Our Churches

By ROY C. HELFENSTEIN

God alone knows what a change would take place in the life of each of our churches, as well as in the lives of the young people themselves, if the young people now in the fellowship of the Church would faithfully and enthusiastically respond to the challenge for service offered by the Church.

Automobile service stations require "Twelve Points of Service" from every attendant. Churches should confidently expect as much from each of their young people. Following are "Twelve Points of Service" that may be expected of every young person in the church:

1. To offer a sincere prayer each day for one's own church.
2. To live each day in such a way as to bring honor to one's church.
3. To contribute each week to the financial support of one's church and to the Conference Benevolences according to one's ability. ("Let each one give as the Lord hath prospered him.")
4. To invite "new-comers" to the community and other unchurched friends and acquaintances to attend one's church. (Others will be glad when you say to them, "Let us go into the House of the Lord.")
5. To try tactfully and prayerfully to win at least one other young person to Christ and the church each year. ("Heaven's gate is closed to him who comes alone, Save thou another soul, and it shall save thine own.")
6. To talk your church, to boost your church, and to advertise your church at every opportunity. (Knockers have no place in any church.)
7. To "speak a good word every day for Jesus" and to render as many acts of service in his name each day as opportunity affords. ("Why call ye me Lord, and do not the things I command you.")

8. To read some portion of the Bible each day for practical help in religious living, so as "to grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord." Any young person will be wiser and stronger by being familiar with the teachings of the Book of books. "There is no education more important than Bible education," declared the late Professor William Lyons Phelps of Yale University, one of the world's most distinguished educators of his generation.

9. To attend divine worship services at one's own church each Sunday when in town if physically able.

10. To bow the head reverently in silent prayer upon entering the church and taking a seat—praying for oneself, one's minister, the choir and the congregation; to join interestedly in the responsive reading and in the singing; and sincerely to seek help from each feature of the service.

11. To make a special effort to speak a word of welcome to as many visitors as possible after each service, especially to any visitors near one's own age. (This is a courtesy which you would naturally extend to visitors in your home, and it is even more to be expected from you in your church home.)

12. To give the church first place in one's loyalty. (A worthy church member will never allow his lodge, club or any other affiliation to keep him from doing his full duty to his church. The church is the greatest organization in the world, because it is in the greatest business. "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and his righteousness.")

N. B.—What a power the churches of our denomination would have if each of their young people would consistently render these "Twelve Points of Service"! What is your rating? Ask yourself the old but ever pertinent question "What kind of church would my church be, if every member were just like me?"

The Child in Difficulty with the Law

By JAMES H. MONTGOMERY, JR.

Associate Judge, Richmond Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court

NOTE.—This timely and thought provoking article was originally presented by Judge Montgomery at the April meeting of the Mothers' Club of the First Congregational Christian Church of Richmond, and was so enthusiastically received by the group that the managing editor requested the privilege of sharing it with all readers of The Christian Sun. The article will prove valuable as the basis for a discussion by other Mothers' Clubs in our churches.

It would be impossible to discuss, in the length of time assigned, all of the phases of the subject, "The Child in Difficulty with the Law." I am going to attempt to point out some of the reasons why children do not conform, and some measures that we use to try to develop these children into good citizens. I believe the best way to approach this matter is to give a few of the actual cases that I have had in the last several years:

(1) JOHN—14 years of age, leader of a gang of juvenile car thieves ranging down to age 11. His gang stole 15 cars in Richmond. He is the older of two children from a good middle-class home in the west end of our city, is in high school, has no physical handicaps, a normal I. Q., and his parents are college educated.

(2) JACK—17 year old boy who terrorized the north side of our city, held up another boy with a gun, scared women and children in the nighttime, sometimes by means of a pistol; often used his family's car without permission, numerous instances of careless and reckless driving, endangering the lives of many people. He is the fourth of four children from a moderately wealthy family on the north side of our city. He is in high school, has no physical handicaps, slightly below normal I. Q. His parents are college educated and the other three children are good citizens and well established.

(3) JIM—14 year old boy stole about $500.00 from his parents, relatives and neighbors. While the case was being investigated, he attempted to rape a 7 year old girl. He is an only child from a poor home in the east end of our city. He is in high school, has no physical handicaps, but is mentally dull. Parents have practically no education and are in financial straits.

(4) MARY—16 year old girl from the south side of our city. She had an illegitimate baby at 14, ran away to marry at 15, refused to live with her husband, and was placed in several foster homes, and truanted from school. She was brought into court for consorting with various men in tourist camps. Her mother and father were divorced when she was 11 years of age; father remarried, but her stepmother never liked her. The father died when she was 13. She is in high school, and is the second of three children. She has no physical handicaps and has a superior I. Q. Her parents have a fair education. Until her parents were divorced and the father was remarried, she was a straight "A" student and apparently a normal child.

(5) HARRY—13 year old boy stole five bicycles and destroyed all of them. He is the youngest of three children and is cross-eyed with a bad inferiority complex. He is in junior high school and has a normal I. Q. His parents reside on the fringe of the business district in the center of our city and they have a high school education.

(6) BILLY—17 year old boy in the company of three older companions on their way home from a picture show, saw a case of Coca Cola in a service station, and they proceeded to appropriate it to their own use. He was arrested and brought into court. He is the oldest of three children from one of the best families in our city; he is an outstanding student and athlete in high school; has no physical handicaps, and above normal I. Q. His parents are college educated and are moderately wealthy.

All these children have had difficulty with the law, but they are not identical in any respect.

Different family backgrounds — wealthy to destitute.

Different environments — parents educated, college to fourth grade.

Different intelligence quotients — high to dull.

Different ages.

Different parts of city.

Different in line of birth—oldest, youngest, etc.

I have used these six cases to point out that there is no one reason why children come into difficulty with the law. Nearly all children violate some law in the normal process of living. Other children violate this law because they are emotionally or mentally unstable. It is necessary that we in the Juvenile Court know what we are dealing with, and that is the reason we have to have social investigations, psychological and psychiatric tests and other means of revealing to us whether this is a normal or an abnormal child. It is, therefore, necessary that we know something about human behavior.

Let's take a look at the child when he first arrives in his home. Based on our ideas of accepted social behavior, he is a complete failure. A very young child has no sense of right or wrong. He is completely amoral. If he wants something, he seizes it, and when it is denied, he goes into a rage. If the child's instincts are left untutored, they will not motivate him towards good behavior. His first dependence is upon the mother, source of food, warmth, and security. His first sense of insecurity is when he is delivered from a region of warmth and darkness into one of light and cold. All of us know that every child is born with emotional needs and desires that must be met. Every child has the need to be loved, clothed, fed, housed, given recognition, to learn to respect the rights of others; to be disciplined and to feel secure in his relations with other people. His first social contacts are within the family, and the family is the channel through which the dictates and traditions of society reach him. His sense of security or insecurity develops as his needs and desires are met, or not met, intelligently in the home and later in the community.

Please do not get the impression that children do not need wise correction. I agree with a speaker who recently advocated that "we return to the family altar, where children will learn about God at the knee of their parents; that we return to the family playground, where the mother and father will find time to enjoy and play with the children in the home, and that we return to the family woodshed, because a child will do better if he receives a pat on the back low enough and hard enough."

We know that early physical neglect produces ill health and poor physique. We now realize that emotional deprivation in the child will result in psychological insecurity and future emotional maladjustment.

(Continued on page 13.)

Our Churches Report . . .

Winston-Salem Church Features "Christian Fellowship Hour"

The "Christian Fellowship Hour" is to be the highlight of the week for the United Congregational Christian Church in Winston-Salem, N. C. The program, from 4:30 to 6:30 on Sunday afternoon, is sponsored by Mrs. Joe Sharpe and her fellowship committee of which she is chairman. The time has been set aside to welcome new members who have joined our church during the previous year and to become better acquainted with old members.

Mrs. Maynie Neal, a charter member of the church, will introduce the new members. Mrs. J. E. Brown and Mrs. S. L. Mauldin are serving on the reception committee, and Mrs. S. R. Peebles will be the presiding officer.

Rev. W. J. Andes, the pastor, is anticipating a large group to enjoy this opportunity to renew old acquaintances and make new Christian friends.

The church presented a Spring Variety Show on Saturday, March 18. The program consisted of a one-act play, a fashion parade, solo musical selections, a chorus group, and recitations. The audience participated in group games.

There was no admission charge, but a freewill offering was taken. The money will be used to buy furniture for the church lounge.

LILLIAN D. MEREDITH,
Reporter.

* * * * *

Bay View Will Consecrate New Educational Building

Just one year ago construction was begun on the new Educational Building of Bay View Congregational Christian Church. Assistance had been promised our church from the Eastern Virginia Christian Missionary Association, the Congregational Christian Temple through the CMA, the Mission Board of our Southern Convention, and the Church Building Society. With all these wonderful considerations it was indeed an inspiration to our people to realize a dream about to come true.

Mr. Bernard B. Spigel was the architect who drew the design for our building. Mr. E. M. Pope was the contractor the church decided upon to do the job, and Mr. G. B. Pearce was the heating contractor who figured what we would need in the line of heating. All of these men performed a great service to our church.

Progress in building proceeded slowly at times, but whenever a bill came due, the various organizations and the church seemed to have the money on hand to meet it. It was the spirit and cooperation of everyone that made our building a success. We had anticipated on a $30,000 building, and the final cost was $29,743.

Youngest Member of the Church, Bonnie Sue Wiggins Turning the First Spade of Dirt, as Pastor Griffin Looks On

A much needed change in our sanctuary was imperative to go along with the building of our educational plant. A wall was removed to give us additional space, and a new paint job gave us a larger and more functional sanctuary.

The men in the church were responsible for the painting. They painted both the educational building and the sanctuary; and they did a most commendable job. With all our men working during the day, a great deal of the labor had to be performed at night and on Saturdays.

While the building was under way, our attendance at Sunday school and church began to increase. On Sunday before Christmas, most of the building was put into use. A few of the rooms were unfinished, but there was heat and facilities to make the church school more comfortable. Our school began to grow, and last quarter we had an average attendance of 122. Due to the growth of our church school, we have realized an increase in church membership. During this church year we have taken in 21 new members.

On Sunday, May 3, 1953, we are observing a Consecration Service for our Educational Building, and a cordial invitation is extended to everyone in the Southern Convention to attend and to rejoice with us in the completion of this new building. The service will be held at 3:00 p.m., at the church, 1065 Bay View Boulevard, Norfolk, Virginia. Dr. Millard Stevens, president of the Southern Convention, will be the speaker for the occasion.

Words could never express the gratitude to all those who have been responsible for helping us to realize our dreams in realities. We profess, with all who are builders, "Unless the Lord build the house, they labor in vain who build it."

JOHNSON L. GRIFFIN,
Pastor.

* * * * *

Eventful Easter Season at Our Henderson Church

This Easter Season has been our best since coming to Henderson. We rejoice in the progress the church is making. Church attendance increased 20 per cent the first three months of this year over the same period last year. On Palm Sunday a consecration service was held for Yvonne Evans Lane, baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Lane, Jr., and two members were received into the church.

On Thursday evening of Holy Week an impressive Candle-Light Communion Service was held. This service was well attended.

Easter Sunday was a mountain-top experience. The congregation was large, the music was of the best, and fourteen members were received into the fellowship of the church. One member was received the next Sunday, which makes thirty-two since conference. On April 15, the church held its second quarterly conference. We are planning to make some extensive improvements.

The following quotation is taken
(Continued on page 11.)

News of Elon College

PRESIDENT L. E. SMITH, Elon College, N. C.

Elon College Two and One Half Million Dollar Campaign Fund

We are submitting a partial report of pledges and payments received in the church campaign. This report includes only the churches that have made campaigns and submitted their reports. The local churches will receive credit for any payments that have been made by their members previous to the church campaign. These pledges and payments are listed separately in this report.

The local church will also receive credit for any contributions from any alumni or friends living in its parish that have been made or may be made. These payments, however, are not listed in this report, but will be listed later.

Doubtless there are mistakes in this report; that is, there may be payments made that are credited to the wrong church. Individual payments sent in do not always indicate the church to which the contributor belongs. Any mistakes detected by any reader will be cheerfully corrected if the interested party will send us a note. Please notify the office at Elon College, and not other people who are unable to make corrections.

On behalf of the college and all interested persons, I would like to express appreciation of those churches that have made their campaign and have submitted their reports. According to the action of the Executive Board of the Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches, the college is forbidden to make any further campaign in any local church during the year 1953, unless a church or churches invite the college to assist in making their campaign. In the event of such an invitation, the college may assist in making the campaign.

If all of our churches had made the canvass and submitted their reports, the amount would be much larger, but still far short of the goal of $1,300,000. Let no one be discouraged or misled, by the help of God and through his good grace, we shall receive the necessary amount to make our college the kind of college that it should be.

D. L. Moody said, "Plan big things for God, and expect big things from God." Your prayers are solicited.

CURRENT REPORT.

Valley Conference:

	Pledged	Paid
Antioch	$ 525.00	$ 127.50
Beulah		22.50

Eastern N. C. Conference:

Chapel Hill	$ 625.00	$ 328.50
Fuller's Chapel		30.00
Morrisville		5.00
Mt. Auburn		83.00
Oak Level		67.00
Wake Chapel	1,392.00	655.00

Eastern Va. Conference:

Bethlehem (Disp) ...	$	$ 420.00
Cypress Chapel		130.00
Damascus	715.00	194.00
Holland	1,262.50	105.00
Holy Neck	100.00	450.00
Liberty Spring	1,865.00	1,152.90
Newport News	1,557.50	206.50

Norfolk:

Christian Temple ..	812.50	559.55
Second	643.00	102.50
First	200.00	17.10
Portsmouth, First ...	743.00	139.50
Suffolk	2,112.50	1,314.50
Union (So.)	287.50	52.00

N. C. and Va. Conference:

Burlington	$ 457.50	$ 405.00
Carolina	60.00
Durham	3,770.00	25,347.50
Greensboro, First ...	724.00	256.50
Haw River	67.50	66.50
Happy Home		130.00
Lebanon	180.00
Plesant Grove	150.00	40.00
Shallow Ford	120.00	44.85
Union (Va.)	445.00	79.00
Winston-Salem		47.50

Burlington, Beverly Hills	225.00	30.00
---------------------------------	--------	-------

Western N. C. Conference:

Pleasant Ridge	$	$ 26.89
----------------------	----	----------

Total $19,039.50 $32,635.79

PREVIOUSLY REPORTED.

Eastern N. C. Conference:

	Pledged	Paid
Mt. Auburn	$ 500.00	$ 100.00
Wake* Chapel	2,000.00	1,175.00

Eastern N. C. Conference:

Holy Neck	$ 1,000.00	$ 200.00
Suffolk	750.00	55.00

N. C. and Va. Conference:

Burlington	$73,500.00	$38,100.00
Durham		500.00
Greensboro, First ...	3,000.00	1,550.00
Union (Va.)	4,270.00	2,650.00

Total $85,020.00 $45,825.00

* * * * *

Apportionment Giving

Before reading this brief article, take a look at the totals received by the college on apportionments for the year 1953. Then reflect for a moment on the total number of Sunday schools and churches in the Southern Convention and the goal set to be secured through apportionment gifts. Much of the church year has passed. Enough of it is left to secure the full amount apportioned before the year is over.

According to reports submitted by George D. Colclough, Treasurer of the Southern Convention, to the Executive Board in session at Henderson on April 23, Elon College received $14,953.44 during the year that ended December 31, 1952. This was only a few dollars short of the $15,000. We should remind ourselves that the amounts apportioned for the college have not been changed in more than fifteen years.

Let's make sure that we raise the entire $15,000 during the year 1953.

Previously Reported $ 3,190.21

Eastern N. C. Conference:

Fuller's Chapel	$ 33.00
Mt. Carmel	3.00
Turner's Chapel	42.00

Eastern Va. Conference:

Antioch	$ 30.00
Hopewell	6.00
Windsor S. S.	26.14

N. C. and Va. Conference:

Union (Va.) S. S.	$ 20.00
------------------------	----------

Western N. C. Conference:

Mt. Pleasant	$ 10.50
Pleasant Grove	10.00

Virginia Valley Conference:

Linville S. S.	$ 15.00
Neport S. S.	32.58

228.22

Total to date $ 3,418.43

Pilgrim Series Material

We have on hand in the Southern Convention Office several pieces of material of the present Pilgrim Series. We ordered them for meetings, but did not sell them all. We would appreciate hearing from anyone who would like to buy them.

Materials and prices are as follows:

One Kindergarten Teacher's guide	35c
Three Kindergarten pupil's books, "Once Long Ago"	27c
Three Primary Teacher's guides	35c
Two Primary pupil's books, "Good News To Tell"	27c
One Primary Activity sheet	17c
Two Lower Junior Teacher's guides ...	30c
Two Pupil's books—Lower Jr.—"World Neighbors"	30c
Two Upper Junior Teacher's guides	30c
One Upper Junior Pupil's book, "We Live In One World?"—free with purchase of first teachers guide
Two Junior High Teacher's guide	65c
Two Junior High pupil's books, "Brothers All"	40c
One Senior High Teacher's guide	65c
Two Senior High pupil's books, "Sore Spots in Society"	40c
One Older Y. P. and Adult Teacher's guide	65c

(Continued on page 14.)

Missions at Home and Abroad

"The Tale of Munyai-- the Missionary Car"

By Dorothy V. Marsh

"Munyai" came into our family in April, 1947, with 40,000 miles on his record—being a 1941 Chevrolet. He had had a good mistress up to then and looked shinny and sleek. We were very proud of him, for he was much nicer than the old Chevrolet we had sold in Africa before coming home on furlough. Munyai didn't get his African name until he arrived in Africa with us in September, 1948, for then he became a messenger, which is the meaning of his name in the Chindau dialect. His work was to carry the Gospel messenger to schools and churches up and down the mission parish in Southern Rhodesia.

But before he left his native land, Munyai did 20,000 more miles, taking the Marshes visiting relatives, and doing missionary speaking all over New England, and even to Florida and back! I wonder—if he had been human, what he would have thought when, after the final trip to New York with a full load for the ship, he was hoisted up with derricks and dropped into the hold of the freighter African Grove, and shut down into the dark! He was tossed about for weeks on a heaving ocean. It was a thrill to the Marshes when they saw Munyai being lifted again from the dark insides of the African Grove and being set down carefully on the dock in Lobito Bay, Angola, West Africa, still bearing his long Massachusetts license number. It was another thrill to climb into the faithful friend and set his nose up the escarpment eastward on the 3,000 mile journey to Southern Rhodesia.

Up and down mountains, through deep sands, across great plains and rivers on ponts pulled by the strong muscled arms of black men—across Angola we went, visiting our missions on the way. Through a corner of the Congo, down south through Northern Rhodesia and across the long bridge over the Zambesi River into Southern Rhodesia we sped.

Munyai behaved admirably—it was not his fault that he broke three springs! In the capital of Southern Rhodesia, Salisbury, Munyai got registered, had his customs paid and received a new and smaller number which he was to bear for the rest of his life—U-3525—which stands for Umtali, the third largest city of the colony.

Though Munyai got older every year and more thousands of miles were rolling up on his speedometer, he tried to do his best to do his work without complaining. He got used to the African roads, some of which were anything but easy. He had to be fitted with extra leaves in the back springs to keep him from breaking over the rough, rutted and stony roads. He carried the missionary and his camping equipment, table, chair and bed, food box, books to sell, the motion picture projector, silver screen and heavy generator, again and again to Tuzula, Masringo, Makoho, Zamchiya, Chibuwe and many other places in the Rhodesian Mission. Together with the missionary often went the African minister or an evangelist to help in the messenger's work of carrying the good news of the Gospel. Often Munyai went on errands of mercy to collect patients for the hospital clinic at Chikore, where the Marshes live, or to take a seriously ill patient to the main hospital at Mt. Salinda.

And all this time Munyai behaved very well and took his work seriously. To be sure, his master drove him carefully and took him for checkups at the car clinic in Umtali whenever he went to town 130 miles away. He always had his ration of petrol, oil and water regularly. One day he developed lung trouble and kept getting hot and bothered about it until it was discovered that his radiator was all stuffed up with rust and sediment, but after it was blown out by steam he felt better and didn't run a fever any more—for a time!

In November, 1951, it was time for the Marshes to have a three months' rest period in the Union of South Africa, and it was decided that Munyai would carry them on some more thousands of miles to the very southernmost tip of the great continent. So he was given a present of two brand new tires and put in tiptop condition, packed with blankets, linen, silver and clothing, and the four Marshes, and set out to the South. But Munyai knew that his lungs were not strong, and the second day after crossing the Limpopo River into the Union, he started running a high fever again. Repeated drinks of water only helped temporarily, so on the third day we put him into a car hospital in the town of Louis Trichardt, Transvaal, where he had a major operation and was given a new radiator which made him very happy.

After that he sailed along merrily without trouble to Pretoris, one of the two beautiful capitals of the Union. He was parked for a whole day of rest in the yard of a Missionary Rest Home there and on the third day went on with his load to the City of Gold, Johannesburg, where he felt somewhat out of place on the busy streets of the big city among the dashing, sleek, streamlined new models. On Sunday afternoon Munyai felt more at home parked in front of an African church in one of the Mino compounds while the Marshes attended church and ate dinner with the African minister and his family.

Munyai rolled over his 89,000th mile on the way to Durban, where he visited the Natal National Park, a country mission station, Mapumulo, among the beautiful valleys of a Thousand Hills of "Cry, the Beloved Country" fame—and then the great city of Durban, where the Marshes saw with wondering eyes the fine large Zulu hospital and other missionary work of the American Board.

He got a fine rest the next four weeks, having to make only short journeys around Uvongo, the coast resort on the Indian Ocean 100 miles south of Durban—from the cottage with its beautiful ocean view to the stores for food or to church on Sundays. But on the first of January, Munyai started on his long journeys again, south and then west toward Cape Town, through Pondoland, and across more rivers by pont, through the Transkei, that great territory of Africans only. Scattered thickly over the hills and deep valleys were the thousands of brown, mud and thatch, oblong houses of the Pondos, the Tembus and the Fingos. The decorations of the houses, broad white bands around the door and two windows, made them look like thousands of spirit faces—or so it seemed to the Marshes. On to Port Elizabeth sped Munyai, then on the Garden route over high mountain passes, on hair-

(Continued on page 13.)

A Letter to Our Church Women

Boston, Mass., April 10, 1953.

DEAR NEW FRIENDS IN THE SOUTHERN CONVENTION:

It is with a glow in my heart that I write words of appreciation for the rich experience of working with you in the recent District Rallies.

From the first day of my arrival in Southern Pines and the privilege of sharing the home life of June Joy House and her lovely children, to the farewells at the Winchester bus station, I felt the warmth and strength of your Fellowship, and I am deeply grateful. I was sorry that other plans perverted my visit to the Eastern Virginia groups.

Many impressions crowd my memory as I think back over those wonderful days spent with you. And there was Pattie Lee Coghill, my guardian angel—and yours! How fortunate you are to have her radiant and devoted leadership. It was a high moment when, at the end of her introduction, Mrs. Bray, of the Halifax District, requested all to stand, thereby paying Pattie Lee tribute and telling her what she meant to them.

I was impressed with the leadership of your officers:

- the goals and the challenge presented by Mrs. Scott and Mrs. Whitlock.
- Mrs. Wisseman's vivid portrayal of the need to support the denominational Building Fund Campaign.
- the faithful accounting of work done by many of the societies (I brought home new ideas and methods).
- the many younger women in attendance—their interest and participation.
- the presence of your ministers as well as their wives.

Long shall I remember your cordiality and hospitality:

- a camellia for each of the leaders at the attractive luncheon served by the Southern Pines ladies.
- Our heaping plates taken out in the warm sunshine back of the Union Grove Church, and what delicious food!
- the fine way in which the Chapel Hill ladies served the large crowd.
- the strawberry shortcake dessert in the Burlington Church!
- a heavily laden table spread outdoors at the Hebron Church (and the box luncheon packed for the team by some thoughtful person).
- the refreshments at the Rev. Mr. Whitten's home in Winchester, following the evening worship on Sunday.

The vitality of your church life evidenced by

- new building programs, redecorated sanctuaries, modern equipment.
- the opportunity of visiting three new church organizations in the outlying areas of Burlington.
- the worship services—Mrs. Lester's moving memorial for Mrs. E. P. Boroughs especially—and the hearty singing at Mt. Olivet (R).
- the loyalty to your commitments both in the Convention and in the world.

And then the beauty of your countryside in all its spring glory!

- your college campuses—the Duke Gardens—the resort areas.
- the floral arrangements—that bouquet of amaryllis in Hebron Church.
- Mt. Olivet in the setting of mountains.
- the Skyline Drive with Mr. and Mrs. Whitlock from Elkton to Winchester.

At our last meeting, held in the Winchester Church, a group of girls from one of Rev. and Mrs. Galt's parishes conducted a candle-light service centered in the hymn, "Where He Leads Me, I Will Follow." It was a beautiful theme for me to carry away. There was the gift of God himself, the assurance of his leading, and then our response in the following.

As Christian women at work in the world to day, we have a tremendous opportunity as well as a responsibility to make known that gift to all mankind, and to follow his leading in the building of a "household of God," where all men are brothers.

Most cordially yours,

MIRIAM S. McKEITH.

"Becoming Fishers of Men"

The radiance of Easter and the stimulus of a great fellowship together, have brought their blessings. They have left their deep impressions, and they have presented us with a mission and a task. Those who have had mountaintop experiences must not forget to carry them into the valleys.

The power of the Christian Church depends at least in some part upon what the modern disciples of Christ do on this road from the tomb into the open fields of the world, this Emmaus road of fellowship and service.

We all know how easy it is for us to forget in the heat of the day what seemed so impelling in the dawn. The world will not be won to Christ solely by the wonder of the open tomb, but by what we do in terms of broken hearts and broken seals of tombs that have long held our better selves. The world will not be won to Christ, moreover, just out of the high moments of great gatherings in which many found Christ, unless those of us who truly love him join with them in becoming fishers of men and in carrying out a well-rounded ministry to our times.

The past-Easter season is thus a very important one. The Sunday after Easter probably shows the real strength and spirit of a church more than Easter itself does. I know that many of us found that, in attempting to retain the Easter enthusiasm and vigor, we encountered many good people in our churches who, while willing, were both timid and ignorant about how to proceed. They had a certain amount of Christian knowledge and devotion, but admitted that they knew little of the techniques of being fishers of men.

The marvel and power of the resurrection gives us a deathless faith and a glorious hope, but we must have the continual indwelling and inworking of the Holy Spirit. Our faith must be linked with evangelism and discipleship. There are many people who nourish in themselves a bit of faith, but who do not proclaim it and do not bring it to others.

I think that our organized church life has suffered, and still suffers, from a kind of ecclesiastical arthritis, which makes it inflexible and painful and unable to meet certain tests and challenges. We have been too much content to hold our self-contained parish meetings and services, and have come to feel that the outside world was not of primary concern. We had a cosy and rather pleasant situation, and rather distrusted what might happen if too many so-called outsiders happened to come in to change the circumstances.

There is surely need for organizing our entire fellowships, and not just our boards of deacons, into a community of fishers of men, of those who are concerned about enlarging the fellowship and bringing the Gospel to others. We have suffered, I fear, from a serious forgetfulness of the awfulness and dynamic of sin and evil, and a serious underestimation, therefore of the magnitude of our task. This is no small-time crusade which we must undertake if the community is to be won for Christ. Selfish and evil interests will not yield without the most desperate battle. Materialism, too, is making its quiet inroads into the lives of people everywhere. This is a cause for grave concern. The Master found Simon called Peter and Andrew his brother by the Sea of Galilee, casting their net and fishing. He said to them, "Follow me, and I will make you fishers of men. And they straightway left their nets, and followed him." (Matthew 4:19, 20.)

People today, inside and outside of our churches, have been casting their nets for every kind of fish, as it were, that swims in the seas. They have had big nets and strong nets; they have fished long and hard. The time has come when we must do fishing for men, for souls, fishing for a generation, more earnestly than ever before. What should give our little efforts cause for concern is the fact that they must not try to use tiny weapons against great foes. There are weapons and armors of the spirit which are adequate. But we must have a united and energetic ministry and discipleship that understands the need of our becoming fishers of men. We have tried to tackle great foes without the proper understanding of their strength or the proper use of God's strength. We have fished for everything but the souls of men,

We shall have to realize more than ever the burning and passionate need for knowing how to become fishers of men and to work at this with effectiveness and patience and love. . . . It is all fine to win and help a few here and there in our churches, and to do other good works—but this may be making altogether too little impression upon the teeming life that surges even around our church doors.

Not only those who have newly found Christ, but older members who have perhaps lost their former zeal, should be instructed and inspired in the thrills and techniques of becoming fishers of men. We must somehow show them the cause for alarm that many of us feel as we see the puny strength and the dim vision and the small outreach often of our best efforts. We must show them the need of a large-scale and continuing effort if we are to make any definite impression upon the terrific activities of evil in all its forms. This is a mighty war. This is a world-wide battle. It is no little skirmish to be treated lightly or to be thought of just once in a while in prayer meetings or religious services.

The minute you really get into the activities of the world today, you have a chance to see what sort of thing is contending for the heart and soul and mind of people today. This is going to call for us to be fishers of men, to educate and evangelize and work as never before—or we shall find ourselves in a set-up which will clamp down on what we hold dear and so remold the daily lives of men that we shall latter be largely helpless to bring them the help which is now possible.

Now is the time to show our real discipleship. Now is the time for real efforts as fishers of men. We have these great experiences to act as a send-off. But now the task is up to us. We must learn what the situation is. We must gird our churches spiritually and in every other way for the tremendous task which is ahead of them.

This is a period which may well set the pattern for several generations to come. If we call upon the name of the Lord, he will answer us. He will be with us in our need.

Let's become, as never before, fishers of men! Let us not minimize the sacrifices and efforts which will be required of us.

The glory of Easter and the stimulation of evangelism should serve the
(Continued on page 11.)

A Page for Our Children

MRS. R. L. HOUSE, Editor, Southern Pines, N. C.

Congratulations to the City of Durham that is having an anniversary celebration this week. Pictures of the "Brothers of the Brush" and the "Sisters of Swish" have been in the North Carolina newspapers. . . .

Requests came to Southern Pines for the recipe of the delicious lemon pie that Miss Norma Shiring served when the Spring Rally met with the Church of Wide Fellowship. Several said, "Why don't you print it on the Children's Page?" So here it is:

ANGEL LEMON PIE

Crust—

- 1 cup finely rolled vanilla wafer crumbs
- ¼ cup sugar
- ¼ cup melted oleo

Mix thoroughly and press firmly onto bottom and sides of pie pan. Chill. Save a few crumbs to sprinkle over filling.

Filling—

- 1 package lemon jello, dissolved in
- 1½ cups boiling water
- ½ cup lemon juice—grated rind, 1 lemon
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 large can evaporated milk, chilled and whipped

Add lemon juice and rind to dissolved jello. Chill—when thickened whip until fluffy and beat into the sweetened, whipped milk. Pour at once into chilled crust. Sprinkle the reserved crumbs on top. Makes enough for two pies.

If your version is as good as Miss Shiring's, you have eating pleasure ahead. . . .

Folks want to know if I am going to continue to write for THE SUN and this page. Yes, I told the Board of Publications that I would.

* * * * *

"It's Easier to Do It Myself"

(Conclusion.)

By MARION BROWNFIELD.

Issued by the National Kindergarten Association.

"I didn't want to learn to cook," said the music teacher. "My mother used to want me to help her while she cooked; peel apples for the pies—"

"Oh Janet dawdles so," said her mother, "that it's easier for me to cook anything myself."

"Well," the music teacher replied, "my mother was ill one day and I had to cook a meal. Then I remembered the talks I had halfheartedly listened to as my mother cooked. Her demonstrations and the few things she made me do bore fruit."

"I guess I will have to take to bed and see if Janet will assume some responsibility."

"The chances are that Janet will do so when she feels it's really necessary." The music teacher laughed. "One of my pupils who is just lazy and wants me to count was, I found the other day, showing a younger brother that he 'must count'! Well, I play duets when I find that I must force the issue. I always say then, 'I can't keep with you unless you count'! They all love duets. We play slowly together, and nine times out of ten the student finds that she can count!"

The music teacher went on her way to her next pupil, Bobby Lattimore. Mr. Lattimore met her at the door. "Bobby'll be at the piano just as soon as he finishes washing his hands," his father explained. "He's been mowing the lawn. Maybe you noticed the spots he missed. But he's got to learn. It would be easier and quicker for me to do it myself than to stand on the side lines and give him suggestions on how to trim the edges, set the mower, and oil it so it runs properly. But he's got to learn to do a job well by himself! How's he doing with his music?"

The music teacher smiled. He's learning to count—though sometimes it makes my voice tired."

"You hear that, Son!" Mr. Lattimore commented as Bobby flung himself hastily onto the piano bench. "You count yourself, if you want to learn to play in time. How will you be able to keep in time with the school orchestra if you don't count? And I tell you what, if you'll count aloud everything you play, I'll buy you a metronome for your next birthday!"

"One of those things that ticks and wags like a wigwag at railroad crossings?" Bobby demanded with glee. "Wonderful!" and he began to count loudly.

The music teacher pondered: "'Do it yourself' is a pretty good motto for all of us. Our mothers try to shield us and do everything for us, but we learn best when we at least make an attempt."

And is not this true of almost every activity that belongs to a child?"

The parent who foolishly tries to do Bobby's arithmetic problems for him instead of showing him how to do them himself is only giving him crutches instead of letting him stand on his own legs!

To face life courageously and intelligently, the wise parent kindly but firmly guides the youngster to do for himself. Mistakes are overlooked, every gain encouraged, if it's only buttoning one more shoebutton!

OUR CHURCHES REPORT.

(Continued from page 6.)

from a message by Mr. W. E. Simpson who was born near our mission church, Rocky Ford, but who joined our church last year:

"The first time I attended worship at the Christian Church I knew I was in the House of God. There was a reassurance and a Christian fellowship there that lifted my soul to the heights and gave me strength and hope and put new faith within me, causing me to thank God that people still preached and practiced the principles of Christ.

"As I continued to attend church and Sunday school I came in contact with people of many walks of life, and their warm friendship taught me that regardless of our walk in life or standing, we can still have fellowship one with another. Among the things I learned about the church, one thing sealed my faith in the church, and that is the part the young people have in the church. I am proud of the way the pastor and the leaders are working and succeeding in developing our young people today into the Christian leaders of tomorrow."

Mrs. Simpson also became a member of our church last year, and both of the Simpsons are faithful workers in the church.

We thank God for the many fine people we have to serve here in the Henderson Church.

J. FRANK APPLE.

BECOMING FISHERS OF MEN.

(Continued from page 10.)

purpose of sending us forth with renewed strength and resolution and a full appreciation of the need of the world. With Christ we cannot fail. Without him, no matter what we have, we cannot succeed.

In our churches we must gather for strength and instruction—but then the outreach of our discipleship must know no bounds—for his sake.

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE, D. D.

"Paul Under Guard in Rome"

LESSON VI—MAY 10, 1953.

MEMORY SELECTION: "We know that in everything God works for good with those who love him, who are called according to his purpose."—Romans 8:28 (RSV).

LESSON: Acts 28:14b-24; 30-31.

DEVOTIONAL: Philippians 4:8-13.

"Thou Must Bear Witness
Also at Rome."

Paul earnestly desired to go to Rome. It was the capital of the Roman Empire and the center of the life of that empire. It was a fertile field for evangelism. And God told Paul that he would go to Rome, and that he must bear witness for him at Rome. And, as always, God kept his word. Paul did go to Rome, and he bore his witness in Rome. But not in the way that Paul had thought or hoped. The fact is, he came to Rome as a prisoner, and he bore his witness, not from a pulpit, but from his prison home. God works in mysterious ways, his wonders to perform. He can take broken plans and frustrated purposes and make them to work together for good to those who love him. Seeming disasters become doors of opportunity, failures turn into fortunes. Sometimes, like Paul, we want to go to Spain and we end up at Rome. But today's lesson teaches us that it is not half as important as to what a man is in, as what is in the man, that not what a man has, but what he is that counts. "... and so we came to Rome."

Giving Others Encouragement.

The little band of Christians in Rome heard that Paul was coming, so they went to meet him. Some of them traveled as far as one hundred forty miles, others, forty miles, and still others thirty miles. "Whom, when Paul saw, he thanked God, and took courage." Perhaps his spirits were low—they might well be low. He had been arrested on a false charge, held a long time—two years—without a trial, and upon an appeal to Rome, was sent by ship to Rome. It turned out to be a long, dangerous and disastrous journey, involving, among other things, a terrible storm at sea, and shipwreck, and a winter on an island in the Mediterranean Sea. Paul was human, and he must have felt at least a little "down in the dumps" after all the hardships of the journey. What a lift it gave him to have these unknown Christians come to meet him and to welcome him to their city! He thanked God and took courage. There are many people who need now and then a word of encouragement, a word of cheer and hope, a word of commendation and appreciation. And usually it costs little, even though it means much.

A Prisoner Without a Charge.

The Roman authorities treated Paul with undue and uncommon courtesy. They evidently recognized that he was no ordinary man, and instead of throwing him into the common jail, they allowed him to live in a little home under guard by a soldier—the guard was changed, of course, every few hours. The Romans evidently had no charge against Paul.

And when he invited the leaders of the Jews to visit him and told them the facts in the case, they said that they had not "received letters from Judea concerning thee, nor did any of the brethren come hither and report or desire to hear of thee what thou thinkest." They did say that "this sect . . . is everywhere spoken against." Christianity, what little there was of it in Rome, was not very highly regarded or spoken of. It was not easy or popular to be a Christian in those days. In spite of the fact that there was no specific charge against Paul, he was held for two more years as a prisoner. How bitter some of us would have become under such circumstances. There are many people in recent years who can understand Paul in his experience after their experiences under Nazi and Communist "protective custody" practices.

Believers and Unbelievers.

"They came to him into his lodging in great numbers, to whom he expounded the matter, testifying the kingdom of God and persuading them concerning Jesus. . . . And some believed the things which were spoken, and some disbelieved." It was thus in the beginning, is now, and evermore shall be. As the gospel is proclaimed, men believe it, or disbelieve it. And life and destiny are so different because of these varying responses. Those who believe are saved. Those who do not believe are condemned. Let every man take heed how he hears, and how he heeds when he hears.

Preaching from a Prison.

"And he abode two whole years in his own hired dwelling, and received all that went in unto him, preaching the kingdom of God and teaching the things concerning the Lord Jesus Christ with all boldness, none forbidding him." His prison was his pulpit. And far beyond anything which he dreamed, his preaching found widespread results. As often as the guard was changed, Paul spoke to him about Christ. The guards, in turn, talked to others about Christ. The thing got even "unto Caesar's household" as Paul later writes to the Philippians. And inasmuch as great numbers came to hear Paul, he had a large audience or congregation, although not at one time. Paul was bound, but the Word of God was not bound.

Writing from a Prison.

Some of Paul's finest letters were written from a prison cell. Scholars are sure that at least three of them, Ephesians, Philippians and Colossians were written in jail. They are immortal books, throbbing with spiritual life, and radiating cheer and hope and faith and peace. They are only a few of the many great and even immortal books and writings that have come from behind prison walls. Victor Hugo's Toilers of the Sea and Les Miserables; Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress, Marco Polo's Travels, the works of Gallileo, George Fox, William Penn, John Huss, Daniel Defoe, and O. Henry are only a few of the great writings that have come from jails. Luther translated the Bible into German while a prisoner. And so it goes. It might be good if some of us were forced to go to jail in order to have time to get things straight.

Handling Handicaps.

The gist of the lesson is to be found in this vital area of handling life's handicaps. It is only one of the many stories of the amazing resourcefulness of human beings. And especially of those who believe in God and who find that he is able to supply all their needs through Christ.

Based on "International Sunday School Lessons;" Copyrighted 1951 by Division of Christian Education, National Council of the Churches in the U. S. A.

THE CHILD IN DIFFICULTY WITH THE LAW.

(Continued from page 5.)

The need for security and the desire for approval of his actions are strong driving forces in the child and can be turned, within the family circle, to good or bad account. In a family where adequate love, care and guidance are extended, the child will gradually become a social being, learning self-control and acquiring the personality characteristics and habits that will lead to well adjusted citizens. If the community meets his needs, he will become a good citizen. It is where the emotional needs and desires are not adequately met by the home and community that we find the maladjusted human being—the child in difficulty with the law.

With this brief summary of human behavior, let us review the first five cases I mentioned. Though they were all different in many respects, they had one common denominator—each felt insecure because one or more of their needs and desires had not been met by either the home or the community.

(1) JOHN. Lack of status, rights or responsibilities in home. Wants to be somebody—gets it from the gang. Home is a "filling station" by day and a "parking lot" by night—no other place to go. No "Fun Night" at home.

(2) JACK. Unwanted and unloved. Lack of love and affection. Children starve for love.

(3) JIM. No respect for parents or others. Took what he wanted. Mother just to wait on him. In the mother's mind he could do no wrong. "Moms."

(4) MARY. Broken home. From 50 to 80 per cent of Juvenile Delinquents come from broken homes. Though some divorcees are justified and are indeed a "must," the effect of divorce upon children is by many times the worst plague which ever struck this country. Five million children in America are victims of such homes.

(a) Divorce breeds divorcee.

(b) Lack of affection between parents is a curse to their children.

(c) Too much golf, bridge, or even work, and attending meetings every night in the week robs children of their heaven born rights.

(5) HARRY. Lack of security because of physical handicap—inferiority complex. Parents can't accept or understand the fact that the child has such a deformity. Guilty conscience—they cannot give him the love and affection he needs because of this condition. He is rejected.

This leaves the sixth case:

(6) BILLY. There is nothing wrong with the boy. He is just a normal youngster, engaging in a somewhat unnatural episode. He is doing an act that is similar to what most of us have done, but he happened to be the one to get caught. He needs a good lecture and a stiff warning.

In conclusion, the court and the various agencies cannot handle this tremendous problem alone. It is a "community problem" and needs the help of every person in the locality. Every child is looking for a way of life and most of the children that I see want to find the right way of life. It is the job of us adults to be concerned about helping every child in his search for "the good way of life."

"THE TALE OF MUNYAI—THE MISSIONARY CAR."

(Continued from page 8.)

pin turns down across rivers and then up again. Finally, on the fourth day, Munyai found his second home for the vacation period on the Cape Peninsula, an old Dutch cottage on a farm right on the side of the 2500-foot mountain above the blue water of Falso Bay near Simonstown. One day he took the Marshes right to the Cape Point and lighthouse. There it seemed a long way from West Africa and a still longer way from America!

And then one late afternoon we took a dip in the ocean at Fishhook beach after doing a stiff climb to Peer's Cave, where was found a skeleton of prehistoric man, and were on our way home, proceeding at about twenty miles an hour on our own, the left side of the road. A car coming from the other direction came up behind a parked car on the curve. The driver threw on his brakes, putting his car out of control and plunged across the road straight for poor old Munyai, who did his best under the skillful handling of his driver to get out of the way—running clear up on the side bank. But alas, the other car rammed his side door and ripped right through his side and back fender, pushing him against the railway fence and bent a pole. The shriek of brakes and the crash of the impact pretty much frightened us you may be sure, but we were so glad to find ourselves alive with only a few little scratches that we did not much mind our wet bathing suits in which we shivered until the policeman came pedalling up on his bicycle to inspect both cars and measure the distances with his tape measure.

Munyai, like the brick he had always been, started off as usual, for his engine had not been harmed, only his body. He was a rather sad sight on one side, his window broken, his door all bent and not able to be opened, and the great gash along the side. Next day he was driven slowly and carefully to Cape Town and taken to a big car hospital where the insurance company sent him. For the first time I felt like weeping when we left him in the noisy operating room of the panel beaters where sat other wrecks. Such a flashing of acetylene torches, hammering of anvils and din! We said goodbye to him and walked sadly to a train station. The head doctor said it would take at least five weeks to make him almost as good as new, for he had had bad injuries—and it had not been his fault or the driver's, but that is the way of life.

We look forward to getting him again after his stay in hospital, for we must return in him the almost 2000 miles through Basuto land, Johannesburg, across the Limpopo, back into Rhodesia to work. Munyai must carry on his work of being a messenger for God for two or three years more before the Marshes have to part with him. He has been a faithful friend, and so ends my tale of Munyai, the Missionary Car.

There are 4,000,000 addicted drinkers in the United States today, whose drinking has caused serious business, domestic, legal or social difficulties, and who cannot leave alcohol alone. Among these, there are 750,000 to 1,000,000 chronic alcoholics, who have taken so much alcohol for such a long period of time that they manifest definite mental and physical deterioration. They have actually destroyed in part their mind and their body. And we should not forget that the social acceptance of alcohol is responsible for the production of these 4,000,000 alcoholics or addicted drinkers.—Dr. Andrew C. Ivy.

The whole of government consists in being honest.—Thos. Jefferson.

The Orphanage
J. G. TRUITT, Superintendent

Dear Friends:

We had a good time at Palm Street Congregational Christian Church in Greensboro on Sunday. The children did exceptionally well with their program. They are such a happy group and give the folks a good time listening to them and sharing in the training which they are receiving. We are deeply grateful to the church and their pastor, Rev. Mack Welch, who by the way is doing a good job. His church and Sunday school are beautiful and filled with enthusiastic members. It was a real joy to be there and to preach on the fortieth anniversary of my first sermon, which was preached in that church, although it is an entirely new plant there now.

The first Sunday in May we shall be at Bethel. We are waiting for an invitation to come to your church.

Fields and gardens are being made ready for planting. It is a busy time around here as we are somewhat behind on account of the rainy spring. But we will catch up in due time. Our grain fields are growing and are beautiful. The pastures are pretty, and the cows and calves are flourishing. The children are headed toward school end, and that makes a change for them, and they seem quite happy. Every now and then some of them have to go the doctor or dentist. Our neighborhood doctors and dentists seem very glad to see them and always make us feel good for the fine things they say about us and for the services they render the children without charge. They know our work and needs and appreciate what we are doing.

Our barn looks all new and clean with a fresh coat of white paint inside and out (inside the milking sheds). Also our other buildings, which were desperately in need of paint, are being painted. We believe you want us to keep this place up the very best we can on the funds available, and we believe, furthermore, that when we tell you just how much we need for these repairs and this maintenance, you will see that we get it.

Do you know our three seniors who are graduating this spring? They are David Haith, Virginia Black and Ann Kinch. Each of these had a major role in the senior play last week, and I was very proud of them.

Anyone would be proud of the way in which they played their parts, and I have every reason to believe that we shall be proud of them from graduation on. They have developed such level, trustworthy personalities and show good signs of being really worthy of the training and care that has been given them.

There are three homeless children knocking at our doors. Their application blanks are being filled out and their medical tests are being made. If they are approved by the committee, they will soon be given a home. They are utterly homeless and pathetic. At present the county is holding them in custody. Emanciated, frightened and homeless—what a different atmosphere they will come into if they are received into your custody and care. Soon they will show the value of good food under happy and cheerful surroundings, loving care by those who feel a joy in seeing their progress, fellowship and friendship of those whom they can trust and love. One of the joys of this job is seeing that change come to pass in little lives.

Come to see us and let us share the fellowship we have with these boys and girls.

REPORT FOR APRIL 23, 1953.

Commodities for the week.

- Mrs. Gordan F. Harris, Charlottesville, Va., Clothing.
- Mr. A. J. Harris, Greensboro, N. C., 2 gross pencils.
- Mr. J. H. Johnson, Norfolk, Va., 50 copies of "The Upper Room".
- Mrs. F. E. Harrell, Suffolk, Va., Clothing and Baseball Gloves.
- Mrs. W. F. Krause, Asheville, N. C., Clothing.
- Mrs. C. P. Darden, Sr., Portsmouth, Va., Clothing.

Sunday School Monthly Offerings
Amount brought forward	$ 5,317.61
Eastern N. C. Conference:
Pleasant Hill	$ 22.07
	22.07
Eastern Va. Conference:
Mt. Zion	$ 7.00
Spring Hill S. S.	12.19
	19.19
N. C. and Va. Conference:
Asheville	$ 25.00
Hines Chapel S. S.	6.00
	31.00
Western N. C. Conference:
Flint Hill (R)	$ 5.00
Smithwood—Special	57.75
Zion	30.00
	92.75
Virginia Valley Conference:
Bethel S. S.	2.00
	2.00
Total	$ 167.01
Grand Total	$ 4,484.62

Special Offerings.

Amount brought forward	$ 7,577.35
Philathea Class, Reidsville Church	$ 10.00
Mrs. R. L. Gilliam, Sr., Burlington, N. C.	5.00
Philathea Class, Suffolk Christian Church for W. C. and Raymond Harvell	5.00
From "Jett", Norfolk, Va.	5.00
Special Gifts	395.75
	420.75
Grand Total	$ 7,998.10

Total for the week $ 587.76

Total for the year $13,482.72

PILGRIM SERIES MATERIAL.
(Continued from page 7.)

- One Pilgrim Uniform Quarterly 25c
- Two Family Book, "Ourselves And our Neighbors" 50c
- Anyone wishing to buy any of these materials should contact Miss Pattie Lee Coghill, Box 336, Elon College, N. C.

MEMORIAL GIFTS
"Instead of Flowers"

Dr. John G. Truitt
Christian Orphanage
Elon College, N. C.

Dear Dr. Truitt:

Please acknowledge the enclosed $..... as a memorial gift sent to the Christian Orphanage in lieu of flowers in memory of:

..... (Name of Deceased)	 (City)	 (Date of Death)
..... (Survivor to be Written)	 (Address)
Name.....
Address.....

Youth at Work in the Church

REV. MAX VESTAL, R. 1, Asheboro, N. C.

A Letter from Jose

“ . . . Well, spring has come and I presume the plans are now under way for the camps and conferences to be held this summer. How many are planned by the Convention this year, and are they still to be held in the same places? I'm pretty sure the young people in the churches both in the Valley and in Eastern Virginia and in North Carolina are now looking forward to these gatherings with eager anticipation. For my part, I can only dream of the many nice things that are the lot of young people there—things which a great many young people are terribly wanting here.

Only yesterday we ended a youth rally that was held for the young people in my circuit. Right now I am in charge of a circuit that has nine churches in it, and I will be serving this area until conference time, which comes on the 22-27 of this month. This rally was attended by only a few boys and girls of high school age, because the weather was bad on the first day of the gathering. The young people from the islands were prevented by stormy weather to cross over to our place where the meeting was held, and therefore only a handful (a little over 20) was present. It was the first circuit Y. P. Rally held in these parts, but from the response of those who attended, it was quite a success.

Best wishes to you all.

JOSE.

Note.—His address is: Rev. Jose F. Dabuet, Allen Samar, Philippine Islands.

* * * * *

Relax With Max

Student (in art class): “That, Sir, is a cow grazing.”
Puzzled Art Teacher: “Indeed! and where is the grass?”
Student: “The cow has eaten it.”
Teacher: “But where is the cow?”
Student: “You don't think she'd be silly enough to stay after she'd eaten all the grass, do you?”

* * *

A Texan was showing a visitor from Boston the shrines where Texans gave a valiant account of themselves against overwhelming odds. With a smug smile, the Bostonian said, “You know, New England has its heroes, too. Paul Revere, for example.”

“Paul Revere?” questioned the Texan. “Oh, that little fellow who had to ride for help.”

* * *

That which is not for the whole swarm is not for the interest of a single bee.—Marcus Aurelius.

THE CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCH BUILDING
LOAN FUND

Declaration of Purpose

We believe that it is of overwhelming importance to help in the erection of church buildings to meet the needs of America's unchurched millions and to provide a place where children may receive training in the basic principles of Christianity.

We acknowledge with gratitude the generous assistance in church building financial aid already received by many churches of the Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches. We further realize that our own financial resources without aid from our Church Building Society will be inadequate to meet the needs of our churches of this area. We gladly join our Congregational Christian Churches of America in support of the Church Building Fund Campaign.

We are pleased to report that our church, at a meeting of the members held the day of, 195., voted to co-operate in the Church Building Fund Campaign of the Congregational Christian Churches and accepted a goal of $.

It was agreed that our church would seek to reach this goal by:
(Check below the statement which applies to your church.)

- [] 1. A special solicitation of our church to be held the week beginning, 195., in which we will endeavor to secure a pledge from each member of the church.
- [] 2. By seeking a pledge from each member of the church for this purpose at the time of our regular every member canvass to be held the week of, 195...
- [] 3. By including each year in our budget, for years, the sum of $., which will be paid in quarterly installments of $., beginning, 195...
- [] 4. By annual solicitation each year for years.

..... Church
BySecretary or Clerk
Address

..... Pastor Treasurer
NOTE.—Mail “Declaration of Purpose” to the Southern Convention Office, Elon College, N. C. Make checks payable to The Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches, designated “Church Building Fund” and mail to Elon College, N. C. Payments should be completed not later than March 1, 1956.

In Memoriam

SPAID.

The Timber Ridge Christian Church at High View, W. Va. lost a devoted and helpful friend when Mrs. Bertie R. Spaid died on March 31st, at the age of seventy-two.

Both Mrs. Spaid and her husband, Angus R. Spaid, were for fifty years staunch supporters of the church and helpful workers in it, even though they perfered to keep their membership elsewhere. Our church has missed the Bible teaching of her husband, and now misses Mrs. Spaid's faithful attendance at services and work in the Ladies Aid. She was a woman whose friendliness brought light to the lives of neighbors, and whose steadfastness supported others in times of trial.

The death of our Lord and his victory over death gained added meaning for us as the body of Mrs. Spaid was laid to rest in our cemetery on Good Friday, April 3, 1953.
H. V. HARMAN.

YOUR CHURCH & FAMILY WEEK

May 3-10, 1953

Following is a program that will be observed in the First Church of Burlington, North Carolina, during the week of May 3 to 10. It may well serve as a guide for similar programs in other churches during Church and Family Week.

"A CHRISTIAN FOUNDATION FOR EVERY HOME"

"Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not, for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven."—Matthew 19: 14.

- Sunday, May 3— Families share worship service together.
- Monday, May 4— Woman's Auxiliary,
Devotional, Mrs. W. W. Sellars.
Film, "Walking With God."
2:30 Radio Program, WBBB.
Address, Dr. John G. Truitt.
Introduction, Mrs. J. H. McEwen.
Night: Joint meeting of Night Circles in Educational Building.
Film, "Walking With God."
- Tuesday, May 5— "Family Night at Home." Games, songs, prayers and stories for the family group.
- Wednesday, May 6— 6:30: Covered Dish Supper for the entire family in the basement of the church.
7:00: Family Night at Prayer Service.
Fun and Fellowship for the children, with Mr. John Graves in charge.
- Thursday, May 7— "Three to Make Ready"—Families spend an evening together, each member preparing for his own responsibilities in the Sunday Church School.
- Friday, May 8— "Family Night at the Movies or Television"; short visits to close neighbors or friends.
- Saturday, May 9— "Remember Somebody's Mother."
Visit the lonely and the shut-ins.
- Sunday, May 10— Cradle Roll Service by the younger departments during Church School Assembly.
"Honor Thy Mother."
Families attend church together.

Devotionals each morning on the radio by the pastor, Rev. Henry Robinson. Station WFNS, 9:30 a. m.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY. 1956.
Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches.

The CHRISTIAN SUN

ORGAN OF THE SOUTHERN CONVENTION OF CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES

In Essentials Unity — In Non-Essentials, Liberty, — In All Things, Charity

VOLUME CV

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, MAY 7, 1953

NUMBER 19

Pleasant Grove Dedicates Parsonage

On last Sunday, May 3, 1953, the Pleasant Grove Christian Church of the Western North Carolina Conference, near Bennett, N. C., held a dedication service in connection with their Memorial Day services, for their parsonage which has recently been completed. We congratulate the church, its pastor—Bill Simmons, and his wife upon such an elegant new home as shone above.

News Flashes

Mrs. Robert Lee House has been supplying at Hope Mills during April and May.

Thanks, Dr. John Green, for the article on page 5, we appreciate your contributions.

Rev. Carl Wallace was the supply minister of the Church of Wide Fellowship, Southern Pines, N. C., on Sunday, April 30.

Are you reading the reports from our churches? If you do, and think they are worth while, why don't you see that your church reports, too? It is quite possible that others would be interested in knowing what your church is doing.

We learn with regret of the death recently of Mr. and Mrs. J. Dolph Long. Mrs. Long was the former Mrs. Nan Carlton Parrott, a sister of Mr. Luther Carlton of Paces, Virginia and the late Mr. P. J. Carlton. Mr. Long was the senior partner of the firm of Long & Long, Attorneys, Burlington, N. C., though he had for the past several years lived at Newnan, Georgia. Both were former students of Elon College.

Anent the Church Building Loan Fund Campaign

... I want to commend you especially on the April 22 number of THE CHRISTIAN SUN, which sets forth so clearly the appeal of the Congregational Christian Church Building Society's Revolving Loan Fund Campaign.

I do not see how any reader can review this issue without feeling a tug at both his heart and his purse-strings.

The Revolving Loan Funds of the Church Building Society are never spent, but always lent, thereby making possible continuing aid from one generation to another. The money raised by our Albany Convention 100 years ago is still at work for our churches today. Our national population is increasing at the rate of three million a year. As Christian Statesmen, let us now enlarge our Loan Funds to meet tomorrow's responsibilities

After visiting many of our high potential areas throughout the country where thousands of new homes are being built without a church to serve them, I am convinced that an unprecedented opportunity lies before us to win present and future generations to Christ, if we will but help to provide places of worship and facilities for religious education, as our forefathers did for us.

Half the goal of $4,500,000 has been subscribed, and already new funds are being made available from the current campaign for loans to needy churches. The Denomination is now calling for the generous help of The Southern Convention.

With faith, courage and liberal response, let us go forward together to complete the task.

Sincerely,
ROBERT CASHMAN,
Moderator.

Resolutions of Respect for the Late Dr. Robert Lee House

At the Spring meeting of the Executive Board of the Southern Convention it was voted that the secretary draft suitable resolutions honoring the memory of the late Dr. Robert Lee House and that copies of these resolutions be appended to the minutes of the Board, printed in THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and forwarded to Mrs. House. In compliance with this instruction the following is submitted:

Inasmuch as Robert Lee House, a member of this board, served so loyally as pastor of several of our churches in Virginia and North Carolina, sharing his broad mind, warm heart, and generous spirit through his ministries as a pastor and teacher,

And inasmuch as he gave so unselfishly of his time, energy, and talent in the twelve years editorship of THE CHRISTIAN SUN, through which his keen insights reached thousands of people across the land, always toward the ends of lifting their eyes to the higher way of Christ's teachings and inspiring their hands to greater service.

And inasmuch as his presence, wisdom, and gracious spirit richly blessed every gathering which he attended and especially the meetings of this board,

BE IT RESOLVED: That the Executive Board of the Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches assemble in Henderson,

North Carolina, April 23, 1953, by unanimous vote, express to all people and in particular to Mrs. House and her children their profound sorrow in the untimely death of Robert Lee House and also their gratitude to God for the many years of fellowship by which our friend and brother blessed and strengthened our common life, shared our victories and defeats, and always sounded the trumpet for advance regardless of the odds.

HENRY E. ROBINSON,
Secretary.

Mrs. Vitus R. Holt of Burlington Dies Suddenly

Readers of THE CHRISTIAN SUN will learn with sorrow of the sudden death of Mrs. Blanche Bradshaw Holt of Burlington, North Carolina, the wife of Mr. Vitus R. Holt, chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Christian Orphanage, and a leading layman of our First Church in Burlington.

Mrs. Holt died at her home on West Davis Avenue at 5 o'clock on Friday, May 1, at the age of 62 years. She became ill that morning, but her condition was not considered serious until the early afternoon.

Mrs. Holt was born in the Salem Methodist Church community in the southern part of Alamance County, the daughter of James T. and Mrs. Nellie Thompson Bradshaw. She was educated in the old Salem Academy, later attending Greensboro College. She later entered training at the old Ramey Hospital, now Alamance General Hospital, and qualified as a nurse.

Mrs. Holt was active in the First Congregational Christian Church of Burlington, where she, over a period of years, served as superintendent of the Beginners' and Primary Department, and later she was active in the Intermediate Department of the Sunday school.

She was a former deaconess of the church and was active in the women's work of the church.

Her funeral was held at the church on Monday morning, May 4, at 10:30 o'clock, with interment in Pine Hill Cemetery. Rev. Henry E. Robinson, pastor of the church, officiated, assisted by Dr. John G. Truitt, superintendent of the Christian Orphanage.

Mr. Holt, one foster son, Joe Morris, and a sister, Mrs. W. J. Jennings, survive.

Laymen and the Church . . .

J. Earl Danieley, Editor, Box 515, Elon College, N. C.

"The Congregational Christian Layman and His Community"

The topic for the suggested program this month is one which is very vital; it is something with which each layman and every church is concerned. Using this topic and this information your fellowship can have a very fine program. Let us hear from you if you are finding this material helpful.

SUGGESTED PROGRAM.

SUGGESTED HYMNS: "Living for Jesus," "In Christ There is No East," "Lord Speak to Me," "Where Cross the Crowded Ways of Life."

SUGGESTED SCRIPTURE: St. Luke 20: 20-26; Isaiah 6: 1-8; St. Matthew 5: 13-16

PRAYER: God of all men, we lift up our community to thee today. Be a friend to all mankind and help us to love and work with all thy people. Amen.

MEDITATION:

Politics is dirty business and no Christian should soil his hands with any part of it. How many young men have heard their elders make this statement and literally pass by on the other side? If politics are dirty, it is because the church people have let them become so.

Good, clean government, including the best education, religion, health, transportation, housing, labor relations, communications, recreation, and the related phases of living, should be a common goal of all the Christian people of any community.

The monks are noted for living pious and righteous lives in their cells but what kind of a world, especially local community, would ours be if all of us were monks? 'Tis a silly question, of course, but would not a similar condition arise if no one got mixed up in politics and the church at the same time?

What would the service clubs, fraternal organizations, civic groups such as Salvation Army, Good Will Industries, Community Chests, and many other such bodies do without the leadership of Christian laymen? Believe it or not, most of those organizations were either started by the church or some member of the church who did not think a particular need was being adequately met by existing organizations.

Not only must church men be a part of the community, they must organize and promote new developments in the community. Is there a local church or community-wide boy or girl scout troupe? Where do people go for their books? Does the community ever have any cultural or artistic entertainment? Where does local pride begin or stop?

A true Christian is concerned about all phases of life, especially in his community where his home is located and his children are growing up. He takes an active part in the community life and the community is a better place because he lives in it.

Questions For Discussion.

1. What are the geographical bounds of your community? Who is your neighbor?
2. How are the problems of your community being solved? By whom? Is the church taking an active part in bettering community life? What else can it do?
3. Why is your church not more active in the community life?
4. Where does your church life end and your community life begin? Why should they be separate? What can you do to bring them closer together?

(Continued on page 8.)

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr
A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom as represented by the Congregational Christian Churches.
Our Principles

1. The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
2. Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
3. The Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
4. Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and church membership.
5. The right of private judgment and liberty of conscience is a privilege that should be accorded to and exercised by all.

Managing Editor John T. Kernode

Departmental Editors—Convention, Wm. T. Scott; Missions, F. C. Lester; Women's Work, Mrs. F. C. Lester; Young People's Work, Max Vestal; Children, Mrs. R. L. House; Sunday School Lesson, H. S. Hardcastel.

Institutional Representatives—Elon College, L. E. Smith; The Christian Orphanage, John G. Truitt.

Board of Publications—Duane Vore, Chairman, S. T. Holland, Secretary; R. C. Helfenstein, S. E. Madren, W. W. Snyder, G. D. Colclough, Treasurer, ex officio.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Year $3.00
Two Years 5.00

Published by the Board of Publications of The Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches, Inc. Printed every Thursday except the last in June and December by Central Publishing Co., Inc., Richmond, Va.

Entered as second-class matter at the Post Office at Richmond Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

General contributions should be addressed to the editor at Southern Pines, N. C., and should reach him by Wednesday of the week preceding date of publication.

Departmental material should be sent to the proper departmental editor, at the address shown on their page.

All other material and business communications except regarding subscriptions should be sent to the Office of Publication, 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond 19, Va.

The Christian Sun Subscription Blank

Subscription Price: 1 year, $3.00; 2 years, $5.00

Date 195

Dr. Wm. T. Scott, Supt.,
Elon College, N. C.

Enclosed find $ for which please send The Christian Sun
() 1 year, () 2 years — () New Subscription, () Renewal.

To

Address

Who is a member of Church

() Renew, () Enter my own subscription for () 1 year, () 2 years.

My Name

My Address

From the EDITORIAL Viewpoint

"Cling to Thy Mother"

A MOTHER'S DAY EDITORIAL IN VERSE

Cling to thy mother; for she was the first
To know thy being and feel thy life;
The hope of thee through many a pang she nursed;
And when midst anguish like the parting strife,
Her babe was in her arms, the agony
Was all forgot, for bliss of loving thee.

Be gentle to thy mother; long she bore
Thine infant fretfulness and silly youth;
Nor ruddy scorn the faithful voice that o'er
Thy cradle prayed, and taught thy lisping truth.
Yes, she is old; yet on thine adult brow
She looks, and claims thee as her child e'en now.

Uphold thy mother; close to her warm heart
She carried, fed, lulled thee to thy rest;
Then taught thy tottering limbs their untried art,
Exulting in the fledgeling from her nest:
And, now her steps are feeble, be her stay,
Whose strength was thine in thy most feeble day.

Cherish thy mother; brief perchance the time
May be, that she will claim the care she gave;
Past are hopes of youth, her harvest prime
Of joy on earth; her friends are in the grave:
But for her children, she could lay her head
Gladly to rest among her precious dead.

Be tender with thy mother; words unkind,
Or light neglected from thee, will give a pang
To that fond bosom, where thou art enshrined
In love unutterable, more than fang
Of venom'd serpent. Wound not that trust,
As thou wouldst hope for peace when she is dust.

O mother mine! God grant I ne'er forget,
Whatever be my grief, or what my joy,
The unanswered, unextinguishable debt
I owe thy love; make my sweet employ,
Ever through thy remaining days to be
To thee as faithful, as thou wert to me.

—From "Bethune's Collection."

The Service of Youth in The Church

A Radio Address over Station WGDO, McKeesport, Penna.

By REV. J. F. C. GREEN, D. D.

Saint Paul, in his letter to Timothy, says: "Command and teach these things. Let no one despise your youth, but set the believers an example in speech and conduct, in love and faith, in purity. . . . Do not neglect the gift you have. . . ."

Young people are active in all the churches. Their attendance and their work is not only a promise of the future church, it is a help and a contribution in the present church.

Some seventy years ago, the first organized young people's work was formed in the United States by Rev. Francis E. Clark, a Congregational pastor in Portland, Maine, in the Christian Endeavor. That was the first of the great youth bodies that have circled the world and train in teaching and in service countless numbers of young people.

Since then organizations have been formed in all of the denominations, where the young people receive training and gain practice in the teaching and work of their church.

The author of Timothy tells us of the significance of the participation of the service of youth: "Let no one despise your youth" "Set the believers an example. . . . By so doing, you will save both yourself and your hearers." Of course, these words were written to young Timothy. In his church and in his service of the Gospel, he was to take a leading part and thereby was to do two things: save himself and save his hearers.

In the new churches, the missionary churches, the training and testing of the new members are far more severe than in the old churches such as our own. Before becoming members of the churches, converts must prove themselves in life and walk, that they are truly worthy to be called Christians. Leaders, also, must stand out, against the mass of the unconverted, by their proved loyalty and ability, and in their service.

A great Japanese Christian said, while visiting in our own church: "It seems to me that in America it is too easy and too popular to be a Christian. In Japan the Christians are in the minority. Always they are being tried, in the minds of the people, by a comparison to the life and walk of the non-Christians, who are in the majority. In Japan, Christians have to prove themselves." Is that no what Saint Paul meant as he wrote to young Timothy?

In a sense, it is far more difficult to be a Christian here, in a land where Christianity is accepted. There is no open opposition to the faith. On the surface, ours is a Christian country. It is popular to go with the stream. Thus, there is no sharp division between truly Christian and non-Christian motivation. But let persecution set in, and immediately the lines divide. Only the bravest, the most sincere, will profess their Christianity. Consequently, here in our land, we do not face the testing of Christians in many lands, whose practice of the faith brings them the cross—of disadvantage—even of persecution and of death.

What then is the good that we can do; the good that we can be, in ourselves?

I.—In that we profess the faith, we tend to shape our own lives by it. The standard of purity, of which St. Paul speaks to Timothy, becomes our own. And, as God aids us, we grow in the knowledge and love of the Master.

There is the story of the "Great Stone Face." Many pretenders had been taken to resemble this image of the Mountain. But always the lives of these had not been tested in the practice of the virtues of the Christian standards, of quiet, unassuming helpfulness; of meekness and humility; of service for its own sake. Until, at last, by common consent, the retired, patient, helpful man, who had incorporated the principles of the Christ in his own life, not thinking about them while he did them; but being like the Christ always, this one was recognized as the one who had grown into the likeness of the ideal.

That is, of course, the story of the Final Judgment, as told by Christ himself. Those who did his works by rote and law, because they were consciously engaged in doing them—not from the inner, inevitable urge of doing them out of a life shaped like the Christ—those were rejected. But those who had so lost themselves in the mind of Christ that they acted like him and forgot their doing of the works, they were accepted. Theirs was salvation. "As much as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me. Enter in unto your reward."

This is the ideal of youth, in the following of the Christ of Youth—of him who died for the faith at the early age of thirty-three years; of him who said to those who would come unto him: "Take up your cross, and follow me."

We know of the imperfection with which youth holds this ideal in practice. We realize the far cry from the perfection of the Master to the accomplishments of youth. But this is our hope and our faith. And in this love of him, we would walk. In this love youth does walk, by his grace. And in that grace, youth says, in humility, with the pardon of the Master for failures: "Not what I am, but what I hope to be, that comforts me."

II.—Youth values the heritage of faith, in the Church. It were folly indeed to assume that youth can break free from the gifts and challenge of the past and set its own new course. Only in grateful loyalty to the Church, with its heritage of faith and teaching is the youth of today in the leadership of tomorrow, true to the high gifts of the faith.

Every church is the repository of the ineffable treasures of the Gift of the Christ and of the gift of the lives and prayers of those who have gone before. The vast, silent congregation of those who came before and passed on to their reward; of those who sought and found, or quested and failed, as their lots were cast: it is in this heritage that youth would walk. It is within this fellowship of the faithful, across the ages, that the youth of today would serve.

There is no loyalty to the Christ, except in loyalty to the family of faith—the Church. So it is true: "Without the Church there is no salvation." In the Judgment story, the decision of eternal bliss and damnation is based upon this relationship of the believer with the brethren. Faith in Christ is proved by the way life is lived in love and kindness—with other people.

There is the story of the souls burn-

(Continued on page 13.)

Our Churches Report . . .

Spoon's Chapel First

The Spoon's Chapel Congregational Christian Church, located about five miles southeast of Asheboro, N. C., was the first church in the Western North Carolina Conference to pledge its quota for the Church Building Loan Fund. This is Spoon's Chapel's share in the four and one-half million dollar campaign being conducted throughout the nation by our churches. The fund will be loaned and granted to help in the building of new churches and in the modernization of existing ones.

* * * * *

Shelton Memorial Church of Portsmouth Reports

The members of Shelton Memorial Church are very happy with our pastor and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Britton, who have been with us one year the beginning of May.

He has added 21 new members to the church roll. We are now in the process of organizing a Laymen's Fellowship, under the guidance of Mr. Britton. We have just concluded a successful contest in the Sunday school, and we have a Sunday nursery which is well attended.

A fund has been started for the purpose of painting the church and the parsonage and for installing a new furnace in the parsonage.

We are an enthusiastic congregation, from oldest to youngest, and are looking forward to an active future.

MRS. FRANK H. LEWIS.

* * * * *

Richmond Church Votes to Accept Building Fund Quota

At the morning service on May 3, the Richmond Church voted unanimously to accept its quota on the denomination's Four and One Half Million Dollar Church Building Loan Fund Campaign.

The church is also in the midst of its own campaign of securing pledges on an extensive improvement project, which includes a New Social and Recreation Center now near completion.

Between 5 and 6 o'clock on Sunday afternoon, May 3, a delightful reception was held for the twenty new members received into the fellowship of the church during the past year.

The occasion was sponsored by the Board of Deaconesses.

The Board of Deacons have included in their program of activities a weekly Fellowship Visitation plan which provides that on each Tuesday evening during eight months of the year, one of the deacons accompanies the pastor on a schedule of visitation in the homes of new comers in the city, unchurched folk within the parish, and families of the church where there is sickness or misfortune. The secretary of the Board makes out the assignment of dates for which each deacon is responsible. The plan is proving to be unusually rewarding to the homes visited and to the deacons participating.

* * * * *

Rev. Harvey L. Carnes Installed as Pastor of Franklin Church

On Sunday afternoon, April 26, the Franklin Congregational Christian Church was host to visitors and invited guests from Franklin and from neighboring churches and communities, in a service of installation for their new pastor, Rev. Harvey L. Carnes, formerly of St. Petersburg, Florida.

Dr. Jesse H. Dollar, president of the Eastern Virginia Conference of Congregational Christian Churches, was the presiding minister during the inspiring service, in which Dr. W. Millard Stevens, president of the Southern Convention and pastor of the Congregational Christian Temple of Norfolk, Virginia, delivered the installation sermon. Rev. James H. Lightbourne, Jr., pastor of the Holland Church, gave the prayer of installation, and Rev. Allen Hurdle, pastor of the Holy Neck Church, offered the invocation. The new minister was charged with the faithful keeping of his office by Dr. H. S. Hardeastle, pastor of Oakland and Berea, Nansemond, Churches, and the congregation was charged with dutiful care of their pastor and sincere attention to the welfare of the church by Dr. Duane N. Vore, pastor of Suffolk Christian Church.

There were addresses of welcome by Rev. Ura D. Hudgins, the pastor of the Franklin Baptist Church, representing the ministers of the Franklin community; by Mr. J. Vaughn Beale, representing the congregation to which Mr. Carnes has come; and by Dr. Darden W. Jones, vice-mayor, representing the Franklin Town Commission.

Special guests in attendance were: Rev. and Mrs. James Turner, Rev. G. B. Trainum, pastor of the Franklin Presbyterian Church, Mrs. Buell E. Bingham, Mr. William Bingham, and members of the Johnson's Grove Congregational Christian Church.

A beautiful reception was arranged in Fellowship Hall immediately after the service, under the sponsorship of the Women's Auxiliary, of which Mrs. James I. Beale, Jr., is president.

* * * * *

Reidsville Pastor Opens Baseball Season with Prayer

Many of us have seen many baseball seasons come and go, but the Reidsville Luckies opened the Carolina League baseball season on April 22 in a most unusual fashion. Mr. Jim Crawford was the master of ceremonies, and in a very gracious way he introduced the visiting Danville Leafs and then introduced each individual member of the Luckies' ball club.

Then Rev. Tucker G. Humphries, pastor of the Reidsville Congregational Christian Church, was called to the microphone and asked to open the season with prayer. The two thousand odd fans present stood with bared heads and in silence. Mr. Humphries said that when he was asked to offer this prayer, his answer was that prayer was never out of order and never in bad taste, and he began by reminding the baseball fans of Reidsville that once upon a time way back yonder, Red Cagle, three times all-American and once the captain of his football team, liked to testify that he never lead his football team into a game that they did not first stop for a word of prayer, not praying to win but always asking God that they might be men and be able to take it as well as give it. Mr. Humphries began with a prayer for which he is well known, "Holy God, who madest me and all things else to worship Thee, keep me fit in mind and heart, body and soul, to take my part; fit to stand, fit to run, fit for sorrow, fit for fun, fit for work, and fit for play, fit to face life everyday. Holy God, who madest me, make me more and more like Thee." Then the preacher continued: "Dear Heavenly Father, we pause to look up into Thy face

(Continued on page 8.)

News of Elon College

PRESIDENT L. E. SMITH, Elon College, N. C.

An Excellent Program Arranged For Elon Commencement

For sixty three years Elon College has been serving the church. Acceptable or not, the college has given its best to the church. Its service could have been better if the support given had been better. The financial resources of the college are not sufficient to provide adequate and acceptable equipment and to pay salaries in keeping with existing conditions and with the equipment and salaries that are prevalent in contemporary institutions.

Some years ago the Board of Trustees considered the size of institution that the church in the Southern Convention should direct and support. The size of a college is usually determined by its enrollment. This, however, should not be the one standard by which it is judged. The size of a college is properly determined by its curriculum, equipment, and grade of work done. At the time of the above discussion it was voted to limit the enrollement of Elon College to 1,000 regular college students. That number has not been reached. We are far from it today, in fact, too far for the solvency and efficiency of the college.

The college is approaching the end of another college year. Commencement exercises will be held May 22-25. An excellent program has been arranged. Friday evening will be a social hour in the gymnasium honoring the graduating class and reunion classes. All alumni are invited. Saturday will be Alumni Day with picnic lunch served on the grounds for everyone. In the afternoon the business meeting of the general alumni association will be held. This will be a most important meeting. Carl Woods, Alumni Secretary, has resigned. The association should elect his successor. Saturday evening the annual banquet of the Alumni Association will be held. The speaker will be Dean J. C. Peel, Southern College, Lakeland, Florida. The Baccalaureate Service will be Sunday at 11:30. The Rev. Edward W. W. Lewis of Norwich, Connecticut, will be the preacher. Vespers on Sunday will be in charge of the Music Department of the college. Sunday evening the Music Department will give its annual musical program for the college and all visitors. Monday will be Graduation Day. The Board of Trustees will meet at 9:15 for the purpose of authorizing the awarding of degrees. The literary address will be at 10:30. Senator Willis Smith, Junior Senator from North Carolina, will be the speaker. This will be followed by the Trustees' luncheon by President and Mrs. Smith. The Board of Trustees will meet immediately thereafter for its annual business session. Music will be furnished by the Music Department of the college.

All members of the church, alumni and friends are cordially invited to any and all functions of the college during commencement.

* * * * *

The College Sustaining Fund

This is a statement and appeal. Elon College, your college and our college, faces a serious economic situation. For nearly three years the churches of the Southern Convention have given added support to the college through what the convention chose to call the Elon College Sustaining Fund. The convention called upon the churches to contribute a minimum of $1 per member to the college through this fund. The first two years we received considerable support. This was of great assistance to the college. This year the support to date has not been of sufficient amounts to be encouraging.

The college went to considerable expense last fall to have Dean Bowden visit practically all the churches in the convention in the interest of the Sustaining Fund. A large number of our churches put this item in their annual budget. I am sure that this will be paid sometime during the conference year. The summer months are lean months financially for the college. Its expenses are heavier during the summer than in other months. If at all possible and convenient, a payment on the Sustaining Fund account by the churches that have placed the same in their budgets would be of tremendous assistance and great encouragement.

The following churches have made payments:

Eastern N. C. Conference:

Morrisville$ 8.00
Southern Pines S. S. 14.38

Eastern Va. Conference:

Holland$ 83.00
Suffolk 36.00
Windsor 150.00
Rosemont 528.00
Richmond 65.00

N. C. and Va. Conference:

Winston-Salem$ 50.00
Union (Va.) 100.00
Hines Chapel 105.00
Union (Va.) 100.00

Western N. C. Conference:

Providence Chapel$ 12.90
Hank's Chapel 239.00

Virginia Valley Conference:

Linville$ 31.00
Joppa 7.00
Mt. Lebanon 5.00
Timber Ridge 10.00

————— $ 1,544.28

* * * * *

Apportionment Giving

The churches of the Southern Convention have given rather generous support to Elon College through the apportionment plan. We all realize that no college charges sufficient tuition and fees to meet its current bills. From the beginning of higher education all institutions have required subsidies. The same is true today in this advanced age. Whether the institution be a state or private college, it must receive support beyond its campus income if it is to continue operation. The state is supporting institutions, through taxation, in an elaborate way. The church colleges must compete with state institutions—must compete for equipment, for salaries, and for students. If the church purposes that its college or colleges shall continue as institutions of higher learning, the church must, in some way, give support.

Elon College is aware that other causes likewise call for support. The church will give its support in keeping with its judgment of values and its opinion as to priorities. Elon College is happy to rest its case with the church on its merits.

Previously Reported $ 3,418.43

Eastern N. C. Conference:

Good Hope$ 18.00
Lebanon 10.00

N. C. and Va. Conference:

Long's Chapel$ 10.88

Virginia Valley Conference:

Concord S. S.$ 11.00
Palmyra S. S. 2.00

————— 51.88

Total to date $ 3,407.31

Missions at Home and Abroad

Medical Work in Southern Rhodesia

Two American Board medical centers—at Mt. Silinda and Chikore—provide the only medical care for almost 200,000 Africans and some Europeans in the Sabi River area of Southern Rhodesia. The centers are small, but busy. The 50-bed hospital at Mt. Salinda one day recently reported it had cared for 122 inpatients! The Chikore Dispensary and Cottage Hospital, in addition to caring for people in its 20 beds, is the center for a series of outstation clinics held regularly at appointed places far out from the hospitals of the mission. Besides the outreach of such clinics and “wayside dispensaries,” the hospitals train each year more than a dozen nurses for village work. Often there are five applicants for each training position.

Missionaries and African personnel staff the hospitals. Theresa Black, Marie Bushong Baker, Helen Dizney (formerly of North China, specialist in public health), are the missionaries now at work in Rhodesia. The tragic death of Dr. Victor Masters from polio in the fall of 1951 has left a gaping hole in the ranks. Mrs. Masters, herself recovering from a severe attack of polio (another of their children died from the disease and their smallest child was also stricken), has written the Board that her dearest wish is to return to Mt. Silinda and to work in the hospital if given again the power to walk. The American Board hopes to be able to send another doctor soon to fill some of the place left by Dr. Masters, whose three short years at Mt. Silinda gave the medical work great vigor and spirituality.

About some of the Africans who visit the hospitals, Theresa Buck has this to say: “All kinds of people come to us—the modern ‘enlightened’ African, the primitive African, and all degrees in between. Old men come along with a ragged cloth draped around their hips and an apron of leopard skin and their knife and snuff box dangling from their waists. The grandmothers usually have their hair several inches long and treated with red mud. They often are dressed only in a bit of ragged skirt, an old blanket, but always they bring their snuff. Younger women swing their short full skirts and jangle their metal anklets as they walk. Their hair is kept very short. Sometimes they are tattooed, according to their tribal custom. Babies and children often come to us completely naked, though little girls soon begin to wear the “chikasa,” a short, very full skirt with beaded hems. To all who come to us we minister, as best we can, in the name and spirit of Christ.”

Almost 10,000 Africans are treated annually by the medical work of the Rhodesia Mission. Not all are brought back to strength and health, though a surprising number are, even when they have waited until the last minute to come to the hospital or clinic for treatment. Writes Theresa Buck about one death: “The death which touched me most deeply was that of a little boy about 12 years old, who was very far from home and had no friends or relatives to visit him. He was ill with an unexplained high fever for five weeks. We hoped for a while that he would recover, but he became suddenly worse about three days before his death. Though he was not a Christian, he had no one, and it did not seem right to bury him without some service, so I asked John Marsh to say a few words at the grave while one of the senior orderlies and I stood by. The next day another little boy of about the same size came along inquiring for Samuel. The two were brothers and had come to this vicinity from beyond Gogoi in Portuguese East Africa to find work. He came as a representative of his family to find out about his brother. He was very mature and business-like about everything until we reached the grave. Then he broke into quiet sobs and turned away. His purpose accomplished, he started off on foot on his lonely journey to carry the news to his family.”

As a ministry of Our Christian World Mission on a far frontier, the medical work of the Rhodesia Mission of the American Board is providing Christian service to a people who stand in great need. You, your gift, your church, help carry it on.

Mother's Day and the Church Building Loan Fund

On May 10 thousands of churches will be celebrating Mother's Day. To almost everyone it will be a day for honoring his own mother. It might also be a day to honor our spiritual Mother—the church. Although our people do not often refer to the church as their spiritual mother, in many denominations, such as the Roman Catholic, this is done frequently. The Christian Scientists also speak frequently of their Mother Church in Boston.

Today with our twenty-five million increase in population and the prospective increase of twenty-five million more by 1960, our denomination needs to mother many new churches which in turn can be the spiritual mothers to thousands of men, women and children. Why not honor your mother at Mother's Day with a contribution to the Church Building Loan Fund Campaign?

WM. KINCAID NEWMAN,
Area Director.

LAYMEN AND THE CHURCH.

(Continued from page 3.)

5. What can churchmen do about high taxes? What is the attitude of the Christian toward waste? extravagance? corruption? What action should he take?

OUR CHURCHES REPORT.

(Continued from page 6.)

and to thank Thee for all Thy goodness and the abundance of that goodness in our lives. Yeah, Lord, yeah, for every good and perfect gift we have, we give Thee thanks, and at this moment in a very particular sense, we thank Thee for this great land of ours. We thank Thee, dear God, that America is a land of homes and industries and churches and schools, a land of work and a land of play; and we pause for just a moment to ask Thy blessings upon our city and upon our Lucky Ball Club. May we ever play to win, but win or lose, may we be Christian men in the game. Give us Thy benediction in all things and at all times and in all ways. We pray in the Master's name. Holy God, who madest me, make us each one more like Thee. Amen.”

Then Mr. George Hunt, the mayor of Reidsville, shed his coat and stepped to the mound to throw the first strike, and the Umpire cried, “Play ball.”

REPORTER.

Church Women at Work

With Emphasis on Missions

MRS. F. C. LESTER, Editor

840 Sunset Avenue, Asheboro, N. C.

The Editor's "Reactions" to a Most Successful Convention

According the registration cards, 7 from the Valley, 65 from Eastern Virginia, and 148 women from North Carolina, with 18 ministers and special guests, made up the Women's Convention which was held in our First Church, Burlington, N. C., April 28-29.

There are many meaningful memories for those who attended—

The lovely Tudor Williams, her beauty augmented by a gorgeous orchid, presided with dignity and dispatch, even managing to produce (as if by magic) a copy of the nominating committee's report when the time came for the slate of new officers to be read and no one on the committee seemed to be present with a copy.

The Burlington Church's hospitality, as evidenced in the excellent meals, the beautiful flowers, Mary Ingle's smile, the young men who "waited on table," the lovely music of the choir, and the interest and enthusiasm of Rev. and Mrs. Henry Robinson.

The fine reports given by the various officers, and especially Graham Wisseman's "visual aids"—a tin can to remind us of goats, a cake of soap to remind us of cleanliness, and Christ and the children to remind us of churches which need our help—all of these in Puerto Rico where Friendly Service gifts will be sent.

Mr. McKnight's interesting presentation of our work in Japan, and the display of Japanese arranged by him and his wife.

The moving presentation of our "Task of Love" at Franklinton given by Mrs. Robert Lee House.

The fine address of Dr. Henry Smith Leiper, which gave us intimate contacts with "the great" of this present world as well as a blueprint for the kingdom of heaven on earth.

Superintendent Scott's home missionary address which reminded us of our achievements and our shortcomings in this field.

AROUND THE TABLES

One of the fine features of the Women's Convention was the banquet, when 250 women enjoyed food, fun, fellowship, and information.

Mrs. W. E. Wisseman presided. Mrs. D. B. Harrell, Jr. (Jean Hook), led us in singing everything from "One Finger, One Hand, One Arm" to "Fairest Lord Jesus." Earl Daniëley, layman who can preach, brought greetings from the Laymen's Fellowship. Mrs. Carl Wallace and Mrs. Eleanor Wheless gave an original "skit" in poetry about the "School of Missions." Martin Garren presented important facts concerning the Building Loan Fund. And Henry Robinson "brought down the house" with his impersonation of Moab Hartley, complete with garb of the 1850's. Miss Luuk Groot, student at Elon College, was presented by Mrs. L. E. Smith, and brought greetings from her native land, Holland. Dressed in costume even to wooden shoes, she was "pretty as a picture."

DR. LEIPER SPEAKING

Fortunate indeed were those who had the privilege of listening to Dr. Henry Smith Leiper for more than an hour on Tuesday evening at the Woman's Convention. Here are some of the ideas he presented—though the humor and pointedness of his many stories cannot be recaptured here.

The Church should be concerned with all of life.

Salvation means "wholeness of life."

If plans of Social Action would succeed they would take away from the Communists their best arguments.

Christianity is something you can not understand until you share in it; and you cannot share in it, unless you share it.

It has been estimated there are 5,000,000 Communist "missionaries," while there are only 72,000 Christian missionaries (including Roman, Eastern, and Protestant). The Communists have taken over the methods Christ used.

The thing we have to give to the world is the personality of Christ.

The Church is utterly concerned with this world, but its home base is in the home beyond.

"Psycho-ceramic" is a fancy name for "crack-pot."

We need 273 ministers each year for replacements, but only have 130 to graduate from all our seminaries.

We say, "Here am I — send her, or him." This would not be too bad, if we helped send her or him!

We must know facts. For instance, we give $3.38 per person for total work of church, $2.70 of that for all national boards. But people in the U. S. give $111.00 for tobacco, $284 for liquor, and $500 for defense yearly, on the average.

As Christians we are trying to sow seeds of understanding, love, and fellowship.

Christ is unique—more followers than any other; more biographies written about him than any other; more buildings dedicated to his name; more languages used to translate his works; only world fellowship is his church; he has power over death; identified by every generation since he lived with God; self-dedication as no other religionist; had more names and titles (114) than anyone who ever lived; centered world community in the family.

Family, like the Church — concern for each other, willingness to conciliate, concede the right to others to be different, contribute to each other's welfare.

The Congregational Christian Church has the highest assessed value of church property per capita in the world—$391.

Our denomination has the highest proportion of people in the higher income bracket of any in the United States. But out of 47 denominations, we are 14th in our giving for congregational expenses, 26th for all benevolences, and 41st for our giving for missions. There are now 15,000 missionaries being sent out from North America, the largest number ever, and we have only about one-third of what we had thirty years ago.

WOMEN'S OFFICERS

President—Mrs. W. B. Williams.

Vice-President—Mrs. W. E. Wisseman.

Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. Raye V. Knight.

Recording Secretary—Mrs. Edward Bresko.

Treasurer—Mrs. W. V. Leathers.

Historian—Mrs. L. W. Staggs.

Editor—Mrs. F. C. Lester.

Departmental Secretaries

Spiritual Life—Mrs. Duane Vore.

Friendly Service—Mrs. W. E. Wisseman.

(Continued on page 13.)

A Page for Our Children

MRS. R. L. HOUSE, Editor, Southern Pines, N. C.

This week is National Music Week, and a good one to observe. But most important of all, it is National Family Week, with a glorious climax on next Sunday with Mother's Day.

The following was on Dr. House's desk, marked "Christian Family Week," and I make it my page to you. The material was prepared by the Lutheran Commission on Social Relations last year.

* * *

Believing firmly in the power of the principles of love, of freedom, and of stewardship, to guide the actions of Christian men and women, in whom dwells the sanctifying Spirit of the Living God, the Commission on Social Relations of the American Lutheran Conference expresses the following guiding principles concerning the planning of parenthood.

1. A Christian husband and wife know that children are the natural and desirable fruit of their marriage in fulfillment of God's command, "Be fruitful and multiply."

2. Every child born into the world should be a wanted child. To be unwanted by its parents is a fate more cruel to the child than is poverty, low social standing, or nearly any other handicap.

3. Married couples have the freedom to plan and order their sexual relations that each child born to them will be wanted both for itself and in relation to the time of its birth. How the couple uses this freedom can properly be judged not by man but only by God.

4. The means which a married pair uses to determine the number and the spacing of the births of their children are a matter for them to decide with their own consciences, on the basis of competent medical advice and in a sense of accountability to God.

5. No moral merit or demerit can be attached to any of the medically approved methods for controlling the number and spacing of children. Whether the means used be those labeled "natural" or "artificial" is of far less importance than the spirit in which these means are used.

6. Continence in the marriage relationship, when its sole purpose is the selfish avoidance of pregnancy, is equally as wrong as is the use of contraception toward this same selfish goal. An over-abundant production of children without realistic regard to the responsibility involved may be as sinful and selfish as is the complete avoidance of parenthood.

7. Undue delay in beginning their families, or too great an interval between births, will be recognized by the Christian married pair as unwise for many reasons. The Christian couple also will realize the falseness of using economic and other materialistic excuses as the sole reason for limiting their acceptance of parental responsibilities.

8. Abortion must be regarded as the destruction of a living being, and except as a medical measure to save the mother's life will not be used by a Christian to avoid an unwanted birth. A Christian must come to accept the unintended pregnancy as a part of God's superior planning, and willingly welcome the new child as a gift from him.

9. A married couple desirous of children, but seemingly unable to have any of their own, should seek skilled medical counsel. Often such medical help will assist the couple to be fruitful in their marriage relationship.

10. In those cases where both husband and wife are shown to be fertile but unable to initiate pregnancy, the artificial insemination of the wife with her husband's semen, performed under the administration of a competent medical practitioner, may be justified.

11. Because of moral, and clouded legal, social, biological and psychological aspects, the conscientious Christian will avoid taking part in any portion of the process of artificial insemination where the semen of a man other than the wife's husband is used.

12. Sex relations outside of marriage, whether before an intended marriage or outside an established marriage bond, are a violation of God's will. The use of contraceptives by the unmarried "can indeed reduce the risk of an illegitimate child, but this changes the character of premarital relationship just as little as the fact that one party to adultery may be sterile changes the nature of adultery." (Quotation from letter by bishops of the Church of Sweden.)

13. The Christian Couple who find themselves unable to have children of their own may choose to adopt children through legitimate channels, or they may find constructive outlets for their interests in community services for the welfare of children. Much as they will regret their inability to have children, they will learn to accept this fact in their lives as God's way of directing them to some other sphere of useful service in His Kingdom.

14. When practiced in the spirit of love, of freedom, and of stewardship accountability to God, the conscientious planning for the number and spacing of the births of their children may bring the Christian husband and wife a sense of peace, of joy, and of contentment over their partnership with God in His creation of each new life entrusted to them.

* * * * *

"Does Your Child Feel at Home in His Own Home?"

By RUTH PECK MCLEOD.

Issued by the National Kindergarten Association.

Does your child feel at home in his own home? Is your house designed and decorated for adults only, or is it comfortable for little children?

All too often in the living room there is an easy chair by a good light for Dad to relax in and read, another for Mother to rest in and sew, but what about the juvenile members of the family? Do the youngsters all too frequently have to lie down on the floor or sit on the couch in a dark corner to look over the comics? Why should not each of them have a comfortable, well-lighted place to sit?

Are we inclined to keep our drapes drawn, our Venetian blinds closed, because of this dominant idea that the decorative effect must be "correct"? If we insist that upon certain occasions the windows be covered with curtains, why cannot they be equipped with convenient pull cords, so the children can draw them aside any time to read by daylight. Do we not need sunshine in our living room, the room the family is supposed to enjoy more than any other in the house? While it is true that our improved artificial illumination is excellent, why depend upon it during

(Continued on page 11.)

Youth at Work in the Church

REV. MAX VESTAL, R. 1, Asheboro, N. C.

Pleasant Union Helps to Build

The young people's Friendly Workers Class of the Pleasant Union Congregational Christian Church is probably one of the first Sunday school classes that pledged to the Church Building Loan Fund the entire quota for their church. In fact, this class pledged for the three-year period a total in excess of the amount suggested for the Pleasant Union Church. Congratulations, Friendly Workers!

* * * * *

Youth Fellowship Groups Sponsor Radio Program

The Youth Fellowship groups of the Spoon's Chapel and Pleasant Ridge churches have voted to help to sponsor a radio program to be presented on WGWR in Asheboro, N. C. The program will be called the Congregational Christian hour, and will run for thirteen weeks. The probable time will be 5 o'clock each Sunday afternoon. This program, under the direction of the Ministerial Association of the Western North Carolina Conference, will be a program of worship and inspiration, centered around the values and ideals that are peculiar to the Congregational Christian denomination.

* * * * *

Relax With Max

Jim: "My brother's been going about with half a shirt on his back."

Tim: "Where's the other half?"

Jim: "On the front, of course."

* * *

You know, often times when we hear something we may think that things are a lot worse than they really are. Now I haven't been getting any news from you. If I were the worrying sort, I might think that you were dead. But I sorta believe that you and your group are still alive and making news. Why don't you send it in? Don't worry about writing it up pretty. I don't. Just let us know what your group is doing. That's the important thing.

* * *

A Frenchman was relating his experience in studying the English language. He said, "When I first discovered that if I was quick, I was fast; that if I was tied, I was fast; if I spent too freely, I was fast; and that not to eat was to fast; I was discouraged. But when I came across the sentence, 'The first one won one one-dollar prize,' I gave up trying."

* * *

"Sir, when you eat here, you do not need to dust off the plate."

"Beg pardon, force of habit. I'm an umpire."

* * *

It keeps its head;
It doesn't fly off the handle;
It keeps pounding away;
It makes mistakes, but when it does it starts all over.
It is the only knocker in the world that does any good.

It's a Hammer!

* * *

The longer you gaze on an obstacle, the bigger it becomes.

My Minister Friend

*My church is such a friendly place
I always like to go.*

*And there I like to see my friend,
The minister, you know.*

He's jolly and he smiles a lot;

He's kind as kind can be.

"And how's my charming friend today?"

That's what he says to me.

*Our church is such a happy place,
Where friends and families gather
To sing, to pray, hear stories too,
And work and play together.*

CHARLES HARTER (age 11).

FOR THE CHILDREN.

(Continued from page 10.)

the day, when Nature has furnished a light so much softer on the eyes!

When we select our furnishings do we not need to take into consideration that where there are children—or a dear bride and groom, where there are likely to be little ones—the furniture and upholstery should be of a practical nature? A cream-colored rug, a white satin sofa and similar delicate furnishings are out of place where there are tiny tots. Can we not still have our decor "correct"—and after all who is to determine what is "correct" where there are children, the decorator or the child-welfare specialist?—even if the slip covers are of a substantial character which will withstand washing, are also of a darker hue or a well-covered pattern which will not show every finger print, and are not of such a fragile nature that if the youngster feels like dropping onto the couch for a few minutes he can do so?

Are our windows sealed tight with papers, or purposely fastened so securely that they cannot be opened without great effort to let in the beneficial fresh air and sunshine? Think of the houses you have visited. Can you not recall that there were too few that looked really liveable, where children enjoyed their homes to the fullest extent? Have you not stayed in "model homes" where you were afraid you might damage the delicate upholstery, scratch the over-polished furniture, or put something out of place? Perhaps, in some cases, the hostess tried to pretend that she did not mind if you opened the windows at night and let the luxurious curtains be blown by the refreshing breezes, but you could sense that she preferred by far that you sleep in a closed room, so stuffy that you felt as though you were sleeping in a hermetically sealed compartment!

It may be that the term a "correctly decorated home" has been misinterpreted, distorted, so as to assert that her home comply only with the rigid rules of art and design, instead of also being in accordance with the conditions that make for the health and happiness of the family. Should not the "correctness" of the decor be contingent, too, upon the age of the occupants? Need our homes be unattractive merely because they are planned to provide for the well-being of every member of the household? Cannot they furnish comfort and still be in keeping with good taste? Have you not seen nursery schools, even boys' dormitories, decorated in a most effective manner with durable hangings, serviceable spreads, and substantial furniture? Such rooms looked most inviting, because they suggested one could relax and be comfortable there without constant fear of damaging the furnishings.

Shall we be persuaded to have interiors so elegant that we must send our children to damp, dark basements or to hot, stuffy attics to play, as a confession that our homes were not designed for the welfare of the youngsters but that these "correctly" decorated homes are nearly to look at rather than to live in!

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE, D. D.

"Living As Christians"

LESSON VII—MAY 17, 1953.

MEMORY SELECTION: "God has not destined us for wrath, but to obtain salvation through Jesus Christ, who died for us, that whether we wake or sleep, we might have faith in him."—I Thessalonians 5:9-10.

LESSON: I Thessalonians 1:1; 5:1-11, 14-21.

DEVOTIONAL READING: Rev. 3:14-22.

First Thessalonians is the first of Paul's letters to be preserved in the New Testament, and the oldest, or first of all the books written, which were placed and preserved in the New Testament! It may surprise many people to know that it was written before any of the Gospels were written. But this is a fact. The letters of Paul to the Thessalonians are very valuable, therefore, for they are nearest to the life of the early Church, and give us an insight into the faith and life of the early Christians and the early Church.

They are very practical letters, written to answer certain personal and practical problems in the lives of the Christians in Thessalonica. They contain much practical help for solving many of the problems of the churches of our day. Today's lesson is concerned with two main problems: The Second Coming of Christ; and Christian Living.

The Second Coming of Christ

There is no doubt that the early Christians expected the Lord Jesus Christ to come again, to return to the earth to establish His Kingdom, and to reign as King. And at first, they expected Him to come at once, in their own lifetime. Indeed some of the Thessalonian Christians thought that His Coming was so immediate that they stopped work, and awaited His Coming. Generally speaking there were two attitudes, however, concerning this great event: feverish restlessness and anticipation; and careless indifference. It was to correct both of these evils that Paul wrote.

To those who believed that Christ's Return was imminent and immediate, and who were filled with feverish and even fanatic anticipation, Paul counseled calmness and watchfulness. It is to be noted that Paul agrees with these Christians that Christ is to come again, and with them he evidently, at least at first in his ministry, believes that Christ is to come soon. But he does not presume to know actually when Christ is coming. To him, as indeed to our Lord Himself—Jesus said of that day and of that hour no man knoweth, not even the Son—the exact time was unknown. That was in the hands of the Father Himself. But come He would, and men should be prepared for it. They were to be calm, they were to be watchful, they were to be prepared. It was as foolish as it was fatal not to be prepared for it. But it was just as foolish, even if not as fatal, to live in feverish expectancy, and to be fanatical about that great event. That day was to come "as a thief in the night." It was an unknown, and unknowable event. But they were to be "sober, putting on the breastplate of faith and love, and for a helmet, the hope of salvation." They were to go about their daily work, sustained by the faith that in the death of Christ God had provided for their salvation, and that whether they "wake or sleep" they were to live together with him. They were therefore to "build each other up" and to encourage one another.

Today, as then, there are those who are always talking about "the Second Coming of Christ." And in many cases the doctrine has been confused by many fantastic creations of fancy and fiction. And there are others who are careless and indifferent toward this great and certain event. But there are many others, who believing in it, and cherishing it, go about their appointed tasks, serene of spirit, and watchful in attitude, sustained by the faith that whether in the immediate future, or in the far-off future, whether in this life or in the life to come, they shall live with Him.

Concerning Christian Living

The second half of today's lesson is concerned with rules for Christian living. It contains so many that extended comment on each one is impossible. Let us glance at some of them. "Admonish the disorderly"—

Christians should not be unwilling to reprove those who are disorderly, but they are to do it in a spirit of meekness, considering whether they themselves might not also be tempted, as Paul says in another place. "Encourage the fainthearted"—how the world needs men like Barnabas, sons of encouragement, to speak a word of encouragement once in a while. "Support the weak"—we who are strong ought to bear one another's burdens and so fulfill Christ's law of love. "Be longsuffering toward all"—how we need patience in dealing with all men!

"See that none renders unto any one evil for evil, but always follow that which is good, one toward another, and toward all." Toward all men, not simply toward our own families and our inner circle of friends. It is an echo of the Golden Rule, pronounced by Christ Himself.

"Rejoice always." Develop those reservoirs of the spirit of joy that will enable you to rejoice in all the experiences of life. This does not mean, of course, that one can go through life always grinning and wearing a smile. It does mean that in Christ there are reservoirs of joy that the world cannot give and cannot take away.

"Pray without ceasing." Prayer is not to be spasmodic. It is not to be given up if we do not get an answer immediately. But it is to be a constant temper of mind, a fixed attitude of spirit, a permanent quality of life.

"In everything give thanks." The spirit of gratitude and of thanksgiving is also to be a permanent quality of one's life. One who is conscious of God's blessings can always find that for which to be thankful. And "this is the will of God concerning us."

"Quench not the Spirit." We are to keep sensitive to the Spirit of God, to obey the Spirit, to feed the Spirit, to fan it into flame. We are, as Moffat says to "Maintain the spiritual glow."

"Despise not prophesyings." We are to listen to the utterances of God's messengers, for He speaks through them. Not always, and not infallibly. But one is to prove all things, and to hold fast to that which is good.

"Abstain from every form of evil." There were many forms of evil in the world of that day, as there are in the world of our day. Christians are to abstain from every form of evil. There are too many members of the church who are hurting the church and hindering their own spiritual growth by partaking in things that are unclean and evil. We are to walk worthy of our high calling in Christ Jesus.

Based on "International Sunday School Lessons," Copyrighted 1951 by Division of Christian Education, National Council of the Churches in the U. S. A.

THE SERVICE OF YOUTH.
(Continued from page 5.)

ing in eternal punishment. One woman cried to the Lord from below for release from the torture. And he said: "If you can name one kind deed you ever did in your life on earth—one unselfish deed done to someone who needed your help—you may come into heaven." She then recalled that once, on earth, she had given a handful of green onions from her garden to a hungry beggar, to add to his meagre fare of dry bread. "Very good," said the kind Father, "you may come up to the realm of bliss. Hold out those onions, and you will be pulled up with them into heaven." And it was so. Angelic hands reached down to pull her from the fire of burning. But as she was being lifted, other souls in agony clung to her feet, seeking also to be saved. Fighting them off, she cried, "Go away, it was my onions, not yours. You can't be saved by my gift." And with that she dropped back into the fire; and the Lord said in a sad voice: "Go back where you belong. You cannot be saved alone. You must be saved with others, always."

III.—Youth values the training in the service of the faith. Religion must be learned—learned in practice. A great Christian thinker said that the worshipping congregation is not a body of spectators, watching what is going on before it: the minister, the choir, the liturgy. It is the other way around. God is the spectator. He is watching the congregation. He wants to see that the congregation is shaping its life and faith in the religion that is being proclaimed and professed. He judges the worshipper in the measure by which he accepts his Son's religion and lives thereby.

Youth knows that it must learn—learn by doing; learn in growing service. Youth knows that Christianity was first called "The Way"—the Way of the Christ. And that it always will remain "The Way." Youth prays that God will bless young lives as they set their feet in that way and walk in it unto the end. Youth prays for itself and seeks God's blessing upon the Church.

CHURCH WOMEN AT WORK.
(Continued from page 9.)

- Life Memberships and Memorials*—Mrs. T. G. Humphries.
- Literature*—Miss Pattie Lee Coghill.
- Interdenominational Cooperation*—Mrs. H. E. Robinson.
- Family Life*—Mrs. J. S. Rollings, Sr.
- Visual Aids*—Mrs. Harry Nelson.
- Cradle Roll*—Mrs. Carl Wallace.
- Children*—Mrs. Robert L. House.
- Young People*—Mrs. W. M. Stevens.

SOME IMPORTANT VOTES
Besides adopting reports and electing officers, there were several important matters voted on at the Women's Convention.

- 1. Thank Offering for 1953 to go work on Mindanao in the Philippines started by Dr. Frank Laubach.
- 2. Life Memberships and Memorials for biennium to continue to go to Franklinton Center, with entire amount to be considered a memorial to Robert Lee House.
- 3. Friendly Service gifts to go to Puerto Rico, in addition to continuation of gifts to Miss Oline Nicholson, the Christian Orphanage, etc.
- 4. The Staley Memorial Fund, amounting to $7,100.00, is turned over to Elon College to be administered as are their other scholarship funds, the interest being used to assist worthy students, preferably those who plan to enter full-time Christian service.
- 5. The remainder of the Timothy Chang Fund held by the Mission Board and that held by the Woman's Board to be combined and held by the Southern Convention Mission Board (total about $1,200.00) until the day when Timothy can go back to China.

FACES
Faces are fascinating things—and many interesting ones were seen at the Women's Convention. Rev. and Mrs. William Q. McKnight, Mrs. James Hess, and Mrs. Richard Jackson reflected in their faces the light of Jesus as it shines in the far places of the earth.

Familiar faces were those of past presidents of the Women's Convention—Mrs. W. R. Sellars of Burlington, Mrs. John G. Truitt of Elon College, and Mrs. W. E. Wisseman and Mrs. O. H. Paris of Greensboro. It was especially pleasing to see the latter, as illness has kept her from attending some meetings recently.

One face, belonging to a person known and beloved by all the women, was that of Pattie Lee Coghill—though many of her friends were urging her to "take it easy" for a while so that "tired look" would disappear.

Many faces were missing that we would have liked to have seen, among them a past president, Mrs. J. A. Williams, who sent greetings, and Mrs. J. Rollie Gayle, chairman of the nominating committee. The face that most persons missed, probably, was that of the president of the North Carolina Conference, Mrs. W. T. Scott. She was not far away, but confined to a hospital bed. From there her prayers reached out to the meeting—and our prayers reached out to her. We hope her smiling face will not be absent from our women's meetings again.

Quarterly Report of Treasurer of Woman's Convention

The following is the Treasurer's Report of the Woman's Missionary Convention of the Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches, for the first quarter, first year, biennium 1953-1955:

Receipts.
North Carolina Conference:
Women	$ 1,788.63
Juniors	34.18
Cradle Roll	68.84
	$ 1,891.65
Virginia Valley Conference:
Women	$ 124.95
Eastern Virginia Conference:
Women	$ 1,244.72
Young People	162.07
Juniors	103.25
Cradle Roll	25.02
	$ 1,535.06
Total	$ 3,551.06
Disbursements.
Home Missions:
General Fund	$ 1,586.91
Young People's ...	81.03
Thank Offering:
Carroll County Va.	321.87
	$ 1,989.81
Foreign Missions:
General Fund	$ 1586.91
Young People's ...	81.04
Village School for Girls, South India	9.00
Relief and Reconstruction, Children's Fund	40.00
	$ 1,716.95
Check George D. Colclough, Treas. S. C. C.
	$ 3,151.66
Check Mrs. Leathers, 6 Life Memberships, 4 Memorials
	100.00
	$ 3,251.66
Balance in Bank	300.00
	$ 3,551.66
Mrs. W. V. Leathers, Treasurer.

The Orphanage

J. G. TRUITT, Superintendent

Dear Friends:

There is anxiety on our orphanage campus about one of our thirteen year old boys, Thurman Arnold. He has been in the Alamance County Hospital, Burlington, N. C., for a week and is real sick. He has a very bad heart condition. Thurman has many friends both at the orphanage and among people who know him through our efforts here. We hope he will soon be much improved, but at present he is giving us great concern. He is a good patient and we ask of you your prayers. He has one brother and three sisters here.

Most of our corn and much of our garden is planted, and this morning a gentle rain is beginning to fall. We do hope and pray our crops will be good this year, and that the season will be right for their growing. We take a pride in our gardens and farm. On them we depend for much of our food for the children, and all our feed for the dairy, the cattle, hogs and chickens. Our grain crop looks good.

Twenty-three churches have helped us during the week of the above report for the amount of $507.95. When reading our reports please bear in mind that while they are made, for instance, on April 30, they really chronicle the facts for April 23, except in the "special offerings" column. The money is collected and deposited one week from the Convention office, and next week it shows up in our report. Therefore give an extra week of patience if you are looking for your report in THE SUN. and, by the way, that reminds me to thank you for the many pleasant things you say about reading our report in our church paper each week. We greatly appreciate your kindness, and wish a much larger number had access to THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

It was a joy to see so many friends at the Woman's Convention this week in Burlington. We appreciate more than I can tell you what the women of the churches are doing for the Kingdom of God in the local communities. The women dispatch their business in the church, the conferences, and the convention in a very businesslike and effective way. They do much for every enterprise of the church. They do very much for the orphanage. I am most thankful.

Children from the third grade in school to the twelfth are served their noon meal in cafeteria style in the kitchen. They are not released from school at the same time on account of the school's arrangement with their own luncheon service. What a happy group they are as they file into the kitchen where the matrons are waiting to see that every child has all he wants of good nourishing food. It is most interesting to see them telling some bit of school news in pairs or groups to their matrons. Occasionally I eat with them, and always I hear tales of success in some class or lesson. When I eat with them, I eat just before they get there, because I know that when they begin to come in I will be too busy hearing their reports. Its nice to think both the children and the matrons are pleased when I eat with them. The first and second grades eat at school. The school and orphanage properties are separated by the railroad. We are on the "sunny-side of the tracks" our children say. We like it that way, and hope for each child a loving remembrance of the days when they lived on the sunny-side in a big fine family.

JOHN G. TRUITT,
Superintendent.

REPORT FOR APRIL 30, 1953.

Commodities for the week.

Mrs. J. A. Campbell, Burlington, N. C., Clothing.
Mrs. T. A. Lamm, Burlington, N. C., Clothing.
Garland F. Huffman, Burlington, N. C., Socks.
10th Grade Girls' Glee Club, Walter Williams High School, Burlington, N. C., Cookies.

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

Amount brought forward	$ 5,484.62
Eastern N. C. Conference:
Fuller's Chapel	$ 6.00
Mt. Herman	10.00
Pleasant Union	50.00
Plymouth S. S.—Special ..	10.00
Shallow Well (for Ann Kinch)	5.00
Turner's Chapel	42.00
Wake Chapel	57.25
Wentworth (for Helen Watkins)	20.00
	200.00
Eastern Va. Conference:
Antioch S. S.	$ 7.65
Bethlehem (Nans) S. S. (for Woodie Byrd) ...	17.64
Eure	26.36
Newport News S. S.	17.50
Little Creek—Special ...	50.00
Portsmouth, First S. S. .	10.34
Windsor S. S.	10.00
	139.49
N. C. and Va. Conference:
Concord S. S.—Special ..	$ 12.44
Greensboro, First—Special	5.00
Greensboro, Palm St.—Special	89.70
Mt. Zion S. S.	8.65
	115.79
Western N. C. Conference:
Pleasant Cross S. S.	$ 12.45
Pleasant Grove	10.00
Pleasant Ridge	5.00
	24.45
Virginia Valley Conference:
Newport S. S.	$ 24.97
	24.97
Total	$ 507.95
Grand Total	$ 5,992.57

Special Offerings.

Amount brought forward	$ 7,998.10
Henry V. Harman, High View, W. Va.	$ 1.00
New Hope Christian S. S., Roanoke, Ala.	3.94
Mr. & Mrs. H. W. Scott, Graham, N. C., in memory of Mr. & Mrs. J. Dolph Long	5.00

(Continued on page 15.)

MEMORIAL GIFTS

"Instead of Flowers"

Dr. John G. Truitt
Christian Orphanage
Elon College, N. C.

Dear Dr. Truitt:

Please acknowledge the enclosed $..... as a memorial gift sent to the Christian Orphanage in lieu of flowers in memory of:

(Name of Deceased)

(City)

(Date of Death)

(Survivor to be Written)

(Address)

Name.....

Address.....

In Memoriam

LONG.

A noble life ended when Miss Lillian Long slipped quietly away in her sleep on February 16th after an illness of several months.

Miss Long was the daughter of the late Sidney and Ella Poythress Long. She was born in Orange county and educated in the county schools, and later taught in these schools. She changed her career from teaching to secretarial work, graduating from Draughan's Business College in Atlanta. She came to the University here in 1918 and held responsible positions with the following: L. R. Wilson, librian; Fred Koch, dramatics; N. W. Walker, education; and Herman Baity. In 1938 she took a job with the Hospital Saving Association where she served as head of the records department till her illness.

She was a faithful member of the Congregational Christian Church and a member of the choir. She was loved and held in highest esteem by a host of friends in Chapel Hill and throughout the state. She will be remembered by her faithfulness to duty, devotion to her family, and kindness to all.

RICHARD L. JACKSON,
Pastor.

JOYNER.

Mr. Jesse Joyner departed this life on December 15, 1952. We the members of Bethlehem Christian Church wish to pay tribute to his memory.

Therefore be it resolved:

- 1. That God's way is always best.
- 2. That we extend to his loved ones our love and prayerful sympathy and commend them to the God of love and mercy.

Mrs. EDGAR SAVAGE,
Mrs. TOM POOLE,
Mrs. ALICE BRIDGER,
Committee.

JOYNER.

We, The members of Bethlehem Christian Church wish to pay tribute to the memory of Mrs. Josephine Rawles Joyner, who departed this life December 18, 1952. She had been a faithful companion and nurse to her husband throughout his illness and who preceded her in death just three days.

Therefore be it resolved:

- 1. That we bow in humble submission to the will of our Heavenly Father.
- 2. That we extend our love and sympathy to her family and pray God's blessings may comfort them.

Mrs. EDGAR SAVAGE,
Mrs. TOM POOLE,
Mrs. ALICE BRIDGER,
Committee.

NORFLEET.

Mrs. Lillian Ashley Norfleet passed away at her home November 13, 1952 after a long illness.

Whereas Almighty God has taken from our fold our dear member to the home on high, where all tears are wiped away and where the just shall reign forever and be rewarded according to their works.

Therefore be it resolved:

- 1. That we resign our will to the will of him who doeth all things well.
- 2. That we extend our deepest sympathy to her family and commend them to the comforter who said "Let not your hearts be troubled."

Mrs. EDGAR SAVAGE,
Mrs. TOM POOLE,
Mrs. ALICE BRIDGER,
Committee.

BENTON.

The passing of Mr. Bennie T. Benton on January 17, 1953 brought to an end a life that had been of unusual value to his community. He was truly a good neighbor doing whatever he could for his fellowman. He had been a member of Bethlehem Christian Church for a number of years and we deeply mourn the loss of this friend and member.

Therefore be it resolved:

- 1. That we relize God doeth all things well and bow in humble submission to his will.
- 2. That we rejoice in the triumph of his

THE ORPHANAGE.

(Continued from page 14.)

Dr. & Mrs. W. C. Goley, Graham, N. C., in mem- ory of Mr. & Mrs. J. Dolph Long	10.00
Mr. & Mrs. Allen E. Gant, Burlington, N. C., in memory of J. Dolph Long	10.00
Special Gifts	115.00
	144.94
Grand total	$ 8,143.04
Total for the week	$ 652.89
	$14,135.61

release from the burden of pain to enter into life more abundant to be forever with the Lord.

Mrs. EDGAR SAVAGE,
Mrs. TOM POOLE,
Mrs. ALICE BRIDGER,
Committee.

THE CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCH BUILDING
LOAN FUND

Declaration of Purpose

We believe that it is of overwhelming importance to help in the erection of church buildings to meet the needs of America's unchurched millions and to provide a place where children may receive training in the basic principles of Christianity.

We acknowledge with gratitude the generous assistance in church building financial aid already received by many churches of the Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches. We further realize that our own financial resources without aid from our Church Building Society will be inadequate to meet the needs of our churches of this area. We gladly join our Congregational Christian Churches of America in support of the Church Building Fund Campaign.

We are pleased to report that our church, at a meeting of the members held the day of, 195.., voted to co-operate in the Church Building Fund Campaign of the Congregational Christian Churches and accepted a goal of $.....

It was agreed that our church would seek to reach this goal by:
(Check below the statement which applies to your church.)

- [] 1. A special solicitation of our church to be held the week beginning, 195.., in which we will endeavor to secure a pledge from each member of the church.
- [] 2. By seeking a pledge from each member of the church for this purpose at the time of our regular every member canvass to be held the week of, 195..
- [] 3. By including each year in our budget, for years, the sum of $....., which will be paid in quarterly installments of $....., beginning, 195..
- [] 4. By annual solicitation each year for years.

..... Church

By Secretary or Clerk
Address

..... Pastor Treasurer

NOTE.—Mail "Declaration of Purpose" to the Southern Convention Office, Elon College, N. C. Make checks payable to The Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches, designated "Church Building Fund" and mail to Elon College, N. C. Payments should be completed not later than March 1, 1956.

Mother--the Family--the Home

We found the following forceful statement in an old "Federal Council Bulletin":

"The season marked by 'Mother's Day' suggests an emphasis on the family as a whole. Although there is no more worthy sentiment than love for mothers, the observance of 'Mother's Day' has been over-sentimentalized and at the same time over-commercialized. An even better reason for a broadened emphasis is that mothers themselves are most happy when the ties of the family as a whole are strengthened.

"In a disturbed and chaotic world, good homes create little areas of inner security. When home life is chaotic and family ties cannot be relied upon, the result is a haunting unrest in the lives of men and women, and equally disastrous effects upon children. On the other hand, there is both joy and strength when members of the family live in close fellowship.

"A keener consciousness of the family will exert a helpful influence upon the social mind. Discussion of social matters often slights the family unit and presents society as an aggregation of individuals disturbed by conflicting interests of classes. When we focus attention more definitely on the home, we become more sensitive to the human meaning of the social situation as a whole, for we think of others in terms of their most vital interests and of those concerns in which they are most like ourselves. As for the world situation, a new family-mindedness seems to be one of the conditions of salvation from the woes which threaten to engulf us. All that can be said about the disastrous effects of broken homes can be applied equally to the effects upon personality of a broken world."

The late beloved Chaplain H. E. Rountree, in a meditation on Mother's Day, had this to say:

"Mother's Day has come to be an expression of the blessings of love in the world, of the homes of the world, of the love to God, and of the salvation of the world.

"Home is mother's true kingdom, a kingdom where she is strongest and where her love finds its greatest expression; where she holds in her hands, as a sacred trust, the highest good and the happiness of the hearts that nestle there. It is she who has given the homes of the world their atmosphere and made them the stabilizer of humanity."

The CHRISTIAN SUN

ORGAN OF THE SOUTHERN CONVENTION OF CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES

In Essentials Unity — In Non-Essentials, Liberty, — In All Things, Charity

VOLUME CV

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, MAY 14, 1953

NUMBER 20

A Message for Pentecost

May 24, 1953

FROM THE PRESIDENTS of the WORLD COUNCIL of CHURCHES

AS PRESIDENTS of the World Council of Churches we greet once again the Churches which participate in the World Council of Churches and request their congregations and members to join wholeheartedly in prayer for the Church Universal, trusting in Our Lord's promise that the Heavenly Father will give the Holy Spirit to those who ask Him.

As we celebrate on Whitsunday the first coming of the Holy Spirit upon the assembled Church of Christ, let us remember especially the words of St. Paul: "There are varieties of gifts, but the same Spirit." These words describe an essential and Godgiven characteristic of the Church and of its unity. There is in the Church of Christ a wonderful variety. It is one of the joys of our world-wide fellowship to discover the manifold richness of God's work among men. We are meant to learn from each other and to receive inspiration from the zeal of Churches which fulfill their evangelistic mission, from the courage of Churches which render their witness in spite of persecution. And as our fellowship becomes more truly world-wide, we should all be enriched by the diverse spiritual gifts which God has given to the members of His family in order that they may share them with all.

But variety is not the last word. Beyond and above variety there must be unity. Though all the varied gifts of the spirit displayed in the Church Universal have their origin and power in the activity of One and the same Holy Spirit of God, yet they do not achieve their full effectiveness for Christ unless and until they operate within a fellowship, in which every division is overcome by the Unity of Christ. We walk in fellowship and we must pray for the fellowship which we do not yet possess. We must submit ourselves to the Holy Spirit so that our Churches and ourselves may be renewed, so that we may be enabled, not only to stay together but to go forward together, and so that we may give a common witness to the world of the one Christ our Saviour and His peace and justice which it so sorely needs.

Let us then pray on this Whitsunday for the coming of the Spirit upon all Churches everywhere. Let us pray that we may learn increasingly to live in the fellowship of the Holy Spirit.

News Flashes

Mrs. H. Shelton Smith of Durham, N. C., was elected president of the Duke Hospital Women's Auxiliary last week.

Please do not send news notes or other items for THE SUN to Southern Pines, as Mrs. House will be leaving there the first of next week.

A meeting of the Board of Publications has been called by Rev. D. N. Vore, chairman, for Tuesday, May 26, at 10 a. m., in the Suffolk Christian Church. If you have constructive suggestions and will send them in, they will be given consideration.

During the month of May, the morning services at Christian Temple in Norfolk, Virginia, are being broadcast over Station WTAR. If you are unable to attend your own church service, and are near enough Norfolk, you will be amply repaid if you tune in on these services of worship.

Following up last week's emphasis on family life, we are beginning in this issue a series of four meditations by Rev. Henry E. Robinson, the pastor of the First Christian Church, Burlington, North Carolina. THE SUN is glad to share these stimulating articles with its readers.

At the meeting of the Henderson, N. C., Kiwanis Club this week, a talk on "Principles of the Congregational Christian Church" was given by the Rev. William A. Grissom, pastor of the Liberty, Vance, Church. He was presented to the club by H. B. Newman, program chairman for the evening.

"What Are Other Denominations Doing?"

One of the questions most frequently heard during our Church Building Loan Fund Campaign is, "What are other denominations doing?"

A helpful and revealing answer to that question has recently been published by the Committee on the Raising Funds by Denominational Boards which conducted a survey of Protestant denominations regarding fund raising campaigns for church extension and new church development.

(Continued on page 11.)

Churches Around the World Will Observe Pentecost

Many of our churches will join with churches throughout the world on May 24 in celebrating one of the oldest and most important of religious festivals—Pentecost. This year, for the first time in six years, the date coincides in the Roman and Gregorian calendars, so that Anglican, Eastern Orthodox, Catholic, and Protestant churches will celebrate the same day.

Pentecost (also called Whitsunday because many of the early Christians wore white clothes for baptism at this season) ranks with Christmas and Easter as the third great festival of the Christian year. It was long regarded as the happiest season of the church calendar but then, for some reason, fell into neglect in many of the non-liturgical churches. In recent years there has been a revival of interest in almost all churches, coupled with an appreciation of the ecumenical significance of the day. The account in the second chapter of the Book of Acts states that the Holy Spirit came when Christ's followers were gathered together "with one accord."

On Pentecost Sunday, May 24, 1953, there will be a new approach to this ideal of "one accord" as many pastors throughout the world read from their pulpits the Pentecost Message as issued by the World Council of Churches, emphasizing the worldwide fellowship of the Christian Church and its "unity in diversity."

The presidents of the World Council of Churches, who signed the message, are: Archbishop Athenagoras of Thyateira, Greek Orthodox; Bishop Eivind Berggrav, Primate of Norway; Pastor Mare Boegner, Reformed Church, France; Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, Archbishop of Canterbury; Miss Sarah Chakko, Syrian Orthodox, India; and Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam, Methodist Church, U. S. A. Also signing the message was Dr. John R. Mott, American layman and Honorary President of the Council. The World Council of Churches includes 161 major communions. Thirty-one American communions are members, including almost all the major denominations.

How Pentecost Began.

In the ancient Jewish calendar, the Pentecost festival was dedicated to gratitude to God for the gift to Noah of the "Covenant"—a promise of an orderly sequence of events in the physical universe. Later, the celebration of the Feast of Weeks was associated with the giving of the Law to Moses at Mt. Sinai. It is this Jewish festival that makes much of hospitality to the stranger.

The Christian Pentecost originated when the little Christian community of Jerusalem (120 people) gathered together fifty days after the Resurrection. According to the Book of Acts, the Holy Spirit descended upon them "in tongues of fire" and some 3,000 converts to the new religion were baptized.

Emphasis on World Assembly.

Uppermost in the minds of the member churches of the World Council of Churches at the present time is their Second Assembly, to be held at Northwestern University, Evanston, Illinois, in August, 1954. This Evanston meeting has been described as probably the most important church gathering that America will witness in this generation. There will be 600 delegates, officially chosen by the member churches; 150 consultants, chosen from among the leading theologians of the countries represented in the World Council; and a youth delegation of about 100. There will also be 600 official visitors, and it is expected that a large group of press representatives, both church and secular, from this and other countries, will report the proceedings.

The general theme of this Second Assembly of the World Council of Churches is "Christ—the Hope of the World." Among the sub-themes will be subjects aimed at focusing the assembly's thinking on the church's responsible place in the world situation in which it exists. Subjects to be discussed include "The Responsible Society in a World Perspective"; "Christians in the Struggle for World Community"; "The Church Amid Racial and Ethnic Tensions"; "The Christian in His Vocation."

A special program is being arranged for unofficial visitors who will be in the Chicago area at the time of the assembly. They will be welcomed to certain open meetings of the regular sessions and to a great public worship service to be held at Soldier Field on the opening Sunday of the assembly. The Chicago Art Institute will have a special exhibition of Christian art and the Chicago Symphony will give a special ecumenical concert of Christian church music. In addition, while the study and busi-

(Continued on page 7.)

Laymen and the Church . . .

J. Earl Danieley, Editor, Box 515, Elon College, N. C.

Winston-Salem Laymen Report

The Laymen's Fellowship of the Winston-Salem Congregational Christian Church entertained 45 people at its annual "Ladies' Night" in the church basement on Tuesday, May 5, at 6 o'clock.

A delicious chicken dinner was prepared and served by Mr. Fred Tubbs, who has become well known for his cuisine artistry.

Mrs. J. R. Andres planned the program, which consisted of three one-act skits designed to show the necessity of religion in the home. "Grace at the Table" was done by the Raymond Binkley family; "The Worship Center in the Home," by the John W. Kinney family, and "Using the Bible in the Home," by the W. J. Andes family.

The laymen elected the following officers for the next year: John T. Johnson, president; L. G. Reich, vice-president, and Irvin Kelly, secretary-treasurer.

LILLIAN D. MEREDITH,
Church Reporter.

* * * * *

Attendance Award in W. N. C.

The Western North Carolina Conference Laymen's Fellowship is using the Laymen's Bell for an attendance award. The church having the best attendance at the rallies is awarded the Bell. They take it back to their church and use it at the local meetings until the next rally. Then it must be brought to the rally, and the competition is held again. The attendance award seems to create an interest in larger attendance; many of the churches are sending large delegations.

The Albemarle Church won the attendance award at the rally in Bennett. They are to be commended for their fine work under the leadership of Ardell Simmons, who is also the Vice-chairman of the Conference Laymen's Fellowship.

The next rally will be held at Coleridge, with Union Grove as the host church, on May 30. An interesting program is being planned. The Rev. Richard Jackson, who is now serving as pastor of the church in Chapel Hill and who is a returned missionary from China, will speak and will show some of the pictures which he made while in China.

A more complete announcement will be made later concerning this meeting according to S. H. Pell, who is president of the group.

* * * * *

Report from Elon Laymen

The Laymen's Fellowship of the Elon College Community Church is headed by J. L. Pierce. The group usually has three meetings each year. These meetings are dinner meetings and are attended by from 35 to 50 men. Two meetings have been held this year. The first one was held just prior to the Every Member Canvass for the purpose of interpreting the church budget. The second meeting was held in connection with Religious Emphasis Week, and the group heard an address by Dr. Wofford C. Timmons.

The Cupboard Is Bare

Twenty-five per cent of the requests for aid from our churches were turned down at a recent Church Building Committee meeting — no money. The total requests exceeded by $135,472 the amount available in the present Loan Fund for church building. But because the Loan Fund revolves the committee was able to help our churches to the extent of $178,160. The refusals amounted to $156,460.

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr
A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom as represented by the Congregational Christian Churches.

Our Principles

1. The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
2. Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
3. The Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
4. Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and church membership.
5. The right of private judgment and liberty of conscience is a privilege that should be accorded to and exercised by all.

Managing Editor John T. Kernodle

Departmental Editors—Convention, Wm. T. Scott; Missions, F. C. Lester; Women's Work, Mrs. F. C. Lester; Young People's Work, Max Vestal; Children, Mrs. R. L. House; Sunday School Lesson, H. S. Hardcastle.

Institutional Representatives—Elon College, L. E. Smith; The Christian Orphanage, John G. Truitt.

Board of Publications—Duane Vore, Chairman, S. T. Holland, Secretary; R. C. Helfenstein, S. E. Madren, W. W. Snyder, G. D. Colclough, Treasurer, ex officio.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Year $3.00
Two Years 5.00

Published by the Board of Publications of The Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches, Inc. Printed every Thursday except the last in June and December by Central Publishing Co., Inc., Richmond, Va.

Entered as second-class matter at the Post Office at Richmond Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

General contributions should be addressed to the editor at Southern Pines, N. C., and should reach him by Wednesday of the week preceding date of publication.

Departmental material should be sent to the proper departmental editor, at the address shown on their page.

All other material and business communications except regarding subscriptions should be sent to the Office of Publication, 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond 19, Va.

The Christian Sun Subscription Blank

Subscription Price: 1 year, $3.00; 2 years, $5.00

Date 195 . . .

Dr. Wm. T. Scott, Supt.,
Elon College, N. C.

Enclosed find $ for which please send The Christian Sun
() 1 year, () 2 years — () New Subscription, () Renewal.

To

Address

Who is a member of Church

() Renew, () Enter my own subscription for () 1 year, () 2 years.

My Name

My Address

From the EDITORIAL Viewpoint

Muck-Raking vs. Eulogizing

By ROY C. HELFENSTEIN

Eulogizing portrays the characters of those eulogized. Muck-raking portrays the characters of those who thus engage themselves.

It is the practice of some writers to try to throw a shadow over the characters of the great and good men of the past, and thus they try to bring the best and the greatest of men down to the low level of their own questionable lives. This practice is nothing more than muck-raking, which evidences either a diseased mind or an inferiority complex.

Such writers will take the life of a man like George Washington or Abraham Lincoln and play up imaginary weaknesses in their lives. Putting question marks after the living or the dead is the vicious tactics of distorted minds. Such a practice is absolutely un-American.

If such writers could make as big a contribution to American history as the men have made against whom they write, we could easily forgive the offense. But what pigmies in comparison—how insignificant along side the great lives that they seek to besmirch! And when such defamers pass from off the stage of action, they will soon be forgotten—so little have they contributed to the world's good. Yet characters like Washington, Franklin and Lincoln whom they have tried to bring down to their own low level are lovingly remembered a century and more after they passed from labor to reward, and will continue to be remembered for centuries to come. Likely not a hundred people know when the muck-raking authors' birthdays come. People do not know the month or the year of their birth—nor do they care.

These attempts to discount the greatness of a great life—to sling mud upon the names of good and honorable men; this practice of muck-raking reveals a morbid attitude and a warped life on the part of the writer who thus seeks to give expression to his diseased and over-ly-active imagination.

It is a coward's practice to besmirch the character of the dead, because the dead have no chance to make defense. Recently a young writer of the muck-raking type attempted to defame the character of Honorable William E. Gladstone, the celebrated English statesman of the past generation. But it happened that this particular writer made his attempt at defamation too soon. One of Honorable Gladstone's lineal descendants was still living and this lineal descendant of Honorable Gladstone proved in court the malicious falsifications of the author, who was consequently compelled by the law to pay heavy penalty for attempting to besmirch the good name of so great and good a man as Honorable William E. Gladstone.

Even the greatest men would not lay claim to perfection, but of this we can be assured—that the manufactured falsifications, calculated to malign their characters, and perniciously untrue; and all such attempts to discount the greatness of our great leaders have only increased the nation's admiration for the goodness and the greatness of their lives. Instead of casting reflection upon their characters, such statements but reflect the weakness and the rottenness of the writers who thus seek to justify themselves in their own questionable lives. As someone has put it, "Their object is to make great men over in their own image—out of mud."

The life of any person is to be measured—not by what biographers may say—whether good or bad, but by the ideals and purposes and accomplishments of the life—by the achievements realized, and by the services rendered to one's day and generation. It is moreover true that any person's life is measured by the enemies which one makes as well as by the friends he has.

Muck-raking and the maligning of good men has no interest whatsoever to people who appreciate the good in their fellowmen. But eulogy of worthy men is an inspiration and tonic to their souls.

"The Home as a Conservator"

By REV. HENRY E. ROBINSON, Burlington, North Carolina

No. 1 of a Series of Four Meditations

On one evening last week I heard a forester employed by the State of North Carolina to conserve, protect and improve the forests of our state, tell his story. His job is one of fighting forest fires, disease, insects, waste and any other enemy which might drain off valuable timber from our natural resources. The work which this man is doing is important to the citizens of our state. He is preserving a valuable asset for our own and future generations.

In a very real sense, the home is also a conservator, because a good home preserves the human assets which are the foundation of our civilization. I think of the home as preserving the ideals of our nation. In the homes of our land the standards of worth are implanted in the minds and hearts of our children. The things which we hold dear and place uppermost in our scale of values will be the things esteemed by our children. Is it not reasonable to expect a child when he grows to maturity to found a home similar to the one out of which he came? In actuality, we are forming in the minds of our offspring the homes of tomorrow. This is a sobering responsibility. We may draw back and plead that we are responsible for one home at a time. But there is no escape. As we set the ideals of what home-life should be, we are forming the outline of other homes soon to be established across the street or the nation by those who leave our hearthside to make tomorrow's world.

If this be true, then strife, selfishness, tension, favoritism, pettiness, carelessness, neglect, laziness, profanity, ill-temper and hatred are each a two-edged sword, not only damaging lives today, but endangering the homes of tomorrow. Contra - wise, love, loyalty, sacrifice, devotion, sharing, calm and the spirit of reconciliation will bear a double harvest—one in fruits of a Christian home today, and two, in the joy and peace of the home tomorrow. The home, above all other institutions, is in the most strategic position to preserve and deliver to posterity the ideals we hold dear.

I like to think of the home as the conservator of the best that is in us. A true function of the home is to discover and develop the potential of its members. The skillful coach knows what each of his players can do best. One is good at kicking, another at passing, another at running, another on defense. The special talent of each is trained to its maximum peak. The player then is used where most needed according to his ability. Every parent should be a kind of a coach, detecting such gifts as his children may have and then doing all in his power to develop those gifts that they may be put at the disposal of mankind where they will do the greatest good. Music, art, nursing, teaching, writing, mechanics, entertaining, homemaking and a thousand other skills might be seen and developed by the observing and conscientious parent. It is one thing to possess a skill. It is quite another to develop it and use it. But how important! A talent ignored is like the undiscovered diamond or the hidden vein of gold. The developed skill usually reflects something even more important—a person doing what he loves to do, therefore doubly blest—not only serving but being happy in his work. And this, because a home was doing its work as conservator: directing and improving God's peculiar gifts to his children.

The home is not only conservator of ideals and skills, it is conservator of our faith. With all due respect to our churches and church schools, we must admit that religion has little hope of a dominant place in life unless it is practiced in the home. Parents are the number one religious educators of the nation. At church we are told how the disciple of Jesus should act. At home we put the theory to the test. At home our religious faith is tried in the fire of daily living. If it fails there, where can we expect it to succeed? If our faith is not even tried at home, in what other environment can it be effective? The thing I am talking about is not easy. The temptation is ever present to take the line of least resistance, or to relegate religion to the first day of the week, when the hymns are sung and the children are in care of a trusted teacher. The test comes, however, at home when tempers flare, clothes are dirty, dishes to be done, the dentist to see over howling protests. The trial of our faith comes when prayer is needed, a scripture to be read. Is there one to pray the prayer? Is there one who knows his Bible and how to bring it to bear upon the crisis or emergency? If there is then that home is a conservator of the faith. If there is not, then the home is failing a vital role which our Creator assigned to it.

During this week of Family Life observance, may we think of every home in our community as a conservator of life's most precious possessions—our ideals, our talents, our faith. If this is what our homes really are, our common life will be fortified with God's richest blessings.

Importance of Christian Family Life

By MRS. EDD CHILTON

Family Life Chairman, North Carolina Women

STOP, DAD, Where are you going? There are cross roads and there are dangers ahead. One road leads to eternal salvation, the other to doom and destruction. Which are you recommending?

LOOK, MOTHER, What do you see? What are you looking for? Do you see a happy family life together, with love and appreciation for each other and for people throughout the world? Or do you see envy, hate, strife, suffering, a home without God?

LISTEN, CHILDREN, What do you hear? Mother's and Dad's voices uplifted in prayer, reading from God's Holy Word, teaching you to live with other people, to live clean, upright lives, and to be able to present your bodies a living sacrifice unto God? Do you hear love, sympathy, understanding? Or are you hearing war, one nation fighting against another? Do you hear "as much as lieth within you, live peaceably with one another"? Or do you hear, "give me, give me, I want more power, more money, more influence to issue out evil"?

We have just observed, May 3 - 10, Family Life Week. Why do we have to be told to set aside one week for such? It should be fifty-two weeks, three hundred sixty-five days, every hour that we live. This is where life

(Continued on page 13.)

Our Churches Report . . .

Winston-Salem Church Opens Newly Decorated Nursery

The opening of the nursery of the Congregational Christian Church in Winston-Salem, N. C., at West Academy and Lockland Avenues, is the culmination of careful planning, hard work, and thoughtful prayers on the part of the various church groups.

The nursery has been newly decorated with new tile flooring, a fresh coat of paint, new drapes and new furniture.

The plan is to take children from play-pen age up each Sunday during the worship service.

The church is very fortunate in having excellent nursery leadership in the persons of Mrs. John Fulton, Mrs. John T. Johnson and Mrs. L. W. LeRowe.

The church had a very impressive Mother's Day service. Honor was bestowed on the eldest mother and the youngest mother in the congregation. Special recognition was also shown to all mothers.

The pastor, Rev. W. J. Andes, brought an inspiring sermon, his subject being "Home Builders are World Builders."

REPORTER.

* * * * *

Alamance County Church Has Been Dedicated

The new educational building of the Union Congregational Christian Church at Union Ridge, North Carolina, was dedicated last Sunday, during the church's annual homecoming day observance.

The program included a morning worship service, a picnic lunch and the dedication service in the afternoon.

The new building, with an appraised value of $70,000, was constructed at a cost of approximately $42,000, through donations of material and labor by members of the church and other interested persons in the community.

It contains ten classrooms, pastor's study, ladies' lounge, modern kitchen, and a large fellowship hall.

Constructed of solite block and red sandface brick, the one-story building is fireproof to the roof level. A large storage room is located in the basement. A perimeter heating system has been installed in the cement floors.

The building committee is composed of W. P. Mahan, chairman; David Barker, Claude Walker, Mrs. W. H. Garrison, and Rev. Kenneth D. Register, the pastor. R. O. Wilkins, Sr., served as purchasing agent and general overseer of the construction.

* * * * *

Opening Service to Me Held in New Eutaw Church Building

Friends are invited to attend the opening service in the new Eutaw Community Church (Congregational Christian) in Fayetteville, North Carolina, on next Sunday afternoon, May 17. The service will begin at three o'clock, and a good program has been planned, according to announcement by the pastor, Dr. F. C. Lester.

Three months ago, Mr. Lester was given a six months' leave of absence by the Asheboro Church, in order to do a job of building and reorganization in Fayetteville. With half of the time gone, the building is in readiness for use. Made of concrete block and brick, it contains a sanctuary, classrooms, a pastor's study, kitchen and fellowship hall.

Costing approximately $26,000, it is expected that eventually larger and more adequate buildings will be erected on our beautiful lot donated by Mrs. Florence Rogers, but in the mean time, the people in this newly developed area of Fayetteville will have a place for study and worship.

On Saturday, May 16, ministers of the Eastern and Western North Carolina conferences and their families will meet at the new church in Fayetteville for a picnic dinner to be served by the ladies of the church. It is hoped that many will avail themselves of this opportunity for fellowship—and for seeing the new church building.

Coming into Fayetteville on Highway 87 (from Sanford), turn left off the Fort Bragg highway at the Fayetteville city limits sign. There is a sign "Eutaw Apartments" on your left. The church is just one block off the highway at this point.

It is hoped that a number of our church people will show their interest in this newest project of the Southern Convention Mission Board and will attend the service on Sunday afternoon.

* * * * *

Remodeling Program at Lebanon Church Nearly Completed

Lebanon Congregational Christian Church of Semora, North Carolina, is marching forward. Among the members there is a sense of renewed dedication to the Kingdom tasks. As concrete evidences of this consecration are a Sunday school which has more than quadrupled in attendance and interest during the past fifteen months; eight members received into the church this conference year; a young adult group which meets, in addition to the Sunday school period every week, twice a month in the homes, averaging twenty to thirty in attendance; a junior choir of about fifteen; a newly organized Woman's Fellowship, with much interest and good attendance at the monthly meetings; an average attendance of about ninety at the third Sunday morning worship services, and a relatively high average for the first Sunday evening service, the largest budget (not counting the building fund) the church has had for many years, if not the largest it has ever had, fully subscribed during the every-member canvass last fall.

These are not all of the evidences of renewed dedication. Lebanon has completed an $18,000 building project in which five Sunday school rooms were built, the sanctuary made beautiful by a complete renovation, new pews purchased, a central heating system installed, a vestibule constructed, and the entire building brick veneered. The church has borrowed only $6,000. Members and friends have been generous.

Perhaps the greatest evidence of consecration is felt when you attend any of the meetings of the various groups of the total church program. In any gathering you find enthusiasm; the people talk up their church, not only at the church, but elsewhere during the week as well.

Dr. W. E. Wisseman of our First Church, Greensboro, N. C., was the guest preacher at our revival meeting in April, during which the whole community was blessed. Seven members (five by confession of faith) were added to the church.

(Continued on page 10.)

News of Elon College

PRESIDENT L. E. SMITH, Elon College, N. C.

Churchmen, What of the Future?

This is not a report on Elon College, not a disparaging note concerning its future, nor is it a criticism of the church of any individual or any group of individuals in the church, but it is a plain statement of facts which the church and everyone concerned for its future should consider seriously and be governed accordingly.

The present financial condition of Elon College is excellent in comparison with previous records through the years; that is, we are able to pay our bills, we owe only $26,000 on the gymnasium and that is the total of the College's indebtedness that is legally lodged against the college. I should say that we are greatly indebted to the faculty and employees of Elon College. They have served, and served faithfully on what is termed a low wage considering the cost of living and the society in which a college professor and his family must live. Perhaps our church is aware that the salary scale in Elon College, in most instances, is far less than the salary scale for our pastors in the Southern Convention. Many of them have employment for only nine months. They are finding it exceedingly difficult to keep the wolf from the door.

Living conditions at Elon College for our boarding students are completely out of date and woefully inadequate. Our endowment funds now exceed one half million dollars only. Any one conversant with the cost of operating a four year institution of "A" rating knows that this is a pitifully small endowment.

The college authorities were asked by the Executive Board of the Southern Convention to withdraw from the field for solicitation of funds as of March 1. The Board agreed, however, that the college might return to the church for the solicitation of funds after 1953.

We are all aware of the fact that there are other responsibilities of the church that require money, that the individual members of the local churches of the convention are expected to contribute money for these causes. We come to the place where we must exercise discriminating judgment. We also must realize that if the college is to continue, it must receive support from some source or other. There are certain questions that the church which conceived established and built Elon College should answer:

1. Do we need Elon College?
2. Do we want it to maintain membership in the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools? Do we want it to maintain its present rating in the field of higher education?
3. Do we want to provide the necessary funds to assist the college in maintaining its present rating?
4. Does the church feel that it raises too much money to support the college?
5. Is the church willing to make an effort to provide the necessary funds for the proper conduct of the college? What part of the present cost of operating Elon College does the church pay?
6. Does the church consider Elon College the kind and type of institutions that justifies the homes of the church to send their sons and daughters to Elon College for their education?

The chances are that the ones who read this article will think of these questions a bit, from their own opinions, and lay the paper aside. Would it be asking too much to have you answer these questions, either through the columns of THE CHRISTIAN SUN or to the college authorities? In View of the fact that only 40 churches out of 200 that we have, have attempted to make the campaign that was authorized by the convention, it would seem timely that our thinking and planning should be directed along the lines indicated, either for the college or for other interests, as your judgment may dictate. $56,138.29 is the total amount received to date in cash and pledges. Many of the pledges are on a five year basis.

* * * * *

Apportionment Giving

Economic conditions in this country are undergoing radical changes. On the surface, it would seem that money is becoming more scarce and, as a result, benevolences for less appealing causes are becoming less generous.

For years the circulation of money has seemed free and easy. As money is withdrawn from circulation, it seems to become more valuable. Interest rates rise. Individuals that have been free spenders are finding it difficult to keep up all obligations. During this period of apparent recession, I trust that the needs of the college, I mean the immediate needs of the college, shall not be overlooked or casually considered. It is becoming more and more difficult to meet demands as the weeks pass.

One source of income for Elon College is from our Sunday schools and churches in compliance with the apportionment asked by the Convention through the conferences. During the past years the Sunday schools and churches have been generous and cooperative. We know that such shall continue to be the case, but we do need to caution ourselves as economic conditions are affected by social and political changes.

If your church has not paid its apportionment for the college, a contribution would help tremendously.

Perviously Reported $ 3,470.31

Eastern N. C. Conference:

Lee's Chapel	$ 19.00
Martha's Chapel	2.00
Pope's Chapel	5.00
Wake Chapel	14.00

Eastern Va. Conference:

New Lebanon S. S.	$ 5.00
Bay View	20.00
Rosemont	55.00
Wakefield	16.92
Waverly S. S.	28.04

N. C. and Va. Conference:

Pleasant Grove	$ 8.54
Virginia Valley Conference:
Winchester S. S.	$ 8.34

182.70

Total to date $ 3,653.01

CHURCHES WILL OBSERVE PENTECOST.

(Continued from page 2.)

ness sessions of the assembly are in progress, a visitor's program will afford the public an opportunity to hear some of the visiting delegates and consultants. Many of them will also be heard and seen over radio and television. Chicago area theological seminaries are planning a two-week ecumenical seminar for ministers, making use of some of the visiting delegates and consultants.

A topnotcher is simply an individual who works for the institution of which he is a part.—Elbert Hubbard.

Missions at Home and Abroad

The Advance on the Home Front

Congregational Christian Churches in America, with a total membership of nearly a million and a half, have made a gross gain in membership during the past year of 102,450, according to Dr. Woffard C. Timmons of New York City, director of the Commission on Evangelism and Devotional life of our churches. Figures for the year 1952 show a net gain of 27,989 members over 1951.

This growth in church membership has been a steady, quiet increase based on Christian nurture through Christian education for children and youth, points out Dr. Timmons, and also special efforts in visitation programs by laymen. He adds that this increase is not alone in the traditionally strong Congregational centers such as New England, as might be expected, but in states like California, Ohio, Michigan, Florida and New York.

Church schools also are showing splendid growth, and Dr. Timmons states that whereas in 1926 there were 489,000 Sunday school members—in 1952 there were 668,702.

In addition, Dr. Timmons reports that during the past seven months, 1,270,000 pieces of devotional literature and 460,000 copies of the Fellowship of Prayer have been used by Congregational Christian Churches.

Council for Social Action Urges Early Land Reform

Strong support for land reform in all parts of the world and commendation for the leadership being given by the United States and the United Nations in this program is set forth in a policy statement issued recently by the Council for Social Action.

"Three out of every five persons in the world earn their living by working on the land," declares the Council. "The conditions under which they occupy the land, utilize its fertility and dispose of the product of their toil are of profound concern, not only to these farmers, but also to all men everywhere."

Low rates of productivity, persistent poverty among millions of farmers in underdeveloped areas of the world, make this subject one of Christian concern and one about which Christians and Christian institutions should acquire adequate knowledge in order to take leadership in the growing movement for land reform, the Council believes.

"Unless land reform accompanies and undergirds technical and economic aid to undeveloped countries, the result of such aid will be to widen the gap between the rich and the poor and further concentrate wealth, power and privilege in the hands of the few," warns the statement, adding that such a condition "will provide a more fertile field for the propaganda and promises of Communism."

While the Council for Social Action believes that "leadership in land reform is primarily a responsibility of governments," it also feels that the churches and ecumenical agencies can and should play an important part in the movement, from the local church up to the national and international boards, including the training of missionaries and students in theological seminaries.

The United States working through its duly established agencies such as the Department of State, Technical Cooperation Administration, Department of Agriculture, Mutual Security Administration and the Export-Import Bank, may be able to assist nations seeking to institute sound and democratic land reform programs, the Council statement points out.

It commends the United States for "the initiative it has taken in the United Nations in behalf of a positive and forthright land reform policy position" and urges our Government to continue its efforts in this direction through the United Nations, which "is in a strong position to encourage land reform among its member nations" and which already has made "laudable beginnings in this direction."

Land Reform is an exceedingly complex problem, the statement recognizes, but despite this fact there are certain basic objectives which the Council feels should serve as guideposts. The statement sets forth an eight point program and also a list of twelve factors which the Council believes should play a valuable role in any pattern of land reform.

Among the eight points listed are the securing of "tenure to the farmer and stability to the farm family"; "efficient utilization of the land, labor and capital involved and in optimum production of food and fibre"; the conservation and development of the soil; wide distribution of the ownership of land; an equitable share of the product of his toil for the tenant farmer, and "a program which would raise rural family and community living sufficiently above the levels of subsistence to allow and encourage a healthy growth of educational, agricultural and religious activities among farming populations."

The need of protective legislation covering rental, leases, taxes, mortgages and land and water titles for the farmer is also included in what the Council for Social Action feels would be a sound pattern for a land reform program.

Church Building Loan Fund Campaign

All churches in the Southern Convention have been asked to file Declarations of Purpose in connection with the Church Building Loan Fund Campaign with the Convention Office as soon as they can do so. Those that have not done so are urged to do so as soon as possible.

Through May 9, 1953, Southern Convention Declarations of Purpose received at the office were as follows:

Church and Pastor	Amount
Eastern Va. Conference:
Liberty Spring—Jesse H. Dollar	$1,591.00
Suffolk—Duane N. Vore	6,290.00
Richmond—Roy C. Helfenstein	*1,459.00
Eastern N. C. Conference:
Amelia—John Littiken	$ 400.00
Beulah—Carl Wallace	517.00
Henderson—J. F. Apple	1,087.00
Lee's Chapel—Fred P. Register	†166.00
Raleigh—W. L. Parker	975.00
Reidsville—T. G. Humphries	*3,211.00
Shallow Well—W. L. Wood	300.00
Southern Pines—Vacant	1,981.00
Turner's Chapel—W. L. Wood	300.00
Wake Chapel—F. P. Register	1,500.00
Western N. C. Conference:
Asheboro—F. C. Lester	$ 775.00
Spoon's Chapel—Max Vestal	132.00
N. C. and Va. Conference:
Burlington:
Beverly Hills—W. W. Snyder	$ 400.00
Lakeview—John G. Truitt, Jr.	82.50
Elon College—H. P. Bozarth	2,450.00
Haw River—Dwight Jackson	1,065.00
Union (NC)—K. D. Register	1,395.00
Winston-Salem—W. J. Andes	814.00

*Reidsville and Richmond churches are reported having accepted their quota, but Declarations had not been received by the Convention office at the time this report was mailed.

†Paid.

Church Women at Work

With Emphasis on Missions

MRS. F. C. LESTER, Editor

840 Sunset Avenue, Asheboro, N. C.

News from North Carolina Women's President

As many of you know, the president of our North Carolina women, Mrs. Wm. T. Scott, underwent an operation the last of April. At last report she was making a fine recovery. Our love and best wishes go to her during her convalescence.

One of the "jobs" she intended to do was to write an article for this page concerning the North Carolina Rallies—and hospital, or no hospital, she did it! We are sure you will read with interest the facts which she felt were important to record concerning the rallies.

* * * * *

North Carolina Rallies

March 23—Sanford District at Southern Pines, Mrs. R. L. House, superintendent.

March 24—Asheboro District at Union Grove, Mrs. Bill Simmons, superintendent.

March 25—Henderson - Raleigh District at Chapel Hill, Mrs. Carl Wallace and Mrs. D. M. Estes, superintendents.

March 26—Greensboro - Burlington District at Burlington, First, Mrs. C. J. Wright and Mrs. C. C. Ward, superintendents.

March 27—Halifax District at Hebron, Mrs. Y. A. Bray, superintendent.

Total attendance, nearly 500.

Ministers present. — Andes, Mark; Andes, Wm. J.; Bray, Carter, Graves, Grissom, Raymond; Grissom, William; Hess, Jackson, Lester, O'Neill, Pollard, Robinson, Simmons, Snyder, Veazey, Vestal, and Wallace.

Mrs. David McKeith, Jr., wife of the executive vice-president of the American Board, spoke. Mrs. W. E. Wisseman represented the Building Society, Miss Pattie Lee Coghill served as "introductionist." Mrs. W. T. Scott, president, spoke in the afternoons.

Worship services were led by Mrs. Fred Register, Mrs. Tucker Humphries, Mrs. R. L. House and the Union Grove women. A memorial service for Mrs. E. P. Boroughs was led by Mrs. F. C. Lester at the Asheboro District meeting.

All expenses were paid, including programs, expenses of guest speaker, travel expenses of all other speakers, plus a special love and gratitude gift of $25 to Mrs. David McKeith. And $52.02 remained to add to our Thank Offering for the Carroll County work.

New officers to be installed at the Fall Conference are:

Halifax—Mrs. G. W. Pollard, superintendent; Mrs. Joe Landrum, assistant; Mrs. Lacy Lovelace, secretary.

Henderson—Mrs. E. M. Powell, superintendent; Mrs. Allen Kimball, assistant; Mrs. Fletcher Richards, secretary.

Raleigh—Mrs. D. M. Estes, superintendent; Mrs. Fred Register, assistant.

Sanford—Mrs. Kenneth M. Lindner, superintendent; Mrs. H. Clark, assistant; Mrs. Jack Campbell, secretary.

Burlington—Mrs. T. D. Sutton, superintendent; Mrs. W. P. Mahan, assistant; Mrs. Asa Danieleley, secretary.

Greensboro—Mrs. C. J. Wright, superintendent; Mrs. W. E. Briggs, assistant; Mrs. R. E. Apple, secretary.

Asheboro—Mrs. Bill Simmons, superintendent; Mrs. Winfred Bray, assistant; Miss Flossie Bray, secretary; Mrs. Russell Craven, assistant secretary.

The places of meeting for the 1954 Rallies are:

Halifax at Ingram.

Henderson-Raleigh at Liberty Vance.

Sanford at Fayetteville.

Burlington-Greensboro at Winston-Salem.

Asheboro at Ramseur.

* * * * *

An African Tea

On Sunday afternoon, April 19, the Women's Auxiliary of the Reidsville Congregational Christian Church sponsored an African Tea, beginning with a gathering of the ladies in the auditorium of the church.

Mrs. Briggs, the president of the auxiliary, conducted the devotional services, and the speaker, Mrs. William Sloan of Elon College, was introduced by Mrs. T. G. Humphries, the pastor's wife.

About one hundred ladies were present, and they were thrilled and inspired by the address of Mrs. Sloan. Especially were they interested in Mrs. Sloan's direct contact with Miss Harriett Summerville, one of the Reidsville Church's own missionaries.

After this brief hour in the auditorium of the church, the group adjourned to the dining room of the church, which was decorated in an African motif. The tea table was centered with a scene from the heart of Africa. The delicious refreshments served, consisting of dainty sandwiches, fruit cup and punch, were things which any good African housewife might have served at her own tea table. During the fellowship hour a group of young ladies from the Willing Workers, a missionary group of the church, presented a skit depicting the actions of white men in far off Africa. Also on display during the afternoon were many articles which Miss Summerville had sent as her personal presents to the women's society and to individual members of the church.

Altogether, it was a delightful and inspiring hour of study and fellowship, and those who came left saying it was good to have been in God's house. We feel that it was indeed so inspiring that the missionary effort of the Reidsville Church has been greatly renewed.

* * * * *

Mrs. Humphries Honored

A note from Mrs. W. E. Wisseman tells that she attended the May Fellowship Day luncheon sponsored by the Reidsville Council of Church Women in our Reidsville church. She further "reports" that Mrs. Tucker G. Humphries, wife of our pastor there, was elected as president of the Council of Church Women for the coming year. Congratulations and best wishes to Jerry Humphries as she leads this interdenominational work.

* * * * *

Greensboro, First, Observes Family Week

(Information from "News Letter.")

The family was the keynote of religious activity at our Greensboro, (Continued on page 13.)

A Page for Our Children

MRS. R. L. HOUSE, Editor, Southern Pines, N. C.

It is moving time with the House family. On every hand are crates of dishes, boxes of books, barrels, piles of toys, bundles of SUNS, and cartoons. You would be correct in saying that things were messy. Moving always stirs up things: possessions and emotions.

We are moving back home—that is to my home—

1045 23rd Street,
Newport News, Virginia.

I lived in that house from the time I was five until I grew up, went away to college, and was married. It is in sight of our Newport News Church, and our dear neighbors, the J. H. Skinners, whose sons and grandson played with me when I was growing up, still live next door. They wrote saying: "It will be like old times to have little folks again." Let us hope the little folks are good neighbors!

It is very hard to leave the wonderful people of The Church of Wide Fellowship and the lovely town of Southern Pines. Our nearly four years here have been so happy. And though we leave, a portion of our hearts will stay here forever.

Our summer promises to be exciting. As soon as we get our furniture in the house, we will leave for Elon College, where we will spend the summer on the campus. We shall be living in Ladies' Hall, helping with the Boarding Girl students, and studying in preparation for fall.

When fall comes, we will be back in Newport News, where all of us will be going to school: Jonathan in the 4th grade, Andrea Lee in the 3rd, Mother in the 2nd (as teacher), and Joyanna in the nursery class.

Although we leave many loved ones here, we look forward to being with loved ones in Virginia. If you want to write to us, please use the above address, except during the summer, when it will be Elon College, N. C.

JUNE JOY HOUSE.

* * * * *

"Educational Curiosity"

By M. LOUISE C. HASTINGS.

Issued by the National Kindergarten Association.

Little Olive came running to me with a perfect dandelion head gone to seed. "What is it?" she asked.

When I told her, I said, "I'll recite you a verse about it.

"I think there is a gold mine underneath the grass
For dandelions are springing up everywhere I pass;
But if you wish to pick them
you'd better not delay
For soon they'll turn to silver, and then they'll blow away."

Her eyes were bright. "Now play you are the wind and blow the seeds away," I said. She blew and laughed with delight. How lovely it is to enjoy such things with little children!

One day the "neighborhood gang" appeared at my back door with a turtle. "Do you know what kind this is?" one of them asked. I brought out my books and we identified it as a spotted turtle. "What will he eat?" "What can we feed him?" came the questions. We consulted another book. "He will eat meat," I said. And off they went.

What mothers have to go through when the collecting of Nature's secrets begins!

"Mother says we can't keep these snakes in the house," said Kenny. "No," one of the girls answered thoughtfully, "I wouldn't think so." When next I saw the boys, I asked, "How are the snakes?" "Oh, they all got away, and the lizards as well, and the turtle," I was told, and off they started on further fascinating investigations in the woods.

When a mother has a background of nature love and nature lore she has a wonderful opportunity to interest not just her own family but the other children in the neighborhood, too. Her knowledge opens to them a new world, and if they are allowed to ask questions, and they are answered intelligently, the children have an educational advantage, which some day they will recognize and appreciate.

Mothers who are thus sympathetically inclined would do well to form a little Nature Club for the neighborhood children and have a regular day each week when one of the mothers will take them on a walk in the woods, or along the brookside, or through the fields. With a picnic lunch thrown in such walks will draw continued interest. All sorts of things can be collected. If the mother presiding one week does not know all the bits of nature collected, let her never be discouraged. Another mother may know, and there are always books. It does the children no harm if every specimen is not identified until the books are consulted. This makes them familiar with nature books, and as they grow older they will want to use them. I have noticed how interested some of the boys and girls who visit me on my back porch are in my nature books.

It is a good idea, however, for the mother to know her subject somewhat before she suggests various things for the children to do. Billy was busy digging up a pailful of mosses. He showed them to his little friend, Janet, and her mother. "Those will look pretty set close to your mother's pansies, won't they?" said Janet's mother. Billy thought he would surprise his mother and, without consulting her, carefully planted them. They did look very pretty. Several days afterward, however, Billy's mother said to Janet's mother, "Did you hear Billy crying the other day? He had brought home some moss and planted it all around my lovely pansies. I made him dig it all up. The earth on moss is acid and I could not have it around my pansies!" Explanations followed, and Janet's mother decided she would be more careful in how she made suggestions regarding things about which she knew but little.

OUR CHURCHES REPORT.

(Continued from page 6.)

The annual Home Coming and Memorial Day will be held at Lebanon on the third Sunday in May. Sunday school will start at 10 o'clock, and the morning worship service will be held at 11 o'clock. At this service Dr. D. J. Bowden of Elon College, will deliver the sermon. Mr. H. G. Earp will give the "in memoriam" remarks, and special music will be furnished by the choirs. During the afternoon service, Mr. T. S. Earp of South Boston, Va., will present the history of Lebanon Church.

Lunch will be served in the church grove. The public is cordially invited to spend the day at Lebanon, meeting new friends, and renewing old acquaintances.

MARK W. ANDES,
Pastor.

Youth at Work in the Church

REV. MAX VESTAL, R. 1, Asheboro, N. C.

Liberty, Vance, Young People Make Self-Denial Offering

The Young people at the Liberty, Vance, Church of the Eastern North Carolina Conference, are a very active group. Last fall they observed a Work Day for Christ, when a large number picked cotton and gave the money for the day's work to the church.

Their latest activity was the special observance of the Lenten Period, which was climaxed with a self-denial offering. This offering amounted to $21.00 and represented things which the young people had denied themselves during this period. This gift is being sent to Lady Doak College in Madura, India. Lady Doak College is one of our newest colleges and is doing a wonderful job in educating young girls in South India.

* * * * *

Valley Young People Participate in Interdenominational Rally

The joint rally of Congregational Christian and Evangelical and Reformed youth from the Virginia Valley area came off in fine fashion at St. Paul's E. and R. Church, Woodstock, Virginia, on Sunday, April 19. Of approximately 135 youth who were there, three-fifths were from Evangelical or Reformed churches, and the remainder from our own Valley churches.

After Paul Helm, E. and R. minister from Harrisonburg, had us well relaxed and mixed together, Hank Harman, our own Valley pastor-at-large, presented the theme message on "Hope." He ended by saying that for Christians there is no such word as "hopeless."

For many, the meat of the program came in the eight discussion and activity groups. Dr. Humphreys, an understanding young Christian physician of Woodstock, led the largest group on "My Friends and I—Boy-Girl Relations." The other groups for seniors were those on Christian Vocation led by Clarence Phillips, the secretary of the Valley Conference; "War, Peace and Other World Problems," led by Rev. Ralph Galt; and a group for youth leaders led by Mr. Harman.

The junior activity groups had E. and R. leaders for all of them: Rev. Kenneth Bishop of Woodstock, Mrs. Bishop, Miss Marlin Gordon of Timberville and Madison College, and Paul Helm.

Before supper we had a chance to whet our appetite by hiking up to the Massanutten Military Academy to see the retreat parade. It was a cold afternoon and some of us ran into snow before we got home in the evening. While most of us were outside, the Woodstock young people had spread out our picnic suppers and added punch and ice cream of their own.

Marlin Gordon, who led the missions activity group, told of her interesting work-camp experiences last summer in St. Louis, during the first period after supper. Following this talk, we concluded our session with a filmstrip-based worship service led by Paul Helm.

* * * * *

Know Your Officers

Clem Shankle, president of the Western North Carolina Young People's Conference, is a senior in Troy High School. In a few days he will graduate as valedictorian of his class. For three years he has been his class president. He has been a member of the Beta Club all four years. He ranked fifth in North Carolina in an essay contest and received a certificate bearing the President's seal. He also won the typing medal, the book-keeping medal and merit awards as well as other awards. He was the editor of the annual and typist for the school paper.

In addition to these school activities, Clem joined the church at six years of age, was Sunday school superintendent at fifteen. He also is the teacher of a Sunday school class—can play the piano and lead singing.

Clem won out in his high school, his county and district for the John Molley Morehead scholarship, and was one of the top twenty for both this and the Herbert Worth Jackson scholarship. Both of these scholarships were based on character, leadership and scholarship. He now has a $1,200 scholarship to the University of North Carolina.

Relax With Max

Sure is good to get mail from Pattie Lee Coghill—even if one of the letters this week was dated May 5, 1956. That shows that Pattie Lee is looking ahead. The other letters were giving me work to do—teaching, writing (believe it or not), etc. If this section sounds a little crazy, it's probably because I've been standing on my head trying to read what I was supposed to write or do. Never have figured out some of them. I'm getting suspicious that she is just trying to stand me on my head.

Seriously, Pattie Lee Coghill and Ruth Dunn are doing a wonderful job for us young people, and too many times we have forgotten to say "Thank you." How can we say it? Well, they have given themselves to helping you. One of the best ways, I think, would be to keep our youth groups strong, form new ones, and let them know that the seeds they have planted are growing.

* * *

Only a person who never does anything never makes a mistake; only a big person admits a mistake; only a wise person profits by his own mistakes or the mistakes of others.

* * *

Following the line of least resistance is what makes rivers and men crooked.—Roy G. Robinson.

"WHAT ARE OTHER DENOMINATIONS DOING?"

(Continued from page 2.)

Of the 19 denominations which responded to the committee's questionnaires, nine reported that they had launched campaigns. As to the total amount of money raised to date, most denominations reported no data available yet. The Evangelical and Reformed Church said that with a goal of $1,000,000 and its campaign completed, $1,80,000 had been raised.

The Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. launched its capital funds campaign in 1952 to extend to July 1, 1954, for new church development. The quotas for a congregation are based on 25 per cent of the 1950 current receipts, raised over a thirty-month period. About 85 per cent of the $7,500,000 campaign funds was pledged in the first twelve months.

We exaggerate misfortune and happiness alike. We are never either so wretched or so happy as we say we are.—Balzac.

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE, D. D.

"Problems of Christian Conscience"

LESSON VIII—MAY 24, 1953.

MEMORY SELECTIONS "If food is a cause of my brother's falling, I will never eat meat lest I cause my brother to fall."—I Corinthians 8:13. (R. S. V.)

LESSON: I Corinthians 8:7-13; 6:18-20.

DEVOTIONAL READINGS Proverbs 23:29-35.

The Problem.

Paul had a problem on his hands. It was a knotty problem. It was a problem of considerable importance. It concerned the matter of eating meats that had been offered to idols. The question was whether the Corinthian Christians should buy and serve and eat meat that had been first offered as a sacrifice at a heathen temple. The situation was this. Corinth had many temples where sacrifices were offered to their gods. After the animals had been killed and placed on the altar, or offered as a sacrifice, the meat was taken to the market place of "the butcher shop" and there offered for sale. And bargain rates prevailed—it could be bought cheaply. The question was, "Should a Christian buy meat that he knew had been offered as a sacrifice on a heathen altar?" That may seem like a foolish, and far-fetched question, but it was a very vital question. Or again, if a Christian was invited "out to dinner" and the host served meat, should the Christian eat that meat, especially if he knew that it was meat that had been offered to an idol. These questions were so troublesome that the members of the Corinthian Church wrote to Paul and asked his opinion or advice concerning the matter.

The Principle.

Before giving an answer in detail, in fact Paul gave no detailed answer, Paul laid down or stated a principle. That principle is, that liberty must be limited by love. There are many things that may be lawful, but things which are not loving. And even as Paul defends Christian liberty, he imposes, in practice, some rather severe restrictions. He frankly tells his fellow-Christians that an idol is nothing but the creation of a man's mind, and that meat that has been offered to an idol has no moral quality. There were those, who knowing this could eat such meat with no qualms of conscience. And they were none the worse by it. Nor were they any better if they did not eat. Eating or not eating did not bring them any closer to God, of keep them away from God.

But there were those who did not have this "knowledge." Their conscience troubled them if they ate such meat. Indeed if they ate such meat, they would do a dangerous thing—they would violate their conscience and defile their conscience. Under no circumstances should one eat such meat.

But there is something more, and something greater involved. Suppose, for instance that a man, who had no compunctions of conscience about eating meat offered to an idol, should eat such meat, in the presence of one whose conscience did not allow him to eat the meat. Would the latter be encouraged to do what his conscience forbids? Would he not be emboldened to do what he regards as wrong? Would not one's boasted knowledge, and his selfish use of liberty thus lead to the destruction of a brother for whom Christ died? Thus would superior knowledge, and legitimate liberty, acting in reckless disregard of the conscience of others, work a great harm, and violate the law of Christ. The law of Christ would prompt one to forgo his rights for the welfare of others.

So far as Paul is concerned, if his use of meats offered to idols would cause one of his weaker brothers to stumble or fall, he would never eat any more meat. In short, the great principle which Paul sets forth, as Dr. Erdman shows is: "Indulgence may imperil the weak; therefore liberty must be regulated by love."

The Point.

Now because Paul decided this problem by laying down a principle, instead of by setting up a few rules or laws, the thing has point for us. There are some things which are approved by all men as right. There are some things which are approved by all men as wrong. But there are many things, in-between, on which men differ. And good men. And Christian men. There are some things which some members of the church do, in all clear conscience, which other members of the church would not think of doing. Sabbath observance, amusements, personal expenditures and indulgences, are instances in point. The very principles which Paul laid down for the Corinthians apply today as then. Paul would insist, in the first place, that one ought to obey his conscience. One who deliberately disobeys his conscience will make shipwreck of his life. The demands of conscience may at times seem absurd, to us, and to others. But they must be obeyed, or else: To be sure conscience should be, and must be enlightened, but it must not be violated. Foolish scruples can sometimes be removed by considering the counsel of others, and the examples of others. But even here one must not follow the examples or heed the advice unless conscience approves. Above all we should seek the mind of Christ as a means of keeping conscience enlightened and alive.

On the other hand, we should be willing to abstain from what we regard as right and innocent if we believe that our example might lead others to do what they think is wrong. Love, not liberty, is the principle of action. It is a serious thing when one violates his own conscience. It is just as serious when he causes another to violate his conscience.

Today's lesson is a Temperance Lesson. Let those of us who think we have "knowledge" and boast of our liberty in Christ, take heed lest our liberty be a stumbling block to others. There are some things that we ought to be willing and glad to give up, for the sake of others. This applies not only to ministers, but to laymen.

The Postscript.

Today's lesson has a "postscript." Verses taken from a chapter before the chapter which form the main part of the lesson, are included in the lesson. The heart of these verses is found in verse 19. "Know ye not that your body is a temple of the Holy Spirit which is in you, which ye have from God?" There you have it—the body is the dwelling place of the Spirit of God in man. Keep that body pure, keep it strong, keep it worthy of the Spirit of God which dwells in it. It is not our own body, nor are we our own. We have been bought with a price. Therefore we are to glorify God with our bodies and in our bodies.

Based on "International Sunday School Lessons;" Copyrighted 1951 by Division of Christian Education, National Council of the Churches in the U. S. A.

IMPORTANCE OF CHRISTIAN FAMILY LIFE.

(Continued from page 5.)

begins, within the family circle. Do we, as mothers and dads, nurture our children in loving them, teaching them to love others, helping them to grow in stature as Jesus grew, physically, mentally, spiritually.

Do we do these things, or are we "passing the buck," so to speak, on to someone else, perhaps to the public school teacher. Do we send to school a half-fed, ill-mannered boy or girl and expect the school to send back to us big, well-behaved grade-A students? Or when we send them to a Sunday school teacher for one hour a week, do we expect them to return home so filled with spiritual nourishment that we can boast of their wonderful achievements? Are you using ugly, vile language or telling filthy jokes, then wondering in amazement just where Jimmy or Susie get such things?

What are we doing for our boys and girls? If love and understanding, and faith in God, are not started in the home, around the Family Altar, then where, may I ask, are they to be started?

A church is just as strong as the family life which makes up that church. So is America just as strong as the nation's family life. Then does it make any difference to us what kind of family life we have in these United States of ours? Are our churches sending out boys and girls to become ministers, missionaries, church workers, Christian teachers? If not, then there is something wrong with the family life in our churches. We must be fed and filled with good things to be able bodied men and women, boys and girls, physically. It is just as necessary and important that we have spiritually filled lives.

I wonder how many of our women's societies have a Family Life chairman? Will you write and tell me if you have one, or if you do not have one, will you appoint one. Will you do something really "special" sometime during the year for the family life in your church, and then write me about it? Maybe some of you are using the Family Life program in our packet this month. Maybe some will have a family church gathering, with a covered dish supper. Why not secure a real, wide-awake speaker with plenty of "get up and go" about him or her? Plan some recreation, showing the youngsters that Mom and Dad like fun, and that they can get such in the church.

All right, church men and women, pastors, leaders, get busy, do something special to promote Christian Family Life, and then write it up for use in THE SUN.

CHURCH WOMEN AT WORK.

(Continued from page 9.)

First Church from May 3 to May 10.

On Sunday evening, May 3, the annual family picnic, sponsored by the Woman's Auxiliary, was held in the Fellowship Hall. Following the supper, the pre-school children went to the nursery, the school children stayed in the Fellowship Hall for games and a movie, and the adults were addressed by Mrs. Corinne J. Grimsley in the Chapel. Mrs. Grimsley, a Greensboro native and for twelve years young people's director at the First Presbyterian Church there, has been family relations specialist on the home demonstration staff of the State College Extension Service since 1948. Her theme was "Faith is a Family Affair."

The Wednesday evening prayer service, May 6, was led by the R. G. Moffitt family, with special music by Mrs. W. W. Tate and her daughter, Jane.

The Sunday morning worship service, May 10, was centered around "Mothers." On Sunday evening, an International Family Festival, sponsored by the Missions Committee of the church, was held from 7:00 to 8:30. Maurice Tate was responsible for the program, with Mrs. Fred Smith directing the music, Mrs. R. F. Powell the games, and Mrs. Carl Monroe the exhibits.

* * * * *

Family Week Observed by Liberty Vance Church

(Information from Mrs. Florence E. Underhill.)

In April, a letter went to every woman connected with Liberty, Vance, Church, from the pastor's wife, Mrs. W. A. Grissom, program chairman of the Women's Society, telling of important coming events.

The goal at Liberty is "Every Woman at Work in the Church"; and work toward this goal received a big "push" when on April 26 the women had charge of the eleven o'clock worship service, with Miss Pattie Lee Coghill as guest speaker.

On May 1, "May Fellowship Day" was observed in an interdenominational service at the Liberty Church with Mrs. Carl Wallace, the Henderson District Superintendent as the guest speaker.

Sunday, May 3, was designated as "Family Sunday," with the families of the church asked to sit as family groups for the morning worship service.

Then on Friday evening, May 8, "Family Night" was held at the church. There was a program of interest to all family groups, followed by a period of fellowship and refreshments.

Thus the idea of a greatly enlarged and better organized women's group was launched in connection with Christian Family Week programs—what better basis could there be for the work of our women?

* * * * *

"The Hidden Heart"

This is the title of the feature film being produced by the Congregational Christian Churches this year. Miss Pattie Lee Coghill has asked us to make the following announcement concerning this picture.

This film will be "previewed" at the School of Missions in June. Following that, it may be booked, free of charge, until February 1, for use in any of our churches. After that date the picture will be available on a rental basis to other denominations.

Miss Coghill is anxious that our churches begin booking this film now for use from June 19 to February 1. If you will send your request in early, you can be sure of its use on the date you prefer—and for free!

* * * * *

Treasurer's Report—A Correction

Mrs. W. V. Leathers, Treasurer of the Woman's Convention, has asked that we make the following corrections in her report, which was printed last week: The General Funds, both Home and Foreign, should have been $1,286.91 each, and not $1,586.91, as shown in her report. The Thank Offering should have been $321.77, not $321.87 as given. An item of $45.00 was also omitted. This made the correct totals: Home Missions, $1,689.71; Foreign Missions, $1,461.95. This gives the correct total for Disbursements as shown last week.

The Orphanage

J. G. TRUITT, Superintendent

Dear Friends:

Last Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock, we received word here at the orphanage that Mrs. Vitus R. Holt had died almost suddenly that day. Our first thought was that the faithful president of our board of trustees was under a heavy burden of grief and that one of our very kindest and best friends was gone from us. Mrs Holt was a frequent visitor at the orphan-afe. She brought kindness, gentle-ness and understanding. Whether she was hearing the chatter of her many friends among the children and larger boys and girls, or whether she was talking with a matron, or the farmer, or the dairyman, or the sup-erintendent, she always left gratitude in their hearts for her graciousness.

Mrs. Holt made her visits count materially, too, for she was interested in helping with funds, clothing and other gifts. She had many friends who looked on her as a link between them and the children at the orphan-age, and she always was glad to be of help to them. If anyone of our staff or the children were seick, she had ways of finding out such things and was on hand to quietly show her desire to give comfort and encourage-ment. When I myself slipped off to the hospital for a few days around Thanksgiving last fall, Mrs. Holt was one of the first to come into my door. I did not know that anyone save right at home knew I was there, but she knew it and came to see how I was and what, if anything, she could do. Now that sort of thing has a great value and is always remembered. By that same token, she will be remem-bered and missed a long time in her local church, which was the First Christian Church of Burlington. She had a modesty and gentleness which made all her visits and help greatly appreciated.

Did I tell you last week that Thur-man Arnold, age 13, is very sick in the hospital? He shows little of any improvement. He has a bad heart. We are all much concerned about him. We invite your interest and prayers. Also Garner Hilliard, our faithful dairyman and general help-er here suffers much occasionally with asthma. For several days he has been suffering intensely. He was reared here, and we are proud of his work and his good influence on all the boys.

Pray that he may soon be quite well again.

Please read our interesting report. I am always most appreciative of ev-erything you do for us. Thank you.

JOHN G. TRUITT,
Superintendent.

REPORT FOR MAY 7, 1953.

Commodities for the Week.

Mrs R. W. Hawkins, Asheville, N. C., Cloothing.

Mrs. Henry Dickson, Burlington, N. C., Clothing.

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

Amount brought forward $ 5,992.57
Eastern N. C. Conference:
Good Hope$ 18.00
Lebanon 2.00
Morrisville 10.50

30.50

Eastern Va. Conference:
Bethlehem (Nans) S. S. . $ 24.75

24.75

N. C. and Va. Conference:
Long's Chapel$ 23.72
Mebane 5.00
Reidsville S. S. 79.00

107.72

Western N. C. Conference:
Brown's Chapel S. S.$ 5.00

5.00

Virginia Valley Conference:
Concord S. S. $ 11.00
Palmyra S. S. 2.00

13.00

Total $ 180.97

Grand total $ 6,173.54

Special Offerings.

Amount brought forward $ 8,143.04

Boys' S. S. Class, Friends' Church, Greensboro, N. C. for Charles Spicer ..$ 10.00

John Craddock, Gibson-ville, N. C. 25.00

Vanceville S. S., Tifton, Georgia 3.00

Dr. James W. Hill, Elon College, N. C. 10.00

Happy Home Missionary Society, in memory of George W. Hill 10.00
Dr. & Mrs J. B. Newman, Burlington, N. C., in memory of Mr. & Mrs. J. Dolph Long 7.50
Memorial Gifts for Mrs. Vitus R. Holt:
Mr. & Mrs. L. W. Wago-ner, Elon College, N. C. 5.00
Dr. & Mrs. John G. Truitt, Elon College, N. C. 7.50
Mr. & Mrs. Allen D. Moore, Burlington, N. C. 7.50
Mr. & Mrs. John M. Holt, Burlington, N. C. 10.00
Dr. & Mrs. G. Eugene Holt, Burlington, N. C. 10.00
Mary & Clarence Hooper, Burlington, N. C. 5.00
Eva Wiseman & Eleanor, Fix, Burlington, N. C. . 5.00
Mr. & Mrs. W. J. Ballen-tine, Fuquary Springs, N. C. 10.00
Mr. & Mrs. Roger Gant, Burlington, N. C. 5.00
Luta Harden, Margaret Harden and Emma H. Lutterloh, Graham, N. C. 10.00
Mr. & Mrs. D. M. David-son, Gibsonville, N. C. 10.00
Mr. & Mrs. Frank S. Holt, Burlington, N. C. 5.00
Miss Edith I. Walker, Burlington, N. C. 7.00
Mr. & Mrs. Robert E. Harden, Burlington, N. C. 5.00
Mr. & Mrs. W. R. Sellers, Burlington, N. C. 7.50
Dr. & Mrs. J. B. Newman, Burlington, N. C. 7.50
Special Gifts 154.15

336.65

Grand Total $ 8,479.69

Total for the week $ 517.62

Total for the year $14,653.23

The price of power is responsibility for the public good.—Aldrich.

MEMORIAL GIFTS
"Instead of Flowers"

Dr. John G. Truitt
Christian Orphanage
Elon College, N. C.

Dear Dr. Truitt:

Please acknowledge the enclosed $..... as a memorial gift sent to the Christian Orphanage in lieu of flowers in memory of:

..... (Name of Deceased) (City) (Date of Death)

..... (Survivor to be Written) (Address)

Name.....

Address.....

In Memoriam

AUSTIN.

Mr. Willie Dudley Austin passed to his eternal reward on January 25, 1953 after a short illness. He had been a member of Bethlehem Christian Church for a number of yeras. He was unassuming an humble, but firm and steadfast in his devotions to the Christian principles and practices. We mourn the loss of this friend and neighbor, but we humbly bow to God's will.

Therefore be it resolved:

1. That while we miss him in the fellowship of our church, we will always cherish the memory of his life.
2. That we extend our deepest sympathy to his family and commend them to our Father's love and comfort.

Mrs. EDGAR SAVAGE,
Mrs. TOM POOLE,
Mrs. ALICE BRIDGER,
Committee.

HARLOWE.

It is with deep sorrow that we the members of Berea Christian Church record the passing of our beloved friend and member Mr. Edward D. Harlowe who passed away on February 28, 1953. The many, many years of membership and friendly smiles made him but the more endeared to the friends who knew and loved him best.

Therefore be it resolved:

1. That we let our will be lost in God's way of doing all things well.
2. That we extend our sympathy to his family praying that in their sorrow they may find peace of God that passeth all understanding.
3. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to his family, a copy recorded on the records of our church, and a copy sent to "The Christian Sun" for publication.

Mrs. W. S. SOREY,
Reporter.

ELLIOTT.

Mrs. Annie Wilkins Elliott, a native of Halifax County, Va., passed away after a long illness at her home near Virgilina, Va., on April 25, 1953, at the age of 70. In September, 1901 she married the late Thomas H. Elliott.

Mrs. Elliott joined Union Congregational Christian Church of Virgilina, Va., in early life. She unselfishly served God and her fellowmen.

Funeral services were conducted at her church by the pastor, Rev. Mark W. Andes, with burial in the town cemetery.

Mrs. Elliott is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Bernice Gravitte of Burlington, N. C.; four sons, Vernon, Brookneal, Va., Thomas, Goldsboro, N. C., Randolph and Franz, Virgilina, Va., three grandchildren and four great grandchildren.

May it help bring the family comfort by knowing she is happy there.

WARREN.

God in his infinite wisdom has called to her eternal reward our beloved member, Mrs. Susan Warren whose death occured March 8, 1953. She was growing older in her years but she was active, bright and cheerful, helping others by her pleasant smile and cheerful living until her death.

Mrs. Warren was a faithful friend and member of Berea Christian Church always attending when her health permitted her.

Therefore be it resolved:

1. That while we miss her cheerful words and sunny smile, we know that God's way is always best.
2. That we shall miss her in our worship together and shall always cherish the memory of her friendship.
3. That we extend to the family our heartfelt sympathy in the loss of a loving and faithful mother and commend them to the Great Comforter who knows all sorrows.
4. That a copy of these resolutions be sent the bereaved family, a copy recorded on the church records and a copy be sent to "The Christian Sun" for publication.

Mrs. W. S. SOREY,
Reporter.

UMPHLETT.

It is with sad hearts we record the death of Mr. Eddie Umphlett on March 16, 1953.

The untimely death of our beloved deacon and friend was a distinct shock to his many friends in the Great Bridge Community who mourn his passing.

He was ordained as a deacon of Berea Christian Church a short time before his death. He unselfishly gave of his time and talents, to the service of others and as he entered his Eternal Home he heard his Savior say, "Well Done though good and faithful servant."

Therefore be it resolved:

1. That we bow in humble submission to him that doeth all things well and that we follow his steps of going about doing good.
2. That we strive to maintain and carry forward the interest of this church to which he so freely gave his services at all times.
3. That we extend our heartfelt sympathy to his family and commend them to God's love for comfort.
4. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, a copy to "The Christian Sun" for publication, and a copy be recorded upon the records of the church.

Mrs. W. S. SOREY,
Reporter.

THE CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCH BUILDING
LOAN FUND

Declaration of Purpose

We believe that it is of overwhelming importance to help in the erection of church buildings to meet the needs of America's unchurched millions and to provide a place where children may receive training in the basic principles of Christianity.

We acknowledge with gratitude the generous assistance in church building financial aid already received by many churches of the Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches. We further realize that our own financial resources without aid from our Church Building Society will be inadequate to meet the needs of our churches of this area. We gladly join our Congregational Christian Churches of America in support of the Church Building Fund Campaign.

We are pleased to report that our church, at a meeting of the members held the day of, 195.., voted to co-operate in the Church Building Fund Campaign of the Congregational Christian Churches and accepted a goal of $.....

It was agreed that our church would seek to reach this goal by:
(Check below the statement which applies to your church.)

☐ 1. A special solicitation of our church to be held the week beginning, 195.., in which we will endeavor to secure a pledge from each member of the church.

☐ 2. By seeking a pledge from each member of the church for this purpose at the time of our regular every member canvass to be held the week of, 195...

☐ 3. By including each year in our budget, for years, the sum of $....., which will be paid in quarterly installments of $....., beginning, 195...

☐ 4. By annual solicitation each year for years.

..... Church

BySecretary or Clerk

Address

..... Pastor Treasurer

NOTE.—Mail "Declaration of Purpose" to the Southern Convention Office, Elon College, N. C. Make checks payable to The Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches, designated "Church Building Fund" and mail to Elon College, N. C. Payments should be completed not later than March 1, 1956.

Congregational Christian Camps and Conferences 1953 SESSIONS

VALLEY OF VIRGINIA YOUNG PEOPLE'S CAMP

Powell's Fort Camp, Woodstock, Virginia, June 9-15

REV. HENRY V. HARMON, Dean

Total Costs, $10.50

* * * * *

ELON SCHOOL OF MISSIONS

Elon College, North Carolina, June 16-19

Cost, $10.00

* * * * *

CRABTREE PARK CAMPS FOR JUNIOR BOYS AND GIRLS

Camp No. 3, Crabtree State Park, June 20-24, June 24-28

REV. and MRS. CARL WALLACE, Directors

Cost, $8.50

* * * * *

NORTH CAROLINA JUNIOR HIGH CAMP

Camp No. 3, Crabtree State Park, June 28-July 4

REV. and MRS. MARK ANDES, Directors

Cost, $13.50

* * * * *

SENIOR HIGH AND YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONFERENCE

(Convention Wide)

Elon College, North Carolina, July 5-11

REV. JAMES H. LIGHTBOURNE, JR., Dean

Cost, $15.00

* * * * *

EASTERN VIRGINIA JUNIOR HIGH CAMP

Central Y. M. C. A. Camp, Norfolk, Virginia, August 9-14

REV. A. LANSON GRANGER, JR., Dean

Cost, $17.50

* * * * *

THE SOUTHERN CONVENTION FAMILY CAMP

Central Y. M. C. A. Camp, Norfolk, Virginia, August 14-16

DR. and MRS. F. C. LESTER, Directors

Costs: Board and Room, Adults, $7.00; Children under 6 yrs., $6.00;

Registration Fee, per family, $5.00

* * * * *

For further information, write to—

MISS PATTIE LEE COGHILL, Educational Secretary

Southern Convention Office, Elon College, N. C.

The CHRISTIAN SUN

ORGAN OF THE SOUTHERN CONVENTION OF CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES

In Essentials Unity — In Non-Essentials, Liberty, — In All Things, Charity

VOLUME CV

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, MAY 21, 1953

NUMBER 21

Speakers at Elon College Commencement--May 22-25, 1953

Speakers for the sixty-third annual commencement program at Elon College are shown above, with the photos set into the latest aerial view of the Elon campus. Upper left is Senator Willis Smith, North Carolina's junior member of the United States Senate, who will deliver the address at the graduation exercises on Monday morning, May 25; upper right is Rev. Edward W. W. Lewis, pastor of the United Congregational Church of Norwich, Connecticut, who will deliver the baccalaureate sermon on Sunday morning, May 24; and lower left is Dean J. C. Peele of Florida Southern College, Lakeland Florida, who will deliver the address at the annual Alumni banquet on Saturday evening, May 23. Dr. L. E. Smith, Elon's president, who will direct the commencement program, is pictured at the lower right.

News Flashes

Superintendent and Mrs. W. T. Scott expect to sail from New York on the Queen Elizabeth to attend the International Congregational Christian council in St. Andrew's, Scotland, to be held in June.

Sometime ago we printed the picture showing the group working on their Lord's Acre Plan at Wissler's Chapel in the Valley. Did you see its reproduction in the May 10, issue of the national Church Calendar—the one for "Family Week"?

On Monday evening of this week, the Mothers' Club of the Richmond, Virginia, Church held their annual "Fathers' Night" at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred A. Dofflemyer. This is the one meeting of the year given over to a strictly social evening.

Does any one of our readers know of a church in the Southern Convention which was actually built in the year 1878. If you know of such a church, please jot its name on a post card and send same either to Dr. Scott or to the CHRISTIAN SUN office, here in Richmond. It will be worth while for the church.

Pierre Medard, an "Exchange Student" attending Union Seminary in Richmond, and a former student of Montpelier Seminary in France, was the guest speaker at the Youth Fellowship meeting of our Richmond group last Sunday. His subject was, "What the Churches in France are Doing for Their Youth Groups."

To Dedicate Virginia Valley Church

Dedication of the new building of Bethlehem Congregational Christian Church, Tenth Legion, Virginia, will be on Sunday, May 31, 1953, at 2:00 p. m.

The schedule of services for the day include Sunday school at 10:00 a. m., worship services at 11 o'clock, lunch at 12 noon, and the dedication service in the afternoon.

Many of the former pastors have accepted invitations to take part in the morning worship service. It is expected that Dr. F. C. Lester, the past superintendent of the Southern Convention, will deliver the dedication address.

All friends and former members are invited to be present for the dedication and other services.

RALPH M. GALT,
Pastor.

CLARENCE PHILLIPS,
Ch'n Program Com.

Dedication of Union (Va.) Church Parsonage

The dedication of Union Congregational Christian Church Parsonage was held on May 10, 1953. Following the morning worship service, the congregation assembled on the front lawn of the parsonage. At the dedication service, the notes were burned by Mr. W. L. Gregory, the chairman of the Building Committee, and Mr. Robert Glasscock, treasurer of the church. Mrs. Arthur Tuck made an act of presentation of the parsonage for dedication. The minister, Rev. Mark W. Andes, and the congregation joined in a Litany of Dedication.

The parsonage was completed in March, 1951, at a total cost of $14,780.00. The building is of brick veneer structure, consisting of six rooms and bath. There is ample unfinished space upstairs for two rooms and bath. It is equipped with a forced air heating system.

Members of the Planning Committee were: Acie Morris, Tommie Crowder, W. L. Gregory, Mrs. W. S. Daniel and Mrs. Arthur Tuck.

Members of the Building Committee were: George W. Pollard, W. L. Gregory, Mrs. Arthur Tuck and C. B. Wilkins.

These committees planned and built wisely by visiting parsonages in the vicinity and learning the particular arrangements and needs of a parsonage.

MRS. HENRY B. HITE,
Reporter.

"California Reunion"

On Monday evening, April 27, a reunion of those from the Southern Convention making the trip to California and the General Council last summer on the two busses was held at the Correct Time Inn on Highway 70, west of Burlington, N. C.

Mr. Martin Garren, the president, acted as "Emcee" and read a letter from Dr. N. G. Newman, expressing regret that he could not be present because of his plans for attending the International Congregational Christian Council in St. Andrews, Scotland.

Mr. Avery Maddry and Mr. Bill Goodwin, our two expert bus drivers, were not able to attend because of the many spring tours planned by the Carolina Trailways Co. They sent greetings and regrets to the group.

There were 25 members of Bus C-879 and 24 members of Bus C-876 present and 12 visitors, including several husbands and wives, who had heard so much about this trip they decided to "come and see" for themselves.

Because of the interest shown in this reunion, it was decided that a similar meeting would be held in the fall. All of you who did not attend were missed, and we will look forward to seeing you at the next meeting.

No formal program had been planned, but we found that things moved along at a high rate of interest, just as they did on the trip, and we had much fun recalling some of those wonderful experiences of that "most wonderful" trip.

Now there is talk of a trip to New England and Canada. Are you Going? Can you afford to miss it? Better get in touch with Pattie Lee right away.

RACHEL WALLACE.

First Annual Study Conference Held at Camp New Hope

The feeling and the voting were unanimous. The Southern Convention Ministers' Study Conference, which was held May 12-14, at Camp New Hope, proved to be so valuable, enjoyable and inspirational that the ministers attending voted to make the study conference an annual affair.

This study conference, the first of its kind in the Southern Convention, was shared by thirty of our Southern Convention ministers, representing all of the conferences. The program was varied, including worship, Bible study, lectures, discussions, recreation and food in abundance, with little time for sleeping.

Visiting speakers were: Dr. Shelton Smith, of Duke Divinity School, who spoke on the topic, "What Is the Church"; Dr. Waldo Beach, also of Duke Divinity School, who presented to the group, "The Preacher as a Prophet"; and Mr. Louis A. Potter, organist of the Centenary Methodist Church, Winston-Salem, who spoke on the topic, "Values in Church Music." Each of these lectures and the discussions which followed were informative and inspirational. Another camp visitor was Dr. William G. McKnight, returned missionary from

(Continued on page 15.)

Laymen and the Church . . .

J. Earl Danieley, Editor, Box 515, Elon College, N. C.

Return Them Quickly

Some layman in each one of our churches has received during the past week a questionnaire which is concerned with the work of the church. This is an important step taken to determine to what extent our men are organized, what type of work they have undertaken, and just how much is being accomplished by the laymen. Won't you see to it that the blank for your church is filled out completely and thoughtfully? This can be of great assistance to our entire laymen's program if it is carried through properly. Some of the replies have already been received; others will be in the mail today—please return yours quickly.

* * * * *

The Bible

The following statement was made by the late W. H. Carroll, father of Mrs. Egbert Trollinger of Burlington. It comes from a layman and is certainly worth the time required for us to read it, and having read it, to reflect upon its meaning: "The Bible contains the mind of God, the state of man, the way of salvation, the doom of sinners, and the happiness of believers. Its doctrines are holy, its precepts are binding, its history is true, and its decisions are inevitable. It contains light to direct you, food to support you and joy to comfort you. Read it to be wise, believe it to be safe and practice it to be holy. It is the traveler's map, the pilgrim's staff, the pilot's compass, the soldier's sword and the Christian's charter. Christ is its grand theme, our good its aim, and the glory of God its end. Read it slowly, frequently, prayerfully. It should fill the memory, rule the heart and direct the step. It is a mine of wealth, a paradise of glory and a river of pleasure. It is given us in life, will be opened at the judgment, and remembered forever. It involves the highest responsibility, rewards the greatest labor and condemns all who trifle with its contents. Amen."

* * * * *

Have You Done Your Part?

Several of our Laymen's groups have been doing a fine job in getting the Moonelon project under way. The proposed conference center there will mean much to all of us; we must go forward in the program without delay. Won't you let us know what your church has done and is doing with this worthy project?

* * * * *

You are still there, aren't you? Then write us and let us know what you are doing, and we will use this space to let others keep up with your activities. Thank you.

* * * * *

Laymen of W. N. C. Conference Will Meet on May 30

The Laymen's Fellowship of the Western North Carolina Conference will be meeting in Coleridge, North Carolina, on Saturday, May 30, from 7:30 to 9:30 p. m. We expect a large number of our laymen to be present. We hope that we will have some new groups to report having organized since our last meeting. We have had new Fellowships to report at every meeting for the past year. This means growth, let's keep it up.

The Youth Laymen's Fellowship of our Union Grove Church will have the devotional. We hope you will come to see our future leaders of our church at work. I would like to express a personal word of appreciation to our Union Grove Church for their fine work. This church is to be our host, and will serve fried chicken. Please let Mr. Fred Tedder, Asheboro, N. C., Route 4, know how

(Continued on page 15.)

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr

A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom as represented by the Congregational Christian Churches.

Our Principles

1. The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
2. Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
3. The Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
4. Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and church membership.
5. The right of private judgment and liberty of conscience is a privilege that should be accorded to and exercised by all.

Managing Editor John T. Kernodle

Departmental Editors—Convention, Wm. T. Scott; Missions, F. C. Lester; Women's Work, Mrs. F. C. Lester; Young People's Work, Max Vestal; Children, Mrs. R. L. House; Sunday School Lesson, H. S. Hardcastle.

Institutional Representatives—Elon College, L. E. Smith; The Christian Orphanage, John G. Truitt.

Board of Publications—Duane Vore, Chairman, S. T. Holland, Secretary; R. C. Helfenstein, S. E. Madren, W. W. Snyder, G. D. Colclough, Treasurer, ex officio.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Year $3.00
Two Years 5.00

Published by the Board of Publications of The Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches, Inc. Printed every Thursday except the last in June and December by Central Publishing Co., Inc., Richmond, Va.

Entered as second-class matter at the Post Office at Richmond Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

General contributions should be addressed to the editor at Southern Pines, N. C., and should reach him by Wednesday of the week preceding date of publication.

Departmental material should be sent to the proper departmental editor, at the address shown on their page.

All other material and business communications except regarding subscriptions should be sent to the Office of Publication, 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond 19, Va.

The Christian Sun Subscription Blank

Subscription Price: 1 year, $3.00; 2 years, $5.00

Date.....195....

Dr. Wm. T. Scott, Supt.,
Elon College, N. C.

Enclosed find $..... for which please send The Christian Sun
() 1 year, () 2 years — () New Subscription, () Renewal.

To

Address

Who is a member of Church

() Renew, () Enter my own subscription for () 1 year, () 2 years.

My Name

My Address

From the EDITORIAL Viewpoint

The House of Understanding

An Editorial by the Late
REV. JAS. OSCAR ATKINSON, D. D.

The source of true wisdom, and the house of real understanding, is not the school or a laboratory, or the Executive Mansion, but the Church of the Living God. The Church has given to mankind its greatest teachers, its ablest scholars, its clearest thinkers. There has never been a teacher or a scholar that approaches in intellectual acumen, mental grasp and moral insight the Carpenter of Nazareth. And there was a long line of those who clave unto the Lord, who sought their knowledge from the source of true wisdom, viz: in the tabernacle and at the altar of Jehovah. Of such were Abraham, father and founder of the faithful; Moses, maker of national and international law; David, immortal poet, prophet and king; Solomon, the wisest of the wise; Isaiah, who penetrated the future with a vision clear as the light of day—veritably intellectual giants, these, whose minds were made bright and whose intellects were made keen because they sought knowledge at its source. The words of the wise one still obtain: "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom; and the knowledge of the Holy One is understanding." (Prov. 9:10.) And then as successors to the Carpenter of Nazareth in the realm of intellectual achievement and ability: Peter, the flaming orator and master of assemblies; John, the mystic, the marvelous word-painter and persuasive artist; Paul of Tarsus, to whose name and memory have been erected more monuments, cathedrals and memorials than to any other man who ever lived.

"The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom, and a knowledge of the Holy One is understanding." It is not sufficient to have knowledge; to be practical, persuasive and powerful, with man and measures, one must have understanding. For knowledge of itself is vain and useless unless there is understanding with it.

Thus, while students of science, philosophy and literature pursue their courses for intellectual achievement, if they would have understanding, they must have knowledge of the Holy One; a spirit of reverence and worship and devotion which the House of God can give as no house of man, whether of university or parliament, can give.

Thus, when one begins to leave out of one's life the hour of worship in the House of God, something begins to slip from that life, something begins to snap. Nothing under heaven and amongst men can take the place of worship in the House of the True and Living God. There is no alternative and no substitute. Picnics, golf links, Sunday excursions, house parties, afford their passing pleasures and give entertainment for the day, but if pursued to the neglect of worship and absence from the House of God is repeated, then something begins to take place in that life, something begins to slip in that experience, something begins to tell on him, her or them, who seek such substitutes.

This is not saying that the Church can supplant all other sources of wisdom, of knowledge, of enjoyment; but it is saying that there is no substitute for the Church and for worship in the Church at appointed times and seasons, and the one who leaves this source of wisdom and understanding out of one's reckoning leaves out that which is absolutely essential to a true, happy, well-rounded life.

Facing the Problem of Underpaid Pastors

By REV. ROY C. HELFENSTEIN, D. D.
Pastor of First Church, Richmond, Va.

Ever since I was a small lad, I can remember hearing ministers and also others talk about the inadequate salaries paid the great majority of ministers. No doubt people employed in other professions and vocations have likewise talked about the inadequacy of their compensation. Of course, never has it been true that at any time all ministers have received inadequate salaries. Moreover, it is doubtless true that many of those who have received the highest salaries paid to ministers have been the ministers who made the biggest monetary sacrifice in order to remain in the ministry, by reason of their ability to command even larger salaries in other fields of service. But, feeling that they were called of God to enter the ministry, the more lucrative fields of service in the secular world, which made bid for their talents, made absolutely no appeal to them. This has also been true of many ministers in the lower salary brackets. Most of the highest salaried ministers, however, have had numerous opportunities to receive double the amount of their salaries outside the ministry; but having "set their hand to the plow," no monetary offer outside the ministry could influence them to turn back.

At the same time, it is also true that many ministers in the lower salary bracket receive larger monetary reward for their services than they could receive in any other field of effort. And though "the laborer is worthy of his hire" in the vineyard of the Lord, as in every other vocation or profession, the question of "how much hire" he is worthy of rests with the ability of the man himself to render service. It is ridiculously wrong to generalize on the question of underpaid ministers as if all ministers were receiving unworthy salaries, for thousands of churches pay their ministers generous and adequate salaries. Without question, many ministers receiving small salaries, as well as some receiving large salaries, may be receiving more than they are worth, though in the latter case it would not be for long.

The fact of the matter is, however, that the great majority of pastors in the lower salary brackets are sadly under-paid in the light of the service they render and of their expense in preparing themselves for such service. The importance of the type of service they render should be considered as being of such significance that every self-respecting congregation would insist on paying its pastor a salary which would reflect the church people's appreciation of the superior importance of the mission of the church and of the services rendered by its pastor.

Each congregation should pay its pastor a salary of which it may be proud, and of which the members can freely speak without apology. The amount of salary paid by a church, in the light of its ability to pay, not only reflects the congregation's interest in and sense of fairness to its pastor, but it also reflects the regard which a congregation has for the High Calling of the Ministry and for the church as an institution, ordained of God, to serve people in the present life and to prepare them for "the life beyond."

Every church owes to itself and to its pastor and to the community it serves the distinction of refusing to call a pastor with the salary item to be "like the laws of the Medes and Persians that changeth not." The whole problem of ministers' salaries could be solved in a large measure if every church, when calling a new pastor, would make the stipulation that his salary would be increased each year as the work progresses. This plan offers additional incentive to a pastor (who, like all other men, is human) to do his best work in order that his church may make the most progress possible. Such a plan is business-like and appeals to the business men of any congregation. This plan provides that if the pastor does not produce—if he does not get out and work in making contacts so as to secure new recruits for the membership of his church, if he does not use his ingenuity in devising ways and means to promote the material as well as the spiritual interests of his church, if he does not "study to show himself approved," he should not expect a raise in his salary. But if he has the suggested understanding with his church board and does those things which make for the progress of the church he serves, it should be the natural thing for his board to want to increase his salary in the interest of still greater progress for their church. It is high time that throughout our denomination a more business-like understanding obtain between pastor and church officials when a minister accepts a call.

No pastor should be willing to accept a call to a church with the idea of merely maintaining the "status quo." And any church board which fails to cherish a higher ambition for their church than merely to maintain the "status quo," does not have the moral right to call a pastor to cast his lot with their church. Unless a church is committed to progress and passionately wishes to be "on the march," it needs to go on its knees in prayer for "a vision." Self-respecting pastors insist that the church they serve should "grow and glow and go," and they have a right to expect that they themselves shall be privileged to grow along with their work—that their salaries shall be increased as the work prospers and progresses under their leadership.

The proposed plan is more challenging to both pastor and church than the old plan of calling a pastor and having a fixed permanent salary in the agreement, with the question of possible increase being left out of the consideration—any increase in salary depending upon some thoughtful member of the church board volunteering to present the proposition of raising the pastor's salary, or upon the pastor being embarrassed in having to do what no self-respecting pastor would ever do—ask for a "raise—instead of planning for a "move." The sincere desire on the part of the members of any church board should be to practice the Golden Rule in regard to their pastor's salary, which rule would in itself boost the salary of their under-paid pastor to a reasonably fair amount.

In every other line of employment, provision is made for increased pay from year to year, as the employee proves himself worthy by increased efficiency or increased production. Such a practical, business-like plan is long over-due in the relation of all churches to their pastors. I personally am proud of the fact that each of the four churches I have served as pastor has volunteered this practical plan.

(Continued on page 13.)

Our Churches Report . . .

United Church, Chapel Hill, N. C., Observes Student Sunday

Sunday, April 26, was observed as Student Sunday at the Chapel Hill Church. Members of the Student Fellowship (USF) took complete charge of the service. It was such a thrilling experience for those who attended the service, that we want to share with the readers of THE CHRISTIAN SUN the three talks which made up the sermon for the morning. Let us first identify the participants:

Norman Bowles, a native of Durham, is a senior in the university. He will enter the UNC Medical School next fall. His subject was "Religion, a Growing Process."

John Whittlesay, a native of California, is a graduate student in the Department of Mathematical Statistics. His subject was "A Student Seeks Faith."

The third speaker was Jane Goslin, whose home is in Nashville, Tennessee. She is a Junior with a major in Industrial Arts. She spoke on "The Most Basic Question."

R. L. JACKSON.

* * *

"RELIGION A GROWING PROCESS."

The student comes to the university well versed in the religion of his parents and community. At the university he comes in contact with ideas and beliefs which are directly opposed to those he knew at home. He begins to wonder, can my beliefs be right, do I have the true answer?

In an institution of learning there is a free exchange of ideas. Many of these ideas which oppose his beliefs have very convincing arguments to back them up. Upon what then can he base his beliefs?

Take, for instance, Dawin's theory of evolution. The Bible says God created man from the dust in his own image, but Dawin said we have a common ancestor with the ape. Both of these obviously cannot be true. However, at the university, courses are offered which are taught by men who have made a study of the Bible and the period in which it was written. They point out that the Bible must not always be taken literally, because the men who wrote it lived in a time when things had to be explained with the facts they had on hand. Today, we have more of the facts. This example shows that the Bible must not be taken verbatim as fact, but its main value lies in its philosophy and the standards which it proposes. In this way the university has cleared up the problem which it had created.

Often, however, the course of study brings up questions which the curriculum does not answer. For example, there is a school of philosophy which believes in materialism. Now materialism is rather hard to define, but let's say that they believe that everything is material, that no spiritual thing exists. They would disclaim the evistence of God as a spirit. To disprove their theory, we must prove that there is such a thing as the spiritual, that everything cannot be explained by matter and its properties. This is not easy to do.

The student looking for knowledge, will look for the truth not only in the fields of chemistry, art and mathematics, but also in religion, for truth is the goal of religion as it is in all other fields.

Both religion as the student knew it at home and these theories cannot be right. What is the answer? Education is growing. The student will come to realize as he grows older that religion, too, is a growing process, and when one's religion or beliefs become static, they are no longer of value. At the university, the student experiences growing pains in his search for truth.

* * *

"A STUDENT SEEKS A FAITH."

It is my view that a college training both aids and distracts a student from gaining a true religious awareness. It aids one because it tears away many of his precious beliefs; because instead of giving answers, it destroys the answers he has clung to so firmly; and in their place leaves only questions.

On the other hand, a college training also distracts a student; it distracts him because of the emphasis it gives to ideas, to words, to thoughts, to books. How can a man's mind receive knowledge from God, if he is seeking only answers? How can the student, surrounded by tombs of philosophy, discourses on reason, mono-graphs on psychology, how can he obey the Psalmist's injunction to: "Be still and know that I am God"? How can a mind that is crammed with verbage, ambitions to pass tests, loyal to grade points, how can such a mind truly express a sense of: "Not my will, but Thine, be done"?

Yes one grows in college; but it is not growth alone that the student receives there; for by his reverence for book knowledge he he may loose a keenness for the awareness of God.

The student does grow in college, for he is often freed there from beliefs, which though they may have sprung from the seed of truth, are yet restrictive to him because he has accepted them from some authority, accepted them on authority rather than having tested them in his own experience.

Often he is so freed, but not always. For sometimes a student, confronted with the challenge of education, may choose to wall off his beliefs; holds them from inspection, and, thus dividing his life, grows no further.

And again, there comes a student who allows his education to wash away the foundations of his belief. The rock goes, and yet the form remains; a form that is convenient and socially acceptable. He still keeps the appearances, still shows actions which appear to be in conformity with Christian ethics, but are his reasons for these actions deep enough so that there is real understanding?

Yes, the colleges sometimes destroy beliefs, and thus bring growth. Beyond this, the colleges also teach science, and in that science there is a key to the objectiveness and impartiality from which true religion grows.

But what student, confronted with examinations, with assignments, and laboratories, what student takes time in college to become aware of the existence of God?

No, the colleges, even though they may sometimes succeed in dissolving beliefs (beliefs which have shackled a man and kept him from his own deep understanding), even so succeeding, they usually fail to inspire him to the drive for understanding, that thirst for truth, the passion for true contact with real world . . . which no matter how described, can be but best realized as the Love of God.

No, where the universities fail, the churches must seek to prevail—and thus restore to man his most valuable and natural birth-right—the right to learn of the Will of God.

(Continued on page 8.)

News of Elon College

PRESIDENT L. E. SMITH, Elon College, N. C.

Plans Complete for Commencement at Elon

Plans are complete for the sixty-third annual commencement program at Elon College, which will come to a close with the graduation exercises on Monday morning, May 25.

The senior class and the alumni of the college will be honored at a commencement ball in Alumni Memorial Gymnasium on Friday evening, May 22, with many alumni expected to be present and to remain on the campus for the Alumni Day exercises on Saturday, May 23.

The Alumni Day program will begin with meetings of eleven reunion classes on Saturday morning, followed by a picnic luncheon at 12:30 o'clock, the business meeting of the General Alumni Association at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon, and the annual Alumni Banquet at 6:30 o'clock on Saturday evening.

Featured speaker of the Alumni Banquet will be Dean J. C. Peele, of Florida Southern College, Lakeland, Florida, a member of Elon's Class of 1915.

Rev. Edward W. W. Lewis, pastor of the United Congregational Church of Norwalk, Conn., will preach the baccalaureate sermon at 11:30 o'clock on Sunday morning, May 24. Other Sunday events include the annual vesper recital by the Elon Choir at 4 o'clock, and the presentation of Brahm's "Requiem" at 8:30 o'clock Sunday evening by the Elon Singers.

Senator Willis Smith, North Carolina's junior member of the United States Senate, will deliver the commencement address at 10:30 o'clock Monday morning, May 25, when diplomas and degrees will be presented to 75 members of the senior class. The presentation of diplomas and degrees will be by President Leon E. Smith.

* * * * *

Entrance and Graduation

In outlining its course of studies looking toward requirements for a Bachelor of Arts Degree, Elon College is, of necessity, in part guided by the course of studies required by our high schools for graduation. Twenty to forty years ago there were enough students entering Elon College to justify the inclusion of Latin in our college curriculum. In 1936, however, we were compelled to discontinue instruction in Latin. There was no demand for it. The last class we had in Latin numbered two only. I understand that very few high schools include Latin in their curriculums.

Elon College requires two years of foreign language for graduation. Many high school graduates apply for entrance who have had no foreign language at all. Students entering Elon College without credits in foreign language are required to take four years of foreign language while in Elon College—two at the high school level for which the student receives no credit and two at the college level for which he does receive credit. This means that the college must make up for the deficiency sustained in high school. To do this work that should have been done in high school, is expensive in time and money. It is work that we have already paid for through taxation.

At present, Elon College is receiving applications for entrance in September from students who report very low grades, indicating a very low grade of work in high school. Many of these students with low grades have good minds and are college material. The trouble is that they have not learned to study. They know nothing about studying. If, by close attention and association, you can pilot them through the freshman year, a good percentage of these students with low grades make good students and become useful citizens.

The big question is which to admit to college. Some schools simply deny all students with low grades the privilege of college life. The position that Elon College has always taken is that a student with a high school diploma from an accredited high school should be given an opportunity to prove his ability or inability to do college work. This generous attitude of Elon College toward the high school graduate with low grades is no excuse for the grade of work being done in our high schools today. There should be a determined effort on the part of those in charge of public education to improve teaching technique as well as being more specific in curriculum requirements.

It is not the purpose of public education in this country to have pupils to pass through the grades and graduate from high school and feel that they are sufficiently prepared to take their place in the complicated society which is ours today. But the time is here when we should recognize that to prepare the youth of today for the responsibilities of tomorrow, a complete course of studies extending on through graduation from an accredited college is the minimum educational requirement. It is necessary for citizens in preparation to understand certain compulsory requirements that they may appreciate the freedom guaranteed under the Constitution of the United States and endorsed by the precedents and ideals of our country.

The privately endowed colleges of the United States will not be deprived of their privileges of building their curriculums and determining their requirements for entrance and their requirements for graduation. These colleges appreciate our tax supported schools under political control, but desire to be free in their choices and programs.

* * * * *

Apportionment Giving

Psychologists tell us that you can do one thing over and over again until finally it becomes a habit. It becomes second nature to repeat the act.

For years and years Elon College has been an object of support by the individuals and the churches of the Southern Convention. Not all individuals in the churches and not all churches in the convention have given support to the college every year, but many of them have. There are those who, when they make up their budgets or consider their objects of charity, include Elon College. There are churches that, when they make their budget for the year, would not think of leaving Elon College out of their list of causes to be supported. These facts have kept Elon College's doors open and operating in the field of Christian higher education. As a result, the fruits of the college have been a benediction to the church as a whole. We are all aware of the increased needs of the college. We should not, we do not look to someone else to be more generous in the support of the college than we ourselves. Aside from giving support to a worthy cause, we add to our own happiness by making these contributions. In these days of high cost of

(Continued on page 9.)

"The Family Holds Together"

By REV. HENRY E. ROBINSON, Burlington, North Carolina

No. 2 of a Series of Four Meditations

St. Paul, in one of his epistles, once said: "I have learned in whatsoever state I am to therein be content." A superficial reading of this passage may give the impression that Paul had learned to always be satisfied no matter what happened. The word "contented" is derived from two Latin words, con and teneo, which mean "to hold together." Paul had learned how to hold himself together under the stress, strife and struggle in which an early Christian missionary was called upon to live.

My thought for you is that one of the functions of the home is exactly that: to hold life together when it is under the strains and pressures of modern living.

Let us consider some of these. We are called upon to live with crowded schedules. We travel at high speeds, figuratively and literally. The other day our President left Augusta, Ga., in the morning. He gave an address in Washington at noon; threw out the first ball at the opening of the baseball season, and then flew to Salisbury, N. C., where he gave another address, returning to Augusta in the evening. We have become so accustomed to such schedules that we no longer question or marvel at them. But we can scarcely expect our bodies and minds to shoulder three times what they are capable of doing without frequent breakdowns or near breakdowns. If there is to be rest, quiet, calm, peace—surely it is the place of the home to supply them, that refreshment and new strength can come into our lives.

Almost without realizing it, we have allowed ourselves to become over organized. Our days are filled with all manner of meetings and group activities which take us away from family and home. Even our high school students belong to so many clubs they can scarcely keep up their studies.

The nature of modern business takes many husbands away for extended travel. To meet the rising cost of living many wives have returned to shop and factory to bring in additional income. These and other trends are pulling people away from the family circle, each member following his own interests. A tremendous challenge is laid before the home to hold life together against these forces which would pull it apart. The homemakers and heads of families today are called upon to make their homelife so attractive and intrinsically valuable that the interests of the family shall be paramount and shall be the cohesive forces which cement personality together. Occasionally I hear a person say that they just have to get away from home for a while to collect themselves. Is this not a sad commentary on what a home should be?

John or Mary come home from school in the afternoon and open the door and shout: "Hi, Mom!" Is the answer a hollow echo, or is it the real life voice of the parent standing by to give the snack, speak the assuring word, check on the afternoon program and the future whereabouts of the child who has just checked in at headquarters. The very presence of that parent is laying an invisible foundation in the life of the child—namely, a sense of security and well-being which drives away doubt and fear.

Living close together breeds a natural desire to share individual problems and concerns. To what higher court can an appeal be made than to a family circle whose first premise is the good of all and whose first statute is the law of love. We do not fear or brood on our problems when we know that those who love us are sharing them. This is the family holding life together. How much to be preferred than picking up the pieces of a life broken by poor decisions born in doubt and insecurity.

If the family is to hold life together, then give it a chance by actually being together. It's all right for Junior to go play ball with the boys, for Dad to have his golf game, for Mom to do her gardening, and for Sister to go to the movies. Each of us has to follow his particular likes. That is right and natural. But individual desires must not crowd out those occasions when the family as a unit can work or play together. Picnics, trips, vacations, or just an old-fashioned hymn-sing about the piano pay rich dividends. When trouble or sorrow come, it is not golf, foreshadow, baseball team, or bridge club that will hold life together—it is the family circle which has been welded together by common interests and activities which will supply the foundations and bind the broken cords.

OUR CHURCHES REPORT. . . .

(Continued from page 6.)

"THE MOST BASIC QUESTION."

When we were children, our interests were not very broad. Parents, a few friends and our immediate material surroundings made up our world. This world began to expand as we started through school, meeting many other people, each one different from the other. We not only met new friends, but learned in many other areas not even dreamed of.

Since first grade, we have learned, with each day and with each fact to enrich our lives and broaden them to include many new skills and interests. With this new knowledge has come many questions. Here in college many of life's meaningful questions have come up for the first time and must be thought out and worked on throughout the rest of our lives.

The most basic question which all others lead to is "Shall I be a Christian?" Will I be able to love God and my neighbor? Does the Christian faith have anything to do with me? Will I try my best to live a Christian life?

College seems to be the place where many people make a decision for Christianity. What was once curiosity takes on a new, a fuller meaning. It is a directed search for God.

The church can serve anyone who is an active and growing Christian. Everyone is in some stage along the way in their search for God. The gathering of people with a common goal to aid each other is an important reason for the church. It is important for the student to come in contact with a church whose main purpose is this—a church which he feels is alive and active—a church that is thinking and growing. People ought to realize that one person has not gotten as close to God as the next! He hopes that the congregation will accept him as he is, white or black, ignorant or educated, Christian or not! He hopes the congregation will accept him for what he is trying to become.

A student looks for a church whose values are genuinely Christian, a church where each individual is urged to think through his faith for himself. A student wants a church that is not satisfied or content with its Christianity as it is, but is still moving forward and outward, a movement in which he is a part.

Church Women at Work

With Emphasis on Missions

MRS. F. C. LESTER, Editor

840 Sunset Avenue, Asheboro, N. C.

The Eighth Annual School of Missions

The eighth annual School of Missions will be held at Elon College, from June 16 to 19, according to announcement by Mrs. W. B. Williams, president of the Women's Convention which sponsors the event. The sessions will begin the afternoon of Tuesday, June 16, and will continue until noon on Friday, June 19. The first meal will be dinner on Tuesday evening and the last meal will be lunch on Friday.

Every women's society within the Southern Convention should plan to have some representation at this important meeting, when plans for the coming year are presented in detail. One feature of the School of Missions this year will be workshops in which practical helps will be given for the local society.

Rev. Quentin Leisher, special representative of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, from our Boston office, will present "The Life and the Task of the Church Around the World." Miss Marjory Martin, new Friendly Service Secretary for the Missions Council, from our New York office, will present "Spanish Speaking Americans in the U. S. A." Dr. H. S. Hardcastle the pastor of Oakland and Berea churches in our Eastern Virginia Conference, and writer of the Sunday School Lesson comments in THE CHRISTIAN SUN, will teach the Bible study of "Eight Selected Psalms."

One of the special features of the School of Missions will be the first showing in this area of the new film, "Hidden Heart," which is to be shown in Congregational Christian churches throughout the country next fall and winter.

The entire cost of the School of Missions will be ten dollars, which will include registration fee, board and room. Many societies pay the expenses of their delegates, or share in their expense. This is a fine thing to do.

* * * * *

A Skit You Can Use

The following poetic "skit" about the School of Missions was written by

Mrs. Eleanor Wheless and Mrs. Carl Wallace. Mrs. Wheless from the New Hope Church in Eastern North Carolina, and her minister's wife, Mrs. Wallace, presented the skit at the fellowship dinner of the Women's Convention in Burlington recently. It might be used in a women's society or in Sunday school for the purpose of getting across the importance of our women attending the School of Missions:

SCHOOL OF MISSIONS

TEACHER (goes to door):

Good evening, good evening, please come in,

What can I do to help you, my friend?

CHURCH WOMAN (entering):

I've come wondering what I can do,
I have work in my church, but ideas so few.

TEACHER:

Well, sit right down; I know just the time and place

Where you can get help if that is your case.

CHURCH WOMAN:

I've studied and wondered while trying to read

And now I'm here to tell you my need.

I want to help in my church work

And learn to show others how not to shirk.

With plans, dear teacher, I'm not adept,
Would you give me now a little help?

The Bible I've studied and still can't explain,

Maybe I need to go to school again.

TEACHER:

If to learn to tell others of such a great need,

And how to go about performing this deed,

I'm glad you decided on coming here

For many other women are like you, I fear.

And for those who need these things to know

Our School of Missions is the place to go.

In the four days there when we meet in June,

All who attended get right in tune.

CHURCH WOMAN:

Where is this school so right for me?

I must get ready, and plan there to be.

TEACHER:

Dr. Smith, our college and lovely ground,
A more ideal place could never be found.

For old and young this school is planned—
No church woman need ever be banned.

I'm not too young, you're not too old

Both of our notions will fit in this mold.

Older and younger than us will be there
And leaders so very able and rare.

CHURCH WOMAN:

Well, when is this school you rave about?
That all church women will like, no doubt.

TEACHER:

June 16th through 19th; the date that's set

Is about as good a time as they'd ever get.

CHURCH WOMAN:

For farmers like me it suits just fine,
If the ladies from town will fall in line.
But what are some things that we will learn

Before it's over, and we adjourn?

TEACHER:

There'll be lectures and pictures of the needs everywhere

And we'll learn how to do our share.

These pictures of work in the foreign fields

Show us their problems, and really appeal.

This year a few changes there will be,

But they're much better as you will see.

Now workshops for us have been arranged;

This is one way the program is changed.
For from ideas we gain in each little shop

More real thought, and questions will pop.

CHURCH WOMAN:

Teacher, this cause is so urgent to me

I'd like to help others at home see

That the knowledge we gain from taking a part

May solve the problems closest our heart.

But with such a fine program, and such wonderful care,

It would be too expensive for me to go there.

TEACHER:

You can afford it, it seems to me;

It's just ten dollars, a very small fee.

CHURCH WOMAN:

Thank you, my dear, you are a treasure,
I'm going to Elon for study and pleasure.

And after all is over 'twill have been a vacation,

Helped all to form a friendlier relation.

(Exit.)

TEACHER:

Just think what the Southern Convention could do,

If all were interested instead of just a few.

(Exit.)

NEWS OF ELON COLLEGE.

(Continued from page 7.)

living and multiplicity of demands, I know that you, individuals and churches, will not overlook the needs of the college or turn deaf ears to its appeals.

Previously Reported $ 3,653.01

Eastern N. C. Conference:

Moore Union $12.00

Plymouth 9.75

Sanford 82.00

Eastern Va. Conference:

Liberty Spring 171.00

274.75

Youth at Work in the Church

REV. MAX VESTAL, R. 1, Asheboro, N. C.

Western North Carolina Conference Youth Rally

Rally Day—May 31—is rapidly approaching, and Smithwood is the designated place. Instead of having a period for registration, each group will make their own tags. The tags should be made to represent something grown in your area, or perhaps a symbol characterizing the name of your church. It will be fun making these tags, and at the Rally seeing those of other churches. Have your name, address and church plainly printed on your tag. If you hold an office in your group put that down, too.

The program planned will be most informative as well as interesting. The young people of the various churches are in charge of it. All of those asked to have a part on the program have not been heard from yet, but those who have been heard from are doing their very best to make this one of the most enjoyable rallies yet held.

The opening worship will be by the Randleman Young People, whose pastor is Rev. Winfred Bray. This will be followed by a business session. In January the executive group met at Seagrove and drew up some goals for the Young People of this conference. These were, if approved by general consent, to go into effect when this year is out. They recommend:

First. That officers be elected for two years. This would give them a chance to become better acquainted with their duties.

Second. For the local groups, we tried to set forth goals that could be carried out not only by Youth Fellowship groups, but by Sunday school classes or churches without an organized society or class. At the end of our year those goals realized are to be reported at the Rally.

1. Attend all Rallies.

2. Help locally some helpful project. (Suggestions: painting, a bulletin board for church or Sunday school, purchasing offering plates or communion service, purchasing new hymnals, fixing up Sunday school room, or buying a new rug.)

3. Send at least one young person to Summer Camp or Conference.

4. Send in news articles to Max Vestal for Youth Page in THE CHRISTIAN SUN, about your young people, Sunday school or church.

After the business session, we are planning to take up an offering for Moonelon. We hope to have Rev. Henry Robinson, who is in charge of this project, to explain its purpose to us. Since our group agreed to help in this project, we should take an offering for it.

Mr. Thomas Madren has been asked to lead the group singing.

We are building the program proper around the important emphases and activities of the work of young people's societies and classes: Worship programs, and service projects. The Asheboro church will be in charge of presenting the topic of Worship. The program suggestions will be given by the Albemarle Young People, and service projects by the Hank's Chapel Youth Group. After each topic is given, there will be a short time given for general questions. Following this will be supper.

After supper (and all of you are certainly planning to stay for it—just bring a picnic lunch, the host church will furnish the drinks), we will have Rev. Bill Simmons to lead our recreation.

For the night program, there will be an outdoor Vesper Service to be led by Rev. Max Vestal and his Pleasant Ridge Young People. This will be most beneficial and inspiring.

Please see that your young people have a chance to attend the Rally. The older folks can come along, too. Remember you are as young as you feel!

CLEM SHANKLE,
President.

* * * * *

Relax With Max

For those of you who are not fortunate enough to attend a minister's conference, here are a few of the happenings on the lighter side at the conference held at Camp New Hope last week.

1. Rev. Howard Bozarth, swinging hard at a slow ball served up by Max Vestal, threw himself to the ground with a vengeance, skinning a knee, an arm and his pride. (P. S. He dusted himself off and laced out a double.)

2. Dr. Wisseman, of Greensboro, came up with a Charlie Horse (that's baseball talk for a pulled muscle) when he ran too fast to first base. After that he had to hit the ball far enough so that he wouldn't have to run so fast.

3. Rev. Mack Welch, Greensboro's sportsman par excellence, led his teams to victory in all major sports, including softball, volleyball and ping pong. Being very modest, Mack's only statement for the press was: "We can't be beat."

4. Rumor around the camp had it that Max Vestal's softball teams were so badly beaten because when they came to bat a soft ball and a hard umpire were used, while when the other team was batting, a hard ball and a soft umpire were in play. An official protest may be lodged, but this reporter was unable to contact Dr. Scott, president of the league, for confirmation. The host of umpires could not be reached for comment.

5. All the speakers were actually given the bird. Beautiful red and yellow birds (the ecclesiastical authorities were unable to agree as to the species) flew around the outdoor meetings, attracting a great deal of attention. One real sure-enough live gray fox walked within a hundred yards of the camp meeting. Whether or not he was a spy was not known, and he is still at large. It is comforting, however, to know that he is not a red. He is grey.

6. Lanson Granger seemed to have the alarming faculty of asking the speakers questions just before they were ready to cover that topic in their presentation. It was not generally agreed upon as to what power he possessed. Some said he was a mystic, others thought he had read the same books the speakers had, while the biggest majority felt that he was just guessing. This majority was led by Melvin Dollar.

7. Henry Robinson, who volunteered to name all the ministers present at the dining table, was laughed to his seat when he missed out on the first name. In all fairness to Mr. Robinson, I feel that it should be pointed out that he might have known at least one of the ministers there.

8. Dr. Waldo Beach, of Duke Di-
(Continued on page 11.)

A Page for Our Children

MRS. R. L. HOUSE, Editor, Southern Pines, N. C.

A Near Forgotten Benefactor

Possibly all of the inhabitants of the globe know the word rubber in some language, and millions are familiar with the word oxygen, but the name, Joseph Priestly, is relatively unknown.

Priestly, who was born in England 220 years ago, discovered that small pieces from a ball of crude rubber sent him by a friend in South America, would erase pencil marks. He called the pieces rubbers, and so the word rubber came into use.

While studying for the ministry, Priestly interested himself in chemistry, and in 1774 discovered oxygen. His first pastorate was in Leeds, England. As a non-conformist, he sided with the French revolutionists, and became a booster for American independence. For these views, a mob set fire to his house and his chapel. His books and scientific instruments were also destroyed.

Coming to America as a refugee, Priestly settled in Philadelphia, and among his other accomplishments, he founded the city's First Unitarian Church. Later, he was offered a professorship at the University of Pennsylvania, and was even tendered the office of president of the institution. He refused both positions and continued to work alone. In 1804 he moved to Northumberland, where he died. His house is preserved by the city as a shrine.

* * *

Watch for coming contest. Be ready—prizes!

* * * * *

"Practice in Being Needed"

By HELEN GREGG GREEN.

Issued by the National Kindergarten Association.

"What a pretty picture Jane Varnum and Louise presented in their mother-daughter dresses!" I was speaking to my friend, Martha Shelton, as we sat in my office at the library, where we had been making out a list of books for the crippled children's ward of the city hospital. Through the glass door we could see the children's reading room and the pretty mother and daughter looking over some books.

"Yes," my friend agreed, "they do look nice together, but I fear that in giving Louise such constant attention Jane is making the mistake that I made with my daughter, Helen. The time may come when neither mother nor daughter will have any life of her own."

"But you have a life of loving service," I protested.

"Thank you, Lucia," Martha Shelton's eyes misted as she added, "My days are too full for loneliness now, but there was once a time when I followed a very lonely road."

Briefly my friend sketched her earliest years. "During Helen's childhood," she told me, "our family life proceeded along a normal pattern. I shared my husband's interests as well as those of my daughter, and I had pleasant contacts of my own. Then came the day my husband was drowned while trying to save the life of a comrade; they were on a fishing trip and their boat had overturned. After that tragic loss I found comfort in the fact that I still had my daughter. I dropped everything else and centered my attention on Helen."

"Normal companionship between mothers and daughters is, of course, desirable," she commented, "but my attachment to Helen became too excluding. While she was in high school and college I lived only to clothe her and to follow her progress with joy and pride. We shared a love of musical education. It did not occur to me that she might become proficient enough for concert work or that she might wish to marry. I looked ahead only to the time when she could come home to stay."

"In her senior year my dream was shattered when she brought with her as a holiday guest the man who was to become her husband, a fine young organist who was doing graduate work at the college. I shall always be glad that my love for my daughter was strong enough to impel me to hide from both of them my despair at the time of their marriage and departure to a distant home."

"After that," Martha continued, "I was utterly benumbed. One monotonous day followed another in my big, empty house, and I dreaded the coming of each new morning. The event that roused me from my selfish stupor was a visit to the crippled children in the city hospital, where I now spend so much time. A friend who had been making regular visits to the children became ill and asked me to take her place. Automatically I refused, but my friend pleaded so urgently that I finally agreed to go.

"Crippled children come to Barnard for treatment from all over the state," she explained. "Many of their mothers are far away. Some of them have no mothers. That day of my first visit there was something in the need of those gallant youngsters that tore away the hard sheath of self-pity from my heart. I soon found myself going to visit them more and more often, as I came to understand that in addition to their genuine pleasure there was therapeutic value in such mothering as I could give them."

"Later I learned, too that many other places in the world are in the same need of a mother's kindly interest. I wished I had not spent so much time in giving Helen more attention than was good for her, while other little children were starved for lack of such care and guidance."

"Now I am convinced," Martha concluded, "that all mothers should have a little practice in being needed outside of their own homes, both for the benefit of themselves and for all who need their love. The world will always need mothers."

RELAX WITH MAX.

(Continued from page 10.)

vinity School, said this was the common definition of sins: They're things you aren't supposed to do that are kind'a fun.

9. Page Painter, David Crowle and Max Vestal entertained themselves with their hillbilly band. Guy Veazey and John Lackey seemed to be the only two outside the band who enjoyed the music. Of course it is only fair to point out that genius often goes unappreciated. Most of the men seemed to feel that the faster it went the better!

10. I really hate to tell the tenth thing. Like all good things the conference came to an end. While the racing preachers prepared to speed back to Eastern Virginia, the rest of us went back to our work. When you are at camp, there's no place like camp, but when you're at home, the old saying still goes, "There's no place like home."

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE, D. D.

"The Way of Christian Love"

LESSON IX—MAY 31, 1953.

MEMORY SELECTION: "But now abideth faith, hope, love, these three; but the greatest of these is love."—I Corinthians 13:13.

LESSON: I Corinthians 13.

All was not "sweetness and light" in the Corinthian church. There were discords and disharmonies in it. There was party spirit, self-centered pride, pride in superior knowledge, pride in spiritual possessions such as speaking with tongues, the gift of prophecy, conceit and many other kindred sins of the spirit. These things pained Paul and he wrote to correct them. He makes two appeals, or two approaches to the problem. First of all he reminds them that the church is like a body with many members, and unless the members function properly, and in cooperation one with another, the body cannot do well. In like manner must the church with all its diversity, find unity in Christ, and work together.

Then Paul goes on to suggest another, and a better way, to end these dissensions. He suggests the way of love. There is no exact word in the classical Greek for the word which Paul uses for love, and our English equivalent is not a precise translation. He was not, of course, referring to what is so often called love by many people, a soft, sentimental emotion, and especially the counterfeit love which is so often portrayed in pictures and on radio and television, as well as in much modern literature. Nor does he mean the self-possessive love which finds expression in the mother who dominates her child, or the husband or wife who smothers his or her mate in a love that is primarily selfish, or in the narrow sectarian who expresses his love by claiming that his sect possesses God exclusively and can dictate the only true way into his presence. Paul means by "love" self-giving, self-sacrificing love. Its dominating desire is to share. It overflows one's life in loving service to others.

Love Contrasted.

Paul contrasts love with some of the things that were greatly prized by the Corinthians, and highly exalted by them. "The tongues of men and of angels"—how they desired powers of oratory, especially the "gift of tongues," the ability to speak in unknown tongues. "So what?" says Paul. If one had the gift of eloquence of even an angel from heaven, but did not have love, what he said would be a raucous noise like hitting a gong or cymbal with a stick. Only love gives season to speech.

Or the gift of prophecy, the insight into the great mysteries, superior knowledge—these were highly prized gifts in the eyes of the Corinthians. And so they were. But again, "So what?" Unless all these were born of love and kept under the spirit of love, they did not amount to anything. This was true, even of faith. And Jesus and Paul both put a high value on faith.

And philanthropy and charity, even the highest expression of devotion, martyrdom, were of no profit unless they were motivated by love. Works of charity and gifts of philanthropy are sometimes the expression of one's power and pride. Even these great acts can be spoiled by selfish egoism. Only love gives meaning to them.

Love Analyzed.

As a boy takes a prism and, by holding it in the light of the sun, breaks down a ray of light into its component parts, so does Paul pass love through his inspired intellect—and he was inspired when he wrote these words—and give us some of its features. He did not, and could not, give an exhaustive analysis of love; he emphasized the things that were lacking in the lives of the Corinthian Christian.

Love suffereth long—it is patient, patient with the faults of others, patient under suffering, patient while waiting for results. Love is patient.

Love is kind. Mercy is its trademark, kindness its first principle, and loving acts its primary expression.

Love envieth not. Love is not jealous. It can rejoice in another's good fortune. It can be content with what one has without casting covetous eyes upon what others have. It learns in whatsoever state it is, therewith to be content.

Love vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up. Love does not strut itself.

It does not show off, does not boast, is not proud. Love is humble, meek, willing to take second place. It does not seek the headlines. It is willing to sing in the chorus, and not always demand the solo. Love is humble.

Love does not behave itself unseemly. Love is good manners in action. It is courteous. It is polite. It is the mark of a true gentleman or gentle woman.

Love seeketh not its own. There is a love, already referred to, which is possessive, which does seek its own. But the kind of love Paul is writing about does not. This love is unselfish and is self-giving. It shares, gives, sacrifices, suffers.

Love is not provoked—a better translation is "is not easily provoked." Perhaps it is asking too much of love not ever to be provoked. Certainly it does not always approve. But love is not easily provoked. It has deep resources of patience and self-control under provocation.

Love does not keep books, either concerning what it does for others, and especially concerning what others do against us. It has no desire to "get even." It does not "pay back in one's own coin." It marks slights and unkindness and wrongs off the books. It keeps no accounts.

Love does not rejoice in unrighteousness, but rejoices in the truth. It has no part with those who rejoice in a morsel of gossip that is unkind or nasty. It is hurt when something is said about another. On the other hand, it rejoices in truth and in goodness and in righteousness.

Love never fails, or never ends. It bears all things, believes all things, hopes all things, endures all things. Love does not wear out. It just keeps on loving. The kind of love Paul is thinking about endures all the vicissitudes of time and of eternity. And love alone conquers. It conquers where all else fails.

Love Immortalized.

All other things will pass away. The need for prophecy will be done away. Speaking with tongues shall cease, it ceased soon after Paul's words were written. Even knowledge is superseded by new knowledge. But love goes on its way. It ranks with the great imperishables, faith and hope. But it is greater than even these. "Faith, hope, love, these three; but the greatest of these is love."

Based on "International Sunday School Lessons;" Copyrighted 1951 by Division of Christian Education, National Council of the Churches in the U. S. A.

Western Carolina Church Building Loan Fund Committee Plans Area Meetings

The Church Building Loan Fund Committee of the Western North Carolina Conference is planning to have two area meetings of our churches to discuss the needs of this endeavor. We hope to be able to give to our churches some information about the great need for new churches in this vast country of ours. There are millions of young people without religious training. We have a great opportunity today to do something about our Father's business of building his kingdom. We trust that our churches will come to Seagrove on May 25, and to Pleasant Hill on May 26.

The committee suggests that the following churches come to the Seagrove meeting on May 25, at 7:30 p. m.: Big Oak, Biscoe, Brown's Chapel, Ether, Flint Mill, Grace's Chapel, Mt. Pleasant, Needham's Grove, New Center, Providence Chapel, Shady Grove, Shiloh, Albemarle and Bennett.

Antioch (C), Ramseur, Smithwood, Pleasant Cross, Hanks Chapel, Randalman, and Zion, are asked to meet at Pleasant Hill at the same time on May 26.

If any church finds that it cannot go to the suggested place, or if the other meeting is more convenient, it should feel free to go there.

A movie, "The Basis of the Blue Print," will be shown at each meeting. Everyone will be welcome, but we would like to insist the the Sunday school superintendent, the secretary, the treasurer, the chairman of the Board of Deacons, the president of the Women and the president of the Pilgrim Fellowship attend.

S. H. PELL,
Chairman.

Church Building Loan Fund Campaign

All churches in the Southern Convention have been asked to file Declarations of Purpose in connection with the Church Building Loan Fund Campaign with the Convention Office as soon as they can do so. Those that have not done so are urged to do so as soon as possible.

Through May 16, 1953, Southern Convention Declarations of Purpose received at the office were as follows:

Church and Pastor	Amount
Va. Valley Central Conference:
Wissler's Chapel—Ralph M. Galt	$ 60.00

Eastern Va. Conference:

Liberty Spring—Jesse H. Dollar	$1,591.00
Richmond—Roy C. Helfenstein	1,459.00
Suffolk—Duane N. Vore	6,290.00

Eastern N. C. Conference:

Amelia—John Littiken	$ 400.00
Beulah—Carl Wallace	517.00
Henderson—J. F. Apple	1,087.00
Hope Mills—Vacant	†195.00
Lee's Chapel—Fred P. Register	†166.00
Raleigh—W. L. Parker	975.00
Shallow Well—W. L. Wood	300.00
Southern Pines—Vacant	1,981.00
Turner's Chapel—W. L. Wood	300.00
Wake Chapel—F. P. Register	1,500.00

Western N. C. Conference:

Asheboro—F. C. Lester	$ 775.00
Liberty—L. M. Presnell	361.00
Spoon's Chapel—Max Vestal	132.00

N. C. and Va. Conference:

Burlington:
Beverly Hills—W. W. Snyder	$ 400.00
Lakeview—John G. Truitt, Jr.	82.50
Elon College—H. P. Bozarth	2,450.00
Haw River—Dwight Jackson	1,065.00
Reidsville—T. G. Humphries	*3,211.00
Union (NC)—K. D. Register	1,395.00
Winston-Salem—W. J. Andes	814.00
Zion—Fred H. Wrenn (Student)	75.00

*Reidsville reported having accepted quota, but Declaration had not been received by the Convention office at the time this report was mailed.

†Paid.

FACING THE PROBLEM OF UNDERPAID PASTORS.

(Continued from page 5.)

Our denomination has a very definite responsibility at this particular time to help its churches in the open country, villages and towns to realize that, as the incomes in every other field of service have increased in recent years, so that lay-folk might match the drastic increased cost of living, that likewise their minister's salary should be commensurately increased.

The wages for common labor have been more than trebled and quadrupled in the past ten years, but many of our small town and open-country churches are today paying the same salaries they paid twenty years ago, having somehow failed to realize that living costs for their ministers have increased on the same ratio as have those of laborers, mechanics, clerks, and people in every other field of employment. Section hands on the railroads now receive $7.50 or more a day, whereas only a few years ago their wage was but $1.75 a day. Certainly no church that employs a full-time pastor would consider his services to the church and the community are not worth at least as much as the services of a section hand. Yet if the church feels that its pastor's services are worth at least as much as are the services of a section hand, it certainly cannot feel justified in paying him less than a section hand's annual income.

Twenty-five hundred dollars a year and house provided, should therefore be the very minimum salary paid to any full-time pastor by any church in our denomination, if it estimates the importance of a pastor's services as being on par with that of a railroad section hand. But if a church has a higher estimate of the importance of the full-time services rendered by its minister, the minimum salary paid should reflect the fact as to how much more important. Moreover, every pastor serving a small town or open country church should be provided with a telephone, and allowed at least $200.00 a year for the use of his automobile in rural parish work. The telephone in the parsonage is there in the interest of the parish and not merely to enable the pastor's wife to use it in ordering groceries. The repairs on and depreciation of the rural pastor's car and the gasoline and oil used in parish service constitute an expense that the members of the congregation should share, instead of its being borne entirely by the pastor.

Such a plan may call for greater sacrifice on the part of the members of a congregation, but the self-respect of any congregation that accepts the plan will rise as quickly as the mercury in a thermometer placed in the sunshine, and the spirit of the pastor will be quickened with new joy, new determination and new purposes for his church. Indeed, a new day of larger service will dawn for any church having an under-paid pastor if it will step ahead in these things.

"The Lord's Acre" plan has been a God-send to hundreds of rural churches in helping them to solve their financial problems and in treating their pastor as a man instead of as a hired servant. Also the yoking of small-town village and country churches into "a larger parish"—when as individual churches their struggling along seems to no avail, has worked wonders for the churches and their communities.

Somebody said that it couldn't be done
But they with a chuckle replied
That maybe it couldn't, but still there were none

In their crowd who would quit, till they'd tried.

So they buckled right in with a trace of a grin

On their faces, if worried, they hid it.
And they started to sing as they tackled
the thing

That couldn't be done. And they did it.

The Orphanage

J. G. TRUITT, Superintendent

Dear Friends:

Our orphanage home is very deeply grieved on account of the death of Thurman Arnold. He was flown by a twin-motored VC-47 passenger plane on Monday morning, May 11, to Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore. Arrangements were made by the local Red Cross Chapter, Mrs. Ada B. Dorsett, director, with the Army Air Force, Pope Field, Fayetteville, N. C., for this trip. The plane was flown by Col. Gordon Blood, with Maj. Joe Littleton as copilot and M-Sgt. Vance Brown as flight engineer. An editorial in the Burlington Times-News characterized this as "a mercy flight like the wings of an angel flying a mission of love."

We were proud of the church which could offer through channels of humankindness and brotherly cooperation such care and consideration, proud of the physicians that attended him, proud of the nurses and many friends, and proud of the United States Army Air Force which designated the service of a plane worth a quarter of a million dollars and manned it with Colonel, Major and Master Sargent, to make this mercy flight.

Dr. Rippy was the attending physician, and Dr. Talbert King and several others were physicians consulted.

Thurman died Wednesday morning at 2:35, EST. He was under the care at Johns Hopkins of Dr. Helen Taussing, nationally known heart specialist. He was given top attention, but all efforts to save him failed. His death was attributed to myocarditis, a condition that results in inflammation and weakness of the heart muscles.

Thurman was loved by all of us here at the orphanage, and he loved us all. He grew tall and straight, but was always gentle and quiet. He was always so glad to see anyone of us from the orphanage, and most especially his matron, Mrs. Maude Bennett, who stood by him like a mother from first to last. Mrs. Bennett took a nurse and the boy's mother with him on the plane to Baltimore. She had instructions from the orphanage to take care of Thurman's stricken mother until signs of improvement were shown or until the end if it was eminent. He was in Alamance Co. Hospital for fourteen days. I never saw a better patient, always uncomplaining though his pain was at times intense.

When he was borne out of his room on the stretcher, he called Mrs. Bennett's attention: "That largest basket of flowers," said he, "is from the orphanage. I want you to take it back there and place it in the living room." His wish was carried out—flowers for my friends—the boys and girls—he meant.

Friday afternoon at 3:00 his funeral was held at Mt. Hermon Christian church in Wake County near his native home. When you read these lines his own orphanage brothers will have borne his casket to its last resting place. The services were conducted by his pastor, Rev. Howard P. Bozarth, and the pastor of the Mt. Hermon Church, Rev. E. M. Carter.

Thurman will be gone from us, but his little brother, Raymond, and his three sisters, Jo Ann, Barbara Jean, and Clara Lee, will come back here to their "home" to take up life anew. Thurman will be gone, but he will remain in our hearts always.

JOHN G. TRUITT,
Superintendent.

REPORT FOR MAY 14, 1943.

Commodities for the Week.

Shallow Ford Woman's Missionary society, Clothing for Nancy Watkins.

Mrs. Margarette Everette, Burlington, N. C., Clothing.

C. W. Parker, Jr., Washington, D. C., Clothing.

Sunday School Mnthly Offerings.

Amount brought forward $ 6,173.54

Eastern N. C. Conference:

Ebenezer $ 40.32
Pleasant Hill S. S. 13.47
Pope's Chapel 5.00
Mt. Auburn S. S. 8.13

66.92

Eastern Va. Conference:

Liberty Spring S. S. $ 20.00
Newport News S. S. 12.00
Christian Temple, Special 10.00
Norfolk, First 19.00
Rosemont—for Jo Ann Arnold 20.00
Rosemont 39.74
South Norfolk, Special .. 10.00

130.99

N. C. and Va. Conference:

Bethel, Special $ 65.40
Durham S. S. 29.01
Shallow Ford—for Nancy Watkins 16.52

110.93

Virginia Valley Conference:

Winchester S. S. $ 8.34

8.34

Total $ 317.18

Grand Total $ 6,490.72

Special Offerings.

Amount brought forward $ 8,479.69

Mrs. B. F. McDaniel's S. Class of Junior Boys and Girls, Luray, Va. for Shower Room $ 10.00

Mrs. Mamie K. Perkinson, Wise, N. C. 10.00

Tommy Shoemaker, Ashboro, N. C. 10.00

Mr. & Mrs. Ralph M. Holt and Mr. & Mrs. James A. Holt, Jr., Burlington, in memory of Mrs. Vitus R. Holt 25.00

Mrs. J. L. Kernodle, Burlington, N. C., in memory of Mrs. Vitus R. Holt 10.00

Mrs. C. T. Holt, Sr., Burlington, N. C., in memory of Mrs. Vitus R. Holt 10.00

Mr. & Mrs. T. Hayes Holland, Franklin, Va., in memory of Mrs. E. P. Jones 5.00

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Council, in memory of Mrs. E. P. Jones 5.00

(Continued on page 15.)

MEMORIAL GIFTS

"Instead of Flowers"

Dr. John G. Truitt
Christian Orphanage
Elon College, N. C.

Dear Dr. Truitt:

Please acknowledge the enclosed $..... as a memorial gift sent to the Christian Orphanage in lieu of flowers in memory of:

(Name of Deceased)

(City)

(Date of Death)

(Survivor to be Written)

(Address)

Name.....

Address.....

In Memoriam

HILL.

On January 26, 1953, Happy Home Congregational Christian Church sustained a great loss in the passing of Deacon George Webster Hill. Mr. Hill joined this church when a young man and until the time of his death was a devoted and faithful member. He manifested his love for his church by being faithful in attendance, generous in gifts, and sincere in his daily living. In his community, he was a living example of the true meaning of Christianity. His interest in the Kingdom of God beyond his church and community was often expressed by his gifts to orphanages and various mission projects.

In memory of his service to our church, we resolve:

1. That the members of our church emulate his traits of Christian character and in so doing pledge ourselves to more loyal service to our Master and His church.

2. That we thank God for the inspiration of a consecrated life so faithfully lived in our midst.

3. That we extend to his loved ones our sympathy and commend them to our Heavenly Father for strength and guidance.

THURMAN A. BOWERS,
LEONARD POWELL,
CLARICE GUMM.

STUDY CONFERENCE.

(Continued from page 2.)

Japan, who spoke briefly and participated in camp activities.

Teaching and participating in the activities of the conference were two members of the Elon College faculty: Dr. D. J. Bowden and Dr. Ferris E. Reynolds. Dr. Bowden led a discussion of "Mysticism." Dr. Reynolds led two discussion periods on the topic, "Grounds of Religious Certainty." Ministers of the Convention taking part in the program were, Rev. Henry Robinson, Rev. James Lightbourne, Jr., Rev. Richard L. Jackson and Rev. Lanson Granger.

Plans were made by the group to have another conference of this type in May, 1954. A committee, of which Rev. Richard L. Jackson was elected chairman, was set up to make the plans. It is hoped that all ministers in the Southern Convention will wish to attend next year, and it is felt that the churches will want their ministers to attend. Dr. Wissemann, who led the closing devotionals, said that he felt that every minister who attended the conference would leave a better minister, better able to serve God and his fellowman.

Will there be another Southern Convention Ministers' Study Conference? The feeling and the voting were unanimous. MAX VESTAL,

Reporter.

LAYMEN'S FELLOWSHIP.

(Continued from page 3.)

many from your church will be present.

Rev. Richard L. Jackson, pastor of our Chapel Hill Church, will be the speaker, and will show us pictures he made while in China as a missionary. This, I am sure, will be very interesting for all of us.

Come with the idea that you will help make this another wonderful meeting. Don't forget about the Laymen's Bell. Your group may take it home. Come, we will see.

SYBRANT H. PELL,
Chairman.

THE ORPHANAGE,

(Continued from page 14.)

State of N. C. (Gasoline
Refund) 25.00

Mr. & Mrs. M. W. McPherson, Burlington, N. C., in memory of J. Dolph Long	5.00
Mr. & Mrs. M. W. McPherson, Burlington, N. C., in memory of Mrs. Vitus R. Holt	5.00
Donations for Thurman Arnold: Smith & Baldwin Contractors, Burlington, N. C. Builders' Class, Davis St. Methodist Church, Burlington, N. C.	25.00
Burlington Drug Co.	2.00
Circle No. 9, Front St. Methodist Church, Burlington, N. C.	12.00
Jack M. Beal	5.00
Special Gifts	170.00
	279.00

Grand Total $ 8,758.69

Total for the week $ 596.18

Total for the year $15,249.41

THE CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCH BUILDING LOAN FUND

Declaration of Purpose

We believe that it is of overwhelming importance to help in the erection of church buildings to meet the needs of America's unchurched millions and to provide a place where children may receive training in the basic principles of Christianity.

We acknowledge with gratitude the generous assistance in church building financial aid already received by many churches of the Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches. We further realize that our own financial resources without aid from our Church Building Society will be inadequate to meet the needs of our churches of this area. We gladly join our Congregational Christian Churches of America in support of the Church Building Fund Campaign.

We are pleased to report that our church, at a meeting of the members held the day of, 195..., voted to co-operate in the Church Building Fund Campaign of the Congregational Christian Churches and accepted a goal of $.....

It was agreed that our church would seek to reach this goal by:

(Check below the statement which applies to your church.)

- [] 1. A special solicitation of our church to be held the week beginning, 195..., in which we will endeavor to secure a pledge from each member of the church.
- [] 2. By seeking a pledge from each member of the church for this purpose at the time of our regular every member canvass to be held the week of, 195...
- [] 3. By including each year in our budget, for years, the sum of $....., which will be paid in quarterly installments of $....., beginning, 195...
- [] 4. By annual solicitation each year for years.

..... Church

By Secretary or Clerk
Address

..... Pastor Treasurer

NOTE.—Mail "Declaration of Purpose" to the Southern Convention Office, Elon College, N. C. Make checks payable to The Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches, designated "Church Building Fund" and mail to Elon College, N. C. Payments should be completed not later than March 1, 1956.

WHERE IS GOD?

By S. M. SMITH

Since the beginning of time man has been asking that question. In the earliest recollection of this writer, we were told that God was the Creator of all things and that his headquarters were far away up in the skies some place, that he could not be reached very easily, that he was a stern being, that he expressed himself when he was mad in the thunder and lightning, in storms that left desolation in their wake.

Recently a father received a message from the government saying that his son had been reported missing in action in Korea. "Where was God," he exclaimed, "that he didn't take care of my boy?"

"Maybe God was worried," suggested some one, as he was when his own Son was about to be crucified by his enemies.

Likewise, we have been taught that Heaven is a far-away city up in the skies, with gates of pearl and streets of gold; and that when we die, we fly away and go there where we are given a robe, a crown and a harp. If we make good, from then on all we have to do is sing and play around the throne to keep God in a good humor.

When Christ, the Son, came down to earth, he taught his disciples differently. "The Kingdom of Heaven," says he in the scriptures, "is within you." A mother teaches her little ones that as she explains the golden rule. We hear that every Sunday from the pastor of the church we attend. We teach in our Sunday school classes.

When men learn the meaning of that teaching, war will cease, and the millenium will begin. Bells ring every Sunday from the tower of the "Little Brown Church in the vale" to the chimes of the cathedral, calling people to worship in the name of "Him who doeth all things well."

Our flag—the stars and stripes forever—which flies over every government building, over every government fortification, from the mast of every American ship in time of war or peace, proclaims in the same truth. God bless America and our citizenship in such a country.

The CHRISTIAN SUN

ORGAN OF THE SOUTHERN CONVENTION OF CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES

In Essentials Unity — In Non-Essentials, Liberty, — In All Things, Charity

VOLUME CV

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, MAY 28, 1953

NUMBER 22

I Shall Not Pass Again This Way

The bread that giveth strength I want to give;
The water pure that bids the thirsty live;
I want to help the fainting day by day,
Because I shall not pass again this way.

I want to give the oil of joy for tears;
The faith to conquer cruel doubts and fears;
Beauty for ashes may I give alway,
Because I shall not pass again this way.

I want to give good measure running o'er
And into angry hearts I want to pour
The answer soft that turneth wrath away,
Because I shall not pass again this way.

I want to give to others hope and faith;
I want to do all that the Master saith;
I want to live aright from day to day,
Because I shall not pass again this way.

—Anonymous.

News Flashes

The Junior class rooms of the Temple Sunday school, in Norfolk, have been completely redecorated.

Mrs. John G. Truitt, president of the Mission Board of the Southern Convention, is attending a three-day meeting, May 26-28, of the National Committee on Our Christian World Mission at the Dekoven Foundation, Racine, Wisconsin.

Dr. W. T. Scott's address in England, June 9-19, will be c/o International Congregational Council, 110 Memorial Hall, Farringdon Street, London, E. C. 4; and in Scotland, June 20-29, c/o International Congregational Council, St. Salvator's Hall, St. Andrews, Fife, Scotland.

Rosemont's Progress

There have been many notable steps of progress made at Rosemont but none so evident as our most recent building addition. The building committee was first named in 1946 but for various reasons our building program had not started any real action until last year. After much planning, praying, working and co-operation, a dream was finally realized by the members of Rosemont. The new educational plant of the church was moved into on May 10th. This Sunday school plant is only a part of the building program as the auditorium will also undergo renovation, beginning immediately.

To us the 10th day of May was a highlight in our church history. We had a full day so far as services are concerned. Being overcrowded in our auditorium, we have been having for some time now two worship services, one at 8:45 A. M. and the other at 11:00 A. M. We are having a total average attendance for the two services in the morning of 325 and 125 for the evening service. Our Sunday school average is 325 each Sunday.

There were 21 Sunday school classes with full programs for our "red letter day" on May 10th. Upon completion of our new plant we will have something to be very proud of. With much of the work and time being donated through love, the plant will cost approximately $82,500.

MRS. PAULINE DENNIS,
Reporter.

Superintendent and Mrs. Scott Will Sail for Scotland

Dear Friends of the Southern Convention:

Mrs. Scott and I shall sail from New York on June 3 between 8 and 11 a. m. on the Queen Elizabeth. We sail from Pier 90 at the foot of West 50th Street. We understand Dr. N. G. Newman is to sail on the Queen Elizabeth also—along with a number of other Congregational Christian Church delegates to the International Council to be held at St. Andrews, Scotland.

Mrs. Scott and I feel profoundly grateful for the honor of going to represent the Southern Convention churches. We are humbled by the generous gifts made by many individuals, churches, Sunday schools, and missionary societies to make our trip possible. We are particularly happy that we can take this, our first "long trip" across the water, and this in our Silver Wedding Anniversary year. On June 29 we expect to celebrate our 25th anniversary day at St. Andrews, Scotland, for it was in 1928 in First Congregational Christian Church in Greensboro, N. C., that we were united in marriage by our beloved pastor and friend, the late Dr. C. H. Rowland.

I am personally grateful to the friends and organizations making Mrs. Scott's going possible. I believe she would say that her life as a minister's wife has been happy. Certainly she has been a wonderful companion and helper. To have been a "Superintendent's wife" for 15 of these years, however has been more than she contracted! But she has been swell in all this. Her greatest joy has been to have a part in serving our church. I am glad for her that she has been honored, along with me, in this wonderful trip and experience. We hope that this high privilege will make us able to serve our church more effectively. We join in thanksgiving for the comradeship of so many wonderful people of the Southern Convention. Thanks ever so much for your trust and for your generosity. May God bless you every one. I am so thankful that Mrs. Scott's recovery from her recent serious operation has been so progressive that her good physician says that by all means she should go to Scotland with me.

Faithfully yours,
WM. T. SCOTT,
Superintendent.

The International Congregational Council to Meet in June

More than 600 Congregationalists from all parts of the world will attend the seventh International Congregational Council being held June 20 to 29 in St. Andrews, Scotland, under the overall theme "Congregational Churchmanship."

Around 150 American Congregational laymen, lay women and clergy are expected at St. Andrews, that ancient city which holds a unique place in both civil and ecclesiastical Scottish history, and which is synonymous in most of the world to the word "golf." It is the birthplace of the Royal and Ancient Golf Club constituted in 1754. The delegates will meet in St. Andrews University, founded in 1411.

A large number of the American delegation will sail on the Queen Mary, Wednesday, June 3, but others are already on European tours while still more will include trips to the continent following the International Congregational Council meeting.

Dr. Douglas Horton, Minister and Executive Secretary of the General Council of Congregational Christian Churches in the U. S. A., is the Moderator of the International Congregational Council and Dr. Sidney M. Berry of London, England, is the Executive Secretary. Dr. Leslie E. Cooke of London, England, secretary of the Congregational Union of England and Wales is chairman of the British Committee on Arrangements.

The first International Congregational Council met in London, England, in 1891 and subsequent Councils were held in Boston, Mass., in 1899; Edinburgh, Scotland in 1908; Boston, Mass., 1920; Bournemouth, England, 1930 and Wellesley College, Wellesley, Mass., 1949.

Leading churchmen from England, Switzerland, Holland, Germany, America and other parts of the world will participate in the program.

The International Congregational Council will not conduct narrow denominational discussions, points out Dr. Berry but will begin by trying to understand its own traditions, its strength and its weakness. From there it will move into a different theme each day covering the place of Congregationalism in the universal church; the Christian understanding of the state and the freedom of the church in the modern state, and end

(Continued on page 6.)

Laymen and the Church . . .

J. Earl Danieley, Editor, Box 515, Elon College, N. C.

Editor Changes Address

Your editor for this column has moved to Chapel Hill, N. C., for the summer. He will be engaged in chemical research and as a visiting professor will give the lectures in the organic chemistry course at the University of North Carolina. His address during the summer will be 428 Westwood, Chapel Hill, N. C. Please send material for this page to him at this address.

* * * * *

Asheboro Reports

The Laymen's Fellowship in our Asheboro Church was organized in the fall of 1952. Dalton Harper is the President, Hubert Beane, the Vice-President and Clifford Bowers the Treasurer of the organization. On Saturday, April 18, 1953, a meeting of the group was held at the home of Clifford Bowers at which time the men of the group enjoyed a fish fry. Although attendance was limited somewhat due to threatening weather there was a good group of men present and they seemed to have enjoyed the occasion very much.

The Asheboro group decided to contribute immediately and report to the May 30th Rally of the Western North Carolina Laymen's Group $100 to the Moonelon project. The group agreed to actively support the project and expressed interest in seeing other groups do the same thing.

Asheboro's report gives us encouragement; others will follow suit. It has always been true that when our people see a need, sense the importance of a project or become concerned or challenged they respond in a remarkable manner. Moonelon is our project; we will carry it through to a successful conclusion.

* * * * *

Eastern Virginia Spring Rally

President G. C. Mann of the Eastern Virginia Laymen's Fellowship reports that the Spring Rally was held May 17, 1953 at Planters Club near Driver, Virginia. The group met at 3:15 p. m. in the afternoon at which time the men were registered and then bought tickets for the dinner. G. C. Mann called the group to order and made remarks of welcome. W. H. Baker led in a service of song after which Rev. H. E. Crutchfield held a brief worship service. In the absence of Rev. J. H. Lightbourne who was detained in Holland, Va. during the afternoon the Rev. Allen Hurdle gave the offertory prayer. State Senator Mills E. Godwin, Jr. made a very convincing talk to the group on the subject of "Moonelen," the Convention Laymen's project. A business session followed.

Between five and six o'clock the group enjoyed a social and recreational hour. At six o'clock Mr. Mann called the group to order again and W. H. Baker led the group in another period of singing. W. B. White gave the invocation before the serving of the dinner. After dinner, the ministers and guests who were present were recognized. T. C. Mountcastle and H. F. Collette favored the group with a duet. W. W. Piland introduced the speaker, the Rev. Ernest Emurian, Pastor, Elm Avenue Methodist Church, Portsmouth, Virginia. Mr. Emurian's address was humorous, entertaining, thought-provoking and enlightening. He emphasized and gave illustrations to indicate that life here and hereafter is not to reach a goal but to be ever journeying onward and upward. It is dangerous to ever think that we have reached the end of the way.

Approximately 200 people attended the rally. There were ten pastors, five visitors and one young lady in attendance.

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr

A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom as represented by the Congregational Christian Churches.

Our Principles

1. The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
2. Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
3. The Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
4. Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and church membership.
5. The right of private judgment and liberty of conscience is a privilege that should be accorded to and exercised by all.

Managing Editor John T. Kernodle

Departmental Editors—Convention, Wm. T. Scott; Missions, F. C. Lester; Women's Work, Mrs. F. C. Lester; Young People's Work, Max Vestal; Children, Mrs. R. L. House; Sunday School Lesson, H. S. Hardcastle.

Institutional Representatives—Elon College, L. E. Smith; The Christian Orphanage, John G. Truitt.

Board of Publications—Duane Vore, Chairman, S. T. Holland, Secretary; R. C. Helfenstein, S. E. Madren, W. W. Snyder, G. D. Colclough, Treasurer, ex officio.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Year $3.00
Two Years 5.00

Published by the Board of Publications of The Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches, Inc. Printed every Thursday except the last in June and December by Central Publishing Co., Inc., Richmond, Va.

Entered as second-class matter at the Post Office at Richmond Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

General contributions should be addressed to the editor at Southern Pines, N. C., and should reach him by Wednesday of the week preceding date of publication.

Departmental material should be sent to the proper departmental editor, at the address shown on their page.

All other material and business communications except regarding subscriptions should be sent to the Office of Publication, 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond 19, Va.

The Christian Sun Subscription Blank

Subscription Price: 1 year, $3.00; 2 years, $5.00

Date 195 . . .

Dr. Wm. T. Scott, Supt.,
Elon College, N. C.

Enclosed find $ for which please send The Christian Sun
() 1 year, () 2 years — () New Subscription, () Renewal.

To

Address

Who is a member of Church

() Renew, () Enter my own subscription for () 1 year, () 2 years.

My Name

My Address

From the EDITORIAL Viewpoint

On Freedom

By W. MILLARD STEVENS

We have just observed in the Christian Community one of the most memorable events in the history of Christianity—Pentecost. Among other things, Pentecost marked the occasion when the Disciples for the very first time in their lives knew true freedom. They were delivered from all uncertainties and fears and doubts, which had heretofore inhibited their complete devotion to their Lord.

We hear a great deal about freedom today, and the desire for freedom is very persistent. However, we often overlook the fact that there can be no true freedom without personal, spiritual and intellectual freedom. Economic, political or social freedom means nothing without personal, spiritual and intellectual freedom.

If we find these, then there are two or three truths which we must keep in mind, and the first of these is the fact that there is not such a thing as absolute freedom of choice or action, independent of determining causes. That is to say that there are always some over-riding reasons present in every choice we make. Recognizing this truth, we must come to know that we cannot act free from cause, but we can condition the cause.

The second truth is the fact that our freedom is tied up with that of our neighbor. Any realistic understanding of personal freedom must take this into account. If your freedom is free to destroy that of your neighbor, then his freedom can destroy yours, and neither of you can have any semblance of freedom left.

And the third truth: You can never know true freedom so long as your choices are condemned by your own conscience, because this condemnation creates inner-frustration which will prevent you from achieving true freedom. This means that you must not only be at peace with your neighbors to know freedom, but you must also be at peace with yourself and God.

The clue to true freedom was given by Jesus when he said to those Jews which had believed his words, "If you continue in my word then you are my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free." Jesus went on to point out to these men that he knew that they were not in commercial bondage, but he knew that they were in bondage to sin and falsehood, and that no man can be free who is the slave of error. The disciples learned the true meaning of these words on the day of Pentecost when they themselves were set free from the bondage of error and falsehood.

No man can be free without the opportunity and power to change his course. No man can be free without a worthy force in his life to cause his choices to be right and pleasing. No man can be free without an undergirding principle which will guide him in living peacefully with his neighbors. No man can be free until he is free from condemnation by law and by his own conscience.

We find our freedom only in truth. Truth is always unfolding and leading us on to greater heights. Truth is always a worthy and satisfactory reason for our choices in life. Truth never leads us to harm one another. Truth never leads us into conflict with right. Therefore, we find freedom through surrender to the sources of all truth—God. This is the only freedom that can sustain us.

The Cent-a-Meal Plan and the Work of Missions

June will mark the end of the Missions Period in the Southern Convention. One of the means of raising money for missions during that period is through that plan. Materials to aid the observance of the Cent-a-Meal Plan were earlier placed in the hands of the people of our convention, and it is the hope of the Mission Board that many of our churches have observed the plan, and that early after the end of June, the proceeds will be sent to the Convention Office at Elon College, N. C.

The Mission Period covers March, April, May and June. There are approximately 10,000 families in the Southern Convention. There are 122 days in those four months; so if these 10,000 families gave just one cent a meal during that period, we would raise $36,000.00. That IF is the question. It cannot be expected that every family will observe this gift of gratitude to the "Giver of All Good Gifts," but it is hoped that a goodly number will do so. Pastors should see that their members have the opportunity to present their gifts, that they are dedicated and forwarded to the Mission Board.

There may be among our readers those who have not observed the "plan" during the past four months, but who would like to make a "gratitude gift" for missions. They can join the plan by sending a gift of $3.66, through their local church, or to the Convention Office, designated "Missions."

Use Your Summer in Christian Service

By DR. RICHARD K. MORTON

Pastor, Union Congregational Church, Jacksonville, Florida

Summer isn't so continuously hot, anywhere, that it cannot be used for Christian service and for personal growth and improvement.

Few of us are so completely exhausted or nerved up or tied down that we must make it simply a period of rest and of doing absolutely nothing.

We ought to organize for the summer in our churches and indeed in our homes, just as we do for other periods.

In most communities no large percentage of the community or of our parishes goes away for the entire summer. We have more time then than at any other time.

Summer can be used in lots of ways for fun, for instruction, and for helpfulness—to ourselves and others.

How — For Instance?

Here are a few samples of what can be done:

Arrange some informal meetings, in your church, or homes, or elsewhere in settings where you can take advantage of air-conditioning or a sufficiency of fans. Do a lot of committee-ing and talking over plans so that you are all set for the later months.

Specialize in informal, outdoor, shirt-sleeve gatherings, at quiet resorts, by the roadside, in someone's backyard, or at a beach where it is a pleasure to be.

Call your groups or your friends together and lay out a plan for summer accomplishment that can bring fun and renewed interest, instead of being a chore and a difficulty in stuffy weather when so many people are away and so many personal interests intrude. This could mean individual or group study of a provocative or timely book, the preparation of a series of discussions or meetings, the ground-breaking for some new project which the church or community ought to tackle. Plans can also be laid out to coordinate the reports and new ideas coming from those who will have attended summer conferences and institutes and camps.

If there are nearby camps or other groups, arrangements could be made for chaplain service or for services or for an early-morning visitation, or some other feature.

Materials could be provided for use in resort hotels and motels and for distribution to travellers and visitors wherever they may be found.

Little displays and brief services could be prepared for nearby roadside rustic shrines and picnic sports, and the like.

Summer radio inspirational moments could be prepared—even taped in advance for daily use.

Excursions for instruction and recreation can be arranged for specific groups. They can go to baseball games, outdoor concerts, fairs, noted summer programs arranged at a distant point. Or they can arrange to go to some inspirational or historic place to which they so far have been unable to go. They could constitute themselves a deputation to go out, in force, to some small church which needs help, and give it a real thrill through the increased attendance.

One very fine service would be to arrange special delights for the No-Vacation or the Back-to-Work crowd,

(Continued on page 8.)

"The Family at Worship"

By REV. HENRY E. ROBINSON, Burlington, North Carolina

No. 3 of a Series of Four Meditations

Yesterday when I spoke about the family holding life together, I am sure that some of you were expecting me to include under this heading the one force which above all others has the power of binding life together—worship. The reason I did not mention family worship was because I felt this topic should claim our full attention in one of these devotional periods.

The record is before us in the Old Testament of how the patriarchs would pause at the close of the day or after some crisis had passed and build an altar, make the evening sacrifice and lift their voices to God in praise and thanksgiving and for guidance and forgiveness. Many today feel that the world has moved out beyond this archaic pattern and instead of gathering about the altar we gather about the television, and instead of the pause that inspires, uplifts, and humbles, we have substituted "the pause that refreshes" or reach for a cigarette to quiet the nerves.

One can seriously question whether these new patterns represent an advance. Actually are they not poor facsimiles for family worship? Are we not living in the backwash of the tides rather than in the stream of power.

A few years ago I went through the home in which Nathan Hale lived in Coventry, Connecticut. It was an antique lover's dream. The object which caught my eye was the Bible box dated 1721. Copies of the scripture in those days were scarce and expensive. The Bible in the home was a common possession and served all the members. In the evening the head of the house would remove the scriptures from the box and read to the members of the family about the fireside. This custom was especially adhered to on Saturday evening as a means of preparing the heart and mind for Sunday's worship. With that preparation the family attended the services of worship. People sat in cold churches with aught to warm them but a few coals in a foot-warmer yet they deemed it a privilege and fought for the right.

We proudly hail our ancestors and the principles for which they stood. We believe that because of their principles and convictions our national foundations were laid in things of the spirit. Aught we not now to realize that the same elements of prayer and worship which made our nation great are needed to keep us in the way and to strengthen us for the current challenge?

Families need to draw upon the resources of worship in three ways. First, each member of the family should have his own mode of private meditation. A time best suited to the individual should be set apart each day for prayer and readings from the scripture or other devotional literature. Then the family should find time each day to pray and read together in family circle. I know how hard this is to do with all our interests and commitments. But a friend of mine said not long ago that we find time to do the things we feel are important. If we do not take time as families to share the things of the

(Continued on page 9.)

Southern Convention Office

WM. T. SCOTT, Supt., Elon College, N. C.

During May — A Report from Superintendent Scott

Every day of every month is filled with many interesting activities, but it seems that these first days of May have unusually interesting, full and with some sadness and grief.

First, it was the concern our family had during the serious illness and major operation of the "head of our house." We are thankful beyond words for the goodness of God, the faithfulness, expert skill, and care of a wonderful physician — Dr. John Robert Kernodle, and his associates at the Alamance County Hospital. They brought Mrs. Scott safely upon the road to recovery. The devotion of so many friends — their prayers and remembrances — mean more than we can say. Mrs. Scott is at home and is doing wonderfully well. We are so humbly thankful. A Christian Mother is a joy to any household, but we of the Scott household think "our Mom" is the best of all.

On the first Sunday, it was my privilege to be at the Pleasant Grove Church, near Bennett, N. C., of the Western North Carolina Conference, for their annual home coming. This occasion was unusually significant. The church's new and beautiful parsonage was dedicated that day. More than 800 people gathered at this old church for the day's services. Rev. and Mrs. Bill Simmons are doing a good job with this church. Mr. Simmons is a student at Elon College.

On the second Sunday, I journeyed to the Shiloh Christian Church, near Ramseur, N. C., my boyhood home. Here a great crowd of members, former members and friends came for this annual Memorial Day. A beautiful, new church building, completed just a few years ago, is a great improvement over the building I remembered in my childhood. The years rolled away though, and I remembered most vividly an experience at Shiloh 30 years ago, when I was asked by the pastor then (Rev. A. T. Banks) to assist him in a revival meeting at this old church. That was my first preaching experience, and one that I shall never forget. Rev. R. T. Grissom, the present pastor, and his people at Shiloh are doing a good work.

How I wanted to linger at Shiloh for "dinner on the grounds," for I not only saw the tables but remembered how it was years ago, too. However, I had to forego that privilege and rush on to Union Ridge in Alamance County for the dedication service of the new Educational Building at 2:30 in the afternoon. Union Ridge is to be congratulated. Rev. Kenneth D. Register and his people have built well. Their new building would be a credit to any church anywhere. It is a monument to a devoted people who have put head, heart, hand and "pocket book" into this building program. The church has not only paid for this building, but have set themselves to the job of erecting a new sanctuary, and in the middle of these programs they have committed themselves to support the Church Building Loan Fund Campaign, having been one of our first churches to accept their quota. It was a big day for Union Ridge. In the morning their annual Home Coming service was held, with "dinner on the grounds." I missed that one, too!

The third Sunday was a good day, too. We went to Fayetteville for the opening service in the new building of our church there. Dr. F. C. Lester, loaned by the Asheboro Church for six months, has done a good job in getting a building erected in just 60 days. It is an adequate brick building with an auditorium that will seat over 100 and Sunday school facilities for 150 are provided. The Building Society and the Mission Board have aided substantially in this new work. Mrs. Florence L. Rogers, donor of the six-acre building site, and a charter member of the church, was present and saw part of her dream come true. This work is one of great promise.

During the week-end of Sunday, the 24th, the 63rd Commencement of Elon College was a significant event in our church life. It is always a joy to welcome back to Elon many alumni, friends and relatives of the students and members of the graduating class. The campus was beautiful, and President Smith and his associates had everything in readiness for this big event in the life of our college. Among the graduates this year were three ministerial students: John G. Truitt, Jr., Page Painter, and David Crawle. (Carl Wallace will graduate from Duke Divinity School in June; William Talley and Dorothy Fultz graduate from Hartford Seminary in Religious Education.)

Sunday, the 24th, was an interesting and history-making day at Hanks Chapel Church of the Western North Carolina Conference, where a great crowd gathered for the annual Memorial Day. In the afternoon we shared in the ceremonies of groundbreaking for their new Sunday school rooms. Hanks Chapel was the girlhood church of my mother, a descendent of Dr. Francis Farrell, a pioneer settler of that area and whose descendants are "legion" there today. Hanks Chapel is a pillar of strength in the Western Conference.

Our month has been saddened by the call to return to Franklin, Virginia, to assist in the funeral services of a devoted member of our church there — Mrs. E. P. Jones. Mrs. Jones claimed release from her suffering of many months. She was a devoted member of that church and she will be greatly missed. As her former pastor, it was pleasant amid earthly sorrow to call to mind her faithfulness to her Lord and his Church.

These are but a few of the many and varied activities of your Superintendent, which included many, many conferences, letters written, sharing in the very successful Ministers' Study Conference, meeting and planning with the Board of Trustees of Franklinton Center, etc., etc. The month of May is just one of twelve months, and it is pretty typical of our work.

Thank you for the privilege of serving you. May God bless you everyone.

WILLIAM T. SCOTT.

INTERNATIONAL COUNCIL TO MEET IN JUNE.

(Continued from page 2.)

with a study of the church's ministry of reconciliation.

The plan is to make this seventh International Congregational Council a working body which will divide into discussion groups following each key address, and report the results of these group discussions to the full conference before it adjourns.

Personality is God's greatest gift. It is the most powerful force in the world, — Julius E. Crawford.

News of Elon College

PRESIDENT L. E. SMITH, Elon College, N. C.

Final Word to Class of 1953

The following is the final word given to the Class of 1953 of Elon College on Commencement Day, May 25. These were the last words spoken before the benediction:

CLASS OF 1953

The founding fathers of this great nation of ours came to these shores in search of freedom and opportunity. They met with opposition, suffered pain, and endured hardships, but out of these discomforts and displeasures came this great country of ours with all of its wealth, influence, and power. The future opens before us opportunities unlimited. The inventive genius of our people has not been exhausted. Much of the wealth of the world is still buried beneath mountains and submerged by the breaking waters of the wide seas. May you be given the ability and the inventive genius to unearth this wealth, bring it to the surface, and put it at the disposal of civilization for the benefit and uplift of all peoples.

For four years we have given you our best, much of the best of the accumulations of the past century, the best fruits of the best minds that the world has ever known, spread on the printed pages of open books, with the hope and the prayer that you may take your trained ability and developed talents and put them on the altar of unselfish service, that you may be numbered with the great.

At the moment you stand in academic dress with a certificate of graduation in hand. Today is radiant with splendor, tomorrow is full of promise; and hope, unafraid, rims the more distant future, but young men and young women, I warn you that the future of America is in danger. A sinister enemy is daily and assiduously plotting her downfall. He would confiscate our wealth, rob us of our freedom, and enslave our bodies and our spirits forever.

Not all of our battles have been fought; not all of our pains suffered, or all of our hardships endured. I pray not, nor do I wish for you to be spared of these, but when they meet you in the way, I do pray that you may stand fast, quit yourselves like men, and pay the cost without flinching.

The Class of 1953 of Elon College, as you face your world, torn, troubled, and disturbed, may you know that your help is in God. Believe Him, trust Him, serve Him, obey Him. He alone has the power and the life. To whom else dare you go?

* * * * *

Dr. W. H. Boone Named "Out-standing Alumnus of 1953"

Dr. W. H. Boone, of Durham, N. C., chairman of the board of trustees of Elon College, was named "Out-standing Alumnus of 1953" and was presented with a framed scroll certificate at the annual Alumni Banquet, which was held in the Elon College dining hall on Saturday night, May 23. The presentation was by Dr. John G. Truitt, superintendent of the Christian Orphanage.

DR. W. H. BOONE.

Dr. Boone, recipient of the honor, graduated from Elon with the Class of 1894 and has been eminently successful in his profession and at all times a loyal supporter of Elon College and the Congregational Christian Church. He has been a member of the college's board of trustees since 1913 and chairman of that board since 1934.

* * * * *

Mrs. Gertrude Gibson Bondurant

Mrs. Bondurant was a good woman, faithful in the service of God and loyal to the church of which she was a member, Rosemont Christian Church,

She was the light and the life of her home and family. Unfortunately, it would seem, she was called to her reward.

Out of love and respect for her, her husband, H. L. Bondurant, some months ago made a contribution of $100 to Elon College in her memory. This money was invested in building and loan stock as a memorial to Mrs. Bondurant, established by her husband. Since the first contribution, Mr. Bondurant has made another contribution of $100 and Mrs. Bondurant's son, Walton Bondurant, contributed $100, making a total of $300. The family plans to increase this memorial fund as they may find it possible. At any rate, they have the assurance and joy of knowing that this good woman's name is written indelibly in the annals of their church at their church college, and that as years pass, she will will be making a contribution to her college whose contributions are made to every department of our denomination, to the teaching force of public schools and colleges throughout our country.

The wisdom of such a memorial is evident from its broad significance and widely extended influence.

This article is written without the knowledge or approval of the family. I trust that it will meet with their approval. This contribution does set a pattern and build the way for many of our loyal church members to extend their lives, helpfully and beneficially, beyond the brief span of years that we are privileged to live on this earth and be a part of the human society and of the church of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ.

Giving—A Part of Loving

What do we really hold to be worthwhile? What do we worship? Most of us would say that our families and our relationship to God are the most worthwhile things in life. Do we really believe this? Money is the standard of value and a medium of exchange. The probability is that the way we spend our money indicates most clearly the kind of persons we are and what we really hold of supreme value.

"God so loved the world that he gave . . ." Giving always is a part of loving. If we love God, we will give to his church. If we are grateful for the gift of Christ, we will have a part in sharing his gospel to the ends of the earth.—T. K. Thompson.

Missions at Home and Abroad

Ed and Fran Riggs Return to the States

Edward Clark Riggs, M.D., and his wife, Frances Whittaker Riggs, R.N., "displaced China missionaries" of the American Board of Foreign Missions, Boston, Mass., who in 1950 transferred to India where they have been demonstrating the policy of simple living and preventive health measures, arrived for furlough on Wednesday, May 20, in New York on the S. S. Constitution (American Export Line).

Both of these young Congregational Christian medical workers are fourth generation missionaries. With them are their two children, Louis Eugene, 3, born in China, and Joy Louise, year and a half, born in India.

The Riggs first did work at Pierce Hospital, Madurai, India, working with the Tamil people. Dr. Riggs has specialized in public health and also served as a consultant in leper work.

Just before they sailed from India for furlough they were invited by the Indian community of Kilanjunai, South India, to help in a clinic where they will work and live at the village level. Their home, just finished, is a small house made of local mud bricks, thatched roof, rafters of palm slabs lashed together with grass fibers, and cement floor.

Dr. Riggs, who was graduated from the University of Colorado School of Medicine, Class of 1938, enlisted under the American Board following about four years of internship at New York Hospital and Boston City Hospital, but he had to delay his career while he served a hitch in the U. S. Army Medical Corps during World War II.

In 1945 Captain Riggs, four years after his missionary appointment, and once more a civilian, went to China under the American Board assigned to Shaowu Hospital, Shaowu, China, and rural public health service. Here he met and married Frances L. Whittaker, R.N., serving as a nurse in the same mission. They worked here until driven out by the Communists.

Dr. Riggs was born in Denver, Colorado, but spent his early boyhood in Turkey where his parents served as American Board missionaries. He is a graduate of the University of Colorado as well as the Medical School and studied at the Yale Institute of Far Eastern Languages.

Mrs. Riggs was born in Peking, North China, of missionary parents and educated at Willamette University, Oregon; San Jose State College; University of Oregon School of Nursing, R.N.; School of Nurse-Midwifery, Maternity Center Association, New York City and College of Chinese Studies, Peking.

Dr. and Mrs. Riggs went first to the home of Mrs. G. C. Moore, 705 St. Marks Street, Westfield, New Jersey, and then to the home of Mrs. Riggs' parents, Rev. and Mrs. R. B. Whittaker, Sunol, California. They will be there in time for the 40th wedding anniversary of the Whittakers on May 29.

USE YOUR SUMMER IN CHRISTIAN SERVICE.

(Continued from page 5.)

who must remain in town in much hotter weather while others are off. Why not a protective society for them? It could sponsor Iceberg parties, musicales, outdoor parties, a mid-summer festival on a small scale, making every effort to have the place cool and refreshing, dress informal, and everything truly enjoyable. This could include gathering for a few minutes at the church or elsewhere at lunch time or after work, or a night excursion to a nearby lake or beach.

All this just begins to unlock the secrets of the ways in which this so-called doorway, no-nothing time of the summer slump can be used for Christ and the Church and for one's own deeper enrichment.

Many services desperately need doing for those who are hard-put to get a little vacation of their own, in spite of relentless responsibilities. Why not a Vacation Club of those who will specialize in making possible vacations for others, by money contributions and by a volunteer and clearing house service which puts those needing services in touch with those willing to give them?

For instance, a man may be caring for a sick child or an invalid relative or a cripple—and this continues day and night. The committee could take turns substituting in the home, if they are capable of furnishing the ministrations required, or they could pay for nursing care on behalf of the person to be benefited.

Young people could help tremendously by being on call while people are away to take care of their properties, lawns, pets, flowers, or anything else. They could run errands for those handicapped and with limited funds. They could bring programs in person or on tape to people in remote places, in private homes, in institutions, or at resorts. They and others could form a transportation committee to give special rides to crippled and sick and elderly folk who rarely get such a treat.

Then there are the many more distinctly religious services that can be rendered through visitations, reading the Bible and religious pieces to the blind and the shut-ins, supplying religious periodicals to those who lack them, teaching Sunday school classes for teachers who are away. In addition, there is so much need of united Christian action to keep out evils that lurk so readily in all beach and tourist-resort places. A group could decide to have a series of fine religious films during the summer, or it could specialize on maps or on religious poetry. There is a great deal of inspiration to be found, I know, in seeking to have a talk with someone else in a field of religious interest, in interviewing a noted leader in the field of religion, visiting other fine churches, or doing personal evangelism.

When we take off our coats, we don't have to shed our faith. When we suspend some of our regular church programs, we can take up others. When some responsibilities fall from our hands for a season, we don't have to remain empty-handed.

You will be more rested, in body and mind and spirit, if you use your summer in Christian service and in some organized way to make yourself a better person! Let us make faith and spread love while the sun shines!

Says an Indian layman: "We must outgrow the habit of thinking of useful laymen as 'pillars of the church.' It is not the layman's business to be a pillar . . . The efficient Christian layman is not . . . just a pillar of the church, but really its vanguard. He is to be used not as a buttress, but as a battering ram." Our American church would do well to catch this spirit.—W. Millard Stevens.

Church Women at Work

With Emphasis on Missions

MRS. F. C. LESTER, Editor

840 Sunset Avenue, Asheboro, N. C.

Register for the School of Missions

Every society president is supposed to have received, within the last week, a letter from Mrs. W. B. Williams, convention president, telling about the activities of our women.

Enclosed was a card to be sent to Mrs. George D. Colclough, at Elon College, hostess for the School of Missions, telling her how many women to expect from your society. It is important that this be filled in and returned by June 8, so that plans for rooms can be completed.

Next week's issue of THE SUN will contain information concerning the speakers at the School of Missions. Read all about them—and then come to learn from them!

* * * * *

Year-Old Society Reports

We have just completed one year of work in our missionary society at Moore's Union Christian Church, R. F. D., Sanford, North Carolina. Though all of us were new at this work, we have done a very good job, and one that has really been enjoyed by all. Our attendance has more than doubled since we organized in May of 1952.

We used the literature from the packet and had special emphasis on missions and our program on the World Day of Prayer. We also had the great privilege of having Miss Pattie Lee Coghil as our speaker one month, and also had Miss Crosby, a missionary to Africa from our denomination, with us for one meeting.

At our May meeting, we elected our new officers, as follows:

Mrs. Clara Womack, president;
Mrs. Erma Burne, vice-president;
Mrs. P. D. Lett, secretary-treasurer.
Program Committee—Mrs. Betty Garner, Mrs. Virgil Kelly.

Membership Committee—Mrs. J. W. Lett, Mrs. Woodrow Carter.

Friendly Service Committee—Mrs. Vadie Kelly, Mrs. Emma Kelly.

In closing our year's work, we do thank God for all his blessings and for the privilege of being able to carry on his work through our society.

MRS. P. D. LETT.

The Moonelon Project

The young people of the North Carolina Conferences are working hard to do many projects. The women's interest in them is in the cause of missions, but we are also interested in all their work. One of the projects in which we are all interested is the Moonelon project. They feel that this is something which will benefit them more than any other group, so they are helping with this project. All three conferences have made their pledges and are working in many ways to achieve them. They are observing Work Day for Christ, doing special projects and are planning for work camps at Moonelon this summer.

Moonelon is to be our Southern Convention Conference Center and will fulfill many purposes as a place of meeting for committees and conferences, summer conferences, retreats, etc.

The North Carolina and Virginia and the Eastern North Carolina Conferences are striving for goals by apportioning each of the young people's groups, and the Western North Carolina Conference is planning to give a special offering at their May Fifth Sunday Rally.

The women of the North Carolina Woman's Conference are not asked to give money to help the young people, but they are asked to give their prayers and their support to our young people as they strive to achieve their goals. Let us stand behind them in this and all of their projects.

RUTH H. DUNN,
*Young People's Supt.,
N. C. Woman's Conf.*

* * * * *

Young Women's Circle Organized

For almost twenty-one years there has been only one society in the Haw River Congregational Christian Church. Mrs. Artelia Poole served devotedly as its president for twenty years and was honored at the April meeting by having this circle named for her.

Recently, Mrs. J. C. Wilkins, the president of the Artelia Poole Circle, appointed a committee, consisting of Mrs. Dwight Jackson, wife of our new pastor, Miss Pearl Smith, the only charter member of the Artelia Poole Circle, and Mrs. W. E. Vinson, to help organize a young women's circle in the church. This committee got busy immediately and, as a result, on Thursday evening, May 14, a group of interested and eager young women met at the home of Mrs. Vinson for the purpose of organizing another missionary circle.

Mrs. J. C. Wilkins presided, and Miss Pearl Smith presented the program.

The following officers were elected: Mrs. W. E. Vinson, leader; Mrs. Charles Koch, vice-chairman and program chairman; Miss Ruth Williams, secretary; Mrs. Harold Terrell, treasurer; Mrs. Florence Taylor, friendly service; Mrs. Jesse Coble, reporter; Mrs. William Garrison and Mrs. William Crabtree, constitution and by laws.

Mrs. Jesse Coble will be hostess for the June meeting, at which time this new circle will be named and a list of charter members made.

MRS. WM. E. VINSON.

"THE FAMILY AT WORSHIP." (Continued from page 5.)

spirit it is plainly because we do not consider such an endeavor important, or because other things are more important. Thirdly, families need to worship with other families in the congregation of their church on Sunday. Families need each other and they need that constant weekly reminder of the Sunday service that God is the Great Giver of life. To Him belongs all praise and the frequent renewal of our vows to follow His law and leading. The family that worships is doing the most natural thing in the world. Since human history began men have worshipped some higher being according to their best lights. Among the earliest relics of the past are the artifacts of worship. In the most primitive tribes today there is a place for worship. Worship is as natural as eating and breathing. When we omit it we are not advancing but moving away from the highest and deepest instincts of the race. It is little wonder that the families which worship singly and together have the best chance of a happy normal fruitful life and may be expected with confidence to produce the most reliable and conscientious citizens of tomorrow.

Youth at Work in the Church

REV. MAX VESTAL, R. 1, Asheboro, N. C.

Meet the Camp Ambassadors

With a deep and central interest in young people backed by experience in summer camps and conferences with the young people of Ceylon, Miss Grace Raju of Uduvil Girls' School, Uduvil, Ceylon, comes an especially well qualified "ambassador" from the youth of Ceylon to the youth of America. She will be with us at our Valley of Virginia Junior and Junior High Camps and at the Elon College Conference.

Member of a strong Christian Ceylonese family, Miss Raju's grandfather was a prophetic leader of the South India United Church and parish minister for 30 years. Miss Raju's father held a responsible position in the government and was greatly respected for his absolute honesty and quiet strength. Her mother was also a well known Christian leader and in the lean days of Uduppidy School helped hold that institution together. To this moment her name is gratefully associated with its growth.

Educated in Uduvil Girls' English School from kindergarten until she went to the Women's Christian College in Madras from which she was graduated, Miss Raju returned to her alma mater as a member of the staff. In 1946 she entered the Government Training College in Colombo for one year and received her Trained Graduate Certificate. It was after this that she came back again to Uduvil and was made Vice Principal.

Held in great respect as well as loved by her colleagues and students Miss Raju is patient and understanding in her relationships. Underneath all of her activities is an intense devotion to the Christian faith and zeal in bringing this message to the hearts of young people with whom she works.

During her year in America at Oberlin College, Miss Raju plans to obtain her M. A. degree in Education and is here on leave from the Education Department in Ceylon.

Uduvil Girls' English Boarding School was founded in 1824 by workers under the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions which is now the overseas arm of the Congregational Christian Churches of the United States.

Relax With Max

LET US PRAY for—

Eyes to receive Thy light,
Minds to grasp Thy truths,
And hands to do thy will. Amen.

* * *

Well, they officially got rid of me at Elon last Monday—graduation, they call it. I don't know whether or not I left a vacancy, but I do know that there is plenty of room at Elon for young people from our churches. It's your college; why not sign up for summer school or for the fall term beginning in September?

* * *

Congratulations to our Elonites at Hartford. I hear that Warren Matthews, "Moon" Tolley, Paul Varga, and Dorthy Foltz have had a good year. Page Painter will join this group next year. May God bless each of you in your studies.

* * *

One day a reporter was sent from the city to interview a rustic character whose fame as a marksman had reached far and wide. When the newsman arrived at the marksman's home he found the trees, fences and barns covered with bull's-eyes, in the center of each was a bullet hole. To add to his astonishment, the reporter discovered that the "Dead-eye Dick" was a young boy. The latter accepted the reporter's praise with open-mouthed pleasure.

Finally he confessed: "There wasn't anything to it. All I did was shoot first and draw the circle around the hole afterwards."

—Omnibook Magazine.

Vacation Bible School Materials

Listed below are the materials recommended by the Children's Work Committee for the use in the Bible Schools in the Convention this summer:

BEGINNERS (Kindergarten)—4 and 5 year olds—"Learning About Jesus" by Shith, 75c. Work sheets for use with above, 20c.

PRIMARY—6, 7 and 8 year olds—"Tell Me the Stories of Jesus" by McDowell, 75c. Work sheets for above, 20c.

JUNIOR—9, 10 and 11 year olds—"We Would See Jesus" by Ward, 75c. Work sheets for above, 20c.

(Continued on page 11.)

Listen to Mrs. Victor F. Masters' Recording for "This I Believe"

I know you will be interested in the following information regarding Mrs. Victor F. Masters and her "This I Believe."

Mrs. Masters' recording for "This I Believe" has been scheduled to appear in Series No. 6 and has been released for July 22. This does not mean, however, that every radio station which carries the "This I Believe" feature by Edward R. Murrow will use it on July 22. It might come earlier or later. I suggest that you check with your local radio station when it gets nearer to the time of broadcast.

The second interesting fact is that Mrs. Masters' "This I Believe" script has been selected for inclusion in the new newspaper series and will appear during the week of July 13.

In case some of you are not familiar with "This I Believe," it is a radio series under the general guidance of Edward R. Murrow, probably the world's leading news commentator. There are 200 radio stations which use it from 1 to 4 times daily. The "Voice of America" uses it in six languages. It is sent out through the State Department Information Service to some 97 territories and foreign countries, and is heard by our Armed Services in 140 odd stations in the Pacific and Europe.

"This I Believe" has been published in book form and is a best seller. It presents the personal philosophies of thoughtful men and women in all walks of life. It is a non-profit program. Time is donated by the radio stations, and the cost are paid by a subscription made by certain business men. It originated in a small group of laymen in 1944 who around a luncheon table were discussing the fact that material values were gaining and spiritual values were losing among the people generally. But at the same time they felt there was a great restless searching for spiritual values and for personal answers as to what a person can believe and what is worthwhile.

"This I Believe" has succeeded far beyond the expectations of its founders.

Please mark the week of July 13 on your calendar pad with a big red circle so that you will listen for Mr. Masters' recording, and read his story in your local paper.

DOROTHY P. CUSHING.

A Page for Our Children

MRS. R. L. HOUSE, Editor, Southern Pines, N. C.

Building Campaign Contest

Are you a contest fan? Here's a chance for you if you are between the ages of 8 and 15 and belong to a Congregational Christian Church Sunday School. Cash prizes of $15 first prize and two second and third prizes of $5 each are being offered for the best essay on "Why We Should Give to the Church Building Loan Fund Campaign."

Here's what you do:

1. Write 250 to 300 words on one side of the paper only.
2. Sign your name, address, give name of your church and name of your Sunday school superintendent.
3. Neatness will count.
4. Send your entry to Miss Pattie Lee Coghill, Elon college, N. C., not later than June 15, 1953.

The judges are Miss Pattie Lee Coghill, Mrs. W. E. Wiseman, and Dr. D. J. Bowden.

Who will be the winner? Whose Sunday School will have a winner? Who knows anything about Moab Hartlie?

First prize winner's essay and picture will appear on this page, and essays of the next two winners.

Get out your paper and pencils, and put on those writing caps. Let's go!

* * *

For information about the Church Building Loan Fund Campaign write to the Southern Convention Office, Elon College, N. C. or see recent issues of "The Sun" or consult your minister.

* * * * *

Learning Consideration for Younger Children

By HELEN GREGG GREEN.

Issued by the National Kindergarten Association.

At a Y. W. C. A. committee meeting several mothers discussed the "intricate relationships" of those closest to them. They stressed the importance of a friendly attitude among the children in a family and, also, towards those of the outside world.

"Teaching Eloise consideration for her younger sister and her small chums was one of my difficulties," the vivacious mother of two young moderns confessed. "They all enjoyed dramatizing favorite stories. But Eloise, and others of her age, passed out the less desirable parts to the younger children. 'Frannie, you're the pumpkin!' 'Buddy, you place the scenery!' One day I heard an impatient 'Oh, that Frances!' from Eloise. 'Look, Mother, look!' My seven-year-old had rebelled! I well remember her note.

'Dear Eloise

I hearby give my resignation, the reason being the meeniness and unfareness of the actores.

lovingly yours

Frances.'

"That night Eloise and I had a heart-to-heart talk. I reminded her that little children must enjoy what is given them to do if they are to develop self-reliance." The understanding mother looked thoughtful. Then, "We all know confidence in one's ability has its roots in the home," she added philosophically.

"I've observed Eloise is considerate of younger children," one of the mothers spoke up.

Eloise's mother smiled her thanks as she continued her story. "'Do you mean, Mother,' Eloise asked, eyes big and shining, 'I could give Frannie one of those inferiority complexes?' I agreed. 'If she's to be at ease away from home, she must feel that the important folks in her world—you, Daddy and I—believe in her. If you deflate a small child's opinion of herself, she may lose her spirit.' 'Not Frances!' said Eloise, giggling, remembering the note. 'But the next time, we'll give her a part she does well—like dancing. She'll make an angelic fairy! And the other little youngsters—well, we'll think of something they like to do!'"

A child's first experience of social living is with his parents, sisters and brothers. Here is set the pattern for future human relationships.

Back of the rivalry and jealousy among sisters and brothers is the wish to be the parents' only beloved. Therefore, is it not a kindness to build family loyalty, to make each member feel he is an honored, respected, loved individual?

Both parents and children are happiest, at their relaxed best, where there is congeniality and harmony.

How true it is that every child needs treatment based on his abilities, temperament, and growth. There are many factors contributing to a child's total personality. No two require the same treatment. Tommy may be slow in his reactions and responses; his big sister emotional, quick-tempered.

In the case of an only child there are, naturally, no brother-sister problems. It is important, however, that an only child have constant relations with the outside world, he being more dependent for companionship than are the children of a larger family. He needs playmates and friends of comparable age for shared experiences. Many parents of only children make the home the headquarters for the neighborhood boys and girls to meet.

Our cousin explains their twelve-year-old's helpful attitude toward the boy's small niece, who lives with them. The youthful uncle is her champion, permitting her to play with all his possessions, except with his prized stamp collection.

The reply to my "How did you develop this mature attitude in 'Uncle Jonny'?" is interesting.

"From the time they were tots we taught the children respect for each other's feelings and rights. We encouraged observation of the small amenities that smooth life's rough edges. The time Jonny objected to playing with our neighbor's son, hlaf his age, I reminded him, 'Do you remember when you could hardly throw a ball when Ted played baseball with you? Now that he's in college, isn't it fair to teach his brother what you know about baseball, Jonny?'"

BIBLE SCHOOL MATERIALS.

(Continued from page 10.)

JUNIOR HIGH—12, 13 and 14 years—"Jesus, the Great Leader" by Swain, 75c. Work books for use with "Jesus, the Great Leader," 25c.

These are all Judson Press publications, and may be ordered from the Judson Press, 1701 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa. Order as early as possible. We have no copies left in the Convention Office.

PATTIE LEE COGHILL.

Over 15 million boys and girls under seven are without any form of religious education.

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE, D. D.

Principles of Christian Stewardship

LESSON X—JUNE 7, 1953.

MEMORY SELECTIONS "Each one must do as he has made up his mind, not reluctantly or under compulsion, for God loves a cheerful giver."—II Corinthians 9:7.

LESSON: II Corinthians 9:1-15.

The words of Paul in today's lesson were written concerning a specific and a local problem. The Corinthian Christians had made a pledge to "The Jerusalem Relief Fund" this "collection for the saints" was to relieve the acute poverty of some of the Jerusalem Christians. The Palestinian Christians, then as now, had meager material resources, and had to lean heavily on gifts and contributions from Jews in other parts of the world of that day. Paul was soon to go to Jerusalem, and he wanted to take the gift along. He wanted to make sure that the Corinthian Christians paid their pledges and had the money ready when he came by for it.

The fact was it would be very embarrassing to him, to say the least, if they did not have the money. For Paul had been telling the churches in other parts of Greece about the generosity and the readiness of the folks in Corinth, and about the Fund that they were raising for the Christian Jews in Jerusalem. Imagine how he would feel if, when he came with friends from Macedonia, the Corinthians had not raised the money. Accordingly he had sent some of his fellow-workers ahead, that the folks at Corinth would be "prepared." He tells his friends frankly that he had been using their church as a means of stirring up the Macedonian Christians to give more liberally. He knew the power of this motive as well as its ethical validity.

Furthermore he did not want the offering to be a matter of "extortion" as he calls it, but rather a matter of bounty. As great as was the need, he did not want any money that was given grudgingly or under compulsion. "The same was to be ready as a matter of bounty, and not of extortion." As has been said above, all this was written to deal with a specific and local situation. But Paul announced principles that are timeless and universal. Let us consider them briefly.

1. Paul approves the principle of rivalry in giving. To be sure he maintains the ethical principle in using rivalry. But Paul believes there is value, and power, in telling others what their fellow-Christians are doing. For instance our General Council and our Convention and Conferences often inform us as to where we stand in relation to the giving of other denominations for the same causes. And sometimes it helps churches which have been miserly in giving to missions or benevolences or other causes often respond when they hear about other churches, far less able than they, who are giving larger sums.

2. Paul believed in making pledges for definite causes. He believed in a man "making up his mind" what he was going to give. "Every man as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give." Giving was not to be left to chance, to passing emotions, to whims or moods. One should face frankly and honestly his ability to give, and then decide what proportion or amount he would give. Here is a man on a salary. Let him decide what proportion of his income he will give to the Lord through benevolent and humanitarian causes. There may have to be some adjustments. But there is a value in setting aside a stated amount for this purpose. Then one can adjust his living expenses in the light of that purpose. The fact that must exercise self-denial in order to give a stated amount has great value. God should not be given the leftovers. He should have the separated portion. His share should be taken out first, or at least, ear-marked. Many people believe the tenth is the standard. Let every man be fully persuaded in his own mind.

3. Paul asserted that one should fulfill his pledge. A pledge is a sacred obligation. Once made, it should be honored, if at all possible. There are some who make pledges with no idea of paying them—every Every Member Canvasser attests to this statement. Others make pledges and honor them for a while, but sooner or later disregard them. And for no sufficient reason. There are instances, of course, when it is difficult if not impossible for a person to pay his original pledge. Unemployment, poor crop yield, financial reverses, prolonged illness, and other factors may enter in. Death itself may make it impossible for a widow to honor a pledge made by her husband. There are exceptions. But the principle holds good. The person who makes a pledge to the church ought to pay his pledge.

Right here let a word be said to those people who say they do not make a pledge to the church, for they "do not believe in making pledges." Oh yes! They make pledges to everything else. They buy houses and farms and furniture and automobiles and televisions, and other things "on time" which is by pledge. They have telephones and electric lights, and what have you, and when they are installed they sign a contract and make a pledge. The fact is that many people aren't as honest in dealing with God as they are in dealing with their fellow men!

4. Paul believed one should give liberally. Stinginess has no place in the Christian's life in dealing with others. It certainly should have no part in his dealings with God. The fact is that a man has a tendency to think that he gives far more than he does give. Very few people give as much as they think they give. One reason why some folks do not have more is because they do not give more, believe it or not!

5. Paul suggests that giving should be done cheerfully. God loves a cheerful giver. The word from which the English word cheerful comes is a Greek word, "hilaros," which is the word from which we get our word "hilarity." God loves folks who give as if they were getting some fun out of giving. One should not give grudgingly, or of necessity, but cheerfully and of a ready mind.

6. Paul emphasized the fact that giving should come out of gratitude. "Thanks be unto God for His unspeakable gift." Let a man consider how much others have done for him. Let him consider even more how much God has done for him. And then out of a heart of gratitude let him give, gladly, generously, and as unto God.

7. Such giving, like mercy is twice blessed. It blesses him who receives and him who gives. There was a closer bond of unity between the Jerusalem Christians and the Corin-

(Continued on page 13.)

Derrick Casper Golladay Called Home

By RALPH M. GALT.

On April 23 the Valley of Virginia Central Conference and the Southern Convention lost a leader who was in some ways the most faithful Christian. "Brother D. C. Golladay," as he was called, made an outstanding record by attending the annual meetings of Conference 64 years in succession. Less than a month before his final illness he was enjoying Conference at the Leaksville Church. Besides this astounding record, Mr. Golladay attended a great many mid-year sessions of Conference and Southern Convention meetings. Of course Brother Golladay attended church services or Sunday school every Sunday that he was physically able to get to church.

Another brilliant record in Christian faithfulness made by D. C. Golladay was in Bible reading. During his life he read the New Testament about 670 times, and the Old Testament at least 36 times. In his own words he described his systematic reading in this way: "In 1908 I made a promise to read through the Testament 12 times. In 1909, 12 times; in 1910, 12 times; 1911, 15 times; 1912, 18 times; 1913, 18 times; 1914, 19 times; 1915, 22 times . . ."

Golladay's faithfulness was also shown in the fact that he generally did whatever he was asked to do for the church. He taught Sunday school throughout most of his long life, led in prayer, and preached often. He preached his first sermon in 1891 at High Point Christian Church, N. C. when he was 19 years old. Brother Golladay helped to start Woods Chapel in 1897, and spoke at its homecoming in 1952. Even just a few weeks before he passed on to his reward, while in a hospital sadly handicapped in sight, speech, and hearing, he testified that he was praying every day for our churches.

Derrick Casper Golladay spent almost all his life in Rockingham County, Virginia. He was born northeast of Timberville on May 29, 1872. He joined Bethlehem Christian Church at the age of 15. He attended and worked his way in Elon College, N. C. from about 1890 to 1892. Rev. W. T. Herndon who was then a Southern Convention missionary in the Valley encouraged young Golladay to go to college, and took him the whole 250 miles by horse drawn buggy, and gave him work at Elon. About 1925 D. C. Golladay published a leaflet entitled Interesting Items about the Bible, including such things as: "in the Bible, the word 'Lord' is found 1853 times, and the word 'Jehovah' 685 times. In the New Testament the words 'Lord Jesus Christ' are found 2,099 times, and the word 'God' is found 1,533 times . . . The word 'girl' occurs but once in the Bible and that in Joel 3:3 . . ."

The body of D. C. Golladay was laid to rest in Concord Church Cemetery near his birthplace on April 25, 1953. Brother Golladay had requested that four of the Conference ministers officiate at his funeral. Three of them, Rev. R. E. Newton, Rev. Emerson J. Rohart, and the writer did serve. The fourth, Rev. S. E. Madren sent his regrets that he was unable to attend. Rev. Henry V. Harman came quite a distance to the funeral. A choir from Bethlehem Church sang Mr. Golladay's favorite hymns in accordance with his request.

D. C. GOLLADAY.

The following farewell was found among D. C. Golladay's papers:

THE PARTING HAND.

Farewell, my brethern, the time is at hand,
That we must be parted from this racial band,
Our several engagements do call us away;
Separation is needful, and we must obey.
Farewell, loving Christians, farewell for awhile,
We'll soon meet again if kind heaven should smile;
And while we are parted and scattered abroad,
We'll pray for each other and trust in the Lord.
Farewell faithful soldiers, you'll soon be discharged;
With singing and shouting, the Jordan may roar—
We'll enter fair Canaan, and rest on the shore.
Farewell, ye young converts, who are listed for war;

Sore trials await you but Jesus is near;
And through you must walk—through this dark wilderness,
Your Captain's before you, he'll lead you to peace.
Farewell, careless sinners, for you I do mourn.
To think on your danger, and you unconcerned;
I've heard of a judgment, where all must appear—
O there you'll stand trembling with tormenting fear.
Your follies and pastimes, in which you delight;
Will serve to torment you in that dreadful fright,
You'll think on those sermons which you've heard in vain,
When hope gone forever of hearing again.
Farewell Faithful pilgrims, farewell all around,
Perhaps we'll not meet, till the last trumpet sound;
To meet you in glory I give you my hand,
The Saviour to praise in a pure, racial band.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

(Continued from page 12.)

thian Christians because of the gifts of the latter. Our gifts to missions have created a "reservoir of good will on the part of those nations to which our missionaries have gone. Our gifts to the starving, the sick and the dispossessed have made for us many friends and have influenced people.

And all the time, our own lives become richer and stronger because we have given. And we become better disciples, for in true giving we are expressing the love for others which Christ said was the test of our love for him.

Based on "International Sunday School Lessons;" Copyrighted 1951 by Division of Christian Education, National Council of the Churches in the U. S. A.

Knowing and Doing

No one who really has knowledge fails to practice it. Knowledge without practice should be interpreted as lack of knowledge. Sages and virtuous men teach men to know how to act, because they wish them to return to Nature. They do not tell them merely to reflect and let this suffice.

A person must certainly have experienced pain before he can know what it is; and to understand hunger, one must have been hungry. How, then, can knowledge and practice be separated? The sage instructs the individual that he must practice before he may be said to have understanding. If he fails to practice, he does not understand. Knowledge is the beginning of practice; doing is the completion of knowledge.

—Missions Council.

The Orphanage

J. G. TRUITT, Superintendent

DEAR FRIENDS:

I am writing this letter on the morning of May 21. Yesterday I saw several boys and others planting sweet potato plants. How busy they were! Some were hauling water, some were planting, others were watering; all were watching the unplanted space grow smaller. It takes a lot of work to plant 8,000 plants. But they were happy and doing a good job. They will watch them grow, keep them free of grass and weeds, and in the fall harvest them. A boy knows a lot about a sweet potato when he is eating it.

Last night I was very proud of our three seniors in the class day exercises. David Haith presided and he did it well. Both Ann Kinch and Virginia Black had prominent parts and it was easy to see they deserved them. David has two or three things in mind for tomorrow. We are helping him as best we can to decide what he will do. Ann will go to Rex Hospital in Raleigh for training. Virginia will accept a position with the Bell Telephone Company in Burlington and go to business college on the side. It looks as though each of them will make good in life, and certainly the church has done a good part by them.

One of our matrons resigned a few days ago and a new one had to be installed. We were sorry to have her go but she felt that she was too old to stand the strain of caring for 25 little children. I must say it is a real job, and we all should greatly appreciate what the matrons do here. We hope the new one will find the job not too taxing and that she and the children will get along fine.

Along with finding and employing a new matron I am investigating six applications for the placing of children in our care. They must be in dire need, healthy, and of sound mind, for their own sake and for the sake of the children already here. This, too, is a big job.

We are getting started with the erection of the Holt Memorial Chapel and a great amount of time and work on that falls to my lot, which is to me a real thrill. I am looking forward to the uses the chapel and the recreation room on the first floor can be put to. The sanctuary will front on the ground level and because the chapel is being erected atop the ridge the entrance to the basement will be also on the ground floor at the other end of the building.

I cannot close this letter without telling you again how much I appreciate your help. From many Sunday schools, churches, organizations and individuals your help comes in. We need it, too, and want you to know that we are trying to make what you send pay the bills. Our boys and girls seem happy and are thrilled to tell me as they come home today from school: "I passed." God bless them and may they move steadily upgrade to useful, fruitful careers.

JOHN G. TRUITT,
Superintendent.

REPORT FOR MAY 21, 1953.
Commodities for the Week.
Pet Dairy Products, Burlington, N. C., Ice Cream.
Mrs. Joe Kelly, Burlington, N. C., Clothing.
Sunday School Monthly Offerings.
Amount brought forward	$ 6,490.72
Eastern N. C. Conference:
Bethel	$ 26.06
Catawba Springs, Special	54.13
Liberty (Vance), Special	76.20
Plymouth	9.75
Sanford	82.00
Shallow Well, for Ann Kinch	5.00
	253.14
Eastern Va. Conference:
Windsor S. S.	$ 10.00
	10.00
N. C. and Va. Conference:
Greensboro, Palm Street, Special	$ 17.60
Mt. Zion S. S.	7.76
	25.36
Western N. C. Conference:
Zion	$ 30.00
	30.00
Total	$ 318.50
Grand total	$ 6,809.22

Special Offerings.
Amount Brought forward	$ 8,758.69
Pisgah S. S., Pisgah, Ala.	$ 10.00
Mr. & Mrs. N. T. Barron, Franklin, Va., in memory of Mrs. E. P. Jones	5.00
Mrs. C. C. Fonville and family, Burlington, N. C., in memory of Mrs. Vitus R. Holt	5.00
Mrs. Georgia C. Grutsch, Burlington, N. C., in memory of Mrs. Vitus R. Holt	8.00
Kirk Holt Hardware Employees, in memory of Mrs. Vitus R. Holt	33.00
D. L. Boone, Durham, N. C., in memory of Mrs. Vitus R. Holt	10.00
Woman's Missionary Society, Amelia Christian Church for Ray Kinch	20.00
Philathea Class, Reidsville Church	10.00
Lawrence S. Holt Trust Fund	150.00
For Thurman Arnold:
Mr. & Mrs. W. C. Perry, Jr., Elon College, N. C.	5.00
Kiwanis Club of Graham, N. C.	40.00
Brownie Troup, Gibsonville, N. C.	.60
A Friend, for boy's shower room	25.00
Jr. Class, Haw River Cong. Christian Church, in memory of Thurman Arnold	5.00
Special Gifts	60.63
	387.23
Grand total	$ 9,145.92
Total for the week	$ 705.73
Total for the year	$15,955.14

No man really gives unless the things he gives could be of use to himself. He who gives such things that he doesn't value or has no use for in reality gives nothing.—MCCC.

MEMORIAL GIFTS

"Instead of Flowers"

Dr. John G. Truitt

Christian Orphanage

Elon College, N. C.

Dear Dr. Truitt:

Please acknowledge the enclosed $..... as a memorial gift sent to the Christian Orphanage in lieu of flowers in memory of:

(Name of Deceased) (City) (Date of Death)

(Survivor to be Written) (Address)

Name.....

Address.....

In Memoriam

HOUSE.

The sudden and untimely passing of Dr. Robert Lee House has saddened the hearts of everyone that knew him, and there has been, and no doubt will be many more words of praise and commendation from those who have shared in the wise council of his great heart and mind and who feel deeply depressed over such a great loss. But there is none, perhaps, who feel their loss more keenly than do we of the Robert Lee House Class of Newport News, Virginia.

Therefore, being conscious of so great a loss, we, the undersigned committee, in behalf of the members of this Sunday School Class which bears his name, submit the following:

Whereas it has pleased Almighty God to take to Himself one whose memory we shall always cherish, be it resolved:

First, not my will but Thine be done, as Lee would want it to be.

Second, that we extend our humble sympathy to the bereaved families and express to them our deepest regrets at the passing of one who meant so much to all of us.

Third, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to both families, to "The Christian Sun" for publication, and a copy be placed in the records of our class.

RALPH W ALDRIDGE,
President.
LINDSEY DYE,
Past President.

JONES.

In the death of Mrs. Naomi Tall Jones on May 10, 1953, the Franklin Congregational Christian Church sustained a loss in its ranks that brought deep sorrow to her co-workers and left a vacancy that greatly affects the church and its every organization.

During her forty years of residence in Franklin, Mrs. Jones exerted invaluable leadership in the life of her church, having served untiringly in official and lay duties when and wherever the task called for efficient, willing and unselfish performance. Although actively engaged in the Kingdom's business in local, conference and convention circles, she was perhaps happiest in and most closely associated with work pertaining to missions. Here, her zeal and efforts knew no bounds. Overall, her spiritual purpose reflected goals for which every Christian strives.

Inasmuch as we wish to pay our lasting tribute to this departed friend and co-worker we are therefore resolved:

1. To honor her memory by striving ever to emulate her devout faith and Christian practices.

2. That although in her passing the church at large has lost a faithful and energetic member, we rejoice in the thought that our loss is Heaven's gain.

3. To present a copy of these resolutions to her bereaved family as an expression of our deepest sympathy; to transfer a copy to the permanent records of our church and to forward a copy to "The Christian Sun" for publication.

Respectively submitted,

Mrs. MARY EDITH C. HOLLAND,
Mrs. LILLIAN S. HARGRAVE,
Mrs. EVELYN L. BEAL.

Church Building Loan Fund Campaign

All churches in the Southern Convention have been asked to file Declarations of Purpose in connection with the Church Building Loan Fund Campaign with the Convention Office as soon as they can do so. Those that have not done so are urged to do so as soon as possible.

Through May 23, 1953, Southern Convention Declarations of Purpose received at the office were as follows:

Church and Pastor	Amount
Va. Valley Central Conference:
Wissler's Chapel—Ralph M. Galt	$ 60.00
Eastern Va. Conference:
Liberty Spring—Jesse H. Dollar	$1,591.00
Richmond—Roy C. Helfenstein	1,459.00
Suffolk—Duane N. Vore	6,290.00
Holy Neck—Allen Hurdle	1,270.00
Eastern N. C. Conference:
Amelia—John Littiken	$ 400.00
Beulah—Carl Wallace	517.00

Henderson—J. F. Apple	1,087.00
Hope Mills—Vacant	†195.00
Lee's Chapel—Fred P. Register	†166.00
Raleigh—W. L. Parker	975.00
Shallow Well—W. L. Wood	300.00
Southern Pines—Vacant	1,981.00
Turner's Chapel—W. L. Wood	300.00
Wake Chapel—F. P. Register	1,500.00

Western N. C. Conference:
Asheboro—F. C. Lester	$ 775.00
Liberty—L. M. Presenell	361.00
Spoon's Chapel—Max Vestal	132.00
Flint Hill (R)—Avery Brown	127.00
High Point—Guy H. Veazey	426.00

N. C. and Va. Conference:
Burlington:
Beverly Hills—W. W. Snyder	$ 400.00
Lakeview—John G. Truitt, Jr.	82.50
Elon College—H. P. Bozarth	2,450.00
Haw River—Dwight Jackson	1,065.00
Reidsville—T. G. Humphries	*3,211.00
Union (NC)—K. D. Register	1,395.00
Winston-Salem—W. J. Andes	814.00
Zion—Fred H. Wrenn (Student)	75.00
Pfafftown—W. J. Andes	258.00

*Declaration not received at office.
†Paid.

THE CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCH BUILDING LOAN FUND

Declaration of Purpose

We believe that it is of overwhelming importance to help in the erection of church buildings to meet the needs of America's unchurched millions and to provide a place where children may receive training in the basic principles of Christianity.

We acknowledge with gratitude the generous assistance in church building financial aid already received by many churches of the Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches. We further realize that our own financial resources without aid from our Church Building Society will be inadequate to meet the needs of our churches of this area. We gladly join our Congregational Christian Churches of America in support of the Church Building Fund Campaign.

We are pleased to report that our church, at a meeting of the members held the day of, 195..., voted to co-operate in the Church Building Fund Campaign of the Congregational Christian Churches and accepted a goal of $.....

It was agreed that our church would seek to reach this goal by:
(Check below the statement which applies to your church.)

- [] 1. A special solicitation of our church to be held the week beginning, 195..., in which we will endeavor to secure a pledge from each member of the church.
- [] 2. By seeking a pledge from each member of the church for this purpose at the time of our regular every member canvass to be held the week of, 195...
- [] 3. By including each year in our budget, for years, the sum of $....., which will be paid in quarterly installments of $....., beginning, 195...
- [] 4. By annual solicitation each year for years.

..... Church
By Secretary or Clerk
Address

..... Pastor Treasurer
NOTE.—Mail "Declaration of Purpose" to the Southern Convention Office, Elon College, N. C. Make checks payable to The Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches, designated "Church Building Fund" and mail to Elon College, N. C. Payments should be completed not later than March 1, 1956.

They are Given Honorary Degrees by Elon College

Six eminent men in the fields of theology and music were the recipients of honorary degrees from Elon College at its sixty-third annual Commencement, held on Monday, May 25. Five of the men are ministers, three of them from Burlington, North Carolina, and the sixth is a successful musician. Those honored were as follows, with the degree given in parentheses:

Rev. Chester Alexander (top left), pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Burlington, a native of South Carolina and a graduate of The Citadel and the Union Theological Seminary. (Doctor of Divinity.)

Rev. William L. Clegg (top center), pastor of the Front Street Methodist Church of Burlington, a native of North Carolina, and a graduate of Duke University and the Duke Divinity School. (Doctor of Divinity.)

Rev. Henry E. Robinson (top right), the pastor of the First Congregational Christian Church of Burlington, a native of Texas and a graduate of Rice Institute and Hartford Theological Seminary. (Doctor of Divinity.)

Rev. Edward W. W. Lewis (bottom left), pastor of the United Congregational Church, Norwich, Conn., a graduate of Ohio University and Harvard. (Doctor of Divinity.)

Rev. George G. Parker (bottom center), pastor of Manhasset Congregational Church, Manhasset, N. Y., a native of Missouri and a graduate of William Jewell College and Andover-Newton Seminary. (Doctor of Divinity.)

Prof. David Barnett (bottom right), member of faculty, New England Conservatory of Music, native of New York, educated at Columbia Univ., Julliard School of Music, and Ecole de Musique, Paris. (Doctor of Music.)

The CHRISTIAN SUN

ORGAN OF THE SOUTHERN CONVENTION OF CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES

In Essentials Unity — In Non-Essentials, Liberty, — In All Things, Charity

VOLUME CV

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, JUNE 4, 1953

NUMBER 23

Ten Commandments on Free Speech

About a quarter century ago Dr. Edwin Diller Starbuck, director of Character Research in the School of Philosophy, University of Southern California, evolved "Ten Commandments on Free Speech," which he described as "the principles that should govern, stimulate and regulate freedom of speech." They may be worth reprinting in a time like this:

1. Thou shalt not quake in cowardice. Humanity needs thy straight, strong word. Only the courageous heart can find the path and lead the way.

2. Thou shalt not sneak. Speak no word about thy fellow man that thou wouldst not gladly utter in his presence.

3. Thou shalt not be discourteous. Enter upon the most vigorous discussion only in the spirit that would lead to lasting fellowship.

4. Thou shalt not be a cynic. The world needs not so much vinegar for its wounds as the oil and wine of healing.

5. Thou shalt not dogmatize. The certainties of today are often the follies of tomorrow.

6. Thou shalt not be censorious. Thy neighbor has also a few convictions. He will be better off by giving them expression and thou wilt be likewise in harkening.

7. Thou shalt not do thy thinking with thy torso. Know well that foolish passions lurk just beneath the threshold of tense ideas.

8. Thou shalt not be irreverent. The deep soil of humanity from which thou drawest thy sustenance is formed out of the dearly-bought idealisms of those that have gone before.

9. Thou shalt not be a poor sportsman. When worsted in a bout of words thou shalt take the count as do the high-born.

10. Thou shalt not be without a sense of humor. The thirsty earth needs the lightning and driving storms. It needs also the sparkling dews and sunlight radiance.

News Flashes

Dr. Wm. T. Scott's address will be from June 8-20, and from June 29-July 9: c/o Dr. Sidney M. Berry, International Congregational Council, 110 Memorial Hall, Farringdon St., London, E. C. 4. June 20-29: c/o International Congregational Council, St. Salvator's Hall, St. Andrews, Fife, Scotland.

Greensboro, N. C., Churchman Takes Over "National Radio Pulpit" for June and July

With the Rev. Dr. Ralph W. Sockman, presiding minister, taking his annual warm-weather leave from the NBC "National Radio Pulpit," the program will have the Rev. Dr. John A. Redhead of Greensboro, N. C., as officiating clergyman during the two months of June and July, Sundays, at 10 a. m., EDT.

The subjects of Dr. Redhead's sermons will be: "What Does God Have in Mind for me?" June 7; "Providence Road," June 14; "The Mind of God," June 21; "The Love of God," June 28; "The Will of God," July 5; "He Restoreth My Soul," July 12; "Married Love," July 19, and "Living Without Tension," July 26.

The Protestant Fellowship Choir will sing on each of the summer broadcasts, which will be presented in association with the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U. S. A.

The speaker for Sunday, August 2, through Sunday, September 27, will be Bishop Arthur J. Moore of Atlanta, Georgia. His subjects are yet to be announced.

Department of Church Finance Advisory Service Elects Associate Director

The Board of Home Missions of the Congregational Christian Churches has recently elected Mr. LeRoy E. Eide a secretary of the Board. His position will be that of associate director in the Department of Church Finance Advisory Service.

This department is the outgrowth of an earlier action taken by the Board because of the unprecedented and tremendous amount of building enterprises undertaken by churches throughout the country. With vision and daring, the Board pioneered in a new field. It elected a Church Financial Advisor, Curtis R. Schumacher, working under the Church Building Department. He assisted churches by directing their financial projects to raise funds for new building, expansion, modernization or renovation programs, or for debt liquidation purposes. The requests for such aid were so great that the need of a Department of Church Finance Advisory Service became apparent. On December 5, 1951, such a department was created with Mr. Schumacher as its director. The volume of work continued to increase. To more adequately meet the requests, Mr. Eide has been added to the department as associate. He will begin counselling with and directing churches in their financial projects sometime in the fall of 1953.

Mr. Eide, a layman, has been the director of Stewardship and Missions of the Washington Congregational Christian Conference, with joint responsibility to the Missions Council, for the past four and a half years. He was born in North Dakota, and attended schools there and in South Dakota. Because of his background, ranging from rural school teaching through extensive accounting and sales experience, and then his work with the Washington Conference, Mr. Eide will come to his new position with valuable qualifications.

Mr. and Mrs. Eide are both active members of the Community Congregational Church of Bellevue, Washington. In his church life, Mr. Eide has been a trustee, treasurer, financial secretary, chairman of the Board of Deacons and church school superintendent. He has had many responsible positions with the Washington State Council of Churches, including president, Young Adult Fellowship; Activities Commission member; on the Committee for Migrant Work; and was a member of the Church Planning and Strategy Committee. During the term 1946-47, he was the moderator of the Washington Conference. For the past several years he has served as executive secretary of the Northwest Regional Conference.

Mr. and Mrs. Eide have two children, Pricilla 11 and Lee 6. During the past year the family has served on the Congregational Christian National Family Life Commission, and as representatives of the Pacific Northwest.

Mr. Eide's headquarters will be at 287 Fourth Avenue, New York City.

A Personal Letter from Dr. and Mrs. Wm. T. Scott

Elon College, N. C.,
May 30, 1953.

Dear Friends:

We want to say "Thank You" for the part you have had in making a wonderful dream come true for us. Your gift, which makes possible our going together to St. Andrews, Scotland, for the International Congregational Council, makes us very happy and very grateful.

This year of all years makes in wonderful! On June 29, we will celebrate our Silver Anniversary in St. Andrews. Isn't that great?

These twenty-five years have been happy and busy ones. Fifteen of them have been spent in the "general work" of the church, Bill serving eight years as Superintendent of the Southeast, with headquarters in Jacksonville, Florida, and since 1946 as Superintendent of the Southern Convention. We have tried to give our best service, but humbly realize we have fallen short. We should have failed utterly had it not been for friends like you who have helped and encouraged us all along the way.

Your making it possible for us to make this trip gives us renewed determination that we shall serve you with stronger devotion and the cause of Christ with deeper meaning.

We needed a "lift" this year more than we realized. A visit by Della to her physician for a checkup in early April resulted in, "Major operation, Mrs. Scott!" She underwent the operation on April 20. Devoted, skilled physicians, nurses and friends set to work to "pull her through" for the trip to Scotland in June. She came from the hospital on May 5, and everything points to our dream being fulfilled.

We leave by train from Elon College, June 1, for New York. There we will meet Bill's sister, Lois. We will be the guests of Dr. and Mrs. Ernest Halliday on June 2. Dr. Halliday has been a long time friend and associate of Bill's through the Board of Home Missions. Bill, Jr., who is pastor of our church in Cornwall, Conn., will meet us Wednesday morning, June 3, and we will go aboard the Queen Elizabeth (Tourist Class, Deck A, Room 11), Pier 90, foot of West 50th Street, New York, N. Y. We will sail shortly after 11 a. m., along with the other Congregational Christian delegates from the U. S. A. going to the International Council.

(Continued on page 6.)

Laymen and the Church . . .

J. Earl Danieley, Editor, Box 515, Elon College, N. C.

Has Your Church Answered?

Many of the churches have sent in the information asked for on the questionnaire which was recently sent to all of our churches. We appreciate this good response. However, there are still many more of our churches to be heard from. Won't you please be sure that the blank has been sent in from your church? This information can be very helpful to the Fellowship. If by mistake no blank was received in your church please inform your column editor and a blank will be sent to you immediately. This survey is important to the work of our men; let us continue to do a good job of it.

* * * * *

Have You Thought of a Laymen's Retreat?

The purpose of this page in THE SUN as your editor understands it is to do something of a reporting job of the activities of the various men's groups in the Convention; to bring to the attention of the men announcements of importance; to supply the groups with some suitable material for the planning of programs; and, to in other ways stimulate laymen in general to do a greater work in the Church of our Christ. Therefore, a major proportion of today's column is concerned with the idea of a Laymen's Retreat.

Recently we have received programs of retreats to be held in various parts of the country. In April the men of the Maine Conference held a three-day retreat; in June another is being held in Wadley, Alabama, for three days for the men of the Southeast Convention; in August another is being held in New Hampshire for the men of that area. But, why a retreat?

The Alabama programs lists the following reasons for a retreat: "Retreat is a time to lay aside thoughts of business and personal care. Retreat is a time to lay aside our argumentative and reasoning mind and become a lowly seeker, believing that if we seek we shall find, that if we ask we shall receive, and if we knock it shall be opened. Retreat is a time for spiritual honesty with oneself. Re-treach is a time for worship. Retreat is a time for discussion; not the feverish discussion of the political arena nor the expounding of the pulpit but the quiet discussion of seekers together in search of truth. We can learn much from one another. Retreat is a time to study the ways and laws of spiritual discipline. Retreat is a time for vision."

Read these reasons again! Isn't that just what we need to have? Don't we need a time when we can get together and think? Don't we need a time when we can share in Christian fellowship our ideas, ideals, and experience of Christian living? Most of these retreats begin with a meeting on Friday evening and end with the eleven o'clock service on Sunday. Most of us could palm to get away for such a retreat.

It is difficult to refrain from offering an idea. We are working to make Moonelon a Conference Center for our Convention. Why don't we complete that work as soon as possible and begin even now to plan for a retreat there at Moonelon in the summer of 1954? It could be a genuine blessing to our entire Fellowship. Think about it; let us hear from you. This is a marvelous opportunity and it can be realized if we are determined to do so.

When a man has not a good reason for doing a thing, he has one good reason for letting it alone.—Scott.

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr
A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom as represented by the Congregational Christian Churches.
Our Principles

1. The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
2. Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
3. The Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
4. Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and church membership.
5. The right of private judgment and liberty of conscience is a privilege that should be accorded to and exercised by all.

Managing Editor John T. Kernodle

Departmental Editors—Convention, Wm. T. Scott; Missions, F. C. Lester; Women's Work, Mrs. F. C. Lester; Young People's Work, Max Vestal; Children, Mrs. R. L. House; Sunday School Lesson, H. S. Hardcastel.

Institutional Representatives—Elon College, L. E. Smith; The Christian Orphanage, John G. Truitt.

Board of Publications—Duane Vore, Chairman, S. T. Holland, Secretary; R. C. Helfenstein, S. E. Madren, W. W. Snyder, G. D. Colclough, Treasurer, ex officio.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Year $3.00
Two Years 5.00

Published by the Board of Publications of The Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches, Inc. Printed every Thursday except the last in June and December by Central Publishing Co., Inc., Richmond, Va.

Entered as second-class matter at the Post Office at Richmond Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

General contributions should be addressed to the editor at Southern Pines, N. C., and should reach him by Wednesday of the week preceding date of publication.

Departmental material should be sent to the proper departmental editor, at the address shown on their page.

All other material and business communications except regarding subscriptions should be sent to the Office of Publication, 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond 19, Va.

The Christian Sun Subscription Blank

Subscription Price: 1 year, $3.00; 2 years, $5.00

Date.....195....

Dr. Wm. T. Scott, Supt.,
Elon College, N. C.

Enclosed find $..... for which please send The Christian Sun
() 1 year, () 2 years — () New Subscription, () Renewal.

To

Address

Who is a member of Church

() Renew, () Enter my own subscription for () 1 year, () 2 years.

My Name

My Address

From the EDITORIAL Viewpoint

Prayer--Society's Weapon of Defense

By ROY C. HELFENSTEIN

Prayer is the greatest weapon of defense that society has. It is even a greater weapon of defense than is education or social service, for if those weapons are unaccompanied by prayer and religious concern, they prove ineffective.

The world is languishing with moral and social defeat on every hand before the enemies of greed, moral corruption, fear and exploitation, because the weapons of defense that are being used to hold off the enemy are not sufficient.

Every person who enjoys the benefits and protection of society owes it to himself, to God and to society to be on speaking relations with the God of heaven, and able to meet the condition of effective prayer in order to help hold off the enemy of evil which today threatens human welfare from every side.

The power of prayer was the most effective weapon the people of ancient Israel had as they faced the enemies of their day; and the power of prayer is the most effective weapon that Americans have today as we face the enemies of society that threaten the welfare of the nation and of the world at large.

But no weapon is of value for defense except as it is rightly used. The power of heaven is as available to man today as it ever has been. God is just as able to send his tidal wave of spiritual power to submerge the evils of our day as he ever was. But heaven's power is released only through the medium of prayer. The effective, fervent prayer of the righteous avails as surely today as it ever has. Let us ever pray! Let us "never cease to pray"!

A Rural Life Institute

By JAMES H. LIGHTBOURNE, JR.

Through the interest and efforts of Mr. J. W. Freeman, County Agricultural Agent, and Dr. Don Fessler, Extension Rural Sociologist of V. P. I., along with several of the ministers of the area and other civic leaders, a Nansemond County (Virginia) Rural Life Institute was held on Monday, May 25.

Included on the program were representatives of the Departments of Public Welfare and Public Health. The underlying theme of the institute was the Rural Church and its functioning in relation to Rural Life. In attendance were ministers of the area, representatives of the above mentioned departments and representatives of business firms actively engaged in rural work.

The Institute seems worthy of editorial comment because it represents a definite endeavor to bring together persons actively engaged in rural life within a specified area. The latter phrase is important—"within a specified area." The presentation of information concerning services rendered and the exchange of ideas pointing to a closer cooperation produced informative discussion.

The majority of the churches of the Southern Convention are located in rural areas. This sort of activity should be of interest to them. The program can be and should be geared to the local situation. The characteristics of rural life are changing, and this means that the functions of rural institutions have changed and are changing. The church has a role to play. It is needful that the role of the church be discussed in the context of the functions of other institutions operative in rural areas.

Of particular interest was the conclusion of the ministers and lay people alike that the most singular failure of the church in this respect has been that of relating the Christian ethic to the specific problems of community health, sanitation, welfare and housing. Ministers and lay people alike testified to responsibility for this failure. Constructive discussion can help the rural churches understand their problems and can point the way to dealing with them.

The Most Ecumenical Year of 1952-53

Pentecost was observed on Sunday, May 24, by 160 member churches of the World Council of Churches, not only throughout America, but in many other nations, as a time of ecumenical fellowship.

In connection with this observance, Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam, of Washington, D. C., made a review of what he termed "this most ecumenical church year." Said the Bishop, in part: "Not in modern times has the will to unity been so evident within the Church. By unity, I do not mean conformity. Actually, the fellowship and working together with church people of other denominations, often makes a church member more interested in studying what his own denomination really stands for, and why. When he understands his own church, he is in a position to take a legitimate pride in what his denomination is contributing to the whole ecumenical movement. He has to know about his own church before he can well discuss, with other churchmen, their areas of mutual agreement, as well as the points where complete agreement is lacking, and where, perhaps, no basis of agreement can be perceived in the immediate future."

"The World Council is not a world church. It is the churches themselves in cooperation at the world level. The first century Christians said that they had one Spirit but many gifts, just so, the World Council recognizes 'unity in diversity' among its member churches and among all Christians."

Pointing out some of the high spots which have occurred in the ecumenical calendar since last Pentecost, Bishop Oxnam cited:

The Third World Conference on Faith and Order, held at Lund, Sweden, in the summer of 1952, called on the churches to "throw off the apathy and laxness" which is keeping them from rising to meet the needs of the world, and to return to "the only springs of mercy and power." This was the first world-wide Faith and Order Conference held under the auspices of the World Council of Churches (which officially came into being at Amsterdam, Holland, in 1948). The conference brought together 250 top-ranking theologians of the Anglican, Eastern Orthodox and Protestant churches; and also present were four Roman Catholic "observers." Much of the discussion centered around the nature of the Church,

There was a great deal of interest in what is a rather new idea at theological conferences — the place which "nontheological" social and cultural factors have in creating and perpetuating church divisions.

Also, during the summer months of 1952, a great missionary conference was held at Willingen, Germany, under the sponsorship of the International Missionary Council, a sister organization of the World Council of Churches. The theme of this conference was "Calling of the Church to Missions and to Unity."

Meanwhile, the Lutheran World Federation, which brings together various Lutheran churches, many of which are members of the World Council of Churches, held a great convocation in Hanover, Germany. And in Stuttgart, there was the annual Kirchentag celebration by the German Laymen's movement, which brought thousands of church people from all over Germany; and also many visitors from other countries around the world.

Other ecumenical meetings were going on in the British Isles. The British Council of Churches celebrated its tenth anniversary with a great public meeting in St. Paul's Cathedral, addressed by their president, the Archbishop of Canterbury, who is also a president of the World Council of Churches. The Ecumenical Society of Scotland met at St. Andrews. At Oxford, England, there was a meeting of the World Council Commission on the Life and Work of Women in the Church.

American church people were represented at all of these conferences.

Meanwhile, a Commission of some thirty of the world's leading theologians had been called together at the Ecumenical Institute, near Geneva, Switzerland, to formulate a theme for the Second World Assembly of the World Council of Churches, to be held on the Northwestern University campus, at Evanston, Illinois, in August, 1954. The theme they chose was "Christ, the Hope of the World."

In December and January, there took place what has been called an "ecumenical invasion" of India. In Travancore was held the Third World Conference on Christian Youth, with representatives from fifty-seven countries under the sponsorship of the World's Alliance of Y. M. C. A.'s, World's Y. W. C. A., World's Student Christian Federation, The World Council of Christian Education and Sunday School Association, and the World Council of Churches. It was the first time such a group had met in Asia. Previous World Youth conferences had been held at Amsterdam in 1939 and in Oslo in 1947. Members of the 1952 conference participated in the St. Thomas Festival, commemorating the 1900th anniversary of the arrival of the Apostle Thomas in India.

At the Christmas season, the Study Commission, the Executive Committee, and finally the Central Committee of the World Council of Churches, gathered for their first Asia meeting. They met at Isabella Thoburn College, Lucknow, where they were the guests of Miss Sarah Chakko, the president of the college and also the only woman president of the World Council of Churches. Among those who addressed the meetings was Prime Minister Nehru. Bishop Oxnam, who attended the meetings, said upon his return to the United States that these meetings did much to do away with any misgivings that the World Council was merely "of the West." He also commented on the fine coverage given the meetings by the Indian Press.

Ecumenical visits are always considered an important part of the World Council program. Through such staff visits, made at the requests of the churches visited, contact is maintained with some of the more isolated churches, e. g., in Yugoslavia, Australia, South Africa.

After quite another type of visit, the General Secretary of the World Council, Dr. W. A. Visser 't Hooft, has recently returned to the headquarters of the World Council in Geneva, Switzerland, from Berlin, bringing a grave report of the attack on the Church which seems to be under way in the Eastern Zone. He made it clear, as an objective witness, that "If, in spite of the new climate of international relations, the campaign against the Church should continue, a conflict between Church and State, with all its national and international repercussions will be inevitable."

It would be a great mistake, however, Bishop Oxnam said, to think of the accomplishments of the ecumenical movement during the past year exclusively in terms of conferences and meetings, though it is largely through them that the ecumenical program finds a channel for expres-

(Continued on page 6.)

"The Home Spans the Ages"

By REV. HENRY E. ROBINSON, Burlington, North Carolina

The Last of a Series of Meditations

From this title one may surmise that I am going to talk about the home as an institution which has persisted over the centuries—and so it has. If society and civilization are to continue in any sense as we know it, the home must continue in the future as the force which conserves, which holds life together, which forms the nucleus out of which our religious growth and development spring. But I should like to have you realize today that the home spans the ages in that it provides a place of security, a haven of rest, a workshop of love for each stage of life from infancy to old age.

Blessed indeed is the home into which has been born a child. To receive that child is a high honor and a sacred privilege. It is also a tremendous responsibility. Our love, care, concern, thought, attention, and skills are brought to bear on the young life in our charge. We are determined that everything possible shall be done to give our child a sound body and mind.

Soon our baby has grown out of infancy into childhood with its million questions, fathomless energy, incredible imagination, and ever expanding personality. Pretty soon along come measles, chickenpox, and mumps. Our children are so generous that they even give these diseases to their parents who may have hitherto escaped. But it's all a part of the family scene. Soon school, teachers, P.T.A., and companions from other neighborhoods—Scouts, Cubs, Brownies, junior choir, music lessons, trips to the dentist, summer camps and summer jobs find their way into the family deliberations. It doesn't seem very long before the roller skates and bicycle give way to a driver's license and the family car needs to be in three places at once, while Mom and Dad go into the taxi business. About now dating begins, the high school play, the senior prom, the big game—each is bigger than the last—all vie for our time and attention to say nothing of our dollars. Already there is talk about what college to choose and what vocation to enter. Then there's the draft and the delays and uncertainties it entails. But this is the home—the teenager's home. These are problems that are faced with mutual concern, because the good of one involves the happiness of all.

As the family grows Mom and Dad find themselves in the midst of life's greatest demands. They are in the middle years. They are charged with conducting the home, choosing its policies, charting its course, providing a house, paying the bills, keeping each member clothed, fed, well and happy. Ofttimes there comes the need to move from one community to another because of a change of jobs or a promotion, or need for a different climate because of a health problem. Uprooting a family and transplanting it is no small task as all will agree who have had to attempt it. This, too, is part of the home and the part which homemakers must shoulder in good spirit and high faith.

Then into the home there comes to live the grandmother, or grandfather, or both. This means readjustments for all. Often these are greater for the older folk than anyone else. Or the situation may be just reversed and the married children come to live with Mom and Dad. This situation can be a blessing in a disguise as the young children come to know their grandmother. Then granddad has the time to help junior with his tools and in the garden and can convey in many ways the rich maturities of Christian character attained through the years.

These steps and stages are all embraced by the home. No other institution can compare with it in its wide scope of ages and activities. Who can say that one age is better than another when each is indispensable? The accent on youth is shifting to maturity—but all must strike a healthy balance to produce balanced personalities.

This week we have exalted the Christian home and Christian family life as the fields which produce the richest harvest. May all those within the range of my voice or who may read these words rededicate their lives toward the creation of family circles under the teachings of Christ that will stand the strains and weather the storms. In so doing you will be serving God and country on the highest levels.

A PERSONAL LETTER.

(Continued from page 2.)

Jimmy will go with us to New York and will visit Bill, Jr., and his lovely little wife, Mary (Rev. and Mrs. Wm. T. Scott, Jr., Cornwall, Conn.), while we are away. Our daughter Lois will spend the summer working at Massanetta Springs Hotel, (Presbyterian Church Assembly Ground), near Harrisonburg, Virginia. (c/o Massanetta Springs Hotel, Harrisonburg.)

We land at Southampton, England, June 8, and will go by "boat train" to London, where we will spend a few days. Events there include a reception for "us U. S. A. delegates" by the Congregational Union of England and Wales. We will see London and such historic places as the Tower of London, St. Paul's Cathedral, Old Curiosity Shop, Fleet Street, Guild Hall, Buckingham Palace, Westminster Abbey, Picadilly Circus, etc. We will also go to Oxford and Stratford-on-Avon.

We will proceed to Edinburg via the East Coast, visiting along the way Cambridge, the cathederal cities, and the old walled city of York. We will see Edinburg at festival time, and will go from there to the ancient city of St. Andrews for the council meeting.

Following the council, we hope to visit the Continent of Europe on a tour of the refugee camps conducted by the World Council of Churches. We will wish to share with you the story of our visit later.

On July 9, we sail from Cherbourg, France, for our return voyage on the Queen Elizabeth (Tourist Class, Deck D, Room 118), landing in New York July 14.

With love and gratitude, we are,

Sincerely yours,

WM. T. SCOTT,

DELLA C. SCOTT.

"MOST ECUMENICAL YEAR."

(Continued from page 5.)

sion in the official programs of the denominations and thence in the local church. On the other hand, much of the will toward getting together and working together develops at the local level, where people of various church affiliations know and respect each other's viewpoints, live in harmony together, and see no reason why they should not worship and do Christian work together. Such grass roots ecumenical pressure is often symbolized by the work of the local councils of churches. It is lifeblood for the ecumenical movement.

News of Elon College

PRESIDENT L. E. SMITH, Elon College, N. C.

Elon Graduates 73 Seniors; Awards Other Honors at Commencement

Elon College concluded its sixty-third year of service to young people of the Southern Convention area by presenting diplomas and degrees to seventy-three seniors at the 1953 graduation exercises held in Whitley Auditorium on Monday, May 25.

At the same time diplomas and certificates were presented to a number of students in special fields of study, and certificates were presented to thirty-eight members of the one-year commercial class.

Members of the 1953 graduating class from North Carolina towns and cities included Annie Laura Albright, Mebane; Coleen Agnew, Haw River; Jane Boone, Burlington; James Booth, Elon College; Richard Brady, Ramseur; Doris Braxton and Isaac Braxton, Burlington; Lynn Cashion, Sanford; Betty Comer, Steeds; Nelvin Cooper, High Point; Matt Currin, Jr., Burlington;

Carolyn Ellis, Reidsville; Ray Euliss, Burlington; Rachel Garrison, Burlington; Lairron Guthrie, Burlington; Donald Haitheox, Guilford College; Oscar Holland, Clinton; Sue Ireland, Elon College; Wayburn James, Greensboro; Walter Jenkins, Mooresville; Edward Johnson, Elon College; Pearlman Johnson, Burlington; Edward Jones, Burlington;

David Kennedy, Sanford; Jane Kernodle, Elon College; Alan Knofla, Elon College; Ben Kirby, Roxboro; Robert Lewis, Wilmington; Joan Marshburn, Ramseur; Ann Matkins, Elon College; George Meena, Charlotte; Jack Musten, Kernersville; Wilburn McKinney, Englehard; Theresa McSwain, Kings Mountain; Melvin Payne, Gibsonville;

Scott Quakenbush, Graham; Robert Reavis, Burlington; James Rhodes, Burlington; Robert Rogers, Williamston; Charles Russell, Graham; Betty Van Sharpe, Burlington; Alvis Shelton, Reidsville; Joseph Stanley, Graham; David Starr, Greensboro; Frank Steed, Asheboro; Marjorie Stuckey, Graham; John Truitt, Jr., Elon College; Max Vestal, Asheboro; Arnold Ward, Burlington; and Theodore Webb, Rockingham.

Those graduating from other states included Fred Biangardi, Bay Shore, Long Island, N. Y.; William Blackstone, Jacksonville, Fla.; Albert Bryan, Clifton Forge, Va.; Fred Burmeister, North Bergen, N. J.; John Christy, Crafton, Pa.; James Clawson, Fairmount, W. Va.; James Clyburn, Charleston, S. C.; David Crowle, Glenolden, Pa.; Joseph Duro, Wayne, Pa.;

Ernest Gero, Hatboro, Pa.; Salvatore Gero, Hatboro, Pa.; Robert Hall, Fieldale, Va.; John Hanna, Baltimore, Md.; Robert Harned, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Terry Kelly, Jr., Norfolk, Va.; Richard Keeton, Danville, Va.; Richard Levine, Riverdale, N. Y.; Albert Ludwig, Baltimore, Md.; Michael Moffo, Waterbury, Conn.; Yono Mork, Baltimore, Md.; Page Painter, Luray, Va.; Louis Rochelli, Wayne, Pa.; and Jeter Wilkins, Suffolk, Va.

Commercial Certificates

The members of the one-year commercial class included thirty-five from North Carolina and three from Virginia. The North Carolina group included Betty Andrews, Gibsonville; Doris Boswell, Burlington; Nina Boswell, Graham; Mary Louise Boyd, Elon College; Betty Brown, Graham; Ann Clark, Siler City; Rebecca Coleman, Burlington; Helen Covert, Sanford; Patricia Curry, Alamance; Lavon Crisp, Burlington; Patsy Deaton, Troy; Mary Louise Dixon, Reidsville; Peggy Edwards, Haw River; Elsie Fitch, Burlington; Susan Fuchs, Fayetteville;

Shirley Gerringer, Burlington; Nancy Gilliam, Elon College; Geraldine Guy, Burlington; Fay Hall, Henderson; Kathleen Hayes, Henderson; Melba Hinshaw, Graham; Decie Kirk, Hillsboro; Bertie Lewis, Wilmington; Valeree Massey, Burlington; Nancy Moser May, Burlington; Peggy McKee, Rougemont; Jean Parker, Sunbury; Sue Peters, Winston-Salem; Sarah Phillips, Haw River; Annie Lou Pugh, Graham; Carolyn Sauls, Raleigh; Eleanor Stewart, Roxboro; Jean Tew, Durham; Vivian Wicker, Gibsonville; and Mary York, Liberty.

The three commercial students from Virginia were Kitty DeJarnette, So. Boston; Mildred Maxey, So. Boston; and Janet Parker, Franklin.

Special Subjects

Special diplomas and certificates in music and fine arts went to a number of students. Annie Laura Albright, of Mebane, and James Rhodes, of Burlington, each received a diploma in voice and a certificate in public school music. James Clyburn, of Charleston, S. C., received diplomas in both organ and piano and a certificate in public school music. Cooper Walker, of Elon College, received a certificate in art.

* * * * *

Graduates Receive Fellowships For Advanced Study

No less than five members of the 1953 graduates of Elon College have been awarded graduate fellowships and scholarships for advanced study in various institutions.

James Rhodes, of Burlington, N. C., was the recipient of a $1,500 fellowship to Ohio State University, where he will serve as an instructor in the music department while working toward his Master's degree in Music Education.

David Starr, of Greensboro, N. C., has been awarded a $1,350 teaching fellowship at the University of South Carolina, where he will be a teaching assistant in the Department of Chemistry.

William Blackstone, of Jacksonville, Fla., was given an $800 graduate scholarship by Duke University, where he will do advanced work in the field of philosophy.

Graduate scholarships in theology, each valued at from $300 to $350, were awarded to David Crowle, of Glenolden, Pa., by Oberlin Theological Seminary, and to Page Painter, of Luray, Va., by the Hartford Theological Seminary. Each will study for the ministry.

* * * * *

Veteran Elon Faculty Member Receives Gift

Prof. A. L. Hook, Elon College registrar, who completed forty years of service as a member of the Elon faculty this year, was surprised and honored at the annual Alumni Banquet by the gift of a television set from a group of his friends among the Elon alumni.

The names of those who gave the television set were not announced, but it was presented to Prof. Hook by Dr. Darden Jones, of Franklin, Va., retiring president of the Elon College Alumni Association, who praised the veteran faculty member for his long service to the college.

(Continued on page 11.)

Missions at Home and Abroad

Raymond Dudley Reports on India

Mrs. Dudley and I returned from a ten week's trip to India and Ceylon on April 16, and in this general letter I want to give some impressions and background material on the situation in India which may be helpful to you who are loyally supporting missionaries and enterprises in India.

1. Things are changing in India. There are more roads and better roads; there are better motor buses, some of them operated by the state; streets are cleaner in Madurai with covered scavenging trucks in use; urbanization is going on, with large housing developments in some places; electrication is proceeding, with many irrigation wells in the Madurai area using electric pumps; Indians are in charge of practically everything in government; there are more schools and better schools, especially high schools and colleges in the Madurai area; there are more hospitals and nursing homes, especially in the cities; the "native states" have been abolished and those areas integrated with other areas directly under the Government of India.

But more important than all this is the change in the attitude of the people. There is more self-respect. There is optimism regarding the future. A Five Year Plan is being projected calling for advances along many lines.

2. Communism. It is generally believed in India that the situation regarding communism is less serious today than it was at the time of the general election in January, 1952. Recent municipal elections in Travancore, where communism was very strong a year ago, indicate less communist strength today. The Prime Minister of Madras State where there were many communists at the time of the election has formed a stable government with the Congress Party in control. The situation in the Central Government under Mr. Nehru's vigorous leadership seems to leave little room for the communists. India is a democratic state with free and open elections.

However, fundamental factors remain the same, and satisfaction must be given to the people with respect to food, employment and land reform. The Congress Government must deal with these issues honestly and efficiently if it is to retain control. Developments in India will depend upon the following three factors:

- a. The honesty and efficiency of the Congress Government;
- b. Developments in Indo-China, Burma and elsewhere with respect to the progress of communism;
- c. The attitude of Western nations to India and the amount of aid given through government and private agencies.

There is no reason for panic, nor is there reason for complacency.

3. Famine. There has been a good deal of suffering in India, and there still is in certain areas; but the situation is complex and may be analyzed as follows:

- a. There is at present enough food in India to meet the requirements of the total population fairly well according to Indian standards of nutrition. These standards are too low.
- b. This food is, generally speaking, distributed throughout India so that it is possible to purchase grain in most any city or village.
- c. There are places in western India and south India where rains have failed. Farmers did not get a harvest. Laborers do not have employment on the farms to earn money to buy food. This means a vast amount of suffering on the part of widows with children and poor people in general. When in a given locality rains fail, people migrate to other areas in search of work.

Under these circumstances what is to be done?

- a. The Government of India is opening relief work projects in the form of building dams and roads, and in soil conservation measures. This is the right course of action and it provides a living for many who would otherwise suffer.
- b. Under present circumstances, contributions from friends in America may best take the form of cash to be used at the discretion of trusted organizations or individuals in India to provide nourishment for suffering people.

- c. It is being recognized increasingly that on principle people who receive aid should wherever possible, perform some work to prevent widespread demoralization.

The big question is whether India's food production will in the long run increase more rapidly than the population increases.

4. Education. In large sections of India, the Government is committed to "basic education." This is an effort to have the school and its curriculum center around some trade or industry like weaving, spinning or adiculture. From this activity they seek to build up the curriculum with respect to reading, arithmetic and geography. It is a "project system" of education. This requires an army of trained teachers and efforts are being made to train them. There is emphasis upon citizenship training and the fostering of equality among all kinds of people. It is an open question how far this "basic education" will succeed. Missions would do well to send trained educationalists qualified to cooperate with the Government in this effort.

It is remarkable the extent to which high schools and colleges under the auspices of Government and wealthy individuals are springing up, especially in South India. On the whole this indicates progress, although the type of education given in these institutions of higher learning leaves something to be desired.

5. Evangelism. It is a long time since there has been so much planning for evangelism in our mission areas as there is today.

In Ceylon they have set aside one minister to foster this work, and during the last two years 150 people have been baptized. During the month of May a School of Evangelism is being conducted by Rev. D. T. Niles in Uduvil, Jaffna, Ceylon.

In Madurai much emphasis is being placed upon lay leadership, and fifty or more people have been "licensed" to preach in rural congregations. An effort has been made on an interdenominational basis to initiate house by house visitation in the city of
(Continued on page 13.)

Our Church Women Will Work with These . . .

LEADERS at the SCHOOL of MISSIONS

Tuesday to Friday, June 16-19, 1953

DR. H. S. HARDCASTLE

MISS MARJORY MARTIN

REV. QUENTIN LEISHER

Hardcastle "Tells All"—and Lets It Go at That!

Dr. H. S. Hardcastle, better known to many of his friends as "Hardy," was asked to write up some information about himself for this issue of THE CHRISTIAN SUN. He did such a good job of telling about himself that we think you will enjoy it more in the first person. So here is a brief autobiography:

"I was born in Delaware. I graduated from Wilmington Conference Academy in Dover, Delaware, worked for six years in the First National Bank of Dover, took my college work at Elon College, my graduate work at Yale Divinity School, and taught for one year at Defiance College in Ohio, before coming to Eastern Virginia for my first pastorate at Suffolk. I have served in turn as pastor of The Christian Temple, Rosemont, Newport News, and Oakland and Berea. For about thirty years now I have served as a pastor of churches in Eastern Virginia.

"I have served on many committees of the Conference and Convention, which does not mean much. And for many years I have written comments on the Sunday school lessons for our church paper, THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

"There are many other little things

(Continued on page 10.)

Miss Martin to Speak on "Spanish-Speaking Americans"

"Church women have always had concern for the welfare of others and the desire to help wherever a need is known to exist. Church women also have always liked to do things with their hands," says Miss Marjory Martin of New York City, Friendly Service Secretary of the Missions Council of Congregational Christian Churches who will conduct workshops at the School of Missions to be held at Elon College June 16-19. She will also speak on "Spanish-Speaking Americans in the U. S. A."

It is through the Department of Friendly Service that the Congregational Christian women link these two desires and are enabled to give tangible expression to their concern. There flows through Miss Martin's Department supplies for schools, hospitals, colleges and community centers all over the United States and in twelve different countries overseas.

Because church women are concerned with the spiritual as well as the material aspect of their work, most of them hold special dedication services when they gather together supplies of sheets, blankets, clothes, surgical dressings, etc. These services symbolize "Praying Hands" and "Serving Hands."

(Continued on page 13.)

What Is the "Life and Task of the Church Around the World"?

"War has been declared by the entire world—a war waged against poverty, disease, misery, exploitation and the abrogation of human rights, because there will be no peace on earth nor a world safe for democracy with mankind half slave and half free," says Rev. Quentin Leisher of Boston, Mass., dynamic young Congregational Christian leader and special representative of the American Board.

He will be one of the leaders at the School of Missions to be held at Elon College June 16-19, where he will teach a course on "The Life and Task of the Church Around the World."

Within the past decade the nations of Asia have changed land and debt laws to set the poor people free, Mr. Leisher points out, and "that is the hand of God at work bringing in the day of brotherhood, equality and freedom." Other countries, like those within Africa, are demanding and gaining equal rights.

"American Christians have responded to the needs of the world in a remarkable degree. Since the close of World War II church agencies have sent 11 million dollars in aid to Japan alone and 14 million Japanese have benefited from this Christian assistance. But while the need for

(Continued on page 13.)

Youth at Work in the Church

REV. MAX VESTAL, R. 1, Asheboro, N. C.

The Young People's Superintendent of the Woman's Missionary Society Reports

A part of the heritage of every young person in the Congregational Christian Church is a knowledge of the great world-wide fellowship of which he is a part. The women of our convention have a grave responsibility in helping make this possible. Beginning with the nursery department on, never wavering in our responsibility until our youth become adults and then the strong groups must help the weak. As I think of the material available, written and presented in such an interesting manner for our young people, I feel that we are failing in our mission unless we see that the young people of our church groups have this material made available for them.

The young people of our churches have had a part in many phases of our mission program. The outstanding mission project of the Pilgrim Fellowship of the Convention during the biennium was the bringing of a young man, Jose Dabuet, from the Philippines to study at Princeton Theological Seminary. A sum of $1,250 was given for this project. This year their gifts for foreign missions will be for a project in West Africa to assist a native teacher in her work. The home mission project is Moone-lon and the Carroll County Mission. You will see from the treasurer's report that our youth have had a share in the thank offering for Japan Christian University and church extension at Carroll County, Virginia. The Pilgrim Fellowship has also shared in the aid given Franklinton Center, in the form of Life Memberships and Memorials.

Other activities include Work Day For Christ, the money earned going to missions. One group of young people after hearing Miss Nicholson tell of her work in India were inspired and sent a check to Miss Miriam Brown at Lucy Perry Noble Institute, for the education of a little girl thirteen years of age from the famine area. The North Carolina and Virginia Conference Youth Fellowship bought hymnals for Jose Dabuet to use in his work in the Philippines.

Forty of our youth groups have participated in the friendly service projects designated by the Woman's Convention, including clothing for Ryder Memorial Hospital, Puerto Rico, surgical gauze, gowns, layettes for Dr. Lora Dyer Mission Hospital, Philippine Islands and needed materials for Miss Jennie Pratt on Ellis Island.

Thirty-seven youth groups have used the mission study books, with guides for suggested activities. It was my privilege to teach the mission study book, Looking South, at Summer Conference at Elon. Thirty young people attended this course and outlined plans for their mission program for the year.

At each state rally some emphasis has been given to the mission program of the Pilgrim Fellowship. We have had some very interesting speakers. Mrs. Bela Udovornoki, from Africa, Mr. Piediscolze, National Pilgrim Fellowship President, and our own Mrs. Charlie Johnson from Suffolk, Virginia, also others I have failed to mention.

From reports received we have several new Pilgrim Fellowship organizations, including: Hopewell, Hope Mills, Monticello, Berea, Beverley Hills, reorganization of the group at Waverly and a young adult group, college age, at Christian Temple, Norfolk.

In think over our progress and failures I would like to suggest the following:

1. Please, when you purchase your material for your woman's organization at the School of Missions at Elon in June, remember your youth organizations, their material will be on sale also.
2. Encourage your youth to attend summer conferences, state rallies, retreats, other events planned to enrich their Christian growth.

In the preface of her book, Our Country India, Rebecca Wells Loeffler wrote:

"These are the young people who constitute the India that can be. In no other country in the world is there a greater need for vision to keep life sweet or for patience to be willing to cut the steps that others may climb."

This is our task that we might encourage and inspire the youth of our land.

May God bless you as we undertake this task together.

MRS. W. MILLARD STEVENS,
Superintendent.

* * * * *

Relax With Max

The man who wakes up and finds himself famous hasn't been asleep.

* * *

Visitor from Britain: "Your sky seems much clearer than ours in London."

New York Taxi Driver: "Sure. You see, we have more skyscrapers here."

* * *

Said Witty William: "Have you heard about the ghost who worked for the F. B. I.?"

"I can't imagine what a ghost would do," answered his friend.

"That's simple," explained William, "He was an undercover man."

* * *

What are you young folks doing during your vacation? Let us know. We might be able to help you. And if you aren't doing anything, I can help you do that, too.

* * *

Let Us Pray

For greater faith in God and in our fellowman;

For constant hope in the face of all obstacles;

For Godly love—for the greatest of these is love.

HARDCASTLE LETS IT GO AT THAT!

(Continued from page 9.)

that could be said, but there is no point in saying them, and no point in putting into print what I have said. The folks know me. Nobody is coming to the School of Missions because I am to teach the Bible course this year, and no matter what I have done, I cannot depend on the past to get me by—I will have to deliver the goods at the School of Missions. So let it go at that."

We hope Dr. Hardecastle will not mind that we thought this was worth printing! It shows you just how modest a person he is—and also that he is far from a dull person, or teacher. His sincerity, his scholarship, his friendly personality will all help the Psalms come alive for us as we study from him this summer.

A Page for Our Children

MRS. R. L. HOUSE, Editor, Southern Pines, N. C.

More than once we have said that church people who move should take their church letters with them just as they take their household possessions. We thought of the truth of that again last Sunday as we sat in church (all our family and the minister's son, too) and recalled old friends we had seen and new ones we had met. When one stays a part of the church one doesn't feel lonesome for there are many who care and one doesn't feel "left out" for there are always things to do at church. In our case, we don't feel lost, for we use the church as a landmark in our community.

The children have been learning new lessons: one locks doors in the city, there is much soot and dirt, concrete sidewalks are harder on the feet than pinestraw walks, and making new friends at school. Jonathan and Andrea Lee are going to Magruder School. They are the third generation in our family to attend Magruder. It isn't the same building, but a nice, shiny, new school. Some of their classmates are the children of the children with whom their mother went to school.

While they are in school Joyanna has been busy helping with the unpacking, storing and arranging. One day she celebrated a birthday and another we went to shore off the Boulevard so we could have a little sand in our shoes again and we found a very handsome crab sunning himself at the water's edge.

Another nice thing that happened Sunday was a visit from Dr. N. G. Newman who had come to say goodbye before leaving for St. Andrew's in Scotland. He is going to the International Congregational Council meeting and then take a tour of Europe. It was nice to see him and hear him tell of his plans. He was in Newport News to say goodbye to his daughter and many of his friends. We saw Dr. Newman in California last summer and thought that no traveler, young or old, enjoyed the trip as much as he. Our family had planned to go to St. Andrews, too, and the sorrow of our not going is brightened by his going. It is wonderful to be in one's eighties, and be as alert and keen as Dr. Newman. In a sense this is a spiritual journey for his ancestors were Scottish. So "Bon Voyage" to a minister of God who is a prince among men!

Are you working on the Essay Contest? Will the winners be in North Carolina or Virginia? Be sure and write. Hope you win!

* * * * *

"When Company Comes"

By JANICE A. McDONALD.

Issued by the National Kindergarten Association.

Every time I visit my friends, the Merrills, I enjoy myself. Betty and I talk together while the children are playing outside, and when they come in they behave in a perfectly natural way. "Company" is a happy word to all of them, and they exhibit no strained "company manners."

Last time when I handed them boxes of lollipops, each of the older two murmured a fervent "Thank you." Benny's zeal in opening his and his shining eyes showed us that his "Thank you" had been said very sincerely.

I keep telling Betty what wonderful manners her children have, so she is forever telling me of different social errors they have made. One day she told me about Peter's blunt declaration, when Mr. Blake, a friend of their father's, was there. "Margaret has a bigger piece of cake than I have!" he said. No scene had arisen. Mr. Blake had nodded at Margaret and Peter and said, "You got ahead of me, Peter. I almost said the same thing about yours!"

Another time, dinner was long, and Benny became restless. He was allowed to leave the table before we had our dessert. Betty explained that this was a treat for him. Again, there was no tension.

It is a very different story at the home of my friend, Rita Johnson, though I'm very fond of her, her husband, and her children. She, too, is always happy to see me.

The last time I was there, Rita was charming, calm and poised in our first few minutes alone. Yet, when the children came in, she became a very nervous woman. I wondered why she should be so fearful that Ted and Susan would not show up well. I like the children and soon became distressed on their account. She was finding fault with both constantly: "Ted! You should walk into a room." "Susan! What do you say to Aunt Julie for that nice toy? Say 'Thank you' to Aunt Julie!" Wee Susan, engrossed in the toy, ignored her mother's prompting.

At the dinner-table there were new woes. Susan spilled some jelly. Ted, ate too hurriedly. Both heard complaints, and no one was happy. I tried to concentrate on Rita's good cooking and to keep cheerful, but again there was trouble. Ted was clowning, and he was threatened with being sent to bed immediately. Susan had eaten only a roll and some olives. She was threatened with no dessert. Her chin quivering, Susan began to eat her vegetables.

It had been months since I'd seen Rita, and I was not enjoying myself. Next, I knew, would be the bedtime scene.

"No bed!" Susan cried as she undressed her doll for the night. Ted, too, objected loudly, as he usually stayed up later than his sister.

When peace and quiet were restored, Rita, Bill and I sat talking, but our conversation was desultory. Rita was worn out, and I had my own thoughts.

Rita's children are normal. Why did she get so disturbed and anxious about their actions? Children are lively creatures with very little experience. Usually they are noisy, impetuous, carefree, and outspoken. In a few years they will be quieter, less candid, more diplomatic, more polite.

Guests should have a chance to enjoy all those in a house. It is too bad if they are subjected to constant embarrassment and distress because children are present who are not listless and apathetic. The pleasures provided by the hostess: good food, a clean house, planned entertainment or informal "visiting" are dimmed if there is tension over the children, punishment or heavy threats of it.

It will be a happy time for all when company comes, if only the parents can manage to remain reasonably relaxed.

NEWS OF ELON COLLEGE.

(Continued from page 7.)

Prof. Hook, himself a graduate of Elon with the Class of 1913, has remained at the college ever since his graduation. His special field of instruction is physics, but he has served the college in numerous fields of activity in the intervening four decades.

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE, D. D.

"Paul Champions Christian Liberty"

LESSON XI—JUNE 14, 1953.

MEMORY SELECTION: "In Christ Jesus you are all sons of God, through faith."—Galatians 3:26. (R.V.S.)

LESSON: Galatians 2:1-10, 19-21.

DEVOTIONAL READINGS Psalm 119: 105-112.

The Situation.

It is desirable to know something of the situation in the life of the early Church, and the background of the lesson material for today, if we are to understand "what it is all about." And it is desirable to know "what it is all about," for Paul's letter to the Galatians is one of the most important books of the whole Bible. It is in a sense the Magna Charta of the Christian faith. It is the one book which as much as, if not more than, any other book asserts and establishes the doctrine of Christian liberty.

Paul is doing something more than threshing theological straw, doing mental gymnastics, debating academic questions, magnifying the difference between tweedle-dum and tweedle-dee. He is fighting a battle in which great issues are at stake—the issues as to whether Christianity is a matter of law or of faith and grace, whether it is to be a Jewish sect or a universal religion, whether Christians must first submit to Jewish rites and ceremonies before they will be accepted as Christians, and whether Christians must observe Jewish forms after they become Christians.

The situation arose because Christianity soon burst the narrow bonds of Judaism. Although the apostles were Jews, and although they continued for a while to attend the synagogue services and to go to the Temple, indeed though they observed the Jewish feasts and customs, they soon moved out beyond the borders of Jerusalem and preached the gospel to the Gentiles. Many Gentiles believed and became Christians, became followers of Christ. This was especially true after Paul began his missionary journeys and won many Gentiles to the Christian faith. When a Gentile thus believed, bore witness to his faith in Christ, he became a member of the Christian Church, and was accepted as such by his fellow Christians.

But there were some Jewish Christians, and many Jews, often referred to as "Judaizers," who insisted that one must submit to circumcision and observe Jewish rites and forms in order to become a Christian. To them, Christianity was an enlarged Jewish sect. The law of Moses was binding upon all believers. A man was saved by observing the law, rather than by obeying Christ. We of today can hardly realize the tremendous issue at stake, and to what an extent this was a burning question in that day. This is due in a large part because Paul won the victory in that long ago day.

The Problem.

The problem has already been stated in the discussion of the situation. It had become so acute that something had to be done about it. Reduced to its simplest essentials the question or problem was this: "Was a man to be saved by the law, or by faith in Jesus Christ?" "Was a Christian free from the law of Moses, or was he bound by it?" "Was Christianity a glorified Jewish religion, or was it a universal religion?" "Was a Christian free from the rules and regulations of Judaism, or was he bound by them?" "Did a man come into the Christian life through Judaism or through Jesus Christ?" and "What was the relation of the Christian to Judaism?" These were some of the questions which Paul asked when he and Barnabas went up to Jerusalem to confer with the apostles. They were important—they held the fate of the Christian Church. Were there to be two churches, one organized on the ground of keeping the law of Moses, and another organized without reference to the law? Was there to be a Jewish Church, with its center at Jerusalem, and a Gentile Church, with its center at Antioch? There could have been, if the issues had not been faced, fought out, and settled once and for all.

The Principle.

The thing was settled on principle. Paul was shrewd in the matter. When he first went up to Jerusalem, he had a private meeting with some of the leaders in the Jerusalem Church. He told them about his work among the Gentiles, and about how the Gentiles had found salvation in Christ directly, and without any reference to, or submission to the law of Moses. There had been no doubt about the matter, again and again the Holy Spirit had come upon Gentile believers without any observance of the Jewish rites or ritual. Furthermore, Paul brought along Titus, a consecrated and capable Gentile Christian, who had never been circumcised. There just wasn't any argument against the stubborn fact. And the apostles recognized that. They gave Paul the right hand of fellowship, recognized the validity of his work among the Gentiles, accepted as Christians on an equal footing Gentiles who had come into the fellowship, and bade him God-speed in his work among the Gentiles.

Thus was established, once and for all, the principle of Christian liberty. Thus was made clear that it is by faith in Christ, and not by observance of the law, that one becomes a Christian. Thus it was established that salvation is by grace and not by good works. Freedom of life and conscience had been guaranteed for all time. Christianity would be a world religion, a gospel of faith in God through Christ Jesus, a matter of grace.

The Practical Result.

Let no one think that this means that a Christian is free to do as he pleases. Paul was not fighting the battle for license, but for liberty. Liberty in its highest sense does not mean the right to do as one pleases, but the power to do as one ought. A Christian is free from the observance of the law of Moses. He need not be bound by forms and rites and ritual. There are no rigid forms which he must employ, either to find salvation, or to keep it. But he must obey the law of the spirit of Jesus Christ. He must yield himself to Christ. He must surrender his life to Christ. And in this bondage to Christ, he finds true liberty.

Although the principle of Christian liberty was established as a result of the Conference at Jerusalem in the long ago, it has had to be defended again and again through the years. It is now on trial in many parts of the world. There are forces that would put the State above conscience and the Church. Furthermore, there are churches and denominations and sects that would force people to "conform" if they had the power. Every generation must win and safeguard Christian liberty.

Based on "International Sunday School Lessons;" Copyrighted 1951 by Division of Christian Education, National Council of the Churches in the U. S. A.

RAYMOND DUDLEY REPORTS ON INDIA.

(Continued from page 8.)

Madurai with carefully prepared literature and training classes for the workers. The drama of the Life of Christ, which is being given on three nights prior to Easter, is drawing large crowds of people.

In the Marathi area the findings of Willingen Conference of the International Missionary Council are being taken seriously. Mr. Bhonsle has been appointed "coordinator" of evangelistic work throughout the area and Miss Powar is bubbling with enthusiasm about her work for women throughout the entire area.

Those most intimately concerned with these developments would wish to avoid any exaggerated claims of success. But these efforts merit appreciation and support.

Conclusion. Needless to say, this visit to India was of immense interest to us and it has increased my confidence in the work. You, who support this work year in and year out, may take genuine satisfaction in being able to share significantly in the great Protestant mission movement which has been going on in India during the last 150 years.

In thinking of the world affairs you may be interested to note that the Far East has 54.5% of the world's population, and it has 32% of the world agricultural production.

The United States and Canada have 7.5% of the world's population, and they have 22.6% of the world agricultural production.

If we compare the situation now with that which pertained twelve years ago, we find that thickly populated areas which were undernourished at the earlier date have suffered further deterioration.

Christian people cannot contemplate this developing situation with complacency. These facts spell misery for countless millions. Under these conditions how can we expect permanent world peace? The members of churches are called to Christian statesmanship of a high order.

RAYMOND A. DUDLEY.

TO SPEAK ON "SPANISH-SPEAKING AMERICANS."

(Continued from page 9.)

For over 13 years Miss Martin was Field Secretary for the Society of the Congregational Christian Women of the State of New York and prior to that was assistant in turn to the ministers of the Munn Avenue Presbyterian Church, East Orange, N. J., and the First Congregational Church of Canandaigua, N. Y. From April, 1945, until she took over her present work in the fall of 1952, Miss Martin was Director of Religious Education at the First Presbyterian Church, Rutherford, N. J.

Travels abroad as well as across the United States give Miss Martin an ample international point of view for her new work. She has visited Congregational Christian schools and hospitals in Puerto Rico and the South.

Active in young people's work along volunteer lines for many years, Miss Martin has taught teaching methods for primary and junior age children, as well as young people, and given courses in dramatics at Congregational Summer Conferences. She also has spent much time in teaching Leadership Training Schools and working with groups of teachers. She is a member of the Rutherford Woman's College Club and the Northern New Jersey Vassar Club.

Born in Shortsville, N. Y., Miss Martin is a graduate of Vassar College and took special work in business at Rochester Business Institute and in Religious Education at the School of Religious Education at Auburn Seminary. She makes her home in Rutherford, N. J.

The Missions Council of Congregational Christian Churches is the official joint body for educating the constituency of this fellowship in matters of home and foreign missions and of securing financial support for this work. It includes the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, Boston, Massachusetts and The Board of Home Missions; the Council for Social Action and Relief and Reconstruction in New York.

Based on actual needs and requests the Friendly Service Department which Miss Martin conducts also includes supplies to migrant centers where work is on an interdenominational basis, and books for traveling libraries in our own Southland and in far-off places like the Philippines. By thus combining service with friendship additional interest is often aroused among the women of the fellowship in the Christian World Mission of the Congregational Christian Churches.

WHAT IS THE "LIFE TASK OF THE CHURCH"?

(Continued from page 9.)

material and educational assistance cannot be minimized in today's world, greater still is the need for spiritual faith and hope that is rooted and grounded in the Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man," Mr. Leisher underlines.

In the Spring of 1951, Mr. Leisher made a two and one-half months' tour of the fields of the American Board in the Philippine Islands and Japan, traveling mostly air. On his return he made an intensive visit among the Hawaiian churches.

In 1950 and again in 1951 Mr. Leisher made an extensive tour of the American churches with Dr. Frank C. Laubach, internationally known promoter of world literacy. In this national, interdenominational tour, Mr. Leisher was representing the American Board of Foreign Missions of the Congregational Christian Churches, of which Dr. Laubach is a missionary.

Mr. Leisher's world contacts began during a hitch in the U. S. Navy, prior to World War II and his entrance into theological school. He visited in the line of duty numerous Pacific bases, Australia, New Zealand, Tasmania, Panama, Haiti and the Dutch West Indies. Wherever he went he took a keen interest in the local churches and while stationed at Pearl Harbor for a year served in the First Methodist Church of Honolulu.

An Iowan by birth, Mr. Leisher came to his post of missionary promotion from two successful pastorates in Massachusetts. His father and mother are both ordained ministers and family pastorates and schooling kept Mr. Leisher in the Middle West for many years. But he also has lived on the Pacific Coast as well as in New England and the Middle West thus he has an understanding of and familiarity with the different areas of the nation.

Mr. Leisher has also had an interdenominational background serving with the Methodists in Hawaii, California and Washington and with the Baptists in California. He was ordained in the Congregational ministry in 1948.

(Continued on page 15.)

The Orphanage

J. G. TRUITT, Superintendent

Dear Friends:

Four children left today for their vacation—or rather, three of them left for one week, and the fourth one went for his two weeks. That reminds me to tell you that, in as far as we can, we wish to provide two weeks vacation for every child here. We try to treat them all alike in such matters. Classes, churches and individuals sponsoring a child should let us know as soon as they can whether or not they will expect the child for part or all of the two weeks, and when they would rather have the child come to them. We need this information in the office for making out their schedule, and for “staggering” their work time so as to keep the work lined up right. Maybe you cannot get Robert or Betty Jean when you wish because they may be already so scheduled as to make it possible for Ray or Margie to be on their vacation. If you will cooperate with us, we can get all the children a vacation and still have the necessary chores done. I know you will be glad to help make this part of your sponsorship as helpful for all concerned as possible.

It is a busy time around here. The corn is growing, the gardens are pretty, first crops of hay are being harvested. There are plenty of cabbages and onions, and green beans will soon be here, and it looks now like they will be plentiful. I do hope we can have good seasons this year, as we need good crops so much. We have planted plenty of sweet potatoes, white potatoes, butterbeans, sweet peppers, etc., and will be planting and tilling all summer. The boys are very helpful in this work as well as with the cattle, dairy, hogs and chickens. The girls help with the cooking, cleaning, laundry and sewing. The older ones also help with the smaller children. So you see there are many duties, and it is not good to have too many away at one time.

Six of our children were born in June: Jeanie Cook (17), June 2; Jessie Spicer (8), June 7; Billy Lamber-son (6), June 8; C. A. Ward (12), June 13; Wayne Knight (15), June 22, and Helen Watkins (12), June 27. June is such a pretty month, I hope everyone of these children will have joy and happiness across many months and years. I have, and I was born in June.

To tell you the truth, I believe anybody can have joy and happiness if they work at it with the thought of seeing how much good they can do for others. Heaven is not looking after itself but others. Heaven helps the helpers. I notice it among the boys and girls here. Those who help, like to help, take a job and do it. They are happy. They get joy out of life. They are a joy to their matrons, to their playmates, and to all. When I see a child unhappy, I try to find out what is working in his mind and spirit. I try to make him desire to do something for me to please me—and then to do something just like that to please others. I have followed it up and seen it work. The joy he gets out of helping others makes him happy. I wish I had more time to be with these children individually. There is a lot I can learn from them, and maybe I could be of more help to them.

JOHN G. TRUITT,
Superintendent.

REPORT FOR MAY 28, 1953.

Commodities for the week.

Mrs. J. H. McEwen, Burlington, N. C., Clothing.

James H. McEwen, Jr., Burlington, N. C., Clothing.

Mrs. Stanley R. Waterfield, Fayetteville, N. C., Clothing.

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

Amount brought forward $ 6,809.22

Eastern N. C. Conference:

Mt. Auburn S. S. $ 6.40

New Elam, Special 45.00

Wake Chapel 50.00

101.40

Eastern Va. Conference:

Bay View, Special $ 10.00

Portsmouth, First S. S. .. 8.62

18.62

N. C. and Va. Conference:

Burlington S. S. $ 86.53

Greensboro, First 53.67

Union (Va.), Special 6.75

Burlington, Lakeview, Special 27.15

174.10

Western N. C. Conference:

Pleasant Cross S. S. $ 12.80

Shady Grove 14.00

26.80

Virginia Valley Conference:

Bethel S. S. $ 2.00

Newport S. S. 23.65

25.65

Total $ 346.57

Grand total $ 7,155.79

Special Offerings.

Amount brought forward $ 9,145.92

Young People's Class,

Reidsville Church for

Phyllis Morningstar ... $ 15.00

The “Willing Workers”

Class, Garner Christian

Church for M. B. Rowland 3.50

Senior High Class, Ram-

seur Church for Thur-

man Arnold 10.00

Night Missionary Circle,

Union Church, Virgilina,

Va. to send a child to camp 6.75

Miss L. Kennedy, worth-

ville, N. C. 5.00

Ladies Bible Class, Shallow Ford Church for

Thurman Arnold 5.00

Engineered Plastics, Inc.,

Gibsonville, N. C. 35.00

Special Gifts 123.87

204.12

Grand total $ 9,350.04

Total for the week $ 550.69

Total for the year $ 16,505.83

MEMORIAL GIFTS

“Instead of Flowers”

Dr. John G. Truitt
Christian Orphanage
Elon College, N. C.

Dear Dr. Truitt:

Please acknowledge the enclosed $..... as a memorial gift sent to the Christian Orphanage in lieu of flowers in memory of:

.....
(Name of Deceased)

.....
(City)

.....
(Date of Death)

.....
(Survivor to be Written)

.....
(Address)

Name.....

Address.....

In Memoriam

JONES.

Mrs. Naomi Tall Jones, a resident of Franklin, Virginia, for the past 45 years, received her release from earthly suffering on May 10, and funeral services were held at the Franklin Congregational Christian Church, Tuesday, May 12. The services were conducted by her pastor, Rev. Harvey L. Carnes, Dr. John G. Truitt, and the writer. A host of friends and neighbors paid lovely tribute to this good woman, and she was laid to rest in the beautiful Poplar Springs Cemetery, Franklin, amid a most fitting floral tribute.

Mrs. Jones was a member of the Franklin church, for 45 years, uniting as the bride with her husband, E. Philip Jones a deacon of the Church. She served her Christ through His Church in many capacities, serving as treasurer of the missionary society, Sunday school teacher, benevolence and mission treasurer of the church, and in many other capacities. She was active in the Red Cross and many community activities. She loved her church and was a regular and sympathetic member of it. It was a joy to serve as her pastor, and life is richer because of that privilege.

Surviving to mourn their loss in her going are her husband, one son, Emerson P. Jones; two grandsons, four sisters, one brother, a number of other relatives, and a host of friends.

Mrs. Jones was a great Christian woman. Her thoughtfulness of others was continued to the end, and among the hours of intense suffering she was cheerful and victorious.

With thanks to our loving Heavenly Father for this good life, we mingle our tears and sorrow with her loved ones in her going, but we look with confidence to the goodness of God and the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ.

WM. T. SCOTT.

WHAT IS THE "LIFE TASK OF THE CHURCH"?

(Continued from page 13.)

A graduate of Whitworth College, Spokane, Washington (A. B.), and Boston University School of Theology (S. T. B.), Mr. Leisher again combined the West Coast and the East Coast in his background of experience.

Along with his church work, Mr. Leisher has had a deep interest in music and in lecturing on such outstanding Americans as Abraham Lincoln and James Whitecomb Riley both of whose lives he has studied closely.

Let us give thanks for our Christian heritage; for the noble company of those whose faith and courage have provided us a simple, vital understanding of God, and opened the door to a living fellowship with him.

—Book of Devotions.

Church Building Loan Fund Campaign

All churches in the Southern Convention have been asked to file Declarations of Purpose in connection with the Church Building Loan Fund Campaign with the Convention Office as soon as they can do so. Those that have not done so are urged to do so as soon as possible.

Through May 30, 1953, Southern Convention Declarations of Purpose received at the office were as follows:

Church and Pastor	Amount
Va. Valley Central Conference:
Wissler's Chapel—Ralph M. Galt	$ 60.00
Eastern Va. Conference:
Liberty Spring—Jesse H. Dollar	$1,591.00
Holy Neck—Allen Hurdle	1,270.00
Portsmouth, First—W. P. Smith	1,410.00
Richmond—Roy C. Helfenstein	1,459.00
Suffolk—Duane N. Vore	6,290.00
Eastern N. C. Conference:
Amelia—John Littiken	$ 400.00

Beulah—Carl Wallace	517.00
Henderson—J. F. Apple	1,087.00
Hope Mills—Vacant	†195.00
Lee's Chapel—Fred P. Register	†166.00
Raleigh—W. L. Parker	975.00
Shallow Well—W. L. Wood	300.00
Southern Pines—Vacant	1,981.00
Turner's Chapel—W. L. Wood	300.00
Wake Chapel—F. P. Register	1,500.00
Western N. C. Conference:
Asheboro—F. C. Lester	$ 775.00
Flint Hill (R)—Avery Brown	127.00
High Point—Guy H. Veazey	426.00
Liberty—L. M. Presenell	361.00
Spoon's Chapel—Max Vestal	132.00
N. C. and Va. Conference:
Burlington:
Beverly Hills—W. W. Snyder	$ 400.00
Lakeview—John G. Truitt, Jr.	82.50
Elon College—H. P. Bozarth	2,450.00
Haw River—Dwight Jackson	1,065.00
Pfafftown—W. J. Andes	258.00
Reidsville—T. G. Humphries	*3,211.00
Union (NC)—K. D. Register	1,395.00
Winston-Salem—W. J. Andes	814.00
Zion—Fred H. Wrenn (Student)	75.00

*Declaration not received at office.
†Paid.

THE CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCH BUILDING LOAN FUND

Declaration of Purpose

We believe that it is of overwhelming importance to help in the erection of church buildings to meet the needs of America's unchurched millions and to provide a place where children may receive training in the basic principles of Christianity.

We acknowledge with gratitude the generous assistance in church building financial aid already received by many churches of the Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches. We further realize that our own financial resources without aid from our Church Building Society will be inadequate to meet the needs of our churches of this area. We gladly join our Congregational Christian Churches of America in support of the Church Building Fund Campaign.

We are pleased to report that our church, at a meeting of the members held the day of, 195.., voted to co-operate in the Church Building Fund Campaign of the Congregational Christian Churches and accepted a goal of $.....

It was agreed that our church would seek to reach this goal by:
(Check below the statement which applies to your church.)

- [] 1. A special solicitation of our church to be held the week beginning, 195.., in which we will endeavor to secure a pledge from each member of the church.
- [] 2. By seeking a pledge from each member of the church for this purpose at the time of our regular every member canvass to be held the week of, 195..
- [] 3. By including each year in our budget, for years, the sum of $....., which will be paid in quarterly installments of $....., beginning, 195..
- [] 4. By annual solicitation each year for years.

..... Church
By Secretary or Clerk
Address

..... Pastor Treasurer

NOTE.—Mail "Declaration of Purpose" to the Southern Convention Office, Elon College, N. C. Make checks payable to The Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches, designated "Church Building Fund" and mail to Elon College, N. C. Payments should be completed not later than March 1, 1956.

Union Ridge and Its New Educational Building

By REV. KENNETH D. REGISTER, Pastor

On Sunday, May 10, 1953, Union Ridge Church, near Burlington, North Carolina, dedicated its new Educational Building. This church was organized in the year 1815. The Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches was organized at this church in the year 1856. We are planning now to erect a new sanctuary in the near future. In fact we hope to have this project completed in time to invite the Southern Convention to meet with us here in 1956, for the celebration of its centennial.

Our new Educational Building, valued at over $70,000 was constructed at a cost of approximately $42,000. This reduction in cost was made possible through donations of materials and labor on the part of members and other interested parties in our community.

The building contains ten class rooms, pastor's study, ladies' lounge, modern kitchen, large fellowship hall, to be used for recreational activities, meals and community meetings.

The type of construction, building committee and those taking part in the service of dedication and other information has already been published in The Sun several weeks ago.

We are especially proud of the fact that by the time the building was completed all financial obligations were paid in full. We did not have to obtain a loan of any kind. We believe that this is proof that if a church wants to do a thing bad enough it can be done. Some of our own people have been amazed over the fact that this project was completed without working too much of a hardship on any one, and that it was done in so short a time. These people made up their minds they were going to do the job; then they opened up their pocket books, rolled up their sleeves; and went to work. The result is one of the finest rural Educational Buildings in the South. And when we tackle our next project, I have all the confidence in the world that they will handle that job in the same spirit. They are a wonderful group of people, here at Union, and I am mighty proud to be their pastor.

It may be interesting to know that even though we have just finished a building program of our own and are about to engage in another one, this church voted to accept its quota of the Church Building Loan Fund, that others may have a place to study and worship, too!

What formula are these people using? Just this: a spirit of cooperation, willingness to work, and enthusiasm for God's Kingdom! We believe this formula will work. Why? Because we have seen it happen with our own eyes!

HISTORICAL SOCIETY. 1956.
Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches.

The CHRISTIAN SUN

ORGAN OF THE SOUTHERN CONVENTION OF CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES

In Essentials Unity — In Non-Essentials, Liberty, — In All Things, Charity

VOLUME CV

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, JUNE 11, 1953

NUMBER 24

Bethlehem Congregational Christian Church

TENTH LEGION, VIRGINIA

DEDICATED MAY 31, 1953

(ARTICLE ON PAGE 6)

News Flashes

First Church, Richmond, will consecrate its recently remodeled Social and Recreational Hall on Sunday, June 21, at 3:00 p. m. Friends are invited to attend.

S. M. Smith dreams up a catastrophe for this issue—but one that can not well happen. There may be exceptions, but most ministers are called of God, and while we laymen may at times vex them almost past their power of endurance, they cannot go on strike against their calling.

American business and advertising contributions to the 1953, "Religion in American Life" campaign totalled some four million dollars. Since it was established four years ago, "Religion in American Life" has conducted a national nonsectarian campaign each November to emphasize the importance in personal and community life, and to urge all Americans to attend and support the church of their choice.

A message sent to President Eisenhower, Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and Senator Robert A. Taft last week, by a group representing 80 Protestant foreign mission boards and agencies, expressed concern over Pakistan's dire need of food. The message noted that on April 3, the Pakistan government requested emergency aid from the U. S. government in the form of supplies and surplus wheat. The letter asked for favorable action upon the request because "it is known that many thousands of people in Pakistan are now suffering from hunger and the effects of malnutrition."

Nineteen work camps will be conducted in Europe this summer, to accommodate some 600 Protestant youth from the United States and other countries who will undertake special construction jobs. The flooded areas of the Netherlands will receive attention, and other summer work camps will be held in Austria, Germany, Italy and Scotland. The young people who participate in the projects put in from five to eight hours a day of hard labor for no pay. The purpose of the work camps is to bring together young Protestants from various nations, of diverse races, beliefs and traditions, to meet specific human needs.

Several weeks past, we gave our readers an article from the pen of Rev. Richard K. Morton, formerly of Massachusetts and Rhode Island, and now pastor of the Union Congregational Church of Jacksonville, Florida. This week we are printing another article by him written out of his several months experience in the State of Florida and the Southeast. At the same time there is being run a letter from him to Rev. Max Vestal, which gives us an insight into his background and at the same time offers some pertinent suggestions for the work of our youth in the Southeast. We hope that Mr. Morton will have an opportunity to put some of his theories into practice, and also that he will have the chance to explore the Christian Church side of our church. We say church (not churches) intentionally, for we believe that we have done a good job of merging in the formerly almost totally Christian area—the Southern Convention.

New Season Opens at Moonelon

Rev. and Mrs. J. L. Neese are again at Moonelon this summer and will supervise the activities there as they did last year. Groups desiring to use Moonelon should write for dates to Mr. Neese at Elon College, N. C. At present only one group at a time and only church groups are being offered the privilege of using Moonelon.

Groups of young people and laymen who are willing to do work of clearing, painting and minor repairing on Wednesdays and Saturdays are asked to so indicate to Mr. Neese.

During the week of July 5 to July 12, the Elon Young People's Conference will be using the pool.

At the present time work on the painting of the pool by Burlington young adults is in progress.

HENRY E. ROBINSON.

Frank Laubach Is Honored

Dr. Frank Laubach, internationally known Congregational Christian missionary and literacy expert, was awarded the honorary degree of doctor of letters by Syracuse University on June 1, Chancellor William P. Tolley conferring the degree at the university's 99th commencement exercises, where five other distinguished Americans were similarly honored.

Dr. Laubach, who has helped an estimated 60,000,000 people learn to read though his "each one teach one" literacy system, was cited for giving tirelessly of himself to a program "crucial to the future of human progress." Meeting the challenge that half of the world's population was illiterate by personally teaching people to read, the degree citation said, Dr. Laubach has helped "countless thousands to achieve fuller self-realization and richer lives."

Recognized as dean of world literacy experts, Dr. Laubach has visited 64 countries and taught 239 languages in a campaign that began as virtually a one-man project nearly a quarter century ago. Still active at the age of 68, Dr. Laubach today serves as special counsellor of the committee on world literacy and Christian literature in the National Council of Churches' Division of Foreign Missions.

Dr. Laubach will be well remembered by many who heard him on a trip through the Southern Convention area several years ago.

"Are We Full of Prejudices?"

Speaking in Philadelphia last week, Dr. Wynn C. Fairfield asserted that the 1952 McCarran (Immigration) Act reflected old prejudices and false assumptions about foreign nationalities, but that Americans must have a change of heart and mind before the injustices of the McCarran law could be corrected. Dr. Fairfield said changes would not be easy because "the Act probably reflects the present public mood."

"As a people," said Dr. Fairfield, "we are full of prejudices, dislikes and distrusts against people with different languages, facial characteristics, political views and social and economic status. The necessary change of heart will be quicker if the leaders of our American churches and synagogues point up the religious and moral implications of present attitudes." It should be pointed out that he, a former Congregational Christian missionary, who has, we are told, "assisted 60,000 refugees to resettle in the United States since World War II," was speaking before a minority racial group, and possibly subconsciously, appealing to the racial prejudice which he condemns in others.

The McCarran (Immigration) Act is far from perfect, but we believe that an impartial study of it will show that it has been most unjustly maligned.

Laymen and the Church . . .

J. Earl Danieley, Editor, Box 515, Elon College, N. C.

"The Layman and His Home"

PROGRAM FOR JUNE.

SUGGESTED HYMNS: "I Would Be True"; "How Firm a Foundation."

SUGGESTED SCRIPTURE: I Timothy 5: 1-8.

PRAYER: "Bless our homes, O God. We pray, too, for all thy children who do not have homes. Help us to live as brothers to all men everywhere. Amen."

MEDITATION: Homes are where people live; but have you ever stopped to think what are the requirements for a home? Let us look at a few:

1. A house or physical building. The song says, "Be it ever so humble, there's no place like home," and how true that is. The size, location, furnishings or any of these things are no guarantee that a house will be a home. All people need and should have some place to live.

2. Parents, husbands and wives, grandparents. Lots of people never get married, and plenty of folks that do get married are divorced or left alone after a period of years. Many sisters and brothers make a perfect home for each other, and sometimes even friends make a heavenly home for themselves.

3. Children. Far too many couples are denied the blessing of having their own offspring, and lots of them adopt children. The laughter of little children and all that goes with bringing them up makes a large contribution to the happiness of any home. Still there are many happy homes without them.

4. Love, joy, hope. These are not limited by any location or particular people, but all would agree that they are essential to a home.

5. Sorrow and disappointment. Character is not easily made by the good things in life, but more by the way so-called breaks are taken:

"I walked a mile with Joy,
She chatted all the way;
But not a thing I learned from Joy,
For all she had to say.

"I walked a mile with Sorrow,
She said not a single word;
But my, the things I learned from her,
In all I heard."

6. Sharing. 'Tis learning how to give and take that makes life worth while and adds zest to living. It is true with all age groups in a home.

Questions for Discussion.

1. What are the requirements for a happy home? What is the difference between a house and a home?
2. How may our homes be improved today?
3. Where should Christianity come into a home?
4. What is a man's responsibility in a home?
5. Why is democracy needed in home building today?
6. What steps can we take to make our homes more Christian?

If I had the opportunity to say a final word to all the young people of America, it would be this: Don't think too much about yourself. Try to cultivate the habit of thinking of others. Selfishness always brings its own revenge. Be unselfish. That is the first and final commandment for those who would be useful and happy in their usefulness.

—Dr. Charles W. Elliot.

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr

A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom as represented by the Congregational Christian Churches.

Our Principles

1. The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
2. Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
3. The Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
4. Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and church membership.
5. The right of private judgment and liberty of conscience is a privilege that should be accorded to and exercised by all.

Managing Editor John T. Kernodle

Departmental Editors—Convention, Wm. T. Scott; Missions, F. O. Lester; Women's Work, Mrs. F. C. Lester; Young People's Work, Max Vestal; Children, Mrs. R. L. House; Sunday School Lesson, H. S. Hardcastle.

Institutional Representatives—Elon College, L. E. Smith; The Christian Orphanage, John G. Truitt.

Board of Publications—Duane Vore, Chairman, S. T. Holland, Secretary; R. C. Helfenstein, S. E. Madren, W. W. Snyder, G. D. Colclough, Treasurer, ex officio.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Year $3.00
Two Years 5.00

Published by the Board of Publications of The Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches, Inc. Printed every Thursday except the last in June and December by Central Publishing Co., Inc., Richmond, Va.

Entered as second-class matter at the Post Office at Richmond Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

General contributions should be addressed to the editor at Southern Pines, N. C., and should reach him by Wednesday of the week preceding date of publication.

Departmental material should be sent to the proper departmental editor, at the address shown on their page.

All other material and business communications except regarding subscriptions should be sent to the Office of Publication, 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond 19, Va.

The Christian Sun Subscription Blank

Subscription Price: 1 year, $3.00; 2 years, $5.00

Date 195...

Dr. Wm. T. Scott, Supt.,
Elon College, N. C.

Enclosed find $..... for which please send The Christian Sun
() 1 year, () 2 years — () New Subscription, () Renewal.

To

Address

Who is a member of Church

() Renew, () Enter my own subscription for () 1 year, () 2 years.

My Name

My Address

From the EDITORIAL Viewpoint

On Fencing in Your Soul

By W. MILLARD STEVENS

Fences have many commendable uses in the lives of people. However, fences have no value when placed around the soul of a Christian.

We are told, for example, that cows either have to be fenced in or have men to herd them, because if they are not restrained they will walk and wander on and on until they starve to death or, in winter, freeze to death. Under such circumstances fences are of great value.

But the opposite is true with the soul and mind of man, because when we place a fence around our souls and our minds, we will starve ourselves spiritually. The Gospel of Christ is limitless and sets men free. When we place limits on the Gospel, we are fencing in our souls.

Throughout the ages man has been tempted to do exactly this. At the very beginning of the Christian Community, there were men who tried to limit the Gospel by placing about it a fence built out of the laws and traditions of one race. It was only through the efforts of the Apostle Paul that this fence was not successfully erected. Through the ages men have tried to do this same thing by making the Gospel conform to their own narrow prejudices.

Men have also tried to build fences around their souls by limiting the power and concern of God for human life. This has been accomplished where people have in their own minds "watered down" the Gospel. But the Spirit of God will never run in such narrow channels. Moreover, we are often tempted to limit the Spirit of God by expressing only the negative aspects of the Gospel, but the Gospel is not a negative psychology. It is a positive expression of a way of life.

If the soul and mind of man are fenced in by prejudices or by unchangeable form, then progress will cease, and instead of a vital Christianity we will have only an anaemic faith.

Don't fence in your soul!

On Loving the Church

By ROY C. HELFENSTEIN

One of the highest tributes that can be paid to any person is the reputation of loving the church. And one of the highest goals any church can attain is to minister to the social, moral and spiritual needs of its members, that they will naturally have a deep love and devotion for their church.

He was a man who had just turned forty. The writer was the guest preacher at his church in New York City on a vacation Sunday, and was met at the main entrance upon arriving at the church before the hour of service. He was a fine looking man—revealing every evidence of a successful life and of a clean-cut character. He greeted us with these words, "And so you are a good friend of our pastor, I understand." We replied that we were also happy to say that his pastor was a good friend. His pastor was in England, and was preaching that same Sunday in a church in England where we had spoken on four different Sundays in the summers of 1928 and 1935, as a member of the "International Goodwill Team" of fourteen American pastors.

"Well," continued the man, "my pastor told me to be sure to be present today so as to hear you and to show you around our church. . . . You know," said he, "I love this church as much as I love my own home. In fact, if it were not for this church I doubt if I would have a home." Then he told the story of his children being in the Sunday school—how kind the teachers had been to his children—how his boy of seven had been very sick, and how the lad had asked him to pray for him. Said he, "I didn't know how, but the boy taught me, and when the boy got well, I went to church with him, and while listening to the sermon I found God." Speaking of what he had missed all through the years before his conversation, he said, "Now, I can't see how anybody can fail to love his church!" We can't either! Can you?

What the church needs is men and women, boys and girls who truly love it. When people love God, they naturally love his Church. When people love their church they naturally want to do everything for it they can. There is no need to plead with people to attend church, to support the church, to promote the work of the church if they really love it.

The world is faced today with history's greatest perils, and society is facing history's greatest dangers today, simply because too many people have lost their love for the Church of God. Losing one's love for the Church imperils one's life, one's home, one's community, one's future, one's nation, and the world itself!

Congregationalism's Mission in the South

By REV. RICHARD K. MORTON

Pastor, Union Congregational Church, Jacksonville, Florida

The mission of Congregationalism, basically, of course, is no different in the South from what it may be elsewhere. We have a definite tradition and method of procedure and a certain distinctive point of view. It remains to be stated, however, that there are various strategies, methods and goals which have to do specifically with the environment in which Southern Congregationalism finds itself.

This religious development in the South, furthermore, is not all of one homogeneous type. There is a significant difference between the Congregationalism of the rural and piedmont areas, among indigenous groups that have lived there for several generations and the faith of the transplanted Yankees and other Northerners who have come down to Southern areas for health or business reasons or for the days of their retirement—or for extended visits or vacations. The imprint of the countryside is on the former, and the characteristics of various types of provincial Northern views are on the latter.

The long-range goal of our Congregationalism must be to synthesize these elements to a greater degree and to develop among the residents, indigenous and "foreign," a sense of common purpose and a pride in our heritage.

At the present time, we have two major tasks—namely, to minister to visitors and travelers from the North and to develop the potential that lies among sympathetic folk in both urban and rural areas of the South.

Congregationalism, moreover, will always have a real and vital mission in the South to provide a liberal, Christ-centered, socially alert and intellectually self-critical ministry in the midst of elements often given to excessive evangelistic programs, emotionalism and high-pressure competition among various groups. These policies and doctrines of the more conservative and reactionary elements will always fail to appeal to a certain percentage of the population. But we must have something organized and systematic, something that can stand on its own feet and do a real job on the task that faces it. We cannot as a denomination do much if we are simply a catch-all for those who rebel against the conservative denominations and who are against them rather than for us. Nor can we flourish simply as the servile chaplains to the rich and the retired.

Our denomination, throughout its history in this country, has been brotherly, socially alert, identifying itself with all classes of people, priding itself on the intellectual respectability of its beliefs and its procedures. It is also best fitted to help guide the resurgent South in its newfound vigor industrially and educationally. The South is growing. Old barriers are slowly breaking. Thousands of people are coming in from all areas. Much new business is being done. Mills are being set up. My own city of Jacksonville bids strongly to become the life-insurance capital of the nation. Tremendous production is being undertaken. Our denomination has had experience in aiding people under the stresses of such a situation. Furthermore, our churches admit into membership those with a wide diversity of theological beliefs but who acknowledge Jesus Christ as Lord and Saviour and seek to follow his Spirit and his Truth. It is thus more able to be hospitable to the many groups that now make up especially the urban South.

Our churches can give guidance and impetus to movements now gaining strength to secure greater privileges for minority groups, especially in the economic field, and to help develop in the South a distinctive religious culture which will make great contributions to thought and action. We have some very good theological seminaries, and we have some fine churches. In addition, we have some strong and alert civic and socialwelfare institutions and organizations. Nowhere, too, are service clubs more effective. Nowhere do many church societies function with greater promise. Growing projects are being undertaken in the mental-health and personality-development field, and various groups seek to improve community set-ups for the handling of juvenile and traffic and general cultural problems.

In some areas of our country Congregationalism, Protestantwise, has had it quite easy. It has been the dominant group. It has found ready channels for its social conscience, its brotherhood, and its broad programs. But in the South, it must still win rewards the hard way. It is a minority. It is poorly regarded by many elements. It is small and relatively little known. It must contend against handicaps and adversaries. But this can be good for a people and a denomination. I think Southern Congregationalism can provide insights and stimulus and guidance for the denomination as a whole.

I have already stated two of our major objectives and jobs. I think we must keep these in mind and develop, regionally, techniques and procedures to handle effectively the matter of keeping in touch with Congregational emigrants, locating them in the South and connecting them up again before they are simply lost or absorbed into one of the large and flourishing denominations which are found in the Southern communities. We must do this promptly and effectively. But we must also have the means and the vigor to cultivate our own fresh fields—to hew them out, as it were, and to sow where no one has planted before us. We must work out a means of presenting liberal, loving, brotherly, alert Congregationalism to the South.

We must likewise have the means of dealing wisely with such problems as race and class distinctions and social problems associated with the poorer classes from an educational as well as an economic standpoint. We must get into the countrysides, as well as into the resorts and the motels. We ought to have literature and meetings and other means of locating our travelers and getting into the areas where vacationers can be found. Likewise, we ought to have our rural institutions and conferences and projects.

We are also in the best position to take leadership, not only in social action and in seeking out the visitor and the one who is seeking for a faith suited to a free and inquiring mind, but also in urging interdenominational efforts. Many areas need an interchurch council or Bible class organization.

There is a tremendous need to help our people as a whole get a vision of what they can do in the South. Jefferson had a vision of the value of a great territory, and bought land for four cents an acre which now is the bulk of the central part of our country.

(Continued on page 13.)

Our Churches Report . . .

Dedication Services at Bethlehem Church in Virginia Valley

About 400 persons crowded the new building of the Bethlehem Congregational Christian Church at Tenth Legion, in the Virginia Valley, during dedication services on Sunday, May 31, 1953.

At ten o'clock, the Sunday school classes overflowed with double attendance.

The morning worship service, with three sermons by former pastors, was held exactly according to schedule, from 10:45 to 12:00. The preachers, Rev. Clyde O. Koon, Rev. Roy D. Coulter and Rev. W. T. Walters, each urged the people to so live that they would be worthy of "the temple in the heavens, not made by hands."

At the big dinner provided by the ladies of the church, all of the tables in the church basement groaned under the great loads of fried chicken, ham, cakes, pies and other feast foods; and although everyone was urged to eat all they could, there was enough food left over to feed another crowd larger than the first.

The main dedication service was at 2:00 p. m., and, of course, had the largest attendance. Everything went smoothly according to the program. Deacon Clarence A. Phillips served as moderator of the service. Rev. W. B. Fuller of Harrisonburg, Virginia, gave the Call to Worship, and Rev. W. T. Walters led the Invocation.

Mrs. Myrtle Conquist gave an interesting sketch of the early history of the community and the church. Mr. Clarence A. Phillips spoke words of appreciation for all who had contributed to the construction of the building and the dedication service, especially to Mr. Tom Good for his careful engineering and workmanship. The pastor, Rev. Ralph Galt, spoke a word of greeting, and introduced several visiting ministers.

Mrs. Shirley White sang a special solo "My Task."; and Rev. R. E. Newton of Luray, Virginia, read the 84th Psalm.

Dr. F. C. Lester, the former Superintendent of the Southern Convention, preached the dedicatory sermon, using as his subject "The Church We Love." He said that this was "the church of our fathers," "the church of our choice," the church of our children," and "the Church of Jesus Christ."

After the sermon, Mr. Phillips gave the financial report of the Building Committee. In approximate figures, the building, the pews, the furnace and the chairs cost $32,800; and of this amount $20,950 had been contributed, leaving a balance of indebtedness of about $12,850. Then a dedicatory offering was taken, which amounted to $1,274.44.

Rev. Ralph Galt, the pastor, led the dedicatory litany, followed by prayer by Rev. Robert A. Whitten of Winchester, Virginia.

Rev. C. O. Koon pronounced the benediction.

The Building Committee was as follows: Stanley Lohr, chairman; T. W. Good, engineer; R. R. Sellers, treasurer; Shirley White J. S. Sellers, and Clarence A. Phillips. The church trustees are R. R. Sellers, J. Lawrence Rhodes and Shirley White.

RALPH M. GALT,
Pastor.

Pleasant Ridge Observes Memorial Day

A beautiful and inspiring Memorial Day worship service on May 31, at Pleasant Ridge Church, near Ramseur, North Carolina, was shared by more than 300 members and visitors. The worship service closed with a candle-lighting service, at which candles were lighted by near relatives for members of the church who had died during the past year. These were Mrs. A. A. York and Mrs. B. C. Cox, whose memories are still a part of the fellowship at Pleasant Ridge. In addition, Mr. Herman Pell, chairman of the board of deacons, lighted a candle in memory of all of those who had preceded in the experience called death.

The service included a prayer of dedication for a new carpet, recently installed, which adds beauty and quietness to the sanctuary. This lovely wood-rose carpet was in use for the first time, and it proved a fine addition to the church, especially for the Memorial Day service.

MAX VESTAL.

Suppose Pastors of Churches Went on a Strike

Suppose that on the first Sunday in next month all pastors quit work, failed to show up for church services. Sign on the door, "Closed, Gone out of Business." What would happen?

Every newspaper in the land would print big headlines. Radio commentators would have something to say. Church colleges would start an investigation. Brewers and distillers would rejoice. Parents would be uneasy for fear a juvenile crime wave would develop. Church boards as well as members would be disturbed, then become indignant. They would say to the preachers: "You can't do this to us. What do you mean anyway? Where is your next check coming from?"

In the meantime preachers would be holding secret meetings—getting ready to answer. They would probably refer to the years they had spent in college and seminary in hard study to prepare themselves, only to accept salaries much below the earnings of doctors, lawyers and other professionals of equal caliber. "We can't compete with Sunday baseball games, golf and the movies. We can't stand the strain any longer. We have families to support. You laymen can sell your church buildings, do what you please with them. We have been preaching to you and your families. You have gone back home and forgotten the scripture lessons we gave you. We will still marry your young people and bury your dead, do it gladly and without pay. We mean to be good citizens."

It isn't difficult to figure out what would eventually happen. A revival of religion such as this nation has never experienced. Church doors would open. Pastors would get back on the job. Youth movements would forge ahead. It would be "Onward, Christian Soldiers"; "Faith of Our Fathers"; How Firm a Foundation, Ye Saints of the Lord"; "Battle Hymn of the Republic"; My Country, 'Tis of Thee."

God bless Christian America, the "Land of the free, and home of the brave."

S. M. SMITH.

The world can never have its peace and equilibrium restored until men and women turn to the God of the churches and take their rightful places in the life and activities of some church.—R. C. Helfenstein.

News of Elon College

PRESIDENT L. E. SMITH, Elon College, N. C.

Summer Responsibilities

Almost daily someone says, "School is out, commencement is behind you. I do hope you will take a good rest—you deserve it."

Sounds good, and would be wonderful if such could be realized, but either fortunately or unfortunately summer is crowded with responsibilities that are not lightly or easily borne.

For the last twenty years, Elon has conducted a summer school in two divisions. The first six weeks' session must begin immediately following the regular commencement. A faculty must be secured, curriculums constructed and students enrolled. A number of regular college students desiring to complete requirements for a degree in three years enroll in summer school. Others who find it necessary to work off conditions or incompletes or to make up failures, also enroll in summer school. Then we have a number of high school teachers who come to summer school to renew their certificates or to improve their positions in high school. Our summer school enrollment necessarily varies. When we had a large number of veterans in college, the enrollment ran between three and four hundred. Otherwise, the enrollment in summer school runs from one hundred fifty to two hundred fifty.

Where possible, we use members of our regular faculty for summer school teaching. They receive extra pay for summer work.

Our school for this summer opened today, Monday, June 8. The enrollment will be between one hundred fifty and two hundred students.

Usually we think of the summer months as comparatively easy months for the administration. The fact is they are more exacting. In addition to salaries for summer teaching, the money must be found for twenty-five percent of teachers' salaries for the regular college period. Elon faculty members earn their full salary in nine months, but they are paid on a twelve months basis. This places a strain on the finances of the college and a burden on the administration.

This is not the whole story. For the past two years Elon College has held a second commencement. There are thirty-two students in summer school who are supposed to graduate at the end of the second session. This always entails an extra amount of work and comes at a time that you feel all work should cease. The second commencement, however, is of great convenience to students scheduled to complete their requirements for a degree at the close of summer school.

The responsibilities for the regular session of the college are always with you. They are never completely resolved. During the college year you are wondering how things are going to come out and working hard to make them come out the right way. During the summer months you are full of anxiety. To keep our budget in balance, it is necessary to have an enrollment of approximately 700 students, which is a tremendous task in the light of the keen competition for college freshmen. Loan funds and grants seem to be plentiful with many schools, but not at Elon College.

In the matter of securing students, our ministers, church members, Sunday school superintendents and our teachers could be of great assistance to their college. A word spoken by an interested person often times influences a prospective student in making his decision. It certainly does not hurt and bids fair to help to speak a good word for the college. The opportunity presents itself. Seed sown in fertile soil will spring up in abundant harvest in the proper time. Withhold not your commendations, but urge your friends who plan to go to college to consider Elon. You will do them a good service as well as render assistance to your college.

* * * * *

Apportionment Giving

In planning for the support of Elon College, the Convention has asked each church to contribute a definite amount annually for the college and has suggested that payments be made monthly or quarterly during the church year that the college current funds might be supplemented regularly instead of at the end of the conference year. The summer months are usually lean months; since our last report of apportionment giving, we have had one week when not a single contribution was made to the college. The report today includes contributions for two weeks—the last week of May and the first week of June. These two reports are very expressed to every church, Sunday school and individual that has had a part in the support of the college during these months.

Too many of our people think of money sent to the college as a gift. It is not a gift, but an investment. It may not yield an increase in material values directly, but indirectly it will. An investment made in human life, training and development, will always bear rich dividends in all areas of human need. Perhaps the greatest need of the church today is trained, consecrated leadership sufficiently large in numbers to meet the needs of the church in all of its activities, opportunities and responsibilities. Withhold not your offerings. You make them to a good cause and for a good purpose.

Previously reported $ 3,927.76

Eastern N. C. Conference

Antioch $17.00

Lebanon 8.00

Morrisville 8.05

Mt. Auburn S. S. 11.25

Eastern Va. Conference:

Bethlehem Nans S. S. ... $28.90

Franklin 245.00

Holy Neck S. S. 140.00

Mt. Carmel S. S. 15.84

Newport News S. S. 27.95

N. C. and Va. Conference:

Burlington S. S. $66.48

Western N. C. Conference:

Albemarle $20.00

Bailey's Grove 1.00

Seagrove 40.00

Pleasant Grove 5.00

Brown's Chapel 5.00

Union Grove 20.00

Virginia Valley Conference:

Winchester S. S. $ 8.34

667.81

Total to date $ 4,595.57

Student Volunteer Movement for Christian Missions to Merge

With an enrollment of more than 1500 students committed to the Christian World mission, the Student Volunteer Movement for Christian Missions will become a department of the National Council of Churches, early next fall.

Hailing the move as a significant step toward unified Christian activity in America, Rev. E. H. Johnson, Student Volunteer Movement general secretary, said the merger will have the practical effect of strengthening the close working relationship already existing.

(Continued on page 15.)

Missions at Home and Abroad

A Letter to Dr. Scott from One of Our Missionaries to India

Marathi Mission,
Rahuri,
Bombay State, India,
May 18, 1953.

Dear Dr. Scott:

It has been months since I wrote you last. But even though I could not write to you, we have been always thinking of our dear friends in the Southern Convention and holding them before God in prayer. The copies of THE SUN have been irregular lately, many are lost on the way here; but it is good to get news of friends and activities through it, and the various articles are inspiring and helpful in many ways.

During the months of March and April we were privileged by the visit, to our Mission area, of the Rev. and Mrs. R. A. Dudley. Mr. Dudley, as you know, is the Foreign Missions Secretary of the American Board for India. This visit has meant so much inspiration and challenge to our Mission work. We are now in the midst of re-shaping the entire method of our developments in our country. We are emphasizing more and more on lay leadership in our churches, voluntary lay service, more sacrificial giving to God, better young people's programs, etc. This is not an entirely new step that we are taking, but we realize that we are lagging far behind in these for the times, and if we do not now speed up our efforts to meet the need of the day, it might be too late to do anything in the future. Our whole Mission, therefore, is busy shaping this new approach toward deepening the spiritual life of the existing church and toward extending it through evangelization.

My new responsibility in this is to coordinate our evangelistic efforts throughout the Mission area and to emphasize the lay leadership movement. We work along five distinct lines:

- a. Toward evangelism.
- b. Lay leadership, music, training of lay people, etc.
- c. Economic basis for the ministry.

d. Spiritual basis of the church, through prayer and Bible study.

e. Fellowship and unity of the church.

We believe that the answer to the present difficult times lies in achieving satisfactory results in the above efforts. Please pray for us all and our work. We are confident that the Lord, whose work we all are unitedly trying to do will bless it to his glory and that the Church in India will continue to grow steadily even amidst problems and difficulties, trials and temptations.

We want to thank the members of the Southern Convention for the keen interest they have shown and taken in me and my little work here in India. I feel grateful to them for their prayers and financial support. I am particularly grateful to the minister of the First Congregational Church in Greensboro, North Carolina, Dr. W. E. Wisseman, and members of his church for many gifts of CARE packages and many in response to my letter regarding famine conditions in our area. That church has done so much for me already that I can never thank them enough for their loving kindness to me and their concern for my work. I feel a part of their "fellowship" in a splendid way.

I also express my gratitude to Mrs. L. W. Vaughan and the Women's Society of the Christian Temple in Norfolk, Virginia, for their generous gift of $50.00 toward famine relief in the Rahuri area.

Then there are a few individuals and Christian societies that have shown keen interest in me and my work. Through Mrs. Baxter Twiddy of Norfolk, a Women's Society has given me a gift of a subscription to Reader's Digest for one year. I wish to thank them for the gift.

You may see, Dr. Scott, from the above, that the Southern Convention, through its churches and individuals, is doing more for me than I deserve. I feel very humble about this and pray that I may prove myself worthy of the confidence and love they place in me.

I continue to crave for fellowship with as many folks as possible. Only that my time and financial resources are limited, and though I would like to write to every single person, it is not possible because of the rush of work and the cost, but through the columns of your weekly paper, THE SUN, I greet them all through Christian greetings and express my thanks for their kindnesses.

Last but not least, I thank you, Dr. Scott, for your interest in me and my work. I can never forget the day when we first met on the train at Greensboro. That fellowship continues to inspire me and I share my joy with my dear friends in India. May God bless you and your work for his kingdom.

With Christian love,
PRAKASH S. BHONSLE.

A Jeep for Japan

A unique service featuring the presentation of a jeep station wagon, the commissioning of a missionary to Japan, and the ordination of a young Japanese to the ministry, took place at the morning service of the West Medford, Massachusetts, Congregational Church, on Sunday, May 17.

Rev. John Gilmore Young, Congregational Christian educationalist in Kyota, Japan, was commissioned by Miss Alice E. Cary, secretary for Japan, the Philippine Islands and Micronesia, and at the close of the service the keys to the jeep station wagon for use by Mr. Young in his work, were presented. The jeep was waiting outside the church doors.

Sumio Ogata, graduate of Doshisha University School of Theology, Kyoto, Japan, was ordained at the same service. Mr. Young preached the sermon, and Mr. Ogata brought greetings from the university and the Church of Christ in Japan.

Mr. Young is a graduate of Springfield Y. M. C. A. College, Columbia University and Union Theological Seminary. He has been a Christian educator in Hawaii and Japan since 1924, beginning before he had finished his university training and his theological course. He first went to Japan under the American Board in 1928, and then spent five years in Nanking University, China. Following a period as general secretary of the Y. M. C. A. at Kauai, Hawaii, he sailed in 1947 for his present post in Japan. He is director of Field Work and head of the Department of Religious Education and Christian Social Work in the Theological Seminary of Doshisha University.

Church Women at Work

With Emphasis on Missions

MRS. F. C. LESTER, Editor

840 Sunset Avenue, Asheboro, N. C.

Program of the Eighth Annual SCHOOL OF MISSIONS of the Woman's Missionary Convention

* * *

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

JUNE 16-19, 1953.

* * *

Tuesday Afternoon.

1:00 Registration West Dormitory).
2:30 Call to Order (Whitley Memorial Auditorium).

Worship Service—Mrs. Ray Gordon.

Greetings—Mrs. L. E. Smith.
Introductions.

Presentation of the Program—
Mrs. W. B. Williams.

Announcements.
“Is Anybody Reading?”—Miss
Pattie Lee Coghill.

Prayer.

Hymn.

4:00 Visit to Book Store.

6:00 Dinner (College Dining Hall).

7:00 Vespers (on the lawn)—Mrs.
Richard Petersen.

Tuesday Evening.

8:00 “Is Anybody Looking?”—Mrs.
Harry Nelson, Visual Aids
Chairman.

Feature Film, “Hidden Heart.”

Benediction.

Informal Get-together—Sponsored by Women of Reids-ville Church.

Wednesday Morning.

8:00 Breakfast.

9:00 Bible Study—Dr. H. S. Hard-castle.

9:45 “Is Anybody Studying the Bible?”—Mrs. Duane N. Vore,
chairman.

10:05 “World Task of the Church”
—Rev. Quentin Leisher.

11:00 Visit to Book Store.

11:35 The Workshop—Miss Marjory
Martin.

12:45 Luncheon.

Wednesday Afternoon.

2:30 “Rejoicing in Our Tasks”:
Friendly Service—Mrs. W. E.
Wisseman.

Interdenominational Cooperation—Mrs. H. E. Robinson.
Life Memberships and Memorials—Mrs. T. G. Humphries.
Editor—Mrs. F. C. Lester.

4:00 Trip to the Orphanage—Conducted by Mrs. J. G. Truitt.

6:00 Dinner.

Wednesday Evening.

(Parish House.)

7:30 “World Tour of Listening Posts”—Conducted by Miss
Marjory Martin.

9:45 Family Altar (West Dormitory Reception Hall),

Thursday Morning.

8:00 Breakfast.

9:00 Bible Study—Dr. H. S. Hard-castle.

9:45 “Is Anybody Studying the Bible?”—Mrs. Duane N. Vore,
chairman.

10:05 “The Challenge of Africa”—
Rev. Quentin Leisher.

11:00 Visit to the Book Store.

11:35 The Workshop—Miss Marjory
Martin.

12:45 Luncheon.

2:30 “Rejoicing in Our Tasks”:
Christian Family Life—Mrs.
J. S. Rollings, Sr.

Cradle Roll Department—Mrs.
Carl Wallace.

Children's Department—Mrs.
Robert Lee House.

Young People's Department—
Mrs. W. Millard Stevens.

4:00 Tour of the College—Dr. L. E.
Smith.

5:00 Picnic at Moonelon.
Vesper Sing.

Thursday Evening.

8:00 Hymn.

Scripture and Prayer.

Special Music.

Address—“A New Day in Missions”—Rev. Quentin Leisher.

Communion Hymn.

Communion Service—Conducted by Dr. L. E. Smith.

Friday Morning.

8:00 Breakfast.

9:00 Bible Study—Dr. H. S. Hard-castle.

9:40 “Freedom's New Frontier: Japan”—Rev. Quentin Leisher.

Hymn.

10:40 Workshop—Miss Marjory Martin.

11:35 Reports and Impressions.

12:45 Luncheon.

* * * * *

May Fellowship at Greensboro

The Woman's Auxiliary of First Church, Greensboro, North Carolina, was hostess to the Greensboro Council of Church Women for the May Fellowship meeting and luncheon held Friday, May 1, 1953. Lunch was served to 150 women.

This was another opportunity for the Greensboro women to share the new facilities of their church with others. The program included talks by four foreign students from Guilford College, Greensboro College and Woman's College.

MRS. HARRY G. BALLINGER.

* * * * *

Faithful Women at Antioch

The Lester family had the pleasure of spending a night in the home of Mrs. A. W. Andes, near Harrisonburg, Virginia, recently. Mrs. Andes, the widow of a minister, the mother of two ministers and a minister's wife and a Christian college professor, has “majored” in religion during her entire lifetime.

In the course of our conversation, she spoke of her missionary society at Antioch Church. It is a small group, with no members of large income, but composed of people who are willing to work and sacrifice. It is just such groups as these which hold our world together—little groups of consecrated people, in all parts of the earth, who have the spirit of the Master in their hearts, and work in his name and for the sake of their fellowmen.

* * * * *

Cradle Roll Party Material

Several have inquired concerning the material for the June Cradle Roll party. Mrs. William P. Bowland, the North Carolina Cradle Roll Superintendent, asks us to remind you that the material for this party is in the packet which you purchased last fall, and which contained the material for your women's society programs for the year.

It sometimes happens that the president or the program chairman does not pass this material along to the Cradle Roll superintendent. Please check on this matter in your society.

A Page for Our Children

MRS. JUNE JOY HOUSE, Editor, Elon College, N. C.

The First Native-Born Naturalist in the New World

In Fairmount Park, Philadelphia, stands a quaint stone house surrounded by an old garden. Both are preserved because they perpetuate the memory of the first nativeborn naturalist in the New World. He was John Bartram, born near Darby, Pennsylvania, in March, 1699, and whose father came from Derbyshire, England, to cast his lot with a fellow Quaker, William Penn.

Bartram was born with an absorbing love for flowers and trees. Indeed, when only a young man, Bartram purchased a small plot of land near Philadelphia and developed one of the first botanical gardens in America.

Bartram's garden and his keen interest in nature impressed William Penn, who had been requested by King George II to recommend someone to be his botanist in the Colonies. Bartram was recommended, and received the King's appointment. This royal recognition, and subsequent service to the King, resulted in Bartram's exchanging correspondence with almost every ruler of importance in Europe relative to vegetation in the New World.

On his journeys to collect specimens of flowers and trees, Bartram explored the wilderness from Lake Ontario to Florida, not making one trip but several. Even in his sixty-seventh year, Bartram made a 400-mile journey along St. John's River in Florida, studying palms.

On each return trip, Bartram sent new specimens of flowers and trees to England, and added new glories to his botanical garden which had become such a showplace that Benjamin Franklin took his distinguished guests from foreign lands to view it.

Every lover of nature pays tribute to the memory of John Bartram, and the art of garden-making is associated with his name. So is the quaint stone house in Fairmount Park, for Bartram built the house with his own hands.

* * * * *

*"To have their cake and eat it, too,
Is what some folks would like to do,
Who, without dint of toil and strife,
Would reap the benefits of life."*

"A Curl for Aunt Joan"

By JANICE A. McDONALD.

Issued by the National Kindergarten Association.

Did you ever stop to think how serious little children are? How literally they often take an adult's words and what unfortunate results sometimes follow?

The little girl of my story was pretty. She had an abundance of curly, blond hair. People spoke of it often, and Mother wished they wouldn't. "The child will become conceited," she said. The little girl didn't know what that meant.

Aunt Joan was the worst. She was always saying, "Oh, your pretty curls! Your beautiful, blond curly hair. Look at mine!"

Aunt Joan's hair was nice, the little girl thought. She didn't have curls, but maybe only little girls had many of them. Mother had curls only at the edge of her neck—not on top.

One rainy day when Aunt Joan came over, the little girl noticed that her aunt looked very unhappy. "What is the matter?" she asked.

"Look at me," Aunt Joan said. "What good does it do for me to spend half an evening putting up my hair?"

The little girl looked sorry. Mommie didn't put her hair up every night. She just brushed it every day.

Aunt Joan smiled at her niece and said, "Won't you give me one of your curls, Honey? You're so fortunate!"

That started the idea. When the little girl was alone, she went to Mother's sewing basket; it wasn't hard to find the scissors. Aunt Joan had said "one curl," but the little girl kept on. She had had no idea that it would be so much fun to cut her hair.

She smiled at herself in the mirror. Mommie would be surprised, but this was to be a present for Aunt Joan, and Mommie always said thoughtful presents and surprises were some of the best one could give. When the little girl said to her Mommie, "I love Aunt Joan," her mother always said, "I'm so glad, dear. She and I have always been close sisters,"

"Helloooooo?" The little girl heard the familiar voice. That was Aunt Joan now. She left the scissors where she had put them down and picked up the pile of curls. Then she went down the stairs calling, "Coming, Aunt Joan, I'm coming, Aunt Joan," her sweet voice making her words a bit of a song.

Aunt Joan looked queer when she saw the curls. She looked very upset, and her mouth remained open with no sound coming out. She was staring at the little girl. Finally sound came. She gasped: "Your hair! Your lovely hair! Oh, Baby!"

But why should Auntie look so unhappy? The little girl came closer, holding the pile of curls. Aunt Joan had said that she would like a curl. She ought to be happy. Here were a lot!

"You wanted them!" the little girl said.

"But darling! But darling!" Aunt Joan kept saying. "I didn't mean—" Aunt Joan was crying. Finally she said, "Thank you, dear! We—we both have curls now!" Then she looked straight at the little girl. She wasn't crying any more, but she wasn't smiling either. "When your curls grow back," she said, "keep them. You see curls make little girls prettier, and these belong on your head—I was jealous! I shouldn't have been. When they grow again, keep them, every one. Promise?"

It was puzzling to the little girl, but she nodded solemnly.

* * * * *

Setting the Table

*I lay the cloth of snowy white,
As smooth as I am able;
I place the silver, plates and glass;
I love to set the table.*

*Each piece of china in its place,
The teapot near to mother,
The carving knife by father's plate,
His colored mug for brother.*

*And when I ring the silver bell,
They come with faces shining,
And everything goes on so well,
We all are happy dining.*

—P. S. Malen.

A long time ago a noted specialist said that his secret of success as a physician was keeping the patient's head cool and his feet warm. And it is just now becoming generally known that a "hot head" and "cold feet" are enough to bring disaster to even a well man.—O. Byron Cooper.

Youth at Work in the Church

REV. MAX VESTAL, R. 1, Asheboro, N. C.

Suggestions from a Friend—What's Our Answer?

Jacksonville, Fla.,
May 12, 1953.

Rev. Max Vestal,
Asheboro, N. C.

Dear Mr. Vestal:

I have become a regular follower of your work in THE CHRISTIAN SUN—and I am afraid that you are about to acquire another correspondence pest! But such is the penalty for fame!

I come by my interest in youth and conference work naturally, having been a product of Christian Endeavor and a Boston, Massachusetts, district union president, conference speaker, adviser to Rhode Island Pilgrim Fellowship, youth summer conference leader, whatever experience these may have given. I am to be an instructor in our Florida Junior Conference at Avon Park, June 24 to July 1. But all this autobiography is not the purpose of my letter. It is rather to suggest trying to do something regionally and collectively, if possible, about our common task.

1. Could we exchange leaders in some of our conferences and, in the fall and next season, arrange to have a regional and several local meetings? I'd like to participate in an institute on Youth and the Church, or Congregationalism and Southern Youth, Religion and Human Relationships, etc. I've unloaded a lot of this in our own area—to which I came over three months ago from Rhode Island—and I'm to give the commencement talk at New Bedford, Mass., High School, on June 18.

2. Could we get various local church groups to tell, through your column or otherwise, what plans and projects they have found best?

3. Could we exchange discussions or programs prepared on tape and recorded for distribution?

4. Perhaps some leaflets addressed to the problems of Southern youth and education, youth and jobs, youth and emotional and personality problems, etc., could be prepared.

5. Could we have a mimeographed monthly leaflet for and by youth for the region?

6. How about some special emphasis on our youth and the Christian college?

7. Perhaps an advance listing of the best and most accessible summer conferences would help some young people. And also a list of projects or jobs youth might do for their local churches might help.

8. There is a program, "This I Believe," now getting much attention. Why not have young people prepare something like this or "This I Want to Do with My Life."

9. Could we use the radio regularly or get up something for use on Television?

10. Summer is the time for slumping—but so many young people are at home and yet out of school. Why could they not adopt several programs to inject new life into the local church program: outdoor meetings, visits to near-by camps and picnic or resort spots, to conduct little services, etc?

11. Why could we not urge some of our leading young people to assume responsibility for recruiting and guiding those in the younger age groups? For instance, if a church hopes to build a Junior Pilgrim Fellowship, it might have a committee of older young people canvassing the church school and parish and community enlisting prospects.

Well, enough of this for one letter. I hope to be in Wadley, Alabama, for the regional laymen's retreat, June 5-7, and expect to vacation at Lake Junaluska during August. The best of good wishes, and if you can find time to write, I'd be glad to hear from you.

Faithfully yours,

RICHARD K. MORTON.

* * * * *

Western North Carolina Youth Rally

Smithwood Congregational Christian Church, located near Liberty, N. C., was the scene on Sunday, May 31, of the regular fifth Sunday Youth Rally in the Western North Carolina Conference. The rally proceeded from the warm welcome by the host pastor, Rev. John Bowers, to an afternoon of worship, singing, inspiration, information, fellowship, fun and food.

Two of our Southern Convention leaders were on hand to participate in the rally. Miss Pattie Lee Coghill spoke to the group on the planning and participation in a worship experience. Dr. Henry E. Robinson, of Burlington, spoke to the group concerning the Moonelon project.

Doug Harper, of Albemarle, led a discussion of the programs that may be used in a youth meeting. Clemm Shankle, of Shady Grove and president of the conference youth, led a discussion of the projects that the various groups had accepted. The groups were encouraged to support the Work Day for Christ, the Moonelon project, the Church Building Loan Fund, the Lord's Acre plan, and other projects that can be of service in the church and community.

The attendance trophy was won by the Pleasant Grove Church. Pleasant Grove will be the host church for the Fifth Sunday Rally in August. The Grace's Chapel Church, near Sanford, will be the host church for the rally in November. There were ten ministers present at the rally at Smithwood.

The recreation was led by Rev. Bill Simmons, of Pleasant Grove and Grace's Chapel. The meeting closed with a vesper service led by the Ridgesingers of the Pleasant Ridge Church.

* * * * *

Relax With Max

The man who loses his head is usually the last one to miss it.

* * *

Willingness to work hard and persistently at a job you like, may not be genius, but it's the best possible substitute for it.

* * *

Spring is the season when a young man's fancy turns may cause an accident. Be careful!

* * *

Young men and women, a good many of you are at the age when it is extremely important for you to accept Christ as your personal Saviour. Maybe you've finished school and are going out on your own. Do not do it. Take Christ with you. Why not talk with your pastor about it today?

* * *

Let Us Pray

For a Godly task to do.

For the willingness to do it.

And for thy help, that it may be successfully completed.

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE, D. D.

"The Practice of Christian Liberty"

LESSON XII—JUNE 21, 1953.

MEMORY SELECTION: "You were called to freedom, brethren; only do not use your freedom as an opportunity for the flesh, but through love be servants of one another."—Galatians 5:13 (RSV)

LESSON: Galatians 5:13-18, 5:22-6:5.

DEVOTIONAL READING: Galatians 6:1-10.

The Principle of Christian Liberty.

In last Sunday's lesson we considered the principle of Christian liberty. Paul asserted and defended the principle that a Christian was not bound by the Mosaic law, that he was free from the rights and ceremonies of the Jews, that he was free in Christ. "Christ has set us free from the bondage of the law," so said Paul. He has called us into liberty.

But freedom does not mean license. Liberty does not mean the right to do as one pleases. There can be no such liberty in a community in which there are other people. For instance, one is not at liberty to drive his car as fast "as he pleases." He is not at liberty to strike every man who does not agree with him. He is not at liberty to take that which is another man's just because he needs it. It is all summed up in the words over the portals of the Supreme Court Building in Washington, "Freedom Under Law." Absolute freedom would mean anarchy. The fact is that a man is free in the best sense when he observes the higher law. Today's lesson, therefore, is concerned with the practice of Christian Liberty.

The Practice of Christian Liberty.

"For Ye, brethren, were called for freedom; only use not your freedom for an occasion to the flesh, but through love, to serve one another." We have been set free by Christ from the things that hinder and handicap, to the end from the bondage of the law in order to become servants of Christ. Inasmuch as Christ gives us the victory over some sinful habit, or sets us free from fears and worries, by so much the more are we to serve him. Love is the fulfilling of the law. A man should live so that his habits are fighting for him, and not against him.

"Walk by the Spirit and ye shall not fulfil the lust of the flesh. For the flesh lusteth against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh, for these are contrary, the one to the other." Every man's heart is a battle-ground. There is a constant and continuing fight in the man between the desires and the passions and the sins of the mind and heart, and the Spirit. And it is a battle which has great issues, where much is at stake. Much of a man's happiness, and the quality of his character are dependent upon his ability to win the fight. Only by the Spirit can he be conqueror. One must walk in the Spirit. He must put his hands in the hands of God and walk through the day, taking a positive attitude toward life, and giving heed to the things of the Spirit, and not to the things that satisfy the "flesh."

"The fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, long-suffering, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, meekness, self-control; against such there is no law." This is a searching statement. It is suggested that the lack of these qualities is an evidence of the fact that we do not have the "Spirit." If we are quarrelsome, melancholy, impatient, proud, unkind, undependable, unloving, undisciplined, it is an evidence that we do not have the Spirit in our hearts, for these are the fruit of the Spirit. (It should be noted that it is called "the fruit," and not "the fruits," of the Spirit.)

"If we live by the Spirit, by the Spirit let us walk also." Profession ought to be backed up by practice and performance. The fact is that the man who has the Spirit of God in his heart will reflect the Spirit of God in his life. To be sure, this does not mean that a man will be perfect. We have this treasure in earthen vessels. But if any man have the Spirit of God the same is known by other men. The Spirit of Christ will find expression in life and character and service.

"Brethren, even if a man be overtaken in a fault"... what are we to do under such circumstances? In the case of a good man? In the case of a bad man? The Apostle makes a suggestion. It is to be noted that he does not suggest that we laugh the matter off, condone the wrong-doing, overlook the sin, and do nothing about it. The welfare of the man himself, and the welfare of society demand more than this. Something ought to be done. But by whom, and in what way? "Ye that are spiritual restore such a one in the spirit of gentleness or meekness, considering thyself, lest thou also be tempted." There you have it. A man is conscious of his own weakness, who is humble because of his own failures, who is sympathetic because he can put himself in the other fellow's place, who prayed about the matter and who goes in the spirit of prayer, who is concerned with helping the erring brother or sister to seek forgiveness and the favor of God—such a one is qualified for, and is under obligation to, render this important service to the man and for God. How many there are, who in a moment of weakness, or even deliberate meanness, have done something wrong, who have been hardened or discouraged because all they got was condemnation, criticism, and castigation. On the other hand there are many who have failed who have been helped back to life of respectability and rehabilitation because of the sympathetic spirit of some great-hearted, even though humble and unknown and unnamed man or woman, who considering his or her own weakness has restored such a one in the spirit of gentleness.

Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfil the law of Christ. A Christian is not simply somebody who "doesn't do things"—doesn't smoke or drink or play cards or go to the movies and so on. The distinguishing mark of a Christian is what he does—to what extent he gives himself in service to his fellowmen, to what extent he interests himself in the underprivileged, to what extent he bears the burdens of others. All too many Christians are good, but good for nothing.

"For each man must bear his own burden." There is no contradiction here. Others can help us to bear our burdens. But the fact remains that every man must also bear his own burden. Just as we are unChristian when we do not help to bear the burdens of others, so are we unChristian if we refuse to bear our own burdens as far as we are able.

Based on "International Sunday School Lessons;" Copyrighted 1951 by Division of Christian Education, National Council of the Churches in the U. S. A.

Virginia University Student Council Acts Against Campus Drinking

The University of Virginia Student Council, with admirable courage, has taken four realistic measures to curb drinking on the campus. The policy is not comprehensive but it is directed against drinking at athletic events or under such other circumstances as will bring discredit upon the university.

Drinking at fraternity social events is, we understand, under study.

Discreditable incidents have been no more numerous at the University of Virginia than any other Eastern university, but they have been frequent enough and serious enough to disturb the constituency of the university and the student body.

It is strange that some of the drinking at Virginia University has been defended by reference to Thomas Jefferson, whose independence of thought and action is assumed to sanction the free use of alcoholic beverages. Thomas Jefferson was perhaps the most advanced temperance man of his day. He favored the encouragement of the use of so-called "light" alcoholic beverages but only as a means of reducing the consumption of whiskey, which he said "kills one-third of our citizens and ruins their families." It is very much to be doubted that he would have been tolerant of the use of beer and wine if he had been able to observe the consequences of the general sale of these beverages under circumstances of modern promotion. A report of the American Temperance Society issued in 1833 quoted Jefferson as saying:

"The habit of using ardent spirits by men in public office has occasioned more injury to the public service, and more trouble to me, than any other circumstance which has occurred in the internal concerns of the country during my administration. And were I to commence my administration again, with the knowledge which from experience I have acquired, the first question which I would ask with regard to every candidate for public office should be, 'Is he addicted to the use of ardent spirits?'"

More than one American university has been disturbed by tragic events due to drinking, and frequently these events have involved students who were total abstainers before matriculation and who were young men of intelligence and fine character. We are entirely serious when we say if a confidential survey of alumni could be made by any university the results would be completely shocking in their revelation of the ravages of drink in the area of leadership. It is, above all, important that the American people realize that the so-called "upper classes" are producing more psychotics in proportion to numbers than any other class. Our leadership resources are being wasted by a custom which survives only because of tradition and because the facts in regard to it are little realized.

CONGREGATIONALISM'S MISSION IN THE SOUTH.

(Continued from page 5.)

try. We need similar vision today in other fields.

In our ministry, we, like others, will need to take our message to people, right where they are—at beaches, in the mountains, out in the little country areas. We shall want to leave cards and leaflets in motels and other overnight places, and hold little services at roadside picnic spots, in small rest homes, in new housing plats and in drive-in theatres. We shall want to provide suggested prayers for display in overnight lodges and motels, and graces for use at meals in restaurants and hotels. We shall want to send lawmen's deputations from one district to another.

An immediate need, as I see it from an admittedly short time of residence, is to draw together the Carolinas and Georgia and Florida. The Carolina-Virginia area is too much cut off from us further to the South, now.

I should favor a well-planned institute of the South, backed by our church associations along with our colleges, and providing a year-round scholarly and aggressive analysis of Southern life and problems, and offering lectures and studies and researches and other helps. We ought to have district Institutes on Human Relationships, dealing each year with some phase of this field, such as personality conflict, handicaps, heterogeneous populations or race prejudice.

We must take religion to the people—North or South, East or West. It may not always be wise to build so many fixed and expensive buildings, needed or not needed. We must at any rate keep flexible and mobile, able to place a new mission where a new plat or building development has been set down like a swarm of bees. We must be right in there, organizing, providing church schools for children, and so on. We cannot wait to build a cathedral there.

In many cities we could have religious literature in tourist-information booths or in roadside places. Special services can be scheduled at ball parks and similar places. Negro mission work is a likely project for many of our white churches. Our Christian colleges need our attention and should have the support of our people, including attendance at summer conferences and the like. We should make much more than we do of Christian College Sunday. We could use tape-recordings to send programs from one place to another, where distances in the South, as in the West, can be such a factor. We should do more with tracts and with church bulletins left in resort places, hotels and the like.

So far, we have done too little in developing a distinctively Southern aspect to our faith. This could help much to combine the indigenous groups. We have not done enough for servicemen at the numerous Southern bases. We have been too slow in following people into new fringe areas where they have built new homes. We have not been aggressive enough in presenting a simple, rational, yet warmly appealing faith for those who do not want the familiar types so rampant in the South.

Congregationalism, indeed, has a mission in the South—but only if it has a mission—period. It will not thrive if it simply copies the strong denominations now entrenched there. It will not thrive if it has lost the radiance of a faith in a living Christ whose Gospel means abundant life and a better society.

It can have its place in helping to build the Kingdom of God, and this will include the solution of many local problems and the integration of Northern emigrants and the synthesizing of many elements into an effective whole.

The motorist was lost. He didn't know which way to go. Seeing an old man approaching, he shouted, "Do you know the way to Widdlecombe?" The old man shook his head, and the motorist drove on slowly. When he had gone about a quarter mile, he heard shouts behind him. He looked round. The old man had been joined by another, and they were waving him back. Slowly he backed his car down the narrow road. "Well?" he said. "This is my mate, George," said the old man. "E don't know, either."—Tid-Bits.

The Orphanage

J. G. TRUITT, Superintendent

Dear Friends:

Coupons are coming in encouragingly. In every church there should be designated a person who would boost our coupon campaign. This person would keep it before the people and act as a collecting agent for coupons when brought to Sunday school or church. I have been real proud of many people who are helping us get out the coupons. We shall send off a large box of them on June 23 or 30. How many can you send us right away?

Also thanks to you for helping us in the Sunday schools. Some new accounts from monthly Sunday school offerings have been made. It is true that many churches have a unified budget. Even so, some of them have decided that a token gift each month voluntarily made for homeless children of their own Convention will not hurt anybody, and will help the children under the Convention's care considerably. That every month offering is keeping us in step with last year's receipts. We thank every Sunday school that is kind and generous enough to help us once each month. Every church in the Southern Convention, some time during the year, helps us, and we are grateful to each one of them.

I meant to tell you that on Mother's Day our youngest church announced at their 11 o'clock service that "on this Mother's Day our church will share in being a mother to motherless children. The money received in our offering today for that purpose will be sent to the Christian Orphanage." A liberal offering resulted, the people were happy and a kindness to homeless children had been shown that warmed the hearts of all present.

A Greensboro friend whose home has been made happier by having one of our little girls spend Christmas there, had his own daughter's bicycle overhauled and sent down to us "for our little friend and her playmates." Neither summer, nor winter, nor fall, nor spring is she forgotten by the folks who have received help and joy from her by her visits to their homes. There are so many pretty ways to help us here I wonder that everybody doesn't find one. And, indeed, more than I know do, for everyone who drops a penny or nickle in an offering plate for the orphanage is a helper.

